The Conference gave much prominence to the question of education. Dr. W. L. C. Hunnicutt gave us much light on this subject. While there he increased the endowment fund of Centenary College $700.

The question of selecting a place and locating a district high school was discussed at length, which resulted in Rev. P. A. Johnston selecting a committee of seven for said work, of which the presiding elder of the Woodville district is to be chairman of said committee.

The Conference adjourned with benediction by Rev. J. W. Sandell, to hold its next session in Centerville, Miss., W. T. Woodward, Sec.

Corinth District Conference.

The Corinth District Conference met in the Methodist Church at Baldwin, Miss., July 1, 1892; Rev. W. S. Lagrone, P. E., in the chair. Every pastor in the district was present, and from one to four laymen from every charge but one. It was a busy time with farmers; yet many of them left the plow and went up to look after the Lord's business. The interest in the affairs is growing steadily year by year. Laymen do not seek excuses to stay away, but make sacrifices to go.

Our presiding elder is a man of ideas. There is nothing perfunctory about his manner of conducting church business. The people who attended the Conference at Baldwin left realizing that Methodism in this district is alive and aggressive. The reports of the pastors showed a decided advance on former years in every department of church work. The Sunday-schools are more numerous, with larger attendance, and in every instance, except one, use our literature. Attendance on public worship larger than usual; souls are being saved, class meetings are being revived, prayer meetings established, and children baptized. There is an increase in subscriptions to our church papers and circulation of religious literature. Bro. Bachman, our Conference colporteur, was on hand with a liberal supply of books and disposed of a goodly number. Rev. B. F. Lewis, assistant editor of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, was with us, representing our Conference organ, and gave us two choice sermons. Dr. W. B. Murrah, of Millsaps College; Rev. J. W. Honnoll, of Malone Female College, Holly Springs; Rev. J. A. Randolph, of Starkville; Revs. J. C. Mims, and W. C. Harris, of our own district, did most excellent and profitable preaching. A missionary anniversary on Saturday night, with an able address by Rev. T. B. Malone, will undoubtedly bring forth fruit in the near future. The love-feast, Sunday afternoon, was a time of refreshing from the presence of the Lord. H. A. Deane, W. H. Reese, W. A. Robinson, L. P. and J. E. Young were elected delegates to the Annual Conference, with R. B. Henderson, W. G. C. Gresham, alternates. Next District Conference goes to New Albany. T. Y. RAMSEY, Sec.

Ministerial Educational Association of Mississippi Conference.

To Whomsoever This May Be of Interest:

It gives us great pleasure to announce to all subscribers and friends of this association our present most satisfactory condition. Our secretary reports three young ministers as having been aided during the year, one of whom graduated at Centenary a few weeks ago. Notwithstanding the pressure of money matters, all bills have been met and the association is not embarrassed. Up to date we have knowledge of four who will apply to us for aid during the next session, and others may yet apply. In order that we may feel safe in accepting these young brethren we should have, at least, $200 in hand by Sept. 1, next, and, therefore, beg of all who owe on notes to respond promptly to the secretary's appeal. Brethren, help. Your small amounts mean much to us. If payments, already due on notes, were paid promptly, we would have, easily, the amount needed. If you can not pay all, send some amount to Rev. M. L. Burton, McComb City, Miss. Let it not be said that the Methodists of the Mississippi Conference refused aid to any worthy young man seeking an education for better preparation for the pulpit. Students desiring to attend either Millsaps or Centenary College will be aided by the association.

All members of the association are earnestly requested, to meet in the office of Bro. B. F. Lewis, in Jackson, Miss., Tuesday, Aug. 9, to consider applications and devise means for carrying on the work. All applications should be in hand at that time. Brethren, please send same to the secretary promptly.

T. B. HOLLOMAN, Pres. Canton, Miss.

A. and M. College and Bro. Randolph.

MR. EDITOR: I have just read "Gilderoy's" communication in the ADVOCATE, of July 7. I am unacquainted with the facts as set forth in that article. "Gilderoy" says, in the last lines of his communication, "I have tried hard to make sure of the facts in this case." Then taking it for granted that the facts, as stated, are substantially correct, I wish, through your paper, to enter my hearty endorsement of Bro. Randolph and of the spirit that prompted "Gilderoy" to write. I do think that when one of our ministers has the backbone to denounce sin, and to antagonize wrong-doing in high as well as in low places, and then in that act provoke the anathemas of the godless, that he should have assurance from his brethren that he has our endorsement, and that we are in touch with him. If the grand jury of Oktibbeha county affirm that there is violation of law on the part of certain citizens, and that they, the "grand jury," are powerless to "remedy the evil by indictment," in the name of high Heaven, is the ministry to be gagged? Shall we make no effort to suppress the evil and elevate the moral tone of the community? I read Bro. Randolph's circular letter to his flock in regard to dancing and the commencement ball, and I hereby enter my hearty endorsement of every line of that letter; and how any member of our church fails to stand by him in these utterances, I can not understand.

I do hope that there must be some mistake in regard to ignoring Bro. Randolph in the public exercises of commencement. Surely, if it were done, it must have been unintentional. I know the president and several professors of this institution, and I don't think they would be guilty of such treatment of the representative of the North Mississippi Conference and of all the Methodism of Mississippi. But if it is true, then I say, Parvus, minor, minime.

I am glad that "Gilderoy" called attention to the fact that 80,000 Methodists in this grand old commonwealth feel that we have an interest in the A. and M. College. It belongs to us just as much so as to any other citizen of Mississippi; and the whole of this 80,000 should at all times show that we desire a wholesome moral atmosphere in college hall and dormitory. As to Bro. Randolph saying or doing anything purposely to injure the A. and M. College in the interest of Millsaps College, I don't believe one word of that. Bro. Randolph is not made of that kind of material; and I do thank God that we Methodists of Mississippi have an abiding confidence in our college enterprise, and we look for a glorious future for Millsaps College, not founded on the ruins of the A. and M. College, or any other institution of learning, but founded on the Everlasting Rock, and sustained by intrinsic worth. Long may the A. and M. College stand, the pride of every Mississippi planter—and may there never come a time when she does not have a true Methodist preacher to help her keep out evil and purify her moral atmosphere! Oh, for thousands and tens of thousands of true men of the Randolph stripe! Men of convictions, and men of grit to avow their convictions! Fire up again, Bro. Randolph; signal off brakes, pull wide open the throttle, and let the Master's car move out gloriously, whether down or up-grade. Let us show to the world that we are down on alcohol, whether sold at the still, in the gilded saloon, by druggist, or by blind tiger; and that we are down on dancing anywhere and at all times. May God bless and prosper Bro. Randolph in his labor of love!

B. F. PHILLIPS. Boonville, Miss.

Rev. L. D. Langford.

Rev. Lorenzo Dow Langford was born in South Carolina, April 20, 1805, and died at his home in Yazoo county, Miss., June 16, 1892, in the eighty-eighth year of his age. His parents were Methodist, and he was, therefore, baptized in infancy and brought up under the restraints of the gospel and of a tender conscience. His father's family lived for a time in Tennessee, then in Illinois, afterward in Alabama, and finally settled in Mississippi.

When about fifteen years old he uttered a wicked oath (the only one he ever uttered) whose reviving echoes reverberated in his ears until about three years afterward, when he was brought through repentance and faith to a sound conversion. He soon felt a call to preach; but under a deep sense of his unfitness for the work deferred obedience for several years. In 1829 he was licensed to exhort, and in 1831 to preach the gospel. Through the influence of his presiding elder, Rev. Jno. G. Jones, he was brought into the Mississippi Conference in 1836, and served for six years in the itinerant ranks. These he regarded as the most useful years of his life. During these years he traveled the Louisville, Greensboro, Coffeyville, Carrollton and Attala circuits, which required, on an average, each, the traveling of about three hundred miles and the preaching of, at least, twenty sermons on a monthly round. On these circuits he was instrumental in receiving 1,350 members into the Methodist Church. Of this work he very frankly remarks: "My success was, in a great measure, owing to my having a number of local preachers; and they worked, and the Holy Ghost helped us, and I, as pastor, got credit for the labor of us all. My stewards and class leaders also did their duty. My first five years I had twenty-three local preachers, and we were all in perfect sympathy and worked together." But this triumphal march was to have an end. He proceeds to say: "But my sixth year on French Camp circuit was a perfect failure. I received only thirty-six members and got thirty-five dollars support. So I was compelled to locate, rent land and work out of debt." But even location and debt could not kill his zeal for the Lord. He tells us: "I still kept up two appointments each Sunday in the month from the year 1844 to 1853, inclusive. Then I took a mission to the colored people under the direction of the presiding elder, Rev. Levi Pearce, and before the year was half out I had three appointments each Sunday." He was a devoted and useful missionary to the blacks. For seven years his Sunday work was entirely among the negroes, and was reported regularly to his presiding elder.

I have never known in the local ranks a more hearty supporter of the itinerant ministry. He honored and supported his pastor most cordially. I again quote his words: "After my mission was broken up by the Yankees taking possession of the Yazoo river, I still preached generally six times a month, twice each Sunday, except on my pastor's day, which I reserved to be with him, for since I joined, sixty-one years ago, I have never willingly been absent on my pastor's day."

To the end of his long life Bro. Langford's devotion to God and consecration to his service were never abated. He loved the church and thought no sacrifice too great in order to promote its efficiency as the divinely appointed agency for administering salvation to the world. He would sometimes ride thirty or forty miles to attend a quarterly meeting, even when it was not on the circuit where he held his membership. He was a very helpful hoarse of preaching. The preacher who was not aided by his presence in the audience must needs be blind and deaf. He loved to preach, and often did so to the last with great unction and power.

Bro. Langford was first married, in 1824, to Miss Catharine J. Malloy, of Alabama. They had nine children, of whom three only are living. One of these is Rev. D. C. Langford, of the Mississippi Conference. After the death of this wife he was married to Mrs. S. C. Pope, who still lives. In their home he and his wife dispensed a cordial hospitality, especially to Methodist preachers. His later years and final days were such as his preceding life would lead us to expect. His faith was abiding. Even when the infirmities of age and the pains of disease shook and shattered the trembling house of clay, his steadfast spirit triumphed in the Lord, and at last went peacefully to the joys of heaven. Rev. R. J. Jones officiated at his funeral.

W. L. C. HUNNICUTT. Explanatory.

MR. EDITOR: Let me ease your mind concerning that "fracas" you anticipate in the office of the Nashville Advocate over Dr. Hoos' assertion: "It is an unquestionable fact that a great deal of our preaching is empty and shallow." We brethren are acquainted with the custom among editors of writing themselves in the plural. True, it is strange the dear Doctor should confess so publicly, but we are not going to raise any "fracas." We are sure he ought to know if his "preaching is empty and shallow." We take his word for it, and offer him our tenderest sympathies, hoping his hearers may be the beneficiaries of this discovery. Many of us are much attached to the Doctor and would not have betrayed him had he kept quiet.

H. M. ELLIS. Domestic Missionary Funds.

The appropriations made by the Board of Missions of our Conference has been brought under review by Bro. Ellis. I see the brethren are making some corrections. I suppose by the time all the light is turned on that we will come to the conclusion that the domestic missionary funds are in safe hands. Turn to the Minutes of the Conference and look at the names of the fourteen members of the Board, and then add the seven presiding elders, who are always present when the appropriations are made, and I think those who contribute the money will feel that, at least, no grievous mistake will be made. I think we could use wisely more funds than are at our disposal.

C. McDONALD. Forest, Miss.

Corinth District, North Mississippi Conference.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON TEMPERANCE.

"The seed of the woman shall bruise the serpent's head." The seed of the woman was the promised Messiah. We know why God made the horse, the cow and the sheep; but we do not know why he made the serpent; unless he made it to represent evil. We believe that in all ages the serpent has represented sin. We believe the different kinds of serpents represent the different kinds of sins. When Christ came into the world he found the serpents of sin almost unnumbered. Then his work of bruising the serpent's head began. To-day the mind and spirit of Christ dwells in his people, and the work still goes on. Dancing is a sin that has done much harm, but this serpent has had its head mashed until it is almost dead. There is not much dancing in this country, for Christ has made it unpopular. The best people do not dance. The great huge serpent of war that has cursed the world so much has had its head greatly bruised. Christ is beating the sword into a plowshare and the spear into a pruning-hook. His kingdom means peace on earth and good-will to men.

Solomon says that wine is a serpent that bites and an adder that stings. It is a serpent that has crowded into our homes and bitten many of our children. It has bitten many a good father and husband, and the wife has been made a widow and the children orphans. The rattle-snake, the copper-head and all the serpents of this world combined have not done half of the harm this serpent has done. We have seen a few men die of the snake-bite, but we have seen many die of the bite of the worm of the still. We would vote for a snake before we would vote for a saloon. Of the two evils we would prefer the less. Thank God, Christ is bruising the head of this serpent! In this country it is almost dead. Years ago ex-Gov. St. John said, "The saloon must go." In the Corinth district it is almost gone. We only hear of three, and they are not in high places. Prohibition does prohibit. All over this district there is peace and sobriety. To Christ be all the power and glory!

W. J. BURT, Chairman.

BOOKS AND PERIODICALS.

All books received will be acknowledged in this column. A fuller notice will depend upon the interests of our readers.

BOOKS.

SUNDAY LAWS. By George E. Harris, of the Washington (D. C.) Bar. The Lawyers' Co-operative Publishing Company, Rochester, N. Y.

This is a treatise on Sunday laws; the Sabbath—the Lord's Day, its history and observance, civil and criminal. It appears to us that this is a valuable contribution to the Sunday literature which is becoming so abundant.

EARNEST THOUGHTS FOR EVERY DAY. By the Author of "Thoughts for Every Hour." 136 pages, in white leatherette. Price, 25 cents. Published by Thomas Whitaker, 2 and 3 Bible House, New York.

Some years ago the daughter of one of the famous preachers of his day published a little collection of religious reflections under the title, "Thoughts for Every Hour." It met with a well-earned success. Some few such books can boast of over fifty thousand copies having been printed and sold. A companion volume was duly called for and christened "Earnest Thoughts for Every Day." Thomas Whitaker, who now publishes both, has recently released them in dainty white leatherette covers at twenty-five cents each. There is a directness, simplicity and charm in these booklets that will be keenly appreciated by even the most casual reader.

PERIODICALS.

—THE COTTAGE HEARTH, for July, has a good spread for several classes of readers. W. A. Wilde & Co., Boston. Price, $1.50.

—GOOD HOUSEKEEPING is up to its usual high mark. It is an excellent periodical for housekeepers. Clark W. Bryan, Springfield, Mass. Price, $2.40.

—POPULAR SCIENCE, for July, has a great variety of articles on popular subjects. It is an interesting periodical for anyone to read. D. Appleton & Co., New York. Price, $5.

—THE TREASURY has a splendid table for July. This monthly, it seems to us, is getting better, and is well worth $2 for any preacher. E. B. Treat, New York. Price, $2.50.

—THE PREACHER'S MAGAZINE has much that will interest the clergy; Mark Guy Pearse, Joseph Parker, William Spiers being among the contributors. W. B. Ketcham, New York. Price, $1.50.

—THE HERALD OF HEALTH, for July, has various articles concerning health which may be read to profit, especially the opening article entitled, "A Day in Bed for Health Sake." Dr. M. L. Holbrook, New York. Price, $1.

—WIDE-AWAKE, for July, is as wide awake as ever, though it is sultry Summer-time. The one hundred pages of this young people's monthly are always so well fitted that it is one of the most popular. D. Lothrop Company, Boston. Price, $2.40.

—MISSIONARY REVIEW. We have taken occasion frequently to commend this magnificent monthly. It far exceeds anything in its line that we know, and is one of the best things for a preacher to keep handy. It is cheap and invaluable. Funk and Wagnalls, New York. Price, $2.

—THE REVIEW OF REVIEWS, for July, is brimming with interesting matter. It has the cream of all the magazines. It has a character sketch of President Harrison, by Gen. Thomas J. Morgan; Russia's Conflict with Hungary, by W. C. Edgar, and How to Learn a Language in Six Months, by W. T. Stead—all of which make an interesting number. Review of Reviews, New York. Price, $2.50.

—BOOK NEWS brings its readers abreast with current books by a process of sampling which whets their appetites and sends them to the book stores. John Wanamaker, Philadelphia. Price, fifty cents.

—BOOK BUYER is of the same order, and generally produces the same results. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York. Price, $1.

—THE AMERICAN JOURNAL OF POLITICS is a new monthly for "intelligent men and women who read and think on vital questions of the times." This first number contains an article by Gen. M. M. Trumbull on Richard Cobden, one on Drunkenness—a Curable Disease, by Dr. Leslie E. Keeley; one on Ideal Education in Our Cities, by Rev. Edwin O. Buxton. The Silver Question, the Columbian Exposition, Secret Societies, Reformatory Prisons are also discussed. American Journal of Politics, New York. Price, $1.

—THE FORUM has its usual variety of interesting papers by leading writers. Coal Supply, European Armies, Russia's Land System, The Standard Oil Trust, Womeu, The Negro, are all discussed. This popular monthly shows its enterprise by entering the presidential campaign at the very start. In the June number discussed the issues of the contest, and the July number, which was issued a day after the Chicago convention adjourned, contains two articles on the presidential candidates—"Harrison" by Senator Hawley, and "Cleveland" by Charles Francis Adams. In these two numbers of The Forum, therefore, is the campaign material—in a nutshell—that the whole Summer's discussion will bring forth, compactly put by a leading man in each party. The editor promises that these articles will be followed by others on important phases in the contest. Forum Publishing Company, New York. Price, $5.

PAMPHLET.

—What is Homeopathy? By Dr. William H. Holcombe. Published by 15 cents.

He who reads this little pamphlet, whatever may be his views of the subject, will confess that Dr. Holcombe has put the whole matter in a very lucid and pleasant style.

—What is Homeopathy? By Dr. William H. Holcombe. Published by 15 cents.

He who reads this little pamphlet, whatever may be his views of the subject, will confess that Dr. Holcombe has put the whole matter in a very lucid and pleasant style.

—What is Homeopathy? By Dr. William H. Holcombe. Published by 15 cents.

He who reads this little pamphlet, whatever may be his views of the subject, will confess that Dr. Holcombe has put the whole matter in a very lucid and pleasant style.

—What is Homeopathy? By Dr. William H. Holcombe. Published by 15 cents.

He who reads this little pamphlet, whatever may be his views of the subject, will confess that Dr. Holcombe has put the whole matter in a very lucid and pleasant style.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON.—July 24, 1892.

By REV. W. H. LAIPRADE, D. D.

The Lame Man Healed.

Acts III 1-16.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"And his name, through faith in his name, hath made this man strong."—Verse 16.

We are told by St. John that Jesus did many things that are not mentioned in the Gospels. It was needless to mention all of them. Of this we are sure: all were of the nature that are mentioned—works of kindness, for the relief of human suffering, and for instruction in righteousness.

So, also, we find that while the apostles did "many wonders and signs," they are not mentioned in detail. Enough is stated to furnish full proof of their claim of inspiration and of authority; to illustrate the attitude that Christians should take toward suffering and woe; and to lead men into broader and more spiritual views concerning gospel blessings.

The case of the lame man of our lesson is a representative one.

Ver. 1. Partners in daily toil of Galilee, spreading their nets for fish these two chosen ones, bound by marriage, became associate "fishers of men." The promptings of devoted spirits led them to the temple, to prayer services, of which there were three daily. It was now three o'clock in the afternoon—the ninth hour (reckoning from six A. M., the beginning of the Jewish day) and the last "hour of prayer."

Ver. 2, 3. It was customary, there being no hospitals until the teaching of Christ gave origin to them, to carry the permanently helpless to public places where opportunity would be given to ask aid. This principal temple-gate was an excellent place for such a purpose. It is not probable that the lame man knew them; he asked each worshiper who came near to him.

Ver. 4, 5. Peter wanted "a hearing." He purposed, moved by the Spirit, to do work for Christ and his name. To secure attention to the message was the first thing necessary. This he did by recognizing the miracle.

Ver. 6. "Give to him that asked thee," the Savior had said. Give of what you have, not of what you have not. People do not always do what most they most need. We have something for everyone, if we will but give it. Peter and John were poor, as men count poverty; but he had permission to draw on Christ for what this lame man needed. Their faith made their command, to "rise up and walk," Christ's command.

Ver. 7. Probably the cripple needed some further assurance of the earnestness and faith of Peter. The sympathetic touch of a fellow-human is a strong help to faith. Many a poor purpose to help others fails of result because of the failure to take hold and lift up the needy.

The strength came to the lame man by the power of Christ; Peter's hand-grasp encouraged him to use it.

Ver. 8. The loosened tongue fell on the opened eye looks; the healed cripple walks and leaps. That is nature. He praises God with his voice, but also with the newly given powers of "feet and ankle bones." That was good way to "testify," and one the people understood.

Ver. 9, 10, 11. This double proclamation, by mouth and by motion, stirred the multitude. Here was a wonderful thing come to pass. For forty years, as many of them knew, this man had been lame. All arguments for the impossibility of healing him went down when he came leaping and shouting through the porch, ceding, no doubt, about Peter and John, and grasping them gratefully as the crowd thronged him. This coming together of the people furnished Peter his opportunity to preach Christ.

Ver. 12. Peter denies that he or John had any power to do such miracles. But their agency in the miracle authorized them to say how it was done.

Ver. 13, 14, 15. Their God—the God of their fathers—had, by the wonderful work, in this language of action, easily understood by all, declared the glory and Sonship of Jesus. He had reversed the judgment of the Jews. The crucifixion of Jesus he charges them with. All Jerusalem he shared; more or less directly, in the crime.

Jesus had been raised from the dead. "Of this," said Peter, "we are witnesses." This man's healing voucher for us; we, so indorsed, vouch for the fact of the resurrection of Jesus. The people will receive the testimony of men who are evidently in touch with God.

Ver. 16. Peter gives all the glory to Jesus. He did this great work. Through faith in him this perfect soundness was given. He, Jesus, the Crucified One, had done it all. They stand the man, sound, as you see here stand we, through whom Jesus reached him. Jesus, whom ye knew, the Son of God, and in him is power.

The proof of power to do is the thing done.

Ver. 17. Peter gives all the glory to Jesus. He did this great work. Through faith in him this perfect soundness was given. He, Jesus, the Crucified One, had done it all. They stand the man, sound, as you see here stand we, through whom Jesus reached him. Jesus, whom ye knew, the Son of God, and in him is power.

The proof of power to do is the thing done.

Ver. 18. Peter gives all the glory to Jesus. He did this great work. Through faith in him this perfect soundness was given. He, Jesus, the Crucified One, had done it all. They stand the man, sound, as you see here stand we, through whom Jesus reached him. Jesus, whom ye knew, the Son of God, and in him is power.

Temperance Department.

EDITED BY REV. JOHN T. SAWYER, D. D.

From Doncaster, England.

To a late letter from Rev. Reynolds S. Trippett, a superannuate of the Louisiana Conference, who lives in England, we find the following:

Permit me to thank you very kindly for the interesting articles furnished you from time to time on the subject of temperance in the columns of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. They will be read by large numbers of people, and will be the means of awakening an interest on this great and important subject. I have seen more drunkenness since I have been in England than I saw among the white people of Louisiana during a residence of over forty-five years. It is sad to see women and children, with their bottles and pitchers and jugs, entering public houses at all hours of the day and purchasing liquor and carrying it on the streets to their homes for drinking. During the hours of the Sabbath day the doors of dram shops and beer houses are thrown open, and the public houses are soon filled with hordes of young and old men, who spend their money for drink. The temperance people are few and weak, while the intemperate women are few in number, and are doing very little, comparatively, in trying to rescue their children from this damning curse. Many professed religionists are opposed to abstinence, and even vote in favor of license. There are a few devoted friends of temperance, such as Lady Somerset and Sir W. Lawson, M. P., and others, who are stirring the people up on this question, and I pray that their number may increase.

GOOD FOR TEXAS!

The war-ship Texas was christened with water, and not wine, by W. C. T. U. woman, Miss Madge Williams, who is a grand-daughter of Gen. Sam Houston, the hero of San Jacinto. That was right.

The eleventh Annual Convention of Christian Endeavor, assembled in Madison Square Garden, New York, 20,000 strong, and representing 1,200,000 people, passed, on July 7, 1892, ringing resolutions demanding of the U. S. Senate to take such action as will compel the commissioners of the Columbian Exposition to close the gates on Sunday and to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors. That all Christian bodies and all good citizens throughout our land should be forced to petition and demand the observance of the American Sabbath and the abolition of the liquor traffic at our great Exposition, discloses the hold that the devil has upon this people. Whiskey lords, Sabbath breakers, and such like, well-nigh have the nation by the throat.

IN GERMANY.

This is from the Union Signal: "One-fifteenth of Germany's cultivated land is devoted to the liquor traffic, which is making it a question of beer or bread for the poorer classes of that country. The drink question is thus becoming an important one in the political economy of Germany. Prof. Scholler, of Berlin, an able political economist, thus writes: 'Among our working people the conditions of domestic life, of education, of prosperity, of progress or degradation, are all dependent on the proportion of income which flows down the father's throat. The whole condition of our lower and middle classes—one may, even without exaggeration, say the future of our nation—depends on this question. If it is true that half our paupers become so through drink, it gives us some estimate of the costly burden which we tolerate. No other of our vices bears comparison with this.'

LONDON, ENGLAND.

London has 8,325 miles of streets and a population of 5,847,000—more than the whole of Scotland or of Ireland. It has only 439 church-buildings. It has about 8,500 people to the square mile; 145,000 paupers, one-half of whom are children. London has over 36,000 registered, habitual criminals. There are over 14,000 policemen, which cost the city over $7,000,000 a year. London has also 14,000 beggars. How much these cost nobody can figure out. Never will there be any way out of "darkest" London, or the bottomless miseries and degradation of any other city, so long as the beggar's curse is tolerated.—Advance.

GROVER CLEVELAND'S PASTOR.

"Most of the degradation in our politics, most of the crime which fills our prisons, most of the poverty that fills our tenements, comes from the saloon." So says Rev. Dr. Wilton M. Smith, Grover Cleveland's pastor. We suggest that a reform that promises the removal of most of our political degradation, most of our crime and most of our poverty, is a reform beside which Mr. Cleveland's tariff reform pales into comparative insignificance.—The Voice.

The Toronto, Canada, Christian Guardian says:

Alex. Balfour, Esq., of Liverpool, England, said, in 1884, the cost of all the wars England had carried on since the battle of Waterloo came to considerably less than the amount spent upon drink in two years by the British people. Fifty thousand lives lost by drink every year—vastly less than were slain in battle in the seventy years.

Bishop Phillips Brooks says: "Never shall my hand or voice be lifted over a cause so-called temperance fanaticism. I never saw a cause justified by fanaticism. Temperance cause does. To me there is nothing more disgusting or more heart-breaking to the cause of humanity than the selfish, case-loving, luxurious man, indulging in dissipation and debauchery."

The Rev. Dr. W. D. Kirkland, editor of the Southern Christian Advocate: In a late issue of his paper, insists, in emphatic language, upon preachers taking a hand "in the matter of prohibition." Here is what he says:

In the work for prohibition the ministry occupy an important and responsible position. Upon their action the success or failure of the movement largely depends. On general principles the preacher does other and more important work than that of bestirring himself on questions of a political character. This not because he loses his right to be interested in issues touching the political welfare of his country—for a preacher is none the less a citizen because of his divine call to a holy work—but because the political issues before the country are usually unimportant in comparison with the work he has to do, and will be looked after by others. In the matter of prohibition, however, that involves not only the temporal prosperity of the country, but vitally affects morality and involves the salvation of millions of souls, the minister's duty is active work. If he does not lay hold in such work, who will? If he timidly behind the fortress—no matter if he is praying—who can we expect to go out into the battle? The preacher who falls in his duty here is derelict in his duty to his fellow-man and criminal before his God. Stuff about carrying politics into the pulpit is no better excuse than having "married a wife" or "bought a yoke of oxen." Such prudishness will not pass muster before him who demands of every man the fearless discharge of the duty of the hour.

For the preacher to lay hold of this issue will require something more than a cotton string for a backbone. It may be that it will mean a few dollars off of a small salary, and much persecution in many ways. Thank God the preachers of the South Carolina Conference have a veritable development, and are not afraid to lay hold. If there is one who is not brave enough for the battle, then, brother, get out of the ministry. You must have answered somebody else's call.

Hon. John G. Wooley, in the Union Signal, says:

It is not union of the church and state I advocate, but union of the church to save the state. It seems to me that from a slavish old ecclesiasticism we have swung over to a childish and impractical spiritualism that sighs and prays, "Oh, Lord, make us right or about right," "Thy kingdom come," gradually. We need to rig ratchets on our Sunday Christians to hold them up to the crank during the week.

The reproach and weakness of the church is can't—"can't elect," "can't enforce," "can't prevent." The saloon keeper is a man who can, and he does, and he will until Christian voters leave off their "can't." In Minnesota it takes a brave bird to stand the winter. At my window one evening, when the mercury was falling rapidly and the fine snow fell like powdered glass, a blue jay swung on the tree top and shouted "Hill-bim-a-lick, hill-bim-a-lick," and away down on the icy trunk a sap-sucker piped back, "Can't." Next morning the sap-sucker lay dead on the drift, but the jay swung in the dizzy top and shouted, "Hill-bim-a-lick!" but of course the sap-sucker couldn't. The church is overstocked with sap-suckers. Many of our Christian men are brave enough, but are waiting for light, as to methods, not reflecting that power and light are so correlated that when you get one you have the other, as in the case of an electric motor, when the trolley is on the wire overhead, it goes and has light. You say you can't see? You are disconnected; reach up, and touch God and you will see because you go.

The world has suffered ever since the fall of man. Curse after curse has fallen upon man through his own wickedness. War has swept down the flower of manhood till nations have been depopulated, and whole governments have been blotted from the face of the earth.

The Homish Inquisition with hellish gloom burnt its tens of thousands of innocent ones at the stake. Others were beheaded or impaled on the deathly altars. Her murdered millions cry around the throne of God for vengeance.

Disease brought on by evil conduct has spread abroad until whole communities have been depopulated by the plague. Sin has figured in all earth's sorrows and mothered all her woes.

But it seems that the colossal crime of crimes and curse of the ages has centered its forces on the civilized nations in the advancing light of this nineteenth century. As the father of crimes, the mother of sorrows, the brother of woes, the sister of miseries, the enemy of heaven and holiness, the handmaid of sin and hell, the licensed liquor traffic stands out without a parallel on earth if it has an equal in hell.

The chief surprise of three worlds, heaven, earth and hell, must be found in the fact that this chief of the schools of evil, the University of Hell, can find sufficient patronage to live, and sufficient votes to become law-entrenched. In this land of Bibles, churches and Sabbaths.—The Soldier.

Judge Gildersleeve, in sentencing a prisoner recently, in the Court of General Sessions, New York City, said: "Your trouble is due to rum, and that is the cause of nine-tenths of all crimes. When we have prohibition, if we ever do, and one district attorney, judge here and one district attorney, and probably only two or three assistants. These will be able to do all the work. That would be a saving to the county of $75,000 to $100,000 a year, and of millions of dollars to the people throughout the country, and it would make happy thousands of families who are now miserable."—Exchange.

The chief of the Bureau of Statistics reports that the total value of exports of the merchandise from the United States during the twelve months ended May 31, 1892, was $828,767,853. The drink bill of the country is two and a half times the exports.—Issue.

With a united pulpit, flashing and thundering along the line, the moral sentiment of this country will be awakened, God will be honored, our homes will be protected, and the saloon iniquity, the vilest institution under the sun, shall be excluded from American soil; and our starry flag shall not only be a beautiful ensign of liberty waving in peaceful triumph over a nation of freedom, but shall everywhere be an equal assurance of the protection of the home against the fiendish ravages of the murderous saloon.—Issue.

A church member who runs a saloon, is he not as consistent as he who is one of a political party that establishes the saloon? Any moral difference? Let conscience, illumined by God's Spirit, answer.—Issue.

The reason why Sam Jones says, "If church people stop patronizing saloons, half of them will close," must be, that as church people don't vote the way they pray, they are expected to drink the way they vote.—Issue.

Edward McGehee College Commencement.

All the details of this event this year were peculiarly attractive. Rev. Dr. Weems, of Brookhaven, formerly of the City of Mexico, preached the sermon on Sunday, the twelfth, at 11 A. M. to a large and delighted audience. Dr. Weems is an orator of no mean ability. On Monday, the thirteenth, at 11 A. M., the trustees held their annual meeting, reviewing the year's work and planning for the future. The prospects of the college were never so bright. The patronage is larger than it has been for years, and is still increasing. Notwithstanding the general financial depression, the college is advancing. Sundry improvements were planned by the trustees; the new faculty ratified, the president's gratifying report received, and the former officers of the Board re-elected.

The concerts on Monday and Tuesday nights were very largely attended, and generally applauded. No college entertainments commencement audiences better than those Edward McGehee. Music, elocution and calisthenics, each seems a specialty in the college work—and so they all are; for each is in the hands of a specialist.

The unavoidable absence of the orator of Tuesday—Rev. F. N. Parker, of New Orleans, detained by the crevasse—was very largely compensated for by the excellent essays of the six young ladies who represented the three college classes. They demonstrated that some school-girl essays may be interesting to the great public.

Edward McGehee College is doing a noble work. No college in the South has a higher curriculum or more thorough instruction; and a diploma from her means as much as any diploma a young woman may get anywhere. It is but just to stress this fact when so many so-called colleges are presenting shortcuts to graduation, giving diplomas that are no guarantee whatever of an education.—Woodville Republican.

The early Britons were in the habit of tattooing faces and figures on their bodies, and our Saxon ancestors often dyed or colored their long, bushy hair, sometimes giving it a blue tint. It was from some such source that the suggestion for the story of "Blue Beard" was derived.

Although that color is not seen nowadays, some who attempt dying their hair or beards look blue enough themselves at their miserable failures, for there is no dye that can not be detected with half a glance.

The only way to get back the color of hair that has changed or is dead-looking is by using Louisiana Creole Hair Restorer, which in hundreds of cases has restored to a natural brown or glossy black, hair that was turning gray. It is just as applicable to the beard, and the advantage of using it is that it is harmless, does not spot or fade, and is a delightful dressing. Mansfield Drug Co., Proprietors, Memphis, Tenn.

What we need most of all is to teach our people the joy of soul-saving work. That experience is more fascinating than all others when once it becomes fixed upon the heart. We have seen a large city church so much engaged in, and so much in love with, the duty of trying to save the lost and help the sorrowing as that they had no time, and apparently no desire, for worldly amusements and other follies.—Wesleyan Christian Advocate.

Hall's Vegetable Sicilian Hair Restorer is unquestionably the best preservative of the hair. It is also curative of dandruff, tetter, and all scalp affections.

We talk about whether the liquor traffic should be prohibited. It might be well for us to remember that the Sabbath has been prohibited in our large cities.—Union Signal.

For a disordered Liver try BEECHAM'S PILLS.

He who lives only to benefit himself confers on the world a benefit when he dies.—Terrentian.

A Veteran's Story

Mr. Joseph Hemmerich, an old soldier, 825 E. 14th St. N. Y. City, writes voluntarily. In 1872, at the battle of Fair Oaks, he was stricken with typhoid fever, and after a struggle of several years in hospitals, was discharged as incurable with Consumption.

Doctors said both lungs were affected and he could not live long, but a friend urged him to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. Before he had finished one bottle his cough began to get better, the choking sensation left, and his strength grew less and less. He is now in good health and cordially recommends Hood's Sarsaparilla.

Hood's PILLS are purely vegetable, and do not purge, pain or grip. Try a box. 25c.

Ayer's Pills

the best remedy for Constipation, Jaundice, Headache, Biliousness, and Dyspepsia, Easy to Take sure to cure all disorders of the Stomach, Liver, and Bowels.

Every Dose Effective

Kennedy's Medical Discovery

Takes hold in this order:

Bowels, Liver, Kidneys, Inside Skin, Outside Skin,

Driving everything before it that ought to be out.

You know whether you need it or not.

Sold by every druggist, and manufactured by DONALD KENNEDY, Roxbury, Mass.

Quarterly Statement of the New Orleans Canal and Banking Company, AT NEW ORLEANS.

In the State of Louisiana, at the Close of Business on the 30th Day of June, 1892.

RESOURCES.

Real estate.....	$93,550 00
City and other bonds.....	137,265 00
Stocks.....	23,837 50
Loans and discounts.....
maturing after ninety days.....	$1,546,911 80
maturing within ninety days.....	64,255 17
Suspended paper valued.....	2,243,194 97
Loans on demand.....	$87,736 25
Sight exchange.....	421,704 12
Coins, currency and checks for clearing-house exchanges.....	760,717 86
Total.....	$2,070,218 23

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock paid in.....	$1,000,000 00
Surplus.....	300,000 00
Undivided profits.....	12,963 73
Dividends unpaid.....	40,330 00
Deposits subject to check.....	3,017,539 34
Circulation.....	5,563 00
Total.....	$1,569,840 07

I, the undersigned, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

EDWARD TOBY, Cashier.

STATE OF LOUISIANA.

Parish of Orleans, City of New Orleans. Sworn to and subscribed before me this thirtieth day of June, 1892.

Semi-Annual Statement of the Louisiana National Bank, OF NEW ORLEANS.

At Close of Business, June 30, 1892.

RESOURCES.

Bills discounted.....	$1,255,654 37
United States bonds, Louisiana contracts and other bonds and stocks.....	510,810 85
Banking-house and other real estate.....	100,819 20
United States treasury.....	$ 2,220 00
New York exchange.....	$60,729 18
Demand loans.....	354,973 40
Cash and checks for clearing-house.....	$85,826 93—1,763,779 51
Total.....	$3,570,563 93

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock.....	$500,000 00
Surplus fund.....	150,000 00—$650,000 00
Net undivided profits.....	49,520 03
Circulation.....	15,000 00
Deposits subject to check.....	2,504,661 90
Balance on reduction of capital stock.....	800 00
Dividends unpaid.....	20,582 00
Total.....	$3,570,563 93

A dividend of FOUR DOLLARS PER SHARE was declared from the net earnings of the past six months, payable on demand in New Orleans, and at the Banking House of Winslow, Laufer & Co., New York.

R. M. WALMSLEY, President.
A. LURIA, Vice-President.
LEON F. JANIN, Cashier.

Watches, Diamonds, FINE JEWELRY!

Silver and Silver-Plated Ware, SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES.

Send for Catalogue.

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO., (Established 1817)

119 CANAL ST., New Orleans, La.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT

AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STORM, Etc., Nos. 342, 344, 346 and 348 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

Please mention the Advocate when answering advertisements.

Queen and Crescent Route.

94 MILES the SHORTEST.

New Orleans to Cincinnati.

NEW VESTIBULED TRAIN.

The Queen and Crescent Special leaves New Orleans every afternoon at 5:00 P. M. via Birmingham and Chattanooga for Cincinnati, Vestibuled and Gas Lighted. Through to New York and Washington without change. No extra charge for this superior train service.

TIME TO CINCINNATI, 26 HOURS.

TIME TO NEW YORK, 47 HOURS.

The Queen and Crescent, and East Tennessee Virginia and Georgia are now running through Pullman Vestibuled Buffet Sleeping Cars from New Orleans to New York without change. Time to New York via Washington only 45 hours.

Ticket Office: 34 St. Charles street.

Depot: Corner Press street and Levee.

R. H. GARRETT, Div. Pass. Agent, New Orleans, La.
D. MILLER, Traffic Manager.
D. G. EDWARDS, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent, Cincinnati.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL R. R.

GREAT FAST MAIL ROUTE.

Six Daily Trains between NEW ORLEANS and CHICAGO.

The Only Line running Pullman Buffet Sleepers and Through Cars for All Classes to CHICAGO.

Connecting with all Buffet and Dining Car Lines East, and the ONLY LINE Running Through Cars for All Classes.

To St. Louis Without Change.

The Only Line running a Double Daily Train Service to St. Louis, with Through Sleepers to Memphis, without change.

The Shortest and Best Line from NEW ORLEANS to VICKSBURG.

The Shortest and Most Direct Route to MEMPHIS.

The Only Line Running Pullman Sleeping Cars Through Without Change.

To SPRINGFIELD, MO., FORT SCOTT and KANSAS CITY.

ONLY ONE CHANGE OF CARS FROM NEW ORLEANS TO Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York.

The Great Steel Bridge, spanning the Ohio River at Cairo, completed, and all trains (freight and passenger) now running regularly over it, thus avoiding the delays and annoyances incident to transfer by ferry boat.

Ticket Office: Corner St. Charles and Common Streets.

J. W. COLEMAN, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agt., N. O.
A. H. HANSON, G. P. A., Chicago.

Mississippi Valley Route.

L. N. O. and T. R'y.

Kansas City and Memphis. Arrives. Leaves.

St. Paul, Minn. 6:00 p. m. 8:10 a. m.
Vicksburg, Miss. 8:10 a. m. 8:10 p. m.
Baltimore, Md. 8:10 p. m. 10:00 a. m.

The Only Line running Solid Trains between New Orleans, Memphis and Vicksburg, with Modern Pullman Buffet Sleeping Cars.

The direct and favorite route to Kansas City, Omaha, Denver, St. Louis, Chicago, Louisville and Cincinnati.

The short line to Hot Springs and points in Arkansas and North Louisiana.

Commutation Tickets, Mileage Books, Party Rates and Week End Excursions.

Summer Excursion Tickets on Sale in season.

Ticket Office, 61 St. Charles Street.

P. B. ROGERS, Gen. Pass. Agt.
R. F. REYNOLDS, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agt.

The Texas and Pacific R'y.

EL PASO ROUTE.

The direct line to Shreveport and New Orleans, to Texas, Kansas, St. Louis, the North and East and to all points in Texas, Old and New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado and California.

The Favorite Line via Sacramento to Oregon and Washington.

Only line offering Choice of Routes to points in the Southeast via Texas, Shreveport and New Orleans.

TAKE "THE ST. LOUIS LIMITED"

The Fastest Train between Texas and the North and East.

DOUBLE DAILY LINE of Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars through to St. Louis via the IRON MOUNTAIN ROUTE.

Through Sleeping Cars between New Orleans and Denver and St. Louis and San Francisco.

For rates, tickets and all information apply to or address any of the ticket agents or

GASTON MESLIER, Gen'l Pass. & Tkt. Agt.

C. P. FEGAN, Trav. Pass. Agt.

JNO. A. GRANT, 3d Vice-Pres., Dallas, Texas.

120 and 122 Camp St., New Orleans

Luke A. Ateman,

Furniture & Baggage

WAGONS.

730 Carondelet St., near Toledano.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Orders may be left at my office, 100 Camp St., Kirschner's Marble Works.

Refer to L. A. Ateman, New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Base Ball Goods, Croquet, Fishing Tackle, Seines, Twines.

Refrigerators, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Baskets, Hammocks, Lamps, Lanterns.

Fruit Jars, Corks, Bottles, Flasks, Hardware, Tinware, Stationery, Wrapping Paper and Bags.

FULL LINE OF Wooden and Willowware, Brushes, etc.

J. C. MORRIS CO., Limited.

40, 42 and 44 Tchoupitoulas Street.

R. F. DYER, Pres. E. F. MACKIE, Treas.

SPEND YOUR VACATION ON THE GREAT LAKES.

Visit picturesque Mackinac Island. It will only cost you about $13 from Detroit or $18 from Cleveland, for the round trip, including meals and berths. The attractions of a trip to the Mackinac region are unsurpassed. The island itself is a grand, romantic spot; its climate is most invigorating. Dr. William A. Hammond, of New York, says: "As a health resort so far as my personal experience goes, there is no place so good in every respect for the exhausted city worker, the banker, the merchant, the professional man and wife and children, as the Island of Mackinac." Palace steamers, four trips per week between Detroit, Mackinac, Petoskey, the "Soo" and Marquette. Every evening between Detroit and Cleveland. Send for illustrated pamphlet. Address: A. A. Schmitz, G. P. A., Detroit & Cleveland Steam Nav. Co., Detroit, Mich.

GULLETT'S MAGNOLIA GIN

The Foremost Standard COTTON GIN of the World.

HIGHEST AWARD Cold Medal and Diploma

on light draft, best sample and general utility, at the World's Cotton Centennial Exposition, New Orleans, over all competitors. All late improvements—double brush belts on large flutes, adjustable seed boards, etc., have been added. Every cottonseed packed with cotton before shipment. Address for further particulars.

Christian Advocate.

Rev. D. L. MITCHEL, Publisher.

Office: 112 CANT STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

SUBSCRIPTION: $2 PER ANNUM.
Ministers and churches desiring to purchase, at All Preachers of the M. C. Church, South, are authorized Agents, to whom payments may be made.Rev. C. W. Carter, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. Lewis, Ass't Editor.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

REV. J. M. BEARD, D. D.

REV. J. S. KEENER.

REV. J. B. A. AHRNS, D. D.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

REV. W. C. BLACK, D. D.

REV. W. B. LEWIS.

REV. R. J. JONES.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

REV. W. T. J. SULLIVAN, D. D.

REV. J. D. CAMERON, D. D.

REV. T. C. WIER, M. D.

Thursday, July 21, 1892.

Seashore Camp Meeting.

The meeting was continued through all the past week with varying success. The preaching was characterized by deep thought and earnest spirituality. In all the meetings we have attended we have never known such a high grade of preaching so uniformly sustained from beginning to close. The power of the Spirit was never more manifestly presented in the proclamation of the truth of the gospel. The larger part of every audience was composed of Christian people, and they were bountifully fed upon the bread of God.

Every phase of religious life was exhibited, and the wants of each phase were abundantly supplied out of the treasury of "the glorious gospel of the blessed God." Every temptation incident to the human soul struggling upward had its subtlety and danger exposed, and in the exposure the souls of Christians were more fully armed to meet the danger and more clearly enlightened to discover the subtlety. Thus did the preaching edify Christians as well as convict sinners. Several times the services were interrupted by rain-storms, but the people and the preachers were not disheartened or discouraged. The attendance at the tabernacle at every service was a good proportion of the people on the ground. During all the time the order was very good, both on the grounds and in the tabernacle. The trustees certainly deserve the gratitude of the Christian public for their solicitude for the comfort of all who came within the gates. They were untiring in their efforts to promote the welfare of their guests.

It is the deliberate judgment of very many that this has been one of the most spiritual meetings in its results on Christians that has ever been held on these grounds. Many have also said that, taking it from beginning to close, the preaching done here this year is the best that has ever been done. This was done by the following ministers: Bishop J. C. Keener; S. H. Werlein, of the St. Louis Conference; A. J. Lamar, J. O. Keener, W. P. Dickinson, J. A. Peterson, J. B. Tate, of the Alabama Conference; J. D. Simpson, S. P. West, of the North Alabama Conference; L. M. Lipscomb, of the North Mississippi Conference; L. W. Wood, T. W. Adams, A. D. Miller, of the Mississippi Conference; J. M. Beard, R. Harry, J. B. Walker, S. S. Keener, C. W. Carter, of the Louisiana Conference; R. M. Saunders, of Tennessee.

The music was good, the instruments being handled with great skill by Miss Mary Werlein and Rev. H. H. Ahrens, and the singing led by Rev. R. S. Isbell, Bro. Lakin, and others. The administration of the sacrament of the Lord's Supper, after the sermon at eleven o'clock, last Sunday, by Bishop Keener, was a time of great feeling and rejoicing among the people of God. The Lord honored his ordinance by manifesting his presence in the hearts of Christians, and in its use they consecrated themselves anew to his service.

The children's service at three o'clock, Sunday, was an interesting and profitable time to the young people, and was attended by nearly all the children on the ground.

The number of conversions was twenty-five, and as many joined the church.

After Pentecost: A Result.

After the high state of spiritual excitement which followed the outpouring of the Holy Ghost on the day of Pentecost had passed away, certain notable results were apparent (and are mentioned by St. Luke, the historian of the Apostolic Church) in the habits and conduct of the one hundred and twenty and their first converts.

Of these results the most notable, viewed from the standpoint of ordinary worldly prudence and selfishness, is emphasized by the writer of the Acts by two distinct and separate notices: one in Acts ii, 44, 45; the other in chapter iv, 34, 35. To these statements concerning the body of the disciples is added one, of the same sort, touching a Levite named Josias, known afterwards as Barnabas. We refer to the general surrender of property, real and personal, for the common weal.

This surrender of goods was not demanded as a condition of church membership, nor made in response to a demand of the apostles. Nor can we accept as probable the suggestion that, fearing the confiscation of their property, the disciples purchased a cheap reputation for liberality by dividing their substance among their brethren instead of losing it to their enemies.

Whatever modern commentators may say, St. Luke evidently regarded this remarkable conduct as a legitimate result of the new experience of life in Christ which followed the gift of the Holy Ghost.

There is not the least doubt that the peculiar relation held by the new converts toward the world of unbelievers cut off ordinary sources of income and suggested to the well-to-do the duty, while it furnished to them the opportunity, of sharing their possessions with the needy. But, evident as that may be, Luke does not mention it, does not even hint at it, except in the statement that "distribution was made unto every man, according as he had need." The point that Luke does make and repeat, and illustrate, is that these early Christians, full of the Holy Ghost, in the fervor of their love for Christ and for their fellows, before the spirit of worldly prudence had sown the seeds of selfishness in the fresh soil of their hearts, did freely, and with gladness, give up all their goods for the use of others; freely, we say—"not grudgingly, nor of necessity."

Was this "the spirit of Christ?" Was it in keeping with his comment upon the action of the poor widow with her two mites? In the light of the teachings and of the character of Jesus, does the conduct of Barnabas seem unchristian, or foolish? When Luke mentions that no one of the disciples said "hid with Christ in God," and who were "filled with the Holy Ghost?"

It may be urged that the circumstances of these early Christians were peculiar, creating a demand for such action. Most certainly so; but does not each phase of society, each community in all God's earth, each new condition of church life, and surroundings make its own peculiar demand? Did not One say, "The poor always ye have with you"? So long as there is need of money to do the work of Christ for the relief of suffering in any form, for the uplifting of humanity in any way and anywhere, so long does duty call and opportunity offer, as truly as to the Levite, Josias, who "by the apostles was surnamed Barnabas, which is, being interpreted, the son of consolation."

We do not advocate the adoption of any Socialistic nor Communistic theory of government. We condemn those things as foolish, dangerous, ruinous. Nor do we urge any to imitate Count Tolstoi in all his attitudes, or to accept all his expositions of the words of Christ. But we do say, unhesitatingly, that the spirit that prompts men to hold on to surplus while the world is suffering; to seek investments while the church is crippled for want of means to carry on her legitimate work; to say of his property, "It is mine own," when God, in providence, calls for it, is the spirit of anti-Christ, and not that of him who is "filled with the Holy Ghost."

W. H. L.

Millsaps College.

MEETING OF THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES—FACULTY COMPLETED.

A meeting of the Board of Trustees of Millsaps College was held in Jackson, Miss., Wednesday, July 13. The principal business was the election of two additional professors—one to fill the chair of Ancient Languages, the other to take charge of the Preparatory Department.

At its last meeting, it will be remembered, the Board elected to the presidency, Rev. W. B. Murrah, D. D., well known throughout the State as an eminent and successful minister, a member of the North Mississippi Conference, and for several years past vice-president of Whitworth Female College, at Brookhaven, Miss. He needs no commendation from us.

Prof. W. L. Weber, an A. M. graduate of Johns Hopkins University, was elected to the chair of English. He is the son of Rev. A. S. Weber, a member of the South Carolina Conference, and formerly the editor of the Southern Christian Advocate.

Prof. N. A. Patillo, also an A. M. graduate of Johns Hopkins University, was elected to the chair of Mathematics. His father is an honored member of the North Alabama Conference.

On last Wednesday the Board completed the faculty by the election of Mr. George H. Swearingen to the chair of Ancient Languages, and Rev. McKendree M. Black as principal of the Preparatory Department.

Both these young men graduated with honors at Emory College, Ga., in 1888, taught two years, took a post-graduate course at Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., and each received an A. M. diploma from the university this year.

These young men came to us highly recommended for their scholarship and with a successful record in the school-room as teachers.

Millsaps College is now well officered, and on Sept. 29, next, expects to open not only with a full corps of teachers, but with a hall full of students. Ample provision is being made for the boys, and this will be a college with the home life attached.

Job's affliction was, no doubt, his salvation. True, he was a perfect and upright man, one that feared God and eschewed evil. Yet there are expressions in his conversations indicative of a tendency toward self-satisfaction, self-elation, which is always fatal to godliness. But he was made to know that his sufficiency was of God.

The Sabbath—No. 2.

The Sabbath, or weekly rest, may be instructively and usefully contemplated in several aspects. Let us now consider its sanitary and health-promoting uses. Man is a dual, a compound, being of matter and spirit, or body and mind.

The body is under those laws that God has ordained for the government of matter, and, like other animals, man must, as an animal, be subject to material laws or suffer the inevitable penalties attached to their violation. One of the most obvious and universal of these laws is, that animals must have seasons of repose and rest, and experience has demonstrated that the more regular and fixed these periods of rest the better for the well-being of the animal. The earth, by its daily rotation on its axis, gives us the night with its darkness and general stillness, so favorable to repose and refreshing sleep. The few people who live near or along the southern edge of the Arctic circle, where the sun is continuously visible for three months, and feel the stimulating influence of the light for near a hundred days, become nervous and restive, and their sleep is not so profound and perfect as that enjoyed where the darkness of the night soothes and quiets the irritations and noises of the daylight. All writers on health are agreed that the late hours of fashion, of amusement, of business and various dissipations common to modern cities are unfavorable to health. There is not enough of quietness and sleep. The animal, man, must have rest, or his life candle is burning at both ends, and the brightness of the flame prematurely consumes the fuel that feeds it.

It has been noticed by sanitary students that to the great body of the hard-worked people the ordinary rest of the night is not sufficient. Incessant and straining exertions for six consecutive days of either body or mind produces a certain irritation and loss of harmonious movement in the body which the usual sleep of the night does not quite restore. The rest of the Sabbath supplements this deficiency and restores the harmony and balance of the disturbed circulation and gives repose to the overstrained and irritated nerves. It has been compared to those compensation ponds on high levels that keep the locks of canals supplied as they cross the summits of elevations. The Sabbath rest comes to supplement this need and supply a want which can not be supplied any other way.

Our commercial and manufacturing age has immensely increased the variety and hurrying activities of life, and there is a greater need than in any past age for the weekly rest, and all who take an interest in the public health (which, as has been truly said, is the public wealth), and would conserve it, let them speak out and against the manifold ways in which the public health is attacked along these lines.

Thousands of people who are seeking pleasure in various recreations on the Sabbath are wrecking the health and shortening the lives of thousands whose lot in life compels them to be the Sabbath slaves of these selfish and thoughtless pleasure-seekers. Some must be grooming and gearing the horses that these people may ride. Some must be filling the furnaces of steamers and locomotives that they may be transported. Some must be navigating these vessels and some conducting these cars. Some at the pleasure resorts dressing and cooking the fish and oysters, and some making desserts and creams that they may feast. This work must go on from early morn to late at night. "We have had a good time," say these thoughtless, prayerless sons of pleasure. Yes; but at whose cost of weariness and toil? The poor and dependent whom you make reluctant Sabbath slaves in ministering to your selfish pleasures! All excesses tell upon us in premature exhaustion. When serious diseases attack us, we have no reserve of vitality; we succumb to the attack for want of force to resist and co-operate with the remedies medical skill has prescribed to help us.

It is true that tens of thousands of the laboring poor, through the stress of their circumstances and their ignorance of the laws of health, make no objection to these Sabbath toils, but are pleased to find employment and means to supply the needs of dependent families; but these unfortunate conditions do not constitute a just reason for this oppression, nor lessen the increased sickness and mortality as the outcome of these exhausting and needless exertions. Horses that are worked three hundred and sixty-five days in the year are not so healthy, do not do as good work, nor last so long as those that have the weekly rest.

Cattle that are driven several hundred of miles without intermitting rests do not keep in such health, reach the market in as good condition, and command as profitable sale, as those who have been permitted to rest a seventh of their time. In the long run rest is found as essential to health and long life as food and air. Of the Sabbath, God says, "Thou shalt not do any work." God says this for our health and preservation.

J. B. WALKER.

Woman's Missionary Society of Louisiana Conference.

The Louisiana Woman's Missionary Society, auxiliary to Woman's Board of Missions, has just concluded its annual meeting at Keachie, a little village on Houston and Shreveport railroad, twenty-five miles from Shreveport.

The delegation was small, owing, doubtless, in a measure, to the recent overflow; but those who were present felt amply rewarded for any sacrifice made in going. The sessions of the meeting were well attended, and were full of interest for the workers and visitors. All the executive officers were present except State treasurer, Shreveport, Alexandria and Opelousas districts were represented by their secretaries in person.

A spiritual tone pervaded the whole meeting and culminated in a joyful love-feast on Sunday afternoon. Children's hour was very interesting.

Rev. J. L. Pierce, of Shreveport, preached the annual sermon at 11 A. M., a masterful effort, closing with a fine tribute to the women who have given their lives to the mission cause. Rev. T. K. Faunt LeRoy preached, at 8 P. M., a sermon full of encouragement for the women. Rev. S. H. Whitley, P. C., was ever ready with presence and counsel to "help those women."

Keachie honored her reputation in the hospitality extended the convention, and proved her appreciation by a most cordial invitation to hold the next meeting there.

The treasurer reported sum total of her remittances for the year, $1,208.46. There has been small growth in numbers, but a decided increase of spiritual zeal in the few faithful ones.

The next annual meeting will be held in Grand Cane.

The following list of officers was elected:

President, Mrs. Thos. P. Fullilove; vice-president, Mrs. T. K. Faunt LeRoy; corresponding secretary, Mrs. C. J. Foster; treasurer, Mrs. S. B. McCutchen; recording secretary, Miss Lizzie Paxson.

District secretaries: New Orleans district, Mrs. J. T. Sawyer; Shreveport district, Mrs. Mattie Morrison; Delhi district, Miss Minnie Thompson; Alexandria district, Mrs. B. F. Alexander; Arcadia district, Mrs. Willet; Opelousas district, Mrs. Paul Foster. State organizer and superintendent of juvenile work, Miss Eliza Logan.

The Minutes, containing the annual addresses, will be soon forthcoming.

Miss LIZZIE PAXSON, Rec. Sec.

A Monument to Rev. John Pipes.

We are pleased to note that a movement is being made to erect a suitable monument in memory of that most worthy man and minister of the gospel, Rev. John Pipes, whose body lies in the cemetery at Grand Cane, La. Those desiring to aid, and we are sure that many will, may send their contributions to Mr. Charles B. Hicks, Grand Cane, La.

NOTES FROM OUR JACKSON OFFICE.

The seed of evil-doers shall never be renowned.—Isaiah.

The next session of the Corinth District Conference will be held at New Albany, Miss.

There have been 200 accessions to the church in the Brookhaven district since Conference.

See an account of a meeting of the Board of Trustees of Millsaps College in another column. It contains matters of interest for all.

The next session of the Brookhaven District Conference will be held in Terry, Miss. We hope Bro. Griffin will have the pleasure of entertaining.

The delegates elected to the ensuing Annual Conference from the Brookhaven district are J. E. Carruth, J. S. Soxton, J. H. Thompson, B. F. Gora.

Baldwyn, Miss., has shipped between twenty-five and fifty carloads of corn this year. It was raised, shelled and sacked in the immediate vicinity.

Rev. F. M. Keen, our pastor at Anguilla and Rolling Fork, is seriously ill. Let the prayers of our brethren ascend to a throne of grace for him and his family.

The report of the Committee on Sunday-schools, Corinth District Conference, showed an increase of eight Sabbath-schools, twenty-eight officers and teachers, and one hundred scholars since Conference.

We had the pleasure last week meeting quite a number of our brethren from Mississippi and North Mississippi. They came into the city to attend an important meeting of the Board of Trustees of Millsaps College and several of them paid visits to the Advocate office.

The proposition recently made by the publisher to send the Advocate to anyone not now a subscriber from now until Jan. 1, 1893, for seventy-five cents cash, still holds good, but will necessarily be withdrawn after a few weeks. Let those expecting to accept the proposition do so now before it is too late.

The catalogue of the Grenada College Institute for young ladies lies on our table. This college, under the presidency of Rev. T. J. Newell, has just closed a most prosperous session. It is the property of the North Mississippi Conference, conveniently and healthfully situated, and opens its next session Sept. 6, 1892.

On the evening of July 2 a boy of the streets of San Jose, Cal., threw a stump of a cigarette among some dry crackers and started a fire which resulted in the loss of $300,000 worth of property. Among the losses we notice the Southern Methodist Church valued at $15,000, partly insured. This is a great loss to our brethren of the Far West, and we hope they will soon be able to rebuild.

Rev. Martin Mahoney, a Catholic priest, opened the Prohibition Convention in Cincinnati, O., on June 24 with prayer. The Appeal-Advance of Memphis, Tenn., says: "It was with one exception, the only instance on record in which a Catholic clergyman has officiated at a national political convention in the United States. Rev. Mr. Mahoney is a regularly elected delegate from Minneapolis, and has been a prohibitionist fourteen years."

Send fifty cents, and get fifty neat printed church certificates. Do the work "decently and in order."—Bama Christian Advocate.

This reminds us of a church certificate that recently came under our notice. It was sent from one Methodist preacher to another. It was about as follows:

A. B. has been duly received into the Methodist Church, and, therefore, a proper person to be received into your communion.

The leading editorial of this paper for July 7, was on the subject of lynching. We present here an extract from the speech of Judge J. A. P. Campbell, one of the Supreme Judges of Mississippi, before the third annual session of the Grand Camp of Confederate Veterans, which convened this city on Wednesday, of last week. The opinion of such an eminent jurist as Judge Campbell can not be despised with lightly. He says:

Many a homicide, many a mob, arisen from the conviction that justice by the law would not be applied. The cause of this is not the law. That is good. It is not the judges, or the courts. They are faithful and fearless and partial in enforcing law. The fault is in the people, and in the jury composed of representatives of the people. They often fail of duty. They wink at crime, and condone it. They disregard the law and the evidence, go by their wicked impulses. The result is, the law is scandalous in its administration travestied. The law is brought into disrepute. The law of society are loosened, the claims of law are weakened. The depraved are encouraged in crime, from hope of impunity; and they who feel wronged are prompted to avenge themselves, and redress the wrongs which they do not hope will be suitably redressed by society.

Had he added the subterfuge of practiced at the bar, the picture would have been complete.

PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE.

We are glad to state that Dr. Carradine, who has been sick for several weeks, is reported to be much better. He was at Hot Springs, Ark., at last account.

The Cooper Normal College, at Daleville, Miss., of which we publish an advertisement in another column, is now under the presidency of Rev. Ben. M. Drake, with Rev. Thos. E. Wine-coff as one of the professors. Both are members of the Mississippi Conference, and both have filled, with ability, chairs at Centenary College. We wish them and the college great prosperity.

We call attention to the advertisement, in another column, of Whitworth Female College. This is a thoroughly progressive institution, which keeps fully abreast with the times, and the latest and most approved methods are adopted in every department. Before any of our readers decide to send their daughters elsewhere, we advise them to write for a catalogue and acquaint themselves with the superior advantages of Whitworth.

NOTICE.

To the Members of the Ninth District Conference:

Owing to the fact that the town of Rayville has been inundated, and many of the people feel the necessity of moving out of the overflowed district, the District Conference will be held at Delhi, commencing at 9 A. M., July 25, and closing July 30. Take due notice and govern yourself accordingly.

H. O. WHITE, P. E.

Marlin College for Young Ladies.

PULASKI, TENN.

Under the patronage of the Tennessee Annual Conference. Permanent endowment fund, $30,000.

The only school for girls in the South with an endowment and absolutely out of debt. Eight acres of grounds beautifully ornamented with shade trees, vines, evergreens, shrubbery and flowers. Commodious brick buildings supplied with elegant new furniture—all the rooms carpeted, and have the incandescent electric light. The most beautiful and comfortable home for girls in the South. A full faculty of accomplished teachers. Specialists in every department. Ten States represented by the pupils last session. Health record remarkable—not a death in the boarding department for twenty years. Many delicate girls from malarial regions have been restored to vigorous health by coming here.

Parents who wish to have their daughters graciously guided and faithfully trained by wise and thoroughly qualified teachers can safely entrust them to Mr. and Mrs. Saunders of Marlin College. I knew them intimately in Virginia, and, therefore, cheerfully commend them.

BISHOP W. W. DUNCAN.

It gives me pleasure to recommend a school where such good work is done as at Marlin College. I have tested the work in English and found it the best in any school of like grade within my knowledge.

DR. W. M. BASKERVILLE.

Professor of English in Vanderbilt University. Marlin College more nearly approximates my ideal of a girls' school than any I have seen. I would advise parents and guardian who want to put their daughters in a safe, Christian, and Methodist school, to send them to Marlin College.

REV. LEWIS POWELL.

Chairman of Conference Visiting Committee. I have never seen anywhere, in any school, the highest culture so well coupled with the highest idea of experimental godliness as in this school.

REV. W. J. COLLIER.

P. E. of Columbia Dist., Tenn. Conf.

Send for catalogue, which gives full information. Address,

REV. R. M. SAUNDERS, Principal.

IF YOUR BACK ACHES. Or you are all worn out, really good for nothing. It is general debility. Try BROWN'S HON HITTERS. It will cure you, cleanse your liver, and give a good appetite.

Do You Know?

That when your bowels are disordered, and irregularities caused by change of diet or location exist,

Brodie's Astringent Cordial

Will correct all the troubles, and never fails, but

CURES

DIARRHOEA, DYSENTERY, COLIC, CRAMPS, BLOODY FLUX, and Such Symptoms.

TESTIMONIAL.

July 28, 1892. Dear Sir:—I have used Brodie's Astringent Cordial in my family, and am using the third bottle. It always acts like a charm upon my children, correcting ailments of the bowels better than any medicine I ever tried. Yours, most respectfully,

Mrs. A. W. MOORE.

Price: 50 cts. and $1 a Bottle.

I. L. LYONS & CO., New Orleans, La.

Sold by All Druggists.

Bright's Disease of the Kidneys.

Will Pe-ri-na cure Bright's Disease of the Kidneys? The best answer to this question that can be made is the testimony of the thousands of patients who have been cured by it. A single demonstration of a fact is worth many theories concerning it. The following letter is a specimen of what we are receiving from this class of patients:

GILMER, TEXAS, July 18, 1891. The Pe-ri-na Drug Manufacturing Co., Columbus, O.—Gentle: As my medicine has done me so much good I thought I would write to you and tell you about it. You can publish it if you like. I bought eighteen bottles of Pe-ri-na and Man-a-lin. I had Bright's Disease and gravel. I was my life to Pe-ri-na and Man-a-lin. I would not have lived a month longer if it had not been for your medicine.

Yours truly, H. G. McCULLOUGH.

All persons desiring further details as to the above cure are requested to write Mr. McCullough, who will cheerfully answer all letters of inquiry. There is no form of kidney or urinary disease for which Pe-ri-na is not a reliable remedy. Gravel, catarrh of the bladder, diabetes, pain or weakness in the back or hips, dropsy, puffiness of the face or feet, smarting, scalding, or scantiness are all curable by Pe-ri-na. This remedy can be obtained at most drug stores. In all cases where there is also constipation or irregularity of the bowels Man-a-lin should be taken in addition to Pe-ri-na.

A new publication on diseases of the kidneys and all kindred ailments sent free by The Pe-ri-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, O.

UNIVERSITY OF MISSISSIPPI

Will Open Its Forty-first Session on THURSDAY, SEPT. 15th, 1892.

All departments of the University are in excellent condition for most effective work.

The plan of study is so arranged as to allow all desirable options in selecting a course of study for the Bachelor's Degree, or in the planning of work for the post-graduate degrees of M. A. or Ph. D.

The grade of scholarship is being continually advanced. The various departments are in charge of competent, earnest and progressive men. Large and valuable additions have been made recently to the material equipment of the institution in the Scientific and Law Departments. The Library affords splendid facilities for study and investigation. The Faculty of instruction numbers twenty-one.

No tuition fees are charged, excepting a fee of $50 to law students. Other fees and expenses are moderate. No institution can claim a better record than this for the orderly department of its students during the session just closed.

Send for catalogue and special announcement to ROBERT BURWELL FULTON, Chancellor.

University P. O., Miss. Express Office, Oxford.

MILLWOOD Female Institute.

This institution is located near

Jackson, East Feliciana Par., La.,

a place remarkable for beautiful surroundings and salubrity of climate: four miles from the Mississippi Valley Railroad. Thorough teachers in each department. Terms less than any other school of like advantages.

Session opens the first Monday in September. Send for Catalogue.

MISS M. McCALMONT, Principal.

Practical Course in Telegraphy. Instruction in Music and Art. Cornet Band. Location famous for Beauty and Health. For those not prepared for College Classes, there is a Complete Primary Department.

Resident Surgeons. Preparatory Medical Department. No charge for medical attention. Low rates. For particulars, address

DAVIS SCHOOL, Winston, N. C.

WASHINGTON & LEE UNIVERSITY, Lexington, Va. Academic, Law, Engineering. Opens Sept. 8. For Catalogue address G. W. C. LEE, President.

LAW SCHOOL. WASHINGTON AND LEE UNIVERSITY, Lexington, Va. G. A. Graves, Pres. Law, Civil, and Constitutional Law, etc. opens Sept. 8. For Catalogue address G. W. C. LEE, President.

HOLLINS INSTITUTE. HOTSPRING SPRINGS, VA. For Young Ladies. Opens Sept. 14, 1892. 6th year. 21 Officers and Teachers. Preparatory, Collegiate, Philomathean and Literary Departments. Conservatory Course in Music, Art and Elocution. Beautifully situated in Valley of Virginia, on R. & W. R. R. near Roanoke. Climate unexcelled. Elegant Equipment. Write for Illustrated Catalogue. Sept., Hollins, Va.

CHAS. L. COCKE, Sept., Hollins, Va.

MALONE COLLEGE. (For Young Ladies.) Under the Auspices of the M. E. Church, South. HOLLY SPRINGS, MISS.

The Second Annual Session Will Begin Monday, Sept. 5, 1892.

Location, highest point in the State. Elevation, 850 feet. Health unsurpassed in the South. West. Holly Springs is situated on the junction of two great railway systems.

Course thorough and comprehensive. Each department under the charge of specialists. Special advantages offered in Music, Art and Christian Influences.

Terms moderate. For catalogues or further particulars address

REV. J. W. HONNOLD, President.

Stanton Military Academy, STANTON, VA.

A Military School for Young Men and Boys. Handsome Illustrated Catalogue mailed on application.

Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss.

Session Begins Sept. 29th, 1892.

Full Faculty, Thorough Course, GOOD ENDOWMENT.

New and Commodious Buildings.

Beautiful, Central and Healthful Location at the Capital of the State.

Cheap Board. No Tuition. Moderate Matriculation Fee.

Liberal provision made for young preachers and sons of preachers.

For terms, catalogue or other information apply to

REV. W. H. MURRAIL, D. D., President,

or REV. A. F. WATKINS, Agent, Jackson, Miss.

For Catalogue address

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY, Pres. of Board of Trustees.

Grenada Collegiate Institute

Is Devoted to the Education of Girls and Young Ladies.

Fall Term Opens Sept. 6th, 1892

The Institute affords the very best advantages for culture in Music, vocal and instrumental, in Art, Drawing and the branches of collegiate study, including French, German and Latin. The teachers are experienced and competent. The boarding department is home-like and comfortable. The health is fine. The expenses are moderate.

For Catalogue address

REV. THOS. J. NEWELL, A. M., Pres., Grenada, Miss.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. E. Winecoff, W. L. Ellis, President, Secretary, Bus. Mgr.

COOPER NORMAL COLLEGE, (A School for Both Sexes) DALEVILLE, Lauderdale County, Miss.

Established in 1863. It has the prestige of twenty-seven years' uninterrupted success. Located in a country village famed for its moral and Christian influences. Church and Sabbath-school advantages. New buildings, healthy location, pure free-stone water, easy of access. Four departments sustained: Literary, Musical, Commercial and Teachers' Training.

Special inducements to those preparing for high school, college or university course. Tuition in Literary Department free to young men preparing for the ministry, or to the sons and daughters of ministers in the regular pastorate. Next session begins Sept. 7th, 1892. For catalogue or other information, address one of the officers named above.

MEDICAL DEPARTMENT. Tulane University of Louisiana.

Its advantages for practical instruction, and especially in the diseases of the South, are unequalled, as the law secures it superabundant materials from the great Charity Hospital, with its 700 beds, and 30,000 patients annually. Students have no hospital fees to pay, and special instruction is daily given AT THE bedside of the sick, as in no other institution. Next college session begins Oct. 17th, 1892. For catalogue or information address

Prof. S. E. CHAILLE, M. D., Dean,

307 P. O. Drawer 211. NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Huntsville Female College, HUNTSVILLE, ALABAMA.

Forty-third Session begins Wednesday, September 7, 1892. Healthy, well furnished. Twenty Officers and Teachers.

All departments of Female Education thoroughly taught: Music, Art, Languages, Sciences, Literature and Commercial Course. A Christian home for pupils. Charges reasonable. For Catalogues, etc., apply to

REV. A. B. JONES, D. D., LL. D., President.

SOUTHERN ACADEMIC INSTITUTE. Mrs. J. E. SEAMAN, Principal.

French and English School for Young Ladies. Graded and Charted. Boarding Department a Specialty. New Buildings, Large Grounds. Kindergarten with Normal Training. Boys received in Kindergarten and retained, if desired, until prepared for Tulane. Send for Circular, 216 Coliseum, New Orleans.

Memphis Conference Female Institute, JACKSON, TENN.

The forty-ninth year of this popular school opens September 29th, 1892. Fully equipped to give thorough training in literary courses and special branches. Full Commercial Course. Location healthy. Buildings improved. Grounds beautiful. An attractive home. Send for catalogue.

A. W. JONES, D. D., President.

IUKA NORMAL INSTITUTE. IUKA, MISS.

Eleventh year begins Sept. 6. Meals, lights, fuel, lodging, laundry, books and tuition for 10 weeks cost $15.50; 48 weeks, $186. Music and arts extra. Schools supplied with teachers. Write to

H. A. DEAN, Prin.

Tuskaloosa Female College, TUSKALOOSA, ALA.

Offers superior advantages in every department of female education.

Session Opens Oct. 5.

For catalogue, giving full information, apply to

ALONZO HILL, President.

Southern University, GREENSBORO, ALA.

The next session will open Sept. 21. Course of study: Classical, Scientific and Practical. Its graduates are in demand. Expense very moderate. For catalogue address

REV. F. M. PETERSON, Sec.

Wall & Mooney's School, Franklin, Tenn.

S. V. WALL. W. D. MOONEY, A. M.

The Next Term Will Begin August 30, 1892.

Under date of May 17, 1892, W. M. Baskerville, Ph. D., Professor of English in Vanderbilt University, says: "One cannot but highly praise it in every particular. Millsaps is the watershed, and the young fellows who come to this University from Wall & Mooney's School are mainly at play, mainly at work, mainly in Christian life. It gives me genuine pleasure to endorse such a school. On May 21, 1892, Chas. Foster Smith, Professor of Greek in Vanderbilt, says: 'It is one of the greatest and best academies in the Southwest. It sent twelve boys to the present Freshman class of Vanderbilt, and a finer, better trained group of young fellows it has not sent my privilege to teach. I can heartily commend the instruction and discipline of the school.' " Our boys enter Vanderbilt on our certificate. Address, W. D. MOONEY, Secretary.

WESLEYAN FEMALE INSTITUTE

111th Annual Session Sept. 29th, 1892. STAUNTON, VIRGINIA. One of the most thorough schools for Young Ladies in the U. S. B. A. and M. A. conferred. Conservatory Course in Music. Superior Art School with all ornamental branches and womanly accomplishments. One hundred and fifty-two boarding pupils enrolled from twenty States. Situation beautiful. Climate unsurpassed. Special inducements to persons of education. Those who are seeking superior advantages on the lowest terms, write for a catalogue of this time-honored school, to

WM. A. HARRIS, D. D., President, Staunton, Virginia.

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE, ALCON, GA.

Annual session begins Sept. 27, 1892. Largest patronage in State. Apply for catalogue to W. C. BASS, D. D., Pres.

Privilege of Lectures, Museum, Apparatus in Vanderbilt University. 3 large buildings. 40 officers. 425 pupils from 30 States. Highest advantages in Music, Art, Elocution, Health, Access, Utility. Fully Equipped Gymnasium. Address

Rev. G. W. F. PRICE, D. D., Pres., Nashville, Tenn.

Nashville College FOR Young Ladies.

University School, PETERSBURG, VA. The 25th Annual Session of this School for Boys begins 1st of October, 1st Monday. Thorough preparation for University of Va., U. S. Military and Naval Academies, leading Engineering Schools and Colleges. For catalogue, address W. GORDON MCCABE, Head Master.

SOUTHERN FEMALE COLLEGE, PETERSBURG, VA.

Refined Christian Home, thoroughly organized. Course of study thorough and practical. Modern buildings. New Plan, modern improvements. No school in the South offers a more elegant home surroundings. 21 in Faculty. For catalogue address

Rev. B. H. Charles, D. D., President, Nashville, Tenn.

SEMINARY

Refined Christian Home, thoroughly organized. Course of study thorough and practical. Modern buildings. New Plan, modern improvements. No school in the South offers a more elegant home surroundings. 21 in Faculty. For catalogue address

Rev. B. H. Charles, D. D., President, Nashville, Tenn.

VIRGINIA MILITARY INSTITUTE, LEXINGTON, VA.

54th Year. State Military, Scientific and Technical School. Thorough Courses in general and applied Chemistry, and in Engineering. Courses degrees of graduation in Academic Courses, also degrees of Bachelor of Science and Civil Engineer in Technical Courses. All expenses, including clothing and incidentals, provided at rate of $8.00 per month, as an average for the four years, reduced as follows: New Cadets report Sept. 1st. GEN. SCOTT SHIPP, Superintendent.

Kentucky Training School, Mt. Sterling, Ky.

A practical, homelike, Military school with collegiate course. Number limited: rooms full all year. Apply early. Major C. W. FOWLER, Superintendent.

FISHBURNE SCHOOL, WAYNESBORO, VIRGINIA.

Offers to boys and young men thorough instruction, careful moral and Christian training, physical culture, and discipline which develops firm manhood. Equipped throughout. Climate, "Valley of Va." Write for catalogue. J. A. S. FISHBURNE, Principal.

SULLINS COLLEGE, BRISTOL, VA., TENN.

A CHRISTIAN HOME FOR SCHOOL GIRLS. Thorough instruction in the various branches of the Virginia school. All College advantages of first order. Conservative advantages in Music, Art, Elocution, Health, Access, Utility. Fully Equipped Gymnasium. Address

Rev. D. S. HAYMON, Pres.

AUGUSTA MILITARY ACADEMY, AUGUSTA, GA.

Location, in the heart of the city. Thorough instruction in the various branches of the Virginia school. All College advantages of first order. Conservative advantages in Music, Art, Elocution, Health, Access, Utility. Fully Equipped Gymnasium. Address

Rev. D. S. HAYMON, Pres.

(East side of Campus. Look for view of West side of Campus in next week's Advocate.)

Whitworth Female College and Conservatory of Music and Art, BROOKHAVEN, MISS.

THE 32nd ANNUAL SESSION WILL BEGIN SEPTEMBER 14, 1892.

This is one of the oldest, most prosperous and best Female Colleges in the South.

ADVANTAGES:

LITERARY DEPARTMENT.—Every Chair in this Department is filled by the very best teaching talent money will command. The work done, therefore, is thorough. A diploma from this College means scholarship.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT.—Our Conservatory, established five years ago, has been a great success. Employing only graduates of the best conservatories in Europe and America as teachers, we offer the very finest instruction to those who wish to prepare themselves as teachers of music. The President is constantly receiving applications for teachers who have taken our course.

ART DEPARTMENT.—This Department is presided over by a graduate of one of the best Schools of Design in this country. Our studio is a large, well-lighted and well-ventilated room. It is supplied with the latest and best models.

DEPARTMENT OF ELOCUTION AND PHYSICAL CULTURE.—This is in charge of a graduate of the Boston School of Oratory.

BOARDING DEPARTMENT.—Is under the immediate control of the President's wife, assisted by an excellent housekeeper. The table is supplied with the best the market affords. The College, thus equipped, offers to the young ladies of this and contiguous States the very best advantages that can be had. For further information and catalogues address

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

Sour Eructations,
fullness after eating, with disbelination to exertion of body or mind, irritability of temper, general weariness and debility are speedily removed by the use of

TUTT'S
Tiny Liver Pills

and good appetite, strong digestion,
activity of body and mind, sociability,
buoyancy of spirits, and health and strength take their place. Price, 25 cents. Office, 30 & 41 Park Place, N. Y.

Ready July 1st.
Gospel Hymns
Nos. 5 and 6
Combined.
48 Pieces, many of which can be found in no other book.
Music, $60 per hundred; 70c. ea. by Mail.
Words, $20 per hundred; 22c. ea. by Mail.

The John Church Co., 74 West 4th Street, Chenault.
The Biglow & Main Co.,
20 East 9th Street,
New York.

SPEND THE SUMMER IN THE Mountains of Southwest Virginia.

A quiet summer home can be found at Martha Washington College.
The rooms are elegantly furnished; table,
first-class. The buildings are large and comfortable. Eight acres of paradise comprise the college campus. Two acres of the best market garden in the country.

Rates: One Dollar per Day, and upwards.
Address: Rev. S. N. HARKER,
Abingdon, Va.

Do You Know

That there is but one paper, perhaps, in the South, and but two in the United States, that makes speciality of defending the Christian Sabbath? But little attention is given to this great question even by the religious press. And

Do You Know

That there are more than a million laboring men in this land of Bibles who have no Sabbath?

Have You Ever Seen

THE SOLDIER? It is a monthly paper devoted to the revival of so interest in the Lord's day,
and to the fight against the liquor traffic.

Let every friend of God and His Holy Day,
and every foe to the Whiskey Devil subscribe for THE SOLDIER. You can get it a whole year for only 35c. Subscribe at once. Address

REV. L. L. PICKETT, Columbia, S. C.

LIGHT
A new monthly magazine published in the interest of humane reforms, and as a literary journal for the South. Nothing else like it published in this section. Send for copy.
LIGHT, Natchez, Miss.

NATURE'S OWN REMEDY! Bear Lithia Water

Cures Kidney and Bladder Troubles, Uric Acid
Gout and Rheumatism, Phosphoric Deposits, Inflammation of the Bladder,
Dropsical Affections, Brick Dust Dyspepsia, and Dyspepsia.

FOR SALE BY CLARK & MEADER,
16 and 18 CARONDELLE ST.
BRANCH:
Cor. ST. CHARLES and NAPOLEON Avenues

The Book and Its Theme; OR, THE BIBLE AND ITS MISSION.

By Rev. L. L. PICKETT.
280 Pages, Cloth. Price, $1.00.

A Few Good Words.
Rev. S. A. Keen: This is a clear, suggestive, refreshing volume, ably demonstrating that God has given to the world a Book, and that this Book is a treasure of holiness. One rises from the reading of Bro. Pickett's book feeling that the Bible is indeed with the Divine presence, and that, from the first words, "In the beginning," to the last "Amen," it is so presented with the ideas, and so radiant with the beauty of holiness, that to call it the "Holy Bible" is not a misnomer.

REV. L. L. PICKETT, Columbia, S. C.

SAM JONES!

If you will send me a postal note for 50 cents,
I will mail you at once (postage prepaid) 1 copy of Sam Jones' Sermons, 34c. per copy (regular price, 50c. ea. copy of Sam Jones' Sermons, as related by himself in revival meetings (regular price, 50c. ea. copy of a new Gospel Song—
"Will You Meet Me at the Fountain?"—by Nelson Gilbreath.

All the Above for Fifty Cents.

Send at once. Address
NELSON GILBREATH MUSIC CO.,
Cartersville, Georgia.

Teachers Wanted!

METHODIST.
SOUTHERN TEACHERS' BUREAU,
Winchester, Tenn.
Send stamp.

For Only a 2c. Stamp!

To introduce The Way of Faith, a weekly beautifully printed, vigorous holiness paper, we will send it one month for only two cents.
provided you will then subscribe or notify us to discontinue. Address GOSPEL MISSION Columbia, S. C.

HOME LIFE.

A PRAYER.

I ask not wealth, but power to take
And use the things I have aright.
Not years, but wisdom that shall shake
My life a profitable delight.
I ask not that for me the plan
Of good and ill be set aside,
But that the common lot of man
Be nobly borne and glorified.
I know I may not always keep
My steps in places green and sweet,
Nor find the pathway of the deep
A path of safety to my feet.
But pray that when the tempter's breath
Shall fiercely sweep my way about,
I make not shipwreck of my faith
In the unbottomed sea of doubt.
I do not ask for love below,
That friends shall never be estranged;
I make not shipwreck of my faith
In the unbottomed sea of doubt.
I do not ask for love below,
That friends shall never be estranged;
I make not shipwreck of my faith
In the unbottomed sea of doubt.

Religion among Our Children.

The decay of family religion is one of the most threatening spiritual perils of our day.
It is attributable to various causes, some applicable in one case, others in other cases.
But whatever the cause, the loss to the church of Christ of so many of the rising youth of our homes is a calamity of the most destructive kind. The children are the hope of the church. The army of the Lord is to find its recruits most largely in the posterity of believers.

Some of the sources of the apparent defection may readily be ascertained. The widespread abandonment of religious instruction in the family and turning it over largely to the Sabbath-school, is real danger. The children are not made to learn the Word of God and the catechism in our families, as was the custom among the pious in former days. The absence of this home instruction on the Sabbath is alarming.

Neglect of parents to seek the personal salvation of their own children by conversation and prayer with them, is responsible for many an unconverted son and daughter. Is this neglect due to loss of faith in Christ, or of belief in the danger of a sinful state? It surely can not result from the failure of parental love and anxiety for their future.

The sad delinquency in religious duty, both in precept and example, among inconsistent or unbelieving fathers, may lead to doubt and disbelief in both sons and daughters. Children copy the life they see enacted before them day by day. A worldly spirit of a father may counteract all the preaching of the pulpit and the efforts of religious people to bring their children into the fold of Christ.

Growing worldliness, increased cares, and spiritual neglect of their own hearts and lives among mothers, may induce a spirit of neglect, leading eventually to opposition to religion among their dearest ones. If the mothers are indifferent, inactive and careless, what can withstand the influence of such an example in their homes over the hearts of those who naturally follow the leadings of a mother's life.

The multiplying enticements of unlawful and bewitching pleasure, with increasing indulgence in worldly amusements that seduce
the heart away from Christ and his service, have destroyed the souls of many sons and daughters. This occurs under the very eyes and with the implied consent of non-remonstrating parents who do not govern their households in the fear of God, but let their world, unhindered, snatch the souls of their children from their hands.

Like a general laxity of interest and endeavor on the part of sincere Christians, who fail to persevere earnestly and urgently in seeking the salvation of their young friends, is responsible for the loss of many precious souls from the kingdom of our Master. Too many idlers in the vineyard of the Lord.
Disencouragement and absence of faithful preaching, of remonstrance and exhortation on the part of the ministry, may account for the failure of many conversions. God's simple truth of the way of salvation through Christ, prepared with earnest prayer and preached with the untiring of the Holy Spirit, may be wanting. And where the gospel is not thus preached souls will not be saved as they ought to be. Christ and him crucified must be velously preached.

The education of children separated from religion, in our public and private schools, the absence of the personal influence of godly and devoted teachers guiding children to Christ, leads to a want of love to the church and to the Master among the rising youth. These are taught everything but how to love God and to live consecrated lives in the Master's service.
Alas! what a sad catalogue of reasons to account for the decrease of godliness and spiritual interest among the youth of our churches.
Is it any wonder that the spirit of alarm should have awakened Christian hearts at the ominous outlook? What will become of the church of the future if our children grow up unconverted, unconsecrated?—Mid-Continent.

A Father's Lesson to His Son.

One day Robert's father saw him playing with some boys who were rude and unman-nerly. He had observed for some time a change for the worst in his son, and now he knew the cause. He was very sorry, but he said nothing to Robert at the time. In the evening he brought from the garden six rose-hipped apples, put them on a plate, and presented them to Robert. He was much pleased at his father's kindness, and thanked him. "You must lay them aside for a few days, that they may become mellow," said the father; and Robert cheerfully placed the apples in his mother's store-room.

Just as he was putting them aside, his father laid on the plate the seventh apple, and desired him to allow it to remain there.
"But, father," said Robert, "this apple will spoil all the others."

"Do you think so? Why should not the fresh apples rather make the rotten one fresh?" said his father; and with these words he shut the door of the room.

Eight days afterward he asked his son to open the door and take out the apples. But what a sight presented itself! The six apples which had been so round and rosy-checked were quite rotten, and spread a bad smell through the room.

"Father," cried he, "did I not tell you that the rotten apple would spoil the good ones?"

"You did not listen to me."
"My boy," said the father, "have I not told you often that the company of bad children will make you bad? Yet do you listen to me?
See in the case of the apples that which will happen to you if you keep company with wicked boys."—Selected.

Self-Condemed.

One Summer evening an old farmer sat on his door-step smoking a pipe before going to bed. Presently a tramp appeared, and said,
"Good evening, sir."
"Good evening," answered the farmer.
"I have been walking a long distance," said the tramp, "and if you will permit me, I'll sit a few minutes on your door-step."
"All right," was the answer.
The two men fell into conversation, and as the farmer discovered his guest to be an intelligent man, their talk was continued until a late hour.
"Would you mind giving me a mug of cider?"
asked the tramp at length.
"Not at all," said the farmer; "I will do it with pleasure."
The cider was procured and disposed of in a summary fashion, and then came the next request:
"I've travelled a good distance to-day, and I should like very much to lodge with you, if you have no objections."
"All right," answered the farmer. "I can accommodate you."

Meanwhile his wife, who had long before returned, and was listening to the conversation from her bed-room, called out, "No, you won't;
I won't have him in here. Come, husband, it is time for you to come in and lock up."
"Madam," said the tramp, seriously, turning in the direction of the voice, "you should not speak so abruptly to a stranger. You might be entertaining an angel unaware."
"I ain't a white-trail," returned the old lady, exclaiming, "Angels don't come round begging cider after dark."—Exchange.

SHES THE VICIOUS.—A man can not live in an atmosphere impregnated with misanthropic poison and preserve his physical health;
neither can he dwell where the poisoned air is moistened by vicious contamination and preserve a pure and upright character. We are all of us more or less influenced by our surroundings and our associations, and those who seem strong, when far from immoral companions, frequently are the first to fall when brought into direct contact with those who give unbridled license to the grosser passions of their nature. While it is true that temptation, when successfully resisted, develops virtue, it is also a melancholy fact that in most instances the resisting power is not equal to the aggressive force. As physical health is conditioned upon the purification of the air we breathe, so moral health is determined largely by the character and conduct of those around us. If we would be pure in deed and thought, we must mingle with the pure in word and conduct, and shun the companiship of those who make a jest of virtue and a mock of honor.—Selected.

DO CLOTHES MAKE A BOY?—"Do clothes make a boy?" No—clothes make clothes. What are clothes? They are an expression of character.
A boy who respects himself will dress as a gentleman; he can—simply and cleanly, says
Lester B. Butterworth, in The Ladies' Home Journal, for August. A boy who respects the dignity of his life will not dress conspicuously in his own home. He is best dressed whose appearance excites no special attention and causes no critical remarks. Conspicuous dress goes with a light heart, and a very indefinite purpose in life. Dress does not make the boy, but it often exhibits him; theatrical dress is society is to look as well as be. Neglect of dress shows a want of self-respect, and a lack of self-respect, as a rule, from a sense of cheapness of character. It is often impossible for a poor boy to dress as well as he would wish, but he can always express his well-dressed character by making his clothes neat and tasteful.

DO GOOD NOW.—Dr. Johnson wisely said:
"He who waits to do a great deal of good at once, will never do anything." Life is made up of little things. It is but once in an age that occasion is offered for a great deed. True greatness consists in being great in little things.
How are rollroads built? By one shovelful of dirt after another; one shovelful at a time. Thus, drops made the ocean.
Hence, we should be willing to do a little good at a time, and never wait to do a great deal of good at once. If we would do much good in the world we must be willing to do good in little things. Little acts one after another, speaking a word here, giving a tract
there, and setting a good example at all times, we must do the first good thing we can, and then the next, and the next, and so keep on doing. This is the way to accomplish anything. Thus only shall we do all the good in our power.—Selected.

THAT BOY.—His name is not Solomon. There are many things he does not know. Remember that he is only a boy. You were one once.
Call to mind what you thought, and how you felt. Give that boy a chance. Keep near to him in sympathy. Be his chum. Do not make too many cast-iron laws. Rule with a velvet hand. Help him have a "good time." Answer his foolish questions. Be patient with his pranks. Laugh at his jokes. Sweat over his conundrums. Linger up your dignity with a game of ball or a holiday's fishing. You can win his heart utterly and hold him steady in the path that leads higher up. That boy has a soul, and a destiny reaching high above the mountain peak. He is worth a million times his weight in gold.—Exchange.

LOVE NEVER FAILS.—Don't be afraid of close personal contact with dead sinners. If you really want to save them. Nothing can make a man who is slipping into the pit believe that shaking hands with two fingers has a grain of religion in it. It would take any man a long while to win a wife worth having, who would stand on the bank and do all his courting across the river, for fear that if he undertook to wade over to her he would get his feet wet. The Samaritan saved his man because he went to him, and wasn't afraid to take him up in his arms after he got there. The Lord can't hold out long after the warm sunshine gets to it, and nothing will make a sinner repent so quick as to come in contact with a man who has God in his heart.—Selected.

Little Nellie was in great grief over a promised visit across the country to grandma's.
She heartily agreed to the stipulation that she should get up bright and early. When awakened at four o'clock in the morning she protested against being disturbed. "Why, you said you'd get up bright and early," reminded mamma. "Yes, I know," admitted Nellie.
"But this isn't bright and early. It's dark and early."—Companion.

A little four-year-old mother was recently heard scolding her doll: "Jus' see what an awful cold you've got! You leave off your pinner shirt and your hood, an' run round in your bare feet, then I mus' sit up all night nursin' you. That's the whole trool in a nutshell!"—Youth's Companion.

OUR YOUNG PEOPLE.

BARGAINS FOR SCHOLARS.

A queer little man kept an alphabet shop.
And out from his counter, bliply hop,
He danced until he was ready to drop:
Slugging and shouting with never a stop:
"Come in, little scholars,
With bright silver dollars;
Or, if you have not any,
Then come with a penny.
I have huable Is,
And marrowfat Ps,
Some Chinese Qs,
And Japanese Ts,
A flock of Js,
And lots of Vv.
And perfectly beautiful dark-blue Os.
This is the place to buy your knowledge,
At cheaper rates than are given at college."
Then he'd draw a long breath and spin like a top.
"This queer little man in an alphabet shop."
—Selected.

MR. EDITOR: I am a little girl twelve years old. My papa takes your paper, and I dearly love to read the "little cousins' letters." I attend Sunday-school every Sabbath. We have a very nice Sunday-school. Mr. Stots is our superintendent, and Mr. Anders is our minister this year. We all like him. I go to day-school.
We have quite a large school. I think we have thirty-eight pupils. Miss Sarah Hunbury is our teacher. We all dearly love her. She is so good, kind and pleasant all the time. You may know that I love her when I walk three miles every morning and the same in the evening. I hear everybody say that she is the best teacher that has ever taught school in the second ward. I am,
Your friend, BERTIE LENSENBERG.

MR. EDITOR: I am a little girl twelve years old. I am going to school. I study arithmetic, geography, grammar, reading, writing and spelling. My uncle is teacher. His name is Tommie R. Clayton. I like him very much.
I have a little pet cat. Its name is Josie. I have three sisters and one brother. Our preacher is Rev. Lewis A. Reed. I will close by asking a question: Where in the Bible is
"fig tree" found? With best wishes to the Author. Your unknown friend,
RUTH HOWARD.

Coushatta, La.

Putting Heart in It.

The customer was a prudent matron from the country, careful in her shopping.
"It is a pretty piece of goods," she said,
"and just the color I want; but I am afraid it will not wash."

One of the shop girls behind the counter homed indifferently, and turned away. The other said eagerly: "Are you going to another part of the store, madam? For it is my lunch hour and I will take a sample to the basement and wash and dry it for you before you come back."

The color of the fabric proved to be fast, and the customer bought it, and asked the name of the obliging shop-girl. A year afterward she was again in the same store, and, on inquiry, learned that the girl was at the head of the department.

"She puts as much life into her work as ten other women," said the manager.
One of the most prominent business men of New York said once: "I have always kept a close watch on my employees and availed myself of any hint which would show me which of them possessed the qualities requisite for success for themselves and usefulness to me."

"One day, when I was passing the window of the counting-room, I observed that the moment the clock struck six all the clerks, with but one exception, laid down pens, though in the middle of a sentence, and took up their hats. One man alone continued writing. The others soon passed out of the door."
"Put it," said one, "has waited to finish his paper as usual."

"Yes, I called to him to come on, but he said that if this was his own business he would finish his paper before he stopped work."

"The more fool! I would not work for a company as for myself."

"The men caught sight of it and stopped talking, but after that I kept my eye on Pettit, who worked after hours on my business, because he would have done it on his own, and he is now my junior partner."

The success of a young man or woman in any work or profession depends largely on the spirit which he or she puts into it. Many good workmen, who are faithful to the letter of their contract with their employers, remain salesmen and book-keepers until they are gray, while others pass over them and become heads of establishments of their own. To the first class, their employment is only so much work for so much wages; they have no heart in it. To the second, according to the old, significant phrase, it is an outlet for all their own energy and ambition.

An engine, perfectly finished and competent for its work, and no fire in it, is a fit type of the first class; the same engine with its steam up, rushing along the track, of the second.

Be sure, boys, that you are able for your work and are on the right track. Then don't spare the steam.—Youth's Companion.

Partners.

A sturdy little figure it was, trudging bravely by with a pail of water. So many times it had passed our gate that morning that curiosity prompted to further acquaintance.

"You are a busy little girl to-day?"
"Yes'm." The round face under the broad hat was turned towards us. It was freckled, flushed and peering, but cheery withal.

"Yes'm; it takes a heap of water to do a wash-in'."

"And do you bring it all from the brook down there?"

"Oh, we have it in the cistern mostly, only it's been such a dry time lately."

"And there is nobody else to carry the water?"

"Nobody but mother, an' she's washin'."

"Well, you are a good girl to help her."

It was not a well-considered compliment, and the little water-carrier evidently did not consider it one at all; for there was a look of surprise in her gray eyes, and an almost indignant tone in her voice, as she answered: "Why, of course I help her. I always help her do things all the time; she hasn't anybody else.
Mother 'n' me's partners."

We looked after her as she picked up her pail and walked on, bending under her load a little, but resolute, and with no thought of complaining or shirking. A stout, old-fashioned, homely little body she was, but we called her mother a rich and happy woman.
—Exchange.

SCIENTIFIC.

Shall We Travel 100 Miles an Hour?

There is not much probability of attaining regular and continuous speeds of 100 miles per hour with our present locomotives. Their fire-boxes—which perform the same functions for the machines that their stomachs do for animals—are, with the present system of construction, necessarily confined in size. The weight of the whole locomotive being fixed, the dimensions of the different parts are also limited.

It is proverbially dangerous to prophesy when you are not quite sure, and if prognostications are based upon calculations, the mendacity of figures may rise up, hereafter, to deprive the prophet of all honor.

From what has been said, however, it will be seen that fast running is largely a question of steam production. Given a boiler which will generate enough steam, and the other problems are of comparatively easy solution. The difficulty is to get the boiler sufficiently large, within the limits of size and weight to which it must be confined.

It will be safe to say that to be able to travel continuously at 100 miles per hour we must have either boilers or fuel which will generate more steam in a given time than those we are using now do, or our engines must use less steam to do the same work, or what is more probable still, we must have all three of these features combined. In the locomotive of the future the action of the reciprocating parts will probably be more perfectly balanced than it now is; coupling-rods will either be disposed with altogether or their risk of breakage will be lessened by placing the driving-wheels near together, and both this danger and the disturbing effect of the reciprocating parts will be lessened by increasing the size of the wheels. To enable the engine, or rather, its journals, to "run cool," the journals and their bearings will be increased in size so as to have ample surface to resist wear.

Coming events are, however, already casting their shadows before them, and there are indications that the improvements which are here foreshadowed, or some of them, are in process of evolution.—M. N. Foreney.

Wrecks and the Drowned Sink to the Bottom of the Ocean.

There is a rather common, but erroneous notion, to the effect that a human body, or even a ship, will not sink to the bottom of the pro-founder abysses of the oceans, but will, on account of the density of the waters at a great depth, remain suspended at some distance above the surface of the earth. This is an error. No other fate awaits the drowned sailor or his ship than that which comes to the unlucky creatures who die on the bottom of the sea; in time their dust all passes into the great storehouse of the earth even as those who receive burial on the land.

However deep the sea, it is but a few hours before the body of a man who finds his grave in the ocean is at rest at the bottom; it there receives the same swift service from the agents which, in the order of nature, are appointed to care for the dead, as comes to those who are reverently inhumed in blessed ground. All save the hardest parts of the skeleton are quickly taken again into the realm of the living, and even those more resisting portions of the body in time are, in part, appropriated by the creatures of the sea-floor, so that before the dust returns in the accumulating water to the firmest earth it may pass through an extended cycle of living forms.

The fate of animal bodies on the sea-floor is well illustrated by the fact that beneath the waters of the Gulf Stream, where it passes by Southern Florida, there are, in some places, quantities of bones, apparently those of the mammoth or sea-cow, a large herbivorous mammal, which, like the seal, has become adapted to aquatic life; these creatures plientily inhabit the tropical rivers which flow into the Caribbean Sea, and are, though rarely, found in the streams of Southern Florida. At their death they drift out into the open water and are swept away to the northward by the ocean current. For some weeks, perhaps, the carcasses are buoyed up by the gases of decay, position which are retained by their thick, oily skins; as these decay and break the bodies fall to the bottom.—Scientific Magazine.

AN ASBESTOS DEPOSIT.—Casper Mountain, in Wyoming, says the Casper Derrick, is developing a rich deposit of asbestos. The dikes run east and west, and are about 3 miles long.
There are 5 of them, and they each are composed of from 4 to 6 veins of asbestos, that range from 1 to 5 feet in width, making the field about 2 by 3 miles in extent. There have been about 10 claims located, which are in the hands of men unable to work them properly, but who have done more or less work on these claims. The work has only been of the nature of an experiment, and the holes range from 10 to 30 feet deep, but even this little developing has shown the fact that the deeper they have gone the better grade of asbestos, the longer the fibre and more compact it becomes. In some instances, where the fibre was a mere streak in the rock on the surface, it has lengthened out to as much as 3 inches. The strata of rock that was between the streaks of asbestos has decreased equally as fast as the asbestos increased. The walls of the different veins differ so much in extent; but the walls of the main veins are granite on the north and quartzite on the south. The dip of the veins is about 20 degrees to the southwest.—Exchange.

A NEW RAIN-MAKING THEORY.—It is chronicled that Professor Floke, of Kansas State University, has an interesting theory about rain-making. He admits that rain followed the explosions produced by General Dyer-forth; but says it was not the noise of the conclusion that brought rain; in such case it would have come at once. The cause of the rain he finds in the fine particles of dust set free in the upper air by the burning of the explosives. These, he says, form nuclei, on which moisture gradually accumulates, until the rain drop is large enough to fall. He cites the fact that hailstones have been noticed to have formed around particles of dust, and also describes experiments of his own in which, when dust was present under the receiver of an air pump, moisture condensed around it, while, when dust was thoroughly excluded, no such phenomenon occurred.—N. Y. Christian Advocate.

No man is more miserable than he that hath no adversity; that man is not tried whether he be good or bad; and God never crowns those virtues which are only faculties and dispositions; but every act of virtue is an ingredient into reward—God so dresses us for heaven.
—Jeremy Taylor.

Out of 56 street car plants, existing in the United States and Canada, 59 are operated by horses, 49 by cable, 24 by electricity and 73 by steam.—American Manufacturer.

ARE YOU BILIOUS? THEN USE PARSONS' PILLS.

the sweet by-and-by! J. C. CARR completely different.

PIK-RO

IS THE NAME
OF THE PAINT THAT DOES IT

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE
in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30 | J. G. C.

28 CAMB STREET

1 cent a ☐ foot
will pay for changing the appearance of old Furniture so completely that it will look like new.

PIK-RO
IS THE NAME OF THE PAINT THAT DOES IT.

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE
in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30 | J. G. GRANT, | CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE
in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30

Pay the Price of the Royal for Royal only.

Royal Baking Powder is shown by actual chemical tests absolutely pure and 27 per cent. greater in strength than any other brand.

Many grocery stores have recently been stocked with second-class brands of baking powder, which are urged upon consumers at the price of the high-cost, first-class Royal.

These powders cost from 8 to 30 cents a pound less than the Royal, besides being of 27 per cent. less strength. If they are forced upon you, see that you are charged a correspondingly lower price for them.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

OFFICE OF NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Letters or postal cards have been received during the past week from the following persons, and their instructions complied with:

Rev. N. J. Roberts, T. W. Scott, G. W. Bachman, D. C. Langford, D. P. Bradford, W. H. Lewis, L. W. Wood, J. T. Abney, B. E. Lewis, W. L. Lingo, C. V. L. Skelton, F. H. Book, H. P. Gibbs, J. W. Nicks, W. C. Howell, W. M. Stevens, Thos. J. Tison, R. A. Davis, J. M. Pugh, J. N. Tucker, J. R. Rother, J. W. Trendwell, W. M. Sullivan, E. R. Downer, T. B. White.

Messrs. James Turner, M. E. Meek, O. Cramer, S. E. Conroy, J. R. Alworth, R. F. Patterson, Prof. L. T. Fitzhugh, A. T. Blackshear, Prof. Alonzo Hill, W. L. Ellis, Prof. F. H. Henson, E. S. Toler, James Kay, Ben. Price, J. M. Hale, W. B. Townsend, E. F. Griffin, J. E. Young, Thos. N. Norrell, Thos. McIntyre, J. H. Ross, H. N. Robertson, A. E. Adams, J. R. Howard, N. P. Roney, Jack Wilson, W. H. Archer, E. T. Lacey, Linn Smith, W. T. Latham, Thos. Raynham, Dr. J. W. Uger, W. L. Richardson, F. J. Dukeman, Wm. Graham, F. C. Greenwood, B. S. Martin, B. F. Oliver, A. J. Morgan.

Messrs. Addie Korte, L. C. Atkins, E. C. Hardaway, Mary Cassidy, L. S. Bledsoe, T. Coon, M. L. Fulton, K. T. Ford, Mattie Lee, J. H. Hobbins, W. J. Thompson.

Misses Rosie Backhouse, Maud Carradine, M. McAdams, July 19.

For Over Fifty Years

Mrs. Winkler's Soothing Syrup has been used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCES.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

SARDIS DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Batesville, at Wesley Chapel, July 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Aug. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Sept. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Oct. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Nov. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Dec. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Jan. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Feb. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Mar. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Apr. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, May 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, June 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, July 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Aug. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Sept. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Oct. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Nov. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Dec. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Jan. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Feb. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Mar. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Apr. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, May 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, June 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, July 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Aug. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Sept. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Oct. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Nov. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Dec. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Jan. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Feb. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Mar. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Apr. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, May 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, June 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, July 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Aug. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Sept. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Oct. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Nov. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Dec. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Jan. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Feb. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Mar. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Apr. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, May 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, June 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, July 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Aug. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Sept. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Oct. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Nov. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Dec. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Jan. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Feb. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Mar. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Apr. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, May 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, June 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, July 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Aug. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Sept. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Oct. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Nov. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Dec. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Jan. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Feb. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Mar. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Apr. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, May 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, June 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, July 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Aug. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Sept. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Oct. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Nov. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Dec. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Jan. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Feb. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Mar. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Apr. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, May 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, June 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, July 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Aug. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Sept. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Oct. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Nov. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Dec. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Jan. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Feb. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Mar. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, Apr. 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, May 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29,

Christian Advocate.

VOL. 39.—NO. 30.

NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, JULY 28, 1892.

WHOLE NO. 1875.

Rev. C. W. CARTER, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. LEWIS, Ass't Editor.

PUBLISHED FOR THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE AND NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

Our Holston Letter.

Holston Methodism is mourning. One of her strongest and most efficient workers has been stricken down in the midst of his labors. From New River to Lookout Mountain thousands of hearts were made sad as the wires carried the news of the death of Rev. A. J. Frazier. Of strong physique, fluent speech, earnest delivery, and a mind well stored with the great truths of the Bible, he was one of the most useful of preachers. One of his brethren, who had known him since the beginning of his ministry, said, that though he was a great preacher, yet he excelled as an organizer and administrator of law. The fact was, he was a many-sided man, and whatever he did was well done. It was my privilege to hear his last sermon, and to be with him during his last days. The preachers in and around Knoxville called in their appointments to inaugurate the Sam Jones' meeting in the big tabernacle, which had been erected in the city. Bro. Frazier's Quarterly Conference for that week was forty miles from his home, and not being well, he asked me to go with him. On Thursday morning, May 12, we started northward across the hills and mountains. The day was charming, the green valleys and the beautifully bedecked mountains were bathed in mellow sunshine, while the singing birds and babbling brooks alike seemed full of praise to God. We could not witness unmoved the burial of earth and sky, and so we talked of the beauties of the country through which we were passing; but I soon saw that he preferred to have his mind dwell upon the church and the great theme of redemption. He told me of the struggle of Southern Methodism in this mountain country during and just after the war, when our property was seized by the Northern Methodists, and when our preachers were shamefully treated, two of them being beaten to death simply because they were ministers of the M. E. Church, South. How he rejoiced over the victory our church had won, and how exultant was his hope as he looked to her future!

On Friday we angled successfully for black bass in the beautiful Clinch river. Saturday the church was reached, and the presiding elder preached what was denominated the best sermon that congregation had ever heard. The love-feast, Sunday morning, was not a good one, save to a very few who testified for the Master. The preaching-hour came, and the house was crowded. The condition of that church suggested the text—Rev. II, 4, 6. I had heard him preach many excellent sermons, and knew that in many respects he was a great preacher; yet I sat amazed that morning at the sweep of his thought, the brilliancy of his imagination, and the power of his exhortation. As he told of the tremendous responsibilities which God had put upon his church, and of her sad state without her first love, and the fearfulness of her punishment, the great congregation groaned and wept and repented. It was his last sermon. By the time of his return home, blood poisoning, induced by the improper management of a carbuncle, had seized upon his vitals, and on Sunday morning, May 23, with the words, "Victory is mine!" on his lips, his great spirit swept out of his tabernacle of clay to the building of God eternal in the heavens. When I came to this Conference, broken down in health, he warmly greeted me, and made me feel that I was heartily welcomed, and hence his memory will be one of the sweetest treasures of my life.

The Sam Jones' meeting in Knoxville was in some respects a disappointment. He and his assistant, Rev. G. R. Stuart, did the preaching. The crowds were large, the preaching was with power, and thousands pledged themselves to lead better lives. However, less than seventy-five have joined the churches in the city. Southern Methodism getting about half that number. While there were but few converts, yet the meeting did great good in putting hundreds of church members on a higher plane, and in looking up public opinion on the great evils of the day.

The Holston Methodist, the organ of the Holston Conference, is published in Knoxville, and is a clean, strong paper. Its editor, Rev. W. L. Richardson, is a young man, aggressive and independent in the best sense of the word, and wields a strong pen. Besides attending to his duties as editor, he is also pastor of an independent church in the western portion of the city. This is an unusual state of affairs, but not anomalous. This church is composed of Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians and Congregationalists. No one denomination was strong enough to erect a house, so these men concluded to build a church in which they could worship their God and Savior in brotherly love, holding as in-existent the minor points about which they differ. Bro. Richardson, being without a pastoral charge and a strong preacher, was asked to supply their pulpit. Some of his brethren think that it is not the place for a Southern Methodist preacher; but I do not thus consider it, as he compromises no principle, and is allowed to preach the gospel as he understands it—that is, in accordance with the Articles of our church.

The pastors of the city churches are good, strong men, and under their leadership our Methodism is moving forward. New chapels and churches and parsonages are being enterprise, and this despite the financial depression which exists over the whole country.

Rev. W. W. Hicks, pastor of Church Street Church, has been appointed presiding elder of the Knoxville district. He retains his pastorate, and only undertakes to maintain oversight of the district, and to see that all the Quarterly Conferences are regularly held. He is an ex-presiding elder, popular with preachers and people, and they desire his appointment to that office at the next Conference. If this is done, it will cause a vacancy in the pulpit of the second strongest church in the Holston territory, and I hear whisperings that the transfer of some noted preacher will be made to this congregation. Foolish as it may be, yet it is true that when our largest churches are thus supplied with pastors, the natives do a large amount of kicking. Some of the Holstoners are not hesitant in thus expressing their disapprobation of this plan.

I have recently attended the session of the Knoxville District Conference. The school-men were there in force, and all reported success and progress during the past scholastic year. Dr. James Atkins, president of Emory and Henry College, is one of the strongest young men of our church. His speech before the Conference on Christian education was one of the best I ever heard. It ought to be printed and scattered over the whole country. The sons of this college all over the South will be glad to hear that it is on a firmer basis now than for some years past. Time would fail me to tell of the venerable Dr. Sullins, of Centenary; of the scholarly Dr. Hearson, of Sullins College, Bristol, who was formerly a member of the North Mississippi Conference; of Dr. Barker, the wide-awake head of the famous Martha Washington College, who, by the way, married the oldest daughter of Bro. J. W. Fairles, of Okolona, Miss., whom many of our preachers affectionately remember as one of the best men who ever lived on Mississippi soil.

Poultan City is a suburban village five miles from Knoxville, and connected with it by a dummy line. The place is "beautiful for situation," and adorned with magnificent forest oaks, while from the sides of the hills the purest water hursts. The air is fresh and sweet, the people kind and religious, and being removed from the noise and bustle of the city, make it an ideal place for a sick preacher. Very glad to state that my health has very greatly improved since coming to this place.

S. D. LONG.

Poultan City, Tenn.

A Correct Statement of the Question.

I learned from private sources that my good Bro. Mellen, presiding elder of Meridian district, has been sick. I don't know what is the trouble. Torture, indigestion, or something of the sort, I suppose. Soon after getting this information I read his article in the ADVOCATE, of July 14, and concluded that he wrote it while suffering from a fit of indigestion. His usual good humor and cheerfulness forsook him in the preparation of that production. I do not know where to find the original of the pen-portrait he sketched of a sour, censorious old preacher. It may be he has known some preacher of that sort, or it may be the picture is the product of a disordered brain. At any rate, he has seen, or imagined, what I have not. There is, however, no mistaking his intention in that little effusion. If he intended to lower me in the estimation of my brethren, I think he will fail; or if he intended to overawe and intimidate me, I know he will fail. I can not see how he can expect to accomplish any good by publishing purely personal matters that have nothing to do with the question in controversy. What has the disappointment of an old preacher (even if he could make sure of his facts) to do in settling the question as to the propriety of publishing the appropriations of the Board of Missions? That is the only question that has been raised in my former articles. If my reviewers have run off on side issues, it is no fault of mine.

No complaint, accusation or insinuation is contained in the article that has given offense to some of the brethren. I called attention to published facts—just that, and nothing more. I refrained from the expression of an opinion as to the propriety of some of the appropriations; and if the facts reflect upon the members of the Board, I can not help it. The better plan, it seems to me, is to make the facts and figures worthy of being published on the house-tops, instead of abusing an old preacher for directing attention to them.

I can not think it right to represent me as "sour, dissatisfied with everyone except myself; striking here, there, everywhere, heedless of results; a blind Samson, willing to die if in the act I could kill three thousand of my enemies."

When I feel sure that I am not "sour," and that I am as well satisfied with my brethren as I am with myself, and I don't believe I have three thousand enemies in the world, and none among my brethren of the Mississippi Conference, not even the renowned, belligerent presiding elder of the Meridian district, I am afraid that Bro. Mellen will prove that some preachers get sour before they get old. For the satisfaction of the brethren, I want to say that I know the members of the Board, and I do not believe one of them capable of a dishonorable, much less a dishonest, act. I have perfect confidence in the integrity of these brethren. Secondly, I know all the presiding elders of this Conference, who procure the appropriations for their districts, and not one of them would do anything wrong knowingly; and, thirdly, I know the brethren who got the lion's share of the appropriations last year, and they are good and true men, and they did nothing wrong in receiving what was tendered them. My confidence in the integrity of my brethren does not commit me to an approval and defense of all they do and think. They are men-erring, fallible men, and will not think it a crime to depart from their judgment, perhaps.

I do not feel called upon to defend Brandon district. I am no apologist of "silliness." But the members of the District Conference need not be disturbed at Bro. Mellen's sneer against his action in reference to publishing the appropriations of the Mission Board, since that is what they say they intend to do. Nor do I defend the brother who wears a mustache that repudiates his two-dollar subscription for church collections, because of facts brought to light in this discussion. Doubtless, he is wrong in that. I don't know whether Bro. Mellen would think it right if he did not wear a mustache or not. He did not say. Brandon district is threatened with diminished appropriations; and if Bro. Mellen can have his way, the threat will be executed; but he does not always carry out his projects—perhaps, will not in this matter. I hope Bro. Mellen's liver will get right, and then his religion will be sweeter. But before I close, I want to say to "One of the Board" that I do not agree with him as to the principle that should control the distribution of the home mission fund. He thinks the money should be placed where it will yield most in material results. While I admit that may have its weight, it ought not to control. He says the money is given to "needy places instead of needy preachers." Do not the things that make a place needy, make the preacher for the place needy? How can he discriminate betwixt the needs of the place and the needs of the preacher for the place? The money does not go into the pockets of the people of the place, but to the preacher that serves them.

The only question before the Board is as to the needs of the preacher. If the place will not support him, it is right to appropriate something to aid in his support. How much depends upon a great many things. But I think appropriations should be limited to places that pay less than five hundred dollars. A preacher with the missionary spirit, with no family, or small family, can afford to live on that. In cities where a house is to rent, it may be necessary sometimes to make appropriations even when there is a reasonable probability of the people paying $500. But, as a general rule, places that pay $500, and furnish a house rent free, ought not to have anything appropriated.

Then, again, the idea that the money raised in Jackson district, for instance, should be appropriated to places in that district, whether there is any missionary ground in that district or not, is totally subversive of the true missionary spirit. They do not rigidly adhere to that principle in making the appropriations, which proves that they do not indorse their own logic. The very things that prevent full collections in the Brandon district are the things that justify large appropriations. It needs help, or the preachers that labor in its bounds need help. The way to keep a poor circuit forever on the Mission Board is to dole out to it a pittance of $25 a year. And the Board will never have more to give it so long as they lavish $300 on places that do not need it.

D. G. W. ELLIS.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. C. McDonald, Forest, Miss., July 21: "I write to ask the sympathy and prayers of the church in behalf of our beloved brother, R. S. Gale, pastor in charge of the Trenton circuit. He has been disabled for some weeks with a chronic affection. Pray that his life may be spared, and that health may be restored."

Rev. J. A. Parker, Arizona, La., July 22: "Am now on the seventh day of one of the greatest revivals I ever saw. Two out of the only three or four non-church people in the community have joined the church, and everybody shouting happy. Some thirty or forty bright conversions. 'It is the Lord's doing, and is wonderful.'"

Rev. R. H. B. Gladney, Bollivar, Miss., July 16: "We have recently bought and paid for a handsome set of church furniture, pews and pulpit, and have plans to remodel our old building. Have received six new members during the past quarter. There is no dancing, drinking, card-playing member in this church. The Epworth League is doing a fine work for the young people."

Rev. J. F. Wynn, Pineville, La., July 15: "We have just closed a wonderful meeting at Oak Grove. Our services continued ten days. Twenty-one were received into the church, twenty-five or more converted or reclaimed, and the entire church gloriously revived. Bros. Manly and Robert Wynn did the preaching, which was in the power of the Holy Spirit."

Rev. J. A. Bowen, Aberdeen, Miss., July 11: "The Woman's Missionary Society of the North Mississippi Conference captured Aberdeen, June 25-28. They were a blessing to our church. No revival ever did us more good. We shall ever be thankful that we had the honor of entertaining them. No more gracious benediction can come to any pastoral charge. I will write more next week."

Rev. W. W. Simmons, Gloster, Mississippi Conference: "I have held protracted meetings at both of my churches (Centerville and Gloster) with fine results: 22 accessions. The number of conversions I can not tell, but quite a number, and the churches greatly blessed. I had to help me in these meetings Bros. I. L. Peebles, J. J. Smylie, G. D. Anders, R. M. Tucker, and Jobie Roberts. Many thanks to these brethren, but to God be all the glory."

Rev. C. W. Perkins, Nesbit, Miss., July 19: "We have just closed a meeting at Nesbit, and had an old-fashioned Methodist revival. I report nine genuine conversions from head to foot; converted enough to shout the praises of God the old-fashioned way. This community was stirred from corner to circumference. There were fifteen additions to our church; four by letter. Walter Johnson, from Texas, preached the opening sermon Sunday night. Bro. J. W. Howell helped us two days. Glory be to God in the highest; peace on earth, and good-will to men."

Rev. H. J. Boltz, Pelican, La., July 20: "Our third quarterly meeting for the DeSoto charge was held at Ebenezer, July 16 and 17. Our presiding elder was with us, and preached and presided to the delight and satisfaction of all who were present. We have not held any protracted meetings, but some of our churches are giving evidence of spiritual life. We have three Sunday-schools on this work, two of which are in a flourishing condition, and doing a good work for the Lord. We are building a new church at Pelican, which we intend to have completed by Conference, if possible. We are praying and working for a blessing in this part of the DeSoto vineyard."

Rev. G. A. Mandeville, Calhoun, La., July 22: "Closed our meeting last night at Mt. Ariel. Preached three sermons yesterday. The church there is small—seventeen members; but the Lord rolled away burdens from nearly every heart, and great joy prevailed. Eight souls openly professed conversion; others were deeply convicted and stirred; one united with the church, with two others to be received. The prayer of the church is for entire sanctification. My work was somewhat hindered by sickness in my family, and to-day I have two little ones lying very ill. I should move on to Bethel to-day, and open services to-night, but can not leave my sick. Will send a local preacher, and follow as soon as I can leave home."

Rev. H. M. Banks, Spring Creek charge, Louisiana Conference, July 21: "On the sixteenth instant we began a meeting at Spring Creek Church, which lasted five days, the results of which were four accessions, two children baptized. These are the first received or baptized this year, except two children baptized on the tenth instant at the third quarterly meeting. Bro. Hoffpaul was present on Saturday, and presided over the Quarterly Conference, but was taken sick Sunday morning, and was unable to preach. Finances are very low, owing to the financial embarrassment of the people on the circuit. Crops were short last year, and bid fair for the same this year. Bro. W. W. Monroe, a local preacher, did valuable work at the Spring Creek meeting."

Rev. M. L. White, Mt. Carmel, Miss., July 21: "Have just closed a meeting at Bethel Church, in which I expected help from Bros. Jones and Barr. Both having sickness in their families, they could not come. I was alone. Bro. B. M. Drake, on his way from Jackson, La., to Daleville, Miss., stopped with us Sunday, and preached us an excellent sermon. Preacher and people worked together. The Lord blessed us wonderfully; church greatly revived; five accessions. Tuesday evening will not be forgotten, on account of the Holy Ghost descending. Nearly all in the house felt its influence, some praising God aloud. Our hearts are becoming more tender. Am glad God is blessing us, for we certainly need it. Mt. Carmel circuit is doing splendidly in every way; better than I expected. God be praised."

Rev. G. A. Mandeville, Calhoun, La., July 15: "Closed a meeting last night at Beulah, of a week's duration, with fully thirty penitents at the altar. Results: Church greatly revived; members who have refused to speak for a year or more now thoroughly reconciled; dissensions and differences healed; family altars reestablished; many in and out of the church converted, and nearly all the church gladly hearing the message of full salvation, and praying for and earnestly seeking entire sanctification. The deep tones of faithful prayer and the shouts of joy were as music to my soul. Eight children and four adults baptized, eight received into the church, weekly prayer meeting organized, family altars erected, and a good prospect of soon having a new building to worship in. Praise the Lord! Bros. Griggs and Crooker, two of my local preachers, assisted me greatly."

F. N. Sweeney writes, July 5: "The Grand Chenier work is progressing nicely. A little over one year ago the pastor (Bro. C. F. Staples) and the writer held a week's meeting here (at Grand Chenier), which resulted in 18 accessions to the church, and the good work has been going on ever since. The prayer meeting organized at that time has grown in interest; not a single night has been missed. The ladies organized a prayer meeting about two months ago, which is growing in interest. Several young ladies pray in public. Our Sunday-school can not be surpassed. The attendance is from 50 to 65, which is a good attendance considering the membership and the distance that some have to come. The other interests of the work are on the upgrade also. Bro. Staples has now 6 Sunday-schools on the work, and I believe they are all increasing and growing in interest."

R. C. Graee, Sugartown, La., July 21: "The Lord has blessed us in many ways since I first arrived here, and I am thankful to say the work is stronger, both spiritually and financially. This circuit is generally looked upon as a very poor, rough work, and in many ways it is so; but I can safely say, in all I have never met a more kind and warm-hearted people. Our third quarterly meeting was held at Dry Creek the second and third of this month. It was a success. Bro. Hoffpaul preached four awakening sermons; also Rev. T. J. Upton, of Lake Charles, came up on Monday after quarterly meeting and preached two spiritual, stimulating sermons. We have three prayer meetings and three Sabbath-schools on the work. Ten accessions to the church this year. If the Lord will, my first protracted meeting will commence the first Friday in August, and I want to hold meetings all over the circuit. Pray for me, that I may, through the power of the Lord, stir this people."

Our special correspondent writes from Staunton, Ill., July 21, giving this interesting account of a District Conference of our Northern brethren in that section: "The Alton (Ill.) District Conference of the Methodist Church was held Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The little Methodist Church (and there is only one here) was literally packed during the entire session. There were three public services a day—one at 11 A. M., at 3:30 P. M., and again at 7:45 P. M.; and at each, and especially the night services, there was not room enough to contain the people. Vehicles of every kind brought the country folks from surrounding villages and from the homes of the farmers living on the outskirts of Staunton. There were, at least, 100 preachers who were handsomely entertained by the hospitable people of this beautiful town. On Tuesday, July 19, at 3:30 o'clock, was held an Epworth League service, which proved to be inspiring and powerful. A large congregation was present, and the people sang heartily enlivening songs from 'The Morning Star.' Rev. Dr. Thompson, president of the Epworth League of the Alton district, conducted the services. He introduced Rev. Dr. West, of East St. Louis, who delivered an eloquent address. He said: 'Though only three years old, this great organization—the Epworth League—has 500,000 members.' He then set forth its objects. It was a denominational institution, organized in and by the Methodist Church for the purpose of helping the young people, of strengthening the members, both old and young, and of ultimately bringing about the unity of the two great bodies known as the Northern and Southern Methodist Churches. He went on to show that how, by becoming members of the Epworth League, the rising generation would be taught to pray in public, to conduct spiritual meetings, how to study God's Word, and thereby become useful members in the church. He lastly tried to enforce loyalty to the church. He was followed by Rev. Dr. Hampton and Rev. Dr. Searratt, the latter being the presiding elder of the district. Bishop Bowman spoke a few encouraging words endorsing the great movement. The president of the McKendrick College, the Methodist Institute located at Lebanon, Ill., spoke in behalf of education, which ended the Epworth League program."

A Visit to the Hub of Southern Methodism.

A short time ago, in company with Mr. Parker and Master Hattie Parker, we left the enterprising little city of Hattiesburg, Miss., for a short visit to Nashville, Tenn. It has been my desire for a long time to make this visit to the hub of Southern Methodism. It is always a joyous time to the weary traveler to have a few weeks away from the anxious cares of the pastoral charge. Think of a minister of the gospel going through the routine of duties for twenty years without one week of rest! The pressure is very severe upon the whole system. We bought our tickets over the Queen and Crescent System to Chattanooga. The general passenger agent of this road showed us kind favors, for which we are thankful. We passed through the iron and coal regions of North Alabama. With what wonderful rapidity the towns and cities in this section of the State have sprung into existence! Everywhere there are signs of rapid progress—lovely residences and large hotels are attractive to the eyes of the traveler. Furnaces and a network of railroads are to be seen in every direction. Flames of fire are to be seen at night, flashing up out of great, deep pits, like a thousand volcanoes. We paused for a little while in Birmingham, the "Magic City." Its growth has been amazingly rapid in the last few years; from a small town it has grown into a large city.

The scenery in the valleys and on the mountains of East Tennessee is picturesque and thrilling to the mind and soul of the interested spectator. We reached Nashville early in the morning, and was soon driven to the home of our loved ones behind a space of lovely bays. We soon learned that Sam Jones, the wonderful little evangelist, was holding a meeting in the new brick tabernacle. We soon found our way to the place, and a sea of human faces greeted our eyes. Bro. Jones was preaching one of his matchless sermons to an enraptured audience of 6,000 people. The Union Gospel Tabernacle will cost, when finished, $100,000. The people of Nashville have a great admiration and love for Bro. Jones.

We had the opportunity, for the first time, of attending the commencement exercises of Vanderbilt University. The university grounds are the most beautiful that human eyes ever beheld. Here you see everywhere the labor and watchful care of our beloved and sainted Bishop, H. N. McIntyre. The commencement sermon was preached by Rev. W. V. Tudor, D. D., of Richmond, Va. His subject was, "The Pursuit of Christianity." The sermon was deeply interesting, and eminently appropriate to the occasion. It was listened to with the profoundest attention by a large and cultured audience. The annual address was delivered by Hon. J. Proctor Knott, ex-governor of Kentucky. Four new professors were elected to take the places of the same number who have resigned.

We had the pleasure of meeting nearly all of our preachers in the Rock City. Bros. Louis Powell, pastor of Elm Street Church, and Joseph B. Erwin, pastor of Tullip Street Church, were very kind to us and showed us many favors. It was our pleasant privilege to preach three sermons to the cultured and appreciative congregation at Elm Street Church. Our new Tullip Street Church, under the leadership of its popular pastor, Rev. Joe B. Erwin, is rapidly approaching completion, and when finished will be one of the most attractive churches in our Southern Methodism. The architectural design is the most modern. I have spent some very pleasant moments with the brethren at the Publishing House, and heard Dr. S. A. Steel preach to the McKendree congregation at night. A good Presbyterian brother said: "Every Methodist preacher ought to see three things—McKendree Church, Publishing House and Vanderbilt University, and then die." Yes, every true and loyal Methodist should be justly proud of McKendree Church, their Publishing House and Vanderbilt University. The grain crop will be abundant this year. As far as the eyes can see, there are large fields with the golden grain ready for the reapers. Everywhere you can hear the peaceful murmur of the reapers' voices as they gather in the ripened grain. It is a beautiful transition to find one's self listening to the shout of "Harvest Home," instead of the horrid din of battle, which was heard all through this lovely country thirty years ago. As I passed through the waving harvest fields I could understand something of the meaning of St. John's beautiful words, when he says, "And he that reapeth receiveth wages and gathereth fruit unto life eternal." From Nashville I went to Cowan, one hundred and three miles; then I took a branch of the N. C. and St. Louis railroad and went up the Cumberland Mountain, "golfing" closely to the walls of uprising rock that look down on a peaceful scene far below." With beautiful landscape after landscape bursting into view, I was borne away from the low valley to the summit of Montecarlo, 2,200 feet above the sea level.

The atmosphere was perfectly delightful. We had to have fire, morning and night. I slept under two quilts with my heavy coat over my feet. The assembly grounds are picturesque and lovely, with pure and cool water in the greatest abundance. People are coming in rapidly to spend the hot summer on the cool heights of this lovely mountain. From the main entrance, just in front of the Blanton home, walks and drives wander through parks, past the amphitheater, and other public buildings, out among the lovely cottages that nestle amid the trees. From the north entrance of the grounds through beautiful forest groves, one-half mile away, is Warren's Point and Table Rock, which overlook a lovely landscape where the beauty and majesty of nature are spread before the eyes.

Wednesday morning I went over to Chattanooga, but was too late for my train, and had to stay over until eleven o'clock at night; so put in the evening sight-seeing about the city. The first point of interest to me was Lookout Mountain. I took the electric car, in company with two gentlemen from Jacksonville, Fla., Mr. W. A. Posey, of Chattanooga, and Bro. McGeehee, pastor of the Methodist Church in Greensboro, Ala., for the mountain; but when I got to the incline railroad, running up the mountain, I came near backing out. Mr. Posey said I must go up or miss the opportunity of my life; so I bought a round-trip ticket and started up, up, up, as fast as electricity could carry us until we landed at Lookout Point hotel. Here we took the narrow-gauge railroad rounding the high bluffs and looking down nearly 2,000 feet. The incline railroad is nearly one mile long, running right up into the air.

My first stop from the narrow-gauge railroad was to go up to the crest of mountain to see the Lookout Mountain Inn, with its four hundred rooms. It is four stories high, with a high observatory on top. We were, at least, sixty feet higher here than from the highest peak of the mountain. The clouds were all below us and the very heavens seemed to kiss the earth. From this elevated position you can look over into seven different States. The mountains of the "old North State" would rise up before your vision. Standing on Sunset Rock, you see the sun sink away from view; the sky reddens and a solemn stillness seems to hover over the lovely landscape far below. You are on the very brink of a dizzy precipice, with a photograph gallery just behind you.

Leaving this point, we next went to the natural bridge. A huge pile of rock spans a chasm and forms the bridge. In the chasm is a cooling spring. Then there are the beautiful Lula Falls, Lula Lake, etc., too numerous to mention.

After leaving the mountain we took the electric car for Missionary Ridge, National Cemetery, and other places of interest, returning to the city after dark.

In all the mountainous regions of East Tennessee nature seems to be trying to elevate the mind and soul heavenward. J. S. PARKER.

The Scarritt Bible and Training-School for Missionaries and Other Christian Workers.

At the Annual Meeting of the Woman's Board of Missions, held in Lexington, Ky., June 4, 1892, the Board of Managers of the Scarritt Bible and Training-School, and the agent of the same, made a full and satisfactory report of all matters connected with that institution. A detailed statement from the Building Committee was presented, which turned over the building to the Board as completed within the fixed limit of $50,000. Bishop Hendrix, president of the Board of Managers, pronounced the work well done per contract, and the house in every particular admirably adapted for its purpose.

The following faculty was elected by the Woman's Board of Missions:

RESIDENT FACULTY.
Principal, Miss Maria Layng Gibson, Covington, Ky.
Department of Church History, Maria L. Gibson.
Department of Bible Study, Elizabeth E. Holding.
Department of Moral Philosophy and Christian Evidence, ———.
Department of Nurse-Training, Emma D. Cushman.
Industrial Department, Mrs. W. H. Waldron.
Department of City Mission Work, ———.
Department of General Instruction, ———.
Vacancies to be supplied before opening of school.

MEDICAL FACULTY.
Anatomy—George H. Bailey, president; J. N. Jackson, secretary.
Physiology—C. F. Walworth.
Materia Medica—A. M. Wilson, Joseph Sharp.
Hygiene and Dietetics—George Smiley.
Diseases of Children—S. G. Gault, II, T. Sloan.
Eye and Ear—C. Tyree.
Teeth—C. B. Hewitt, D. J. McMullan.
HOSPITAL STAFF.
Surgeons: George H. Bailey, J. P. Jackson, J. N. Jackson, E. H. Lewis.
Physicians: H. F. Herford, C. F. Walworth, B. C. James, Lester Hall.

Miss Gibson is well known throughout the church as a woman of fine executive ability, broad culture and deep consecration. She is a successful educator, and has for years been the recording secretary of the Woman's Board of Missions, and will continue to hold that office. Miss Holding has been connected with the Chicago Training-school for seven years; has had personal experience in both foreign and home mission work, and is a fine Bible scholar. She is a cousin of Miss Nannie Holding, missionary in Mexico. Miss Cushman is a graduate of the celebrated Patterson Nurse Training-school, and comes highly recommended from that institution. Mrs. Waldron is an earnest Christian woman, well qualified for her position. The medical faculty and hospital staff are composed of the most eminent physicians and surgeons in Kansas City. These gentlemen have examined and are favorably impressed with the sanitary arrangements and appliances, and under their advice the hospital apartment will open Sept. 1, so as to be in operation by the time the nurse pupils enter.

The school will open Wednesday, Sept. 14, 1892, with a formal address of dedication by Bishop C. B. Gallo-way. Tuition will be free. One hundred and fifty dollars will cover the expense of board, washing, fuel and lights. The cost of books will not exceed $10. Ladies residing in Kansas City desiring to attend the lectures will be charged an incidental fee of $10.

The term of service of three members of the Board of Managers having expired, they were re-elected. Miss Belle H. Bennett was re-elected treasurer and agent; Mrs. M. D. Wightman, assistant agent.

The collections for the year 1891-92 were $22,388.39. Of this amount $20,000 has been invested at seven and eight per cent. as the beginning of an endowment fund.

The five lectureships and eight scholarships undertaken as special work by different Conferences, and in varying stages of completion, are as follows:
Lectureships—The Olin, Frances Bumpass, Morgan Calaway, Kavanaugh and Stephen Noland.

Scholarships—The Helen Finley, Sam Jones, Fannie Montague, Memorial, North Texas, Weyman Potter, S. Myra Smith and Texas.

Nine rooms have been furnished by individuals, churches and Conferences, and named as follows: The Sue A. Bennett, Helm-Barolay, Hoagland, Lambuth, Mississippi, Missouri, Florence Malone, Wesson and Winfield. Four memorial windows have been placed in the house in honor of Rev. Nathan Scarritt, Dora Rankin, Clara Chrisman and Dona Hamilton.

To endow a scholarship requires $2,500; a lectureship, $5,000; a chair, $25,000; to furnish a room, $75 to $100; to put a furnished cot in the hospital, $25.

The work now before the Woman's Board and the church is the raising of the endowment fund to such proportions as will bring the advantages of the institution within the reach of every Christian woman desiring systematic training for the Master's service. To this end contributions will be called for during the year, and a day be appointed (probably Easter) for a special service and collection. All money is to be sent, as formerly, to Miss Belle H. Bennett, Richmond, Ky.

Many applications for admission have been received. A catalogue has been printed for general distribution, and all persons desiring these, or more particular information, should apply to the principal.

MISS MARIA LAYNG GIBSON,
Cor. Harris and Askew Aves., Kansas City, Mo.

How to Prevent Overflows.

MR. EDITOR: In your issue of June 9 you say: "The problem of this whole country is, How can we control the Mississippi river? The man who answers this question successfully will be the greatest benefactor of this country, except the man who solves the race problem."

Having lived seven years in Louisiana, and being just ten miles back of Morganza, where the great levee broke in 1890, I naturally gave much thought to this problem. The winter of 1889-90 was remarkably dry, and I watched the rise of the river from low water mark to the greatest height it had ever attained in April, 1890. I was immediately on the bank of the stream for four long months, and saw it creeping up inch by inch till it overflowed first the banks and finally overcame the levees.

I studied the problem from a practical position and concluded then and there that I could suggest the way to prevent an overflow. I explained my plan to some of the citizens, but they met it with some commonplace objection.

Believing still that my suggestion is worthy of investigation, I give it to your readers for what it may be worth. It is simply this: To insert at the base of the levees a system of drainage pipes sufficient to carry off the water as fast as it rises.

The regular rate of rising during the winter of 1889-90 was only one or two inches per day. Now, it could be easily calculated by a civil engineer what the number and what the size of the drainage pipes necessary to draw off the excess of water as it comes down from above. An inside ditch at the base of the levee could collect all this discharge into canals at proper distances running back into the swamp. The inexpensiveness and practicability of this simple addition to the present levee system must be obvious.

The only question remaining to be solved is the disposition of the water after it had been discharged into the swamps and other natural outlets of the great river. Would not the water rise sufficiently to flow back to the levees and still continue to inundate the plantations? My answer to this is, that the discharge into the woods and lakes and bayous being gradual, much of the water would be evaporated by the sun, and the main body would pass out through the natural outlets into the waters of the gulf. If the entire overflow of the river could be equally spread over its own banks, the water would soon pass off and the riparian plantations would presently emerge. This was somewhat the case before the construction of levees was begun, and it is known that the overflows at that period were much less disastrous than at present. The river inundated its banks just as the Nile has done for ages, and after leaving a rich deposit it presently subsided, giving time for the cultivation of the annual crops.

The origin of the levees was, no doubt, in the fact that the bank in some places being lower than in others, those places were first protected by a system of partial levees. As this confined and increased the volume of water, it became necessary to raise a levee or embankment on the higher ground, and so it came to pass that almost the entire front of the plantations had to be protected. Then the theory was started that the increase in velocity of the rising water would insure the discharge of the floods through this artificial channel. It was said, Build the levees higher and stronger, and we shall have no more overflows. Alas! for the futility of this reasoning. The river has gone on increasing in volume as the levees have been built up, until now it no longer floods the lands with the gentle inundation of the Nile, but stands a threatening menace to all the surrounding country. Three times since the war has the Morganza levee been rebuilt, and each time at much greater expense, and yet it fails to resist the pressure, and each successive overflow becomes more disastrous.

The system I have recommended combines the advantages of both the levee and the outlet system. It holds the water under control, and at the same time discharges it by a gradual and sure subtraction of its surplus volume. It accomplishes in a regular and systematic way what nature had done irregularly before the levees were constructed. F. M. GRACE.

Hillside College, Tenn.

The A. and M. College.

MR. EDITOR: Noticing in your issue, of the seventh instant, under the head of "Starkville and the A. and M. College," some very erroneous statements regarding the treatment of the good pastor, the Rev. Mr. Randolph, of Starkville, I beg the privilege to say a few words in refutation of the grave charges against faculty and student body.

Referring to the treatment of Mr. Randolph by the authorities at the commencement exercises of the A. and M. College, my friend says: "Here is a brave man standing up for truth and righteousness, and filling a representative position—the college pastor for eighty thousand citizens—ignored and snubbed because he has been true to God and his cause."

This I claim as wholly without foundation, and I challenge my friend, its author, or anyone else, to substantiate the statement with argument stronger than the insignificant fact that Mr. Randolph was not called upon to open one of the exercises with prayer. I am certain that no honest and conscientious Christian would question the worthiness of any on whom this duty was conferred.

In regard to the blind tiger in Starkville, its existence is a sad truth, although this little town has long been one of the strongholds of prohibition. However, there are many good men, including Mr. Randolph, who are diligently laboring to stamp out this damaging evil; and he understood that, as far as his authority extends, Gen. Lee has left nothing undone to place the blind tiger beyond the reach of his students.

The habit of card playing among boys and young men is an evil of which, I dare say, no State college in this Union is free. But, thanks to the better element of the student body, card playing was virtually stamped out of existence in the student dormitory during last session, thus setting a moral precedent below which the honor of their successors will not allow themselves to fall.

In reference to the college ball, it, like all other means of social enjoyment, has its supporters as well as its opposers. It was strictly an affair of the students and their friends, and was managed by gentlemen of unquestionable character. In regard to right and wrong, one gentleman should respect the opinion of others, and especially should this be observed when sincere Christians themselves disagree. Mr. Randolph has identified himself with the interest of the Y. M. C. A. at the college, and I can safely assert that he has made more true friends in this organization, and among the students in general, than any pastor that preceded him in Starkville.

No doubt there have been some complaints made and comments passed on the course pursued by the excellent pastor; but my friend should not get offended because all the people of Starkville are not pleased with Mr. Randolph, for the man who pleases everyone will certainly fall short of satisfying God. Do not strive to kindle these smoldering embers into enveloping flames, my dear friend; but go out and exert a Christian influence to harmonize these conflicting factions.

Very truly, ROBERT L. STENNIS.

District Conference, Aberdeen District, North Mississippi Conference.

The twenty-third session of the Aberdeen District Conference convened in the hospitable town of Nettleton, July 8, 1892. Rev. J. B. Stone, P. E., presided. Owing to the continued heavy rain, the attendance was not as large as on former occasions. However, the Conference was marked for its great spirituality. We had preaching by Revs. J. C. Park, E. H. Moon, J. W. Peavy, H. R. Tucker, J. A. Bowen, F. P. Spencer, W. B. Murrah and J. W. Honnoll; and each service was attended with gracious results. The reports of the preachers showed the district to be in a healthy, growing condition in every department. Our preachers seem to be broad and conscientious in their feelings, and join with the prosiding elder in desire and effort to bring the whole district up to what it should be; and, at the same time, each one feels a deep concern for the prosperity of his own charge. We have in this district many most excellent laymen, who are always present on these Conference occasions with willing hearts to work in the interest of the church and religion.

The Conference elected four new men as delegates to the Annual Conference. The names are: J. S. Johnson, S. T. Harkey, B. T. Clark, and Robert Gordon.

We regard this as a strong delegation, and feel sure that no district in the Conference will have a stronger.

We had present a few visitors, all of whom were welcomed.

Rev. G. W. Bachman, our colporteur and Sunday-school agent, was present, and, as usual, looked after the work in which he is engaged.

We had also the presence of Rev. J. W. Honnoll, president of Malono Female College, located at Holly Springs, Miss. We have none more solid and better fitted to manage our girls than Bro. Honnoll.

We were much pleased to have among us our own Rev. W. B. Murrah, D. D., president of our Mississippi College, a man dear to North Mississippi, and one as well suited to fill the high and responsible position to which he has been called as any to be found; and the following resolutions adopted by the Conference do not contain mere empty words, but express the sentiment of our people:

Resolved, That we appreciate the generous gift of Maj. R. W. Millsaps, by which a noble institution of learning is secured to us; and that we rejoice in the prospect of the early opening of Millsaps College.

Resolved, That we are highly gratified at the election of Dr. W. B. Murrah to the presidency of this college; that we rejoice to have him with us in our District Conference; that we have heard him with pleasure, and that we will heartily co-operate with him in his important work.

We give here an extract from the Committee on Education:

"We endorse the curriculum of Millsaps College, and especially commend its wisdom in offering free tuition to every student. As a Conference, we urge our people to patronize Millsaps College. We call attention, too, with pleasure to Grenada Collegiate Institute and Malone College, both female schools. We are gratified to learn that these institutions are enjoying increasing prosperity. We fully endorse the action of the Board of Trustees of Malone College in calling the Rev. J. W. Honnoll to its presidency. The interest of the school, we believe, will prosper in his hands. We commend these schools to our people."

Tupelo was selected as the place for holding the next session of the District Conference.

HENRY R. TUCKER, Sec.

If over Christianity appears in its power, it is when it erects its trophies on the tomb: when it takes up its abode where the world leaves it, and fills the breast with immortal hope in dying moments.—Robert Hall.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON.—July 31, 1892.

By Rev. W. H. LAFRANCE, D. D.

Peter and John before the Council.

Acts iv, 1-18.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"There is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved."—Verse 12.

Our lesson is a continuation of the one for last Sunday. The fact that the lame man had been healed was made known all about the temple, as also the fact that Peter and John had made of the occasion by preaching "Jesus and the resurrection." Immediately those in authority (incited, no doubt, by the Sadducees) appeared to bring him to the matter.

Vers. 1-3. The priests who were on duty in the temple that day, attended by the officer in charge of the Levitical temple guard, interrupted Peter and John, who were still preaching to the people.

These ecclesiastics were incensed at the apostles for presuming to teach, and particularly for teaching in the name of Jesus, whom they had crucified. The Sadducees, the materialists of the Jewish race, were sorely troubled because Peter and John claimed to be witnesses to the resurrection of the Jesus, and preached that all the dead would be raised through Jesus; they came, not as officers, but as approving and encouraging the arrest of the apostles.

The arrests were made late in the afternoon, after legal hour for trial; the apostles were, therefore, placed in custody until the next day.

Vers. 4. The fact of the healing of the lame man, the explanation made by Peter, and the earnest and pointed sermon that followed, combined to convince many, who accepted Christianity at once. These, added to those already converted, made an aggregate membership in the church of about five thousand men, besides women and children.

Vers. 5, 6. This was a meeting of the Sanhedrim, the highest Jewish tribunal. "It was composed of the high priest; all ex-high priests then living; the most influential of the scribes; the elders, or heads of families; and, probably, the heads of the twenty-four courses of the priests." The full membership was seventy-two. Caiaphas was high priest. About his father-in-law, had been, but was deposed by the Romans, who removed and replaced the high priest as he suited to their plans. Under earlier Levitical law there could be but one, and he the head of the family of Aaron. Alexander and John were members of the family of the high priest, we suppose.

Vers. 7. By whose authority do you act, and by what force? The question was not to elicit information simply, but to draw the apostles into an answer that would convict them of a death-crime.

Vers. 8-10. This is the first fulfillment of the promise Jesus made to the disciples when they should be brought before councils: "It shall be given you in that same hour what ye shall speak." The Holy Ghost came to Peter's help.

Peter's answer was direct, fearless, full. That same Sanhedrim had condemned Jesus. Now, says Peter, "God raised him from the dead, and by him we have done this." Bold witness for Christ that!

Vers. 11. Jesus had applied this expression to himself, quoting from Psalm cxviii, 22. (See Matthew xlii, 42.) The Sanhedrim had set him "naught," casting him out under condemnation of death.

Vers. 12. This is a magnificent culmination. It is as though Peter had said, You priests and high priests, you scribes and elders; all of you who joined in condemning Jesus, must be saved through his name. He whom ye slew has power to save, and no one besides.

So it is; so it always will be. "None other." Does each member of your class realize this? Do you?

Vers. 13. Peter and John were not illiterate in the sense in which we use that word; but they were not educated in rabbinical lore; they were not of the teaching class among the Jews. They could read and write, and were versed in Old Testament Scriptures.

The Sanhedrim saw how bold they were, wondered at their readiness of speech and air of authority, and then, looking more closely at them, remembered having seen them with Jesus.

Vers. 14. "The man that was healed!" A very vital fact, he, and hard to manage. So a converted soul, a changed life, a bad man become good, is the proof of Christianity that the world must, and does accept, however it may hate him.

Vers. 16, 17. The stubbornness of a bad heart is amazing. Here were men who admitted to each other that a great and good deed had been done, a "noted miracle" had been wrought, and yet who deliberately agreed to ignore their own convictions. The Sanhedrim saw how bold they were, and yet they were not overthrown by their theory of it; but will crush the whole thing out. It must not be allowed to spread. Jesus must not be preached. (Read the account of Paul in the light of this incident and the subsequent spread of Christianity.)

Vers. 18. The meaning is plain. Of course, no brave, true disciple would regard such a command as Christ had said, "Ye shall be witnesses unto me."

Annual Meeting of the W. M. S. of the North Mississippi Conference.

On Saturday, June 25, 1892, the fair city of Aberdeen, Miss., opened wide her hearts and homes to entertain the W. M. S. of North Mississippi. Time was when such a meeting would have attracted but little attention; but now, from its numbers, it demanded notice, and the most generous and elegant hospitality was accorded to its delegates and its many visitors. Believing that on such an occasion the first thing to seek a preparation of heart from the Master, and to implore a blessing upon all the business to be transacted, all were invited to participate in a private service led by Mrs. G. H. Lipscomb, on Saturday afternoon. It was a blessed meeting. We felt that, as daughters of a King, we were favored even above others in our great work, and our hearts were comforted and encouraged.

On Sunday evening came the annual address: that of welcome by Mrs. George C. Paine, of Aberdeen; the response by Mrs. J. B. Srester, of Black Hawk; and the annual address of the president, Mrs. T. B. Hargrove, of Greenwood.

On Sunday morning Dr. J. J. Wheat, of Grenada, gave us a most excellent sermon from John xii, 24. Rev. J. B. Bloore, of Verona, assisted by other brethren, administered the Lord's Supper to a large number of communicants.

Sunday afternoon was devoted to the little folks. Rev. C. F. Reid, of China, gave them a description of the children of China, their dress, school life, etc., which, no doubt, they will long remember. Then came a talk from our gifted president, Mrs. Hargrove, who is particularly felicitous in her talks to children. What she says is so plain, so practical; something they can remember and practice.

On Sunday evening Bro. Reid occupied the hour with China. He has been there so long, and labored there so faithfully, that his whole heart is absorbed, and he sees in that great field immense possibilities for good. May he be permitted soon to return and devote himself for many years to come to the people he so loves!

On Monday morning the business session opened. The roll of auxiliaries and juveniles was called, and thirty-two adults and juveniles responded. A much larger attendance was anticipated, but various causes operated to detain many who had expected to come. All the officers, except the auditor, were present, and all of the district secretaries. While a few of these latter have not been as successful as they desired, yet the office is a success, and the district secretary one of the main factors in our work. Only secure the right woman for the place, and the work goes on, not always smoothly or without difficulties, but her zeal and energy are equal to the task of accomplishing much. All honor and praise to our district secretaries! Let us rally to their support, and hold up their arms when they become heavy. Owing to a change of boundaries, we now have nine districts instead of eight. Report of the corresponding secretary shows progress. There are 94 auxiliaries, 52 juvenile societies, and 3,223 members. Raised during the year $4,097.84, of which $1,875.14 was contributed for the Scarritt Bible and Training school. In Mrs. Bennett's report of money received from June, 1891, to June, 1892, North Mississippi appears third in the list of thirty-five Conference societies contributing to that fund, the second being only $36 ahead of us. We hope to send, at least, one of our girls to that institution when it opens in September. Holly Springs is the banner auxiliary in our Conference this year, having paid in more money than any other, and Greenville is second. The two young people's societies of Greenville carry off the banner among the juveniles, while the Lochie Rinkin Band, of Holly Springs, ranks next.

Monday and Tuesday were busy days—very busy. Business was dispatched with a celerity that was wonderful. Resolutions were passed, reports of committees received, discussed, adopted. Reports from district secretaries, auxiliaries and juveniles, all came in for their due share of attention. It was emphatically a business meeting; yet the spirit of Christ was always present, and the feeling of harmony pervaded the body at all times. It was a spiritual meeting from beginning to end.

The evenings were filled with recitations from juveniles, reading of reports of corresponding secretary and treasurer; report from Mrs. Hargrove, delegate to Woman's Board; entertaining and instructive papers on missionary topics. A change in recording secretary was made, as the present secretary did not care to retain the office. The officers were as follows: President, Mrs. Hargrove; vice president, Mrs. Strong; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Stone; recording secretary, Mrs. G. H. Lipscomb; treasurer, Miss Clark; auditor, Mrs. Evans. District secretaries as follows: Columbia district, Mrs. O. T. McElroy;

Aberdeen district, Mrs. Geo. C. Paine; Corinth district, Mrs. H. A. Dean; Inka; Sardis district, Mrs. J. W. Malone; Coldwater; Grenada district, Mrs. A. P. Ball; Winona district, Mrs. J. B. Srester, Black Hawk; Holly Springs district, Mrs. N. B. Fant; Greenville district, Mrs. F. B. Clifford; Hollandale; Kosciusko district, Mrs. Alice Brown, Sallis.

Water Valley was chosen as place of meeting for next year. A number of the brethren were present at every service. We feel, in a great measure, dependent on our pastors, and welcome them to these meetings, knowing they arouse an enthusiasm nothing else could do. The citizens of Aberdeen testified their appreciation by their presence, the large church being filled every evening, notwithstanding the hot, sultry weather and frequent showers. The pastor, Rev. J. A. Bowen, manifested the greatest thoughtfulness for the comfort of the ladies, and was always on hand to minister to their wants.

Tuesday evening the meeting closed with the annual love-feast, which was greatly enjoyed. The motto for North Mississippi for the coming year, is, "Thy kingdom come." The prayer is, that some of our consecrated young women may be called to the foreign work.

Mrs. J. B. Stone,
Conf. Sec., N. Miss. W. M. S.
Joint Board of Finance, Mississippi Conference.

TREASURER'S REPORT.

I have received for Conference claimants, second quarter, as follows from the—

BRANDON DISTRICT.

Neshoba.....	$ 5 00
Walnut Grove and Carthage.....	10 00
Marvin.....	35 00
Homeewood.....	5 00
Rose Hill.....	10 00
Forest and Morton.....	9 50
Trenton.....	5 00
Hillsboro.....	5 00
Walnut Grove.....	12 00
Shiloh.....	10 00
Decatur.....	10 00
Weaville.....	5 00
Lake.....	5 00
Total	$120 50

MERIDIAN DISTRICT.

East End, Meridian.....	$ 7 85
Lauderdale.....	7 00
P. rterville.....	10 00
Leaksville.....	15 00
Chunkey.....	6 00
Daleville.....	15 00
Clark.....	15 00
Waynesboro.....	14 00
Enterprise.....	10 00
Marion.....	6 00
Vossburg.....	6 00
Total	$111 85

SEASHORE DISTRICT.

Moss Point.....	$50 00
Seration.....	10 00
Amelous.....	25 00
Purvis.....	15 00
Pearlington.....	40 00
Heidelberg.....	15 00
M. Carmel.....	15 00
Ellisville.....	10 00
Perry.....	10 00
Hattiesburg.....	16 40
Total	$206 40

WOODVILLE DISTRICT.

Port Vincent.....	$10 00
North Wilkinson.....	15 00
Franklinton.....	10 00
Wilson.....	20 00
Tallahatchee.....	5 00
Gloster and Centerville.....	40 00
St. Helena.....	20 00
Jackson, La.....	11 25
Total	$131 25

JACKSON DISTRICT.

Yazoo City.....	$92 00
Yazoo Circuit.....	5 00
Total	$97 00

BROOKHAVEN DISTRICT.

China Grove.....	$15 00
Bowerton.....	30 00
Perry.....	20 00
McComb City.....	18 00
Summit.....	6 00
Providence.....	11 85
Crystal Springs.....	20 00
Brookhaven.....	44 50
Total	$65 35

WICKSBURG DISTRICT.

Burtonton.....	$10 00
Fayette.....	15 00
South Vicksburg.....	13 00
Warren.....	5 00
Park Gibson.....	15 00
Rosky Springs.....	48 50
Total	$106 50

I have paid as follows to claimants:

Mrs. A. B. Stewart.....	$25 00
" Wm. Finn.....	25 00
" D. W. Dillehay.....	25 00
" Wm. Wadsworth.....	25 00
" A. M. Berlington.....	25 00
" J. N. Williams.....	25 00
" Jos. Nicholson.....	25 00
" A. J. Dawson.....	25 00
" J. S. Calhoun.....	25 00
" J. L. Forsythe.....	25 00
" H. F. Johnson.....	25 00
Rev. W. E. Ballard.....	25 00
B. Jones.....	50 00
" T. Y. Armstrong.....	31 25
" D. Merohant.....	31 25
Mrs. J. C. Brogan.....	37 50
" G. M. Gilmore.....	37 50
Rev. Thos. Price.....	12 50
John Calhoun.....	12 50
Mrs. M. Herbert.....	12 50
" G. Hawkins.....	12 50
" J. D. Hays.....	25 00
" J. J. Smylie.....	12 50
Edwin Lufeld.....	6 25
Olus Calhoun.....	6 25

For want of information no allowance has yet been made to Mmes. V. H. Johnson, H. H. Montgomery, E. R. Strickland, H. D. Berry, D. M. Wiggins, J. A. Godfrey, J. A. Newsom, J. M. Gann, Rev. A. B. Nicholson, Allice Calhoun.

We are ready to pay these claims as soon as the desired information is received. Fifty-seven charges have reported collections this quarter. There are quite a number that have not reported for other quarter. Now, brethren, let us all go to work and raise the amount necessary to pay the third quarter, that our plan of quarterly payments will have proved a grand success.

W. M. THORNTON,
Treas. Joint Board of Finance.

Holly Springs District Conference.

This body met at Red Banks, Miss., Friday morning, July 15, 1892; Rev. Dr. J. W. Boswell, P. E., in the chair. The Sunday-school Conference was held the previous day. Practical topics were discussed, and many practical hints and suggestions were made for the improvement of this great cause. Prof. E. H. Randle was elected president of the Sunday-school Conference, and W. F. Rozell and B. C. Gray served as secretaries. The Rev. J. J. Brooks preached at eleven o'clock on "Angelic Ministration." Such topics as the following were discussed: "Music in the Sunday-school," "Object of the Sunday-school," "Its Influence," "How to Cultivate Neglected Districts," and "The Qualifications and Work of the Teacher." The Conference passed a resolution to the effect that the District Conference and Sunday-school Conference should be held at a different time and place, and that the Annual Conference be requested to provide for representation in the Sunday-school Conference, and the manner of their election.

The District Conference embraced two days—Friday and Saturday. Every pastor in the district was present, and twenty-seven laymen answered to their names. The Sunday-school cause is looking up in the district, but the financial condition of the district is not encouraging. The "happ-hazard" system is usually adopted to collect money for the support of the ministry. Think of a pastor serving a charge of nearly 400 members, having eight appointments, and living the first eight months of the Conference year on $45! The stewards assessed for him $250. Some new churches are being built, and others are being repaired. One pastor—the oldest man in the district, and a country pastor at that—reported that since Conference he had been in 221 different homes, and prayed in 174 of these homes. The preschere are hopeful and happy, notwithstanding the hard times. Preaching was done by G. W. Bechman; W. J. Carleton, of the Memphis Conference; J. C. Lowe, J. W. Boswell, W. W. Moss, G. H. Jacobs, A. F. Watkins and the writer. The hospitality of Red Banks abounded. Prof. E. H. Randle, G. W. Stamps, Rev. Ben C. Gray and Dr. F. P. Boatner are the delegates to the Annual Conference; and M. C. Pegues and W. F. Rozell are the alternates. The District Conference passed a resolution that the price of the Nashville Advocate should be reduced to one dollar, if practicable, and that the delegates from this district be requested to introduce a resolution in the Annual Conference to that effect. The laymen were unanimously in favor of this resolution. The next District Conference will be held at Hlokyry Flat.

T. W. LEWIS, Sec.

In every part of the country there are laws against cruelty to animals, and such laws for its prevention, but all of them together do not exert such an influence in relieving the dumb creation from suffering as does this best of all the existing agents for rearing the crippled, the lame, and the halt, whether man or beast, dog, sheep or cattle you value, get Mansfield's Megilo Arnica Liniment. It is the surest remedy devised for the ordinary diseases with which animals are afflicted, and invariably relieves pain of every kind at once. It is entirely in accord with the advanced medical ideas of the day, and is a prescription of the greatest value. Every household should have it, as it relieves pain in man or animal. Send to the Mansfield Drug Co., Proprietors, Memphis, Tenn.

The drafts drawn by Indolence upon Future are pretty sure to be dishonored. Make Now your banker—Selected.

If you want to be a means of saving the world, just understand that you can not do it at arm's length. Even God could do nothing for this world till he came here.—Selected.

That Tired Feeling

The great benefit which people overcome by That Tired Feeling derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla proves that this medicine "makes the weak strong," a well known merchant of Auburn, Me., says: "About 5 years ago I began to suffer with very severe pain in my stomach, gradually growing worse. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, being convinced that I was troubled with Dyspepsia and Liver and Kidney troubles. I improved at once and am very much better and feel more like working."

Hood's Sarsaparilla always gives relief and great comfort. It is a God-send to any one suffering as I did.

Hood's PILLS are the best family cathartic, gentle and effective. Try a box. Price 25c.

THE BEST

Remedy for colds, coughs, and the common disorders of the throat and lungs. Ayer's Cherry Pectoral is universally recommended by the profession. It breaks up the phlegm, soothes inflammation, allays painful symptoms, and induces repose. In bronchitis and pneumonia, it affords speedy relief, and is unrivaled as a prompt and effective in croup, sore throat, and the sudden pulmonary diseases to which young children are so liable.

Emergency Medicine

"Ayer's Cherry Pectoral has had a wonderful effect in curing my brother's children of a severe and dangerous cold. It was truly astonishing how speedily they found relief, and were cured, after taking this preparation."—Miss Annette N. Moon, Fountain, Minn.

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Prompt to act, sure to cure

Kennedy's Medical Discovery

Takes hold in this order:
Bowels,
Liver, Kidneys,
Inside Skin,
Outside Skin,
Driving everything before it that ought to be out.

You know whether you need it or not.

Sold by every druggist, and manufactured by DONALD KENNEDY,
ROXBURY, MASS.

Quarterly Statement of the New Orleans Canal and Banking Company,

AT NEW ORLEANS.

In the State of Louisiana, at the Close of Business on the 30th Day of June, 1892.

RESOURCES.

Real estate.....	$ 93,550 00
City and other bonds.....	137,265 00
Stocks.....	23,837 50
Loans and discounts.....	1,546,911 80
Signed and discounted.....	2,243,194 97
Loans and discounts.....	1,274 37
Loans on demand.....	887,796 25
Loans on time.....	41,704 12
Loans on currency and checks for clearing-house exchanges.....	760,717 86
Total	$4,569,340 07

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock paid in.....	$1,000,000 00
Surplus.....	300,000 00
Undivided profits.....	172,905 73
Dividends unpaid.....	40,830 00
Deposits subject to check.....	3,047,539 34
Circulation.....	8,565 00
Total	$4,569,340 07

I, the undersigned, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

EDWARD TOBY, Cashier.

STATE OF LOUISIANA,
Parish of Orleans, City of New Orleans,
Sworn to and subscribed before me this thirty-first day of June, 1892.

A. G. LA PICE, Notary Public.

Semi-Annual Statement of the Louisiana National Bank,

OF NEW ORLEANS.

At Close of Business, June 30, 1892.

RESOURCES.

Bills discounted.....	$1,255,654 37
United States bonds, Louisiana consols and other bonds and stocks.....	510,810 85
Banking-house and other real estate.....	100,819 20
United States treasurer.....	$ 2,250 00
New York exchange.....	360,729 18
Demand loans.....	454,973 40
Cash and checks for clearing-house.....	885,826 93
Total	$3,570,563 93

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock.....	$500,000 00
Surplus fund.....	150,000 00
Not divided profits.....	49,570 00
Circulation.....	45,000 00
Deposits subject to check.....	2,801,861 90
Balance on reduction of capital.....	800 00
Dividends unpaid.....	20,582 00
Total	$3,570,563 93

A dividend of FOUR DOLLARS PER SHARE was declared from the net earnings of the past six months, payable on demand in New Orleans, and at the Banking House of Winslow, Lauler & Co., New York.

R. M. WALMSLEY, President.
A. LURIA, Vice-President.
LEON F. JANIN, Cashier.

Watches, Diamonds, FINE JEWELRY

Silver and Silver-Plated Ware, SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES

Send for Catalogue.

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO.,
(Established 1817)

119 CANAL ST., New Orleans, La.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT

AND MANUFACTURER OF

PLANTATION CABINS, STORES, Etc., Nos. 243, 244, 245 and 246 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

NEW ORLEANS.

Please mention the Advocate when answering advertisements.

Queen and Crescent Route. 94 MILES the SHORTEST.

New Orleans to Cincinnati.

NEW VESTIBULED TRAIN.

The Queen and Crescent Special leaves New Orleans every afternoon at 3:30 P. M., via the Virginia and Georgia, for Cincinnati, Vestibuled and Has Lighted. Through to New York and Washington without change. No extra charge for this superior train service.

TIME TO CINCINNATI, 26 HOURS.

TIME TO NEW YORK, 47 HOURS.

The Queen and Crescent and Fast Tennessee Virginia and Georgia are now running through Pullman Vestibuled Buffet Sleeping Cars from New Orleans to New York without change. Time to New York via Washington only 45 hours.

Ticket Office: 21 St. Charles street.

Depot: Corner Press street and Levee.

R. H. GARRETT, Div. Pass. Agent, New Orleans, La.
D. MILLER, Traffic Manager.
D. G. EDWARDS,
Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent, Cincinnati.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL R. R.

GREAT FAST MAIL ROUTE.

Six Daily Trains between NEW ORLEANS and CHICAGO.

The Only Line running Pullman Buffet Sleepers and Through Cars for All Classes to

CHICAGO.

Connecting with all Buffet and Dining Car Lines East, and the ONLY LINE Running Through Cars for All Classes

To St. Louis Without Change.

The Only Line running a Double Daily Train Service to St. Louis, with Through Sleepers to Memphis, without change.

The shortest and Best Line from NEW ORLEANS to VICKSBURG.

The Shortest and Most Direct Route to MEMPHIS.

The Only Line Running Pullman Sleeping Cars Through Without Change

To SPRINGFIELD, MO., FORT SCOTT and KANSAS CITY.

ONLY ONE CHANGE OF CARS

FROM NEW ORLEANS to

Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York

The great Steel Bridge, spanning the Ohio River at Cairo, completed, and all trains (freight and passenger) now running regularly over it, thus avoiding the delays and annoyances incident to transfer by ferry boat.

Ticket Office: Corner St. Charles and Common Streets.

J. W. COLEMAN, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agt., N. O.

A. H. HANSON, G. P. A., Chicago.

Mississippi Valley Route.

L., N. O. and T. R'y.

Kansas City and Memphis Leaves Arrives
Fast Train..... 8:00 p. m. 8:10 a. m.
Vicksburg & Natchez Ex..... 8:10 a. m. 5:35 p. m.
Balt. Bongs "Coast Train"..... 8:45 p. m. 10:00 a. m.

The Only Line running Solid Trains between New Orleans, Memphis and Vicksburg, with Modern Pullman Buffet Sleeping Cars.

The direct and favorite route to Kansas City, Omaha, Denver, St. Louis, Chicago, Louisville and Cincinnati.

The short line to Hot Springs and points in Arkansas and North Louisiana.

Communication Tickets, Mileage Books, Party Rates and Week End Excursions.

Summer Excursion Tickets on Sale in season.

Ticket Office, 21 St. Charles Street.

L. F. DAY, Traffic Manager.

R. F. REYNOLDS, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agt.

The Texas and Pacific R'y.

EL PASO ROUTE.

The direct line to Shreveport and New Orleans, to Texas, Kansas, Memphis, St. Louis, the North and East and to all points in Texas, Old and New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado and California.

The Favorite Line via Sacramento to Oregon and Washington.

Only line offering Choice of Routes to points in the Southeast via Texas, Shreveport and New Orleans.

TAKE "THE ST. LOUIS

Christian Advocate.

Rev. D. L. MITCHEL, Publisher.
OFFICE: 112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
SUBSCRIPTION: $2 PER ANNUM.
Ministers and wives of deceased Preachers, 1/2.

All preachers of the M. E. Church, South, are authorized Agents to whom payments may be made.

Rev. C. W. Carter, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. Lewis, Asst. Editor.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

REV. J. M. BEARD, D. D.
REV. S. A. KERNER.
REV. J. B. A. HARRIS, D. D.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

REV. W. C. BLACK, D. D.
REV. R. J. JONES.
REV. R. J. JONES.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

REV. W. T. J. SULLIVAN, D. D.
REV. J. D. CAMERON, D. D.
REV. T. G. WIER, M. D.

Thursday, July 28, 1892.

To Our Subscribers.

Some of you have been with us from the beginning of our voyage, and are to-day our staunchest friends and supporters. The ADVOCATE is dearer to you to-day than when you first began to read it. There are others who, though not as old, are yet firm in their love and sympathy for us. There are others who are our young friends, having lately been won. To all of you we wish to speak these few words. We appreciate fully and highly all your good opinions and good wishes, and we try every week to show this appreciation by sending you a good paper for your households. From letters we receive every week we are led to believe that our work is appreciated and is a help to all who are trying "to live godly in Christ Jesus." For this information we are truly grateful, and it encourages and strengthens us to further effort in your behalf.

Now, the publisher informs us that many of you are in arrears with your subscriptions. While this may be a small thing to you, it is a very big thing to him. If it were only Bro. A and Bro. B that were in arrears a few dollars, the publisher would not say a word; but when several thousand A's and B's owe a few dollars apiece, it comes pretty hard on him to keep the paper going steadily and regularly. We know that "times are tight," the floods and fires and storms have been terrible in their devastation; but we think, with an earnest prayer to God for help and a little judicious management, many of our subscribers would be able to pay what is now due for the paper. This month and the next are specially hard months with the church paper, and for this very reason we have the right to expect that our subscribers will do their utmost to help us through. Of course, "you can't bring blood out of a turnip," but you might send us the turnip!

North Mississippi Conference.

COLPORTAGE AND SUNDAY-SCHOOL WORK.

I have engagements as follows:

Salem, Ashland circuit, Sunday, July 31—Children's Day.... Lebanon, New Albany circuit, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 6, 7—Sunday-school mass meeting and Children's Day.... Jonesboro, Jonesboro circuit, Thursday, Aug. 11—Sunday-school mass meeting.... New Hope, Ripley circuit, Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 13, 14—Sunday-school mass meeting and Children's Day.... Shiloh, Saltillo circuit, Saturday, Aug. 20—Sunday-school mass meeting; and at Allen's Chapel, Sunday, Aug. 21—Children's Day.... Preaching at Mooreville, Friday night, Aug. 19.

We expect these occasions to be "times of refreshing" from the presence of the Lord to old and young. "Brethren, pray for us, that the Word of the Lord may have free course and be glorified." G. W. BACHMAN, Colporteur and Sunday-school Agent.

Editorial Correspondence.

THREE DISTRICT CONFERENCES.

On Thursday, June 30, at 11:30 P. M., we left Jackson, via the A. and V. railroad, to attend the Corinth District Conference at Baldwin, Miss. At 5 A. M. we steamed into the Central Depot at Meridian. The Mobile and Ohio train was waiting for us, and in twenty minutes we were speeding toward the extreme northeastern portion of the State. Twenty minutes for breakfast at Artesia—a magnificent breakfast it was, too—and a four and a half hours' run brought us to Baldwin, at 12:45 noon. Thirteen hours and fifteen minutes out! But one person boarded the train during the entire trip whom we knew—Bro. B. N. Hatch, an evangelist of the Baptist Church, who had just closed a meeting at Seoba, and was on his way to Columbus; thence to Macon to begin another.

One thing especially attracted our notice: The abundance of corn that has been planted through that section of the State. Cern was the constancy; cotton, the rarity. As far to the left and right as the eye could reach could be seen waving fields of rich, black corn, with here and there little handfulls of cotton. This prepared us for the statement that Baldwin has shipped this year nearly fifty carloads of corn which had been raised, shelled and sacked in the immediate vicinity.

Baldwin is a delightful village of about five hundred inhabitants, nestling in a magnificent grove of forest trees. Every home has plenty of room for truck patches, etc., and yet the houses are close enough for very near neighbors. The advantages of town and country life are as harmoniously combined as we have ever seen.

The District Conference was in session when we reached the town; the presiding elder, Bro. Lagrone, in the chair. It can be said of this District Conference what can hardly be said of a single other Conference we have attended this year, viz.: Every pastor was present. Every work was represented by a layman, and all the laymen were present except two, and one of these was very sick—the other was detained at home by a very sick child. Seventy-five delegates were in attendance, and yet there was room. The Conference was a delightful occasion. Doctrines were ably discussed. Sermons of power were preached; a love-feast, in fact, was held, and everybody felt it was good to be there. Bros. Murrah, of Millsaps College, and Honnoll, of Malone College, were both in attendance.

It had been our purpose to remain in that section of the State and attend the Aberdeen Conference at Nettleton; but "in the course of human events," it developed that it was best to forego that anticipated pleasure and return to the Brookhaven Conference at Magnolia, Miss. In accord with this new programme, in company with Bro. Murrah, we retired Sunday night at eleven o'clock, arose Monday morning at one o'clock, and left on an accommodation train at 2:30 A. M. for West Point. It was the glorious Fourth, and, as is always (?) the case, raining. The young folks were astir. A picnic had been broken up, but a baseball game was on docket, and we had the pleasure of dining with them at the hotel, or rather they had the pleasure of dining with us. We got there first. We do not think the Doctor appreciated the situation as fully as he might. "His eyes were heavy and his ears dull of hearing" that day. He was, however, wide awake to one incident. Leaving West Point at three P. M., on the Illinois Central, about five P. M. a bride and groom of not over twenty-four hours came aboard the train and took seats quite near us. The Doctor saw them. We reached Summit at five A. M., Tuesday morning, having been on the road twenty-seven hours, and taking the shortest and quickest route, too.

Thursday the Brookhaven District Conference convened at Magnolia; Bro. Woodward, the presiding elder, in the chair. Every pastor was present except one, and many laymen answered to their names. Reports from the works were gratifying. Over two hundred accessions to the church this year. The finest report made—if we may be permitted an opinion—was from the Brookhaven station; Bro. Weems, pastor. Many features of this Conference we would like to speak of, but time and space forbid.

Leaving Magnolia, we hurried back to Jackson; thence to Red Banks to look in upon the Holly Springs District Conference. It has been a long time since we spent a day more pleasantly and, we trust, profitably than the day at Red Banks. It was with a degree of regret we boarded the east-bound train on the K. C., M. and B. railroad, Friday evening, leaving behind us those brethren so happy in their work.

In visiting these three District Conferences we have traveled over nine hundred miles, and spent five nights and parts of nights on the train. But our reception by the brethren has been so cordial, and our words in behalf of the ADVOCATE so heartily received, we feel more than repaid for the fatigue and exposure incident to it.

B. F. L.

Linger in the Emerald Isle.

It has rained every day since I landed on this Emerald Isle, and much of the time has been quite cool for one coming from the land of the magnolia. Heavy winter clothing is very comfortable all the time. The thermometer has not reached seventy any day. Eighty is considered really hot. Many questions have they to ask about the extreme heat of the Southern parallels, and wonder that our powers of endurance have not long since been exhausted. Dr. Stephenson, the president of the Conference, in introducing me, said some had expected to see a black man, as I was announced as from the church in South America. The nights are very short. We have twilight until past ten o'clock. Sitting at a west window last night, I could read very well at half-past nine o'clock.

Yesterday afternoon I attended the ordination service of the Conference. It differs a good deal from our form, and not much improved in some respects. The four young men to be ordained are invited to relate their religious experiences and the circumstances of their call to preach. After which the president propounds the questions, two of them relating to their studies not in our Discipline. The responsive service, as we use it, is sung as a hymn. Then the president, others joining in the laying of hands, ordains the candidate to "the office and work of a minister and pastor," not an elder, as in our ritual. They have but one ordination service, and that at the end of a four years' probation. No distinction between deacons and elders. No married man is admitted on trial in the Conference, and no probationer is allowed to marry before his ordination. After the ordination, the president delivered a charge to the young brethren, founded on the life and character of John the Baptist.

Better provision is made for pastoral support here than in America, and there is less inequality in the salaries of pastors. The most gifted and popular do not receive much more than the less cultured and sought-after. The minimum stipend is $600 and a residence—or "manse," as it is called in this country. Circuits, not self-supporting, receive grants from the Home Mission Fund sufficiently large to guarantee to each pastor $600. Then they have a "Children's Fund," from which a grant of $27.50 per year is made for each child up to sixteen years of age, and an additional amount of $50 a year for its education from eight to sixteen years. That sum is raised by an assessment on the circuits of £28 for each minister—£25 for the Children's Fund and £3 for the Worn-out Ministers' Fund and the Widows and Orphans of Ministers. There is no other assessment upon the circuits. The other moneys are raised by voluntary contributions and other ways, but without an assessment of a certain amount.

The Irish Conference has no foreign missions of its own, but sends contributions for that cause annually to the Wesleyan Missionary Society in London; and, in turn, receives from that treasury a liberal sum for home missions in Ireland. The grants from the Home Mission Fund are for "Ordinary Expenditure," and "Extraordinary Expenditure"—the "Ordinary" is to supplement the salaries on feeble, dependent circuits, and the "Extraordinary" are for expenses incurred by affliction in ministers' families or for a supply in case of protracted affliction, or death of a minister, or for furniture or repairs in residences of ministers. The traveling expenses of pastors attending Conference are also paid out of this fund. They allow only the railroad fare at third-class rates.

The entire business of Conference during the year is conducted by a "General Committee of Management," elected by ballot at the annual session, of which the vice-president is chairman. All the connectional funds are thus under one general oversight and management. The secretaries of the various funds are ex-officio members of the General Committee of Management. There are no separate departmental boards.

The formation and re-formation of circuits are discussed in open Conference, as also are the appointments of the preachers. I was present this morning at the third and last reading of the appointments. There was a rather embarrassing discussion of one case involving a prominent member of the Conference. However well the plan may work in this country, it would not suit America. The Stationing Committee meets the day before the Conference assembles and prepares the first draft of the appointments, which is printed and read on the first day of the session. That draft ratifies the arrangements already made by circuits and ministers, confirms the invitations, and provides for those not fortunate enough to be in demand. The list is open to criticism and revision. After getting other information the Stationing Committee publishes a second, and on the last day of the session a third draft, which is adopted by a formal vote of the Conference. My study of the plan does not commend it to my better judgment. It is too cumbersome for our new country—would arrest the spirit of Methodist enterprise.

The Conference takes high ground on the temperance question, and not a member of the body uses tobacco in any form. The Fund for Worn-out Preachers, which is raised by annual collections and interest on invested capital, is distributed on the basis of the number of years spent in the active ministry. The minimum allowance is $70, with $5 additional for each year of traveling. Ministers' widows receive a minimum of $70, with $2.50 additional for each year of their husband's traveling, except in case of disparity of age, which is specifically provided for.

One thing seemed strange and rather frigid. The ministers address each other as "Mister"—You never hear the good old word, "Brother." They are very brotherly in spirit, however, and as elegant, cultured a body of men as I have met anywhere.

The whole country is now astir over the parliamentary elections, which take place next week. A political campaign here is short and sharp. Ulster is vigorously opposed to Home Rule, and I believe would resist a Dublin Parliament even to blood. The Catholic Archbishop and the priests are taking active part in the canvass. At Ballydehob, last Sunday, a priest, Father O'Conner, presided over a political meeting and delivered a fiery speech. Among other things that political father said: "The best preparation for the coming battle is to pass a resolution that if anyone should come forward to oppose our worthy member, we will put our hands in our pockets." That utterance of doubtful interpretation was cheered to the echo. On account of such priestly partisanship, the Protestants feel that their personal and religious liberty will be imperiled under "Home Rule." And their fears are not without foundation.

Belfast, the center of the linen industry, and the manufacturing city of Ireland, is quite like an American metropolis in its busy streets and brisk movement. I went through one of the shipyards yesterday and saw an "ocean greyhound" in process of building which is to eclipse the record of the world. That firm built the two fast steamers of the White Star Line. What an immense establishment—seven thousand five hundred men on the payroll!

After several delightful days of association with these royal Methodists, and in the hospitable home of Mr. George Horner, whose family have especially endeared themselves to me by a thousand and thoughtful courtesies, I shall leave to-morrow morning for a trip around the Antrim Coast to the Giant's Causeway and the birthplace of Adam Clarke. Fraternally,

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY.

Belfast, Ireland, June 28.

Sunday Rest League.

On Tuesday, July 19, 1892, a large number of representative citizens assembled in the parlors of the Y. M. C. A., in answer to the call of President R. H. Browne, of the Louisiana Rest League. Messrs. E. P. Mackie, A. T. Terry and S. S. Prentiss were appointed a Committee on Nominations, and their report was adopted, and the following were elected as officers for the organization for this year:

President, Breedlove Smith; vice-president, Rev. H. H. Waters, D. D.; secretary and treasurer, Walter W. Carre. Executive Committee—Chairman, Rev. John T. Sawyer, D. D.; Hon. Frank G. McGloin, Rev. J. L. Caldwell, D. D.; H. N. Harrison, Hon. R. H. Browne, John E. Rodd, Col. Walter S. Crawford.

The Sunday Rest League proposes, in co-operation with the labor organizations and all other good citizens, to seek the enforcement of the State Sunday law, which has of late been so flagrantly violated in this city. The meeting was most enthusiastic, and all were actuated by a settled determination to have the law kept by the saloons and all others disposed to break it.

Let the good people of New Orleans rally to this fresh effort for preserving the Sabbath as a day of rest and worship.

A Correction.

In the closing sentences of "Gildero's" letter to the ADVOCATE, of the seventh instant, the authorities of the A. and M. College are charged with having snubbed and slighted me at the commencement exercises of that institution. At the time I and many of my friends felt that such had been the case, and were aggrieved at the supposed action of the college authorities.

Since the publication of "Gildero's" article the true facts in the case have appeared, and these facts show that this supposition was the result of a misunderstanding. The management of the exercises have made the positive statement that no slight was meant, and this statement is accepted as satisfactory by all parties concerned.

It has been shown that the custom of the college authorities has been to invite visiting ministers to officiate at the exercises, and not to call upon the various pastors of Starkville, they being considered as regular chaplains of the college; that while one of the pastors of Starkville—and the only one besides myself in attendance till, perhaps, the last day—was called on the stand, it was not by the college authorities, but by a visiting minister.

It was in pursuance of this policy, and not for improper or personal reasons, that I was not asked to officiate at any of the exercises.

The authorities of the college have extended to me every possible privilege and courtesy in the way of intercourse with the students during my pastorate in this charge, and I regret the misapprehension in this matter. J. A. RANDOLPH.

Starkville, Miss., July 22.

To the Preachers of the Louisiana Conference.

I desire to state that preachers who are regular members of the Conference can send their daughters to Mansfield Female College at $8.50 per month, board and washing; tuition free. I will be glad also to allow each member of the Conference $10 for every pupil secured by him who will pay the regular catalogue rates. I also desire to state that I will grant to each member of the Conference the privilege of sending one pupil, tuition free, by paying an entrance fee of twenty-five dollars. This pupil must be one from a good family, of fair capacity and desirous of learning, who comes under the condition that she will strictly obey the laws of the school and improve every moment of her time. A. D. McVoy, President.

NOTES FROM OUR JACKSON OFFICE.

We age just back from a trip to Bro. Mellard's circuit. He is having a very successful meeting at Fletcher's Chapel.

Bro. Meek, of Carrollton, Miss., is in great need of rest, and Bro. M. M. Black, of Jackson, Miss., will supply his pulpit during the month of August, while he recreates.

Owing to the fact that we will be away from our office during the month of August, our notes will necessarily be short. We will try, however, to have the branch office represented in every issue of the ADVOCATE.

The protracted meeting season is now upon us in full blast. May it be a season of great rejoicing to many now in darkness. If we should realize that we are nothing—that it is God speaking through us—how much greater power would attend the preached Word and our personal efforts!

It is said that Andrew Carnegie, who is famous not only for his large iron and steel works, but now also for the Homestead strike, estimates his wealth at between $30,000,000 and $35,000,000; yet when a boy only thirteen years of age he was an errand boy in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

The following was received by the publisher:

Inclosed find postal note for $2, in payment of my subscription for ADVOCATE to March, 1893. Low cotton first, and then overflow, prevented me from forwarding $2 long ago. My fence all down; no crop at all this year; tenants all gone; don't know how I will get through.

The good brother who "get through" He does not begin retrenchment in the departments of brain and heart. May his tribe increase!

PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE.

Bishop Keener has placed Rev. H. H. Abreo in charge of Gretna Church, this city.

Rev. J. D. Newsom, one of the veteran preachers of the North Mississippi Conference, is dangerously sick.

Dr. Carradine is still at Hot Springs in a critical condition. The latest reports state that there is a slight chance for the better. — St. Louis Advocate, July 20.

A beautiful new church at Piney Grove, Columbus circuit, North Mississippi Conference, was recently dedicated, the sermon being preached by Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan.

The Quarterly Conference of Columbus station, held July 18, heartily and unanimously resolved to invite the North Mississippi Conference to hold its session of 1893 in Columbus.

Anyone desiring a commodious, well-situated cottage at the Seashore Camp Grounds, furnished and ready for occupancy, can obtain at reasonable rates same by addressing Mrs. Philo M. Goodwyn, 90 Constance St., New Orleans, La.

The St. Louis Christian Advocate reports Rev. S. H. Werlein, D. D., to be in ill health, so that he has been compelled to take a season of rest. He is spending it at Eureka Springs, Ark. We earnestly wish that he may find the sought-for restoration. — Patric Methodist Advocate, July 14.

Dr. Dubose had been at the Seashore Camp Meeting the night of July 13, and heard Bro. Werlein, in the midst of an impassioned appeal, cry out like a Stentor, "Fire! fire! fire!" he would have thought he was not "sick to hurt." The fact is, he is in robust health and fine spirits, and had a good time preaching to his old friends, and they enjoyed his visit and preaching very much.

Meridian District Sunday-School Convention.

A Sunday-school Convention for the southern part of the district, from the Enterprise and Stonewall charge down to the Leakeville circuit, will be held in Wayneboro, Tuesday and Wednesday, Aug. 23 and 24. Bro. L. P. Brown is requested to preside.

Another Sunday-school Convention, for the upper part of the district, will be held at Scooba, Thursday and Friday, Aug. 25 and 26. Rev. R. A. Breland is appointed to preside.

All Sunday-school superintendents, a delegate from each school and all the local preachers and itinerants are expected to be present. Programs will be provided, and prayerful effort made to make the conventions profitable and entertaining.

T. L. Mellen, P. E.

A Correction.

To the Pastors and Sunday-school Superintendents of the Seashore District:

By a letter just received from Rev. J. W. McLaurin, agent, I find I have misapprehended the terms of the circular of the American Bible Society in reference to furnishing children's Bibles at one-half rates. Bro. McLaurin says the offer is "only for children whose parents are too poor to pay anything," and "a special application, stating the fact of the Bibles being for such children, must accompany such order." So govern yourselves accordingly.

R. B. DOWNER,

Bible Committee, Seashore District.

Ellenville, Miss.

BROWN'S IRON BITTERS cures Dyspepsia, Indigestion & Debility.

Do You Know?

That when your bowels are disordered, and irregularities caused by change of diet or location exist,

Brodie's Astringent Cordial

Will correct all the troubles, and never fails, but

CURES

DIARRHŒA, DYSENTERY, COLIC, CRAMPS, BLOODY FLUX, and Such Symptoms.

TESTIMONIAL: July 25, 1892.

Dear Sirs:—I have used Brodie's Astringent Cordial in my family, and am using the third bottle. It always acts like a charm upon my children, correcting ailments of the bowels better than any medicine I ever tried.

Yours, most respectfully,

Mrs. A. W. MOORE.

Price: 50 cts. and $1 a Bottle.

L. L. LYONS & CO., New Orleans, La.

Sold by All Druggists.

Tuskaloosa Female College,

TUSKALOOSA, ALA.,

Offers superior advantages in every department of female education.

Session opens Oct. 5.

For catalogue, giving full information, apply to

ALONZO HILL, President.

There must be

some reason for it

We never have compelled anyone to use Pearlina. We'd like to, but it isn't feasible. Besides, it isn't necessary. Millions use Pearlina, and have tested and proved it. It's too old to be unknown, if it were a fraud, but where is the thing as popular and yet so young? If you know Pearlina, you know the reason. In all washing and cleaning, there's nothing that saves as much labor and does as much work. It hurts nothing, saves wear on everything, costs no more than common soap, and is more economical. Reasons enough for most women; think, are they not good enough for you?

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearlina." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearlina, do the honest thing—send it back.

JAMES PYLE, New York.

Millsaps College,

Jackson, Miss.

Session Begins Sept. 29th, 1892.

Full Faculty, Thorough Course,

GOOD ENDOWMENT.

New and Commodious Buildings.

Beautiful, Central and Healthful Location at the Capital of the State.

Cheap Board. No Tuition. Moderate Matriculation Fee.

Liberal provision made for young preachers and sons of preachers.

For terms, catalogue or other information apply to

REV. W. B. MURRAH, D. D., President,

or REV. A. F. WATKINS, Agent, Jackson, Miss.

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY, Pres't of Board of Trustees.

Grenada Collegiate Institute

Is Devoted to the Education of Girls and Young Ladies.

Fall Term Opens Sept. 6th, 1892

The Institute affords the very best advantages for culture in Music, vocal and Instrumental, in Art, Drawing and Painting, and in all the branches of collegiate study, including French, German and Latin. The teachers are experienced and competent. The Boarding Department is home-like and comfortable. The health is fine. The expenses are moderate.

For Catalogue address

REV. THOS. J. NEWELL, A. M., Pres., Grenada, Miss.

MARTIN COLLEGE

For Young Ladies.

PULASKI, TENN.

Under the patronage of the Tennessee Annual Conference. Permanent endowment fund, $30,000.

The only school for girls in the South with an endowment and absolutely out of debt. Eight acres of grounds beautifully ornamented with shade trees, vines, evergreens, shrubbery and flowers. Commodious brick buildings supplied with elegant new furniture—all the rooms carpeted, and have the incandescent electric light. The most beautiful and comfortable home for girls in the South. A full faculty of accomplished teachers. Specialists in every department. Ten States represented by the pupils last session. Health record remarkable—not a death in the boarding department for twenty years. Many delicate girls from malarial regions have been restored to vigorous health by coming here.

Parents who wish to have their daughters graciously guided and faithfully trained by wise and thoroughly qualified teachers can safely entrust them to Mr. and Mrs. Saunders of Martin College. I knew them intimately in Virginia, and, therefore, cheerfully commend them.

BISHOP W. W. DUNCAN.

It gives me pleasure to recommend a school where such good work is done as at Martin College. I have tested the work in English and found it the best in any school of like grade within my knowledge.

DR. W. M. BASKERVILLE,

Professor of English in Vanderbilt University.

Martin College more nearly approximates my ideal of a girls' school than any I have seen. I would advise parents and guardian who want to put their daughters in a safe, Christian, and Methodist school, to send them to Martin College.

REV. LEWIS POWELL,

Chairman of Conference Visiting Committee.

I have never seen anywhere, in any school, the highest culture so well coupled with the highest idea of experimental godliness as in this school.

REV. W. J. COLLIER,

P. E. of Columbia Dist., Tenn. Conf.

Send for catalogue, which gives full information. Address,

REV. R. M. SAUNDERS, Principal.

UNIVERSITY

—OF—

MISSISSIPPI

Will Open Its Forty-first Session on THURSDAY, SEPT. 15th, 1892.

All departments of the University are in excellent condition for most effective work.

The plan of study is so arranged as to allow all desirable options in selecting a course of study for the Bachelor's Degree, or in the planning of work for the post-graduate degrees of M. A. or Ph. D.

The grade of scholarship is being continually advanced. The various departments are in charge of competent, earnest and progressive men. Large and valuable additions have been made recently to the material equipment of the institution in the Scientific and Law Departments. The Library affords splendid facilities for study and investigation. The Faculty of instruction numbers twenty-one.

No tuition fees are charged, excepting a fee of $50 to law students. Other fees and expenses are moderate. No institution can claim a better record than this for the orderly department of its students during the session just closed.

Send for catalogue and special announcement to

ROBERT BURWELL FULTON,

University P. O., Miss.

Express Office, Oxford.

Clinton Female Academy

(Chartered in 1824.)

Will Open Monday, Sept. 5, 1892.

Course thorough. Charges lower than offered by any school of its grade in the South.

CHARGES PER MONTH.

Tuition per Month.....$2.00 to $3.00

Use of Piano per Month.....1.00

Use of Violin per Month.....1.00

Painting in Oil.....8.00

Drawing.....1.00

Latin, French and Book-keeping, each per Month.....1.00

Incidental Expenses per Session.....50

Board, Tuition, Washing, Fuel and Lights, $12.00 per Month, $120.00 per the Session of Ten Months. For particulars address the Principal,

MRS. S. E. MUNDAY, Clinton, La.

Wall & Mooney's School,

Franklin, Tenn.

S. V. WALL,

W. D. MOONEY, A. M.

The Next Term Will Begin August 30, 1892.

Under date of May 17, 1892, W. M. Baskerville, Ph. D., Professor of English in Vanderbilt University, says: "I can unhesitatingly endorse it in every particular. Manifestly it is the watchword and the young fellows who come to this University from Wall & Mooney's School are mainly at play, mainly work, mainly in Christian life. It gives me genuine pleasure to endorse such a school." On May 23, 1892, Chas. Foster Smith, Professor of Greek in Vanderbilt, says: "It is one of the greatest and best academies in the Southwest. It sent twelve boys to the present Freshman class of Vanderbilt, and a finer, better trained group of many fellows it has not been my privilege to teach. I can heartily and unreservedly commend the instruction and discipline of the school." 429 Our boys enter Vanderbilt on our certificate.

Address,

W. D. MOONEY, Secretary.

WESLEYAN FEMALE INSTITUTE

Opens Its 11th Annual Session Sept. 25th, 1892.

STANTON, VIRGINIA. One of the most thorough schools for young ladies in the South. Twenty-five teachers and officers. Degrees in B. S., B. A., and M. A. conferred. Conservatory Course in Music. Superior Art School with all ornamental branches and womanly accomplishments. One hundred and fifty-two boarding pupils. Entered from twenty States and foreign countries. Thoroughly equipped with all modern appliances. Those who are seeking superior advantages on the home-sites will find a Catalogue of this time-honored school, to

WM. A. BATHUS, D. D., President, Stanton, Virginia.

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE,

MACON, GA.

Annual session begins Sept. 21, 1892.

Largest patronage in the South. Apply for catalogue to W. C. BASS, D. D., Pres.

Nashville College FOR Young Ladies.

Privilege of lectures, Museum, Apparatus, in Vanderbilt University. 3 large buildings. 40 officers. 425 pupils from 30 States. Highest advantages in Music, Art, English, Health, Accessibility. Fully equipped Gymnasium. Address Rev. G. W. PRICE, D. D., Pres., Nashville, Tenn.

KESWICK ALBEMARLE CO. VA. SCHOOL.

Located in the country, near City of Va., beautiful and healthy. Christian and refined social influences. Boys prepared for University, U. S. Military and Naval Academies or elsewhere. Special attention to backward and feeble pupils. No limitation that each may be individually cared for. Testimonials of good moral and social conduct required for entrance. Address J. M. PAGE, M. A., Ph. D., Secy. Principal, or T. W. PAGE, A. M., Jnn. Principal, CORNELL, VA.

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL, PETERSBURG, VA.

The 25th Annual Session of this School for Boys begins 3rd of October, 1st Monday.

Thorough preparation for University of Va., U. S. Military and Naval Academies, leading Engineering Schools and Colleges. For cat. address W. GORDON McCABE, Head Master.

SOUTHERN FEMALE COLLEGE

PETERSBURG, VA.

Historic Home School in perfect climate. Unsurpassed course in Literature, Languages, Science. Conservatory advantages in Music and Art. All modern improvements. 5th Session. Terms low. $25 Send for catalogue to A. K. DAVIS, A. M., President, Petersburg, Va.

Tulane University

OF LOUISIANA.

Tulane University embraces College, High School, H. Sophie Newcomb Memorial College for Young Women, Law and Medical Departments. The College has four parallel courses: Classical, Literary, Scientific and Engineering. Next Annual Session of the Academic Department, including the H. Sophie Newcomb College, begins October 1st. Law Department opens November 14th. Medical Department, October 17th.

For special or general catalogues, apply to the Secretary of the University, Tulane Hall.

WM. PRESTON JOHNSTON, President.

When answering advertisements
please mention the Advertiser

verted under our predecessor. If this is to be true, then we ought to go into "se-glorious Lord and Captain, Jesus Christ.

BECHAM'S PILLS cure Bilious and N Ills.

ever, Your loving niece,
New Orleans. LILLIAN A. RIDGE

PATENTS THOMAS P. SIMPSON, Washington, D. C. No atty's until Patent obtained. Write

PATENTS THOMAS P. SIMPSON, Washington, D. C. No atty's until Patent obtained. Write

PATENTS THOMAS P. SIMPSON, Washington, D. C. No atty's until Patent obtained. W for Inventor's Guide.

MARRIAGES.

GILFORD-RODDY.—In South Vicksburg Methodist Church, July 13, 1892, at 8:30 P. M., by Rev. Ira B. Robertson, Mr. Barclay Gilford to Miss Ella A. Roddy, all of South Vicksburg, Miss.

CHURCH-TIGHLMAN.—At the residence of the bride's sister, South Vicksburg, July 3, 1892, by Rev. Ira B. Robertson, Mr. W. C. Church to Miss Mary L. Tighlman, all of South Vicksburg, Miss.

KING-WILKINS.—At the residence of Mr. King, Wilkings, July 6, by Rev. D. W. Bahh, Mr. R. C. King, of Tennessee, to Miss Kate Wilkings, of Fairfield, Ala.

SEAL-VILLE.—In Lake Charles, La., July 15, 1892, by Rev. Thos. J. Upton, Mr. Green Seal to Miss Evangeline Vile, all of Calcasieu parish, La.

COURSEY-LUNDY.—At the residence of the bride's father, near Lexington, Miss., July 7, 1892, by Rev. A. W. Langley, Mr. J. H. Coursey, of Newton county, Miss., to Miss Lella B. Lundy, of Newton county, Miss.

CAMPBELL-MILLS.—Near Harrison, Jefferson county, Miss., June 29, 1892, by Rev. E. H. Moinger, Mr. John S. Campbell and Miss Kate Mills.

OBITUARIES.

OBER.—At Natchez, Miss., June 16, MARY OBER, wife of Wm. A. Ober, and daughter of the late Dr. S. T. Newman, of St. Louis, Mo.

TYE.—MR. ELLEN JOSEPHINE TYE was, in many respects, a remarkable woman. She developed and maintained a strong, beautiful character under what seemed to be very adverse circumstances. Her life was one of sorrow and of great physical suffering. In this school, and under this course of training, she grew in grace, in faith, in patience and in gentleness and sweetness of Christian character. She came to be a pattern of faith and a great power for good in the community where she lived. The afflicted, the suffering and the sorrowful came to her sick room and to her bed for sympathy and comfort. When weak in body, she was strongest in faith; and when suffering most, she was most helpful to others. She was the most patient, cheerful and uncomplaining sufferer the writer ever knew. Indeed, she seemed to count it all joy that she was counted worthy to suffer for Christ's sake.

Yes, she would say, "my Lord suffered agony in the garden and death on the cross for me, and it is my duty and my pleasure to suffer for him and with him." Her faith had gained the victory over suffering, and was triumphant in the hour and article of death. The room where she suffered so long, and where she was so long dying, was a sort of Beniah-land that was adorning the glory-world. It was a religious privilege and a great spiritual blessing to visit this woman of God. Her faith and hope were diffusive and stimulating to all who came near her. When one came to pray for her and with her, he hardly knew where to begin or what to ask for. In all matters of spiritual grace, she was rich above all that most of us could ask or think. She was ready, willing, waiting, and perfectly resigned to God's will for days, weeks, months and years before the end came. She was willing to live and suffer, or ready to die and go home to rest, as God saw best. "Thy will be done," expressed the abiding state of her mind.

Ms. Tye, whose maiden name was Clark, was born in Madison county, Tenn., Sept. 10, 1831, and died in Pickens, Miss., June 11, 1892. She was twice married: first, to Mr. Swazey, by whom she had three children—two daughters and one son—all dead; and second, to Mr. J. F. Tye, Feb. 7, 1869, by whom she had three children—two sons and a daughter—all living.

Ms. Tye professed religion and joined the Baptist Church in 1863, and she was a devoted, ardent and zealous member of the same till the day of her death. Ministers of all churches and Christian people of all denominations were welcome to her hospitable board, and many in the sunshine of her bright Christian life. She delighted in the communion of saints. Such deep and painful suffering rarely adds to the lot of mortals as fell out to Sister Tye the last eight or ten years of her life. She was in the bosom of God; and we are glad of it.

STRICKLAND.—Resolutions adopted by the Brookhaven District Conference on the death of Rev. E. R. STRICKLAND:

Rev. E. R. STRICKLAND, who was a superintendent of the Mississippi Conference, and a member of this District Conference, died at his home near Summit, Miss., Feb. 25, 1892. Bro. STRICKLAND was born in Delaware county, N. Y., April 6, 1827. He was converted at Maple Ridge, Orleans county, N. Y., in the twenty-second year of his age, and soon after joined the Methodist Church.

He was licensed to preach at the age of twenty-eight, and was admitted into the Mississippi Conference in 1853, and for thirty years successively he continued a most zealous and faithful traveling preacher. He was never apologetic to any work except large circuits, often consisting of twenty-six appointments. Thousands were converted and joined the church under his ministry, and many of them are to-day faithful members of the church. He preached generally about forty times a month, held daily experience meetings, baptised and received into the church hundreds, besides building many churches, visiting the sick, burying the dead, reading the Bible, and found much time for study, prayer and meditation. Therefore, be it

Resolved, That in his death we have lost a true, good and faithful husband, father and minister of the gospel—one who loved his work and attended the Conference nearly to the end.

Resolved, That in his triumphant death we are assured that he has entered upon the everlasting reward for which he so long toiled and waited.

Resolved, That we tender the family our sympathy in their affliction, and pray God that a double portion of his spirit may fall on those who are left behind.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the family and to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Chairman of Committee.

MEYER.—SOL J. MEYER was born Sept. 25, 1859, and died June 21, 1892; reared in Felicity Street Sunday school, and joined that church when quite young.

A truly consistent, upright young man, working to wrong anyone; always willing to sacrifice himself rather than the interests of others. Brought up by religious parents, the influence of his life. His friend, Rev. Mr. Meyer, visited him often, and to him and his family he gave the blessed assurance that, "All is right with me; don't worry about that."

When he found that his last hours were approaching, he called his family, one by one, and gave his last message.

He leaves a most estimable wife, the daughter of the late Wm. G. Chapman, of Felicity Street Church, and two beautiful little boys to meet him in the great hereafter. Generous to a fault; always helped the poor; right hand never knew what the left did.

ASTON-MARY (Powers) ASTON was born in Georgia on Dec. 9, 1832. She was married to S. G. Aston, who still lives, at the age of seventeen, in Atlanta, Miss., four years after they came from their native State.

Her parents were Presbyterians, and she joined that church while she was but a girl, and lived a consistent member till she moved into the Black Hawk community when she connected herself with the Methodist Church.

Sister Aston has been a Christian all her life, and has always loved the church. She especially loved the old solid, familiar songs of the church, and after she became too feeble to attend church could be heard singing, "Jesus, lover of my soul," etc., and shouting the praises of God at home while engaged in her home duties.

She was a true, loyal companion, and stood by her husband in all the trials of life, and shared her part of the burdens and responsibilities of the married life.

She was a good mother, and loved her children with a tender love, and was always careful of religious training both by precept and example. She had this part of the battle of life to fight alone, for her husband has never joined the church. May he follow her example the rest of his life, and get ready to join her soon on the other side of the river of death.

She has prayed many prayers for him, hoped all her life to see him a Christian, and now may he answer her prayers by giving himself to God and the church the rest of his days.

She was a good neighbor, and everybody loved and respected her as a Christian.

She was the mother of eight children, and four of them have crossed the river of death, and four are left behind. May all her children and grandchildren meet her on the other shore.

She died Monday, June 20, at her home in Holmes county, Miss., and we laid her to rest at Jordan's Chapel, near her home, in the presence of a large crowd of the neighborhood folks, and all were sad and of heavy hearts.

She said she was ready to go. W. H. SANDERS.

WHITEHEAD.—On Wednesday, April 13, 1892, the spirit of the death angel again descended in our midst. This time the angel was well ripened and had waited long for the reaper's hand.

Bro. J. W. WHITEHEAD was widely known for his devout and exemplary Christian life. For years he has been conspicuous for his sturdy devotion to the church at Ebenezer, in Winn parish, and now that his name has been transferred to heaven we realize our loss to be very great. For months he has been expecting to cross the river and see his friends on the other side; so when the time came he was ready and waiting. Death was no dark valley to him, but a place of glorious vision. His life may have had its clouds, but others saw only its sunshine.

To say that he had the respect and confidence of the entire community would be a feeble statement of the appreciation in which he was held. He was loved because he left the ideal of a Christian man. He leaves a vacant place in the church and community it will be hard to fill. Nothing could have been sweeter than his death. He went to sleep like an infant, and waked up in heaven. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." W. G. E.

BUTLER.—MR. ANDREW BUTLER, wife of Mr. J. B. Butler, and daughter of Agnilla and Reheily Phelps, was born in East Feliciana parish, La., July 7, 1855; and died April 28, 1892, in Pointe Coupee parish.

She joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1869, at the age of fourteen. She read her Bible regularly; and no day passed by without offering up her devotions to God for his guidance and protection. She was a good and faithful member, and did all she could, within her sphere of action, to promote the cause of Christ. She always attended church, and assisted in singing the good old songs of Zion. During her last illness she said that it would prove fatal, and that she was ready to meet God. Her neighbors said that she was a good woman—a testimony to be treasured up and recorded. She built as the wise man, upon the rock, and her spiritual building stood the test of death, as it will also of the judgment. J. F. SCALLOCK.

MERRITT.—Died, of membranous croup, in East Baton Rouge parish, March 21, 1892. Cause: SISTER MERRITT, wife of Brother and Sister J. B. Merritt, aged three years and four months.

We carried her little body back to Pipkin Chapel, where she had been an attendant with papa and mama at the Sunday-school, and preached her funeral, and then to the "Palms" Graveyard, and left her there in that beautiful city of the dead, and left her there to sleep until he, who in love took her away, shall find the soul for the body. May the kind Father, who "will not break a bruised reed," comfort her parents. H. B. TRIVELINO.

A. C. HATHCROFT.—deceased consumption caused by Dr. Wm. C. Comp and Syrup of Wild Cherry and Tar. My mother, years ago, contracting a terrible cough, became unable to attend to her household duties. Prominent physicians pronounced it incurable consumption. We knew of Dr. HATHCROFT'S Wild Cherry and Tar, and commenced giving it to her. Before two bottles had been taken an improvement was noticed, and by the time one dozen bottles had been consumed she was well, and has never been troubled since. We have recommended it to many and always have it in the house. For coughs, colds, croup, whooping-cough, asthma, bronchitis, it is without a rival. One dollar bottles hold two and a half times as much as 50c. bottles.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO THOSE SENDING MONEY.—Remittances should be made only by money orders, express company orders, registered letters, drafts or checks on New Orleans banks or merchants. Drafts on country banks occasion a loss of from 16 to 25 cents per check. Drafts on country merchants we have no facility for collecting. Checks and drafts, also money orders, should be made payable to D. L. MITCHELL, Publisher.

$10,000

will be paid for a recipe enabling us to make WOLFF'S ACME BLACKING at such a price that the retailer can profitably sell it at 10c a bottle. At present the retail price is 20c.

This offer is open until January 31, 1893. For particulars address the undersigned.

ACME BLACKING is made of pure alcohol, other liquid dressings are made of water. Water costs nothing. Alcohol is dear. Who can show us how to make it without alcohol so that we can make ACME BLACKING as cheap as water dressing, or put it in fancy packages like many of the water dressings, and then charge for the outside appearance instead of charging for the contents of the bottle?

WOLFF & RANDOLPH, Philadelphia.

PIK-RON

is the name of a paint of which a 25c. bottle is enough to make six scratched and dulled cherry chairs look like newly finished mahoganies. It will do many other remarkable things which no other paint can do. All retailers sell it.

Jack and Jill

wouldn't have had to carry so much water if they had used

Gold Dust Washing Powder,

and their work would have been sooner done, for nothing else that

Cleans So Well,
So Quickly, or
Costs So Little
has been discovered.

N. K. FAIRBANK & CO., Sole Manufacturers,
CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS, NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
BALTIMORE, NEW ORLEANS, SAN FRANCISCO,
PORTLAND, ME., PORTLAND, ORE., PITTSBURGH AND MILWAUKEE.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR
The Celebrated
CHOCOLAT MENIER
Annual Sales Exceed 33 MILLION Lbs.
Write for Samples. Sent Free. Menier, Union Sq., N. Y.

HARDWOOD AND MARBLEIZED SLATE
MANTELS.

TILE HEARTHES. GRATES AND FIRE-PLACE TRIMMINGS.
GEO. M. LEAHY,
Advocate Building, - No. 112 Camp St., New Orleans.

WE
The July
PROFESSOR W. C. SHEPARD & SON,
84 CAMP ST., near POYDRAS,
The Cheapest Crockery, Glass and House-furnishing House in the City.
Be sure and look them up when needing goods
in their line. 500 Dinner, Tea and Chamber Sets
at half price.

For First-Class Photographs

GO TO SIMON'S,
No. 183 Canal St., - - - New Orleans, La.

H. Dudley Coleman Machinery Co., Lim'd,
New Orleans, La.

STEAM ENGINES, BOILERS, MILLS AND MACHINERY,
Pumps, Pipe, Presses, Pulleys, Shafting,

Saw, Sugar and Corn Mills,
Cotton Gins, Feeders and Condensers.

Examine Our Stock. Our Prices Are Very Low.

FOUNDRY, FACTORY & OFFICE, SUPPLIES & SAMPLE STORE
Cor. Magnolia and Erato Sts. 9 Perdido St., New Orleans, La.

If readers of this advertisement who wish to purchase goods in our line would mention this paper when writing for information or when ordering goods from us, we could then determine whether the money we pay for advertising in this paper is well invested or not.
H. DUDLEY COLEMAN MACHINERY CO., LIMITED, New Orleans, La.

Latest Styles -- Lowest Prices!

This handsome Parlor Suit is upholstered on solid walnut frames with Imported Marbled Silk Plush and the seats are all Spring Edge. Colors are Red, Red and Old Gold, Blue and Old Gold or each piece of a different color. For $45 I will sell seven pieces of this suit:—one Sofa, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair and three Reception Chairs. $65 buys the complete suit of ten pieces consisting of two Sofas, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair, and five Reception Chairs. Same suit covered with Hair Cloth, seven pieces $35 or ten pieces $55. Every other article in my store at proportionately low prices. Bedroom suits, twelve pieces, from $40 up to $1000. Dining room suits, eight pieces, from $17 upwards. Complete Kitchen outfits from $20 upwards. Quality at top—prices at bottom. I have an immense variety of strictly reliable goods and purchasers can depend upon getting the very latest styles. Everything guaranteed to be exactly as represented or money will be promptly refunded.

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE
in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30 | J. G. GRANT, | CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE
in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30

Send for Catalogues of
PIANOS AND ORGANS

TO Thrupp & Weller
156 Canal St.,
New Orleans, La.,

We Charge You Nothing for Them.
Correspondence Solicited.
LOW PRICES. EASY TERMS.
Mention this paper.

Liverpool and London and Globe
Insurance Company.

Losses Paid by Chicago Fire, 1871, $3,239,091.
Losses Paid by Boston Fire, 1872, $1,429,728.

All Losses Paid in Cash, without Discount, as Soon as Adjusted.
Losses and all matters of business settled by officers and directors in New Orleans without reference to any other office the same as with local companies.

DIRECTORS IN NEW ORLEANS.
GUSTAF R. WESTFELDT, L. C. FALLON, LUCAS E. MOORE, C. M. SORIA
Chairman.

CLARENCE F. LOW, Asst. Resident Sec'y. H. V. OGDEN, Resident Secretary.

The Southern Insurance Company
OF NEW ORLEANS.

54 - - - CAMP STREET - - - 54

Paid up Capital, $300,000. Assets, $545,096.10.

FIRE, RIVER AND MARINE INSURANCE.

This company by its conservative, yet liberal, business methods, and the immediate availability of its assets, affords complete security to its assured. Losses promptly adjusted and paid.

ERNEST MILTENBERGER, H. GALLY, SCOTT MOOREHEAD,
President. Vice-President. Secretary.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.
Frank Roder, J. H. Menze, Joseph Schwartz, F. G. Ernst, T. J. Woodward.

Home Insurance Co., of New Orleans.
No. 78 CAMP STREET.

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1886,	$400,479.08
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1887,	$413,860.76
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1888,	$459,369.50
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1889,	$510,584.54
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1890,	$551,897.89
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1891,	$600,414.81

Steadily Increasing in Strength and Popularity.

Solicits Fire and River Business.

Liberal Settlements and Prompt Payments.

Thos. Sefton, Pres't. Capt. J. B. Woods, Vice-Pres't. Jno. G. Byrd, Sec'y

J. E. WOODS, JNO. J. BARR, J. B. LEVERT, W. B. BLOOMFIELD, JOS. BAYLE, ANDREW STEWART, E. BORDLAND, W. T. HARDIE,
JNO. BARKLEY, CHAS. CHAFFE, T. R. BICE, THOS. SEFTON.

W. B. LYMAN, JOSEPH BOWLING, CHAS. E. RICE,
President. Vice-President. Secretary.

Crescent Insurance Com'y.

Incorporated as a Mutual Company in 1849.
Reorganized as a Stock Company in 1860.

Cash Capital, - - - - - $300,000.

Has paid over TEN AND ONE-HALF MILLIONS for losses since 1849. ANNUAL AND TERM

POLICIES issued on Desirable Fire Business.

See our Agents throughout Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas.

The Great Church LIGHT.

FRANK'S Patent Reflectors give the Most Powerful, the Softest, the Cheapest and Best Light known for Churches, Stores, Show Windows, Parlors, Banks, Offices, Picture Galleries, Theaters, Depots, etc. New and elegant designs. Send size of room, Cell circulars and estimate. A liberal discount to churches and the trade.

L. F. FRANK, 504 Pearl Street, N. Y.

No Substitutes

For Royal Baking Powder. The "Royal" is shown by all tests, official, scientific, and practical, stronger, purer, and better in every way than all other Baking Powders. Its superiority is privately acknowledged by other manufacturers, and well known by all dealers.

If some grocers try to sell another baking powder in place of the "Royal," it is because of the greater profit. This of itself is good evidence of the superiority of the "Royal." To give greater profit the other must be a lower cost powder, and to cost less it must be made with cheaper and inferior materials, and thus, though selling for the same, give less value to the consumer.

LOOK with suspicion upon every attempt to palm off upon you any baking powder in place of the "Royal." There is no substitute for the "Royal."

QUARTERLY CONFERENCES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

NEW ORLEANS DIST.—THIRD ROUND.
Moravia, at New Orleans, July 31	31
Louisiana Avenue, at New Orleans, Aug. 1	31
Plaquemine and Donaldson, at Plaquemine, Aug. 2	31
Felicity, at Feliciana, Aug. 3	31
Carrollville, at Carrollville, Aug. 4	31
Baton Rouge, at Baton Rouge, Aug. 5	31
Rayne, at Rayne, Aug. 6	31
Parlor Chapel, at Parlor Chapel, Aug. 7	31
Dryades, at Dryades, Aug. 8	31
Crope, at Crope, Aug. 9	31
Groce Tete, at Groce Tete, Aug. 10	31
Lower Coast, at Lower Coast, Aug. 11	31

At these Conferences the Church Registers and records of Church Conferences will be called for.

C. W. CARTER, P. E.

ARCADIA DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Arcadia, at Gibbesland, July 30	30
Pennerie, at Pennerie, Aug. 1	30
Summerfield, at Harmony, Aug. 2	30
Homer, at Arizona, Aug. 3	30
Haynesville, at White Hall, Aug. 4	30
Valley, at Flat Lick, Aug. 5	30
Talip, at Talip, Aug. 6	30
Ruston, at Douglas, Aug. 7	30
Vienna, at Vienna, Aug. 8	30
Gauville, at Gauville, Aug. 9	30
Vernon, at Vernon, Aug. 10	30
Spain, at Prospect, Aug. 11	30
Kingbird, at Kingbird, Aug. 12	30

District Conference at Gibbesland, July 25-30.

Sunday-school Conference at Gibbesland, July 27.

J. L. P. SHEPARD, P. E.

ALEXANDRIA DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Bayou Chicot, at Fairview, July 30, 31	30, 31
Evergreen, at Cheeverville, Aug. 6, 7	6, 7
Colfax and Boyce, at Rapides Camp G., Aug. 13, 14	13, 14
Columbia, at Columbia, Aug. 20, 21	20, 21
Cator, at Gila, Aug. 27, 28	27, 28
Ada, at Ada, Aug. 29, 30	29, 30
Pinetown, at Oak Grove, Sept. 3, 4	3, 4
Centerville, at Centerville, Sept. 10, 11	10, 11
Black River, at Lario, Sept. 17, 18	17, 18
Alexandria, at Alexandria, (Wed.), Sept. 21	21
Montgomery, at Montgomery, Sept. 28, 29	28, 29

The Alexandria District Conference will convene at Columbia, Aug. 18-21, 1892.

J. I. V. HOFFAUER, P. E.

SHERBROOK DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

West Natchitoches, at Shady Grove, July 30, 31	30, 31
West Natchitoches, at Blue Springs, Aug. 6, 7	6, 7
Red River, at Knox Point, Aug. 13, 14	13, 14
Oddo, at Cypress Camp Ground, Aug. 20, 21	20, 21
Grand Cane, at Cypress Camp G., Aug. 27, 28	27, 28
Mooringsport, at Cypress Camp G., Aug. 29, 30	29, 30
Anacostia and Verdon, Aug. 30, 31	30, 31
Coushatta, at Coushatta, (Fri.), Sept. 2, 3	2, 3
Wesley, at Wesley, Sept. 9, 10	9, 10

The above schedule is arranged to meet, as far as possible, the plans of our brethren in holding camp meetings and other meetings. If changes are desirable, they will be made if practicable.

ROBERT J. HARR, P. E.

629 Hope street, Shreveport, La.

OPELOUSAS DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Patterson and Morgan, at P. (Fri.), July 29	29
Franklin and Jeanette, at J., Aug. 5, 6	5, 6
Indian Bayou, at Indian Bayou, (Thurs.), Aug. 6, 7	6, 7
Grand Chenier, at Leesburg, Aug. 13, 14	13, 14
Sabine miss., at Keener's, (Tu, Wed.), Aug. 20, 21	20, 21
Lake Charles mission, at Calcasieu, Aug. 27, 28	27, 28
Sulphur Mine, at Sulphur City, Aug. 29, 30	29, 30
Lake Charles, at Lake C., (Thurs.), Sept. 3, 4	3, 4
Lake Arthur, at Lake Arthur, Sept. 10, 11	10, 11

District Conference at Rayville, July 28-31.

Returning stewards will please have their quarterly Conference Records present.

H. O. WHITE, P. E.

HOW TO KEEP COOL.

If you are looking for pleasant locations to spend the hot days at moderate cost, write to D. G. Edwards, G. P. A., Queen and Crescent Route, Cincinnati, O., for copy of Queen and Crescent Book entitled, "Summer Days," which will be mailed promptly free of charge.

As We Expect

to move the immense and handsome stock of

PICTURES,

Wall Paper, Matting, Rugs,

ETC.

Purchased from W. E. FENSLER, and now occupying 29 Camp and 116 Common Sts., into our present quarters, 116 Camp St., by the first of September, it will be necessary for us between now and then to run it down to the lowest possible limit; and those wishing to get bargain will do well to profit by the hint we are giving them.

Heath, Schwartz & Co., Ltd.,
29 Camp, 116 Common and 116 Camp.

AGENTS WANTED ON SALARY or commission, to handle the new Patent Chemical Ink Erasing Pencil. The quickest and easiest selling novelty ever produced. Erases ink thoroughly in two seconds. No abrasion of paper. Works like magic. 200 to 500 per cent. profit. One Agent's sales amounted to $450 in six days. Another $25 in two hours. Previous experience not necessary. For terms and full particulars, address, The Monroe Eraser Mfg. Co., La Crosse, Wis.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

DOMESTIC.

The National Democratic Committee met in New York City, on July 21, and organized for the campaign. W. F. Harrity, of Pennsylvania, was elected chairman, and S. P. Sheerin, of Indiana, secretary.

The distributing warehouse of the Waters Pierce Oil Company in St. Louis, one of the allied companies of the Standard Oil Company, was burned on July 22. The loss on stock and building is $200,000.

President Harrison has issued a proclamation appointing Friday, Oct. 21, 1892, the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus, as a general holiday for the people of the United States.

The strikers of Homestead, Pa., have issued an address to the public, in which, after reciting their wrongs and demanding the recognition of organized labor, they deprecate the violence committed and pledge themselves to good order in the future.

The Louisiana Legislature, during its recent session, passed a law making Saturday a legal half-holiday. This law goes into effect on Aug. 3, and is intended to extend not only through the Summer months, but the whole year. All banks and State institutions will close at noon.

Efforts are being made by outside capitalists to secure options on the different street car lines of this city, with a view to purchase and consolidate them under a single system operated by electricity. It is said that similar deals by the same combination have been made at Atlanta and Mobile.

There are but two obstacles in the way of an early adjournment of Congress, and they are the World's Fair amendment of the Sundry Civil Appropriation bill and the pending Anti-Option bill in the Senate. When they are disposed of, or, at least, the first of them, the session will undoubtedly terminate.

There were twelve crevasses in the lines of the Mississippi river levees during the season, of which seven were successfully closed, while five resisted all efforts at closure and still remain open. The five are: Belmont, St. James parish; Sarpy, St. John parish; Anohor, St. Charles parish; Story and Villere, St. Bernard parish.

An anarchist, presumably a German or Hungarian, made an attempt to kill Mr. Frick, the manager of Carnegie's Iron Works at Homestead, last week. The assailant, a printer who had worked in New York, came on to Pittsburgh, and, entering Mr. Frick's private office, shot him twice, and then cut him, inflicting serious wounds. The striking iron workers decried all complicity in the crime and have expressed much sympathy for the wounded man.

The Pinkerton Brothers (the head of the police force from which a detachment was furnished to take possession of Carnegie's Steel and Iron Works at Homestead, Pa.) were given a hearing, last week, by the investigation Committee appointed by Congress. In a statement, explaining and defending their system, they say: "If owners might not employ watchmen, then capital is at the mercy of secret organizations, whose tyranny and despotism exceed anything ever known in the history of the world."

FOREIGN.

The followers of the late Mr. Parnell are gradually becoming the anti-clerical party, similar to the radicals or anti-clericals of France, Italy and other Roman Catholic countries, where clericalism has been dominant.

Mr. Gladstone is communicating with the leaders of the Anti-Parnellite party in an endeavor to obtain an absolute assurance that the party will support him with its whole vote in an attack on the government by a "no confidence" amendment.

Archbishop Vaughn, of London, has issued a letter to the Catholic clergy in his jurisdiction, asking them, in view of the fact that probably 90 per cent. of the St. John's (Newfoundland) sufferers are Catholics, to open collections in their churches for the purpose of helping to relieve the distressed.

The Bulgarian government, with the approval of the Berlin and Vienna Foreign Office, is preparing a project against Russian official omnivore in plots against Prince Ferdinand and Prime Minister Stambouloff. The outcome of the affair is likely to be an early recognition of the Bulgarian ruler by the Triple Alliance.

The recent accounts of the awful destruction caused on Great Sangir Island, belonging to Holland, by volcanic eruption on June 17, has been confirmed. The late advice are to the effect that the whole northwestern portion of the island was destroyed, and that 2,000 of the inhabitants were killed. There were no Europeans among the victims.

The new term of office of President Diaz, in Mexico, which begins in December, will in all probability be characterized by important fiscal reforms, including economies in administration, cutting off all expenses which are not absolutely necessary, and lowering customs duties, especially on raw material, and generally with a view to encouraging the importation of goods in universal demand.

An order has been issued by the Russian Minister of War that private soldiers of the army shall hereafter carry handkerchiefs, and as these articles are unknown luxuries among the lower classes of the empire, they will be furnished at the government's expense. Each soldier will receive four handkerchiefs—that is, the whole army will require, approximately, 3,600,000 handkerchiefs, which have been specially designed for the service.

Mr. W. D. Wentz of Geneva, N. Y., was cured of the severest form of dyspepsia by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Full particulars sent if you write C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.

The highest praise has been won by Hood's Pills for their easy, yet efficient action.

Colic and Cholera Morbus.

Colic, cholera morbus, cramp and many other affections of the stomach and bowels prevalent at this time of year are due to two causes. First, the depressing effect of the hot weather upon the nervous system, and, second, the use of green fruit, cucumbers, melons, etc. No one is safe from painful and even dangerous attacks of these affections unless unusual precautions are taken at this time of year. A tablespoonful of Pe-ru-na taken before each meal is a complete protection against these maladies. Pe-ru-na is not only a preventive of colic, cholera morbus, cramps, stomach ache, summer diarrhoea and cholera, but is also a prompt cure for these diseases. Where the attack is very severe and painful a wine-glassful of Pe-ru-na should be taken at once, followed by two tablespoonful doses until complete relief is obtained. This never fails in a single case. In cases of less severity a tablespoonful every hour is sufficient. No one should neglect the precaution of taking a dose of Pe-ru-na before each meal, until the hot season is over.

Complete treatise on diseases of hot weather sent free to any address by the Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, O.

ATLANTA, GA., August 29, 1891.

To whom it may concern:

In our experience as cotton merchants we have frequently had occasion to handle cotton ginned upon the GULLETT GIN, made by Gullett Gin Co., Amite City, La.

We consider this Gin the equal of any in the market in its ability to turn out smooth, clean, well-ginned cotton. We are always glad to handle cotton ginned upon the GULLETT GIN.

Very truly,

S. M. INMAN & CO.

Union Female College,

H. M. Robertson, A. M., President,

Oxford, Miss.

(Educational center of the State.)

One of the most pleasant and healthful locations in the entire South. Superior advantages in Literary, Music, Art, and Elocution Departments. Thoroughly competent and progressive teachers. Excellent discipline and moral influence. A pleasant college home. Send for catalogue.

East Mississippi Female College,

MEBIDIAN, MISS.

A Thorough School for Young Ladies.

The Twenty-second Session Begins Sept. 7, 1892.

Full Collegiate Course in Languages and Literature. Conservatory Music Department, with exceptionally fine advantages. Art and Elocution Department unsurpassed. Boarding Department especially superior. For catalogue address

C. W. ANDERSON, President.

MILLWOOD

Female Institute.

This Institution is located near

Jackson, East Feliciana Par., La.,

a place remarkable for beautiful surroundings and salubrity of climate; four miles from the Mississippi Valley Railroad. Thorough teachers in each Department. Terms less than any other school of like advantages. Session opens the first Monday in September. Send for Catalogue.

Mrs. M. McCALLIST, Principal.

Southern University,

GREENSBORO, ALA.

The next session will open Sept. 21. Course of study: Classical, Scientific and Practical. Its graduates are in demand. Expense very moderate. For catalogue address

REV. F. M. PETERSON, Sec.

HOLLINS INSTITUTE

For Young Ladies. Opens Sept. 1, 1892. 27 Officers and Teachers. Preparatory, Collegiate, Philosophical and Literary Departments. Courses in Science, Art and Elocution. Beautifully situated in Valley of Virginia, on N. & W. R. R., near Roanoke. Climate unexcelled. Elegant Equipment. Write for Illustrated Catalogue to

CHAS. L. COCKE, Supt., Hollins, Va.

VIRGINIA MILITARY INSTITUTE,

LEXINGTON, VA.

54th Year. State Military, Scientific and Technical School. Thorough Courses in general and applied Chemistry, and in Engineering. Officers degree of graduate in Academic Course, also degree of Bachelor of Science and Civil Engineer in Technical Courses. All expenses, including clothing and incidentals, provided at rate of $36.00 per month, as an average for the four years, exclusive of outfit.

New Catalogue sent Sept. 1.

Gen. SCOTT SHIPP, Superintendent.

WASHINGTON & LEE

UNIVERSITY, Lexington, Va. Academic: Law; Engineering. Opens Sept. 8. For Catalogue address G. W. O. LEE, President.

WASHBURN

SCHOOL OF LAW, Lexington, Va. O. A. Graves, Prof. Gen. and Stat. Law. J. Randolph Tucker, Prof. Equity, Constitutional Law, etc. Opens Sept. 8. For Catalogue address G. W. O. LEE, President.

Iuka Normal Institute,

IUKA, MISS.

Expenses for term of 10 weeks, $38.75; 40 weeks, $155.00; 48 weeks, $180. I am not trying to run the cheapest school in the South. I am trying to run the best one. Success. Schools supplied with teachers. Write to

H. A. DEAN, Prin.

KNABE

PIANOS.

UNQUALLED IN Tone, Touch, Workmanship and Durability. Baltimore, 22 and 24 East Baltimore St. New York, 48 Fifth Ave. Washington, 317 Market Space.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

OFFICE OF NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Lectors or postal cards have been received during the past week from the following persons, and their instructions complied with:

Revs. J. M. Cowan, B. F. Lewis, C. McDonald, J. M. Brown, H. S. Gunn, H. J. Lutz, T. L. Melfou, T. S. West (2), W. H. Huntley, G. W. Bachman, C. G. Andrews, J. A. Poe, D. E. Kelly, W. Tucker, W. L. Linfield, J. F. Patterson, C. W. Anderson, W. H. Hines, R. D. Norworthy, R. S. Collier, Ira B. Robertson, T. C. Wier, T. W. Adams, N. M. Clark, R. Tucker, H. G. Winchell, R. C. Callaway, H. P. Gibbs, H. M. Ellis, A. B. McVoy, Sr.; G. A. Mandeville, E. W. Vance, R. H. Barr, James Weems, W. T. Woodward, Walter Dunstan, J. R. Roy. Messrs. H. N. Roberts, N. B. Sligh, B. F. Goss, J. J. Johnson, B. Harris, Thos. P. Clinton, Rufus Shoemaker, L. B. Baynard, H. B. Johnston, A. P. Gibbs, Prof. J. W. Heeson, Prof. L. T. Fitzhugh, O. M. Sutton, N. J. Thornton, W. H. Day, J. H. Hinson, M. S. Wright, J. H. Wheat, W. B. Lazarus, J. Stoelzel, J. W. Wayfield, D. T. Yates, W. F. Homphill, Dr. U. R. Norman. Messrs. Ellis Atkins, C. J. Foster, Mary N. Lampton, Thos. P. Fullilove, Anna Lamson, E. Griffin, Dr. W. O. Harris, John Clark, W. A. Ragun, E. A. Carter, M. J. Wilkins, J. A. Turley, M. A. Chadwick, L. A. H. Morton, M. L. Watts, Clara M. Hearne, S. J. Holmes, Kate Dillard. July 26.

For Over Fifty Years

Mrs. Winslow's SOOTHING SYRUP has been used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

LADIES

Needing a tonic, or children who want building up, should take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. It is pleasant; cures Malaria, Indigestion, Biliousness, Liver Complaints and Neuralgia.

Dr. Wm. H. Holcombe

AND

Dr. Gayle Aiken,

HOMEOPATHISTS.

No. 286 St. Charles Ave., NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Cases treated by correspondence.

Dr. W. G. Austin,

Having finished a successful term of office at the Quarantine Station, has returned to the city, and offers his professional services to his friends and the public generally.

Residence: 229 Eighth Street.

Do You Want Teachers?

WE DO; and we can put you in correspondence with such as you want, free of charge.

SOUTHERN TEACHERS' BUREAU,

Winchester, Tenn.

COOPER NORMAL COLLEGE,

(A School for Both Sexes)

DALEVILLE, Lauderdale County, MISS.

Established in 1855, it has the prestige of twenty-seven years' uninterrupted success. Located in a country village famed for its moral and Christian influences, Church and Sabbath-school advantages. New buildings, healthy location, pure free-water, easy of access. Four departments sustained: Literary, Musical, Commercial and Teachers' Training. Special inducements to those preparing for high-grade College or University Course. Thorough in Literary Department free to young men preparing for the ministry, or to the sons and daughters of ministers in the regular pastorate. Next session begins Sept. 7th, 1892. For catalogue or other information, address one of the officers named above.

SOUTHERN ACADEMIC INSTITUTE.

Mrs. J. E. SEAMAN, Principal.

French and English School for Young Ladies. Graded and Chartered. Boarding Department a specialty. New Buildings, Large Grounds. Kindergarten with Normal Training. Boys received in Kindergarten, and retained, if desired, until prepared for Tulane. Send for Circular, 216 Coliseum, New Orleans.

WILKINSON'S

Matchless Mineral Water,

GREENVILLE, ALA.

The Most Wonderful Tonic in America.

I am stirring up a large agency in Mississippi for this "Matchless" Mineral Water, which cures Dyspepsia in its worst form, Chronic Diarrhoea, Ulcers, Sick-headache, Piles, Fresh and Old Sores, Bilious Cholera, Tetters, Disorders of Bowels and Stomach, Throat, Womb, Catarrh, Gonorrhoea, Debility. It is one of the best tonics known. A teaspoonful in a glass full of common water is a dose. It is a fine remedy to keep the system toned up and healthy, and is thus a prophylactic or prevention of disease in malarious countries, to keep away disease and keep up health. Can be shipped anywhere, and keep well anywhere. Address me at LAKE, MISS.

WM. B. HINES.

MILES, Iowa, Feb. 10th, 1891.

For thirty years I used tobacco, chewing and smoking. On the 12th of October, 1888, I abandoned it, and am at this time as free from the desire for it as I had never used it. This was done by the use of "Matchless Mineral Water." It will cure you of all desire for stimulants and narcotics, if you give it a fair trial.

JUSTIN MILES.

Price: $5 per gallon, or $1 per pint bottle.

L. GRUNEWALD CO., Ltd.,

LOW PRICES! TIME PAYMENTS!

STEINWAY,

KNABE,

CHICKERING,

BEHR,

MEHLIN,

OLD PIANOS TAKEN IN EXCHANGE.

PIANOS AND ORGANS!

2127 Canal St., 14 to 20 Baronne St., NEW ORLEANS.

Write for terms and further particulars.

IANLY PURITY

cleanses the blood, skin, and scalp of eruptions, impurities, and diseases, whether scrofulous, hereditary, or acquired, no agency in the world is so speedy, economical, and reliable as CUTICURA.

Christianian Advocate

VOL. 39.—NO. 31.

NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, AUGUST 4, 1892.

WHOLE NO. 1876.

Rev. C. W. CARTER, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. LEWIS, Ass't Editor.

PUBLISHED FOR THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE AND NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND CLASS MATTER.

Out of Ireland into Scotland.

The twelve days spent in Ireland will ever be remembered with grateful pleasure. Every hour was made most agreeable by the thoughtful courtesies of the Methodist brethren, and the coveted opportunities afforded for seeing the country and studying its living issues. Many incidents were amusing—all instructive. I had a fulsome note from a photographer, requesting a visit to his studio, in which he addressed me as "His Grace." More than once, in a crowded street car, when spoken to by title by some of the preachers, one of the "faithful" sprang up and insisted that "My Lord" should have a seat. So much for British influence and excessive reverence for priestly authority. What a shock to his churchy nerves are our wiser, democratic customs in America! I do not think there is less respect for the ministry in our country than here; but it is more intelligent and personal, and less official.

The Irish Conference closed a very pleasant session on Tuesday afternoon, and, as is our Methodist custom in the States, the preachers were soon hastening to the depots, homeward bound. The presidency of Dr. Stephenson gave great satisfaction, both in the chair and in the pulpit. He has been in labors abundant, and everywhere magnified the dignity and influence of his office. The Carlisle Memorial Church, to which the Conference was held, is said to be the finest Methodist building on this side the sea. It is a cathedral-shaped structure, with two rows of immense columns in the auditorium, and a high, round pulpit at one side of the chancel. The cost of the building was about $130,000, and all the gift of one man. He also left by will $50,000 for the Sunday-school rooms, which are admirably arranged.

Leaving Belfast at 9:25 on Wednesday, accompanied by my good friend, Mr. Maguire, of Cork, we had a pleasant run of an hour to the beautiful town of Lorne. Just across the Loch the green hills and villages of County Down were in full view—the land of the sheep and good butter. At Lorne we took back for a day's ride around the Antrim coast—and a most enjoyable day it was. With a crisp, cool sea breeze steadily blowing; the skies, fortunately, cloudless; the road firm and smooth, the passengers agreeable, and the drivers encyclopedic in information, we had a delightful outing. Reaching the Causeway Hotel at nine o'clock, while it was yet day, we had ridden in open carriages fifty-six miles. That exercise, with the incidents of the day, the charming scenery, and the music of the Atlantic waves a few hundred yards away, made me sleep as sweetly as an infant. During much of the day along the Antrim road, the coast of Scotland was plainly visible. Only two or three miles of water separate these rocky coasts, and yet how different their peoples, and how strangely divergent their histories! One had the broadening, uplifting religion of John Knox, and the other a depressing, repressing superstition, that has never failed in any land, however fertile and fair, to arrest its capacity for development.

The Antrim road along the shore is known as one of the "Famine Roads," made in 1847, in order to give the poor employment during that historic season of poverty and the potato plague. Very wise was that expenditure—very helpful that form of charity! And this suggests the fact, learned from diligent inquiry of the best-informed, that in no country has there been more liberal legislation in behalf of the poor than in Ireland.

Along the Antrim coast there is much grand scenery, and many pretty little villages nestling quietly in the glens. At Glonarm is the castle of Lord Antrim, and at Garron Tower, on a great eminence overlooking the sea from Fair Head to Belfast Loch, is the castle of the Marquis of Londonderry. The swinging bridge at Carrick-a-Rede is an object of interest, constructed of ropes by a fisherman for use in the salmon season, from the mainland to a small island. I saw it from the heights above, and had no disposition, as did some, to walk across it.

The Giant's Causeway is rather disappointing. It is, indeed, a remarkable formation—40,000, or more, stone columns, of various lengths and of different shapes, but each cut with seeming mathematical accuracy, and articulated like human vertebra. But the general effect did not equal expectation—did not fulfill the promise of the pictures. The old guide was rather disgusted that I had no adjectives to exclaim on the Giant's rocky and stormy home.

By an electric tramway I went down to Portrush, eight miles distant, passing the ruins of old Dunluce Castle en route. Here I found a beautiful stone church, built as a memorial to Dr. Adam Clarke, and by money contributed in Ireland, England, Scotland and America. What nation should not have share in a memorial to the greatest of our Methodist scholars and the peer of any man in any age! Near the church, on an eminence, is a tall, plain monument to Dr. Clarke, on which is a very appropriate inscription. Having two hours to wait for a train, I took a jaunting-car to Port Stewart, three miles south on the sea, where there is another Adam Clarke Memorial Church, and the prettiest building in the town. In that place the great commentator was born, and there, for some years, his father had depressing fears of his dull boy. The house in which he resided later in life was shown me, but the birthplace I could not find, though Dr. Crook, the historian of Irish Methodism, told me the building is still standing.

Returning to Belfast late in the afternoon, I boarded a steamer for a night run across the sea to Glasgow. Arriving early, I had a fine view of the Clyde, with its vast ship yards and sounding hammers and steaming vessels, from the puffing little tug to the majestic "American Liner." The first object that arrested my attention was a quaint old castle, built on a very high rock, and from which angry-looking cannons were pointing up and down the busy waterway. That, one of the officers told me, is Dumbarton Castle, of historic fame, with which the names of Bruce and others are heroically connected. It seems to have been thrown up by the strong hand of nature to command the harbor of a great city and the coast of a great nation. A little above the castle was a monument, which, I learned, was erected to the memory of Henry Bell, who built the first steamer on this side the Atlantic, and which was employed in this river trade. It is a notable fact also that Glasgow was the native place of James Watt, the inventor of the steam engine. Very appropriately a monument to him occupies a prominent place in George Square. Quite a familiar sign caught my eye as we steamed up the river and neared the dock. On the roof of a very long building, forming one of a large group, were the well known letters: "Singer Sewing Machine Company." I confess it gave me rather a home feeling. The factory here is to supply in their European trade, I suppose, in the numerous ship-yards, on both sides the river, vessels, large and small, were in various stages of construction. Some were as yet mere steel skeletons, while others were fully equipped and decked, ready to be launched, and seemed eager for a battle with the billows and a race with the fleetest greyhound of the seas. I saw as many as five ships on the stocks in one yard. The Clyde leads the world in ship-building.

After business hours, which do not begin so early as in the United States, Glasgow put on somewhat the stirring movement of a Western city. These staid people have rather a contempt for the nervous, fussy business methods of Americans. They think we move and live too fast, and evidently have no ambition to be imitators. And that recalls a fact, of constant observation in Ireland—the large number of very old people to be seen. The average length of days is in their favor as compared with Americans.

Of course, I visited the cathedral—a venerable structure, dating its existence back several centuries. Down in the crypt I crept, and stood at the tomb of Edward Irving. There are monuments many to soldiers, noblemen and clergymen, and old faded battle-flags preserved with patriotic pride. That, by the way, is quite characteristic of this old country—to have tablets in the churches to dead heroes, whether members or not, and battle-flags taken from historic fights. On the hill beyond the cathedral is the cemetery, with a conspicuous, massive monument to John Knox, and many handsome tombs.

George Square—a very beautiful, though small space—is adorned with statues of David Livingstone, Robert Burns, Thomas Campbell, James Watt, Lord Clyde, Sir Robert Peel, Sir John Moore, William Pitt, and equestrian figures of Queen Victoria and the Prince Consort. But in the center, rising grandly above them all, is a lofty column, surmounted by a statue of Sir Walter Scott. Looking at the whole group, I said: That is Scotland's estimate of the author of Waverley and the Lady of the Lake. Many honored sons had she, but the greatest was Sir Walter.

I leave this morning for a day through the lakes and Trossacks and on to Edinburgh. Mr. Gladstone speaks here this afternoon, and I am exceedingly desirous of hearing the venerable statesman of world-wide fame; but, as admission is by ticket and exclusively to electors, I will not be expected. Just now the whole country is thoroughly agitated over the elections. The next few days will determine the fate of Mr. Gladstone's home rule issue.

The newspapers of this country preserve a provoking indifference to American news. A few lines, even in the London Times, and hid away down in an obscure column, is the measure of expectation. I met an American gentleman yesterday, who asked if I had learned whom the Democrats had nominated for President; that he had not. I told him the Belfast papers reported that Mr. Cleveland secured the nomination; but who was the Vice-Presidential candidate with him had not been published in any columns at my command. We hear daily of the American markets, however. Even those I read out of pure patriotism.

Fraternally,
CHAS. B. GALLOWAY.
Glasgow, Scotland, July 2, 1892.

Organic Union.

Zion's Herald publishes an account of a "Round Table Conference" among some Methodist preachers in Boston on the subject of organic union between the two great branches of Methodism. Speaking of the meeting, the Herald says:

On Tuesday evening, July 12, a small group of representative Methodist preachers gathered around a table at Grace Church. It was intended at first to be an informal reception, given by Rev. W. I. Haven and Rev. Louis Albert Banks, D. D., to Rev. Dr. Lee of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, who was to speak on organic union, to be followed by a discussion by the gentlemen present. But, much to the regret of all, Dr. Lee was unable to be present, having been called home by a telegram. Nevertheless, after a fine supper had been greatly enjoyed, Bishop Foster was called upon to speak. He was able to say only a few words—that he came to pay his respects to Dr. Lee, and was much disappointed at not meeting him. In regard to organic union he had expressed all he had to say in his book. In what follows, there will be found, in some aspects of the case, concurrence, in others, variance; but in all, honesty of conviction. It can easily be discovered that the wind blows toward harmony and fraternity.

The Herald gives a synopsis of the views of nineteen representative preachers, and from these we select the following as expressing the sentiments, pro and con, of this informal Conference:

Prof. John Milley said: "So far as the question of fraternity is concerned, I am as fraternal as any man needs to be. If I lived in the South, I could be a member of the Church, South. Of all the gentlemen present, Bishop Foster and myself are probably the only ones profoundly interested in the division in 1844. I was in Kentucky at that time. I suppose there were not twenty members of the General Conference who favored the impeachment of Bishop Andrew. We could not in the North go on with a slave-holding Bishop. In view of the facts, I have no question that the two churches have accomplished more by the division than they would if they had remained together. And this is true of the years since the war. I doubt whether the time is ripe for union; it is a question of prudence. I hope the time will come when union will be wisdom. I have thought for years that if all the great Methodist bodies, white and black, could unite, it would solve many questions. A great deal more has been done for the black church by the two separate white churches than could have been accomplished by the churches united."

Rev. Dr. W. W. Ramsay said: "I think it must be the sentiment of universal Methodism that there is no reason for the separation which at present obtains, and I think that the people at large on both sides are praying for union. I think it will be a long time before there will be union, if the colored people remain with us. But our church has stood by the colored men, and will stand by them. I believe in one great Colored Methodist Church, but the request must come from them."

Prof. Borden P. Bawne affirmed that a conclusion will be reached partly by chance and partly by experience; but the question can not be argued out. The way is not easily found in the concrete circumstances of the case. There can be no question what the Christian ideal is. All conditions of caste, color, race, etc., are swept away in that ideal thing. I am clear that simple, ignorant conscientiousness can not settle this question. God puts up with our infirmities and waits; and we must put up with each other's infirmities and wait also.

Rev. Dr. J. W. Hamilton said that there were questions as essential to the practical relations as any mere matter of idealism. On this Beacon Hill today, in the city of Charles Sumner, are school-houses in which there are more colored children than white children, and yet they are mixed. The government has called it ideal, but the government has backed it up. It is a settled national principle. We, as a church, went into the South, in the first place, twenty-five years ago, to help the negro. The Church, South, has only two little schools for the negro in that great Southland. You know how much of property, money, schools, etc., we have there. We are the only Methodist people to help the negro in the South. The Roman Catholic Church makes no distinction in the South; there is no black church of this denomination. That should be our policy.

Rev. W. G. Richardson said: "My conviction is that the only thing which separates the two white Methodist bodies is the negro. We care no more for the negro here in the North than does the church in the South. We do not love him any more, though we profess to."

Rev. John Galbraith said: "I don't believe that the white Methodist Churches can afford to unite by freezing out or driving out the negro. The Methodist Church must do differently in the South than she has done for the last twenty years. I see no prospect of union. Before this takes place, we must stop planting white churches in the South."

Rev. Dr. Charles Parkhurst said: "I have been through several zones on this question. Bred under Phillips and Gilbert Haven, I had and have convictions along the line which Prof. Bawne so well expressed. Nothing haunts me now like the question of fraternity. To be separated seems to be a wicked incongruity. If we understood each other, we should flow together. Bishop Foster's book made a deep impression on me to the effect that there is a providential leading toward the amalgamation of the colored Methodist Churches into one body. Would I tell the black man to go? Never! Would I make the black man uncomfortable? Never! There are discussing this question of leaving us more than we are."

Rev. Dr. Joseph H. Mansfield said: "We have a work to do among the white people in the South. Many there believe in the old mother church. A good deal of fraternity will have to be cultivated before we can unite with the Church, South. We have the feeling of fraternity, and they have it not, except on the part of a few of the younger men. The Southern mission field among the negroes requires our attention. The Church, South, is not interested in the education of the negro. I am ready to unite with the Church, South, if we can carry our black brethren with us. Inasmuch as we and the Church, South, in Kansas City, St. Louis, and even in California, I think we need have no hesitancy about entering the South."

Rev. Dr. D. H. Elia said: "I was in an abolition atmosphere in my boyhood. I am surprised to see the conservatism on the part of the younger men here to-night. The truth is, as far as our white work in the South is concerned, we are doing exactly what the Church, South, is doing. We haven't been quite honest with our schools. Practically, we have made black schools and white schools. We have had no mixed schools, and the General Conference has never formally endorsed mixed schools. We have no right to go into the South and establish churches to do just what the Church, South, is doing, and can do better than we and at less cost. Cut off the blacks? I say, cut off the whites, and cultivate the Christian spirit!"

Rev. Dr. Louis Albert Banks said: "My attitude in regard to the white work in the South is that it is an outrage to squander so much money there. I believe that if the white people in the South went into the Church, South, union would be greatly promoted. In twenty years we shall see the colored brother go out from us, and a union of the two bodies of Methodism will follow."

Rev. W. I. Haven said: "I am delighted that we have not gathered in vain. I believe the Lord God is awakening the consciences of the younger men of the Church, South, to the meaning of Christianity—that it is brotherliness. I believe that we are sinners; we have prejudices. I humbly say that I am the son of a prophet, and I believe we can promote union between the two Methodisms if we stop talking about the negro going out. I believe all the brethren here have been honest, and while I do not believe that any of them mean to hurt the colored brother, I may ask, But does it not hurt him? Does Bishop Foster's book hurt the feelings of the negro? One of them expresses it when he says that he feels 'cut across the face.' All this talk about the colored brother being a ward is wrong. We brethren here in New England, if we have sinned, ought not to make the colored brother feel that he has been cut across the face. We should repent. The only thing that separates us is prejudice. Christ rebuked it; so did Paul. Some of our white work in the South should be encouraged, but most of it is for our own glory and denominational aggrandizement. We are, indeed, idealists, and we are after the high ideal. That is right; but are we to go out to plead the hardness of men's hearts? No; we are to call men to repent."

The impression we get from this is, that among those brethren the idea obtains that, if they would get rid of the negro, our church would be willing to unite with them! It looks as if they were feeling for a pretext to get rid of him, and are revolving the question, whether organic union is not a good pretext. Some of them are evidently embarrassed by the colored brother; but if their embarrassment was taken away by the colored brother setting up for himself, they would still find obstacles in the way of organic union.

Revival at Macon, Miss.

Mr. Editor: Will you allow me space in the Advocate to tell of the wonderful meeting in Macon, Miss.? Many of your readers will rejoice with us. For many years Macon has had a reputation for hardness of heart and indifference to spiritual matters. Churches have been cold and formal; a large per cent. of her citizens have been non-church-goers; her young people, especially young men, were worldly and ungodly; so that, as a rule, when a religious young man came into the community, he met such a cold wave that he was swept off his feet and carried with the current. Worldliness, immorality and lawlessness have dominated; gambling halls, blind tigers, etc., have defied law and the best citizens, and we have not had the moral power to put them down. But, thank God! he has heard the prayers of his people.

On July 7 Bro. Sam P. Jones, G. R. Stewart and E. O. Excell were to have presided at a meeting for us; but, owing to the excessive rainfall, Bro. Stewart was one day late, Bro. Jones two, and Bro. Excell never reached us. When these brethren reached us the prospects were gloomy indeed. Mud and water were over the whole face of the earth, and raining almost continuously. Our large tabernacle was in no condition to worship in. Our gloom was increased by an announcement from Bro. Jones that he could only stay three days. But we did not know Bro. Stewart, or we would not have been gloomy over having the meeting left in his hands, for he was equal to the emergency. A bitter preacher and a more Holy-Ghost man I do not know at all; and he knows just how to conduct revival services. Bro. Jones remained with us the three days, and preached six as fine sermons as he ever preached in his life. They will never be forgotten in this community. The whole community was stirred. But when Bro. Jones left, on Monday night, there was no abatement of interest—in fact, the interest increased with every service. Bro. Bowen, of Aberdeen station, came in Monday, and stood nobly by Bro. Stewart's side until Friday night. I never saw such manifestation of divine power in my life. The vast audiences were swept by it, and it was impossible for any man to come in its reach without being impressed. Convictions were deep; strong men bathed in tears, and trembling from head to foot under the Divine Spirit. Never were conversions brighter or clearer. Their faces would beam with light, and at once, like Andrew, they would go to bring others to Christ. Persons that had not spoken for months embraced each other, and made peace forever. I never saw as many beautiful and touching things in a meeting in my life. One company of old soldiers resolved that they would all serve the Lord; so they came forward in each other's embrace, and their eyes streaming with tears, and their faces radiant with light, and promised to fight under the flag of the Lord Jesus. The converts ranged from six years old up to eighty; but a very large per cent. of them mature men.

Many more things I could write about the meeting, but can not ask the space. Let me say that Macon is literally redeemed. Almost everyone has or will connect him or herself with some church. The conversation now everywhere is religion. One hundred family altars have been established. I can not say how many have been converted, but think it not too large an estimate to say four hundred in and out of the different churches. I will write you as to the members that join the churches when we are done gathering them in. Lawlessness and sin must now go from our community, for we are for God and the right from this time forward.

At our men's meeting, last Monday night, we had about two hundred men present. At Wednesday night prayer meeting we did not have room for the people. One young man of our town has decided to enter the ministry. Bro. Charley Ames will join the Conference this Fall.

We are building a permanent tabernacle, and will have a tabernacle meeting every year. We are constrained to exclaim, "What hath God wrought!" The work surpassed our faith. Thank the Lord for his goodness! We intend to serve him better than we have ever done. I hope to send you quite a list of subscribers before long. Come up and see us, and you will see a town given to God. Yours fraternally,
J. H. MITCHELL.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. E. S. Lewis, Dublin, Miss., July 18: "Our third Quarterly Conference has just been held. Bro. Thames did us good service, and this was, by far, the best Conference we have had during the year. Just after the sacrament was administered, Sunday, penitents were invited, and twelve or fifteen went forward for prayer. We have hardly seen penitents more in earnest. When the invitation was given they came once, from the mature man to the Sunday-school pupil of tender years. A protracted meeting will embrace first Sunday in August, and we confidently expect a great gathering of souls. May God grant it!"

Rev. J. T. Howell, P. C., July 22: "Our third Quarterly Conference just past. Our presiding elder, Bro. Morehead, was present on time; preached and presided with that ease and dignity that grace and reason dictate; and, notwithstanding it was a week day, we had a good congregation, with dinner on the ground in the good old-fashioned way, and everyone seemed to enjoy the services. We had contemplated protracting the services; but, owing to continued rains, our people were very much behind with their crops. However, we did have preaching at night for several times. Received one new member on profession of faith; baptized four children. Bro. T. W. Lewis, a former pastor, was present, and did all the preaching after the Quarterly Conference. He ungloved his big hands, and exercised the faculties of his soul, mind and body to the delight of all, and, we think, to the everlasting good of some."

Rev. A. D. Miller, Barlow, Miss., July 22: "I have just returned from the Seashore Camp Meeting, and I want to say that I was perfectly delighted with my trip; and I want to here and now, thank God for health, sufficient, and my good people for granting me a vacation and furnishing the means that made it possible for me to avail myself of the great pleasure. May God abundantly bless all that contributed toward my trip for surely it was a great blessing to me, spiritually and temporally. I want to publicly thank the I. C. R. for reduction in rates and a faithful performance of their contract. Traveling public will be safe in their hands, and find their conductors kind and polite. The Seashore Camp Ground is beautiful for situation, and ought to be the joy of the whole country around. I am surprised that no more attend than do. Located right on the beach, well supplied with all the water, a pleasant breeze nearly all the time, salt water bathing, and, then, a fine preaching as you will hear anywhere—all conducive to the happiness of those that attend. We ought to have, at least, three thousand in attendance every year. Let's all go next year."

GLADIATION.

BY DR. J. H. HOLLAND.

Heaven is not reached at a single bound.
That a noble deed is a step toward God,
Lifting the soul from the common dust
To a purer and nobler view.

We rise to the heights that are under our feet
By what we have mastered of good and gain;
By the noble deed and the patient pain,
And the vanquished sin that we hope to meet.

We hope, we aspire, we resolve, we trust,
That the morning calls us to life and light,
And our hearts grow weary, and ere the night
Our lives are reaching the golden dust.

We hope, we resolve, we aspire, we pray,
And we think that we mount the air on wings
Beyond the reach of mortal things,
While our feet still cling to the heavy clay.

Angels for the angel, but feet for men,
We may borrow the wings of the way—
We may hope and resolve and aspire and pray,
But our feet must rise or we fall again.

Only in dreams is a ladder thrown
From the weary earth to the sapphire walls;
But the dreamer's path and the vision falls,
And the sleeper wakes on his pillow of stone.

Heaven is not reached at a single bound,
But we build the ladder by which we rise
From the lowly earth to the vaulted skies,
And we mount to the summit, round by round.

A Remarkable Dream.

On a beautiful autumnal afternoon,
While sitting alone in my chamber Reading the dear old ADVOCATE, I unconsciously fell asleep, and

I dreamed a dream in the midst of my slumbers,
And as fast as I dreamed it was coiled into numbers.

It seemed that a stewards' meeting had been called for Monday evening at 5 o'clock, at the pastor's study, and, on the invitation of a good brother, I concluded to attend. So at the appointed hour I arrived at the pastor's study, and found there two of the brethren, to whom the pastor introduced me as Bros. Promptly and faithfully. Both of these brethren were a troubled look, as though laboring under some disappointment, which I attributed to the absence of so large a proportion of the board. For more than one hour they "waited and watched," yet no others came, when Bro. Faithful arose and, in a semi-dramatic style, moved that "we do now adjourn," as evidently the other members are so pressed with important business that to wait longer would be useless. So Bro. Promptly seconded the motion, and the meeting, which was so meeting at all, adjourned unanimously. And as no meeting was held no business was done, no collections reported, and next day the secretary called at the pastor's study and reported, with a downcast and troubled look, "No meeting last night, stewards all sick, no collections made and no money for you." Yet his month was up, and most faithfully had he discharged his pastoral duties to his congregation. His larder was empty, and not a dollar in his purse.

Now, in my dream it seemed very strange that a representative body of the church of God should have so little regard for their Christian vows and their sacred obligations to their pastor. "The laborer is worthy of his hire," yet this men of God had wrought in the Lord's vineyard with untiring zeal and unceasing diligence for these people and had not been paid his monthly hire.

Christ's disciples fishing all night long amid the surging billows of the briny deep and catching nothing was not a parallel case as far as self-sacrifice and unrewarded labor and toil were concerned. And I soliloquized thus: If the members of our faithful pastor's Board of Stewards should die and by some miraculous means be wafted to St. Peter's gate and ask for admission, what—

The scene had changed. It was Friday afternoon, 5 o'clock; place, Sabbath-school room at the church. The pastor and presiding elder were sitting near the door-step with careworn faces, vainly looking for the members of the quarterly Conference to arrive. Presently Bro. Promptly and Faithful are seen in the distance—they come and excuse themselves for their tardiness by saying that they were hunting up the other members of the Conference, all of whom had important business on hand and could not attend. Bro. Truehart was at his law; Bro. Steadfastly was president of a literary club which met at that hour; Bro. Littlezeal was making a land trade; Bro. Timid had a professional engagement which demanded his attention, while Bro. Nothing and Doless were not expected. Bro. Lukewarm did come just before the Conference closed for the good (?) of the meeting, which placed the Conference under many obligations to this thoughtful brother. And they all had their excuses.

The usual routine of business was gone through with, until the question was asked: "What has been raised the present quarter, and how has it been applied?" The secretary here answered embarrassingly, "Will the presiding elder please this question to be answered

In the future?" That told the tale. The most important question was thus passed over—the salary of neither the pastor or the presiding elder had been collected, yet the Conference adjourned—after the benediction.

The pastor and presiding elder, without a murmur or word of complaint—as "lambs to the slaughter," returned to their homes.

Having been an eye-witness to the proceedings of both these meetings, and observing the "inhumanity of man to man," I involuntarily exclaimed, Verily,

"It is not all of life to live,
Nor all of death to die."

Again the scene changed. It was Sabbath morning at the church. The pastor had preached a powerful sermon. The congregation was greatly excited. Old Sisters Gooddoul and Buttermouth and Bros. Blowhard and Blighow, and a number of others, had been wonderfully wrought up. Bro. Stingyist shouted aloud, and Sister Fidget fairly denoted about as though her feet were encased in elastic. Prospects for a grand revival were bright.

Bro. Shekewell was happy, and thanked God for a free gospel and salvation without money and without price; while Bro. Closest shut his eyes, and, turning them up towards the ceiling, sang with a vim:

"School of land do I possess—
No cottage in the wilderness."

Finally the excitement calmed down, and the congregation was dismissed with a request from the pastor to remain a few minutes, as he wished to hold a Church Conference, it being the regular time for that occasion. Six or eight of the regular "stand-bys" remained. He immediately called the meeting to order, and asked for reports from the stewards (he spoke rapidly, evidently fearing a stampede from those remaining), which was read by the secretary, and a large deficit shown in the pastor's and presiding elder's salary—when that officer, with a look of deep despair, sank into his seat amid a silence that might be felt. No one moved for the space of several seconds; each one with head bowed in his hands as though in deep meditation (?).

The solemnity of the occasion was becoming oppressive, when suddenly old Bro. Twohlts, in a weird-like, sepulchral voice, well suited to the occasion, struck up,

"Hark! from the tombs a doleful sound"— one verse of which he sang through all alone. By this time my feelings were so wrought up that the graveyard howlings of the screech-owl would have been, in comparison, sweet music to my ears. I was frightened by the solemnity of the occasion; and—when—old—Bro.—Solemnface broke out in deep, guttural tones,

"Arise, my soul, arise, Shake off thy guilty tears."

my nerves could stand it no longer. With perspiration oozing from every pore, I leaped from my chair with a shriek of frightened horror, and, escaping with some light bruises about the face, I—awoke from this remarkable dream.

AITCH. AITCH. AITCH.

Memory Pictures.

"THAT GREAT GRAPE SERMON."

A CAMP MEETING SKETCH.

One night, at a camp meeting not many miles removed from the site of Vanderbilt University, a striking boy preacher was appointed to preach. In those days the presiding elders were fully semi-episcopal shadows in their authority over "the other clergy." Most royally, and wisely did they rule. Nobody ever, for a moment, thought of questioning, much less of refusing, an appointment to preach made by those leaders in Israel. "The stand" was full of preachers, among whom sat that fearfully great personage, the presiding elder, and even a greater still, a missionary secretary. The young preacher was nearly crushed under the responsibilities heaped upon him, but he tried to pray, and, as his brethren "choked" the wheel of the gospel car by their sturdy "Amen's!" he was much comforted by their sympathy and aid. His text was from Acts—"To you is the word of this salvation sent." After some minutes of, to him, apparently incoherent sentences, the preacher's ideas, like melted shot, ran together and lost their identity. Oh, that moment! It seemed almost an eternity of agony—mainly from mortified pride. He desired to sink through the door of the stand and to hide in the earth. Then he lifted his heart in desperate faith to God for help. Like lightning flash it came. The ear and heart of God were open. He answers prayer in the right time and way. His mind became more calm, reliant and self-poised. To illustrate his text, the figures of the returning "spies" came before his mind. We taste the grapes as we travel toward the heavenly vineyard. The preacher, in imagination, saw the two men in the far distance, dusty and weary. They had something on a pole borne on a shoulder of each. As they draw nearer we recognize God's faithful ones, Caleb and Joshua. That is not a giant dangling from that pole. No; there were rich fruits—pledges and prophecies of the promised country. Large clusters of grapes keep company with figs and pomegranates. As the spies approach nearer, they gleefully exclaim: "We have not only brought our report of the land, but also specimens of the fruits. Taste, and see for yourselves."

At this moment, like an electric flash, the power of God passed over the encampment. Men and women fell, as if dead, to the ground, and the preacher's voice was lost in surrounding prayer and praise. Perhaps never was there a more grateful heart this side of the one just introduced into heaven. The boy preacher did not take time to go down the steps into the altar. To this day he does not know exactly how he got there, but there he found himself in the midst of the slain of the Lord and rejoicing saints. All he recollects is, that he remarked, "There is no need of ploughing while God is sending down the rain." It was not necessary "to call for mourners." God had already done that work, and they were found scattered all over the encampment. Soon the entire tented grove became an altar of prayer. Nearly every Christian present became a preacher, and looked up the broken in heart. What music of mingled prayer and praise, of sob and shout, went up into the listening ear of the Interceding Christ! You could not close that meeting that night. It held on until the morning stars faded before the approach of day; yet they, doubtless, shouted for joy, as when God made the world. Many persons, from youth to gray hairs, professed to find peace in believing; many a wanderer returned to the fold, and many a Christian got a sweeter, grander look into heaven. The heavenly manna fell thick all over that ground, and the Rock was present with the water of life.

That night passed with us as rapidly and pleasantly as that of the shepherds on Bethlehem's plain, when the angels' song was the advent music, and a star was the illumination of the birthplace of Jesus. In a ministry of many years we have never seen the power and glory of that night duplicated. It is hallowed to us as was the transfiguration of the favored three.

The meeting continued for more than a week, with much of the divine presence and unction, and produced an abundant spiritual harvest. Time passed on, and the preacher often referred to God's gracious intervention to keep his servant from shame and mortification, which might have destroyed any future effort in the ministry.

More than twenty years after the preacher, traveling through that neighborhood on horseback, as was the true itinerant fashion, met a gray-bearded man on the road. The man stopped, looked eagerly at the preacher, and, extending his hand as he approached, said:

"Are you not Bro. —?"

"I am," replied the preacher.

Then the man, with another black-smith grip, said tremulously, and in tears:

"I was converted under that great grape sermon you preached at — Camp Ground years ago, on one week night."

Shade of Apollon! "That great grape sermon!" We stopped and talked with our gray-headed friend. He said he was still on his way to heaven; had been a steward of — Church for many years, and he intended to keep on till he got to his Father's house on high. After a short, most delightful Christian fellowship meeting on that public road, we promised to remember and pray for each other till we meet in heaven. We parted, and have never met again. God in Christ mercifully grant that we may together eat grapes in that heavenly Eshool.

This incident more than ever confirmed the opinion that sermons are not remembered, except by some illustration, prominent impression made, and especially by the religious emotion produced. That sermon is only great that is full of Jesus, and vividly the Holy Spirit. The striking, David's simple sling and pebbles from the brook are then mightier than the huge spear of boastful, defiant, brass-clad Goliath. Hang every wreath of human learning and genius end science on the cross of Christ; but "our faith must not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God."

To those who have never witnessed such a scene as we have so imperfectly portrayed, the writer may be suspected of exaggeration. On the contrary, he gives a plain, unvarnished statement. We do not say that such demonstrations are now necessary, nor do we intimate that there is less intelligent, devoted piety in the church now than in the days of those marked exhibitions of the power and grace of God. The church was never more intelligently, liberally, devotedly pious, generally, than now. Still memory loves to linger over the miniature Pentecost scenes of our early ministry. The writer would be glad to enjoy such direct answer to prayer; such unbarring of the arm of the Lord in the presence of all the people; such rich revelations of the Spirit's outpouring upon the labors and faith of preachers and people, as constituted revival glory in the years gone by.

W. H. ANDERSON.

Carlisle, Ky.

To the Sisters.

Dear Sisters of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South:

Since the notice of the Penny Helper Card and its object has been so kindly published by our editors, there have been many orders from friends interested in missions. Lest there be some misunderstanding, however, as to the use of these cards, let me again state that they are for a specific purpose—namely, to assist in paying off the debt of the General Board of Missions. Nor is the money thus raised to be credited to the regular assessment upon any society or church, because it is a specific attempt to accomplish a particular object. What is given in this way should be over and above the regular collections.

Having spent fifteen years among heathen mothers in China and Japan, facing daily the dark cloud that hangs over one hundred million pagan homes, and knowing so well each one of our overburdened missionaries, bravely struggling, never faltering, ever looking—but in vain—for the much-needed re-enforcement from America, I can not refrain from doing all that in me lies to help roll away this debt which hinders every forward movement. The Board says we can not send more missionaries until this debt is paid. If that is so, we must pay it, and pay it as quickly as possible. We can not let our Master's work suffer. Woman never deserted his cause in an hour of need, and will not desert it now.

I call upon every woman and mother in our Methodism, irrespective of Conference or Board, to see to it that the children of the church are not only supplied with these beautiful star cards, but that they save pennies enough to punch holes in all the hundred stars, and then send the money to Miss Kate Harlan, Methodist Publishing House, Nashville, Tenn., to be applied to the debt. Sample cards can also be ordered from Miss Harlan, free of charge.

Can you not get up a club of ten, or even twenty, children? The heart of a child is woman's great stronghold. Let us possess and train these motive-centers and love-centers for Christ. Can you not get up a club of ten grown people to take a card each, and register a nickel for every star? If the Salvation Army, in one year, saved by self-denial over $1,000,000, we of the M. E. Church, South, can, surely, if all help, compass the debt by May, 1893, and then the Board will be free from incumbrance, and can respond to the cry that comes like a wall from across the sea.

Let us help our children shine for Jesus. Your sister,

DAISY KELLEY-LAMRUTH.

Aberdeen District Sunday-School Conference.

July 7, 1892—the day before the convention of the Aberdeen District Conference—was devoted to district Sunday-school work.

On account of a rainfall, almost without precedent, many of the members were unable to reach the seat of the Conference; yet a sufficient number of preachers and laymen were present to make the occasion one of great interest and profit.

The election of Capt. T. B. Sykes, of Aberdeen, an active and intelligent Sunday-school worker, to the chair was an occasion for congratulation on the part of the Conference. He did his work well.

Questions, upon the proper solution of which depends the continuity and the vitality of the Sunday-school, were ably and fully discussed by the Conference. "The Necessity of Distinctive Doctrinal Teaching in the Sunday-school;" "The Bible's Place in the Sunday-school;" "How to Conduct a Sunday-school;" "Possibilities of Sunday-school Tuition;" "The Lesson System—Its Excellencies and Defects;" "Neglected Districts, and How to Reach Them;" "How to Reach the Children;" and "Difficulties in the Way of Sunday-school Work," laid a broad foundation for the investigation of this work. The discussions were practical and pointed, and in many instances accompanied by manifestations of divine power. Expressions of rejoicing were not infrequent. It has not been the pleasure of the writer to attend such a spiritual Conference.

Rev. E. H. Moon preached the sermon from Deut. xxxi, 12. Though he selected a common and oft-used text, his sermon was fresh, pointed and powerful.

At the time for the adjournment of the afternoon session, the waves of interest and enthusiasm rolled so high that it was decided to convene again at eight in the evening for a continuation of the discussion. Thus we were favored with three sessions. With increased zeal, augmented energy and a better understanding of this work, we return to our respective fields of labor determined to further advance and develop the Sunday-school work of our district, which has already been shown by statistics to be the banner district of the North Mississippi Conference.

Rev. G. W. Boehman, Conference Sunday-school agent, was with us; also Bros. J. W. Honnoll, president of Malone Female College; J. C. Mimms, of Holly Springs district, and L. M. Broyles, of Emory College. We enjoyed their presence.

Newton is such a pleasant little city, and so royally were we entertained that, should we want the Conference again, we would never be willing to vote against the "Queen City of the Bigbee."

We append the following resolutions passed by the Conference:

Resolved, That it is the sense of this Conference that we should have, in accordance with the suggestion of the Discipline, an Annual Sunday-school Convention within the bounds of the North Mississippi Conference.

Resolved, That we memorialize our Sunday-school Board to call such a convention as early as thought practicable.

We will have District Sunday-school Conference in connection with District Conference at Tupelo, next year.

J. C. PARK, Sec'y.

Strong's, Miss.

That Commencement Ball.

I thank Bro. Thomas for entering his protest against the act of the trustees of the University of Mississippi for misappropriating that one hundred dollars to help out the commencement ball. How would it do for the trustees to appropriate a like sum to assist in furnishing a gambling hall for the convenience of the students and their visiting friends? I ask this question because I have heard that once upon a time, at a certain State university, a circuit court was held, and a large number of students left the town during the session of the court because they feared being brought before the grand jury and questioned on the crime of gambling. The question with many of us is, "Where shall I educate my boys?" I suppose that depends upon what I want them to learn. I don't care for them to learn to dance, and I don't want to be taxed to encourage other men's sons to dance.

I stand here like a certain Episcopal gentleman I once heard speak. He said: "Four of the most potent instruments among us to lead men and women to hell were: first, strong drink; second, gambling; third, dancing; fourth, the theater; but my church ain't much on this line." The great mass of Christians in this age are against the dance. I know a few to express great surprise at the liberty taken in the dance.

The Catholic Church is firm against the round dance. The priests say the revelations of the confessional set them against the round dance; and that is the dance of the tons. Bishop Hopkins, of the Episcopal Church, said, "No ingenuity can make dancing consistent with our church vows." Bishop Meade, also Episcopalian, said, "We ought conscientiously to enquire whether the great liability of the dance to abuses should not make us frown against it in all its forms. To my mind it is of itself wrong, sinful, improper and of bad effect." The Presbyterians are against the dance. The Baptist pointedly so; likewise the Methodists. We pay a good deal of the tax in this State, and we don't pay it to assist in supporting the dance. I can understand why a pure woman can say she sees no harm in the dance. But when I hear a man say so, it is evidence to me he is looking somewhere—in head, heart or body.

I have two sons that are to leave home this fall for college. And where shall I send them? Well, not to an institution that shows its contempt for the teachings of every church in the land, if I know myself! And I am not the only man who has sons to educate that feels the same way. I protest against this evil use of the public funds.

T. S. WEST.

Vernon, Miss.

Headquarters of Executive Committee, State Sunday-School Convention.

To Sunday-school Superintendents, Teachers and Scholars:

The Executive Committee of the State Sunday-school Convention have appointed the third Sunday in August a day for free-will offerings of every member of your school for State work. Give special notice in your secular press. Let the collection be full and free. Invite all to come, and urge the necessity of every one contributing something. The depleted condition of our treasury necessitates this call. We have much State work to do. Come and help us. Remember this contribution is for missionary Sunday-school work in our own State. We would also urge all county conventions, who made pledges to State convention, to send amount pledged as soon as possible. Send all money to W. J. Galloway, Treasurer, State Sunday-school Convention, Agricultural College, Mississippi, who will acknowledge receipt, and you will see how it is disbursed by his annual report. Very faithfully yours,

H. H. ESTES.

Chairman Executive Committee.

Hemingway, Miss.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON.—Aug. 7, 1892.

By Rev. W. H. LA PRADRE, D. D.

The Apostles' Confidence in God.

Acts iv, 19-31.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"They spoke the word of God with boldness."—Verse 31.

All authority—dates back to God; "the powers that be are ordained of God," whether powers of Church or of State. So long as human rulers command nothing that is in opposition to God's will concerning us, they are to be obeyed. Sometimes a law may be oppressive, unjust; we may suffer under such circumstances, is not obligatory. But when a human law demands that we violate God's law, the case is different. Such a law is no law to the good man; God is to be obeyed, regardless of consequences.

This was the issue now sprung on Peter and John. Jesus had commanded that they witness for him; that they "preach the gospel to every creature;" that they baptize in his name. In order to this, they had received the Holy Ghost; inspired by him, they had wrought a miracle and taught the people. Now they were commanded by the Sanhedrim to stop. What must they do?

Vers. 19, 20. The apostles meet the issue fairly; God had commanded—they must obey. They were not rebellious toward the Sanhedrim; they did not decide to do as they pleased, but as God pleased. They were subjects; but, primarily, God's subjects, not man's. As true men, under God's appointment to speak, they must speak. As to the result, whether imprisonment or death, that mattered not. They would obey God.

Vers. 21, 22. The Council would have punished them, perhaps sentenced them to death; but they could find no ground for such action that would appear just to the people. The age of the man who had been healed was so great, the lameness of such long standing, the miracle so evident, that all argument was hushed. The most the Council dared to do was to threaten them, and then release them.

Vers. 23. Peter and John, in this matter, stood for the whole company of disciples; they voiced the general purpose to be true to God. So they reported to them their action and the words of the Council. There was need of mutual encouragement and of divine aid. These Christians acted with one accord.

Vers. 24, 25, 26. The original word translated "Lord," in verse 24, is not often used in the New Testament. It means an absolute monarch; a ruler whose will is law. The use of the word accords with the purpose of the apostles to obey him.

The second Psalm is quoted—a Psalm regarded by the Jews as Messianic. That the kings and rulers should antagonize the Christ was, therefore, expected.

Vers. 27, 28. The action of Herod, and of Pontius Pilate, and of the Council, the apostles regarded as fulfilling, in part, this prophecy. That Jesus should die for sinners had been "determined before." In their wickedness, Herod and Pilate and the others caused his death. God did not move them to do it; he did not work a miracle to keep them from it; he made "their wrath to praise him;" but their action was voluntary and criminal.

Vers. 29, 30. The apostles knew that, in view of the opposition of the Sanhedrim, they would need the continued public indorsement of God, by miracles done in his name. Evident divine power must offset the antagonism of the authorities. These holy men did not pray for safety, but for power and for courage. They were not afraid to die; they feared only lest they might not be strong, and true, and full of miracle-working faith. They prayed for power to properly stand for Christ, and that their teachings might be attested by "signs and wonders."

Vers. 31. God made immediate reply. His presence was felt; "the place was shaken." Not all the city, but the house of assembly. The Holy Ghost came upon them again; they were filled with courage, with energy from above. Power to speak boldly came to them; not simply the courage of their convictions, but power from God direct.

For the sake of peace, and because it may be expedient, we may, and often must, suffer imposition; but never, under any circumstances, do wrong for the sake of peace.

Christians should encourage each other in boldly maintaining the truth. God foresees the enemy of wicked rulers against Christ now, as always, and will defeat their plans.

The church needs now, as then, power and courage. Prayer will bring both.

MISSIONARY DEPARTMENT.

CONDUCTED BY REV. J. P. DRAKE.

AFRICA.

The four evangelists record our Saviour's activity when he was on earth to the flesh. Luke, in the Acts of the Apostles, begins at his ascension, and narrates the continuance of his work in the church by his Spirit for thirty years. It was, however, promised that the Spirit of Christ should be the life of the church. "Lo! I am with you," said our Lord. It is evident, therefore, that the Acts must be an unfinished book. Christian history in every age is as truly the story of the activity of Christ's Spirit as is apostolic history. This is never more conspicuously the case than in the annals of foreign missions; and nowhere probably has the work of evangelization been more obviously supernatural, more manifestly inspired and guided and developed by Christ through his Spirit, than in that vast and dark continent which, under the name of Ethiopia, is represented in Scripture as about to stretch out her hands unto God, and to which our thoughts are for a little while to be directed.

Africa is the southern continent of the eastern hemisphere. Bounded on the north by the Mediterranean Sea, on the east by the Red Sea and the Indian Ocean, on the south by the Southern Ocean, and on the west by the Atlantic Ocean, it has, since the opening of the Suez Canal from the Mediterranean to the Red Sea, become a continental land. Lying between the thirty-seventh degree of north and the thirty-fourth of south latitude, it is almost wholly within the tropics. Triangular in shape, its greatest length is 4,330 miles; its extreme width, 4,000 miles; and its area, 11,300,000 miles, nearly four times that of the United States.

Until very recently little or nothing was known of the interior of Africa, except that it was rich in gold and ivory and apes and slaves. The explorations of late years have, however, acquainted us with its principal physical features. It has few harbors considering its great extent of coast. It rises gradually from a hard beach of yellowish sand; it spreads out into broad plateaus; and these are traversed by systems of mountains, some of them lofty. It is watered by many lakes and large rivers, chief among which are the Zambezi on the east, the Niger and the Congo on the west, and on the north the long, mysterious, though historic, Nile. It is a land of forests, seemingly trackless and impenetrable, which yield ebony, dyewoods, palm oil, gums, copal and india-rubber, and whose clearings produce plantains, cassava, tapioca, Indian corn, sugar-cane, much else, so abundantly and readily that industry becomes useless and indolence inevitable. At the same time Africa may well be called the country of the desert. For nine hundred miles along the western seaboard toward the south there is not a drop of fresh water and but one fertile spot. An even larger region along the eastern coast nearer the equator is dry and sterile. North of the equator is the Sahara, or Great Desert, three thousand miles long, with an average width of one thousand miles; its area is almost equal to that of the whole of our own vast country. Its surface, lower in many places than the Mediterranean Sea, is made up of shifting sand, rough gravel and barren rock; variously distributed, and occasionally traversed by low chains of bare hills. Extensive plains of salt also occur. Throughout this sterile region rain is almost unknown, and the heat is terrific; sometimes indicating, especially during the hot wind and sand storms, over one hundred and twenty degrees Fahrenheit in the shade. The western portion of the Sahara is the wildest and the most desolate. In the eastern part are numerous oases, some of which cover many miles of fertile territory.

Of the social, moral, and religious condition of these millions little that is good can be said. The northern half of Africa has the characteristics of Arabic civilization. The people are pastoral and nomadic. They have the Arab's genius both for war and for trade. In general, we may say of them they are restless, fierce, warlike, proud, aggressive; in trade, keen, versatile, grasping; in morals, grossly sensual, as the Abyssinians, or proudly as the Nubians. They are all stamped with the virtues and the vices of the Moslem faith. Many of them have heard of the Saviour, but almost none of them have found life in him, or even realized the need of him.

The southern half of Africa is utterly destitute of any civilization worthy of the name. The people live in independent groups under the command of a king, whose slaves they usually are. As in intelligence, there is a vast difference in different tribes. The Bololo people, for example, in the bend of the Congo, clear away the forest and raise crops of maize and melons. They are expert in the working and smelting of brass. They understand division of labor. Their streets are straight and their houses commodious. Of the people in the Nyassa district, however, Prof. Drummond gives the following description: "Hidden away in the endless forests, like birds' nests in a wood, in terror of one another and of their common foe, the slave, are small native villages; and here in his virgin simplicity dwells a primeval man, without clothes, without civilization, without learning, without thought, the genuine child of nature—thoughtless, careless and contented. This man is apparently quite happy; he has practically no wants. One sick point makes him a peer; two sticks rubbed together make him a fire; fifty sticks tied together make him a house. The bark he peels from them makes his clothes; the fruits which hang on them make his food." There is, however, one common characteristic of all the Central African people wherein lies the hope of their future. They are born traders. They have created a true currency, though not a money one. "In the management of a bargain," says Stanley, "I should back the Congolese native against Jew or Christian, Parsee or Bonyan, in all the round world. Unoppressed he is the very last term I should ever apply to an African child or man in connection with the knowledge of how to trade. I have seen a child of eight do more tricks of trade in an hour than the cleverest European trader on the Congo could do in a month."

As to morals and religion, the picture is an extremely dark one. Degradation is well nigh universal. Polygamy is everywhere practised. The idea of chastity seems to have been entirely lost. The value of human life is not appreciated. Mutilation and death are the punishments for the slightest offenses. Human sacrifices are common. Cannibalism is prevalent. Atrocities which among us might not even be mentioned are with them of daily occurrence. There is no worship in the proper sense of the word. Religion has degenerated into a superstition called fetishism. It does not come so near to the worship of God as idolatry does; for the idolater professes to worship God through the idol, while the African, though admitting the existence of a Creator and Father, gives him no actual worship. Sacrifices are made and prayers are regularly offered; but there is no confession of sin, no thanksgiving, no praise. Fetishism consists in the wearing of charms or amulets to secure a wish or to ward off an enemy. These charms may be anything—a shell, a bone, even a rag—that has been consecrated by the fetish doctor, who professes to inject into it, by means of drugs and incantations, a spirit by whom one can be made successful. Asclepius rules are also to be obeyed. In a word, the only religion of the native is a bondage to fear.

In 1799 the first four missionaries of the London Missionary Society arrived at the Cape. The Dutch Reformed Church is another of the early agencies in the South Africa mission cause. The two great societies of the Church of England, the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts and the Church Missionary Society, were among the first to begin their labors there, the latter in Abyssinia, the former in South Africa. Egypt has been successfully occupied by the United Presbyterian Church of the United States. The western coast is the scene of very many missions of very many churches. Here we come to Abantio, where the celebrated native Bishop Crowther, whose death we have been called on so lately to mourn, labored; and here, too, farthest down of all we find Gaboon, and the field well occupied by the American Presbyterian Board, in which field, as in all this region, the mortality among the missionaries has been so great that it has been well called "The White Man's Grave." In 1875, a year after Livingstone's death, a memorial mission was founded for him on Lake Nyassa, and it has been very successful. Space, however, would fail were even the barest enumeration of the missionary agencies now at work in Africa to be attempted. Statistics, too, with reference to this field are singularly unreliable. Like the maps of the country, they change daily. Ten years ago the report was 730 ordained missionaries, 73,000 native communicants, 260,000 under instruction—probably a million more or less under the influence of Christianity; and ten years ago the Christian Church was just beginning to rise herself for the evangelization of the "Dark Continent."

It should not be supposed, however, that the work, because it has been rapid, is easy. It is a peculiar difficulty. Perhaps no field calls for more of the heroism which only the Holy Spirit can inspire. Among these obstacles may be mentioned anarchy. The different tribes are at war constantly. The same is true of the different families of the tribe; hence, no kind feelings are engendered, and to deal with people so irritated calls for unusual patience, prudence, decision, tact. Another obstacle is indolence. The wants of the natives are so few that they grow up in idleness. When they profess Christianity, therefore, their change of heart does not at once make them diligent. There is small occasion for diligence. They have, consequently, to be taught industries as well as religion. In no field are lay missionaries, Christian mechanics, and farmers, so much needed.

A further obstacle is slavery. The united influence of the many missionary societies and the efforts of one Christian nation after another have entirely broken up the slave trade, so far as the west coast is concerned. It is, however, still carried on clandestinely on the east coast, and it exists everywhere unrestrained as a domestic institution. Indeed, slaves constitute the laboring class, and hence arises an excuse on the part of the free for their excuse on the part of the free for their indolence. In their view work is not indolence. In their view work is also only largely unnecessary, it is also dishonorable because associated with slavery.

A fourth obstacle is intemperance. The natives have their own beer and wine, but they have learned to like the more intoxicating qualities of imported rum, gin, and whisky. These are obtained in abundance at all the foreign trading houses. The testimony of the missionaries is that where converts are now reckoned by hundreds they would be numbered by thousands but for the rum trade. "What a record against the Protestant Christianity of Great Britain and Germany and America!"

Polygamy, with its kindred vices and the moral degradation which result from them, is another and most serious obstacle. The people have become so debased that there seems to be no moral foundation on which to build. The climate, too, must not go unmentioned.

The above liberal extracts from a recent number of The Missionary Review of the World give us an interesting glimpse of Africa: its possibilities, its needs, its perils and its hopes. It should stir up all the missionary life within us to read of such a vast and fertile portion of the field lying almost wholly fallow—its millions perishing for the Bread of Life. True, we, as a church, have no missionaries there. But why have we not? Our Board is bound in fetters of debt, and can not reach these benighted regions till the church shall awake, arise and "put on that beautiful garment of salvation," known as liberality.

The well-informed author above quoted goes on to tell how fatal to white missionaries this "Dark Continent" is and must continue to be. The only solution of the problem is in the preparation and sending forth from our shores men of African descent to do the work we are practically precluded from performing. This is no Utopian scheme. We have under our fostering care two fine institutions for training colored people in the knowledge of real Christian truth and the power to propagate the same. Payne and Lane Institutes are beginning to do a glorious work of this kind. Only lack of means hampers them, and thus delays the coming of the King. Orl when will our people awake to their great opportunity and discharge this urgent duty. As we understand the history of African slavery, it was "God moving in a mysterious way" to accomplish the evangelization of a most degraded race. In the past the Southern white man has done most for the negro—is yet his nearest and truest friend. God expects and requires of us much more than we are now doing. May his good Spirit arouse us fully!

North Mississippi Conference Woman's Missionary Society.

REPORT OF TREASURER FOR QUARTER ENDING JUNE 30, 1892.

WINONA DISTRICT.
Winona	$ 9.21
Juxtales of Winona	9.66
Greenwood Juveniles	4.00
Greenwood Auxiliaries	4.00
Black Hawk Juveniles	7.00
Greenies of Black Hawk	7.95
	$ 50.22

ANOKIA DISTRICT.
Shannon	$ 1.45
Okolona	8.58
Porton	8.25
Tranquil Hill	4.00
McCloudy	3.80
Houston	1.45
Juveniles of Houston	8.40
Verona	8.40
Juveniles of Verona	8.85
	$ 22.03

SAVOIS DISTRICT.
Savies Juveniles	$ 6.00
Massodon Juveniles	1.15
Pleasant Grove	10.00
Harmony	6.55
Ward	2.70
Batesville Juveniles	2.00
Coldwater	7.00
Juveniles of Coldwater	6.55
McGhee's Chapel	7.55
Commodore	5.00
	$ 60.15

COLUMBUS DISTRICT.
L. L. Helpers of Columbus	$ 5.00
Adie Gordon of L. L. and C.	11.70
Macdon	5.00
Brookville Juveniles	2.80
Starkville	18.40
Crawford	5.00
Juveniles of Crawford	4.00
Macdon Jewels	18.95
Earrest Workers of Columbus	5.00
Adie Gordon of L. L. & G. Columbus	18.80
Juveniles of Starkville	4.20
Shaffer's Chapel	3.90
West Point	10.20
Trinity	10.20
	$ 141.09

CORINTH DISTRICT.
Corinth	$ 8.00
Juveniles of Corinth	4.47
Luks	12.61
Juveniles of Luks	5.12
	$ 28.20

GREENADA DISTRICT.
Grenada	$ 9.55
Juveniles of Grenada	3.10
Spring Hill	4.50
Coffeyville	5.20
Juveniles of Coffeyville	3.65
Rhett Mount	8.05
Miner City	4.30
Syramore	7.25
1 Harrison	5.50
Juveniles of Oxford	1.90
	$ 58.80

HARRISBURG DISTRICT.
Greenville	$28.85
Clarkdale	5.05
Hollandale	2.50
Juveniles of Hollandale	5.05
Juveniles of Clarkdale	2.55
Jottstown	6.65
Hollandale	2.15
	$ 50.85

HOLLY SPRINGS DISTRICT.
Holly Springs	$ 10.95
Lochie Rankin Band of H. S.	5.00
Low	8.61
Hillside Juveniles	5.00
Early Grove	6.00
Potts' Camp	7.55
	$ 36.66

KOSCIUSKO DISTRICT.
Kosciusko	$ 5.10
Juveniles of Kosciusko	16.85
Burton	10.25
"West West" Juveniles	1.30
Acoca	8.40
Juveniles of Acoca	1.35
West	5.00
Sallis	8.40
Pickens	11.80
	$ 69.45

Sum total for quarter.....$506.70

$79.81 of receipts is Easter offering.

MOLLIE A. CLARK, Conf. Treas.

Buckingham's Dye for the Whites is the best, handiest, safest, easiest, cleanest, most economical and satisfactory dye ever invented. It is the gentlemen's favorite.

A tenderness of conscience, a sensibility to sin should never be an affliction, but is none the less genuine because it is cultivated. Our finest flowers are products of native sensibilities developed by art, but not corrupted.

Large as a Dollar

Were the scrofula sores on my poor little boy. They were especially severe on his legs, back of his ears and on his head. His hair was so matted that combing was sometimes impossible. His legs were so sore that he could not sit down, and when he tried to walk his legs would crack open and the blood start. Physically he did not cure. I decided to give him Hood's Sarsaparilla. In two weeks the sores began to heal up; the scales came off and all over his body new, healthy flesh and skin formed. When he had taken two bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla he was entirely free from sores. HARRY K. RIMBY, Box 164, Columbia, Tenn.

HOOD'S PILLS cure liver ills, constipation, biliousness, jaundice, sick headache, etc.

AYER'S Hair Vigor

Restores faded, thin, and gray hair to its original color, texture, and abundance; prevents it from falling out, checks tendency to baldness, and promotes a new and vigorous growth. A clean, safe, elegant, and economical hair-dressing.

Everywhere Popular

"Nine months after having the typhoid fever, my head was perfectly bald. I was induced to try Ayer's Hair Vigor, and before I had used half a bottle, the hair began to grow. Two more bottles brought on as good a head of hair as ever I had. On my recommendation, my brother William Craig made use of Ayer's Hair Vigor with the same good results."—Stephen Craig, 832 Charlotte st., Philadelphia, Pa.

Ayer's Hair Vigor

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass. Sold by Druggists Everywhere.

Dr. Wm. H. Holcombe

AND

Dr. Gayle Aiken,

HOMEOPATHISTS,

No. 286 St. Charles Ave., NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Cases treated by correspondence.

Dr. W. G. Austin,

Having finished a successful term of office at the Quarantine Station, has returned to the city, and offers his professional services to his friends and the public generally.

Residence: 229 Eighth Street.

Luke A. Ateman,

Furniture & Baggage

WAGONS.

730 Carondelet St., near Toledano,

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Orders may be left at my office, 120 Camp St.,

Kursheed's Marble Works.

Refers to D. L. Michel, New Orleans Christian Advocate.

ATLANTA, GA., August 29, 1891.

To whom it may concern:

In our experience as cotton merchants we have frequently had occasion to handle cotton ginned upon the GULLETT GIN, made by Gullett Gin Co., Amite City, La.

We consider this Gin the equal of any in the market in its ability to turn out smooth, clean, well-ginned cotton. We are always glad to handle cotton ginned upon the GULLETT GIN.

Very truly,

S. M. INMAN & CO.

As We Expect

to move the immense and handsome stock of

PICTURES,

Wall Paper, Matting, Rugs,

ETC.,

Purchased from W. E. FERRELL, and now occupying 29 Camp and 116 Common Sts., into our present quarters, 116 Camp St., by the first of September, it will be necessary for us between now and then to run it down to the lowest possible limit; and those wishing to get bargains will do well to profit by the hint we are giving them.

Heath, Schwartz & Co., Ltd.,

29 Camp, 116 Common and 116 Camp.

Watches, Diamonds,

FINE JEWELRY

Silver and Silver-Plated Ware,

SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES

Send for Catalogue.

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO.,

(Established 1817)

119 CANAL ST., New Orleans, La.

Base Ball Goods, Croquet, Fishing

Tackle, Seines, Twines.

Refrigerators, Water Coolers, Ice

Cream Freezers, Baskets, Ham-

mocks, Lamps, Lanterns.

Fruit Jars, Corks, Bottles, Flasks,

Hardware, Tinware, Stationery,

Wrapping Paper and Bags.

FULL LINE OF

Wooden and Willowware, Brushes, etc.

J. C. MORRIS & Co., Limited

40, 42 and 44 Tchoupitoulas Street

E. F. DYER, Pres. E. P. MACRUE, Treas.

W. W. CARRE,

LUMBER MERCHANT

AND MANUFACTURER OF

PLANTATION CABINS, STORES, Etc.,

No. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave.,

NEW ORLEANS.

Queen and Crescent Route.

94 MILES the SHORTEST.

New Orleans to Cincinnati.

NEW VESTIBULED TRAIN.

The Queen and Crescent Special leaves New Orleans every afternoon at 3:00 p. m., via Birmingham and Chattanooga, for Cincinnati, Vestibuled and Lighted. Through to New York and Washington without change. No extra charge for this superior train service.

TIME TO CINCINNATI, 26 HOURS.

TIME TO NEW YORK, 47 HOURS.

The Queen and Crescent, and Fast Tennessee Virginian and Georgia are now running through Pullman Vestibule Buffet Sleeping Cars from New Orleans to New York without change, Time to New York via Washington only 45 hours.

Ticket Office—41 St. Charles Street.

Depot: Corner Press Street and Levee.

R. H. GARRETT, Div. Pass. Agent.

D. M. LEE, Traffic Manager.

D. G. EDWARDS, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent.

CHICAGO.

Connecting with all Buffet and Dining Car Lines East, and the ONLY LINE running Through Cars for All Classes.

To St. Louis Without Change.

The Only Line running a Double Daily Train Service to St. Louis, with Through Sleepers to Memphis, without change.

The Shortest and Most Direct Route to MEMPHIS.

The Only Line Running Pullman Sleeping Cars Through Without Change

To SPRINGFIELD, MO., FORT SCOTT and KANSAS CITY.

ONLY ONE CHANGE OF CARS FROM NEW ORLEANS TO

Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York

The Great Steel Bridge, spanning the Ohio River at Cairo, completed, and all trains (freight and passenger) now running regularly over it, thus avoiding the delays and annoyances incident to transfer by ferry boat.

Ticket Office: Corner St. Charles and Common Streets.

J. W. COLEMAN, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agt. N. O.

A. H. HANSON, G. P. A., Chicago.

Mississippi Valley Route.

L. N. O. and T. Ry.

Kansas City and Memphis Leaves Arrives

Fast Train..... 5:00 p. m. 8:10 a. m.

Victoria and Natchez Express..... 8:10 a. m. 5:30 p. m.

Bal. Round "Coast Train"..... 8:45 p. m. 10:00 a. m.

The Only Line running Solid Trains between New Orleans, Memphis and Vicksburg, with Modern Pullman Buffet Sleeping Cars.

The direct and favorite route to Kansas City, Omaha, Denver, St. Louis, Chicago, Louisville and Cincinnati.

The short line to Hot Springs and points in Arkansas and North Louisiana.

Communication Tickets, Mileage Books, Party Rates and Week End Excursions.

Summer Excursion Tickets on Sale in season.

Ticket Office, 51 St. Charles Street.

L. F. DAY, Traffic Manager.

R. F. REYNOLDS, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agt.

The Texas and Pacific R'y.

EL PASO ROUTE.

The direct line to Shreveport and New Orleans, to Texas, Kansas, Memphis, St. Louis, the North and East and to all points in Texas, Colorado and California.

The Favorite Line via Sacramento to Oregon and Washington.

Only line offering choice of routes to points in the Southwest via Texas, Shreveport and New Orleans.

Christian Advocate.

Rev. D. L. MITCHEL, Publisher.
Office: 112 CANAL STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
Subscription: $1 PER ANNUM.
Advance and orders to be paid by check or money order.
All members of the M. E. Church, South, are authorized Agents to whom payments may be made.

Rev. C. W. Carter, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. Lewis, Ass't Editor.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.
REV. J. M. BEARD, D. D.
REV. S. S. KERRICK
REV. J. R. A. AUBREY, D. D.
MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.
REV. W. C. BLACK, D. D.
REV. W. R. LEWIS
REV. R. J. JONES
NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.
REV. W. T. J. SULLIVAN, D. D.
REV. J. D. CAMERON, D. D.
REV. T. C. WIER, M. D.

Thursday, August 4, 1892.

A Laudable Movement.

The Louisiana Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children has now been in successful operation for several months. It was inaugurated by Rev. A. E. Clay, our pastor at Dryades Street Church, and he has pushed the movement so well that now its influence for good is being very sensibly felt, and much benefit has accrued. The society is thoroughly organized, and has been encouraged by the Legislature by the passage of helpful laws for its more successful working. The good already done has been an encouragement to the promoters of the movement, and the future is enlarging with possibilities. Like all societies of this kind, this one has to depend for its support and progress upon the voluntary contributions of friends for means to carry out its designs. The work has so enlarged that these voluntary contributions are not sufficient to meet daily demands. To meet these needs the president of the society offers to the general public the following suggestions:

Let the week beginning Aug. 14 be set apart throughout the State as the time for the collection of money for the society, and let all the churches of every creed take an offertory on Sunday, Aug. 14. Let all the newspapers open a column for contributions during that week. Let the different commercial bodies and other organizations assist in this matter.

As the society is non-sectarian and solely philanthropic, there is no good reason why everybody who is able should not contribute to help on this worthy enterprise. The society expects to spread itself all over the State as soon as circumstances and means will allow, and, therefore, we commend the enterprise to all our Louisiana readers.

Our "Quarterly Review."

The Quarterly Review of the M. E. Church, South, for July, 1892, is before me. It contains eleven well-written articles and an Editor's Table of unusual interest and value.

The first article is by Hon. J. Wofford Tucker, and is a criticism of Bishop Hurst's utterance concerning the late Ecumenical Conference, that "the session devoted to the present status of theology, and its grand relation to scientific progress gave this key-note to the exact relation of science to Methodism in every part of the world—namely, that, while it considers its basis of faith permanent, it holds that its theology is not a finished thing, but progressive and developing according to the new light reflected by every advance in science." Judge Tucker writes fairly and, in some places, eloquently; but I think that he unwittingly misstates Bishop Hurst's position. That our "theology is progressive" there can be no doubt; but that its "developing" depends solely—as Judge Tucker would make Bishop Hurst affirm—upon "the advance of science" is an absurdity as patent to Bishop Hurst as to anyone. Our theology is our understanding of the God's Word. That Word is not now developing, but is "a finished thing." Our understanding of that Word, however, is most assuredly "progressive and is developing"—not alone "according to the new light reflected by every advance of science"—i. e., if theology itself be excluded from the term "science;" but natural science and metaphysical science and the better reading of the Bible all combine to give us a constantly better, a growing knowledge of God and his Word. Judge Tucker defines theology as "our formulation of divine truth," and science as "our formulation of the phenomena of nature, as observed by men." Then he says: "Our theology claims the creation of man at a given time by a distinct act of divine power." If Methodist theology claims this, then Methodist theology ought to be mended: for the Bible, our only standard of theology, says no such thing. He adds: "Science affirms that man was evolved." I beg to say most respectfully that science says no such thing. I am not an evolutionist. I do believe that God created man at a point of time—not "a given time," however. I do not find it "given" anywhere—"by a distinct act of divine power." "All this I steadfastly believe," not because the Bible says so; for it does not say so, but because science says so.

He further tells us that science denies the possibility of miracle—the virgin motherhood of Mary, the resurrection, etc. I am astounded! Are we to take the puerile mouthings of a lot of half-learned, brainless infidels as the dicta of science? Is Bob Ingersoll an ideal scientist? It were just as sensible to christen Munchausen and the Arabian Nights as histories, and then rail at history. This failure on the part of preachers and other church people to distinguish between true science and the sophomoric blusterings of shallow-witted infidels has done more than anything else to create an imaginary conflict between science and religion.

Prof. Baskervill's article, on "Southern Literature," is learned and brilliant, but rather pessimistic. The editor's rejoinder is one of the best papers that has been produced by that gigantic and prolific brain. It demolishes most mercilessly the pessimism of Prof. Baskervill, and puts in a strong, clear light the true story of Southern culture as compared to that of New England. I wish that every young man and woman in the South could read that paper. It alone is worth a year's subscription to the Review.

Of Dr. Leftwich's study of "The Transfiguration," of Dr. Godbey's review of Edwin Arnold's "Light of the World," of Miss, or Mistress, Lizzie Davis Fielder's "Memoir of Mrs. Margaret Lavinia Kelley," of Dr. Whitehead's of his Conference mate, John Ellis Edwards; of Rev. J. T. Wightman's treatise on the "Priesthood of Providence," and Prof. Martin on "A Hebrew Parable and the Poetic Style," neither time nor space permits me to speak as my heart prompts.

In "A Psychological View of Sin and Holiness," Dr. Boland, who has become an authority along that line, turns on some much-needed historical, as well as theological, light. The history of theology is a much neglected and very important field. The true history of many a hurtful dogma would turn a flood of light upon its falseness and danger. Much of Grecian philosophy and Roman paganism has been unwittingly brought into our older theology and, even in some instances, read into our versions of the Bible. It is to be hoped that Dr. Boland will continue his good work; for his relentless iconoclasm is but a burning away the rubbish that the jewels of truth may be found.

Mrs. Gross Alexander touches with a brilliant pen, in some reserve, however, that burning question of the day—"The Higher Sphere of Woman." She justly gives credit to that almost martyred class, "the strong-minded women," and very properly commends the higher education of our girls. I am glad that she took pains to destroy that much misused fiction concerning the relative numbers of the sexes. She tells us that in the United States "in 1880 . . . there were 871,857 more men than women," and so has it been that men have ever been, and are yet, in this country more numerous. With this writer all of us will not fully agree in some things she says. Get the Review and read it.

Dr. Kelley writes again on the government of our church, and the editor replies to some of the Doctor's historical slips. These articles are very timely, and will do much good. Every Methodist ought to read every one of them. The genius of Methodism is to be discovered in a careful study of her history.

I wonder if there is a preacher in the Mississippi or Louisiana Conferences who does not take our Review. If there is a young preacher who does not, let me beg that he sell one of his coats—if he can do no better—and get this periodical, which will be in his hands a "sword of temper-keen." If he does not believe this, let him send to the Publishing House and order Dr. L. T. Townsend's "Sword and Garment," and read it.

II. WALTER FEATHERSTUN.

A Trip to North Louisiana.

A call to lay the corner-stone of the new church-building at Logansport carried the writer not only to that point, but also to the neighboring towns of Keachie and Mansfield, recently. Logansport is an old town on the Sabine river, deriving its support from Louisiana and Texas about equally, as it is on the State boundary, and three hundred and fifty miles distant from New Orleans by rail.

In company with Rev. Robert Harry, who traveled with us from New Orleans; Dr. McVoy, whom we picked up at Mansfield, and Rev. S. H. Whatley, who met us at Keithville, we reached our objective in time for the proposed services, and found a crowd of fully one thousand persons in waiting. A finer-looking and more inspiring audience we have not faced in many a day, and better music than was rendered by the trained choir and instruments (organ and cornet) it has not fallen to our lot to compliment for an equally long period of time. The exercises, including the collection—which was a generous one, all things considered—lasted for three hours on a midsummer mid-day, and, in spite of the much-talked of demand of the age for more leisure and pleasure and less gospel, not a murmur was heard from the patient congregation. The dinner which followed was an old-fashioned barbecue, and included beef, mutton, pork, kld, chicken, etc., together with all the treasures of the larder and kitchen, and, in post-prandial revery, carried us back to the days of the royal gourmand, who fed all Jerusalem from his private board. It was the unanimous verdict of our party that while Logansport may be behind in some few of the elements that go to constitute the highest style and type of nineteenth century civilization, it can do the barbecue act to perfection. After dinner we had first-rate college speeches from the agent of Centenary and the president of Mansfield College, the former of whom twice delighted his audience by the statement that he had come to Logansport with the expectation of adding ten thousand dollars to the endowment fund of Centenary, but had resolved to depart without taking a collection. Bro. Harry preached at night, Dr. McVoy on Monday at eleven, and the writer in the evening; after which we took the cars for the northward, much delighted and edited by our trip.

Logansport is a town of, perhaps, eight hundred or a thousand inhabitants, thrifty and growing, with large lumber mills in process of erection. The new church is designed after a plan in our Church Extension collection, and, when completed, will be a credit both to the town and our Methodism. Its erection is mainly due to the zeal and courage of the faithful pastor, Rev. S. H. Whatley, though he has been ably seconded by several public-spirited citizens of the place. At present there is only one church-building in the town (that owned by the Baptist denomination), and the business and social interests of the place are positively halting until churches and schools can take their positions at the head of the municipal column.

Returning, we tarried with Bro. Whatley and his delightful family in the circuit manse (which, by the way, is a model one) at Keachie for several days, where we also had the pleasure of meeting Bros. Schuble and Henderson, of our North Louisiana preaching contingent. Here our party—which still included Bro. Harry, of Centenary College fame, and one of the coming men—preached, feasted and listened to many complimentary notices of the pastor from his most appreciative people.

From Keachie we journeyed alone twenty miles to Mansfield to meet many friends of other days and our patient partner in itinerant joys and sorrows in search of health amid the breezy hills and dear relationships of this lovely town. While here, in company with Bros. McVoy and Faunt LeRoy and our better halves, in huggies we visited Ricks' Wells, the newly discovered sanitarium of North Louisiana, and found much in a short visit both to instruct and enjoy. The water is said to exert a magical effect upon those afflicted with liver and kidney diseases, as well as all organisms fundamentally impaired, and even at this early period of its discovery is freely patronized. Mansfield Female College, the property of the Louisiana Annual Conference, is located here, and, while at present under the able and experienced management of Rev. A. D. McVoy, has a record for health and scholarship unsurpassed, and extending far into the past. On Sunday, at both hours, we preached for the popular pastor to a congregation whom we shall remember with affection to the end of life, and, boarding the "cannon ball" on the day following, shot homeward through enveloping clouds of dust and smoke.

This is the true prose of a poetic situation, which we have been requested by many persons to put into narrative form for the columns of the Advocate, and at its close, like the reader, we find relief.

J. M. BEARD.

The Sabbath.—No. 3.

The weekly rest, considered socially and domestically, is an institution of great value and many blessings to all classes, especially to the laboring poor. The poor man who has no weekly rest has almost no home life. The laboring classes, especially in cities, belong to the wage class. Their occupations require them to report for duty at an early hour. They can see but little of their children or families at the early hour they have to leave—not unfrequently the little ones are still asleep. Many are kept so late at their places of work that the little ones are in bed before they reach home.

Now, if no day of weekly rest sounds a truce to toil, what home life does such a man have? What influence can he exert in moulding the character and shaping the destiny of his children? Alas, most none. What home joy does such a man have? He is a stranger to the innocent pleasures and prattle of childhood, and the fond caresses and endearments of his darlings. Poor men have told me that for more than two consecutive months they have never seen their children awake or heard them speak a word. What a comfort is the weekly rest to such toil-worn men! The Sabbath breaks softly on a resting community. No scream of whistles, clabgor of bells, no crashing of the iron hoofs and wheels of commerce to disturb the calm repose. No rush or hurry to swallow his food and dash away to remorseless business. He sits at his table in clean attire; his children, like olive plants, about his board. He feels himself a man, a husband and a father, and his house a home. He is for a day a free man. He can talk with his wife and his children. He can read or be read to. He can rest on chair or mattress. He can go with his household, with them that keep holy-day, in the house of the Lord. He can take a pleasant stroll to squares and parks in the city, and to the groves and fields in the country. Blessed family!

"The day glides sweetly o'er their heads, Made up of innocence and love."

This happy condition, compared to those that know no relief from exacting and exhausting toil, is almost paradise restored.

Poor relatives and friendly neighbors can, on the eve of the resting day, make pleasant calls, and keep alive the gracious amenities of life. No buying, no selling, none of the carking cares and wasting worriments of business. What a gracious opportunity for the father to impress his example, his precepts and his counsels on his children!

Poor men should remember it as their God-given rest—a brief respite from the hard demands of their lot. Let them guard this day with sleepless vigilance. Let them firmly resist all encroachments on its God-given privileges.

Vote against and oppose all men who seek legally or by business aggressions to deprive you of your divinely-given rest. Look around you, and you will see that the trend of covetousness is to demand seven days' labor in the week. This covetousness takes many shapes, and urges many pleas; but, when analyzed, the greed of gain is always found at the bottom. All those who provide the excursions, the shows and plays do so to make money. This covetousness is steadily marching forward, and, under the plea of the imperative demands of business, is continually invading the rest of the toilers. Let this aggression on the right of the poor to rest one day in seven be pushed to its last extreme, and home, in the purpose of him who "sets the solitary in families," will be robbed of its meaning. No longer the scene and place of domestic joy, and millions will grow up devoid of the ennobling and hallowed memory of pure and happy homes.

We all know the blessed and elevating influence these memories have upon character and destiny, and we can but see the baneful influence of their lack upon the citizenship of our country.

We have been urging in this article the value of the Sabbath and the importance of preserving it, mostly in the interest of the poor, because the poor most need it for sanitary and domestic advantages, and because they are, in various ways, most likely to be deprived of it. The rich man can rest when he pleases; he is the master of his own time. He can not be forced to work earlier or later than he deems best for health and happiness; he can not be forced to toil seven days in the week under penalty of losing his place, on which his livelihood depends. But the poor can be so forced (and millions now are so forced; and that, too, in the two most civilized and Christian nations—Great Britain and the United States). Let me warn the toilers. The thin edge of the wedge has been driven in, and infidelity and covetousness, if not resisted and arrested in their purpose, will continue to drive the wedge with ever heavier blows, until the day of rest has been riven from our Christian civilization.

J. B. WALKER.

A Church Dedicated.

Our church at Camden, Miss., having been destroyed last year by a storm, a new one has been erected. This new house of worship I had the pleasure of dedicating on July 24. The building is completed and paid for. It is a neat, tasteful structure, and of ample dimensions to meet the needs of the community. To build such a house in a time of great financial stringency is no easy task. To the pastor, Rev. E. F. Elgar, great credit is due for his arduous and well-directed labors in this cause. The congregation exceeded the capacity of the building. As this was my first visit to Camden since the termination of my pastorate there, fourteen years ago, you can imagine better than I can describe the greetings of the occasion. Bro. Elgar had arranged to prostrate the services. I remained until Tuesday, and was succeeded by "Gilderoy." I hope for good results from the meeting.

W. C. BLACK.

Meridian District.

Receipts for Rev. H. G. Hawkins' traveling expenses to Japan since last report:

Lockhart (Marion circuit).....$5
Manasseh (Clarke circuit).....1

This leaves a balance of less than $20 to be raised, and my next report should show this amount fully paid. Brethren, please remit promptly.

T. L. MALKIN.

1319 N. 22d Ave., Meridian, Miss.

Important Notice.

To the Members of the Alexandria District Conference:

On account of having been overlooked, the good people of Columbia do not feel able to entertain the District Conference. Therefore the place of meeting is changed from Columbia to Evergreen, La., Aug. 18-21, 1892. Preachers and delegates will take due notice and govern themselves accordingly. J. IVY HOFFPAUR, P. E.

NOTES FROM OUR JACKSON OFFICE.

As we must render an account of every idle word, so we must likewise of our idle silence.—Selected.

Rev. A. F. Watkins and wife have reached Jackson, and are making their home on North State street. We offer our congratulations, and extend to Sister Watkins a hearty welcome to the itinerant ranks.

Bro. Downer, of Ellisville, gave us a much appreciated call last week. We were sorry we were absent, but glad he made himself at home, and acknowledge with thanks an invitation to be present at Leaf River Camp Meeting, the first of October. Will try and accept.

There are at present under the control of the Southern Baptist Convention 80 foreign missionaries, 76 native helpers, 185 stations, 67 churches, 2,600 members. The last year's reports gave 361 baptisms, 22 schools with 821 pupils. The receipts of the Board for last year amounted to $113,522.37.

The protracted meeting season is on us in full blast. Let us hear the result of these services, brethren, through the columns of the Advocate. Not long articles, but short, crisp statements of facts. Our 40,000 readers want to hear from you; but they will read the note six lines long and pass by the one the fourth of a column.

From telegraphic reports, we learn that the Baptist State Convention, which recently met in Meridian, decided to move Clifton College from the latter place to the former; Meridian offering thirty acres of land and $50,000. While we congratulate Meridian on her good fortune, we sympathize with Clifton in losing this institution, which for over thirty-five years has done such noble work for the Baptists in the State, within her corporate limits.

There is sometimes a "fatal dueny" in the pulpit. It is cured by "stoppage when you get through."

MARRIAGES.

WILLIAMS-WAINWRIGHT.—At the bride's home, near Shiloh, La., by Rev. J. B. Williams, assisted by Rev. J. L. Williams, Mr. J. Williams to Miss Adeline Wainwright.

WILLIAMS-JAMES.—At Pine Bluff, Miss., by Rev. J. V. Penn, Mr. W. W. Williams to Miss Annie James.

HAND-HOYT.—At the residence of Mr. B. A. Hand, State Line, Miss., April 12, 1892, by Rev. J. V. Penn, Mr. Thos. W. Hand to Miss Helen Hoyt, of State Line.

DONNELLY-JAMES.—At Pine Bluff, Miss., by Rev. J. V. Penn, Mr. C. B. Donnelly to Miss Annie James.

DAVIS-HOLLINGSWORTH.—In Wayne, Miss., June 29, 1892, by Rev. J. V. Penn, Mr. R. L. Davis to Miss Minnie Hollingsworth, of Wayne county.

BROWNELL-FILLINGIM.—At the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Schuller, McDonoughville, La., by Rev. Henry S. Johns, Mr. John Brownell to Mrs. Ida Fillingim, all of Louisiana.

OBITUARIES.

ROUCH.—Mrs. Charlotte Rouch, daughter of Jesse and Mary Andrus, was born near McDonoughville, La., Jan. 5, 1815, and died at the residence of her son, R. S. Wilkins, Washington, La., May 2, 1892.

Our mother was baptized in the Catholic Church in infancy, and while she was not a member of any church, she was reared with pure and noble principles. She was twice married—each time to Protestants. Though not a member of any church, she early taught us to pray and reverence God. By her example we were taught to be always truthful and honorable. The love and respect in which she was held by her neighbors, and all who knew her best, speaks for her, for she was a saint to all. Since our earliest recollection many ministers of the Gospel have been entertained by her when she kept house.

She joined the Methodist Church, June, 1861, and was quiet concerning her religious experience; her timid nature shrank from speaking all she felt. Once, with trembling lips and fearful eyes, she spoke of the change wrought in her. It can truthfully be said, she was clothed with a meek and quiet spirit, kind and unselfish to children and grandchildren, though a great sufferer for years, bearing affliction with patience and humility. Her trials and sorrows were many—twice widowed, many loved ones "gone before," among them children and grandchildren—all of whom she bore with meek submission, growing more patient in all things, clinging more closely to her Bible and prayer, and before she became aged and feeble often attended the house of God.

Her death was sudden; sick a few days, with alarming symptoms, during which time she went to sleep and awoke in heaven; for though she left no dying testimony, her meek, patient, humble life assures us our dear mother is forever at rest. HER DAUGHTERS.

BENNETT.—Mrs. ANN ELIZABETH BURNETT (nee Lackey) was born May 9, 1862, and died May 25, 1892.

While it is sad for friends and loved ones to meet no more on earth, oh, how comforting it is to have the assurance that we can meet again, to part, no, never!

Sister Bennett became a member of the Presbyterian Church while very young, and it is said she lived a consistent member therein until a few years ago, when she became the wife of Mr. G. W. Burnett, who belongs to the Methodist Church, and, there being no Presbyterian Church near her, she became a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and remained therein until death.

She leaves a husband, one child, together with a number of brothers and sisters and many friends and relatives, to mourn her loss; but we feel assured that their loss is her gain. For several months she was a victim of consumption. While thus, it was the writer's privilege to visit her two or three times. She expressed herself as being ready to go, but willing to stay, as it was God's will.

May God's blessings rest upon the bereaved ones, and may this death be the means of bringing them nearer to God!

J. T. ARNEY, P. C.

MAGRUDER.—MARIE ANNETTE MAGRUDER, only child of A. S. Johnson Magruder and Mary Annetta, Rood, was born April 3, 1891, and died May 29, 1892. A short life, but long enough to inherit the nature of the Second Adam, and in it inherit "the riches of his glory." A short life, but long enough to plant in the hearts of her father and mother the truest and sweetest of all human affections, and to lift them to a Mount of Vision where every object was sunlit and every breath was sanctification. A short life, like a sunbeam bursting upon the clouded path of two venerable lives—a sunbeam prolonging, as by photographic process, the features of a vanished son—a sunbeam that, falling from the skies, indelibly lifted the vision to its own home, and wrapped the benighted land in fascinations of endless joy. A short life; a flash of revelation upon a heavenly scene; a breath of benediction upon an earthly one. A short life, a more precious gift of divine thought, with the argument and conclusion of the wondrous volume reserved for future enjoyment. C. E. EVANS.

SHARP.—CHRISTIANA BARNWELL was the daughter of Frederick and Margaret Barnwell. She professed religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in September, 1864, at Ebenezer Church, Louisville charge (then Mississippi Conference). She was married to J. W. Sharp, March 2, 1845, and died near Stuttgart, Oktibbeha county, Miss., March 1, 1892, after being a sufferer for five or six years.

She leaves a husband and nine children and many friends to mourn her loss. But, having lived in the faith, their loss is her gain. She was devoted to her husband and her children, and her life was a life of sacrifice and devotion. A kind wife, devoted mother and consistent Christian gone to rest. The sympathies of many are with the bereaved. May the blessings of God be with them in their bereavement, and may they meet her where parting is no more! Another one of God's children gone home and leaves the testimony that "God was with her."

J. W. THEADWELL.

LASITER.—Died, at her home, near McDonoughville, La., Nov. 3, 1891, Sister MARY V. LASITER, aged nearly seventy-nine years. She was eminently "a mother in Israel." Her home-place was in Green county, N. C., whence she came south, and raised a family of fifteen children. Her piety was deep, her acquaintance with scripture, remarkable. Especially fitted in prayer, she was prominent in our protracted meetings, and widely loved and respected. Her death was sudden, and yet as peaceful as the going to sleep of a little child. Being subject to heart-disease, she passed from earth to paradise without a struggle, or a groan, or even a sigh. We all miss her on God's great circuit. Truly, her memory is blessed!

DUNNAM.—Bro. MARTIN D. DUNNAM was born May 5, 1845, in Rapides parish, La., and passed into eternity, May 29, 1892, at 2 o'clock P. M., aged forty-six years and fifteen days. He was married to Miss Jennie Shaw.

He lived on Bayou Rapides, where he erected a happy home. He was converted and joined the church at the Spring Creek Camp (ground) in 1871, under the ministry of Rev. Silas H. Cooper. From that time until his death he was a consistent member of the M. E. Church, South, and for fourteen years a good steward. He was continually developing the resources of his farm, and everything around him had the look of prosperity. His religious life was becoming more real and growing brighter and brighter. We miss him in our community and church work. He was a friend to the poor; he visited the sick and the widow and orphans in distress. He was no respecter of persons, doing good to both classes, as he thought best. There was a large number of people, white and black, rich and poor, in the procession that consigned his body to its last resting-place. He had the love of the poor in his death.

He leaves a wife and six children and a host of true friends to mourn their loss. God takes home his workmen, but carries on his work. Let us be faithful, and when life is over we will join him on the other shore.

F. G. HOGGITT.

KIRKHAM.—Mrs. MARY C. KIRKHAM was born April 20, 1816, and died in Illenville parish, near Liberty Hill, June 16, 1892, aged forty-six years one month and twenty-six days.

Sister Kirkham was from a Methodist family, and she inclined to the church of her fathers. She joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1874, and has since been a benediction to her church and community. She had been an invalid for five or six months and died a victim of consumption. In her death was John Wesley's words verified: "Our people die well." She called her husband to her bedside, and asked for all the children to come in and told them she must die, and requested them to meet her in heaven, bidding them good-by, while she saw in the room beautiful forms, and rejoiced at them. Immediately closing her eyes upon this world, she opened them in a brighter.

She leaves a husband and several children, with bright prospects for meeting her where parting will be no more. After the funeral services, a Baptist neighbor came to me in tears, and said, "You have preached the funeral of one of the best women that ever lived in this country." We know where to meet her.

J. J. KELLY.

YEAGER.—JAMES BALUS YEAGER, son of Rev. W. W. and L. J. Yeager, was born July 6, 1849, and passed from the scenes of earth to the glories of heaven, April 6, 1892.

"But seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." He obeyed the injunction of this language, and sought the Lord early; found him precious to his soul; joined the M. E. Church, South, and lived a consistent member until his Lord called him to come up higher.

Bro. James Yeager was a model young man. It was his delight to do good, and truthfulness and honesty marked every action of his life. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." He was kind and affectionate and loving, and loved by all that knew him.

Weep not, dear bereaved ones; your loss is his eternal gain. He is not dead, but "sleepeth," for Christ will come that he "may awake him out of sleep." Then there will be a joyful meeting on the other shore, where sickness, sorrow and death are felt and feared no more.

J. A. POE, P. C.

DRAKE.—BENJAMIN HOWARD, son of Rev. J. P. and Sister C. B. Drake, was born March 17, 1833, and died June 28, 1892.

For nine years Howard had brightened the sunshine and lessened the shadows of his home. He was an affectionate, dutiful and obedient boy. His was a tender conscience, and, young as he was, the careful training of godly parents had made him a watchful Christian. He was a bright boy; one whose fitness of mental fibre and largeness of spirituality was linked to a frail physique. He was an intelligent Christian, and was ready for the transplanting.

In the Spring he came forward in answer to the call for volunteers for mission work, and said, "If God calls me, I will go." When questioned as to what his actions meant, he answered: "It means that when I grow, if God calls me, I am to go, preach the gospel to the heathen. Doesn't it, papa?" God has called him to a higher estate. The family are comforted and sustained in their loss by the presence of the Holy Spirit.

J. W. CHAMBERS.

Asthma can't be cured this way. Dr. Davis' Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Tar will do it. I know it because I gave me relief. Every winter I was troubled with asthma, especially if the weather was damp, suffering severely. I took about six bottles of Davis' Wild Cherry and Tar, and am completely cured. It is the remedy for asthma.

CHAR. HENNES.

500 1/2 Chippewa Street, New Orleans, La.

Dr. Davis' Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Tar is a sure and speedy cure for coughs, colds, catarrh, bronchitis and consumption, and gives immediate relief in cases of croup and whooping-cough. Try it. One dollar bottle holds two and a half times as much as a 50c. bottle.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO THOSE SENDING MONEY.—Remittances should be made only by money orders, express company orders, registered letters, drafts or checks on New Orleans banks or exchangers. Drafts on country banks occasion a loss of from 15 to 25 cents per check. Drafts on country merchants have no facility for collecting. Checks and drafts, also money orders, should be made payable to D. L. Mitchell, Publisher.

ACME BLACKING is cheaper at 20 cents a bottle than any other Dressing at 5 cents.

A LITTLE GOES A LONG WAY

because shoes once blackened with it can be kept clean by washing them with water. People in moderate circumstances find it profitable to buy it at 20c. a bottle, because what they spend for Blacking they save in shoe leather.

It is the cheapest blacking considering its quality, and yet we want to sell it cheaper if it can be done. We will pay for a recipe that will enable us to make Wolff's ACME BLACKING at such a price that a retailer can profitably sell it at 10c. a bottle. This offer is open until Jan. 1st, 1893.

$10,000 Reward

WOLFF & RANDOLPH, Philadelphia.

Old furniture painted with

PIK-RON

(this is the name of the paint), looks like stained and varnished new furniture. One coat will do it. A child can apply it. You can change a pine to a walnut, or a cherry to mahogany; there is no limit to your fancies. All retailers sell it.

TIRED OUT HOUSECLEANERS

Playing at house cleaning is tiresome, but real house cleaning is more so.

Gold Dust Washing Powder

does the work so well, and makes it so much easier, that half the terrors of house cleaning are removed by its use. 4 lb. package 25 cents. At your grocers. Try it.

N. K. FAIRBANK & CO., Sole Manufacturers, CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS, NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON, BALTIMORE, NEW ORLEANS, SAN FRANCISCO, PORTLAND, ME., PORTLAND, ORE., PITTSBURGH AND MILWAUKEE.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR
The Celebrated
CHOCOLAT MENIER
Annual Sales Exceed 33 MILLION Lbs.
Write for Samples. Sent Free. Menier, Union Sq., N. Y.

HARDWOOD AND MARBLEIZED SLATE MANTELS.

TILE HEARTHES. GRATES AND FIRE-PLACE TRIMMINGS.
GEO. M. LEAHY,
Advocate Building, - No. 112 Camp St., New Orleans.

WE The July

PROPOSER W. C. SHEPARD & SON,
94 CAMP ST., near ROYAL, La.
The Cheapest Crockery, Glass and House-furnish-ing House in the City.

Be sure and look them up when needing goods in their line. 500 Dinner, Tea and Chamber Sets at half price.

For First-Class Photographs

GO TO SIMON'S,
No. 183 Canal St., - - - New Orleans, La.

H. Dudley Coleman Machinery Co., Lim'd,
New Orleans, La.

STEAM ENGINES, BOILERS, MILLS AND MACHINERY,
Pumps, Pipe, Presses, Pulleys, Shafting,
Saw, Sugar and Corn Mills,
Cotton Gins, Feeders and Condensers.

Examine Our Stock. Our Prices Are Very Low.

FOUNDRY, FACTORY & OFFICE, SUPPLIES & SAMPLE STORE
Cor. Magnolia and Erato Sts. 9 Perdido St., New Orleans, La.

If readers of this advertisement wish to purchase goods in our line would mention this paper when writing for information or when ordering goods from us, we could then determine whether the money we pay for advertising in this paper is well invested or not.

H. DUDLEY COLEMAN MACHINERY CO., LIMITED, New Orleans, La.

Latest Styles -- Lowest Prices!

This handsome Parlor Suit is upholstered on solid walnut frames with Imported Marbleized Silk Plush and the seats are all Spring Edge. Colors are Red, Red and Old Gold, Blue and Old Gold or each piece of a different color. For $45 I will sell seven pieces of this suit:—one Sofa, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair and three Reception Chairs. $65 buys the complete suit of ten pieces consisting of two Sofas, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair, and five Reception Chairs. Same suit covered with Hair Cloth, seven pieces $35 or ten pieces $55. Every other article in my store at proportionately low prices. Bedroom suits, twelve pieces, from $40 up to $1000 Dining room suits, eight pieces, from $17 upwards. Complete Kitchen outfits from $20 upwards. Quality at top—prices at bottom. I have an immense variety of strictly reliable goods and purchasers can depend upon getting the very latest styles. Everything guaranteed to be exactly as represented or money will be promptly refunded.

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT,

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30

Images of furniture pieces.

Images of furniture pieces.

Images of furniture pieces.

Images of furniture pieces.

Images of furniture pieces.

Images of furniture pieces.

Images of furniture pieces.

Images of furniture pieces.

Images of furniture pieces.

Images of furniture pieces.

Images of furniture pieces.

Images of furniture pieces.

Images of furniture pieces.

Images of furniture pieces.

Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company.

Losses Paid by Chicago Fire, 1871, $3,239,091.

Losses Paid by Boston Fire, 1872, $1,429,720.

All Losses Paid in Cash, without Discount, as Soon as Adjusted.

Losses and all matters of business settled by officers and directors in New Orleans without reference to any other office the same as with local companies.

DIRECTORS IN NEW ORLEANS.

GUSTAF R. WESTFELDT, L. O. FALLON, LUIGI E. MODER, O. M. BORJA

Chairman, Secretary, Treasurer, Vice-President.

OLARENCE F. LOW, Asst. Resident Sec'y. H. V. OGDEN, Resident Secretary.

The Southern Insurance Company OF NEW ORLEANS.

54 - - - CAMP STREET - - - 54

Paid up Capital, $300,000. Assets, $545,096.10.

FIRE, RIVER AND MARINE INSURANCE.

This company by its conservative, yet liberal, business methods, and the immediate availability of its assets, affords complete security to its assured. Losses promptly adjusted and paid.

ERNEST MILTENBERGER, H. GALLY, SCOTT McGEHEE,

President, Vice-President, Secretary.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Frank Rodger, J. H. Mauge, Joseph Schwartz, F. G. Ernst, T. J. Woodward.

Home Insurance Co., of New Orleans.

No. 78 CAMP STREET.

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1886, - - - $400,479.08

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1887, - - - $413,860.76

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1888, - - - $459,369.50

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1889, - - - $510,584.54

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1890, - - - $551,897.82

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1891, - - - $600,414.81

Steadily Increasing in Strength and Popularity.

Solvents Fire and River Business.

Liberal Settlements and Prompt Payments.

Thos. Setton, Pres't. Capt. J. B. Woods, Vice-Pres't. Jno. G. Byrd, Sec'y

J. E. WOODS, JNO. BARKLEY, JNO. J. BARR, ANDREW STEWART, J. R. LEVETT, W. B. BLOOMFIELD,

JOSEPH BOWLING, CHAS. E. RICE,

President, Vice-President, Secretary.

Crescent Insurance Com'y.

Incorporated as a Mutual Company in 1849.

Reorganized as a Stock Company in 1860.

Cash Capital, - - - $300,000.

Has paid over TEN AND ONE-HALF MILLIONS for losses since 1849. ANNUAL AND TERM

POLICIES issued on Desirable Fire Business.

See our Agents throughout Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas.

EVER READY DRESS STAY

See Name "EVER READY" on Back of Each Stay.

Acknowledged the BEST DRESS STAY On the Market

Made with Gutta Percha on both sides of steel and warranted water-proof. All other stays are made differently and will rust. Beware of Imitations. Take none but the "Ever Ready."

Manufactured by the YPSILANTI DRESS STAY MFG. CO., Ypsilanti, Mich.

FOR SALE BY ALL JOHNNERS AND RETAILERS.

SPECIAL MODEL DRESS STEEL CO., 74 Grand St., New York.

DEPOSITS: BROWN & METZNER, 335 Market Street, San Francisco.

"ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE."

In order to introduce our ELEGANT and ARTISTIC CRAYON PORTRAITS to yourself and your friends, we make you the following bona-fide offer, viz: If you will send us a photograph of yourself, or any member of your family, we will make from it one of our finest three-quarter length

CRAYON PORTRAITS ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE.

Our name and reputation as Artists are already well known throughout the United States but we desire to increase our customers; hence this special offer. We believe that one of our Elegant Portraits placed in your home will do more good than other advertising. Send the photograph you desire copied to us inside of THIRTY DAYS FROM DATE. The portrait we will make for you will be a sample, and its value $25.00. (It will be as fine as can be made. Be sure and write your full name and address on the back of the photograph when you send it, as this will secure for you the benefit. We guarantee its return, we have no fear of its loss. As to our responsibility, etc., we can refer you to the following parties in our city: Commercial Bank, Brooklyn, Wells, Fargo Express Company, American Express Co., United States Express Co., and E. G. Dunn & Co., New York and all commercial agencies. Hoping to receive your kind favors, we are, respectfully,

CODY & CO., 753 and 755 DeKalb Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

NOTICE.—Cut this out and return it to us with the Photograph you desire copied.

Royal Baking Powder Is Superior to Every Other.

It is a scientific fact that the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure. I will go still further and state that because of the facilities that company have for obtaining perfectly pure cream of tartar, and for other reasons dependent upon the proper proportions of the same, and the method of its preparation, the Royal Baking Powder is undoubtedly the purest and most reliable baking powder offered to the public.

HENRY A. MOTT, Ph. D.,
Late Chemist for U. S. Govt.

Episcopal Visitation for 1892 and 1893.

Conference	Date	Place	Bishop
Montana	Aug. 4	Boswell, Montana	Duncan
Western	Aug. 21	Elk City, Kansas	Hendrix
Kentucky	Sept. 7	Madisonville, Kentucky	Keener
Missouri	Sept. 11	Monticello, Missouri	Galloway
Western Virginia	Sept. 15	Charleston, West Virginia	Keener
Laurens	Sept. 21	Charleston, West Virginia	Keener
Southwest Missouri	Sept. 21	Independence, Missouri	Duncan
East Columbia	Sept. 21	Campanville, Kentucky	Fitzgerald
Louisville	Sept. 21	Penn. Hills, Kentucky	Keener
Illinois	Sept. 21	Chicago, Illinois	Keener
China Mission	Sept. 21	Kirkwood, Missouri	Galloway
Laurens	Sept. 21	Charleston, West Virginia	Keener
Columbia	Oct. 12	Sacramento, California	Granbery
Portland	Oct. 12	Tillamook, Oregon	Galloway
Houston	Oct. 12	Houston, Texas	Hargrove
Tennessee	Oct. 12	Gonzales, Texas	Hargrove
German Mission	Oct. 12	Gonzales, Texas	Hargrove
West Texas	Oct. 12	Gonzales, Texas	Hargrove
Northwest Mexico Mission	Nov. 10	El Paso, Texas	Hargrove
North Alabama	Nov. 10	Shuqualaki, Alabama	Keener
Central Mexico Mission	Nov. 10	City of Mexico	Granbery
Indian Mission	Nov. 10	San Marcos, Texas	Hargrove
Virginia	Nov. 10	Norfolk, Virginia	Hendrix
Northwest Texas	Nov. 10	Waco, Texas	Hargrove
Mexican Border Mission	Nov. 10	San Marcos, Texas	Hargrove
Memphis	Nov. 10	Memphis, Tennessee	Wilson
Arkansas	Nov. 10	Corinth, Mississippi	Hargrove
North Mississippi	Nov. 10	Sherman, Texas	Hargrove
North Texas	Nov. 10	Winston, North Carolina	Hendrix
Western North Carolina	Nov. 10	Winston, North Carolina	Hendrix
Little Rock	Nov. 10	Medford, Georgia	Wilson
North Georgia	Nov. 10	Medford, Georgia	Wilson
Alabama	Nov. 10	Medford, Georgia	Wilson
White River	Nov. 10	Natchez, Mississippi	Granbery
Mississippi	Nov. 10	Natchez, Mississippi	Granbery
East Texas	Nov. 10	Natchez, Mississippi	Granbery
Louisiana	Nov. 10	Natchez, Mississippi	Granbery
South Carolina	Nov. 10	Natchez, Mississippi	Granbery
North Carolina	Nov. 10	Natchez, Mississippi	Granbery
South Georgia	Nov. 10	Natchez, Mississippi	Granbery
Florida	Nov. 10	Natchez, Mississippi	Granbery
Baltimore	Nov. 10	Natchez, Mississippi	Granbery

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

DOMESTIC.
There were about 20,000 men out on a strike in New York City last week.

The Carnegie Iron and Steel Mills in Homestead, Pa., the scene of the recent strike and battle, began operations, on July 28, with a large force of non-union men.

Forty-six deaths from heat were reported in New York City on July 29. In Philadelphia and Chicago many deaths have also been caused by continued hot weather.

During the twenty-four hours ending at noon, July 30, there were 280 deaths reported in New York City. This is the heaviest death rate for a single day for twenty years.

It is said the University of Virginia has followed the example of Harvard and other colleges in making provision for the admission of women to study in the academic department.

The city council of Chicago has passed an ordinance, which has been signed by the mayor, appropriating $75,000 to build or buy crematories for the purpose of disposing of the city's garbage.

Definitive action on the Anti-Opium bill, which has been before the U. S. Senate for several weeks past, has been postponed, and the measure will go over until the next session as unfinished business.

Owens Lake, Cal., has been sold to an English syndicate for $3,000,000. The lake is estimated to contain soda worth $200,000,000, and the object of the purchase is stated to be the establishment of soda works.

The Mississippi River Committee will meet in New York City this week. One of the main things to be urged upon the commission will be the construction of a line of levees in Arkansas above the St. Francis Basin front, connecting with the levees built by the State up to the Arkansas line, so as to prevent the overflow of Louisiana lands. Under the existing law, as is known, it is within the power of the commission to make just as liberal expenditure as may be necessary for the building and maintenance of levees.

The great lock-out at Homestead, Pa., is just one month old and has already cost over $1,000,000, besides the sacrifice of a half score of human lives and serious injuries to many times that number. Of the loss in cash, the military has cost in round numbers $320,000, the workmen have lost in wages $180,000, and the Carnegie have lost and spent as much more in getting new workmen. The workmen at Beaver Falls, Duquesne and the Union Mills in Pittsburgh have lost about $100,000 in wages by their sympathy strike, and the firm is out $100,000 by the idleness of these plants.

The Appropriation Committee of the House have agreed to a favorable report on Mr. Bostner's bill for the relief of the sufferers by the overflow. The amount covered by the bill was reduced from $100,000 to $50,000. The bill provides that this sum be appropriated for the relief of the indigent sufferers by the overflow of the Black and Obachia rivers, in the State of Louisiana, and their tributaries, and that the said sum shall be expended under the direction of the Secretary of War, in conjunction with the governor, in the purchase of food supplies and plant seed. It is said that the passage of the bill through the House is doubtful, and if adopted by the House, the impending adjournment of Congress allows but little time for action in the Senate.

The Citizens' Savings Bank—capital, $500,000—will soon be organized in Vicksburg, Miss.

FOREIGN.
It is reported that $1,000,000 is to be spent on fortifications in British Columbia.

The Bay of Cadiz is crowded with ships of war of different nationalities, which have come to take part in the Columbus celebration held at Cadiz.

The consumption of beer in Germany amounted to 1,114,000,000 gallons in the year 1891-92, against 990,000,000 gallons in 1888, an increase of 17 per cent. while the population has increased only 4 per cent.

The negotiations between the Irish-American peace commission and the two Irish parties are proceeding quietly. The conditions of absolute secrecy have been agreed to, and if the negotiations prove abortive the details will not be published.

Several of the craters on Mount Etna are in a state of intense activity and the forward movement of the molten mass is growing more rapid, and consequently more threatening to the various villages on which the streams are advancing.

The cholera has decreased in the towns in Russia in which it first made its appearance, but in those places more recently affected by the disease, it is increasing rapidly. It has also broken out in several districts which have hitherto been free from its ravages.

At a meeting of Mr. Gladstone and his lieutenants in London it was decided to attack the government at the opening of Parliament. A resolution declaring the House of Commons had "no confidence" in the government was drafted, and it will be presented in Parliament at the earliest opportunity.

A bill has been prepared in Russia imposing a graduated tax upon income. On incomes of 1,000 roubles the tax is 1 per cent., and for every additional 1,000 roubles the rate increases one-tenth of 1 per cent. Exemptions are allowed in the cases of members of the Imperial family, nobles, and high government officials.

The Irish members of Parliament, upon whom Mr. Gladstone is dependent to secure a working majority, have declared that he must make home rule his first and final aim if he desires their continued support. The labor candidates are demanding that labor questions shall be given precedence, and it is said that fully seventy-five Liberals outside of labor ranks are in favor of putting aside home rule.

Why is it that bald-headed men do not apply the same principle to the cultivation of their hair that they do to the cultivation of their fields or anything else? If the crop is short something must be done to increase it. There is such a thing as starving the hair, which needs sustenance as well as the inner man. Where the hair is thin and scrawny and impoverished, or has altogether disappeared, it is possible to arouse the germs of reproduction and growth. This can be done by using Louisiana Creole Hair Restorer, which not only causes hair to grow and restores its color, but is a delightful and elegant dressing suitable for any toilet. One trial of this popular preparation will give results far beyond anything that its small cost can represent. Mandel Drug Co., Proprietors, Memphis, Tenn.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCES.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

SARDIS DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Cockrum, at Greenleaf	Aug. 6, 7
Conan, at Meigs's Chapel	Aug. 6, 7
Cold Water mission, at Slat Town	Aug. 13, 14
Cold Water and Hernando	Aug. 20, 21
Courland, at Eureka Springs	Aug. 20, 21
Palma, at Forest Hill	Aug. 27, 28
Mr. Vernon, at Free Springs	Aug. 27, 28
Nashville, at Radnor	Sept. 3, 4
St. Louis, at Radnor	Sept. 10, 11
Arkadelphia	Sept. 10, 11

Also request that the Records of Church Conferences and Church Registers be presented at their respective Quarterly Conferences for examination.

H. C. MORRIS, P. E.

COLUMBUS DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Hebron	Aug. 6, 7
Shuqualaki	Aug. 13, 14
Macdon	Aug. 20, 21
Saville station	Aug. 20, 21
Pheba	Aug. 27, 28
Brookville	Aug. 27, 28
Columbus circuit	Sept. 3, 4
Columbus circuit	Sept. 10, 11

T. C. WIER, P. E.

GREENVILLE DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

New Salem	Aug. 6, 7
Archa	Aug. 13, 14
Glen Allen	Aug. 20, 21
Chamory and Smithville	Aug. 20, 21
Jonestown	Aug. 27, 28

H. M. STANLEY, P. E.

HOLLY SPRINGS DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Went Grove	Aug. 6, 7
Went Pleasant	Aug. 13, 14
Oliver Branch	Aug. 20, 21

JNO. W. BOSWELL, P. E.

CORINTH DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Blue Springs circuit	Aug. 6, 7
Guntown circuit	Aug. 13, 14
Jonesboro circuit	Aug. 20, 21
Trilley circuit	Aug. 20, 21
Ripley and New Albany	Aug. 27, 28
New Albany circuit	Sept. 3, 4
New Albany circuit	Sept. 10, 11

W. S. LAGUNA, P. E.

GRAND DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Grand circuit, at Duck Hill	Aug. 6, 7
Chapel Hill circuit, at Spring Hill	Aug. 13, 14
Pittsburg circuit, at Tabernacle	Aug. 20, 21
Atlanta circuit, at Gore's Chapel	Aug. 20, 21
Tillatoba circuit, at Ebenezer (Tillatoba)	Aug. 27, 28
Water Valley circuit, at Camp Ground	Aug. 27, 28

Let me urge the preachers to hold their conferences regularly, to be mindful of the ordinance of baptism and the Lord's Supper, and to exhort the people to fast and pray.

W. T. J. SULLIVAN, P. E.

ABERDEEN DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Shannon	Aug. 6, 7
Shannon circuit	Aug. 13, 14
Okolona circuit	Aug. 20, 21
Palma	Aug. 20, 21
Athens	Aug. 27, 28
Amory and Smithville	Aug. 27, 28
Houston and Wesley	Sept. 3, 4
Buena Vista	Sept. 10, 11

J. B. STONE, P. E.

WINONA DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Greenwood	Aug. 6, 7
Laurens circuit, at Spring Hill	Aug. 13, 14
Black Hawk	Aug. 20, 21
Winona circuit	Aug. 20, 21
Valdese	Aug. 27, 28
Carroll circuit	Sept. 3, 4
Carroll station	Sept. 10, 11

S. M. THAMES, P. E.

KOSCIUSKO DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Chester	Aug. 6, 7
Saupe	Aug. 13, 14
New Port	Aug. 20, 21
Pickens	Aug. 20, 21
Lexington and Tchula	Aug. 27, 28
Kosciusko circuit	(Wed.) Sept. 3, 4
Poplar Creek	(Wed.) Sept. 10, 11
Rural Hill	Sept. 10, 11

H. A. BURROUGHS, P. E.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

MERIDIAN DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Daleville station, at Bethel	Aug. 6, 7
Laurens circuit, at Bethel	Aug. 13, 14
Laurens circuit, at Vernal	Aug. 20, 21
Whore and State L., at S. L. (Wed.)	Aug. 20, 21
Waynesboro circuit, at S. L. (Wed.)	Aug. 20, 21
Shubuta circuit, at Quittman	Aug. 27, 28
Clarke circuit, at Liberty	Sept. 3, 4
Porterville circuit, at Burton	Sept. 10, 11
Clarke circuit, at Spring Hill	Sept. 10, 11
Marion circuit	Sept. 17, 18

Attention of the preachers is called to Quies 15, as well as to Quies 16, to which the notice of the Conference secretaries is also called. The books should be present for examination. Let the quarterly fast be observed. Let us continue to pray for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon preachers and people.

T. L. MELLER, P. E.

JACKSON DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Sharon circuit, at Forest Grove	Aug. 6, 7
Madison circuit, at Pearl River	Aug. 13, 14
Jackson circuit, at Capitol Street	Aug. 20, 21
Yazoo circuit, at Transquill	Aug. 20, 21
Raymond circuit, at Raymond	Aug. 27, 28
Edwards circuit, at Edwards	Aug. 27, 28
Lake City and Lodi circuit, at Lodi	Sept. 3, 4
Sliver creek circuit, at Sliver Creek	Sept. 10, 11
Pocahontas circuit, at Flag's Chapel	Sept. 10, 11

Special attention is called to Quies 15.

E. H. MOUNDER, P. E.

VICKSBURG DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Morton, at Rodney	Aug. 6, 7
Meadville, at Mayersville	Aug. 13, 14
Port Gibson	Aug. 20, 21
South Warren, at Red Bone (Wed.)	Aug. 20, 21
Bozzy	Aug. 27, 28
Angella and Bolling Fork	Aug. 27, 28
Rocky Springs	Sept. 3, 4
Umsco	Sept. 10, 11

D. A. LITTLE, P. E.

SEASHORE DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Perry, at Isabelle	Aug. 6, 7
Helders, at Loggery	Aug. 13, 14
Ellenville, at Laurel	Aug. 20, 21
Purvis, at Poplarville	Aug. 20, 21
Eastabouie, at Eastabouie	Aug. 27, 28
Pocahontas circuit, at Enon	Sept. 3, 4

Others will appear in due time.

JOHN A. ELLIS, P. E.

BROOKHAVEN DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Adams circuit, at Bethel	Aug. 6, 7
Brookhaven circuit, at Adams Ch. (P. M.)	Aug. 13, 14
Toplaw	Aug. 20, 21
Laurens circuit, at Bethel	Aug. 20, 21
Macdonald, at Muddy Springs	Aug. 27, 28
McComb City	Aug. 27, 28
Summit	Sept. 3, 4
Lebanon, at Blue Hill	Sept. 10, 11
Caseville, at Galtville	Sept. 10, 11
Bowerton, at Pleasant Grove	Sept. 17, 18
Gallman, at St. Pleasant	Sept. 17, 18
Terry, at Byron	Sept. 24, 25
Chilch Grove circuit	Sept. 24, 25
Pleasant Grove circuit	Sept. 24, 25

R. S. WOODWARD, P. E.

SHANNON DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Fannin, at Drake's Church	Aug. 6, 7
Marvin, at Richmond Academy	Aug. 13, 14
Shiloh, at Elm Springs	Aug. 20, 21
Carthage circuit	Aug. 20, 21
Carthage and Walnut Grove	Aug. 27, 28
Walnut Grove circuit	Aug. 27, 28
Brandon station	Sept. 3, 4
Shiloh, at New Providence	Sept. 10, 11
Raleigh, at Elm Hill	Sept. 10, 11
Trenton, at Trenton	Sept. 17, 18
Courland, at Eureka Springs	Sept. 17, 18
Westville, at Pleasant Grove	Sept. 24, 25
St. Rose, at Holder	Sept. 24, 25

C. McDONALD, P. E.

WOODVILLE DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Zachary, at Zachary	Aug. 13, 14
Clinton and Laughter, at Bethel	Aug. 20, 21
Antioch circuit, at Tappahanna	Aug. 20, 21
Antioch circuit, at Camp Ground	Aug. 27, 28
Glossier and Cherry Hill, at Camp G.	Aug. 27, 28
Franklin, at Pine Grove	Sept. 3, 4
Live Oak, at Bethel	Sept. 10, 11
St. Helena, at Wesley Chapel	Sept. 10, 11
East Feliciana, at Gilead	Sept. 17, 18
Springfield, at Camp Ground	Sept. 17, 18
Springfield, at Camp Ground	Sept. 24, 25
Tallcheek, at Camp Ground	Sept. 24, 25

P. A. JOHNSTON, P. E.

Three Things to Remember.

Hood's Sarsaparilla has the most MERIT, has won unequalled SUCCESS, accomplishes greatest CURES. Is it not the medicine for you?

Hood's Pills cure liver ills, jaundice, biliousness, sick headache, constipation.

CAMP MEETINGS.

The camp meeting at the Water Valley (Miss.) Camp Ground will begin on the second day of September, 1892. Everybody is invited to attend. J. W. PIERCE, P. C.

Those desiring to attend the Holiness Camp Meeting, at Scottsville, Texas, Aug. 9-19, and living in New Orleans and on the Southern Pacific railroad, can procure round-trip tickets at one and one-third fare to Alexandria, where they will take the Texas Pacific, procuring the same rates of one and one-third fare for the round trip. Tickets on sale at Southern Pacific stations, Aug. 8 and 9; at Texas Pacific stations, Aug. 8 and 9.

F. S. PARKER.

Camp Meeting Calendar.

Camp Meet'g.	Begin.
Bethel	Aug. 4
Rapides	Aug. 6
Scottsville	Aug. 9
Toplaw	Aug. 12
Cypress	Aug. 12
Providence	Aug. 18
Sam Jones	Aug. 26
Hennington	Sept. 1
Water Valley	Sept. 2
Orville-Whittington	Sept. 2
Whittington	Sept. 2

An Only Daughter Cured of Consumption.
When death was hourly expected from Consumption, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experiencing, he accidentally made a preparation of Indian Hemp, which cured his only child, and now gives this recipe free on receipt of two stamps to pay expenses. Hemp also cures night sweats, nausea at the stomach, and all other ailments of the system. It is sold in twenty-four bottles, at each bottle $1.00. Address Craddock & Co., 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, Pa., naming this paper.

"Receive ye the Holy Ghost" is the mightiest of all boons; but like the sun in the heavens, it is the freest of all.—The Faithful Promiser.

HOW TO KEEP COOL.

If you are looking for pleasant locations to spend the hot days at moderate cost, write to D. G. Edwards, G. P. A., Queen and Crescent Route, Cincinnati, O., for copy of Queen and Crescent Book entitled, "Summer Days," which will be mailed promptly free of charge.

All persons desiring to purchase choice Pianos, Organs, Musical Instruments or Music, should not fail to visit the large establishment of L. Grunewald Co., Limited, at Nos. 127 Canal and 14 to 20 Baronne streets, New Orleans.

HOLLINS INSTITUTE.

H

Christian Advocate.

VOL. 39.—NO. 32.

NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, AUGUST 11, 1892.

WHOLE NO. 1877.

Rev. C. W. CARTER, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. LEWIS, Ass't Editor.

PUBLISHED FOR THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE AND NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

"Old Scotia."

Leaving Glasgow on the early morning of Saturday for a day through the lakes and the Trossachs, the skies were gloomy, and promised an unfavorable opportunity to see the land of Rob Roy. And in that we were not disappointed. We had what the Irish call very "poor weather," or as an old Scotchman phrased it, "a soft day." There was no downpour—rarely is in this country—but a heavy mist, with occasional showers. Altogether, the climate to me is atrocious—cold, wet, penetrating and cheerless. I very much regretted the heavy, murky clouds that day of all others, for much of the beauty of Loch Lomond and Loch Katrine and the grandeur of Ben Lomond depend upon sunlight and shadow. Nevertheless, I thoroughly enjoyed the trip, and concluded that the genius of Sir Walter Scott had not exhausted the glories of that wonderful land of story and chivalry. Loch Lomond is a grand body of clear, deep water, thirty miles long, dotted with many little islands, and its shores adorned with a number of pretty villages. The mountain-sides, unlike those in Ireland, which are cultivated up to the top, exhibit nature in her rugged grandeur—only relieved here and there by browsing sheep and the cottage of a shepherd. So completely did clouds enwrap the shoulders of Ben Lomond that we could only see in faint outline that majestic monarch of the highlands. At Inversnaid we mounted coaches for a drive of five and a half miles over the mountains that separate the waters of Loch Lomond and Loch Katrine. Along the way quite valuable was the patriotic driver in giving the history of different points. Here was the cottage of Rob Roy; there two gallant knights met in mortal combat; within that secluded glen the clans gathered; from that height the pibroch sounded, and on, on, with glowing eloquence and a seeming lament that these prosaic days had lost taste for Highland chiefs and Caledonian chivalry. The rain descended so constantly as to largely obscure the charms of Loch Katrine, until we were sailing around Ellen's Isle and ready to land. There, however, the rare beauties of that gem of the mountain lakes are most delightfully displayed. Just that view from the deck of our little steamer, with the wild, precipitous mountains on either side, fair Ellen's Isle just behind us, lying her luxuriant tresses in the laughing waves, and the gloomy grandeur of the Trossachs before us, was ample compensation for a trip across the Atlantic.

Another ride in coaches of eight miles brought us to the village of Abertoy, where rail-carriages were in waiting for Edinburgh. We had nearly an hour's delay in Stirling, but the inclement weather prevented a visit to the famous castle. I contented myself with a study of it from the depot. From its towers may be seen the Oramplian hills and the field of Bannockburn, near which we also passed on route to Edinburgh. On a neighboring height the Wallace monument overlooks the plains for a great distance. In an hour we were crossing the immense bridge over the Frith of Forth—said to be the greatest structure of the kind in the world—and dashing into the station of the beautiful capital of Scotland. Of all places yet seen, Edinburgh is fairest to the eye of beauty and richest in historic association. Here I could spend weeks with undying interest. The center of the great Reformation led by stern John Knox, the throne of kings, the scene of battles, the familiar haunts of scholar and philosopher, the proud seat of learning, and the mother of genius, it has a strange fascination for one who has read and is eager to learn. You look upon buildings hoary with age, and recall the history of centuries written there. You walk streets along which kings rode to their coronation, or down which they were dragged to violent death. In that building Burns resided; over there David Hume wrote most of his history; yonder Adam Smith lived and wrote his "Law of Nations." In an upper room in that house Lord Jeffrey and Sydney Smith drew up the plan and projected the Edinburgh Review; down that narrow street is the house where Lord Brougham was born; this was Boswell's house, the biographer of Johnson, by whom the Doctor was entertained when in Edinburgh; and so on through most of the old city beyond the castle.

After a refreshing night's rest I was ready to enjoy the holy day. Where should I worship? Who were the successors of Chalmers, Guthrie, Hanna and others, to break to the hungry the Bread of Life? Looking over the appointments published in Saturday's papers, I decided to hear Dr. McGregor, pastor of St. Cuthbert's Church of Scotland. As the church is being rebuilt on the old site, the congregation is worshipping in Synod Hall, a very large room which seats easily three thousand persons. At this Sabbath service it was filled to its utmost capacity. Dr. McGregor has reputation for great eloquence, and always commands large congregations. He is very small in stature—not more than five feet six or seven inches—with full whiskers, grey and cut short, and a broad, receding forehead. His voice is clear and musical; his enunciation distinct and easily understood, notwithstanding his Scotch accent; his manner earnest, and at times vehement; his gesticulation unstudied and nervous; his diction polished, and at times both terse and ornate. He wore a black gown, as did also his young assistant minister, who conducted the introductory service. The text was Dan. iv. 35: "And he doeth according to his will in the army of heaven, and among the inhabitants of the earth: and none can stay his hand, or say unto him, What dost thou?" Of course, from that text he gave us good, strong Calvinism, which, he said, had been grossly misinterpreted; but his clear, strong orthodoxy on the subject of Divine authority and sovereignty, as against the guesses of science, was most refreshing. But much of the sermon was an argument against the disestablishment of the Church of Scotland, which question has been thrust, it seems, into the issues of the general parliamentary election now exciting the whole country. In the pews were scattered a printed appeal to the people of Scotland in behalf of the National Church, in which the statement is made that the "livings" of that church were open alike to all Presbyterians in the country. It was a very able discourse, and evidently produced a profound impression. Nevertheless, the movement inaugurated by Dr. Chalmers will result in the disestablishment and disendowment of the church, which, to the eyes of an American, is exactly right.

At the close of the sermon was a baptismal service, which varied somewhat from the Presbyterian form in "the States." The fathers of the little ones stood in line inside the chancel, while the mothers, with the babes, sat together in a pew very near. The pastor made a short address to the fathers, and then, one by one, the mothers approached, gave the little one to the father, and he, handing the pastor a card with the name of the child, held it in his arms while receiving the rite of baptism. Though not presuming to pass criticism, the service seemed to undervalue the parental authority of the mother. I believe firmly in the headship of the home, but also most profoundly in the joint responsibility of parents, and the larger influence of the mother in developing the character and spirituality of the children.

In the afternoon I went out to a smaller church, holding some sort of anniversary services, to hear Prof. W. G. Blake, at present, I believe, Moderator of the General Assembly of the Free Presbyterian Church of Scotland. I have a helpful volume from his pen in my library at home, and desired to hear his voice and look into his kindly face. He preached a thoroughly evangelistic and very practical sermon. His voice is thin and a bit unpleasant, and he is without any of the graces or magnetism of an orator; but his manner is very devout and earnest, and his style of address quite persuasive. His illustrations were apt and his historic allusions felicitous. The congregation did not fill the house, but was, doubtless, very good for an early afternoon hour. It gave me great gratification to hear such preaching in a city where mind is so alert, learning is so advanced, and thought is so daring. Surely young amateur theologians can safely wait and cease prating about liberal thinking and the "scientific method," while such masters hold so tenaciously to the integrity of the faith of the fathers. I shall ever count it one of the privileges of life to have spent a worshipful Sabbath in the city of Edinburgh.

On my way to hear Prof. Blake, I encountered a detachment of the Salvation Army marching up the street, singing, and beating tambourines, followed by a crowd of boys. As I returned, the small congregation was coming down from the barracks. From diligent inquiry I learn that the Army has not accomplished much in Scotland and Ireland. Its influence is no greater than in America. What it is doing in England, I shall ascertain when in London, if possible.

Returning to my hotel, I turned into the Old Grey Friars' Churchyard, and spent a sweetly-solemn half-hour. In that church the National League and Covenant was signed, some of the brave men writing their names in blood from their own veins. I found the "Martyrs' Monument" with its quaint inscription, at the bottom of which these lines were noted down: "From May 27, 1661, that the most noble Marquis of Argyll was beheaded, to the 17th of February, 1688, that Mr. James Fenwick suffered, were one way or other, murdered and destroyed for the same cause about eighteen thousand, of whom were executed at Edinburgh, about one hundred of noblemen, gentlemen, ministers and others, noble martyrs for Jesus Christ. The most of them lie here." There also is the grave of Allen Ramsey, the poet, to whom a splendid monument is erected in Princess Street Gardens. Dr. Hugh Blair sleeps there, whose sermons I have read, and whose book on rhetoric every college boy studied twenty-five years ago. I saw the grave of William Ged, the inventor of stereotyping, and in the great library in old Parliament House, next day, was shown the first stereotype plate ever used—made for printing an edition of Sallust. And so I passed the silent dust of George Buchanan, the historian and Latinist; of Alexander Henderson, of the Westminster Assembly of Divines, and who, it is claimed, prepared most of the Assembly's Catechism; and many, many others, distinguished in Church and State.

Monday morning, early and in the rain, I started out to "do the city." At once I was impressed with the comparative quiet of the Scottish capital—the absence of that industrial hum and commercial push to be seen in Glasgow. Everything moves with a serene dignity, as though gaining gold was subordinate; something else was more important. First, I stopped in St. John's Churchyard (Episcopal) to see the grave of Sir William Hamilton, the distinguished philosopher, professor and author. I jotted down this inscription on his tomb: "His aim was by a pure philosophy to teach that, now we see through a glass darkly, now we know in part; he hoped that in the life to come, he should see face to face, and know even also as he is known." There also other men known to fame sleep the last long sleep. In St. Cuthbert's yard, which adjoins, are the remains of that weird child of genius, Thomas de Quincey; Napier, inventor of the logarithms, and others. A few minutes' walk took me to the Castle, the most commanding and picturesque of all European buildings yet seen. Of its history I shall not attempt to write. I visited the room of Mary, Queen of Scots, where King James was born; saw the Crown Room, where the Scottish regalia are kept, and everything else, and made my way down the hill to St. Giles' Cathedral, where John Knox thundered and shook the foundations of popery. That is the most sacred shrine in Scotland, as it should be. Near is the grave of the brave Reformer, and down the narrow street is the house where he lived. I went through it, sat in his old chair in the little study, looked out the window from which he preached when too feeble to go to the church, and prayed that the spirit of John Knox might ever characterize the ministry of the land he loved, and for which he so courageously labored and suffered. Of the library in Parliament House, where I saw the manuscript of Sir Walter Scott's Waverley, and other rare things; of Holyrood Palace and Chapel, with Queen Mary's apartments kept as she left them, etc.; of old Edinburgh University, with its venerable buildings and three thousand three hundred students; of the monuments of Sir Walter Scott, Burns, Sir James Wilson, etc.; of the graves of Dugald Stewart, Adam Smith, Horatio Bonar, Thomas Chalmers, Dr. Guthrie, Hugh Miller, and hundreds of others—what could I not say? But I have not the time to write, and your columns can not afford the space.

This morning I leave for London, stopping for a few hours at Melrose Abbey and Abbotsford, the home of Sir Walter Scott. Fraternally,

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY.
Edinburgh, July 5, 1892.

Letter from Mexico.

MR. EDITOR: Your interesting paper now cheers our home by its weekly visits. For this I hereby tender due thanks to you and to our good Bro. Weems, who led me to the blessing hereby enjoyed. He also requested me to write an occasional letter. Confiding in your good-will along this line, I now venture to comply with his request. I shall try to be brief.

It is now well-nigh twenty years since we, as a church, plucked ourselves as missionaries among the Hispano-American people, whose borders touch our own as a nation on the south and west.

Of the first men who came, only Sutherland remains in the field; Daves survives at home; the other leader, Patterson, sleeps the long, quiet sleep on the shores of South America. Others have come and gone since they; some to the rest beyond the river, and some to other fields and employ. In view of this ever-changing column of men, we can truly say, "Workers come and workers go, but the work goes on forever," and in its steady march has crossed the experimental line, and is now an established, fixed part of American Methodism. It has made its history. And what a history! Who writes it will have a thrilling task, and to write it well will require a master's pen. Who reads it will be the better for it, for the heart-strings will be touched and the soul will respond in greater deeds of love and devotion to the cause of universal evangelization. Yes, no future history of the Methodist people and their far-reaching organization will be complete without the land of the ancient Aztecs, Incas, Mexicans and their descendants.

The historian's pen must portray how Robertson faded away and died with his head, hands and heart full of plans and deeds for the uplifting of Mexico; how McDonald died on the march away from his wife and babies, among his well-beloved Mexican members; how Freeman and Patterson fell victims to the terrible small-pox and yellow fever; how our native preachers as well as foreigners were stoned, imprisoned and killed, and how the men who planted the true gospel in this country toiled on amid trials and against the odds of climate, diet and disease, until one by one they succumbed, but left the undying monument of their labors behind in a Mexican Methodist Church that will stand till time shall be no more.

From the start our work has moved steadily forward. We have never lost an inch of ground once gained, but, holding fast that which we have, we have pressed forward into regions beyond in a way that is more startling than any progress of missions known in history, perhaps. That is putting it strongly; but we think facts sustain us. Take your map down and put your finger at San Antonio, Texas, on the border, and the City of Mexico in the center of the Republic, and hence describe a circle in each case, whose diameter shall be about 250 miles, and you will include about all we had of this vast work ten years ago, while now you must go through every border State of both nations, from the Gulf of Mexico to the Pacific Ocean, together with two interior States of Mexico, to compass the work begun about San Antonio, Texas, and embraced ten years ago in above circle. This is about 400 by 2,000 miles of territory now practically covered, while the circle at the national capital has since extended also across the continent, having now on the Pacific coast a front of nearly 500 miles of work. This territory is overseen by three full-fledged Annual Conferences, with well-nigh a hundred itinerant preachers, and, perhaps, at this writing over 5,000 members commune at Southern Methodist altars. And all of this in twenty years—the greater part of it in the last ten years!

And now, my dear reader, the best of all is, we see greater things further on. It only remains for "the people who are called Methodists" to turn their prayers, their young men and their consecrated money to this field in order to raise up a native church which in less than a century will be self-supporting, and one of the enthusiastic missionary bodies active in the conversion of the world. What a tremendous responsibility is ours! May we be equal to the task!

It has been, and is yet, my earnest conviction that the missionary road for Protestants to China, India, Japan and Africa runs lengthwise of the American Continent. A far-reaching policy would first make the great Western Continent a stronghold of evangelical sentiment both in Church and State from Alaska to Cape Horn. Then, with the greatest section of the earth as a united base of supplies, the far east could be bombarded so thick and fast that her moss-covered walls of seclusion and paganism would totter and fall, and "nations would be born in a day." And it we are true to what God has done for us so far in this country, and follow up the guiding pillar of cloud and fire, the sons of the ancient braves whom Cortez murdered, will take part in that eastern campaign yet ere the final victory is won. Let us conserve and save Mexico, our neighbor. The heaven works out through immediate layers of the mass best.

Now, in conclusion, let me say every sign is propitious for us in Mexico. At least, that's the case in my corner of the field.

In my next—if you want a next—I will deal with actual field notes. Yours fraternally,

J. D. SCOGGINS.
Guadalupe, Mexico.

[By all means send us the "next." EDITOR.]

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. E. H. Casey, Clarksdale, Miss., July 23: "Bro. Jno. Clark, father of our town and the oldest member of our church, died to-day at Saratoga, N. Y., at 1:30 P. M. We are sad and cast down; but we do not mourn as those without hope."

Rev. J. F. Wynne, Pineville, La., July 27: "Am thankful to report a glorious meeting at Hickory Grove. About twenty-five conversions and reclamations, and the church wonderfully revived. Have received forty-four members and baptized twenty-eight children on my circuit up to date."

Rev. J. F. Evans, Aug. 2: "Rev. R. A. Burroughs, presiding elder of the Kosciusko district, is in very bad health. He will be forced to take a rest of, at least, six weeks. The church and preachers will please not look for him, or call on him to do any work until he has regained his health. I write under the advice of his physician. Pray for him."

John H. Copes, Magnolia, Miss.: "Hurrah for the brave brothers who have taken a stand against commencement balls at our State institutions of learning. I hope they will continue to agitate the subject until Christians get aroused and demand that this folly shall cease. I don't think it right for them to encourage what a great majority of Christians teach to be a sin."

Rev. J. A. Bowen, Aberdeen, Miss., Aug. 1: "We are glad to state that four saloons have died in Aberdeen this year, as the results of the 'new law' and a healthy, growing Christian sentiment. Other saloons are on their death-bed. God has called four promising young men out of our men's prayer meeting to preach the gospel. We have a revised roll of four hundred members in the church. Come to see us."

Rev. J. H. Mitchell, Macon, Miss., Aug. 1: "We have been gathering into the church members ever since the meeting and up to date. We have received fifty-nine. I suppose we will receive, perhaps, sixty-five. We have organized an Epworth League with about thirty-six members, which promises to do much good. Macon has never been in such a high spiritual condition before. Will have a young man to license to preach at Quarterly Conference."

Rev. Geo. W. Huff, J. P., North Wilkinson circuit, Mississippi Conference, July 29: "We have just closed a good meeting at Mars Hill. Six precious souls were added to the church; also a number converted, and the church greatly revived. Bro. Simmons, of Gloster and Centerville station, assisted us in the meeting. His preaching was plain and pointed, full of love and comfort. Sinners wept and Christians shouted. Bro. E. A. Flowers preached us two good sermons. His prayers and tears have a telling effect for good. Pray for us."

Rev. R. D. Noraworthy, Crystal Springs, Miss., Aug. 2: "This is a happy day in the parsonage at Crystal Springs. Two years ago, on the occasion of my birthday, we were heavily pained, and now my birthday has come again. We have had no pointing or storming, but have just enjoyed a most delightful dinner, prepared by thoughtful and loving hands, and sent to the parsonage just at our regular dinner hour. We will not attempt to itemize the good things and the variety, but will say that nothing was lacking to make up an excellent dinner. But we will say that the preacher and his family all, while they gratefully appreciate every expression of loving thought on the part of this noble people, do appreciate the bouquet of flowers sent by our suffering little friend, (the Easterling). I would write more, but fear we will cause some of my brethren to desire to come to this delightful preacher's home. We are getting along hopefully."

Mrs. S. G. Weems, Brookhaven, Miss.: "The 'Little Workers' of Brookhaven are alive and faithful. Notwithstanding rain and heat, our attendance compares favorably with the attendance of the regular church services. It is true, some have fallen by the way, unwilling to endure the heat and burden of the day; but, while this is true, there comes cheering news from some of our absent 'workers'—among whom was a sweet, fragile little girl of only a few summers, who was here at school and became one of the most interested of our workers. I think the dear child had been truly converted to God, and felt in her little heart that she was, in truth, 'the child of the King.' She wanted to join the church; but her guardian did not feel like assuming such a responsibility while she was separated from her parents. But our dear one returned to her loved ones, told them of her desire, and then said she wanted to see an altar of prayer erected in her home. Not finding anyone willing to undertake this duty, this precious child asked permission to be allowed to do it herself. Then this tender babe took the Bible, read the lesson, and reverently knelt and prayed; and has kept it up all this summer. So you see that while our little lambs are scattered, they are not idle in the work of the Lord. Pray for us and the 'Little Workers.'"

Rev. J. H. Foreman, Daniel, Miss., July 30: "I want to say something about our meetings at New Prospect and Piney Grove, on Trenton circuit. Our pastor's health has failed. He came down to New Prospect, but was not able to preach; but, by the help of God, we are carrying the work on. One of the members of New Prospect Church, and a steward, told me that their church was in a better condition, spiritually, than it ever had been. There were eleven conversions, two accessions, and the church wonderfully revived. We have a good Sunday-school and prayer meeting. The members resolved to live Christians in the future. Bros. J. C. Ellis, Lane and Clark did a good work. To God be all the praise. We had a glorious meeting at Piney Grove. God came in power, convicted and converted souls, and the church wonderfully blessed. We baptized four infants, four adults, and received twelve in the church. We have a lively Sunday-school and prayer meeting at Piney Grove. Showers of rain fell every day during the meeting; but that was not all. Showers of grace divine came every day, and almost at every service, and men and women shouted praises to God. The altar was crowded with penitents to the last. The people moved to every proposition. Good resolutions were passed, and a determination made among the Christians to live better, more holy, more upright in the future than they had in the past. They say they are going to build a new church. Bros. Lane and Nobles did acceptable work during the meeting. Bro. Griffin came by Sunday, and preached us a gospel sermon. Pray for us, that we may, by the help of God, be able to pull down the strongholds of Satan, and build thereupon the kingdom of our blessed Lord and Master."

THE PASSING YEARS

They are slipping away, these swift, sweet years,
Like a leaf on the current of time,
With never a break in the rapid flow,
We watch them as they pass by,
And the heart is full of a sad, sweet sigh.

One after another, these years pass
Down the stream of life's swift flow,
We hear the sound of their steady tread,
Up the steps of the centuries long since dead,
As they pass and as they fall.

There are only a few years left to love,
Shall we waste them in idle strife?
Shall we trample under our ruthless feet
Those beautiful blossoms, rare and sweet,
The dusty way of life?

There are only a few swift years, 'tho' let
No conscious time be heard.
Make life's fair pattern of rare design,
And fill up the measure with love's sweet Wine.

But never an empty word.

Bible Sanctification.

It must be acknowledged by all that the very nature of faith is, that whatever is received "is as far off"—that is, it is "in the world which is to come." The new creation, the new world, and all its blessedness, was to the Old Testament saints, and is to us now, a thing of faith; so that, while living with reference to heaven and its laws, it may be truly said "that the just shall live by faith." As subjects fitted for heaven under the law, or under the Old Testament saints, or the sanctified, were made acceptable; or, rather, their acceptability was illustrated or revealed by types which pointed to Christ as the real way.

When Christ came into this world it was not to make a new revelation, or in any wise to add to the revelation made to the Old Testament saint only by demonstration, by which the things held forth to faith in inexplicable mystery should be made clear.

As "yesterday," so "to-day"—terms that refer to the Old Testament period, and that known as the gospel. It may be truly said, "But of him are ye in Christ Jesus, who of God is made unto us wisdom, and righteousness, and sanctification, and redemption"—all of which is a matter of faith, which, in reality, "is as far off," but under the law of faith, in a mystery, is made known to us now, even a sensible experience that is known to our fallen condition.

The study of these revelations, conjointly, evidently will advance to a full and clear conception, by faith, of all that is proposed, viz: the full and perfect redemption of the whole man, soul and body, so much so that in this full knowledge by revelation the saint, like Paul, may, by faith, see himself glorified, and even see the distinguished place in heaven to be occupied.

"I knew a man in Christ above fourteen years ago (whether in the body, I can not tell; or whether out of the body, I can not tell: God knoweth); such an one caught up to the third heaven. And I knew such a man (whether in the body, or out of the body, I can not tell: God knoweth); how that he was caught up into paradise, and heard unspeakable words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter. Of such an one will I glory: yet of myself I will not glory, but in mine infirmities." (II. Cor. xii, 2-5.)

Evidently Paul refers to himself. This advance knowledge by revelations through faith, and a consequent sensible experience, came to Paul some time after his conversion—perhaps ten years after. In this he had a clear perception of a perfect redemption, and the reflex effect was a sensible experience, amounting to satisfaction. "Of such an one will I glory." At the same time, however, he appeals to his present earthly state as one of infirmity, which was brought about by sin. "Yet of myself I will not glory, but in mine infirmities." And lest he should be exalted above measure through the abundance of the revelations, there was given to him a thorn in the flesh, the messenger of Satan to buffet him, lest he should be exalted above measure. In this there is a full recognition of the present fallen condition as in the other, the glorified condition.

Here he shows that the glorified experience can be claimed only as an experience of faith; that "it is unlawful for a man to utter"—that is, claim it as a present real experience, and the reason is given, viz: lest any man should think of him above that which be seeth him to be, or that he heareth of him.

No wonder that these latter-day saints—the sanctified—are looked on so strangely. We wonder what sort of beings they are; whether they are unlike other believers, and what additional change they will realize when Christ shall appear, for then "this vile body (being) shall be changed and fashioned like unto his glorious body," or just as we have now received it by faith.

With reference to our present condition, our real fallen being, no one will deny that it is an experience of a prolonged death, as is indicated by the terms, "bearing the cross," being "mortified," and becoming "a living sacrifice," and quite a number of other expressions, all of which show that "the all manner of concupiscence wrought in us" by the fall is not exterminated, but subjected to the severest death, and that throughout our whole earthly life. These terms, with a common-sense experience, show to all that inbred or inherited depravity of sin is not exterminated, but crucified, mortified, donned, etc., and being present, is transmitted to each successive generation of children, all of whom must be led to see their redemption in like manner as their parents. Hence, as with Moses, by typical revelation, so to us, after the demonstrated revelation, we are alike sanctified, counted righteous, or perfectly redeemed by faith.

"For the bodies of those beasts, whose blood is brought into the sanctuary by the high priest for sin, are burned without the camp. Wherefore Jesus also, that he might sanctify the people with his own blood, suffered without the gate." (Heb. xiii, 11, 12.)

That the effect of this faith, under this system of grace, as a reflex experience, extends to a complete crucifixion of the entire "old man," is granted; but we deny that the thing that makes the "old man"—viz., inbred sin—is exterminated. Besides the crucifixion or baptism of the "old man," there is substituted for him the entire human nature of Christ, mysteriously wrought in us, and in our life-work daily, by which we appear righteous, "because the seed (Christ) remaineth in us," working in us both to will and to do of his good pleasure; not coercing, but persuading and "helping our infirmities." And thus the fallen being who "submits himself to God" to be ruled by Christ, who mysteriously dwells in us, having this hope of the future glorification, "purifying himself even as he is pure," and doing righteousness, "is righteous even as he is righteous." But we are fallen, all the same; and as this perfection is the result of growth, it may be a long time, and perhaps never in this life, and to thousands not at all in this life, before any man can claim such a work of grace. To claim it instantly certainly is foolish. "For though I would desire to glory, I shall not be a fool; for I will say the truth; but I forbear, lest any man should think of me above that which he seeth me to be, or heareth of me."

From Paul's experience in the matter of prayer, it is foolish to ask his extermination. The system of grace provided is sufficient. We have a High Priest, with all his ministry, his atonement, his intercession, his forgiving power, his sanctifying power. "If we will but hold fast to the profession of our faith without wavering," all will end well. For the present we are "made accepted in the Beloved." (Eph. i, 6-14.) Turn to it and read. Hence every believer is sanctified. None perfect in nature, and but "few," if any, may reach a perfect life, even as a work of grace. This is the proposed goal which is the possibility of grace, and hence we are exhorted "to go on unto perfection," to the extent of divine permission. (Heb. vi, 3.)

But let our life-work affirm this perfection, rather than utter it with our mouths. "For in many things we offend all. If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man, and able also to bridle the whole body." (St. James iii, 2.)

J. W. ELLISON.

Fins.

Whatever of renown for belligerency the presiding elder of the Meridian district may have had hitherto, surely the "bad pre-eminence" must now be conceded to the preacher in charge of Decatur mission, Brandon district. And whatever doubt might have been charitably entertained as to the motives which prompted the venerable brother in his "demands," charges, insinuations, or "calling attention to published facts," are now dispelled. I had suspected when the "demand" appeared March 10, and I read—"If the inside facts were published, the people would open their eyes in wonder when they come to know what a lot of missionaries we have in the Mississippi Conference. Where! missionaries indeed! They are not ambitious to obtain the martyr's crown, I suspect. I suggest that we call a spade by that name," etc.—that it was a repetition of the Donnybrook Fair invitation. "Will not some gentleman step on me coat-tail, that I may use me shillelah about his head!" And since the reply to Bro. Drake's sweet-spirited letter, and more especially since the article of July 28 appeared, my suspicions have been confirmed—for I have at least heard the whistling of the club!

My good Bro. Ellis is right in one thing he says about me—that I do not succeed in everything undertaken. And it may be well that I do not; but I shall always believe that I ought to succeed in getting the pastoral charges in the Meridian district to pay not less than six hundred dollars a year to their faithful preachers; for I can never believe their five hundred dollars to be enough for a man and his family to live on in comfort, even if some preachers can be close enough and stingy enough toward their families to lay up money out of such beggarly salaries. I believe that a preacher is a man, and ought to be a many man and earn his salary, and that his labors are worth far more than the labors of a book-keeper in a cross-roads store. Ever since I have been on the district my efforts have been directed to prying our stingy folk out of the ruts and to get them to quit regarding preachers as beggars and what is paid them as the giving of alms. But I have not succeeded everywhere yet; and in one place I may fall this year because an old preacher told some of the brethren that five hundred dollars was enough, as out of such a salary he had laid by two hundred dollars.

In another instance the good brother is correct, and that is where he says that he is satisfied that I am not his enemy. No, thank God! I am not his enemy nor the enemy of anybody else; for in my heart there is no unkindness, much less ill-will, toward anybody.

Again is my good brother correct, when he says that he does not believe a single member of the Board to be "capable of a dishonorable, much less a dishonest, act;" and I think he is also correct when he says that not one of the presiding elders "would do wrong knowingly."

And I quite agree with Bro. Ellis when he says that, "as a general rule, places that pay five hundred dollars and furnish a house rent free ought not to have anything appropriated." And the Board generally adheres to this "general rule." All the stir has been made because the Board deviated from this rule in exceptional cases when circumstances clearly justified the exceptions being made. About the first time in the history of the Mississippi Conference that an appropriation was made to aid a city work was in December, 1882, for Natchez City Mission, and then one hundred dollars was allowed, and every cent of it went into the house of worship. Nothing was accomplished in West Jackson until three hundred dollars was appropriated and W. W. Hopper sent there. And no preacher can live decently in Jackson and meet extraordinary expenses always borne by city pastors on five hundred dollars a year. Neither can a preacher live decently in Meridian, Vicksburg or Natchez on five hundred dollars, even if a parsonage be furnished free of rent. Not only are there no donations of butter, meat or vegetables, and such like, but the calls for charity are legion, and a preacher must respond where others might refuse. A preacher serving a city mission once received eighty dollars salary from his charge, but gave one hundred and fifty dollars to relieve the poor.

Again do I agree with Bro. Ellis about the folly of appropriating twenty-five dollars or fifty dollars to mission work; but if three hundred dollars had been appropriated to each of the ten charges in the Brandon district the treasury would have been swept clear, and Bro. Harry Brown would not have done the splendid work in East End, Meridian, which an appropriation of three hundred dollars enabled him to do last year. The trouble is that there are too many able-bodied pensioners—in the shape of Westville, Raleigh, Hillsboro and Decatur circuits—in the Brandon district, each having hundreds of members who think God's salvation is free, and are willing to keep the preacher poor if the Lord will only keep him humble!

My good brother is mistaken in interpreting my suggestion into a threat. I simply said that he had given an excuse to mean people to be meaner; and the reduced collections would enforce a scaling or discount of the appropriations, and the Brandon district would suffer accordingly. True, I said the Board was getting restive under the continued appeals from the Brandon district, and thought it was time for the venerable pensioners, who had "come down to us from a former generation" (as Webster said to the veteran survivors of the Revolutionary War), to stand alone. There are only ought to be manhood, information and religion enough in the membership of those old circuits to support their preachers and to pay them decent salaries and furnish comfortable parsonages. The money surely is not lacking.

So far as I am concerned, this ends the controversy. And I am just as ready to take my good old Bro. Ellis by the hand as I always was; and I am quite sure that no one has enjoyed his jokes at my expense any more than I have done. God bless him, and make the evening-time of his life brighter than the noon-tide.

T. L. MELLE.

A Visit to My First Circuit.

In the Winter of 1880 I joined the North Mississippi Conference, and was appointed to Pleasant circuit. I lived in the vicinity of Lewisburg, in DeSoto county. Last week I went back to Lewisburg and spent four days, preaching at night, renewing old acquaintances and visiting during the day. Many changes have occurred in nine years. Some have gone to heaven, some moved away, and some have gone back to the world, but many are still steadfast in the faith. It did me good to have grown and young people come up, and say, "I was converted when you were here, though a mere child." Though an inexperienced boy, those dear people were so kind that I can never forget them. Joe Howell is doing a good work there. He is a good preacher, is thoroughly alive, and has religion.

HOME MATTERS.

It is so hot that many of our people take advantage of Sunday to get cool, and they stay away from church. The work in our towns must be done principally in the Spring and Fall. The brethren in the country are holding protracted meetings now, and some expect to hold camp meetings later on.

T. W. LEWIS.

Letter from Dr. Cottrell.

A respite for a time—or a half-time—from the postponements, and neglects, and the like, of pastoral engagement at Greenville, Ky., in order to recuperate my health, made it practicable for me to get out, through a part of Missouri and the whole of Arkansas, into the middle of Texas. The notification from Bro. Pinson, head manager of the Chautauqua at Georgetown, that my name was on the programme, came in one week of the time for my appearance, so that my departure from home was extemporaneous, on Saturday before the first Sunday in July. I was with Dr. John Matthews in St. Louis at St. John's Church on that Sunday—hearing him preach in the forenoon, and occupying his pulpit in the evening. It is not necessary to say that our rendition was pleasant, after the lapse of years, and that the hospitality of my esteemed brother and his family was grateful to the weary traveler, nearly spent from preaching, thinking and talking—to say nothing of vertigo touches from dyspepsia. I ascertained, en route, that I was on the programme for a lecture—"Discounted Ministries"—for Wednesday morning; so it was necessary for me to flank off at Round Rock, and take private conveyance for Georgetown at sunrise to reach the grounds in time for my engagement at eleven. It was not till I reached there that I knew for what I was announced. Three lectures and a sermon were charged up to me; and besides these other talks were called for; so I was kept gabbling all the week. Sam Jones failing to put in an appearance the day he was expected, rendered it necessary his appointment should be filled. Dr. Archer, of Paris, Tex., was pressed into service for the forenoon, and I for the evening. Dr. Archer discussed the follies and infidelities of matrimony felicitously. The Doctor is admirable in eloquentary grace and diction. Of the other renowned lecturers I would speak, but I'm writing under a sweltering heat at nearly the noon-hour of the day. To greet old-time Alabama brethren who had come hundreds of miles, as he said, to meet me was most delightful. Prof. Ed. Tarrant and Rev. I. Z. T. Morris were of these; and the communion we had in fellowship of common memories was pathetically pleasing. Mrs. Jane T. H. Cross once wrote: "Oh, this dear, sad world!" Echoes from out the ever-deepening—the ever-heightening—past are reverberant to the ear that hath the cunning of deafening off from din and gahle of tongues tormenting. How bruised our souls become under pitiless pelting of words! words! words! The part of Texas which surrounds Georgetown is simply an enchantment. Here nature seems to have uncoupled herself interspersed into parcels, not fragmentary, but into units that give expression of individuality—each appearing local and resident. The earth seems an uplift of bosom and outstretch of arms in invitation to pendant cloudlets almost persuaded from out the witchery of a firmament sweetly correspondent with circling meadows, or orchards; corn and cotton fields fringed with forests coincident with a horizon that helps the eye to a sense of vastness. A kind brother took me all abroad over the fields; and to a creek where we were boys together, on the swim and in the dived "My mind to me a kingdom is!"—and the power of scenes as we witness them in our afternoon of life comes of memories of the morning! Old Sally Shaver, brother Ben's spotted mare; and Watch, our broad-breasted dog, whose benignant eye was expression of benevolence itself; old Uncle Dan, the wagon driver—these, with others, of the companions at old Sylvestria, in the forties, when I was a boy—were they not alongside of me as I made with Prof. — those two trips? Of late I've got the mastery of tears, and my soul just laughs and weeps whilst my countenance is in rest. The Brothers Snyder, citizens of Georgetown, have shown genius in gathering from distant nations breeds of horses that stand in declaration of stalwartness proximate to the elephants—those Norman greys from France! The profusion of mane and fore-top and tail, suggestive of parlor-window drapery, and the sinewy limbs, broad breasts and eyes, that were in declaration of consciousness of muscular snif-clency, as also of perfect tractableness!—these raised surprise into astonishment. I had not before any suspicion that there were such horses in this precious, beautiful world. Their aspect of strength and gentleness girded up my soul and tempered it to braver purpose and benevolence. It is worth a trip from Kentucky to the middle of Texas to see those horses.

I came here, to Hot Springs, on last Saturday. As the omnibus, crowded with passengers, drew up toward the residence of Dr. Chas. A. King, he happened to ride up on his grey, and as I jumped from the "bus" he jumped from the saddle. The passengers, ladies and men, and the people on the sidewalks didn't laugh quite as loudly as did King, as he hugged me. The cream of life is his friendship! Dr. King was with Shores and me in the years '88, '87 and '89—I, as presiding elder, and they as pastors, in dear old Alabama. King dropped out from the Conference, and has practiced physio since. Here he is deemed chairman of the committee on the resurrection, so effective is he, in an original, generous, industrious prosecution of the healing service. Dr. Carradine, of St. Louis, is enthusiastic in expression of his estimate of his indebtedness to King's management of his case. The little daughter that came two days after my arrival was to have been named Joe Cottrell! had she been a boy. Of course, the advent of the little lady occasioned crowding here at King's, but where there's a will there's a way. Where there's genuine hospitality, one is content to have a pole poked out for him to roost. This in the parlor answers every purpose. The horse and buggy King turned over to me—with the driver—put the city and its surroundings at my command. The little nineteen-months-old brother of the girl who made her advent last Monday—King's first—I call "King's excuse." JOSEPH B. COTTRELL.

Hot Springs, Ark.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON.—Aug. 14, 1892.

By REV. W. H. LA PRADRE, D. D.

Ananias and Sapphira.

Acts v, 1-11.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Be not deceived: (and he is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap.)" (Gal. vi, 7.)

The preceding chapter closes with the statement that "Jesus, . . . having laid, sold it, and brought the money, and laid it at the apostles' feet"—a noble, unselfish act, prompted by love for the brethren, many of whom were poor, and, for a time, out of employment. Others had done the same thing. Probably Jesus was very wealthy, and so his action was more notable.

Such conduct would be favorably mentioned by all, and would seem to indicate great earnestness and enthusiasm, provoking zeal in others. Among the thousands added to the church we need not be surprised if some were shallow, some fickle, some hypocritical. Insincere people like to "put the best foot foremost" in a crowd, and are apt to counterfeit what deeds. Our lesson to-day furnishes a case in point.

Vers. 1, 2. "But"—the disjunctive separates the action of Ananias from that of Sapphira, by way of contrast. Ananias and Sapphira desired "public mention"; they loved notoriety; they wished to seem not a whit behind Jesus. But they loved money, too; so they planned together to appear to give all, while they really gave but a part. They "laid it at the apostles' feet," just as Jesus did, thus professing to give it to God for the church.

Vers. 3. Satan—not an evil influence, but an evil person—is always seeking to fill human hearts with bad purposes. With great skill and subtlety he watches his chances. Force evil into the heart he can not; all he does is by our permission and co-operation.

Ananias, by his action, told two lies to the Holy Ghost, who was the recognized power in the church: he claimed that a part was all; he claimed that what he gave was from right motives, when he knew to the contrary. His offering was laid on vanity's altar; not on God's altar.

Vers. 4. There was no law requiring him to sell his property; none to control the money received for it. The whole thing was voluntary. Why pose as a generous man? Why act in this matter pertaining to God? To lie to the church is to lie to the Head of the church.

Vers. 5, 6. Ananias was not frightened to death; he was slain by the power of God. Our lives are in his hand. He does not always execute sentence so immediately upon sin, but he has the right to do so. In mercy to others, in simple justice to Ananias, he did so now. The church must not start on its career with the impression that to steal from God, and then lie about it, is a trifling offense. The "great fear" that came on them all was very wholesome. The key-note on the money question must be clear, true, of right plumb, in accord with the Christ-life.

"The young men"—active, strong—wrapping his garments about him, bore him away to burial, as was the Jewish custom in that day, before the sun-setting.

Vers. 7, 8. Having heard no report of the manner in which their contribution was received, and, no doubt, being somewhat disturbed in mind by her knowledge of the false representation. Not that she was repentant, but simply anxious.

Peter's question, so immediate and so direct, must have startled her; but she did not hesitate to carry out her part of the programme of falsehood. By her attempt to cover her husband's lie by one of her own, she revealed the fact that it was deliberately planned, and, therefore, all the more sinful.

Vers. 9. This guilty pair must have known of the wonderful manifestations of the presence and power of the Holy Ghost, at Pentecost and since; they must have known that Peter and the other apostles were under his special direction. Their plan, therefore, must have assumed that either they could deceive God, or that he would permit their crime without interference.

God, not Peter, had passed judgment and executed sentence upon Ananias. Peter simply applied it to the equally guilty wife, moved to do so by the Holy Spirit.

Vers. 10. Sinning like, and with, Ananias, like him she died. All souls of women as of men, "that sin, shall die." God is "no respecter of persons." This punishment seems to us severe when we think of the apparently prosperous and unpunished guilt of thousands. It was not severe. Lying to the Holy Ghost is an awful crime. Besides, this was at the beginning of the history of the Christian Church, and is an object-lesson for all time and for all men. And we may be sure that in thus dealing with these two, God was merciful as well as just. Subsequently heaven would have ruined much, if left to do its work.

Vers. 11. We are not to understand that the people were frightened, but that their reverence, their awe, their solemnity, increased when they knew of these things. The sanctity of the church, the holiness of God, and his abhorrence of sin, were emphasized. The Holy Ghost could not more plainly declare that he desires "truth in the inward parts."

A Reply.

To the Editor of the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Several weeks since, while at Chautauqua, New York, I received the issue of your journal containing a criticism of my reply in Light to the question, "Why Christianity has not done what the humane workers are now seeking to do?" asked by a lady correspondent. I am not sorry that you published the reply. And I would have been pleased had you included the replies to all of the questions. However, my object in writing this is to assure you that the Humane Society is not to take the place of the church, nor to interfere with it in any way. On the contrary, the humane workers are usually church workers also.

Our work, of course, is founded upon love. This writer believes that God is love. So when he makes a feeble effort to understand Christ's glorious mission to this world he tries to keep in mind that it was all because of love. And this writer also believes that this love is extended with especial tenderness by the merciful Creator to the unfortunate, the weak, the defenseless of all his creatures, and that it is our duty as his agents to put this love into practical operation.

I also desire to say, Mr. Editor, that the prosecution of cases is but a very small part of the humane work. Our plan is to implant kindness and justice in the hearts of people. But to get fully my views as to these matters it is necessary to read the columns of Light; and I trust the readers of the Advocate will do this.

RICHARD F. REED,
Natchez, Miss.
Editor of Light.

An Inquiry.

In his article, headed "A Correction," Bro. Downer quotes from a letter received from Bro. McLaurin, stating that the offer of the American Bible Society, to furnish children with Bibles at half price, is limited to those whose parents are too poor to pay anything.

To the average reader this seems a little mixed. But, perhaps, the "No" in our brother's name is responsible for this limitation; or, perhaps, the committee who discovered this brilliant method of distribution was made up of Macs. Certainly, the great American Bible Society can scarcely propose to furnish the destitute in heathen lands with a free gospel, while those at home who are "too poor to pay anything" are supplied at "half price." Someone has blundered. Who is it?

FANNIE M. MONTGOMERY.

Learning gives us a fuller conviction of the imperfections of our nature; which, one would think, might dispose us to modesty; for the more a man knows, the more he discovers his ignorance.—Collier.

A Sketch of Elizabeth Barrett Browning.

At Hope End, Herefordshire, England, in 1809, began the life of the most celebrated, and most justly celebrated, of female poets, Elizabeth Barrett Browning. Her parents must have been persons of unusually sound judgment, for, rising above the prevailing views of feminine education, they gave their daughter a "masculine" range of studies, with masculine strictness of intellectual discipline. As early as during her tenth year of life, Elizabeth was ready at composition, and had written for various periodicals, with force and elegance, before her fourteenth birthday. At seventeen she published a volume of poems, which, however, were so far unsatisfactory to her more mature judgment as to be omitted from such later collections from her pen as she afterwards issued. Indeed, while her earlier works were all remarkable as illustrating the budding of genius, her mind did not give forth a specimen of its best fruit until she had reached the age universally regarded by her sex as the meridian of life—thirty-five years—and even then but one poem was produced, that may be favorably compared with the rich fruitage of her later years. "Lady Geraldine's Courtship," a full of beauty, with passages of exquisite tenderness and suggestions of broad reach of thought and subtle analysis of the motives and meanings of the human heart, was indeed the pledge and the prophecy of the harvest yet to be gathered. It was in this poem that a delicate compliment to Mr. Robert Browning appeared—a compliment in which Cupid's famed arrow must have been concealed, for, although the two had never met at that time, within two years Lady Elizabeth's Courtship had begun, progressed and culminated in a marriage destined to be remarkable as almost the only happy one in the highest literary circles of that day.

Eight years before her marriage her health—always delicate—was further "impaired by the rupture of a blood-vessel," and for several years her life "was that of a confirmed and seemingly hopeless invalid." Her illness, however, was not of such nature as to seriously interfere with her studies, and we are told that during that period "the poets and philosophers of Greece were the companions of her mind, and some of the inspired writers of the Old Testament were studied by her in their original language."

Immediately after their marriage the happy poets went to Italy, where, partly because of the gracious effects of its balmy air on Mrs. Browning's health, and partly because of the intense interest they both felt in Italian politics, art and literature, they remained. With her heart touched by the oppression of ecclesiastical burdens and Austrian tyranny which Italy was then bearing, and exalted by the blessedness of her own wedded life, Mrs. Browning now sang, with melody peculiarly her own, song after song whose strain was that of jubilant gladness, but whose undertone was like the mournful sighings of the captive Hebrew psalmist who wandered, harpless, by the "river of Babylon." Together with her husband she entered with most earnest and sustained enthusiasm into all the struggles for Italian independence that made famous the names of Garibaldi and Charles Albert, and that issued in the crowning of Victor Emmanuel and the freedom of Italy. The completeness of Italy's redemption she did not live to see; but she saw enough to add another joy to the womanly heart already wedded to its sunny skies by the experiences of her home life and the birth of her only child.

Mrs. Browning is, perhaps, best known by the public as the author of "Aurora Leigh," a poem of English life, well described as "a novel in verse." It is a plea—as to its moral—for human rights as assailed by cruel conventionalities and oppressive custom—pure, healthful, elevating in tone; and while the expression is sometimes labored, and the tendency to "prosy moralizings" is not always overcome, yet there are passages of passionate eloquence and numberless touches of exquisite pathos and beauty. But Mrs. Browning's best work was done in those shorter poems in which the woes of Italy and the fullness of her own joy together sought utterance, where smiles and tears, dreams and dirges, ecstasy and despair, strangely blended, formed a song glad enough to be sung at the creation of an angel, sad enough for the funeral of a nation.

In June, 1861, in her chosen home at Florence—forever sacred now in English hearts—this strongest and truest of all "women-singers" of the Great King's Court hushed her voice, and she "fell on sleep"—sweetly, we are sure, for did not she write:

W. H. L.

If you feel weak and all worn out take
BROWN'S IRON BITTERS

In Memoriam.

MRS. MARY SPENCER OBER.

The effect of influence is, perhaps, without limit. We cast a pebble into a lake and it causes a wave which, beginning with a small clout, ripples out and on over the surface of the water until it touches the furthestmost shore. So it is with influence, reaching first only a few nearest its source, it extends its limits until we are unable to reckon its complete work.

"This thought comes to me while considering the life of the late Mrs. Mary Spencer Ober, whose death occurred in Natchez, Miss., on June 16, 1892. The quiet usefulness of her devoted life can never be fully estimated. While she has been taken from this earthly existence, yet she still lives through her influence. All those with whom she has at any time associated realize this.

She was a native of the State of Louisiana, having been born in the quaint old town of St. Francisville, on Jan. 19, 1841. About five years later her parents, Dr. G. T. Newman and his wife, Mrs. Mary E. Newman, removed to Richmond, Ky., and this place was their home until 1855, when they settled in St. Louis, Mo. It was in this city where Mrs. Ober grew to womanhood, and where, on May 26, 1863, she was married to William A. Ober. They made New Orleans their home in the Fall of 1868, but in 1871 Mr. Ober and his wife went to Little Rock, Ark., and here twelve happy years were passed; when they returned to New Orleans, where they remained until, in 1887, they removed to Natchez, Miss.

Mrs. Ober was educated at the noted school of Mrs. Julia Tevis, at Shelbyville, Ky., having graduated in the class of 1859.

In every place where she resided she had many friends. She had the capacity of forming ties of friendship which were peculiarly binding. Her thoughtful kindness was remarkable. During many years of her life she was an invalid. For several years preceding her death she was confined most of the time to her own home, and a great deal of this time she could not leave her room, and toward the last, even her bed. But at all times she was doing something for those around her. She took an active interest in all the church organizations and charitable works, and gave liberally of her means to support them.

Her devotion to her husband, and his tender kindness and faithful care of her, was indeed touching. So her beautiful life was spent. What was the secret of its strength and beauty? It had a solid foundation. It was impelled by proper principles. She was a consecrated Christian. She followed her Master and Friend, the Lord Jesus Christ. Love ruled supreme in her heart.

Knowing these things, you will easily understand how peacefully she entered into rest. Surrounded by her husband, her mother and several friends, having given her last instructions with her arms tenderly about her life companion, and during the singing of a hymn, her soul passed from human life into a more glorious life. Blessed transition which awaits God's faithful children!

It being her request, her body was taken by her husband and mother and interred in the Bellefontaine Cemetery, St. Louis. Many friends of the departed will read this and will join me in extending tender sympathy to those especially bereaved. Let us all gain encouragement and inspiration from the character of our friend.

RICHARD F. REED.

Natchez, Miss.

If you desire a luxuriant growth of healthy hair of a natural color, nature's crowning ornament of both sexes, use only Hall's Vegetable Siccilian Hair Renewer.

Wesley Hall, Vanderbilt University.

Not long ago one asked: "Why is it that the 1,300,000 Methodists of the South have only about fifty of their young ministers each year studying in their only theological school?" The answer was: "A lack of knowledge as to what is done at the school and a consequent lack of appreciation." And the answer was, to a great extent, complete and correct. Many of our people do not realize that the same need for special training that is with the physician and lawyer is with the preacher.

The arguments for a theological course are, to a great extent, the same as for all education. Some argue: "Let the preacher study 'manology' by going to work among men." But surely books must be used. The question is: "How much books and how much men?"

A student among students has ample opportunity to learn human nature. Yet it is proper that the years of university life be pre-eminently years among books. Ministers of the Southern Methodist Church must know men, and must deal with those peculiar problems presented by humanity in the South. But there are many questions of doctrine and interpretation—practical questions—that will forever annoy a thinking mind until answered satisfactorily to itself; and it seems that it would be well, if the young preacher could enter the work with convictions as to these fixed by study, under masters, so that his time be not consumed by them when he tackles the great "problem of man."

For entrance to the classical course of the Biblical Department of Vanderbilt University, A. B. from some good college is required, and for entrance to the English course two years at college, or the equivalent thereof, is required. This accounts greatly for the small attendance, the majority of our clergy not being college men; and the demand for those who have taken a college course is so great, and many of these have done so well without the course in theology, that many are led to believe this latter unnecessary.

There are some who would make a mistake by going to Vanderbilt. But the peculiarities of these cases can not be known by one writing, so that to all expecting to preach it may be advised: "Take a college course, if you can; then take a theological course at Vanderbilt, if you can." Bishop Key has just remarked that many thus would prepare themselves for work five times as effective as otherwise.

I was in Wesley Hall long enough to know what it is, and yet not long enough to think that it is the best place in the world. It is the best theological school I ever saw (the only one). Though not perfect (what school is?), it is good. Go to it, if you can.

H. G. HAWKINS.

Vancouver, B. C.

CREEPING-MALARIA.

Insidious and Stealthy in Its Approach.

DEADLY AND UNYIELDING IN ITS GRASP.

EXTRACTS FROM A LECTURE AT THE SURGICAL HOTEL, COLUMBUS, OHIO, BY DR. S. B. HARTMAN.

Reported for the Press.

The onset of malaria is often so very insidious that it is quite difficult to detect the nature of it until after it has fastened itself thoroughly in the system. Malaria often will peester a person for months without making him sick abed, but making him generally miserable—creeping rigors, coated tongue, appetite changeable, and many indescribable sensations of generally disagreeable kind. Chills and hot flashes of very irregular duration and recurrence come and go without seeming cause. The hands and feet are usually cold and clammy, and the general tendency is to dryness and coldness of the skin of the whole body.

Among the symptoms to which this class of patients are liable, but not always present, may be mentioned neuralgic headache, nervous chills, hysteria, sinking or faint spells, distressing palpitation of the heart, defective eyesight, total inability to read, write, or do any business; urine abundant, without color, and loss of flesh. Melancholy feelings, a disquieting, listless state of mind, mental depression and confusion of the mind, surely indicate the presence of malaria. This form is called malarial biliousness. For this "walking malaria," which neither puts one to bed nor allows him to work or study, Pe-r-u-na should be taken as directed on the bottle. A course of Pe-r-u-na will entirely cleanse the system of every particle of the malarial poison. Therefore, if you have any kind of bad feeling which you attribute to malaria, by all means follow this treatment. If anorexia, loss of appetite, clears the befogged senses, and brings back the hopeful state of mind which malaria is sure to destroy. A thorough use of it will convince you of its wonderful power in all such cases. Pe-r-u-na can be relied on to cure these cases and restore to perfect health as speedily as the chronic nature of the difficulty will allow. Should constipation exist at the same time Man-a-lin should be added. The Pe-r-u-na tones up the nervous system and enriches the blood, giving strength and vitality, while Man-a-lin restores the activity of the excretory glands, enabling the system to rid itself of accumulated poison, bringing back to this most unfortunate class of invalids the flush and good feeling of perfect health. Directions for use accompany each bottle.

For a complete treatise on malaria, chills and fever and fever and ague, send for The Family Physician No. 1. Sent free by The Pe-r-u-na Drug Manufacturing Co., Columbus, O.

There are two things which ought to teach us to think meanly of human glory; the very best have had their calamities—the very worst their panegyrics.—Colton.

WHENEVER I see Hood's Sarsaparilla now I want to bow and say "Thank You" I was badly affected with Eczema and Scrofula Mores, almost covering one side of my face, nearly to the top of my head. Ruminating sores discharged from both ears. My eyes were very bad, the eyelids so sore it was painful opening or closing them. For nearly a year I was deaf. I went to the hospital and had an operation performed for the removal of a cancer from one eye. One day my sister brought me

Hood's Sarsaparilla which I took, and gradually began to feel better and stronger, and slowly the sores on my eyes and in my ears healed. I can now hear and see as well as ever. Mrs. AMANDA FAIRBURY, 170 Lander St., Newburgh, N. Y.

SUPERIOR

to all other medicines for purifying the blood and restoring the health and strength.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

is the standard specific for Scrofula, Catarrh Rheumatism, and Debility.

Cures Others will cure you.

Dr. Wm. H. Holcombe

AND

Dr. Gayle Aiken,

HOM OPATHISTS.

No. 288 St. Charles Ave., NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Cases treated by correspondence.

Dr. W. G. Austin,

Having finished a successful term of office at the Quarantine Station, has returned to the city, and offers his professional services to his friends and the public generally.

Residence: 229 Eighth Street.

ATLANTA, GA., August 29, 1891.

To whom it may concern:

In our experience as cotton merchants we have frequently had occasion to handle cotton ginned upon the GULLETT GIN, made by Gullett Gin Co., Amite City, La.

We consider this Gin the equal of any in the market in its ability to turn out smooth, clean, well-ginned cotton. We are always glad to handle cotton ginned upon the GULLETT GIN.

Very truly,

S. M. INMAN & CO.

As We Expect

to move the immense and handsome stock of

PICTURES.

Wall Paper, Matting, Rugs, ETC.

Purchased from W. E. FERLEW, and now occupying 29 Camp and 116 Common Sts., into our present quarters, 116 Camp St., by the first of September, it will be necessary for us to between now and then to run it down to the lowest possible limit; and those wishing to get bargains will do well to profit by the hint we are giving them.

Heath, Schwartz & Co., Lim.,

29 Camp, 116 Common and 116 Camp.

Watches, Diamonds, FINE JEWELRY.

Silver and Silver-Plated Ware, SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES.

Send for Catalogue.

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO.,

(Established 1817)

119 CANAL ST., New Orleans, La.

Base Ball Goods, Croquet, Fishing Tackle, Selnes, Twines.

Refrigerators, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Baskets, Ham-mocks, Lampes, Lanterns.

Fruit Jars, Corks, Bottles, Flasks, Hardware, Tinware, Stationery, Wrapping Paper and Bags.

FULL LINE OF

Wooden and Willowware, Brushes, etc.

J. C. MORRIS CO., Limited

40, 42 and 44 Tchoupitoulas Street

E. F. DYER, Pres. E. P. MACKIE, Treas.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT

AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STORES, Etc.

Nos. 543, 544, 545 and 546 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

Do You Want Teachers?

WE DO; and we can put you in correspondence with such as you want, free of charge.

SOUTHERN TEACHERS' BUREAU, Winchester, Tenn.

PATENTS THOMAS P. SIMPSON, Washington, D. C. No. 517 7th St. Write for inventor's Guide.

When answering advertisements please mention the Advocate

Queen and Crescent Route.

94 MILES the SHORTEST.

New Orleans to Cincinnati.

NEW VESTIBULED TRAIN.

The Queen and Crescent Special leaves New Orleans every afternoon at 4:10 p. m. via Birmingham and Chattanooga, for Cincinnati, Vandalia and Gas Lighted. Through to New York and Washington without change. No extra charge for this superior train service.

TIME TO CINCINNATI, 26 HOURS.

TIME TO NEW YORK, 47 HOURS.

The Queen and Crescent, and East Tennessee Virginia and Georgia are now running through Pullman Vestibule Buffet Sleeping Cars from New Orleans to New York without change. Time to New York via Washington only 45 hours.

Ticket Office: 34 St. Charles street.

Depot: Corner Press street and Levee.

R. H. GARRETT, Div. Pass. Agent, New Orleans, La.

D. G. EDWARDS, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent, Cincinnati.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL R. R.

GREAT FAST MAIL ROUTE.

Six Daily Trains between NEW ORLEANS and CHICAGO.

The Only Line running Pullman Buffet Sleeping Cars and Through Cars for All Classes to CHICAGO, Connecting with all Buffet and Dining Car Lines East, and the ONLY LINE Running Through Cars for All Classes.

To St. Louis Without Change.

The Only Line running a Double Daily Train Service to St. Louis, with Through Sleepers to Memphis, without change.

The Shortest and Best Line from NEW ORLEANS to VICKSBURG.

The Shortest and Most Direct Route to MEMPHIS.

The Only Line Running Pullman Sleeping Cars Through Without Change to SPRINGFIELD, MO., PORT SCOTT and KANSAS CITY.

ONLY ONE CHANGE OF CARS FROM NEW ORLEANS to

Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis, Duluth, and Portland.

The Great Steel Bridge, spanning the Ohio River at Cairo, completed, and all trains (freight and passenger) now running regularly over it, thus avoiding the delays and annoyances incident to transfer by ferry boat.

Ticket Office: Corner St. Charles and Common Streets.

J. W. COLEMAN, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agt., N. O.

A. H. HANSON, G. P. A., Chicago.

Mississippi Valley Route.

L., N. O. and T. R'y.

Kansas City and Memphis Leaves Arrives
Fast Train 8:00 p. m. 8:10 a. m.
Vicksburg & Natchez Ex. 8:10 a. m. 8:25 p. m.
Nat. Route "Coast Train" 8:45 p. m. 10:00 a. m.

The Only Line running Solid Trains between New Orleans, Memphis and Vicksburg, with Modern Pullman Buffet Sleeping Cars.

The direct and favorite route to Kansas City, Omaha, Denver, St. Louis, Chicago, Louisville and Cincinnati.

The short line to Hot Springs and points in Arkansas and North Louisiana.

Communication Tickets, Mileage Books, Party Rates and Week End Excursions.

Summer Excursion Tickets on Sale in season.

Ticket Office, 61 St. Charles Street

L. F. DAY, Traffic Manager.

R. F. REYNOLDS, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agt.

The Texas and Pacific R'y.

EL PASO ROUTE.

The direct line to Shreveport and New Orleans, to Texas City, Memphis, St. Louis, the North and East and to all points in Texas, Old and New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado and California.

The Favorite Line via Sacramento to Oregon and Washington.

Only line offering Choice of Routes to points in the Southwest via Texas City, Shreveport and New Orleans.

MAKE "THE ST. LOUIS LIMITED" Between Fort Worth and St. Louis.

The Fastest Train between Texas and the North and East.

DOUBLE DAILY line of Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars through to St. Louis via the

IRON MOUNTAIN ROUTE.

Through Sleeping Cars between New Orleans and Denver and St. Louis and San Francisco.

For rates, tickets and all information apply to or address any of the ticket agents or

C. P. FEGAN, Trav. Pass. Agt., JNO. A. GRANT, 2d Vice-Pres., Dallas, Texas.

Kursheed's Marble Works

120 and 122 Canal St., New Orleans

HOPKINS' PRINTING OFFICE,

20 Commercial Place, John P. Hopkins, New Orleans.

ALL KINDS OF PRINTING.

THIRTY CENTS

WILL get you TWO good papers, THE WAY OF FAITH (weekly), THE SOLDIER (monthly), for THREE MONTHS, 5 sweet songs, and our Liberal Terms to Agents. Address: GOSPEL MISSION, Columbia, S. C. Mention this paper.

FOR $150

We will send to any address postpaid, one each of the following late sheet music publications, for $150.

Privilege of Exchange

after five days' examination, for other music, of any of these publications, at no more cost to the recipient, except the exchange must be for perfect condition, or we will accept the exchange at 75 cents.

SONGS.

MY LADY'S WINDOW. SUNSHINE AND SHADOW. BOW KNOT POLKA. FESTIVAL MARCH. FELICITE.

PIANO MUSIC.

Complete catalogues furnished free on application. Mention this paper.

THE JOHN CHURCH CO., Cincinnati, O.

Boat & Shore Music Co., The John Church Co., Wash. Ave., Chicago, Ill.

LOVELY FACES, WHITE HANDS.

Nothing will WHITEN and CLEAR the skin so quickly as

Derma-Royale

The new discovery for skin diseases and eruptions from the face, body and limbs, is the most perfect skin treatment yet discovered. It is a new discovery for skin diseases and eruptions from the face, body and limbs, is the most perfect skin treatment yet discovered. It is a new discovery for skin diseases and eruptions from the face, body and limbs, is the most perfect skin treatment yet discovered.

$500 REWARD. Treasure the public of its merits we agree to forfeit

Five Hundred Dollars cash, for any case of mollicious, itchy spots, liver spots, blackheads, or any other cutaneous eruptions, (excepting furunculosis, eczema, and those of a chronic or kindred nature) that Derma-Royale will not quickly remove and cure. We agree to forfeit Five Hundred Dollars to any person whose skin can be injured in the slightest possible manner, or to anyone whose complexion is made worse by its use, but it may be used without fear, and is proved and guaranteed by the use of Derma-Royale.

Put up in elegant style in large eight-ounce bottles.

Price, 50c. EVERY BOTTLE GUARANTEED.

Derma-Royale sent to any address, safely packed and securely sealed from observation, safe delivery guaranteed, on receipt of price, $1.00 per bottle.

Send money by registered letter or money order with your full post-office address written plainly; be sure to give your County, and mention this paper. Correspondence sacredly private. Postage stamps received the same as cash.

AGENTS WANTED. Send for Terms and Day. Address THE DERMA-ROYALE COMPANY, Corner Baker and Vine Sts., CINCINNATI, OHIO.

THE ORIGINAL

TAKE NO OTHER. REMEMBER THE GENUINE

JACKSON

CORSET WAISTS ARE MADE ONLY BY THE

JACKSON CORSET CO., Jackson, Mich.

The manufacturer's name is printed upon the back and stamped upon inside of each waist.

BE SURE and GET THE RIGHT THING

If your dealer hasn't them write to CANVASSERS WANTED.

THE GREAT CHURCH LIGHT REFLECTORS

FOR OIL, GAS OR ELECTRIC LIGHT

I. P. FRANK, 351 PEARL ST. N.Y.

STUDY LAW AT HOME.

TAKE A COURSE IN THE SPRAGUE CORRESPONDENCE SCHOOL OF LAW, (Incorporated.)

Send ten cents (stamp) for particulars to J. C. SPAGUE, Secy., DETROIT, MICH.

CHURCH SCHOOL FURNITURE

Before purchasing any PEWS, PULPITS or any other Church or School Furniture, call on H. MORROW, 107 N. 2nd St., Nashville, Tenn., for Catalogue.

PARKER'S HAIR BALM

Cleanse and beautify the hair. Promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Natural Color. Cures scalp diseases & itching. 50c and $1.00 bottles.

CINCINNATI BELL FOUNDRY CO.

REPAIRERS OF BUNYER BELLS TO THE BLYMYER MANUFACTURING CO. CATALOGUE WITH BELL LIST FREE. BELL CHURCH SCHOOL FIRE ALARM.

BUCKEYE BELL FOUNDRY.

CINCINNATI, O. U.S.A. Best Copper and Tin School and Church BELLS, PEALS AND CHIMES. Prices and Terms Free. Name this paper.

Christian Advocate

Rev. D. L. MITCHEL, Publisher.
OFFICE: 1124 AMF STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
SUBSCRIPTION: $2.00 PER ANNUM.
All payments in advance.

Rev. C. W. Carter, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. Lewis, Asst. Editor.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.
REV. J. M. BEARD, D. D.,
REV. S. S. KENNER,
REV. J. R. A. ARNOLD, D. D.,
MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.
REV. W. C. BLACK, D. D.,
REV. W. B. LEWIS,
REV. R. J. JONES,
NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.
REV. W. T. J. SULLIVAN, D. D.,
REV. J. D. YAMERSON, D. D.,
REV. T. C. WILK, M. D.

Thursday, August 11, 1892.

Personal Religion.

Of all things, one's religious experience should be his own private property. There are many things in life which we may use and, perhaps, enjoy, even though we have no right of possession in them; but religion is not one of those things. Either it is ours and we enjoy it, or else it is not ours and we fail of its benefits.

One of the greatest dangers that threaten the church to-day is the decadence of personal religion. This has its causes; they are many and complex. One of the chief things that contribute to the dissipation of personal piety is the materialistic tendencies that are so thoroughly characteristic of our day and time. These tendencies are exercising a growing influence upon all lines of action. Starting in the atheistic speculations of a gross materialism, these ideas have disseminated themselves in all directions. Every avenue of thought has felt their baleful influence. Religion itself has been impaired in a greater or less degree wherever these influences have made themselves manifest.

Now, personal religion implies the bringing together in close relationship and communion the Infinite Creator and the finite creature. But the question arises: "Will God, the Infinite, deal with man, the finite? Is not the Creator too high and too holy to reveal himself personally to the creature?"

Since our conception of God must forever remain the same, the principle that is going to determine whether communion with him is possible lies in the estimation that we put upon the creature. In other words, the argument for or against personal religion is to be found in the answer that we give to the question, "What is man?" Scientific materialism has given its answer to this inquiry. It traces all forms of life from one primordial germ. This germ, under successive changes of environment, passes through the vegetable and animal kingdoms; at the head of this latter kingdom man is placed. He is but a quadruped, which, by some mighty cataclysm of nature, has been bent so as to assume his present shape. He is but a little higher than the brutes!

Now, with such an answer to the question, "What is man?" there can be but one conclusion as to the matter of personal religion. The idea is utterly and eternally absurd. What communion can there be between God and the beasts that perish? It is no wonder that the agnostic who holds such a view of his origin declines in ridicule against the Christian when it is asserted that God can be known by revelation to the inner consciousness of the believer. If his logic be consistent, he can do nothing else.

This is no idle speculation; the practical bearing of these words can not fail to be appreciated. The origin of man is going to determine the destiny of man. If you once get men imbued with the idea that they came from brutes, they will inevitably go back to brutes. A fountain can rise no higher than its source. The law of evolution knows no species higher than man; and when this climax is reached the only recourse left is an ignominious retreat.

So that it behooves all who hold dear the advance of personal piety to hold up before men their high origin and their consequent glorious destiny.

Thanks to the Word of God, we are not left to vague speculations on this point of transcendent interest. The Bible has always been the champion of humanity. It is not a one-sided book, but a two-sided one. It not only has in it God, but man as well; it not only tells us of God and his goodness and love, but also of man and his worth and high calling. Granted that it does tell of his fall and the wickedness of his heart and the depravity of his nature, yet it tells far more. It not only draws a dark picture of man's present, but it gives him a grand past, and paints in colors of heavenly beauty the coming glories of his future. It not only tells of where man has fallen to, but also of where he has fallen from.

God has greatly honored humanity. He walked with Enoch; he spoke to Abraham out of the cloud; he talked with Moses face to face on the Mount. The whole line of Old Testament saints rejoiced in personal communion with him; and, as the crowning act by which he forever stamped humanity with his divine approval, he sent his Son in the flesh.

And why all this? The only answer that can be given is, that he knew what was in man.

Hence, when we turn to the Bible, we expect to find a different answer to our question from that which the evolutionist gives. We read that God created man in accordance with a special determination; to distinguish him from all else he breathed into him the breath of life, made him in his own image, and thus man became a partaker of the Divine nature. Then, again, hear the testimony that the Spirit gives through the Psalmist. One night David goes out upon the starlit plain of Hebron, and, as he gazes up into the heavens, his soul is overcome by the grandeur of the scene. In an ecstasy of worshipful delight, he cries out, "What is man?" The answer comes, "Thou hast made him a little lower than the angels; thou hast crowned him with glory and honor." This, then, is the estimate that the Bible places upon man. He is a creature, it's true; but one of dignity and worth—nearest like his Master. What a noble lineage is this! Instead of being but a little higher than a brute, he is but a little lower than an angel. How much better to descend from a cherub than to ascend from a monkey!

So that, taking into consideration the high value that the Bible places upon humanity, it is perfectly natural that it should encourage us to seek and maintain personal communion with God. God will have regard for his creature, man. God does indeed dwell on the earth. He lives in History, in Providence and in Grace, because man is what God made him—not a perishing brute, but a creature in his own likeness, with the stamp of Divinity impressed upon him, with God's instincts and capabilities. This is the argument that makes personal religion not only a possibility, but a grand reality. If God be what he is, and man be what the Bible declares him to be, personal communion between the two is the most natural thing in the world.

Somewhat has made the calculation that theater tickets to the amount of $91,000,000 are sold annually in this country. That form of pleasure costs a little in money and much more on other lines!

"Let Us Lay Aside Every Weight and the Sin Which Doth So Easily Beset Us."

Bishop Hendrix has appointed me solicitor for the Mississippi Conference under Dr. Lambuth's plan for paying off the missionary debt. The following-named brethren have been appointed district solicitors: Bro. W. A. Gunning, of Natchez, for the Vicksburg district; Rev. T. B. Holloman, of Canton, for the Jackson district; Rev. M. L. Burton, of McComb City, for the Brookhaven district; Rev. P. A. Johnston, of Jackson, La., for the Woodville district; Rev. M. H. Moore, of Columbia, for the Seashore district, and Rev. J. V. Penn for the Meridian district. They are to co-operate with me, and through me with the secretaries of the parent Board of Missions.

There are to be no public collections and no interference with the regular assessments. Private personal solicitation is the plan to be carried out under the guidance of the Holy Spirit, whose aid must be constantly sought. No assessment is put upon us or upon individuals. The great need of the several mission fields, the call for more helpers, the wide-open doors, the whitened harvest fields, the glorious opportunities, the mighty responsibilities, are to be presented with the blessed privilege of working together with God in saving the world which Jesus died to redeem. How greatly God has blessed our people! His goodness and mercy have followed us all our days. What shall we render unto him for all his benefits to us?

The missionary debt is the "weight" which now burdens the church and prevents our going up to possess the land. It must be "laid aside," so that we can "go forward" in obedience to the Divine command. And while we wait the opportunity is passing, millions are dying, and the responsibility is merging into judgment against us because we know our duty and do it not.

"The sin which doth so easily beset us" is covetousness among poor and rich alike, and is based upon our unbelief and consequent want of consecration. We have not the Spirit of Christ; we are not wholly his. If the one million two hundred and sixty-six thousand Methodists in our church had the grace of liberality to the extent that the Southern Presbyterians have that grace, we would contribute about $949,500 a year to foreign missions; and if we abounded in it as do the Moravians, we would contribute $6,330,000 annually to this great cause. And the Presbyterians have no more intelligence and claim no more religion than we do, and own not near so much wealth; and the Moravians are certainly possessed of less money than is held by our church members. God help us to awake and put forth our energies and honor the Lord with our substance!

Up to this year $200 per annum is the largest amount any member of our church in the State of Mississippi has been contributing to missions; but now another man stands pledged to contribute $250 to send a man to Japan, and support him for life, or so long as he labors there. There are others able to pay $1,000 a year to missions, many more who can pay $500, and hundreds who can pay $100; and yet, and yet! God help us to reach the hearts and consciences of these brethren and sisters, who spend so much on themselves and their families and so little for Jesus. Diamonds for their daughters and coppers for Christ. No free-will offerings, no thank-offerings for him from whom cometh every good and every perfect gift. May they be encouraged to try God and prove him, by responding to our appeals, and the cries from the overworked missionaries, and the supplications from the perishing brethren, and see if God will not open the windows of heaven and pour out upon them wondrous blessings in great abundance, even "according to the riches of his glory!" Now is the time. At once. Let there be no delay. Let no other church take the crown which God would give to us.

The first response comes from Linwood circuit, Kemper county.

T. L. MELLE, Solicitor for Mississippi Conference.
1219 N. 22d Ave., Meridian, Miss.

The Sabbath.—No. 4.

The railroad is one of the wonders of the present century; a triumph of chemical, mechanical, engineering skill. It has developed vast agricultural and mineral wealth. They have increased the neighborhood and intercourse of men. It is helping to break down sectional and caste distinctions. It has immensely increased the possibilities of human life. It has in many ways been a benefactor and a benediction. All this is cheerfully granted. It has come to stay, and long may it prosper! But the railroad is one of the greatest Sabbath breakers, and is, in this regard, an immeasurable evil. The Sabbath—sanctified, domestically and religiously considered—is worth more to men than railroads. No one human enterprise is the instrument of so much Sabbath unrest and desecration.

There are in the United States two millions of young men who have no weekly rest. They are expected to work seven days in each week. In Great Britain there are two millions two hundred and fifty thousand Sunday slaves. "But," says one, "these laborers voluntarily, indeed, gladly, accept these conditions, and the railroad is not to blame." Let us see. The railroad has driven out the steamboat and tens of thousands of mail coaches and innumerable wagons, that transported passengers and freight. The thousands and millions once employed are no longer so employed. The railroad has, to a large extent, excluded these older, slower methods of transportation, but has created an immense demand for the services of young men in their various branches of service. But the railroad directors carry on their business seven days in the week. These young men, seeking employment, must accept the conditions of the railroad management or fail to secure employment, or lose their places if already in, if they do not submit to the seven-day work-in-the-week rule. There are tens of thousands perplexed and in distress. The claims of God, of health and home life conflict with the claims of their straitened circumstances and the imperative needs of their families. As a Christian and a philanthropist, my conscience constrains me to say this is all wrong and oppressive. It is wrong in various ways. I know full well in saying this I am doing it in the face, and against the wishes, of vast invested interests. I touch the apple of the financial eye; but I am saying what I believe ought to be said. Let us see some of the evils of this stupendous Sunday desecration.

Two millions of men are deprived of their needed weekly rest. It is true the large majority of these are able-bodied young men, who are at their best in point of bodily vigor, and least likely to show the wasting and prostrating effect of unconsenting toil. But observant sanitarians tell us that all these excesses tell damagingly upon the constitution, exhaust the reserve of vitality, and increase decay and shorten life. It is true this state of things does not seem to tell injuriously upon the business of these great corporations—there are always many to supply the places of the prematurely worn-out; but though the hurtful effects are measurably unnoticed, it is not less true that loss of needful rest and sleep are exhausting vitality and tending to premature decay.

But those successive demands upon the strength and attention of railroad employees is dangerous to public safety. There are so many trains, freight and passenger, running at the same time upon the track that it requires the utmost caution, the most wakeful vigilance, to avoid collisions and frightful disasters; but men who are kept on their feet thirty, forty, fifty, and, a recent case, sixty hours, can not keep up a vigilant attention. In the last-named case a collision occurred, so a railroad employee has told me. This incessant work seven days in the week—three hundred and sixty-five in the year—must fag men, must exhaust strength, must render wakeful, intelligent attention impossible! Think of a hundred human beings on a train rushing at a speed of thirty or forty miles per hour in the darkness, hurrying around curves, through narrow gorges, under overhanging cliffs and along the precipitous sides of hills and mountains, and all under the care of sleepy and weary men. This state of things certainly explains some of the frightful disasters chronicled almost every week. We must have more rest for our railroad employees, or we must have a continuation of these frightful tragedies increasing with the increase of railroad travel.

But we can not treat this important subject even in a cursory way in one short article; so we shall continue the consideration of the evils of a want of the weekly rest in railroad management, and urge the necessity of reform in this direction.

J. B. WALKER.

Monument to Rev. John Pipes.

[The following note from the daughter of our deceased brother explains itself.—EDITOR.]

Webster Groves, July 25, 1892.

MR. EDITOR: I see in your last issue an appeal for funds to raise a stone above my father. Lest there should be some reflection on his children of neglecting this, I wish to state that my father left money and instructions with me for the placing of a stone above his resting-place. When I wrote to make arrangements for this, the friends in Louisiana requested the privilege of giving the monument as a last token of their love to him who had so loved them. In accepting this we feel the tenderest gratitude to the contributors to this gift of love, and feel that another tie is added to those that bound us to our beloved Louisiana.

Very sincerely,
MRS. KATE J. JONES.

NOTES.

The acts of impulsive people can only be counteracted by a miracle. The impulsive Peter slashed off a servant's ear, and if Christ had not been near, Malchus would have carried the mark to his grave.

We heard of a brother who, in preaching, defined love as "a complacency, evolved from an internal aptency, answering to an external suitable." If he could have made the last word end in -ency, the definition would have been much more luminous, as well as penderous.

It looks a little incongruous—not to say, contradictory—for us to measure our service of the Master along the lines of dollars and cents. He "had not where to lay his head," yet "he went about doing good." The true measure of our service is what we can do, rather than what we can get.

Just as the Lord was preparing to put a great honor upon Aaron by investing him with the most sacred office known, Aaron was making a fool of himself by assisting the people in their idolatries. And the days of calf-making among the sons of Levi are not yet numbered!

The Seventy-sixth Annual Report of the American Bible Society is on our table. It reveals a great work done by this grand old society during the last year; a work whose influence is felt all over the world. The magnitude of the work is represented by the following figures: Receipts in cash, $388,402; disbursements, $365,330.

PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE.

St. Bernard says that "some people instead of 'putting off the old man,' dress him up in new clothes."

The census of Water Valley, Miss., shows a population of 4,200. Of these 1,205 are educable children; 755 white and 440 black.

Miss Alice Moore, daughter of Prof. Moore, of Emory College, has gone to Brazil as a teacher in the employ of the Woman's Board of Missions.

We are indebted to President Anderson for a copy of the twenty-second annual catalogue of his fine school, the East Mississippi Female College.

The tenth annual announcement of the Mississippi Normal College, Hattiesburg, Miss., has been received. It is said to be the largest normal school in the State.

The Water Valley Progress.

Dr. Price's sermon last Sunday on "Christian Science" was as bitter as gall and wormwood to the disciples of this new doctrine new in our midst.

The saloon people spend money freely to make the saloons attractive. Church leaders expect the people to be attracted to a dingy, rickety old house, blasphemously called a church! Nearly all of our church papers have shown exactly how our missionary debt can be paid, and yet it is not paid. It is evident, then, that the church don't need knowledge of that kind.

One of our exchanges says, "The delectable is like a tavern sign; it looks highest when ahead." Does this account for the fact that those who have reached that goal see no reason that others should be as fortunate?

A writer in the Montana Methodist speaks thus of our Bro. Couey, who "went West" from Louisiana, some years ago: "Couey—calm, cool, cautious, clear-headed and consecrated—holds well in hand the work on Helena district."

We have received two communications from different sources on the subject of Judas and the Last Supper. Brethren must not be worried if we "postpone indefinitely" opening the Advocate for the discussion of a subject so fruitless as that!

Did you ever preach on this text: "Lie not one to another?" In view of the fact that "this world is given to lying," wouldn't it be appropriate? We don't recollect ever hearing a sermon on the subject. It might do some church members good, too.

A presiding elder asks us this question: "Did you ever have anybody to pray for our beloved presiding elder as he goes over the country doing his 'superficial work'?" We never heard that prayer exactly, but we can imagine a case where it would be appropriate.

Bro. Ruy, of Lower Coast mission, was up to see us last week. He has his paragon about ready for occupancy! A church and a paragon and a doubled membership and sixteen new subscribers to the Advocate and three or four new Sunday schools are a part of the work he has done since January!

"A brother took pains and studied much and wrote an excellent article for the paper and sent it to the editor with this threat: 'If you don't publish this, I will not get mad.' And a great sigh of relief welled up from the vast depths of the editor's soul, and found expression in the classic language of the old Roman poet: 'Mirabile dictu!' which, being interpreted, is, 'You don't say so!'"

When we read the editorials of some of our papers we are led almost to the verge of despair for the future of the church. They represent the church as full of sinners and the pulpits occupied by faint-hearted, and the whole business "drifting" to the devil. We have often wondered what such writers would do and how they would atone if they were in charge of a congregation for one or two years!

Our rule in regard to obituaries is: We publish obituaries of 200 words free of charge; for all over this, one cent per word must be sent. Don't ask us to charge it to your account, unless you can get our printer to wait for his pay until you pay us. If you want the notice to appear in its order, comply with this rule. Count the words, and send one cent for each word over 200. If you don't comply with this rule, then it will be your fault if the obituary notice does not appear.

In regard to the burning of his church in San Jose, recently, Dr. Hannon says in the Pacific Methodist Advocate:

On Saturday night, July 4, 1891, Centenary Church and parsonage burned to the ground. On Saturday evening, at about the same hour, July 2, 1892, our church in San Jose was burned. I was the pastor of these churches at the time. Making allowance for "leap year," it occurred on the same day to a year. One church a year! I can sing Chapman's triumphant song: "We are building two a day," with the variation, "I am burning one a year." Talmage leads the Atlantic Coast with his church—at intervals of years burned twice; but he can't rival two in one year.

NOTES FROM OUR JACKSON OFFICE.

Rev. R. F. Jones, of Port Gibson Female College, passed through the city on July 27, and left his card at the branch office. Sorry we were not in. We hope he will call again.

Bro. T. R. Ellis has just closed a very successful meeting at Oriskany. He was assisted by Bro. Van Valkenburgh and others. There was quite a number of conversions and conversions.

A home is no home unless it contains food and fire for the mind as well as for the body—Selected.

The best way to accomplish this result is to put a Bible into every home, and on top of that the religious newspaper.

Forty three different institutions of learning appear regularly in the advertising columns of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE; and still they come. This does not include advertisements of boarding-houses, which have and will yet appear, nor does it include one school appearing twice.

From the Educational News, published at Philadelphia, we learn that Dr. Daniel Dorechester has introduced the Lord's Prayer, the Ten Commandments and the twenty-third Psalm into the religious exercises of the United States Government Schools among the Indians. Christianity is the best civilization man has ever tried or the world seen.

Two M. E. Church (colored) in this city was dedicated Sunday, week. It is a handsome brick structure, commodious and airy. After a sermon by the editor of the Southwestern Christian Advocate, published in New Orleans, a collection was taken up, and $125 were raised. One hundred persons contributed $1 each. At night another collection of $110 was taken, amounting in all to $235. The secret of this large collection by the colored people lies in the fact that everybody gave something. May we not learn a lesson here?

Thomas Cook, who is known all over the civilized world because of his "personally conducted tour" through Europe and other Eastern countries, died at his home in Leicester, England, July 20, being nearly eighty-four years old. He is said to have run the first publicly advertised excursion train ever run. This was in 1811. In 1838 he advertised a "grand circular tour on the Continent." So perfectly were his plans laid and worked, that today, it is said, a woman eighty years of age can travel all over the world on his coupons with perfect safety. The New York Christian Advocate, commenting on his successful career, says: "If Mr. Cook had not been an earnest temperance man, he might never have been heard of, though his energy would have made him successful in any line of work."

EVERY TESTIMONIAL in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla will bear the closest investigation. No matter where it may be from, it is as reliable and worthy your confidence as if it came from your most respected neighbor.

Hood's Pills cure Sick Headache.

For every dollar spent for mislons the United States spend $163 for intoxicating liquors, $100 on tobacco, $60 for theatrical and other amusements, $5 for kid gloves, $5 for corsets, $4 for chewing gum, $4 for silk feathers, and for pickles $3—Exchange.

Do You Know?

That when your bowels are disordered, and irregularities caused by change of diet or location exist.

Brodie's Astringent Cordial

Will correct all the troubles, and never fails, but

CURES

DIARRHŒA, DYSENTERY, COLIC, CRAMPS, BLOODY FLOX, and Such Symptoms.

TESTIMONIAL. July 28, 1892.

Dear Sir:—I have used Brodie's Astringent Cordial in my family, and am using the third bottle. It always acts like a charm upon my children, correcting ailments of the bowels better than any medicine I ever tried.

Yours, most respectfully,
Mrs. A. W. MOORE.

Price: 50 cts. and $1 a Bottle.

L. L. LYONS & CO., New Orleans, La.

Sold by All Druggists.

SOUTHERN ACADEMIC INSTITUTE.

Mrs. J. E. BRAMAN, Principal.

French and English School for Young Ladies. Graded and Chapered. Boarding Department. Specialties: Large Grounds. Kindergarten with Normal Training. Boys received in Kindergarten, and retained. It is a well prepared for Orleans. Send for Circular 216 College, New Orleans.

HOLLIS INSTITUTE

For Young Ladies. Open Sept. 1, 1892. 50th St. 20th and Teachers. (Preparation for College.)

Conservatory of Music. Conservatory of Music. Conservatory of Music. Conservatory of Music.

CLAS. L. COCKE, Supl., Hollis, Va.

CLAS. L. COCKE, Supl., Hollis, Va.

Take Measures

to make life easier by taking Pearline to do your washing and cleaning. It does away with half the labor, and with all the dirt. It does away with the Rub, Rub, Rub. Nothing in the way of housework is too hard for it; nothing washable is too delicate. All things washable are safe with Pearline. It saves from wear, and it keeps from harm.

Beware

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back. 25 JAMES PALE, N.Y.

MARTIN COLLEGE FOR YOUNG LADIES, PULASKI, TENN.

UNDER the patronage of the Tennessee Annual Conference. Permanent endowment fund, $10,000. The only school for girls in the South with an endowment and an absolutely out of debt. Eight acres of grounds—beautifully landscaped with shade trees, vines, evergreens, shrubbery and flowers. Buildings are of brick and stone, with elegant new furniture—all the rooms carpeted, and have the incandescent electric light.

The Most Beautiful and Comfortable Home for Girls in the South.

A full faculty of accomplished teachers. Specialists in Every Department. Ten teachers represented by the pupils last session. Health record remarkable—not a death in the boarding department for twenty years.

"Parents who wish to have their daughters graciously guided and faithfully trained by wise and thoroughly qualified teachers, and safely cared for in a safe, Christian and Methodist school, should send them to Martin College."

"It gives me pleasure to recommend a school where such good work is done as at Martin College. I have tested the work in Martin's and found it the best in any school of like grade within my knowledge."

Professor of English in Vanderbilt University.

"I would advise parents and guardians who want to put their daughters in a safe, Christian and Methodist school to send them to Martin College."

Chairman of Conference Visiting Committee.

"I have never seen anywhere, in any school, the highest culture to well equipped with the highest idea of experimental goodness as in this school."

Send for Catalogue which gives full information.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Address: R. M. SAUNDERS, Pres.

Whitworth Female College

AND

Conservatory of Music and Art.

BROOKHAVEN, MISS.

The 32nd Annual Session will begin

September 11, 1892.

This is one of the oldest, most prosperous and best Female Colleges in the South.

ADVANTAGES:—Every Chair in LITERARY DEPARTMENT is filled by the very best teaching talent money, and command. The work done, therefore, is thorough. A diploma from this college means a great advantage.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT.—Our Conservatory, established five years ago, has been a great success. Employing only graduates of the best Conservatories in Europe and America as teachers, we offer the very finest advantages to those who wish to prepare themselves as teachers of music. The President is constantly receiving applications for teachers who have taken our course.

ART DEPARTMENT.—This Department is presided over by a graduate of one of the best Schools of Design in this country. Our studio is a large, well-lighted, and well-ventilated room. It is supplied with the latest and best models.

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION AND PHYSICAL

CULTURE.—This is in charge of a graduate of the Boston School of Oratory.

BOARDING DEPARTMENT.—Is under the immediate control of the President's wife, assisted by an excellent housekeeper. The table is supplied with the best of the market articles. We have also a most refined, cultivated Christian lady as matron. Her duty is to look after the physical comfort and well-being of the girls. The College, thus equipped, offers to the young ladies of this and contiguous States the very best advantages that can be had. For further information and catalogue address:

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

L. T. FITZTHUM, A. M., President.

Millsaps College,

Jackson, Miss.

Session Begins Sept. 29th, 1892.

Full Faculty, Thorough Course,

GOOD ENDOWMENT.

New and Commodious Buildings.

Beautiful, Central and Healthful Location at the Capital of the State.

Cheap Board. No Tuition. Moderate Matriculation Fee.

Liberal provision made for young preachers and sons of preachers.

For terms, catalogue or other information apply to

Rev. W. B. MURKIN, D. D., President,

or Rev. A. F. WATKINS, Agent, Jackson, Miss.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

CHAR. B. GALLOWAY, President Board of Trustees.

The smallest Pill in the World!
Tut's Tiny Pills
 are very small, yet possess all the virtues of the larger pills. They have been used for years by the sick and suffering, and are now being used by the healthy and strong. They are a perfect remedy for all ailments of the stomach and bowels, and are especially useful in cases of indigestion, constipation, and headache. They are sold by all druggists, and are also sold by mail for 25 cents per box. Price, 25c. Office, 28 Park Place, N. Y.

Ready July 1st.

Gospel Hymns Nos. 5 and 6 Combined.

438 Pieces, many of which can be found in no other book.

Music, $50 per hundred; 50c. ea. by Mail. Words, $20 per hundred; 20c. ea. by Mail.

The John Church Co., The Biglow & Main Co., 74 West 4th Street, 75 East 9th Street, Cincinnati, New York.

SPEND THE SUMMER IN THE

Mountains of Southwest Virginia.

A quiet summer home can be found at

Martha Washington College.

The rooms are elegantly furnished; table, first-class. The buildings are large and comfortable. Eight acres of park-like grounds surround the college campus. Two acres of the best market garden in the country.

Rates: One Dollar per Day, and upwards.

Address: Rev. S. N. BARKER,
 Abingdon, Va.

Do You Know

That there is but one paper, perhaps, in the South, and but two in the United States, that makes specialty of defending the Christian Sabbath? But little attention is given to this great question even by the religious press. And

Do You Know

That there are more than a million laboring men in this land of Bible who have no Sabbath?

Have You Ever Seen

THE SOLDIER? It is a monthly paper devoted to the revival of an interest in the Lord's day, and to the fight against the liquor traffic.

Let every friend of God and His Holy Day, and every foe to the Whiskey Devil subscribe for THE SOLDIER. You can get it a whole year for only 50c. Subscribe at once. Address

REV. L. L. PICKETT, Columbia, S. C.

LIGHT

A new monthly magazine published in the interest of humane reforms, and as a literary journal for the South. Nothing else like it published in this section. Send for copy.

LIGHT, Natchez, Miss.

NATURE'S OWN REMEDY!

Bear Lithia Water

Cure Kidney and Bladder Troubles, Uric Acid, Gout and Rheumatism, Phosphoric Deposits, Inflammation of the Bladder, Dropsical Affections, Back Pain, Depositions, and Dyspepsia.

FOR SALE BY

CLARK & MEADER,
 16 and 18 CARondelet ST.

Cor. ST. CHARLES and NAPOLEON Avenues

The Book and Its Theme; OR, THE BIBLE AND ITS MISSION.

By Rev. L. L. PICKETT.

280 Pages, Cloth. Price, $1.00.

A Few Good Words.

Rev. J. F. Anderson: A strong book; one of the best.
 Rev. B. F. Gassaway: I have read it with great pleasure and profit. If only young preachers would procure and read the book, it would prove of incalculable benefit to them and to the Church.
 Mrs. N. E. Kimmerly: It was a feast to my soul.
 John R. Martin: It has done me much good.
 Rev. T. B. White: It is plain, well written, terse and strong; it is good and edifying reading.

Rev. L. L. PICKETT, Columbia, S. C.

SAM JONES!

If you will send me a postal note for 50 cents, I will mail you at once (postage prepaid) 1 copy of Sam Jones' Sermons, 846 pp., (regular price, 80 cents), 1 copy of Sam Jones' Anecdotes, as related by himself in revival meetings (regular price, 60 cents), 1 copy of a new Gospel Song—"Will You Meet Me at the Fountain?"—by Nelson Gilreath.

All the Above for Fifty Cents.

Send at once. Address
 NELSON GILREATH MUSIC CO.,
 Cartersville, Georgia.

For Only a 2c. Stamp!

To introduce The Way of Faith, a weekly, beautifully printed, vigorous holiness paper, we will send it free month for only two cents, provided you will then subscribe a letter to us to discontinue. Address

GOSPEL MISSION, Columbia, S. C.

AGENTS WANTED ON SALARY or commission, to handle the new Patent Chemical Ink Erasing Pencil. The greatest and greatest selling novelty ever produced. Erases ink thoroughly in two seconds. No abrasion of paper. Write like magic. 300 to 500 per cent. profit. One Agent's salary amounted to $400 in six days. Another $25 in two hours. Previous experience not necessary. For terms and full particulars, address, The Monroe Eraser Mfg. Co., Leominster, Mass.

HOME LIFE.

HAUNTED.

BY CARRIE BLANK MORGAN.

Sometimes, when I assume my ear to hear a classic symphony, I do, at most, but catch a bar or two, and then a ghost, unseen, unheard, but not unfelt, draws near. And gentlest finger-tips do close my ear. To prevent sounds, while from old days long lost.

A strain comes back and holds my soul engrossed.

A song once loved, a voice, low, sweet and clear.

A haunting voice! as thy notes rise and fall.

The present fades, the proud place at my side.

Gives place to one I can not but recall.

Her hot-house flowers, that bring their fragrance wide,

Field daisies are, and thou, who wert my bride.

In life's sweet spring, art once again my bride.

—California Magazine.

A Soul above Buttons.

"In the future there are two or three women who are going to rise up and call me blessed."

remarked the mother of three boys.

"Two or three special ones, do you mean?"

"Yes, indeed, I mean just that. I have no ambition to be a benefactor to the general public. And I don't know, by the way, that I have any special kindly feeling to the two or three women I spoke of. It isn't for the sake of my affections toward them that I'm earning their blessing now."

"Well, for gracious goodness! how are you earning it?"

"Why, I'm training my three sons to sew on their own buttons. They are beginning to do it of their own accord. They don't follow me about the house now with a coat in one hand and a button in the other. They go and get a needle and thread and sew the button on. They've found out it saves time and strength and words."

"It seems cruel to make boys sew on their own buttons."

"Cruel? It's kind! Those boys won't always have me to sew buttons on for them. They would be badly off, indeed, if they had to do it sometimes and didn't know how. It's right they should learn to do such things for themselves. A boy should be taught to make his own bed, put away his own clothes and sweep and dust his own room occasionally, and not always expect an over-worked mother or younger sister to do such work for him. I think a boy ought not to be entirely ignorant, even of cooking. It might be a great advantage to him some time to be able to make a good cup of coffee, broil a chop or cook potatoes. Some people profess to think that such knowledge comes by nature, but if not learned early it has to be bought of bitter experience, and we all know experience is a high-priced teacher to employ."

"Then it's for the boys' own sake after all, and not for the sake of their future wives, that you let them sew on their own buttons?"

"Why, of course! But sometimes I do think how deliciously some girl will be surprised, when one of the boys finds a button on his shirt, he won't stand and declare there hasn't been one in that place for six months. 'How know better. He will only say meekly, 'How careless I am! My dear, will you kindly hand me my little button-box out of the front right-hand corner of the second drawer? I must sew this button before I can put on this garment!'"

—Harper's Bazar.

Take Care of Your Eyes.

The eyes, like good servants, will work as long as they can possibly hold out for the tasks imposed upon them, even when the tasks are most unreasonable. The owner of the eyes, like a good master, should be careful not to put strain upon them, lest they give way under it altogether. A writer in the Youth's Companion says:

"The value of the sight is never fully appreciated until it is lost or impaired. Few persons realize that the eye is an intricate piece of mechanism, with a vastly more complex and delicate adjustment than the coldest watch. Even in our public schools the children and youth are allowed to abuse it in a most pernicious way, the teachers seemingly to be perfectly ignorant of probable disastrous results."

"To say nothing of the thousands of the hopelessly blind, let anyone go to the many eye infirmaries of our land, and witness the streams of patients constantly pouring through them, and to the offices of our numerous oculists, and see them, forenoon and afternoon, filled with sufferers patiently waiting their turn, and he will certainly come to feel the urgent need on the part of the community in general of a more intelligent and conservative use of the eyes."

"It is a disgrace to our educational institutions that half our students bring away from them myopic (short-sighted) eyes, and that, even in our grammar schools, children who have hardly reached their teens become life-long slaves to spectacles, formerly regarded as the almost exclusive badge and burden of old age. And it must be remembered that short-sightedness is not a mere inconvenience, but a disorder that tends toward ultimate visual disorganization."

Backbiters.

There are men who never have a good word to say of anybody. No matter how noble and of good repute a man may be, these backbiters will continue to say something to his disadvantage. They do not often speak directly. Against a good man, but by implication and innuendo seek to besmirch a fair and honorable reputation. Such men are a blight and bane to society. Of ill-repute themselves, they would drag others down to the same low level. The sight of an honest, trustworthy, high-minded citizen is sufficient to give them a bad attack of the spleen, which they seek to remedy by inventing stories derogatory to good character. Their own inherent badness causes them to think others must be bad, or, indifferent, also. The chronic backbiter would seem incurable. He will listen to no arguments in a good man's favor. That all men are more or less vicious is his premise, and the most convincing proof would not drive it from his mind. Truly a most deplorable state of mind and heart to be in! Were there no honest men in the world things would come to a standstill, and the earth would almost cease to revolve. It is they who make life and civilization what it is, and keep us from the primal chaos. But the born backbiter will entertain no such view as this, and goes on in his daily round of belittling everything and everybody. He seems to take great delight in it, and to roll it out as a sweet morsel from his tongue. We think if he could see how small, petty, and insignificant such a course is in life, and how it dwells and betrays his humanity (if there be a grain left in him), he would instantly reform and speak nothing but good of mankind forever afterward. —Selected.

Home and School.

The home and the school are two wholly different forces brought to bear upon the growing child. Indelicately exerted, one supplementing the other, these two influences should produce patriotic, well-balanced citizens. No argument is needed to prove the unfitness of home methods for school training, or of school methods for home training. The child whose parents treat him from the standpoint of the pedagogic is a pitiful creature, started monthly, startled mentally. Home training should be always indirect, persuasive; school training, direct, authoritative. Home training must be suggestive; school training, mandatory. Home training must give free play to the child's mental growth; school training must restrain and control that growth. The home fits the child to be a man; the school prepares him to be a citizen. It is seldom that the proper combination of these two elements is reached. The school takes away love, making morality an abstraction; the sentimentalists, whose hearts we are taken away with, making morality a passion. Moral training can be perfect only within the home.

To emphasize this training the home must be made the center of the child's existence. No stronger force exists to make it so than the double one of sacrifice and gratitude, the force of mutual obligation. There should be always present a sense of duty on the part of the parent to give the child such moral and mental armor as he can; and a corresponding sense of obligation on the part of the child to repay the self-denial of the parent, by exertion to do his will.

But the socialistic idea of education destroys completely all necessity for sacrifice on the part of the parent, and all motive for gratitude, therefore, on the part of the child. The tendency of the modern school is to restrict the duty of the parent to that of feeding and clothing the child. The latter is to become a mere machine for supplying the material wants of the next generation. All higher duties are to be relegated to a special class. This was done in the Middle Ages, with what results we know. Destroy parental responsibility, and the one concrete motive for human responsibility has disappeared. —J. P. Monroe, in Educational Review.

Definitions of "Home."

London Tid-Bits offered a prize for the best answer to the question: "What is home?" Here are a few of the bright answers which were received:

"The golden setting in which the brightest jewel is mother."

"A world of life shut out, a world of love shut in."

"An arbor which shades when the sunshine of prosperity becomes too dazzling; a harbor where the human bark finds shelter in the time of adversity."

"Home is the blossom of which heaven is the fruit."

"The only spot on earth where the faults and failings of fallen humanity are hidden under the mantle of charity."

"An abode in which the inmate, the superior being named man, can pay back at night with fifty per cent. interest every annoyance that has met him in business during the day."

"The place where the great are sometimes small, and the small often great."

"The father's kingdom, the children's paradise, the mother's world."

"The jewel casket containing the most precious of all jewels—domestic happiness."

"Home is the central telegraph office of human love, into which run innumerable wires of affection, many of which, though extending thousands of miles, are never disconnected from the one great terminus."

The Artist and the Chisel.

Look at the artist's chisel. The artist can not carve without it. Yet imagine the chisel, conscious that it was made to carve, and that carving is its function, trying to carve alone. It lays itself against the hard marble, but it has neither strength nor skill. Then we can imagine the chisel full of disappointment.

"Why can not I carve?" it cries. Then the artist comes, and seizes it. The chisel lays itself into his hand, and is obedient to him. That obedience is faith. It opens the channels between the sculptor's brain and the hard steel. Thought, feeling, imagination, skill, flow down from the deep chambers of the artist's soul to the chisel's edge. The sculptor and the chisel are not two, but one; it is the unit which they make that carves the stone.

We are but the chisel to carve God's statues in this world. Unquestionably we must do the work. But the human worker is only the chisel of the great Artist. The artist needs his chisel; but the chisel can do nothing, produce no beauty of itself. The artist may seize it, and the chisel lay itself into his hand and be obedient to him. We must yield ourselves altogether to Christ, and let him use us. Then his power, his wisdom, his skill, his thought, his love, shall flow through our soul, our brain, our heart, our fingers. That is working by faith. —Phillips Brooks.

Dr. Deems' Prize Letter.

The New York World recently offered a prize for the best letter telling how to manage a wife. Dr. C. F. Deems wrote a letter signed "A Joiner," which won the prize. Here is the letter. It is well worth a good read.

To Mr. Editor: "Message." What is that? Does it mean to control? We manage a horse. We use our superior human intellect to control and guide his superior physical strength so as to obtain the best results. But a wife is not a horse. Where two persons are well married the wife is superior to her husband in as many respects as he is superior to her in others. It happens to be the result of the union the first business of the husband is to manage himself as to keep himself always his wife's respectful friend, always her tender lover, always her equal partner, always her superior protector. This will necessarily stimulate the wife to be always an admiring friend, always an affectionate sweetheart, always a thrifty housewife, always a condescending ward. And this will always result upon the husband that his love or his wife will grow so as to make it easy for the husband, with all his faults, to bear with all the infirmities of his "one and only" wife.

THE EVIL OF LYING.—All Christians agree that lying is a great sin. "All liars have their part in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone." But he who willfully deceives another by word, look or nod is as really a liar as he who tells a great big falsehood. There is, in the true sense, no such thing as a "white lie," no more than there is such a thing as a "little sin." Any sin, no matter how little, constitutes its author a sinner; and any lie, no matter how "white," constitutes its author a liar; and God's Word tells where all such shall have their portion. Much harm comes to the church through the practice of deception and unfairness among those who profess to be Christians. "Buy the truth, and sell it not," is the divine injunction. —Religious Telescope.

OUR YOUNG PEOPLE.

LITTLE SISTER REHEARSES.

I wish that the poet who wrote these verses could see Little Sister when she rehearses. For she is a poem, all in herself—The gay little, grave little, whimsical all!

She begins with a bird-like start and flutter—With just the same air does the sparrow utter His own small song in the lilac close by—The same rich way with his head and his eye!

The voice of the bird is no sweeter—no clearer. He stops in the midst of his song to hear her. And the morning sunbeam and morning air Together come in to kiss her soft hair.

Some of the words are too hard—"is no matter. Just as a brook with musical chatter. Glides over its pebbles and never trips. So over the hard words smoothly she slips.

Some of the thoughts no doubt are beyond her. But of words with long trains Little Sister is fonder.

Than of rock and pineal worn every day; And "grown-up" thoughts please her in just the same way.

As her voice rippled on, as her bright eye glanced, 'Tis plain to be seen Little Sister has learned. No more to be caught than the morning air. And morning sunbeam that kiss her soft hair.

—Wide Awake.

Mr. Editor: As I have never written to your paper, I thought I would write to you. I am a little girl ten years old, and my papa is a farmer, also a merchant. We live near Big Black river, and we often go down on the lake fishing, where we have a delightful time. Some of the young men and ladies generally go boat-riding. I am going to school. My teacher is Miss Eva Middleton. We all love her dearly. I am studying grammar, geography, arithmetic, physiology, history, spelling and reading. Bro. Langford is our pastor this year. We like him very much. As this is my first letter, I hope to see it in print.

Your little friend,
 ANNIE ELAM.

Redmondville, Miss.

Mr. Editor: I am a little girl eleven years old. My papa teaches our dear old Advocate, and I love to read the little cousin's letters. I am mamma's baby. I have seven sisters and four brothers. Four of my sisters are married. I have been going to school, but have quit now. Our teacher was Miss Heloise Violet. We all liked her very much. She got married; she married Mr. Ira Sylvester. I don't suppose she will teach school any more. I will close by asking a question. Where in the Bible is looking glass found?

Your unkind friend, MARY A. PICKELS.

Lamorie, La.

Mr. Editor: As I have seen so many nice letters from the friends and cousins, I will attempt to write one myself. I have no pets, only eight little nieces and nephews, and you know they are the sweetest of all pets. We have had abundance of rain. Bro. Tucker was water-bound last Sunday, and would not get to his appointment; neither could we get there. They had Children's Day at the Campbellville Church, or Christian Church, the first Sunday in July. It was at night, and everything looked so nice; the house was decorated nice. I will close, hoping to see this in print.

Your friend,
 FANNIE ELLIS.

Mr. Editor: I have not seen a letter from this town in a long time, and I will write one. My father takes the Advocate, and I like to read the young people's column. My father is a merchant. We have several stores in our little town. We have preaching four times a month. Our pastor is Rev. J. C. Mimms. We all like him very much. I would like to ask the editor a question: Where is Mr. H. G. Hawkins' postoffice? Wishing the Advocate much success, I remain,

Your little friend,
 HOWARD ROBERTSON.

Blue Springs, Miss.

Mr. Editor: Will you receive another little note from your cousin? I am a little girl nine years old. I have no brothers or sisters, and my papa is dead. He died six years ago. I just do remember him. I have five little pets. Dear little kittens; some cruel person threw them on the street. I picked them up, brought them home, and am raising them on a bottle. Hoping this won't find the wastebasket, and that I will hear from some of the cousins soon, I am,

Your loving niece,
 MIRIAM L. GENSE.

New Orleans, La.

Mr. Editor: I have never seen a letter from Jefferson county, so I thought I would write one. I love to read the cousin's letters very much. I go to Sunday-school every Sunday evening. I am a member of the Methodist Church, and I go every Sunday I can. Our pastor is Bro. Cowan. I will close by asking a question: In what book of the Bible is all of the alphabet in one verse? Please publish this. With many good wishes to the cousins.

Your little friend,
 EMMA TILL.

Jefferson county, Miss.

Mr. Editor: As I have never seen any letters from this part of the country in your valuable paper, I thought I would write one. I am a little boy eleven years old. Our school is now open; will begin in September. I will answer Nora G. Edmondson's question: "Where was Moses when his light went out?" He was in the dark. I will write again if this does not go to the waste-basket.

Your little friend,
 WILLIE DITTO.

Liberty, Miss.

Mr. Editor: I noticed, in reading the Advocate, that one of the little friends asked a question, which I have concluded to answer. It was Peter that was led out of prison by an angel. Now, I will ask a question: Which is the shortest verse in the Bible? I became interested in the Advocate through the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell. I like them very much. I am reading Bishop Galloway's letters with interest. Respectfully,

CARRIE B. TERRY.

Brookhaven, Miss.

Little Dot's Wisdom.—Little Dot: "I know something my teacher doesn't know." Mama: "Indeed! What is that?" "I know" when the world is comin' to an end, and she doesn't. I asked her, and she said she didn't know.

"Oh Well, who told you?" "Uncle John. He said 'the world would come to an end when children stopped asking questions what nobody could answer.'" —Good News.

It is told of one of the children in a New York hospital, who had been under the care of one nurse for a long time, that when the little fellow found out that he was to go home cured, he put his arm around the neck of the nurse, and said softly in her ear, "My mamma will never hear the last of you." Was not that a very touching expression of gratitude?

SCIENTIFIC.

An Eiffel Tower at Chicago.

The stars and stripes are to wave 1,120 feet above the ground, higher than ever flag has waved before. It is to be done during the World's Fair from an American tower that will out-Eiffel Paris. The builder is to be Andrew Carnegie, of Pittsburgh. Over 25,000 people will be accommodated in the tower at one time, and two of the many elevators are to start from the ground and run more than one thousand feet up without change or stop, directly to the look-out landing. The width of the tower at the foundation level is 140 feet in each direction.

After long and careful study the designs have been completed by Engineer George S. Morrison, of Chicago. He estimates that the tower will be nearly four times that of the Eiffel Tower. The actual cost will be about $1,500,000. The cost of the Eiffel Tower was a little less than $7,700,000. The difference is in the greater simplicity of design of the American tower, and the cost of standard and merchantable sizes of steel used.

The three landings will be circular platforms, the first 250 feet in diameter and 200 feet from the ground. The second will be 180 feet in diameter and 400 feet from the ground, and the upper landing, more properly called the "viewing," will be 60 feet in diameter and 1,000 feet above the ground. At the first landing there will be a grand colonnade around the outside, 15 feet wide and 73 feet mean circumference.

On this colonnade four or five thousand people can be accommodated at one time. Inside this colonnade will be space, in addition to the space required for elevators and machinery, sufficient to build four hotels or restaurants.

In addition to the restaurants there will be provided numerous kiosks or booths, constructed in accordance with the architecture, styles and customs of various countries, which will be used for the sale of curios, ornaments, labrics and other articles produced and manufactured in all lands.

Within the restaurants 6,000 or 8,000 guests may be comfortably seated and served at one time. Within and about the booths and surrounding platforms 3,000 more people will have room to move about, make purchases, etc.

The second landing is designed as a grand promenade and picnic quarters in the day time, and as a dancing hall in the evening. It will accommodate at one time 5,000 to 6,000. The upper landing is to be finished as the grand lookout, and will be two or three stories high, and accommodate at one time 1,200 to 1,500.

Above this will be four offices for signal service and scientific investigations. Above this will be the circular electric railway, carrying electric lights at night and signals by day. Above this is the lighthouse, to be provided with the most powerful revolving light ever constructed, surmounted by the flagstaff and the stars and stripes. —Christian at Work.

A Fully-Peopled Earth.

From a series of researches and calculations by M. Ravenstein, a French geographer, it appears that over-population of the globe and the beginning of human decadence may be nearer at hand than most of us have supposed to be possible. The present population, 1,467,000,000 individuals, is distributed over the continents and islands, exclusive of polar regions, in the proportion of 11 inhabitants to the English square mile. Dividing the entire land surface, 44,360,000 square miles, into three regions, this author finds that fertile lands occupy, in round numbers, 28,000,000 square miles, steppe 14,000,000, and deserts 4,000,000. He estimates that the maximum number of persons that can be supported throughout the respective regions is 307 per square mile on the fertile lands, 10 on the steppes, and 1 per square mile on the deserts. The present average for India is 175; for China, 295; for Japan, 264. The investigator concludes that the greatest number of persons the entire land surface can sustain is 5,994,000,000. The total increase in population is now 8 per cent. per decade—being 8.7 in Europe, 6 in Asia, 10 in Africa, 30 in Australia and Oceania, 20 in North America, and 15 in South America—and at this rate the earth will have acquired all the inhabitants it can maintain in about 130 years, or in 172. Quite curiously, this date is about that fixed by geologists for the exhaustion of Great Britain's coal supply. —Exchange.

DEATH-WATCHES.—A chemist of Paris, not long ago, traced certain mysterious nocturnal rattlings to their source, and captured two possible disturbers of nervous people. They were insects about a quarter of an inch long, and the male was caught in the act of striking with his head against a sheet of wrapping paper at the rate of six blows a second, while the female—about four inches away on the opposite side of the same sheet—answered the signal. The creatures belong to the genus Anobium, of which several species figure as "death-watches." The larva lives in wood, in which it gnaws without giving visible sign of its presence, and from which the perfect insect emerges after a few weeks—passing in the meantime, through the chrysalis stage—by boring a cylindrical hole to the surface. One species not only attacks wood, but also books, natural history collections, dry bread, etc. Another species

Royal Baking Powder Has no Equal.

The Royal Baking Powder will make sweeter, lighter, finer-flavored and more wholesome bread, biscuit, and cake than any other leavening agent. It is of higher strength, and therefore goes further in work and is more economical. All government and scientific tests go to show this. Royal Baking Powder as a leavening agent is absolutely without an equal.

Rush Medical College, Chicago.

As the result of my tests I find the Royal Baking Powder superior to all the others in every respect. It is entirely free from all adulteration and unwholesome impurity, and in baking it gives off a greater volume of leavening gas than any other powder. It is therefore not only the purest, but also the strongest powder with which I am acquainted.

WALTER S. HAINES, M. D.,
Prof. of Chemistry, Rush Medical College, Consulting Chemist, Chicago Board of Health, etc.)

Episcopal Visitation for 1892 and 1893.

Conference.	Date.	Place.	Bishop.
Western	Aug. 31	Elk City, Kansas	Hendrix
Kentucky	Sept. 7	Nashville, Tennessee	Keener
Missouri	Sept. 13	St. Louis, Missouri	Galloway
Western Virginia	Sept. 13	Charleston, West Virginia	Keener
Los Angeles	Sept. 21	Independence, Missouri	Galloway
Southwest Missouri	Sept. 21	St. Louis, Missouri	Galloway
East Kentucky	Sept. 21	Paris, Kentucky	Blizard
Illinois	Sept. 28	Chicago, Illinois	Keener
China Mission	Sept. 28	Sanchow, China	Keener
St. Louis	Oct. 5	Kirkwood, Missouri	Galloway
Columbia	Oct. 12	Sacramento, California	Hargrove
Piedmont	Oct. 12	Wilmington, North Carolina	Hargrove
Tennessee	Oct. 19	Memphis, Tennessee	Hargrove
German Mission	Nov. 2	St. Louis, Missouri	Hargrove
West Texas	Nov. 2	El Paso, Texas	Hargrove
Northwest Texas	Nov. 2	Fort Worth, Texas	Hargrove
Texas	Nov. 10	San Antonio, Texas	Keener
North Alabama	Nov. 16	Montgomery, Alabama	Keener
Central Alabama	Nov. 16	Montgomery, Alabama	Keener
Indian Mission	Nov. 16	Indian Territory	Galloway
Virginia	Nov. 16	Norfolk, Virginia	Hargrove
Northwest Texas	Nov. 24	San Marcos, Texas	Hargrove
Memphis	Nov. 30	Memphis, Tennessee	Keener
Arkansas	Nov. 30	Fayetteville, Arkansas	Keener
North Mississippi	Nov. 30	Memphis, Tennessee	Hargrove
South Mississippi	Nov. 30	Memphis, Tennessee	Hargrove
Western North Carolina	Nov. 30	Winston, North Carolina	Hendrix
Little Rock	Dec. 7	Little Rock, Arkansas	Hendrix
Alabama	Dec. 7	Montgomery, Alabama	Hendrix
White River	Dec. 11	Batesville, Arkansas	Wilson
Mississippi	Dec. 14	Memphis, Tennessee	Wilson
East Texas	Dec. 14	Waco, Texas	Hargrove
Louisiana	Dec. 14	Shreveport, Louisiana	Galloway
South Carolina	Dec. 14	Charleston, South Carolina	Hendrix
North Carolina	Dec. 14	Columbus, North Carolina	Hendrix
South Georgia	Dec. 14	Columbus, Georgia	Hendrix
Florida	Jan. 4	Ocala, Florida	Hendrix
Baltimore	Mar. 23	Front Royal, Virginia	Key

QUARTERLY CONFERENCES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

NEW ORLEANS DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Fidelity	(even)	Aug. 14
Carrollton	(even)	14
Baton Rouge	(even)	21
Bayou	(even)	28
Parker Chapel	(even)	28
Dryades	(even)	28
Grays	(even)	28
Gros Teles	(even)	28
Lower Coast	(even)	28

At these conferences the Church Registers and records of Church Conferences will be called for.

C. W. CARTER, P. E.

ARCADIA DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Honor, at Arizona	Aug. 12, 14
Haynesville, at White Hall	15, 16
Valley, at Flat Lick	20, 21
Tulip	27, 28
Hinton, at Douglas	27, 28
Vernon	30
Gansville	30
Vernon	30
Oparka, at Pringle	10, 11
Shoggo, at Grand Bay	14

The Alexandria District Conference will convene at Columbia, Aug. 18-21, 1892.

J. L. P. SHEPARD, P. E.

ALEXANDRIA DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Columbia, at Columbia	Aug. 18, 14
Columbia, at Columbia	20, 21
Castor, at Olla	24
Adams	27, 28
Phenixville, at Oak Grove	27, 28
Centerville, at Jena	30
Vladimir, at Vlodimir	10, 11
Black River, at Larto	17, 18
Alexandria	17, 18
Montgomery	24, 25

The Alexandria District Conference will convene at Columbia, Aug. 18-21, 1892.

J. L. P. SHEPARD, P. E.

SHREVEPORT DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Orlando, at Cypress Camp Ground	Aug. 12
Grand Canal, at Cypress Camp G.	10
Morningsport, at Cypress Camp G.	10
Anacostia and Vernon	20, 21
Coudria, at Coudria	27, 28
Wesley	27, 28

The above schedule is arranged to meet, as far as possible, the plans of our brethren in holding camp meetings and other meetings. It changes are desirable, they will be made in practice.

ROBT. J. HARR, P. E.

OPOLUSAS DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Lake Charles mission, at Calcasieu	Aug. 13, 14
Shipper Mine, at Shipper City	20, 21
Lake Charles, at Lake C.	27, 28
Lake Arthur, at Lake Arthur	27, 28

JNO. A. MILLER, P. E.

DELLI DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Floyd, at Loneoke	Aug. 13, 14
Lake Providence	20, 21
Delhi, at Tallah	27, 28
Oak, at Tallah	27, 28
Waterproof	30
Winboro, at Prairie	30
Indian Village, at Anloch	10, 11

H. O. WHITE, P. E.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

BARDIS DIST.—THIRD ROUND.
Cold Water and Herndon	Aug. 13, 14
Courland, at Kureka Springs	20, 21
Panola, at Forest Hill	27, 28
St. Vernon, at Pine Springs	27, 28
Reah's, at Edgemoor	30
Wall Hill	30
Arkansas	30

Also request that the Records of Church Conferences and Church Registers be presented at their respective quarterly conferences for examination.

H. C. MCKINNEY, P. E.

KOSCIUSKO DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Balls	Aug. 13, 14
Pickens	20, 21
Lexington and Tchula	27, 28
Shenandoah	27, 28
Shenandoah	27, 28
Poplar Creek	30
Rural Hill	30

H. A. BURTON, P. E.

GRENADA DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Chapel Hill circuit, at Spring Hill	Aug. 13, 14
Philsboro circuit, at Tabernacle	20, 21
Atlanta circuit, at Atlanta	27, 28
Charleston circuit, at Gore's Chapel	27, 28
Tillatoba circuit, at Ebenezer (Twp.)	27, 28
Water Valley circuit, at Camp Ground	27, 28

W. T. J. SULLIVAN, P. E.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

MERIDIAN DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Leakeville circuit, at Vernal	Aug. 13, 14
Woboro and State L., at S. L. (Wed.)	17
Waynesboro circuit, at P. Grov.	20, 21
West Wayne circuit, at Churs. Fri.	27, 28
Shubuta circuit, at Quitman	27, 28
Clarke circuit, at Liberty	30
Porterville circuit, at Burton	10, 11
Chankey circuit, at Spring Hill	17, 18
Marion circuit	24, 25

Attention of the preachers is called to Question 14 as well as to Question 15, to which the notice of Church Conference secretaries is also called. The books should be present for examination. Let the quarterly fast be observed. Let us continue to pray for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon preachers and people.

T. L. MILES, P. E.

BROOKHAVEN DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Topshaw	Aug. 13, 14
Hazlehurst	18
Providence	20, 21
Macon, at Muddy Springs	27, 28
McMab City	27, 28
Summit	27, 28
Lebanon, at Blue Hill	30
Caseville, at Galala	10, 11
Bowerson, at Pleasant Valley	10, 11
Gallman, at Mt. Pleasant	17, 18
Terry, at Byrum	17, 18
China Grove circuit	24, 25

R. E. WOODWARD, P. E.

WOODVILLE DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Zachary, at Zachary	Aug. 13, 14
Clifton, at Clifton	18
Amite City, at Tangipahoa	27, 28
Amite, at Camp Ground	27, 28
Gloster and Centerville, at Camp G.	27, 28
Franklin, at Franklinton	10, 11
St. Helena, at Pine Grove	10, 11
Live Oak, at Betel	17, 18
East Feliciana, at Glad	17, 18
Springfield, at Westley Chapel	24, 25
Corington, at Camp Ground	1, 2
Tallahatchee, at Camp Ground	1, 2

P. A. JOHNSON, P. E.

VICKSBURG DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Meadville, at New Providence	Aug. 13, 14
Mayerville, at Mayerville	20, 21
Port Gibson	27, 28
South Warren, at Red Bone (Wed.)	30
Boys	10, 11
Warren, at Oak Ridge	17, 18
Angella and Rolling Fork	17, 18
Rocky Springs	24, 25
Utica	24, 25

D. A. LITTLE, P. E.

GRANDSHORE DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Perry, at Isabella	Aug. 13, 14
Heldberg, at Liberty	20, 21
Ellisville, at Laurel	27, 28
Paris, at Poplarville	27, 28
Eastabochie, at Paradise	30
Stitesburg, at Knott	10, 11
Williamsburg, at Oakhay	17, 18
Mt. Carmel, at Mt. Moriah (Tues.)	24, 25
Columbia, at Poplar Springs (Thurs.)	24, 25
East Pearl, at Byrd's Chapel	1, 2

JOHN A. ELLIS, P. E.

BRANDON DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Shiloh, at Gum Springs	Aug. 13, 14
Carthage circuit	20, 21
Chatham and Walnut Grove	27, 28
Walnut Grove circuit	27, 28
Brandon station	30
Hillsboro, at New Providence	10, 11
Reah's, at New King's	17, 18
Trenton, at Trenton	10, 11
Westville, at Pleasant Grove	17, 18
Mt. Rose, at Holder's	24, 25

C. McDONALD, P. E.

JACKSON DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Madison circuit, at Pearl River	Aug. 13, 14
Jackson—First Church	20, 21
Jacks—Capitol Street	27, 28
Yazoo circuit, at Truett	27, 28
Daymond circuit, at Raymond	30
Edwards	10, 11
Lake City and Lodi circuit, at Lodi	17, 18
Newton circuit, at Newton	17, 18
Silver Creek circuit, at Silver City	24, 25
Pocahontas circuit, at Flag's Chapel	1, 2

Special attention is called to Question 15.

E. H. MOUNGER, P. E.

CAMP MEETINGS.

The second annual camp meeting for the Lake River Camp Ground will begin on Friday before the second Sunday in October. This camp ground is situated on the N. O. and N. E. railroad, one and a half miles from Tusculum station. Ministers of the gospel, as well as all others, are cordially invited to attend.

G. R. ELLIS, P. E.

Lake Camp Meeting will commence Friday night, Aug. 26, 1892. Eminent preachers have been secured to conduct the religious services. The large hotel will be open for the accommodation of visitors, also refreshment stands. Tents may be had by applying to the undersigned, free of charge. A live of hawks will be run from the grounds to Lake, meeting all trains. The A. & V. R. L. will sell round-trip tickets for one and one-third fare. A gate fee of ten cents will be charged for the meeting. Everybody is invited to come.

W. M. THORNTON,
Camp Meeting Committee.

Camp Meeting Calendar.

Camp Meet'g.	Begins.
Topshaw	Aug. 12
Cypress	Aug. 12
Providence	Aug. 18
Sam Jones	Aug. 26
Lake	Aug. 26
Hendington	Sept. 1
Water Valley	Sept. 1
Orville-Whittington	Sept. 2
Whittington	Sept. 2
Lake River	Oct. 7

An Only Daughter Cured of Consumption.

When death was hourly expected from Consumption, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimentally and successfully made use of a Preparation of Indian Hemp, which cured his only child, and now gives this recipe free on receipt of two stamps to pay expenses. Hemp also cures night sweats, rashes at the stomach, and will break a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address Cradock & Co., 1822 Race street, Philadelphia, Pa., name this paper.

The Central Christian Advocate has the following, which will be read with interest by all our temperance people. That takes in all Christians.

One of the most encouraging signs of the times is the rapidly increasing temperance sentiment to Great Britain. It is said that the new House of Commons will contain in all probability a majority of temperance reformers.

HOW TO KEEP COOL.

If you are looking for pleasant locations to spend the hot days at moderate cost, write to D. G. Edwards, G. P. A., Queen and Crescent Route, Cincinnati, O., for copy of Queen and Crescent Book entitled, "Summer Days," which will be mailed promptly free of charge.

All persons desiring to purchase choice Pianos, Organs, Musical Instruments or Music, should not fail to visit the large establishment of L. Grunewald Co., Limited, at Nos. 127 Canal and 14 to 20 Baronne streets, New Orleans.

FOR DYSPEPSIA.

Indigestion, and stomach disorders, take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. All dealers keep it. $1 per bottle. Genuine has trade mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

READ! READ! READ!

Here is the book that everybody has needed. The latest, best and only Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge, in convenient size.

Has the highest endorsements of very best critics. In this volume you will find anything you want.

Price: $3.50, $5 and $6.

Agents wanted in every county and parish in bounds of Mississippi Conference. Liberal commissions. Send $1.00 for prospectus and begin work.

Send me your orders for Sunday-school literature and any books you may want.

W. D. DOMINICK,

220 Capitol St., Jackson, Miss.

Iuka Normal Institute,

IUKA, MISS.

Expenses for term of 10 weeks, $33.75; 40 weeks, $135.50; 48 weeks, $180. I am not trying to run the cheapest school in the South. I am trying to run the best one. Success. Schools supplied with teachers. Write to

H. A. DEAN, Prin.

Tuskaloosa Female College,

TUSKALOOSA, ALA.

Offers superior advantages in every department of female education.

Session opens Oct. 6.

For catalogue, giving full information, apply to

ALONZO HILL, President.

DAVIS SCHOOL

DAVIS SCHOOL

Degrees in

CIVIL ENGINEERING,

SCIENCE AND ART.

Full Commercial Course.

Practical Course in Telegraphy. Instruction in Music and Art. Correct Band.

Location famous for Beauty and Health.

For those not prepared for College Classes, there is a Complete Preparatory Department.

Resident Surgeon. Preparatory Medical Department. No charge for medical attention.

Low rates. For particulars, address

DAVIS SCHOOL, Winston, N. C.

Lauderdale Training-School,

AT LAUDERDALE SPRINGS, MISS.

(Junction of M. and O. and E. T. 18 miles north of Meridian)

H. E. HARRIS, A. M. (V. U.)

G. W. HUSTON, A. M. (S. N.)

We furnish thorough training and prepare students for College and University work.

Total cost per session of nine months, $120.

For prospectus, address

W. DUNTON, Sec.

Lauderdale, Miss.

KNABE

PIANOS.

UNQUALIFIED IN

Tone, Touch, Workmanship and Durability

Baltimore, 22 and 24 East Baltimore St.

New York, 145 Fifth Ave.

Washington, 517 Market Space.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

Christian Advocate.

VOL. 39.—NO. 33.

NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, AUGUST 18, 1892.

WHOLE NO. 1878.

Rev. C. W. CARTER, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. LEWIS, Ass't Editor.

PUBLISHED FOR THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE AND NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

Out of Scotland into England.

After a delightful and profitable three days in Edinburgh, I left on the morning of the fifth instant for Melrose and Abbotsford. The ancient abbey at Melrose is, perhaps, the greatest of all Scotland's historic ruins. In the architectural genius which designed it, the skill which executed it in numberless delicate details, the marvelous taste in its stonework and tracings—some of which remain—and the exhaustless wealth of its associations, the venerable pile stands easily at the front of her sacred shrines. No wonder Sir Walter Scott spent so many meditative hours there. And the stone is carefully preserved on which he sat, and where he wrought in outline, the stories that have enriched the literature of the ages. There the heart of Bruce is buried, and a tablet marks the place. His body sleeps elsewhere. There the Black Douglas is buried, and other notable Scottish chiefs. In the graveyard adjoining are the bones of honored dead—among the last there laid to rest being Sir David Brewster. I saw a splendid statue of him in the University at Edinburgh, with which institution, you know, he had long and distinguished connection.

A drive of three miles took me to Abbotsford, the home of Sir Walter Scott. Admission is gained by paying a small fee, and then a guide conducts the party through the apartments open to public eyes. The property is owned by Sir Walter's great-granddaughter, who resides there. We see his study as he left it—the books carefully arranged, his desk, and the large chair in which he sat. Through other rooms we are conducted, and told the history of this table and that picture and yonder cabinet. We are shown hundreds of curious things he had collected, and others presented by kings, queens, princes and friends. There are the pistols of Napoleon which he carried at Waterloo. But time fails for the enumeration.

Desiring to see the country, I ran down to Carlisle to spend the night, and thus have a day-ride to London, starting early the next morning. The time at Carlisle—an important border town, connected prominently with the early history of the country, and especially during the long wars between Scotland and England—was improved by visiting the cathedral and castle. The castle is now used for soldiers' barracks, and is preserved with patriotic pride. Much history was made here also. I was conducted into the dark dungeons, where political prisoners were confined and where religious martyrs died. In one, Fox, who wrote the "Book of Martyrs," was himself a sufferer. In a room in the round tower the ill-fated, beautiful Mary, Queen of Scots, was a prisoner for two months. The old guide showed us a stone in one of the dungeons from which water was dripping, which is called the "weeping stone," the tradition being that it began thus to weep on the day Queen Mary died. The dampness may be easily accounted for from natural causes, but the story is pleasant, nevertheless.

At night I walked up the street and joined the excited crowds in front of the newspaper offices. Returns were coming in from the elections that day, and there were alternate shouts and groans, as party friends or foes had carried certain divisions. The scene was so much like many witnessed at home, I had to retake my bearings and look again into strange faces, to remember that I was in England and not Mississippi. The inevitable and universal funny fellow is in the crowd—the vociferous small politician who shouts the loudest and has less involved in the issue—and the owl-wise old oracle, like the venerable Squire in Georgia scenes, who knows just the way the election will result, but is careful never to tell.

The next day I had a fine opportunity of seeing England from the Tweed to the Thames. Charming landscapes on either side greet the eye, and one would suppose the agricultural people were prosperous. There is, however, the same unrest among the rural population in England as elsewhere, and the same rapid, ominous drift to the cities. I passed through the great Yorkshire district, and the manufacturing cities of Leeds, Sheffield and Nottingham, whose industries have made them immensely rich and famed throughout the world. Passing through Bedford, I thought, of course, of John Bunyan, and looked out, hoping to see the monument erected to the "Immortal dreamer" some years ago, at the unveiling of which, I remember, the large-hearted Dean Stanley delivered a notable address.

London was reached shortly after six, and the day's delightful journey ended, where all the world seemed to have come. There is one rebate to the delight of railroad travel in this country—the construction of the "carriages," as they are called, and the meager information furnished travelers as to the arrival and departure of trains, and the times and places for changing cars. You are supposed to know where you are going, and when, and how. These little compartment cars are not pleasant or safe for ladies traveling alone. Since I have been in England the newspapers have given accounts of a lady being insulted on a railway carriage by a brute, who, I am sorry to say, masqueraded under the dress of a clergyman.

On the next day, at noon, I went to the City Temple and heard Dr. Joseph Parker, author of Eccle Deus, and many other well-known works. The Thursday before was an anniversary day—his thousandth Thursday-noon sermon in that pulpit. When I heard him a large congregation was present, and by occasional applause gave evident approval of his utterances. He wears a black gown, as do all the Congregationalists, and has a rather striking appearance. One is impressed with his power—his originality and vast reserve force; but his mannerisms are sometimes grotesque, and his attitude-dinizing offensive to good taste. There are passages in his sermons of surprising and surpassing beauty, but the staple of his discourse was plain, and much of it not above commonplace. The following I caught: "Monday was never intended to be a sponge to wipe away the impressions of God's holy day." "It should be the chief miracle of Beelzebub for two Christians to quarrel." From there I walked over to St. Paul's, and spent an hour or so admiring that miracle of Sir Christopher Wren's architectural genius, and its rich historic treasures. On these I made notes, and could fill columns; but would only repeat a story quite familiar to many of your readers. This inscription on a statue within a spallone nave may have some local interest to you: "Maj.-General Sir Edward Pakenham, who fell gloriously on the 8th of January, 1815, while leading his troops to an attack on the enemy's works in front of New Orleans." There is also a statue near to Lord Cornwallis, not unknown in American history. In that sacred temple are also among the many distinguished, Canon Liddon, Henry Venn, Sir Edward Laidlaw, the Duke of Wellington, and Lord Nelson. Down in the crypt is preserved the funeral car on which the Duke of Wellington was borne. It was made of cannon used in his battles, and cost £20,000. The iron Duke laid in state for two months, whilst the preparations were being made for his national funeral. But of London, as seen by the average tourist, I shall have to write, possibly, at another time. You would like to know something of it, Methodistically.

Well, the brethren have been exceedingly courteous and hospitable. First, I went to the Centenary Hall and Mission House, a magnificent building not far from the Bank of England, erected during the centenary year of 1830. There I was invited to the final sitting of the "Stationing Committee." The most interesting stage had been reached—the disposal of the difficult cases. A special committee had been ordered on final adjournment. On that report there was interesting debate. The home feeling came over me suddenly, and I wondered if, indeed, this was not a "cabin meeting" in the States. The "Stationing Committee" is composed of the president and secretary of the Conference; a representative from each district, elected by the district meeting, who is generally the chairman of the district—or, as we know him, the presiding elder—and a representative from the Connectional Boards. A list is prepared in advance by the secretary, showing the number and names of those who have accepted invitations, those for whom provisional arrangement has been made by the chairman, and those, uninvited, for whom no provision has been made. The pastoral term is three years; but, unless the invitation for the third year is not practically unanimous, it is not confirmed by the committee. When finally agreed to, the first draft is sent to the seat of Conference to be printed and published. There is a sort of unwritten law that the place entertaining the Conference should do the printing and receive any profits arising from the sale. And, by the way, our brethren here use more printer's ink in some ways than we do, and to better advantage.

The "Blue Book," containing all business prepared for the Conference—both for pastoral and representative sessions—is being printed, and will be ready for each member the first day at Bradford.

Rev. John Bond, the Church Extension Secretary, also has an office in Centenary Hall. I visited his office also, and he was kind enough to accompany me to several places of interest, including the Tower of London, the Coal Exchange, and Billingsgate. Of that latter place you have heard. Twice I have lunched with Rev. C. H. Kelley, book-steward and ex-president, at the Book Room, and each time met several representative men of Methodism. I was accompanied through City Road Chapel and Bunhill Fields by Dr. Waller, and had the pleasure of attending a meeting of the "House Committee" of the Westminster Training College, and having tea with them, Dr. J. H. Riggs presiding. Drs. Stephenson and Waller, and Messrs. Kelley, Bond, Allen and others, have done everything possible to make my visit pleasant and profitable. Mr. Kelley opened his sacred treasury of Methodist antiquities for me, and you can possibly imagine the keen delight with which they were eagerly, reverently examined. There was John Wesley's well-bound manuscript hymn book, written in long-hand by himself. Possibly, like myself, you did not know that Mr. Wesley used this, and not a printed book. This is a specimen line—the first of a well-known hymn:

"191—See how great a flame aspr." I looked through his account book and read the last, oft-quoted entry, made with trembling hand. There also I saw a volume—in some respects the most interesting of the collection, and until recently not known to be in existence—"Manuscript Notes of Mr. J. Wesley and Others, Who Met to Read the Scriptures at the Origin of Methodism in Oxford." Another one is there, especially interesting to our side of the Atlantic—"John Wesley's Manuscript Journal When in America." It was a rare pleasure to look into a manuscript hymn book of Charles Wesley, and read several of his hymns in his own handwriting, and as they were first written, and also the manuscript journal of the great poet of Methodism and the hymnist of the world. In the mission rooms at Centenary Hall are also many valuable antiquities. The original paintings, "The Burning of the Epworth Rectory," and "The Death of John Wesley," are there, together with manuscripts, portraits and relics, each of special value.

On Sunday, last, I heard Rev. Mark Guy Pearse and Archdeacon Farrar. In the morning, at St. James' Hall, where Mr. Pearse preached, I noticed Mr. D. L. Moody in the congregation—there, I did not, like myself, not only to hear the distinguished preacher, but to see something of that mission and the "forward movement." The congregation was very large, and the sermon, on the witness of the Spirit, practical, plain and pointed—quite characteristic of the author of "Daniel Quorn" and "Some Aspects of the Blessed Life." Dr. Farrar's sermon, in Westminster Abbey, was on the Lord's Prayer—eloquent, and thoroughly evangelical. He inveighed vigorously against the conceit and selfishness of ohorism.

On Saturday I go to Oxford for the Sabbath, thence to the Conference at Bradford on Monday. Since my letter referring to Rev. W. J. Dawson's rumored withdrawal from Methodism, he has taken the final step, and not one word of regret has been expressed by any Methodist I have heard of, either in public or private.

Fraternally,
CHAS. B. GALLOWAY.
London, July 12, 1892.

The following definition of "money" won the prize offered by an English paper: "An article which may be used as a universal passport to everywhere except heaven, and a universal provider of everything except happiness."

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. J. L. P. Sheppard: "Had a glorious District Conference. Good preaching, fine singing, fervent prayers; brotherly love abounding from beginning to close. Quite a number of conversions and accessions. We missed you much, but we felt that it was a matter of duty that kept you away."

Rev. J. D. Harper, Ruston, La., Aug. 8: "We began a meeting at Douglas Church, on the Ruston circuit, July 14, and continued till the twenty-first. We report twenty conversions and eleven accessions, and the church greatly quickened and strengthened. Bros. Davis and Howell, of the Conference, and T. W. Pipes, a local preacher, rendered efficient aid. To God be all the glory."

Rev. W. F. Sanders, Gansville, La., Aug. 4: "Just closed an interesting meeting at Gansville, which resulted in two joinings by letter, and the church greatly revived. Some shouted the praise of God; others came to the altar for prayers; all resolved to live a better life. It was the best meeting I ever saw at Gansville. Bro. P. Burkett, L. E., rendered valuable service in this meeting. I go to Brooklyn tomorrow."

Rev. John Park, P. C., Strongsville, Aug. 6: "Have just closed a great revival at Prairie, Miss. The meeting lasted eight days. Rev. L. G. Boggan, of Tupelo, did the preaching. His preaching did us great good. Such manifestations of divine power were never known before in that community. Twenty-eight conversions in and out of the church at one service. Thirteen accessions to the church; more will join. Pray for us."

Rev. W. L. Anderson, L. P.: "We have just closed a protracted meeting at Channel's School-house, an appointment heretofore in the background of Nesbit circuit (Rev. C. W. Perkins, P. C.). We were assisted by Bro. Perkins. The presence of the power of God was manifest from the beginning. Great good was accomplished in the name of Christ. Fifteen were soundly converted, eleven joined the church by profession of faith, and baptized a dozen children; a church organized. Glory to God!"

Rev. R. M. Blocker, Rayne, La., Aug. 3: "We have had an excellent revival at Plaquemine, Brulee, with good results, some of which were seven accessions to the church and about ten conversions. Notwithstanding a continuous rain, the people came out to hear the Word of God in gospel and song. We had four good sermons delivered by Bros. Pilley, J. A. Miller and C. B. Carter. We began at Church Point last Sunday, but had to adjourn a few days for the roads to improve. James C. Davis, of Vinton, is with me, studying for the ministry."

Rev. M. L. White, Mt. Carmel, Miss.: "I have just closed a meeting at Blountville. It lasted six days; three sermons a day. Bros. G. W. Brown, J. H. Evans and M. H. Moore did faithful, good preaching, and endeared themselves nearer to me and my people. Sixteen accessions to church; whole community blessed. Members of Baptist Church took great interest in meeting; some of the members of both churches exercised in public. This is a new church—one year old. We have nearly fifty members; bids fair to be one of our best churches. Bro. Moore and myself will commence a meeting near Pearl River, where Methodist preachers have never gone much. An arbor will be made; we are expecting a good meeting. Pray for us. Meeting will be first Sunday in October."

Rev. C. McDonald, P. E., Forest, Miss., July 30 and 31: "I held the Neshoba Quarterly Conference at North Bend. Congregations good both days, and a good start for a protracted meeting which was expected, and Bros. Long and Cammack were ready to do the preaching. On Saturday, in Quarterly Conference, we arranged for the purchase of a parsonage. I especially urge parsonage building in the district. On Sabbath morning we had the pleasure of baptizing six infants, and was told there were others to be baptized, but were not there in time for that service, but will be dedicated to God during the meeting. The crops are tolerably good in this section, and we hope for good collections. On the second of this month, on our way home from Neshoba, we spent the day at the 'Astrons' Union Camp Ground, near Lake, Miss. This institution is gaining a wide influence, and is not only an entertaining thing, but disseminates knowledge on various subjects."

Rev. J. P. Drake, Shubuta, Aug. 3: "We have had a good meeting at DeSoto. Beginning July 22, at night, it continued till Sunday night, July 31. From Saturday night, the twenty-third, Dr. J. W. Harmon did all the preaching. It did not sound like the utterances of a supernuminate. Full of force and fire, it had also the true ring of practical gospel truth. It reached down to the heart and conscience. We expect much good to result in and to the church. Only two new members, most of the community being already within the visible fold. The singing was unusually fine. The Lord's hand-maiden who led this service is too modest and retiring to admit of her name here. God will surely reward her work. Though it rained nearly every day, sometimes furiously and frequently, and though the weather was the 'hottest ever known,' yet congregations were increasingly large to the end, and reverently attentive. God's name was honored. May it be glorified more and more!"

Rev. P. Howard, Adams circuit, Aug. 2: "Assisted by Bro. H. P. Lewis, of Caseyville circuit, we held a five days' meeting at Ebenezer, Adams circuit, embracing the third Sunday in July, and although we had but two conversions and no accessions, yet we felt that much good was done in the way of building up the membership, spiritually. The work was more intensive than extensive—a work greatly needed, generally. Again, assisted by Bros. J. G. Cammack, M. L. Burton, B. F. Lewis and the local and lay brethren, we held an eight days' meeting, including the fourth and fifth Sundays in July, at Adams, which resulted in a general revival of the membership. Thirteen accessions, and, as well as I could judge, about fifty conversions. It rained nearly every day during both of these meetings, yet the people came out in great numbers, bringing baskets and boxes of provisions, till there was no lack, nor did they forget or neglect the parsonage in their generosity. The brethren all gave us the gospel with all its legal thunders and loving, tender appeals. The general statement is, 'I never heard better preaching all the way through.' Let us praise God for strong men and true, both old and young."

Rev. J. H. Evans, Williamsburg, Miss., July 26: "I have held two protracted meetings, which resulted in a revival at each place. Williamsburg was my first meeting. The preaching was very good, and the Spirit was with us in demonstration and in power, and sinners were converted and backsliders reclaimed, and the church very much revived. We had three accessions to the church—one by letter, two by form of Discipline. We are under many obligations and thanks to Bro. B. H. Rawls, of Montrose, and Bro. Brown, of Silver Creek, and Bro. White, of Mount Carmel charge, for their labors. Our next meeting was at Bethel Church. We had an old-fashioned Methodist revival. The preaching was done by the writer in a plain way, condemning sin and calling it by its proper name. The singing was done with the Spirit and with the understanding. The prayer meeting was earnest and good. The experience meeting was the best of all, and resulted in a gracious outpouring of the Spirit of God, and many shouted the praises of our blessed Christ. Sixty professed to have received a blessing; several were brought from darkness and were translated into the blessed Christ. We give God the glory. The rainfall here is resulting in great damage to the crops. Many sad hearts besides the preacher and family. Pray for us."

Rev. J. H. Holland, Americus circuit, Mississippi Conference: "On account of having a hard spell of la grippe just after Conference, I was not able to move to my work until about the first of February; and when I reached my circuit, I found a parsonage house, but nothing in it. So we went to work talking to the brethren about help in furnishing the parsonage, and we soon got them interested, and they went to work. And now we are getting tolerably well fixed up. So I think by the close of the year we will have the parsonage furnished, so the preacher that will come after us will be very nicely fixed up. We are among a very good and appreciative people. They take good care of the preacher. We have not had any great storms, like some other preachers, but we have had a very nice, good, gentle breeze all the time; so everything is moving on splendidly. We have held some protracted meetings; but, there being so much rain during our meeting, the result was not as good as we desired, but they were all tolerably good meetings. Some conversions and some accessions. Our work is on the upgrade, religiously. We are having prayer meetings in every community on the circuit. We have five Sunday-schools, all in very good working order. We have held Children's Day at three of our schools, and the children did splendidly, being the first ever held on the circuit. The children collected $22.40 at these three schools. All that the children collected on Children's Day will go to form missionary Sunday-schools. There will be a camp meeting at old Salem Camp Ground, on the Americus circuit, embracing the second Sunday in October, beginning on Thursday night before. Preachers are invited and urged to attend."

Rev. D. C. Rawls, East Pearl: "I have just closed a nine days' meeting in the town of Orvilleburg, with wonderful results. While we have about ten different denominations represented here, Methodism is prevailing and obtaining hold every day. Starting with nothing, we have about twenty-five members here this year. Many of them are hot men and women that love the church, and are willing to spend and be spent in its service. My increase on the work is about forty-five. We hope to have, at least, three new churches this year. Bro. Van Valkenburgh did most of the preaching, and the Lord honored his labor by the presence of the Holy Ghost falling here and there in the congregation, and filling the soul until shouts of joy could be heard all over the town. Bro. Ellis is a faithful worker, and lifts the audience to heights unknown by the telling of his personal experience. The spirit of song and old-time Methodist handshaking characterized the entire services. This is a point toward which a tide of immigration rises and flows. Many noble men and women are coming from the North to our Sunny South, and we want to take hold of their hearts and lead them into our church, and make them feel at home. Along this line we need to use much good judgment. In my revivals I receive church certificates almost worn out, given by the different churches in the North. The bolder, hapiest fresh with holy fire, comes forward and says, 'I have kept my letter until it is almost worn out; but here I am, blind me as you please, and work me as you can for the Master. Glory to God for the church!' We have a beautiful and convenient house, furnished free of rent, by Mr. Sweet, Congregationalist, and Mr. Orvis, Methodist, men from the North. Added to this, we have many other substantial favors shown us by the good people of Orvilleburg."

REVIVAL NOTES.
At Winchester—Rev. J. W. Tinning, P. C.—new church dedicated; 15 conversions, 8 accessions. Bro. J. V. Penn assisted.
At Marvin, DeKalb circuit—Rev. R. A. Breland, P. C.; Rev. Jno. A. Moore, junior P. C.—4 accessions and 25 claimed to receive witness of the Spirit. A number of family altars newly erected.
At Mt. Pleasant, DeKalb circuit—2 accessions, and 15 claimed the witness of the Spirit, and one profession of sanctification.
At New Hope, DeKalb circuit—Rev. W. G. Backus assisting—18 accessions.
At Chapel Hill, Vossburg circuit—Rev. B. S. Rayner, P. C.—13 accessions; and at McGowan's Chapel, 30 accessions. Rev. E. T. Breland, West Wayne mission, did most of the preaching.
At Chapel Hill, Porterville circuit—Rev. J. T. Ahney, P. C.—15 accessions, and 2 at other points.
T. L. Mellen, P. E.

Bishop Galloway before the Wesleyan Conference.

Mr. President and Brethren:

I am commissioned by the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to convey to you the words of a Christian statesman, a noble leader of the South, and a fellow-laborer in the gospel. To me this is a personal pleasure and a very great, though unmerited, honor. From early boyhood I have most earnestly desired to visit the land of Wesley and the earliest home of our common Methodism. I come from that section of America which is most intimately connected with the personal history of our great founder. It was to the Indians and English settlers in our Southern land that Mr. Wesley went as a missionary. He was in Georgia in 1733, and he was in Georgia that Mr. Whitefield built his orphanage, and there spent most of his American ministry. In our Southern land the first Methodist school was established—an American Kingswood, and was named in honor of our first superintendent, Thomas Coke and Francis Asbury. And that land of Wesley's earliest missionary labor has the largest Methodist membership, in proportion to population, of any section of the world.

I do not conceal the fact that your appointment of a messenger to bear fraternal greetings and respect to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, gave me special, even distinguished, pleasure. The salutations of our sister Methodists have made us glad—the blessing of our mother gave us honor. We were delighted with your message, and charmed with your messenger. We welcomed him cordially, threw wide open the doors of our proverbial Southern hospitality, and listened with eager appreciation to his glowing words, thrilling with the eloquence of love. I greatly delighted in that Dr. Waller brought back so pleasant a memory of his mission, and to read his very able, discriminating, generous statement of the true status of Methodism in the South. It gave us joy to hear of your continued prosperity; of your great and enlarging educational enterprises; of the gratifying growth of your foreign missions; of your successful system of village evangelization; of your strategic movements upon the great cities; of your gigantic chapel-building plans; of the development and efficiency of your Sunday-school department; of your increasing numbers; your unabated apostolic spirit; your marvelous earnestness; your pure and undivided religion in carrying for the orphan, led by the distinguished ex-president, Dr. Stephenson; and the morning drumbeat of your grand "Forward Movement" in response to "The bitter cry of outcast London." We felt that there is "life in the old land yet" (applause); that the zeal of the fathers has not chilled in your veins; that the spirit of early Methodism yet abides among the sons of Wesley. (Hear, hear.) We were assured that you were not idly dreaming over a glorious past; serenely sustaining a well-earned, becoming dignity, but, catching stimulus from a noble history, were moving with quickened step to other fields of conquest, claiming the Master's promise, "And greater things than these shall I do." (Hear, hear.) To this historic land, and to your great Methodism, we acknowledge large indebtedness, and there we claim princely inheritance. We are indebted to you for the sturdy elements of our civilization; our reverence for constitutional government; our love for personal liberty; our respect for the majesty of law; our Anglo-Saxon energy and courage; our varied and invaluable literature, and the purity of our Protestant faith. But we have here also large possessions. With unaffected meekness we "inherit the earth" (laughter)—this English earth. Our Quaker poet has said:

"We, too, are heirs of Bunyemede."

Yes, and more—as Methodists we are heirs of Epworth and Oxford, of Fetter-lace and Alder-gate-street, of Kingswood and Newcastle, of Bristol and City-road, of Westminster and Bunhill-fields. Your fathers were our fathers, their teachings are our doctrines, their achievements are our glory, and their honored graves hold our precious dead. And I feel assured that the ties which bind our two countries and their Methodism together were never so strong and sacred as to-day. On every appropriate occasion this attachment finds striking and beautiful illustration. There was genuine sorrow throughout our land a few months ago when death visited the royal family of England, and tenderest sympathy felt for the bereaved throne and kingdom. We gratefully recalled that sweet, romantic Christian message, your desolation of the desolate widow and distressed nation when our President Garfield lay dead, and the wreath of beautiful flowers she placed upon his coffin while sorrowing millions wept over his grave. When the eloquent voice of your peerless Charles H. Spurgeon was hushed in death we walked with you beside his bier, mingled our tears with yours at his tomb, and felt that a star had fallen from our sky—that a chief place in our family circle was sadly vacant. Let us see to it, honored brethren, that such national kinship and spiritual unity, by our God joined together, shall never by man be put asunder. (Applause.) I devoutly pray that our two flags may ever float peacefully in the same sky, dash over the same seas, and be loved by the same loyal hearts, emblem of the same principles of intellectual, civil and religious freedom, and representations of the same spiritual interdependence and destiny. And so long as the Evangelical Churches of the two countries are true to God and each other—one in sympathy, one in purpose, and ardent in Christian love—we will never go to war about catching a few seals in Behring Sea, or any other international strife. (Applause.) It has been matter of regret to us that so few of your honored ministers have found time and opportunity, when in our vast country to extend their visits to the Sunny South. We have desired to know you better that we might love you more. It gave us rare delight to hear the graphic eloquence of your great Dr. William Morley Pusey (Hear, hear)—in several of our chief cities, and the echoes of his glowing periods still keep fresh in our memories the traditions of his marvelous power as a pulpit orator. It is my pleasure to extend to you all a hearty welcome. (Laughter.) You will find a land "fair to the eye of beauty," and a people as sunny-hearted as their cloudless skies, and as profuse in their hospitality as the fragrance of their glorious magnolias. (Laughter.)

But, Mr. President, we have not been unacquainted with the great men and mighty movements of British Methodism. We have given our prayers in your struggles and our sympathies in your sorrows. Of your leading spirits, who in recent years have joined the innumerable company of the skies, we knew most of Dr. Osborn, an able ecclesiastical statesman of pronounced conservatism, a theologian of aggressive orthodoxy (laughter)—and a vast treasury of Methodist tradition, history and hymnology (Hear, hear.) Of those within our ranks whose loss we have deplored, known best to you, stands conspicuously the name of Bishop McVeyre. (Hear, hear.) The most majestic figure among us—statesman, jurist, journalist, author, educator, preacher, he seemed equally great in each position—the leader of every connectional cause—the counselor of every critical hour. And there was Dr. John B. McFerrin, a prince in any realm, a peer on any platform, a power in every pulpit, a hero of every field where his colors were borne, whose name will be honored in the annals of our Methodist civility and ecclesiastical legislation.

You will be gratified to hear that we, like yourselves, are successfully maintaining the apostolic trust committed to us by the blessed Lord. Over our moving column a cloud of glory has hung by day and night, and the God of Israel has been our all-sufficient strength. Indeed, it is not extravagant to say that the growth of Southern Methodism is almost without a parallel in the history of evangelical Christianity.

A few years ago our altars were in ashes, our temples in ruins, our fields desolate, our flocks scattered, our heavens dark; but to-day our churches are many, our colleges re-endowed, our flocks folded, our forces reorganized, and moving to conquest, and in the future is the undimmed star of an eternal hope. The population of the United States, including immigrants, doubles every twenty-five years and six months. The membership of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, nearly trebled in the same time. (Cheers.) In 1890 we had a total white membership of 425,658; now we have 1,260,000, an increase in twenty-five years of over 195 per cent. Our net increase last year was 48,000. Had the nation kept pace with Southern Methodism, we would now have, instead of 65,000,000, a population of 100,000,000. And our brethren of the North—God speed them in their wonderful work!—have enjoyed prosperity. Our property value in churches and parsonages now amounts to $23,000,000, and under the direction of an efficient Board of Church Extension we are building at the rate of one new church for every fourteen hours in the year. Our contributions to missions last year were over $400,000, not including $113,000 raised and expended by the Women's Board, and our prospering work in Mexico, Brazil, China, Japan and the Indian Territory sends a Macedonian appeal for more men and increased supplies. We have 13,000 Sunday-schools, 100,000 teachers and over three-quarters of a million of pupils. For the higher education of the youth of the church we have 179 schools and colleges, attended by nearly 37,000 students, with property valued at $1,600,000, and endowments to the amount of $1,600,000. We have a large publishing house, located at Nashville, Tenn., which has assets of over $600,000, and out of the net proceeds of its immense business is able to distribute to the Conferences annually $17,500 for the benefit of the worn-out preachers. (Cheers.) For the care of the homeless and destitute we have several large orphanages, under efficient management, and, by means of a recent magnificent gift of $900,000, a hospital will soon be established at St. Louis, Mo., to be conducted under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. At Kansas City, thanks to the beneficent forethought of an honored brother who has since passed to the church triumphant, we have a Bible Training-school to prepare young women for missionary work, both in the foreign and home fields. For the support of our worn-out preachers and the widows and orphans of preachers there was raised last year $145,880—a very inadequate, almost insignificant, amount; but it is some recognition of apostolic service and heroic self-sacrifice for the church. (Hear, hear.) And that part of America where the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, is appointed under Providence chiefly to labor, and which suffers most by the desolation of the late destructive war, has also been wonderfully favored—indeed, has witnessed an industrial resurrection. The recuperative energy and material prosperity of the South are the wonder of the Western world. Out of fire and tempest and baptism of blood our people have come undaunted in spirit and with unflinching faith in the future—with noble pride and generous ambition. Owing not to depressing memories, but inspired by a wisdom born of adversity, the South has organized victory out of defeat and illustrated the sentiment that "human virtue should be equal to human calamity." (Cheers.) The gates of the morning stream with light, and we are hailing the glory of approaching day. New life is stirring in our veins, new activities are commanding our energies, new aims are inspiring our ambitions. And this has not been an imported, but a produced prosperity. (Hear, hear.) We have grown from within, and not enlarged from without. There has been little appreciable immigration to the Southern parallels. Out of our own mines and mints, our own fields and forests, our own brain and brawn, our own soil and sky, have come the mighty forces and resources of the South's commercial empire. The figures are almost startling. The assessed value of property in those States has increased two thousand millions of dollars in ten years. Cotton production has advanced from 4,000,000 bales at the beginning of the war between the States, under slave labor, to 7,452,281 bales, with free and largely white labor. (Cheers.) It is claimed that the South has capacity to supply the world with this staple if the ground was not another cotton-field on the globe. It is estimated that our coal and iron mines contain material amply sufficient for the increasing demands of the civilized world. In 1890 we had only 10,385 miles of railroad; in 1890 there were 41,466 under successful operation, making a perfect network of our own railroads of magnificent distances. And on every line of enterprise and industry indicate that the star of empire has changed its orbit, and is now moving with majestic grace toward the Southern Cross. We have a magnificent domain of nine hundred thousand square miles, with every variety of soil, climate, products and minerals. Our great State of Texas alone, capable of providing comfortable homes for 50,000,000 of inhabitants, is larger than Germany, Belgium, Denmark, Holland and Switzerland, and would make 210 States the size of Rhode Island. To possess such a land for Christ is the immediate and mighty mission of Southern Methodism. (Hear, hear.) And here I am reminded of a noble sentiment of Mr. Gladstone. (Applause.) In summing up an able and discriminating review of the probable future of England and America, the great statesman uttered these wise words: "All this pompous detail of material triumphs is worse than idle unless the men of the two countries shall remain or shall become greater than the things they produce, and shall know how to regard these things simply as tools and materials for the attainment of the highest purposes of their being." That sentiment needs special emphasis on our side.

The life of a country is not in things material. A nation can not live by bread alone. The citizen must be enthroned above the work of his hands. And it is the sublime mission of Methodism to invest him with that royalty—to crown him with that divine sovereignty. (Applause.) I am glad to report to you the ample and amiable restoration of our national brotherhood. (Hear, hear.) The great issues settled by the arbitrament of arms have been as cordially accepted by the one side as they were victoriously proclaimed by the other. The passions of war have well-nigh passed away, the old loves have been revived, and there is a genuine loyalty to the Union in the South as in the North. (Hear, hear.) This was strikingly illustrated in the national, unsectional, patriotic tributes paid to the memory of the commander-in-chief of the Union armies. General Grant died upon the summit of Mount McGregor. To me, a son of the far South, there was poetic significance in the fact that the magnificent old soldier closed his career upon a mountain which had been named in the annals of civility. Up into that purer air, above the pestilential touch of malaria, safe from the depressing heat of the plains, and secure from the rush and roar of the busy marts of a great place to die, above were the calm, unclouded heavens, and around him was not a voice to disturb his reverent, loving meditations. Looking out from that serene summit over the land he had honored and which had so highly honored him—over the brave battalions he had once led in the wild shock of battle, and the less heroic legions that had withstood like a wall of fire his thundering onsets—over the sections too long at war and the parties too long desperately struggling for mastery—he thanked God that he had lived to see harmony and good feeling between the two great sections of his country. And then, lifting his thin, trembling hands in patriarchal blessing upon the nation he loved so well, prayed that the brothers in the blue and the grey should never again go to war. (Hear, hear.) And on the day of his burial the strong hands of both Federal and Confederate generals, once at war, flashing in each other's faces the sword of death, were lovingly clasped around the body of the old soldier, while a sorrowing nation followed him to the tomb. That scene fitsly represents the reunited hearts of a restored Union, dwelling again under the same parental roof-tree and sitting at the same bountiful board. Living in that section of our country which was last and longest cursed by the institution of slavery, and myself the son of a slave-holder, I rejoice beyond expression in the fact and providence of emancipation. (Applause.) The hateful thing is dead and buried beyond power or possibility of resurrection, for which all our people are devoutly thankful. With an extensive acquaintance over the entire Southland, I do not know a single person, old or young, who would consent to its restoration. (Hear, hear.) It is quite pointless, at this late day, to contend as to who was more or less responsible for American slavery, for, as our lamented Bishop Marvin once said, "There is a perverse psychology of law by virtue of which men feel the sins of other people more acutely than their own." (Laughter.) In very truth, my brethren, the history of this grave question gives ground for none to boast, shields each from the stones of others, and calls all alike to repentance. (Hear, hear.) We have all at some time been unorthodox in doctrine and very heterodox in temper. (Laughter.) Slavery was established in America when the States were English Colonies (laughter)—when its evil had not yet touched the conscience of the Christian world, when every leading nation of Western Europe was more or less engaged in the vile traffic, and derived large revenue therefrom. As late as 1776 one of the thirteen American Colonies held slaves. The great Dr. Channing states the case tersely and truly when he said slavery was the sinfulness rather than the crime of the South. (Hear, hear.) It was climate at the North and the cotton gin in the South that determined for too many years the slave-territory of the United States. In one of his great speeches Daniel Webster, by way of illustration, made felicitous reference to a scene in Parliament during an exciting debate on a momentous question. The issue involved an accession to the throne and the integrity of your Protestant faith. The proposition of resistance was vigorously opposed as a rash measure, brought forward by rash men. It was argued that they ought to admit the aspirant, and then throw rigid restrictions around him. During the debate a member arose and made this grotesque comparison:

"I hear a lion in the lobby roar!"

Say, Mr. Speaker, shall we shut the door, and keep him out, or shall we let him in, and see if we can get him out again?"

(Laughter.) From the depths of my soul do I wish that the door of the Colonies had been forever closed against that wild beast in the form of the accursed slave-trader. (Hear, hear.) But he was let in, and with him came all our woes—the ceaseless disturbance of our peace, and the lamentable severance of our national brotherhood. How I wish that some genius of the early day had written an "Uncle Tom's Cabin" that would have stirred the Old World and the New to sweep every slave from the high seas, and break every fetter before it was forged. (Laughter.)

Coming, as I do, the first representative of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to the "Mother Conference," though we have had a distinct ecclesiastical existence for well-nigh a jubilee of years, it is needful that reference be made to some things, which in future addresses would seem an intrusion. This I do, not for justification, but explanation; not to defend a cause, but to state the truth of history; not to disturb the sleep of the ill-fated dead, but to translate the inscription on its tomb. I came not to this side the sea to recite the sad story of our domestic troubles—to reopen fresh the wounds of war—or to wave a flag that has been forever furled; and certainly shall speak no word of dissent for my brethren in any section of our great country, over whom float the same star-spangled banner, and are appointed under Providence to the same national destiny. I speak of yesterday that you may understand our to-day, and know our hopes for to-morrow. (Hear, hear.) I shall only refer to those facts that bear upon the history and present status of the great church you recently honored with a distinguished fraternal representation, and whose cordial salutations it is my grateful privilege to voice to-day. The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, dates its separate ecclesiastical existence, as you know, to the General Conference of 1844. It was not a schism, but a constitutional separation for mutual convenience and prosperity. The division was not desired by either the South or the North, and was sorely regretted by both. The North wept and the South wept; but, after long delay and much prayer, it was concluded that it was best to part. So the Church, South, became a separate ecclesiastical connection, adopting the old Discipline without change, except only so far as verbal alterations were necessary to a distinct organization. Slavery was the occasion, but not the cause of the separation. Beneath that issue were profound constitutional and administrative questions that seemed to make necessary, however much regretted, a division, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history. The few sheep would have been scattered; the little company, now a great army, would have been disbanded; the cloud no larger than a man's hand would have been brushed from the heavens. So the attitude of Methodism in the South, recognizing the political and constitutional status, preserved our cause in those parallels, and made it possible for their missionaries to have access to the negro cabins on the plantations, divisions, however much regretted, a separation of our one great Methodism in America. Had not Mr. Wesley acted promptly after the American War of Independence—recognizing the changed attitude of the Colonies, then separate States, to the mother country, and providing for a distinct ecclesiastical government—American Methodism, with her mighty agencies and world-wide activities and multiplied thousands of communicant members, would never have written her splendid history.

Christian Advocate.

Rev. D. L. MITCHELL, Publisher.
OFFICE: 112 CANT STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

SUBSCRIPTION: $1 PER ANNUM.
Ministers and members of churches, $1.

All Preachers of the M. E. Church, South, are authorized Agents to whom payments may be made.

Rev. C. W. Carter, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. Lewis, Ass't Editor.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

REV. J. M. BEARD, D. D.
REV. S. S. KEEFER.
REV. J. B. A. ADAMS, D. D.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

REV. W. C. BLACK, D. D.
REV. W. R. LEWIS.
REV. R. J. JONES.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

REV. W. T. J. SULLIVAN, D. D.
REV. J. D. CAMERON, D. D.
REV. T. C. WIER, M. D.

Thursday, August 18, 1892.

NOTES.

A preacher of the gospel needs something more than a "Bagster Bible and a stock of stories."

If you will study out the matter, you will see a good deal of difference between exuberant verbosity and richness of language.

The most dogmatic people in the world are those who profess to discard all dogma. Just watch and listen to one of that kind and be convinced.

The leaders in church should be careful lest they have more care for material progress than for the salvation of souls. Our church exists for the salvation of the people, and for that alone.

An exchange very pertinently says:
"The way for a minister to secure a call to a high place is to make himself conspicuously useful in a low one."
Let the brethren of "low degree"
make a note!

There is too much of what may be rightly called spiritual shallowness in these days. A soft sentimentalism accomplishes nothing but its own ease, and that is nothing but the ease of spiritual death.

When an editor said to his wife, "I think I write better than I used to,"
she replied, "You write less, and that is better." And there came the "far-away look" into his eyes, and he has been wondering if she meant to be complimentary.

A Yorkshire man told his preacher that he had preached a good sermon, but if it had been cut short at both ends and set afire in the middle it would have done more good. Can you some of our preachers take a hint, or must it be a knock-down?

In Connecticut, last year, 490 divorces were granted. In that State 26,000 persons have been divorced since 1861.
The records show that two-thirds of the petitioners for divorce have been women. The real grounds for divorce have scarcely been revealed in any case.

We seek light. The Bishop asks:
"Brother, how is your church, spiritually?" And the brother answers:
"Bishop, it is about the average!"
Now, we seek to know what that brother means. Has he ganged sin and holiness? Has he added them together and divided by two? What is an "average spirituality" anyhow?

Here is a sentence from Bishop Phillips Brooks, which we commend to our preachers:

We confine too much the office of illustration if we give it only the duty of making truth clear to the understanding, and do not also allow it the privilege of making truth glorious to the imagination.

An English Wesleyan preacher said
to some young preachers:

Brethren, never forget the highest of all honors that can be conferred on you was conferred on you when your denomination received you into full connection.

Do our young preachers appreciate that fact?

Immigration still increases. During the past June, 73,130 persons arrived, against 63,317 for June, 1891. During the first half of 1892 there arrived 333,- 961 immigrants, against 325,307 for the first half of 1891. There has been a falling off of immigrants from the kingdoms of Great Britain and Italy, a slight increase from Germany and Scandinavia, and a large increase of Poles, Austrians, and Russians. For the year ending with June there was a falling off of 15,000 Italians from the year before.

We have suspected that there are preachers and writers using the word
"evolution" who do not understand what the term means. To show them that our suspicions were correct we quote Mr. Spencer's definition of "evolution."

Evolution is an integration of matter and concomitant dissipation of motion, during which the matter passes from an indefinite, incoherent homogeneity to a definite, coherent heterogeneity, and during which the retained motion undergoes a parallel transformation.

Now, brethren, own up, and say you have been preaching and writing about that of which you know nothing.

Bishop Galloway's Mission.

Bishop Galloway's letters, published in this paper every week since his departure abroad, have been universally read and enjoyed. The Bishop has evidently kept his eyes and ears open, and his facile pen has portrayed sights and scenes in a peculiarly interesting style. We seem to be traveling with the Bishop, as we read, and see and hear what he sees and hears. We have been particularly interested in his delineation of the points of Methodism among the Wesleyans which differ from our customs and usages. Among other things, we have noted specially how far ahead of us the Wesleyans are in the support of the ministry, and in caring for the widows and orphans and worn-out preachers.
Our leaders might study these points, and formulate a law which would manifestly benefit Southern Methodism.

The Bishop's reception by the Wesleyan Conference, at Bradford, was more of an enthusiastic ovation than a reception. The Methodist Recorder says:

The chapel is crowded in every part. With some difficulty the president preserves the centre pews for the members of the Conference, who are present in great force. The singing of the hymn—

"See ye not the cloud arise, Little as a human hand?"

is magnificent. Mr. Macdonald prays like one inspired. All the Conference officials, and nearly all the ex-presidents, are in their places. So are the representatives of Methodism in America, Australia, Africa and the Continent of Europe. Probably Eastbrook Chapel never before in all its distinguished history beheld so memorable a scene.
A little ordinary Conference business is transacted, bringing home to the people in the gallery the fact that they are witnessing a meeting of the Conference, and not a mere public meeting.

When our representative was presented the whole Conference arose and stood, while Dr. Riggs, the president, introduced him in a most fraternal speech. The Bishop's magnificent address was listened to by the great audience with rapt attention, and, as his well-rounded periods fell from eloquent tongue, preachers and visitors applauded to the echo.

Of this address the editor of the Methodist Recorder says:

"Blood is thicker than water," and the exquisitely beautiful sentences of Bishop Galloway, the eloquent representative of the Methodist Episcopal Church,
South, as he recalled the common ancestry, national and Methodistic, of Englishmen and Americans, deeply moved the vast audience in Eastbrook
Chapel on Monday evening, last.
All over the Conference men were wiping away the tears of emotion, which they found it difficult to restrain. The Bishop was received with "full honors," as the president said, and in one of the most able and thrilling speeches heard in the Conference for many years, amply justified his selection by the great Methodist Church, whose greeting he brought. If the Church, South, has other representatives
as eloquent as Bishop Galloway, let them "come along," as our brethren would say, and the sooner the better. This visit and speech, and the stirring address of Dr. Moulton, have stamped this Yorkshire Conference as memorable.

The reporter for the same
paper says:

Bishop Galloway, who is the first representative from the Methodist Episcopal Church,
South, to the English Conference, is essentially a strong man. There is power in his build, power in his head, chest power in the rich tones of his resonant voice, and power in almost every sentence that he utters. I am told that Bishop Galloway is the orator of the South. It is certain that he is by far the most eloquent man who has appeared in Bradford this Conference. His description of the Sunny South as the land in which Wesley preached to the Indians and English settlers, and the land in which George Whitefield founded his orphanage, brings the Conference and its visitor at once into closest sympathy. Declaring that in his country may be found the dens-est Methodist population in the world, Bishop Galloway is able to present to Conference an imposing array of statistics illustrating the growth of Methodism in the South. Perhaps the most impressive part of his speech is that in which he deals with the question—ancient history, he calls it—of slavery, but it is simply impossible in a brief note to do justice to a speech which bristles with points, and, from beginning to end, flows with wit and eloquence.

In a private note to the editor
Bishop Galloway says: "I am very grateful, for the sake of our great church, that my message was so cordially, even enthusiastically, received. Indeed, I have never had such an experience in life." The whole thing—the Bishop's visit and speech—has been a brilliant triumph for Southern Methodism in the original home of Methodism. Our Wesleyan brethren have been wont to look at us "with eyes askance," and to regard our church as a schism for which there was, and could be, no justification. Dr. Waller's visit to our General Conference at St.
Louis partly cleared away the murkiness of the Southern Methodist atmosphere. Bishop Galloway's visit and address to the British Conference have dissipated every rack of cloud, and the Wesleyans now look upon us as a church whose history equals
—if it does not surpass—in thrilling interest the history of any branch of the church, and whose grand work vies in importance with the grandest work known to church history.

For this splendid service
Bishop Galloway wins the gratitude of every Southern Methodist, and his address will be read with profit and pleasure and pride by all.

The Sabbath.—No. 5.

In our last article we were mentioning some of the evils of railroad Sabbath desecration. We noticed the hurt to the health of the employees, and the perils of the traveling public growing out of the inevitable dullness and carelessness of overworked and exhausted men. The next point we wish to notice is the bad educative influence upon public morals by the example of the railroad in publicly and persistently ignoring the sanctity of the day of sacred rest. From Maine to the Rio Grande, and from the Atlantic to the Pacific, millions of our people, young and old, witness the public, the persistent and defiant contempt of the divine command by the largest and richest corporations in our country. It habituates and familiarizes our people with Sabbath desecration. We all know that familiarity with any form of transgression takes off from its enormity, until it almost ceases to seem a sin against God. When we reach this state of mind it is easy to fall into the same habit. If it is not wrong to run the cars and transact ordinary transportation business on Sunday to make money, why is it not equally innocent and proper to transact all other forms of business for the same reason? Men in other corporations, and in various businesses, will, ere long, begin to clamor, and assert their equal right to make money seven days in each week. The railroad corporations are certainly educating and leading public sentiment in that direction. This is to be profoundly deplored, and, if possible, arrested.

This desecration and pervasion of the Sabbath from its moral and religious uses by the railroad, and some other money-making industries, is fast tending to the destruction of religious instruction and religious worship;
for the Sabbath has been, and should be, so specially devoted and employed. Millions of employees have not an hour on the day of rest to withdraw their thoughts from the engrossing cares of business. Their situation forbids their "assembling themselves together" for the recognition and worship of God.

It practically tends to unmitigated materialism and, ultimately, theological atheism; for God that is not remembered will at last cease, in such a mind, to be at all. What society will come to, and what will be its doom, can in some sort be concluded from its condition immediately before the flood, when men were almost universally godless, and when Sodom and the other cities of the plain were
"wicked exceedingly," and when Paris and much of France declared there was and ought not to be any other God but reason.
History, alas! tells in lines traced in blood the appalling doom of destruction and woe. A godless community is incapable of civil and social order; it must disintegrate, become self-destructive, and, by the inexorable law of God, finally perish.

In nearly all our cities and principal towns we witness the wholesale and systematic desecration of the day of rest by Sunday excursions. Godless, worldly people, who do not see the outcome of the evil they are doing, encourage and ask for these excursions, and sharp railroad managers, anxious to make money, meet this demand more than half-way by transporting you on a Sunday excursion train for less than one-fourth the rate they charge on secular days—thus tempting and, in some sort,
bribing men to travel on Sunday.
A single road of the numerous roads leading out of this city will transport fifteen and eighteen hundred passengers on the Sunday excursion trains. Thousands are thus taken away who ought to be in the Sabbath-schools and the houses of worship. No instruction, no worship, no remembrance of God, no reverence for his word, or his divinelyappointed day of rest! In these thousands there may be many quiet, temperate people; but there are (so conductors on these excursion trains have found to their discomfort) many who are noisy, profane and drunken.
What perilous scenes and associations are these for children and youth, and how hurtful to their morals!

Some of these stockholders and directors of these roads, who are prominent members of the various churches, should take this wholesale Sabbath working and breaking into serious consideration.
Especially should they do so when they are teaching their children, and other people's, at home and in the Sunday-school,
the Fourth Commandment, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy."

It is said corporations have no souls. But corporations will find to their cost, if they do not desist from these flagrant and habitual violations of God's law, that they have souls, and that the inflexibly holy God will not hold such sinners guiltless.
Our responsibility can, not be merged and ignored in soulless corporations. Each one of us must give an account of himself to God.

Some professedly religious men are running various forms of business on Sunday, in cases where neither charity nor necessity can be justly alleged as an excuse. It is often no better than bald, remorseless covetousness, sometimes attempted to be disguised as a work of charity or necessity. "Be not deceived, God is not mocked. Whatsoever a man soweth, that also shall he reap."

J. B. WALKER.

From a letter written by Dr. W. R.
Lambuth to the Wesleyan Christian
Advocate, we learn that the native Christians of Japan drew up a petition to the World's Fair Commissioners, urging them to close the gates of the Columbian Exposition on Sunday, "lest the action of America should prove a stumbling-block to the nations of the Orient, who are looking to westward races as exponents of light and truth."

Millsaps College—A Word from Abroad.

Private intelligence from home greatly encourages me as to the prospects of the college. Indications are that the attendance will be large, the equipments quite complete for a young institution, the faculty full and well-selected, and its thousands of friends hopeful that the auspicious opening is the beginning of a grand career. I have never wavered for a single moment in my conviction as to the righteousness and timeliness of the movement, and in faith that God would make it a blessing to many generations. Study of the educational problem in this Old World, and especially the system adopted by the Methodists, has only accentuated interest and strengthened argument in favor of providing the best possible facilities for the training of our preachers. Every young man received as a probationer is first sent to one of the four institutions of the church. He can not be entrusted with circuit work until after special scholastic and theological preparation. The Methodist ministry, and Methodism itself, in this land of scholars and universities, would soon lose its power without such insistence on thorough training.
That day is not far distant for us in America. If we hope to hold the ear of the people, we must have well-furnished men to preach to them.

I have visited colleges and universities in Dublin, Belfast, Edinburgh, London and Oxford to gather information for helpful service at home. Of course, Millsaps College will freely share in anything that I may learn that is valuable or may do that is serviceable.

To the new faculty I send greetings; to those who will be our first student body, assurances of personal interest; and to all friends of the college, congratulations on the hopeful outlook.

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY.

London, England, Aug. 2, 1892.

Mississippi Conference.

To the Presiding Elders of the Mississippi Conference:

Dear Brethren: Let me urge upon you the necessity for hearty co-operation on your part with the Conference solicitor, and with your respective district solicitor, under Dr. Lambuth's plan for paying off the missionary debt. Let me beg of you to do all in your power to help,
and naught to hinder, this effort.
Let me plead with you to preach on the subject of missions and our duty to pay off the debt at once. Help in every way in your power. And let us all pray, and fervently pray, for the guidance of the Holy Spirit and for success in this effort. (See Matt.
xviii, 19.)

We need a missionary revival in our Conference. We need the missionary spirit more widely diffused. We need the money to pay off the debt. We need means and men to take possession of many inviting fields—to enter many open doors. Let us, with one mind, and in one accord, take these things to the Lord in prayer.

Yours faithfully,

T. L. MELLE, N.

Solicitor for Mississippi Conference.

We trust that presiding elders and preachers and people will co-operate in the above plan to pay off our missionary debt.
This reproach should be rolled away as soon as possible. Stir the matter, brethren, and keep stirring it. Let the solicitors stir the presiding elders, and the elders stir the preachers, and the preachers stir the people, and the people stir their pocketbooks, and the debt will be paid.
—EDITOR.

It is said that Senator Stanford sold a horse for $125,000, and has given the money into 125 parts, to be given to as many boys for their education in his university. That is raising a horse for some purpose.

Notes.

To the Preachers and Sunday-school superintendents of the Mississippi Conference:

Dear Brethren: In reference to the introduction and use of the Bible in our Sabbath-schools, hear us. We are confronted with the alarming fact that we,
as a church, are raising up a generation that is without any practical knowledge of the Bible. Why this is so, and what the cause, need not be discussed. How to remedy the evil demands our most careful consideration.
Your Sunday-school Board has this to suggest: Each child in our church that can read should have his own Bible.
He should use it just as his school books are used—study it at home, bring it to the Sabbath-school, and use it there.
We ask you to give this "YOUR" serious attention, and see how it can be best done in your schools.

Encourage the child to buy his own book. Where that can not be done, let the school buy it and give it to him.
When the school is unable to do this, unaided, the Conference Board will give the aid. We are prepared to do this, and, if we can secure the co-operation of the preachers and superintendents, this reproach will not be longer urged against us.

The Board will communicate with all whose addresses they have at once, and we hope the superintendents, who have failed to do so before, will immediately notify us of their addresses.

H. M. FILLIS,

Secretary of Sunday-school Board.

Meridian District.

Receipts for traveling expenses of Rev. H. G. Hawkins (missionary to Japan) since last report:

White Oaks, New Mexico.....$1

Bro. Hawkins reached Yokohama, July 10, and Kobe, July 12. He writes me: "The native Christians crowded around Bro. Yoshikawa. Bishop Key was taken in jinrickisha to Bro. Tom-son's, and I to Sister Lambuth's.... I found Bro. Parker and wife, of China, and Bro. Turner, of Kobe, at Sister Lambuth's.... I had read a good deal of Japan during the past two weeks,
but there are many surprises here;
some disappointing and sad, others pleasant. I refer to things in the lives of the people, more especially....
Write to me at Matsuyama."

T. L. MELLE, N. E.

Meridian, Miss.

NOTES FROM OUR JACKSON OFFICE.

Ground has been broken in Jackson for a new brick "Christian" Church, its cost not less than $8,000.

Rev. H. P. Lewis, of Caseyville, is a private letter, writes that he is in the midst of a glorious revival on his work.
He has just closed a most successful meeting at Bethel.

The Hinds County Sunday-school Convention held a most interesting and profitable session in Edwards last week. An interesting programme had been prepared, which was greatly enjoyed by all.

From Dr. W. M. Leftwich's letter in the last St. Louis Advocate, we learn that our Book Agent, Dr. Barbee, is nursing a son through a spell of sickness, and that his recovery is doubtful.
We trust the next information will report him out of danger.

We have as much charity as most men, but it pumps it very dry while trying to believe in the honesty of a brother who will take his church paper six months or a year, and then try to get out of paying for it.—Wesleyan
Christian Advocate.

We are in a condition to fully sympathize with you, brother.

Rev. Wade Preston, formerly of the Little Rock Conference, who, some three months ago, left our church and went into the Baptist communion, and whose defection was heralded throughout the land, has returned to his first love, and in a card to the Arkansas Methodist says he comes back like the prodigal, and asks for the humblest place amongst us.—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

The Bogue Chitto (Miss.) Academy and High School, a chartered institution, will open its first session, Sept. 12, with Prof. Maxey Smith as principal.
Prof. Smith is well known throughout that portion of the State as a successful teacher, well qualified for his work, and we have no doubt of the ultimate success of this new enterprise. What we need now in Mississippi is a high-school in every county at least, as a feeder to Millsaps, Whitworth, Elms-Mississippi, Port Gibson, Woodville,
Grenada and Malone Colleges.

"A Concise Cyclopaedia of Religious Knowledge," edited by Rev. E. B.
Sanford, M. A., is the title of a book our Publishing House has but recently began to handle. It is a concise cyclo-paedia, suited to two classes of persons:
those who have little money to put in such books, and those who have no time to wade through a small volume of matter to find an important fact.
This cyclopaedia is knowledge in a nutshell. Rev. W. D. Dominick, of Jackson Miss., has the exclusive agency for the Mississippi Conference, and Rev. G.
W. Baughman, of Kosciusko, for the North Mississippi Conference. Free our examination of this book it should find a place in every library. Write these brethren for further information.

MARRIAGES.

WALLS-DURKE.—At the residence of the bride Mr. S. H. Walls, near Lafayette, La., on July 15, 1892, by Rev. H. Armstrong, Mr. Creigh and Miss Edie Durke.

JOHNSON-GOLVIN.—At the residence of Mr. E. Smith, Ruston, La., March 30, by Rev. Mr. O. P. Johnson and Miss Della Johnson.

NELSON-DUNCAN.—At the residence of Mr. L. M. Kidd, Ruston, La., June 21, by Rev. Mr. O. P. Johnson and Miss Lillie Nelson.

OBITUARIES.

We publish obituaries of 200 words free of charge, for all over this, one cent per word more. If you want the notice to appear in the paper, send one cent for each word over.

BRAYL—Dr. WALTER LYTLETON BRAYL was born in Monroe county, Miss., July 21, 1848. From his youth up, he gave promise of great abilities. His gentle disposition won the affection of all who knew him. His force of character made him conspicuous among young men. He was educated at A. and M. College, Berkeley, Miss., and at Baltimore, Md., by profession he was a dentist of extraordinary gifts. Part of the year 1890 he practiced his profession in Aberdeen, Miss. Latter part of the same year he moved to Texas for the benefit of his health. March 2, 1891, he returned to Aberdeen much improved; and on March 17, 1891, he was married to Miss Nellie Lann, of his place. No man was ever more fortunate in the selection of his wife. Inspired with the brightest hopes for the future, they immediately departed for Boerne, Texas, where they remained until a few weeks before his death, when they returned to their native State and county.

On May 21, 1892, that dread disease, consumption, laid its work on him. His death was peaceful and triumphant. In his mother's home, surrounded by his devoted wife, affectionate mother, sister and four brothers, he peacefully passed away. May 21, 1892, he was laid to rest in the cemetery at Boerne, Texas. He was a Christian by principle and practice. He was converted in his seventeenth year, at Starkville, Miss., and joined the M. E. Church South, of which he has lived a consistent member until death. His fidelity to God will abide. His life is a rich legacy to his bereaved wife and child and all his loved ones. J. A. BOWEN, Aberdeen, Miss.

POSETT—Deceased at her home, July 18, 1892, Mrs. FANNIE E. POSETT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Posett, Redwood, Miss.

Little Fannie was born Jan. 15, 1880, and died on her thirteenth year, thus ending a short life of afflictions, for her earthly career was almost one constant scene of "hard sickness." Her death being brought about by the third attack of "swamp fever." During her sickness she often repeated these words, "Lord, bless me, and more than once said to the writer, "Gospel, just for me." From the very first she seemed to be conscious of the near approach of her death. She repeatedly said, "Mama, I'm going to die," and just a short time before she was cold in death, her child-like voice rang out clear and distinct, saying, "Doctor, I'm going to die." As she drew nearer still to the "brink of eternity," she called her father to her bed, and in dying accents said, "Papa, hug and kiss me, for I am going to die." It was then but a short time when her spirit departed from this world forever, leaving to dwell with the rapturous host in the bright beyond.

Little Fannie was so kind and affectionate that it was hard to give her up, and she has therefore left a vacancy in her home and among her associates that can never be filled. But by the help of a kind heavenly Father, we will meet her "in heaven above, where all is love," and "where parting comes no more." COUSIN JEFF.

STAFFORD—JOSHUA STAFFORD was born in Clarke county, Miss., Nov. 6, 1832, and died at his home, near Magnolia, Miss., June 14, 1892. Bro. Stafford joined the M. E. Church, South, then quite a youth, for which his love was measured by his zeal and piety. He was a man of strong faith, and his Christian character is a true heritage to the community in which he lived. It was my privilege to know him very intimately for nearly two years. During most of this time he was an intense sufferer, which he bore as only a Christian can. He prayed much, frequently requesting myself and others to come and hold prayer meetings, to which his neighbors were all invited. His greatest delight was to talk of heaven and immortal glory, revealed to him as the earthly side away. His death was peaceful and triumphant.

By his request, Rev. V. V. Boone and myself conducted the funeral service. The entire community followed his remains to the grave, thus attesting their respect and love for one who had loved and served God faithfully to the end. Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life.

He has gone to receive that "crown," leaving a wife and seven children to the care of him whom he loved and found grace for every need. To the family and loved ones bereft we would say: Sorrow not, but live for Christ, that you may meet him by and by in the city of our God, "where the weary forever rest." W. F. HARDEN.

GWYN—I am sorry, indeed, to chronicle the death of Bro. JAMES GWYN, of Nesbit. The angel death came in the form of typhoid fever, and drew nearer each day with his smile wings until the shadow of death shrouded the once happy and joyous home with gloom and sadness, notwithstanding the fact that everything was done that could be done in the way of medical treatment and nursing. Drs. Rogers and Murphy, of Memphis, were called in consultation, but of no avail. It seemed hard to lose him up so young; just in the prime of life, thirty-one years old.

He was a good citizen, a loyal member of the church, a devoted husband and father, and a faithful friend. Truly, indeed, a son in Israel hath fallen. He leaves a Christian wife and one little girl behind, besides numerous friends and relatives, to mourn his loss. He talked as calmly of death as if he was preparing for a journey in this world. Weep not, dear sister, for your loved one, but rather rejoice that he has passed the troubles of this life. His father was a Methodist preacher, and was highly honored by all who knew him. C. W. PERKINS.

JENNINGS—GUY M., son of Mr. C. M. and Mrs. Ella Jennings, died in Algiers, La., July 10, 1892, aged three years and three months and three days. Little Guy was a very sweet child, too sweet and intelligent for this world. The Master has only transplanted him. He lives and will blossom in the eternal kingdom, where partings are no more. This is the fifth child these parents have put away. Only two are left. May God grant that all may be the servants of God, so that all may meet in heaven to part no more! A FRIEND.

GORDON—On the evening of June 16, 1892, our darling, MARY S. GORDON, fell asleep in the arms of Jesus. The deceased was the eldest daughter of James J. and Mary C. Gordon. A sweet, lovely child, she blossomed into a pure and noble womanhood. Kind and charitable, her tender heart ever throbbled in union with the sorrowing and afflicted. She joined the M. E. Church in 1869, since which time she has been a devoted and humble follower of her Savior. She made the Bible her daily study, being ever guided by its holy precepts, and her secret, daily devotions were never neglected. She ever exerted a hallowed influence, and all were made better, purer for having associated with her.

A great sufferer for years, which she bore with much patience, and during an illness of two and one-half months, she never heard to murmur or complain—forgetting self in thoughtful solitude for the comfort of loved ones who waited around her bedside. Having lived such a life, we need no other evidence to feel assured that she is now an angel in that beautiful home "beyond the river." She was truly the light, the joy of our home, now so dark, so dreary, since her sweet voice is forever hushed.

Father, mother, sisters, loved ones and friends, may we all emulate her example, and so live that when our life-work is ended we may meet dear Mary, who will be "waiting and watching" for us on the other shore! ONE WHO LOVED HER.

MCKAY—ELIZABETH CARTER, wife of Alexander McKay, was born Nov. 25, 1834, near Americus, Jackson county, Miss., and died at Moss Point, June 25, 1892.

Our dear sister has been removed to a higher and better sphere of existence. The community, the church and the home will miss her quiet, gentle, though forceful Christian example; but her precious memory will be cherished as a rich legacy by all. Her meek, unobtrusive Christian character challenged the admiration of all who knew her.

She was married Oct. 16, 1853. She became the mother of six children, five of whom, together with the faithful husband, survive her.

Sister McKay was a life member of the church. She practically exemplified in her life the principles of our holy Christianity. Patient in suffering, hopeful and trusting in death, she has left to the husband and children the heritage of an unsullied Christian character.

Let each one of her loved ones, as the clouds of desolateness hover loweringly about them, think of her as being "safe in the arms of Jesus," who have come to prepare a place for them that love him. Her pastor, C. A. P.

TOLES—Mrs. M. J. (nee Clay) was born March 7, 1835, and departed this life in Kemper county, Miss., July 7, 1892. She joined the Methodist Church in early life, and lived a consistent member of the same up to the time of her death.

Sister Toles' death was a very triumphant one. During the last years of her life she was a very great sufferer, being an invalid for five or six years, during the whole of which time she scarcely knew a well day. Yet, a more patient person amid affliction I never saw; not a murmur ever escaping her lips in reference to her sufferings. She bore all with the greatest of Christian resignation, trusting all to God.

During her last illness, which lasted over two weeks, she was heard to say, "How long, how long!" She talked freely with her loved ones, bidding them not to be careful about the things of this life, but to strive to enter into heaven. When asked how she was, spiritually, she replied that Jesus was her Savior; that he had long been her Savior. May her loved ones ever keep in mind the advice she gave them, and heed it as a voice from the far-off shore.

"These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." W. J. DAWSON.

GIBSON—MISS JENNIE MAY GIBSON was born in Pontotoc county, Miss., and died at the residence of her father, Maj. W. G. Gibson, in Tupelo, Miss., July 2, 1892.

Her mother died when she was quite young; but she was fortunate in having the tender watch-care of a loving aunt.

Miss Jennie May was budding into bright and useful womanhood. She possessed those qualities of mind and heart which made her the joy of her home circle and the favorite of many friends.

About five years since she gave her heart to the Savior, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. After an illness of twenty-six days she passed away peacefully as an infant falls to sleep. While there is great sorrow in the home from which she has gone, yet her loved ones can cherish the fond hope of meeting her in that better country, where there will be no more death.

We commend each member of her family to him who hath said, "My grace is sufficient for thee." E. H. MOON.

We will mail free, on receipt of two cents in stamps, a sample box of Dr. Davis' Liver Pills. They will cure constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, indigestion, piles, and all disorders that arise from a diseased liver and impure blood. JOHN H. COLLINS & CO., 208 Market St., Phila., Pa.

For sale by all druggists at 25c. per box.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO THOSE SENDING MONEY.—Remittances should be made only by money orders, express company orders, registered letters, drafts or checks on New Orleans banks or merchants. Drafts on country banks occasion a loss of from 15 to 25 cents per check. Drafts on country merchants we have no facility for collecting. Checks and drafts, also money orders, should be made payable to D. L. Mitchell, Publisher.

We use Alcohol

pure alcohol to make WOLFF'S ACME BLACKING. Alcohol is good for leather; it is good for the skin. Alcohol is the chief ingredient of Cologne, Florida Water, and Bay Rum the well known face washes. We think there is nothing too costly to use in a good leather preservative.

Acme Blacking retails at 20c.

and at that price sells readily. Many people are so accustomed to buying a dressing or blacking at 5c. and 10c. a bottle that they cannot understand that a blacking can be cheap at 20c. We want to meet them with cheapness if we can, and to accomplish this we offer a reward of

$10,000

for a recipe which will enable us to make WOLFF'S ACME BLACKING at such a price that a retailer can profitably sell it at 10c. a bottle. We hold this offer open until Jan. 1st, 1893. WOLFF & RANDOLPH, Philadelphia.

Spring time is Daisy time,
Nice things come together;
Summer time is Rose time,
Fair and golden weather;
Autumn time is frost time,
Forest trees a-flaming;
Winter time is bleak time,
Ice and snow a-reigning.

Would you have it always be,
Rose and Daisy time?
Always in your dear home nest
Have the bright sunshine?
Buy the Powder named below
And find without a doubt,
Daisy time and Rose time Within if not without.

For all seasons Gold Dust Washing Powder.

N. K. FAIRBANK & CO., Sole Manufacturers,
CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS, NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
BALTIMORE, NEW ORLEANS, SAN FRANCISCO,
PORTLAND, ME., PORTLAND, ORE., PITTSBURGH AND MILWAUKEE.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR
The Celebrated
CHOCOLAT MENIER
Annual Sales Exceed 33 MILLION Lbs.
Write for Samples. Sent Free. Menier, Union Sq., N. Y.

HARDWOOD AND MARBLEIZED SLATE MANTELS.

TILE HEARTHES. GRATES AND FIRE-PLACE TRIMMINGS.
GEO. M. LEAHY,
Advocate Building, - No. 112 Camp St., New Orleans.

WE THE JURY

PROSECUTE W. C. SHEPARD & SON,
14 CAMP ST., NEAR POYDRAS,
The Cheapest Crockery, Glass and House-holding Furniture in the City.
Be sure and look them up when needing goods
in their line. 500 Dinner, Tea and Chamber Sets
at half price.

For First-Class Photographs
Go TO SIMON'S,
No. 183 Canal St., - - - New Orleans, La.

H. Dudley Coleman Machinery Co., Lim'd,
New Orleans, La.

STEAM ENGINES, BOILERS, MILLS AND MACHINERY,
Pumps, Pipe, Presses, Pulleys, Shafting,
Saw, Sugar and Corn Mills,
Cotton Gins, Feeders and Condensers.
Examine Our Stock. Our Prices Are Very Low.

FOUNDRY, FACTORY & OFFICE, SUPPLIES & SAMPLE STORE
Cor. Magnolia and Esato Sts. 9 Perdido St., New Orleans, La.

If readers of this advertisement who wish to purchase goods in our line would mention this paper when writing for information or when ordering goods from us, we could then determine whether the money we pay for advertising in this paper is well invested or not.
H. DUDLEY COLEMAN MACHINERY CO., LIMITED, New Orleans, La.

Latest Styles -- Lowest Prices!

This handsome Parlor Suit is upholstered on solid walnut frames with Imported Marbleized Silk Plush and the seats are all Spring Edge. Colors are Red, Red and Old Gold, Blue and Old Gold or each piece of a different color. For $45 I will sell seven pieces of this suit:—one Sofa, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair and three Reception Chairs. $65 buys the complete suit of ten pieces consisting of two Sofas, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair, and five Reception Chairs. Same suit covered with Hair Cloth, seven pieces $35 or ten pieces $55. Every other article in my store at proportionately low prices. Bedroom suits, twelve pieces, from $40 up to $1000 Dining room suits, eight pieces, from $17 upwards. Complete Kitchen outfits from $20 upwards. Quality at top—prices at bottom. I have an immense variety of strictly reliable goods and purchasers can depend upon getting the very latest styles. Everything guaranteed to be exactly as represented or money will be promptly refunded.

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE
in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT,

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE
in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30

Send for Catalogues of
PIANOS AND ORGANS
TO Philip Werlein
158 Canal St.,
New Orleans, La.,
We Charge You Nothing for Them.
Correspondence Solicited.
LOW PRICES. EASY TERMS.
Mention this paper.

Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company.

Losses Paid by Chicago Fire, 1871, $3,239,091.
Losses Paid by Boston Fire, 1872, $1,429,720.

All Losses Paid in Cash, without Discount, as Soon as Adjusted.
Losses and all matters of business settled by officers and directors in New Orleans without reference to any other office, the same as with local companies.

DIRECTORS IN NEW ORLEANS.
GUSTAF H. WESTFELDT, L. O. FALLON, LUCAS E. MOORE, O. M. SOMER.
Chairman. Secretary.

CLARENCE F. LOW, Asst. Resident Sec'y. H. V. OGDEN, Resident Secretary.

The Southern Insurance Company OF NEW ORLEANS.

54 - - - CAMP STREET - - - 54

Paid up Capital, $300,000. Assets, $545,096.10.

FIRE, RIVER AND MARINE INSURANCE.
This company by its conservative, yet liberal, business methods, and the immediate availability of its assets, affords complete security to its assured. Losses promptly adjusted and paid.

ERNEST MILTENBERGER, H. GALLY, SCOTT MOOREHEAD,
President. Vice-President. Secretary.
FINANCE COMMITTEE.
Frank Roder, J. H. Monro, Joseph Schwartz, F. G. Ernst, T. J. Woodward.

Home Insurance Co., of New Orleans. No. 78 CAMP STREET.

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1886,	$400,479.08
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1887,	$413,860.76
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1888,	$459,369.50
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1889,	$510,584.54
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1890,	$551,897.82
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1891,	$600,414.81

Steadily Increasing in Strength and Popularity.
Solicits Fire and River Business.

Liberal Settlements and Prompt Payments.

Thos. Sefton, Pres't. Capt. J. B. Woods, Vice-Pres't. Jno. G. Byrd, Sec'y
J. B. WOODS, JNO. J. BARR, J. B. LEVERT, W. B. BLOOMFIELD, JOE. BAYLE, ANDREW STEWART, E. BORLAND, W. T. HARDIE,
JNO. BARKLEY, CHAS. CHAFFE, P. R. RICE, THOS. SEFTON.

W. R. LYMAN, President. JOSEPH BOWLING, Vice-President. CHAS. E. BROWN, Secretary.

Crescent Insurance Com'y.

Incorporated as a Mutual Company in 1849.
Reorganized as a Stock Company in 1860.

Cash Capital, - - - - - $300,000.

Has paid over TEN AND ONE-HALF MILLIONS for losses since 1849. ANNUAL AND TERM POLICIES issued on Desirable Fire Business.

See Our Agents throughout Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas.

"Sanctification,"
By DR. B. CARRADINE,
Is having a wonderful sale and doing a large amount of good.

Price: Paper, 40 cents; cloth, 80 cents.

For sale by F. D. VAN VALKENBURGH,
106 Camp St., New Orleans.

AGENTS WANTED!

Why you should send at once to New Orleans for your prospectus of

"SPURGEON'S LIFE."

We send a 50 cent outfit for 30 cents. We can ship you books quicker and cheaper than from anywhere else. Liberal terms.

F. D. VAN VALKENBURGH,
106 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

Free from all impurity. Royal Baking Powder

Is the only baking powder yet found by chemical analysis to be free from all impurities and absolutely pure. This perfect purity results from the exclusive use of cream of tartar specially refined and prepared by patent processes which totally remove all the tartrate of lime. The cost of this chemically pure cream of tartar is much greater than any other, and it is used in no baking powder except the "Royal."

Dr. Edward G. Love, formerly analytical chemist for the U. S. Government, who made the analyses for the New York State Board of Health in their investigation of baking powders, says of the purity and wholesomeness of the "Royal":

"I find the Royal Baking Powder composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substance."

(Late U. S. Gov't Chemist) "E. G. LOVE, Ph. D."

Prof. Love's tests, and the recent official tests by the United States and Canadian Governments; show the Royal Baking Powder to be superior to all others in strength and leavening power.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

NEW ORLEANS DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Baton Rouge.....Aug. 21
Bayou.....Aug. 21
Parker Chapel.....Aug. 21
Dryades.....Aug. 21
Grape.....Aug. 21
Grove Tete, at Rosedale.....Aug. 21
Lower Coast.....Aug. 21

At these conferences the Church Registers and records of Church Conferences will be called for.

C. W. CARTER, P. E.

ARCADIA DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Valley, at Flat Lick.....Aug. 21
Tulip.....Aug. 21
Ruston, at Douglas.....Aug. 21
Vine.....Aug. 21
Grove.....Aug. 21
Grove Tete, at Rosedale.....Aug. 21
Lower Coast.....Aug. 21

At these conferences the Church Registers and records of Church Conferences will be called for.

J. L. P. SHEPARD, P. E.

ALEXANDRIA DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Columbia, at Columbia.....Aug. 21
Castor, at Olla.....Aug. 21
Ada.....Aug. 21
Pierette, at Oak Grove.....Aug. 21
Centerville, at Centerville.....Aug. 21
Vidalia, at Vidalia.....Aug. 21
Black River, at Larto.....Aug. 21
Alexandria, at Alexandria.....Aug. 21
Montgomery.....Aug. 21

The Alexandria District Conference will convene at Columbia, Aug. 18-21, 1892.

J. IVY, HOFFAUER, P. E.

SHREVEPORT DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Anacostia and Vernon.....Aug. 21
Coushatta, at Coushatta.....Aug. 21
Wesley.....Aug. 21

ROBT. J. HARR, P. E.

OPELUSKA DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Sulphur Mine, at Sulphur Mine.....Aug. 21
Lake Charles, at Lake Charles.....Aug. 21
Lake Arthur, at Lake Arthur.....Aug. 21

JNO. A. MILLER, P. E.

DELMH DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Dehl, at Tullahoma.....Aug. 21
Oakly, at Tullahoma.....Aug. 21
Waterpool.....Aug. 21
Winboro, at Prairie.....Aug. 21
Indian Village, at Antioch.....Aug. 21

H. O. WHITE, P. E.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

HOLLY SPRINGS DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Eagle Springs.....Sept. 10, 11
Holly Springs station.....Sept. 10, 11
Myle.....Sept. 10, 11
Holly Springs circuit.....Oct. 1, 2
Lebanon.....Sept. 10, 11
Red Bank.....Sept. 10, 11
Ashland.....Sept. 10, 11
Byalla.....Sept. 10, 11
East Holly Springs circuit.....Nov. 5, 6
Early Grove.....Sept. 10, 11
Mount Pleasant.....Sept. 10, 11
Olive Branch.....Sept. 10, 11

JNO. W. BOWELL, P. E.

SANDIS DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Conrad, at Enreka Springs.....Aug. 20, 21
Panola, at Forest Hill.....Aug. 20, 21
Mt. Vernon, at Free Springs.....Aug. 20, 21
Rebels, at Endora.....Sept. 3, 4
Wall Hill.....Sept. 3, 4
Arkabutla.....Sept. 3, 4

Also request that the Records of Church Conferences and Church Registers be presented at their respective Quarterly Conferences for examination.

H. C. MOREHEAD, P. E.

KOSCIUSKO DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Pickens.....Aug. 20, 21
Lexington and Rebel.....Aug. 20, 21
Keneser.....Aug. 20, 21
Belmont.....Aug. 20, 21
Poplar Creek.....Aug. 20, 21
Rural Hill.....Aug. 20, 21

R. A. BURKOWS, P. E.

COLUMBUS DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Starkville station.....Aug. 20, 21
Pleba.....Aug. 20, 21
Brookville.....Aug. 20, 21
Mashville.....Aug. 20, 21
Columbus circuit.....Aug. 20, 21

T. C. WERN, P. E.

GREENVILLE DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Glen Allen.....Aug. 21
Bellevue.....Aug. 21
Jonesboro.....Aug. 21

R. M. STANDER, P. E.

CORINTH DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Jonesboro circuit.....Aug. 20, 21
Ripley circuit.....Aug. 20, 21
Ripley and New Albany.....Aug. 20, 21
New Albany circuit.....Aug. 20, 21

W. S. LADONIA, P. E.

ABERDEEN DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Ashland.....Aug. 20, 21
Amory and Smithville.....Aug. 20, 21
Houston and Wesley.....Aug. 20, 21
Buena Vista.....Aug. 20, 21

J. B. STONE, P. E.

WINONA DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Black Hawk.....Aug. 20, 21
Amory circuit.....Aug. 20, 21
Valden.....Aug. 20, 21
Carrollton circuit.....Aug. 20, 21
Carrollton station.....Aug. 20, 21

S. M. THAMES, P. E.

CAMP MEETINGS.

The Oxford Camp Meeting will begin Friday night, Aug. 26, 1892.
Oxford, Miss.
J. E. THOMAS.

The St. Tammany Camp Meeting will commence Sept. 30. This camp ground is situated immediately on the Columbia road, seven miles northeast of Covington. Ample accommodations on the grounds. F. MATTHEWS, President of Committee.
Tallahassee, La.

The Palmer Camp Ground is situated fifteen miles north of Mississippi City, Miss., and the meeting will commence Sunday, Oct. 2, at 11 o'clock A. M., and continue through the week. This camp meeting is run in the old style; the tenters sustain the people. Preachers and people are cordially invited to attend the meeting. All preachers coming by rail will please be at Mississippi City, Miss., on Saturday, Oct. 1. Conveyance will meet them there at 11 o'clock A. M., in order to reach the camp ground before night.

ROBERT MILES, President.

Camp Meeting Calendar.

Camp Meet'g.	Begins.
Providence.....	Aug. 18
Sam Jones.....	Aug. 18
Lake.....	Aug. 20
Oxford.....	Aug. 20
Keating.....	Sept. 1
Water Valley.....	Sept. 2
Orville-Whittington.....	Sept. 2
Whittington.....	Sept. 2
St. Tammany.....	Sept. 30
Palmer.....	Oct. 2
Leaf River.....	Oct. 7

Philip Werlein, Esq.—one of the largest dealers in choice Pianos, Organs, Music and Musical Instruments in the South—offers unusual bargains to purchasers prior to his removal to his old stand, No. 135 Canal St., New Orleans, which he will do in a few days. He is doing a large business.

Oh, my soul! why art thou more affected at some petty observances than at the fundamental laws of justice and charity, or thinkest to atone to God for greater indulgences by a scrupulous strictness in easy duties?—Austin.

McKinley

May have raised prices with his tariff reform bill; but, judging from the manner in which pictures and picture frames are being sacrificed in order to enable Heath, Schwarz & Co., Ltd., to move their stock with less trouble by the first of September, one would imagine that goods were soon to be given away, not sold.

Reason? BEECHAM'S PILLS act like magic.

STORIES IN SONG.

By Elizabeth U. Emerson and Kate L. Brown.

For KINDERGARTENS!
For PRIMARY SCHOOLS!
For THE NURSERY!

Bright, cheery, original, and full of beautiful melody. This is the best possible collection of songs for little children.

IT CONTAINS

DESCRIPTIVE SONGS.
MOTION SONGS.
INSTRUCTION SONGS.

SONGS OF ANIMALS.

SONGS OF FLOWERS.

SONGS OF BIRDS.

SONGS OF HOME.

SONGS OF THE FARM.

SONGS OF THE SEASONS.

95 Large Pages. Strongly Bound.

Sent postpaid. Paper, 75 cents; boards, $1.00.

BOSTON:

Oliver Ditson Company.

New York: C. H. DITSON & CO. 867 Broadway.
Philadelphia: J. E. DITSON & CO. 1228 Chestnut St.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE.

BOARDING.

Students can procure board at Asbury Hall on Campus. Address, J. M. NORMAN, Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss.

State Normal School,

NATCHITOCHES, LA.

Reopens Oct. 3, 1892. Both Sexes Admitted.

Attendance Last Session, 270.

Faculty of eleven able instructors.

Unsurpassed in beauty and healthfulness of location, thoroughness of instruction, and perfection of discipline.

Diploma entitles holder to First Grade teacher's certificate without examination. Tuition free. Total expense need not exceed $110 per annum.

For particulars, address

THOS. D. BOYD, President.

KNABE

PIANOS.

UNQUALLED IN

Tone, Touch, Workmanship and Durability

Baltimore, 22 and 24 East Baltimore St.

New York, 145 Fifth Ave.

Washington, 817 Market Space.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

DOMESTIC.

The allotments made by the Mississippi River Commission for levee purposes have been approved by the War Department.

The twenty-fifth Triennial Convocation of the Knights Templar was held in Denver, Col., last week. It is estimated that 100,000 visitors were in Denver from outside points during the week.

According to the census bulletins the aggregate wealth of the United States is $63,048,000,000, over $13,000,000,000 more than the wealth of Great Britain, which is the next wealthiest nation in the world.

The figures on South Dakota's prospective yield given by competent men are simply astounding, ranging from 60,000,000 to 60,000,000 bushels of wheat, heads immense quantities of other grain.

The Amalgamated Association and the American Federation of Labor have issued an address to the public, setting forth the purposes of the strike at Homestead, Pa., and calling for assistance in their battle against capital.

The Anderson Tin Plate Works, at Anderson, Ind., the first established under the McKinley tariff, has been sold out by the sheriff to satisfy a mechanic's lien. The liabilities foot up $9,000 and the works sold for $218.30.

The passenger depot of the Grand Isle railroad, situated in Algiers, opposite this city, was demolished on Aug. 14, by falling banks, which carried two hundred feet of earth and half of the structure into the river. The damage is estimated at $20,000.

The switchmen of the Erie and Lehigh Valley railroad, who are on a strike, have burned eighteen cars filled with freight at Buffalo. Besides ascertaining the men who have taken their places, they derailed a train on Aug. 14 and endangered the lives of the passengers.

The Southern Lumber Association, in session in Kansas City, Aug. 12, adopted a price list on yellow pine, slightly in advance of the schedule established in Memphis, last May; selected Mobile, Ala., as the next meeting place, and transacted considerable routine business.

The Brooklyn Cooperage, in this city, occupying an entire square, was completely destroyed by fire on Aug. 14. The capacity of the cooperage was at times as high as 5,000 barrels a day. The fire throws 600 people out of employment. Property in the vicinity was damaged. The total loss exceeds $500,000.

The locked-out miners at Tracy City, Tenn., on Aug. 13, burned the stockade and placed the convicts (who had taken their places) on a train, forcing the conductors, under cover of guns, to take them to Nashville. The miners at Coal Creek are also preparing to act, and it is feared that a conflict will ensue between them and the militia stationed at that place.

Published returns from the cotton mills in Massachusetts for the past quarter show they are enjoying the most prosperous season ever known in cotton manufacturing in Fall River. Thirty-one companies, representing forty-six mills, have paid dividends of $533,380 on a capital of $18,123,500. The total dividends paid for the corresponding quarter of last year amounted to $236,260.

The owners of the steamer Oteri have notified the State Department that they will make a demand on the Honduras government for damages for the seizure and use of their vessel by the revolutionists. The Honduras government will combat this claim on the ground that the Oteri, although ostensibly seized, was a willing captive and did service for the rebels with the expectation of compensation.

The government has instructed the representatives of the United States in foreign countries to invite the governments of such countries as maintain a naval establishment, to send a squadron of their warships to take part in the grand naval review to take place in New York harbor, in April next, in connection with the celebration of the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus.

FOREIGN.
All the German political parties view Gladstone's advent as prime minister with regret, as likely to imperil the solidity of the Triple Alliance, unless Lord Rosebery is made foreign minister in his Cabinet.

Heavy storms swept over Spain last week, and an immense amount of damage has resulted. In many places the grape and olive crops have been ruined. Much damage has been done by the rivers overflowing their banks.

A convention of German horse butchers has agreed to open a first-class restaurant in Berlin for the purpose of educating the upper classes to the use of horse flesh as a viand. The report submitted to the convention stated that there are 2,400 butchers in Germany who kill 800,000 horses annually. These horses are mostly fattened for the meat market. No worn-out animals are used.

Advices from Japan, brought by the steamer Rio Janeiro, include reports of damage by storms and inundations at Okayama, Tokushima, Yamaguchi, Guma, Salasama, Chibi and Hyogo. Of these Okayama seems to have suffered worst. On July 23 a terrible typhoon came up. Rivers were flooded. Over 5,000 houses were submerged and about 100 persons were drowned.

On Aug. 12, in the British Parliament, Mr. Salisbury ministry, which has been in power for the past six years, was finally defeated. A motion of "no confidence" in the government, moved by the Liberals, resulted in a vote of 350 to 310, or a majority of 40 against the government. Lord Salisbury has resigned, and Mr. Gladstone has been called upon by the Queen to form a new cabinet.

"Tired all the time"—Hood's Sarsaparilla possesses just those elements of strength which you so earnestly crave; it will build you up, give you an appetite, strengthen your stomach and nerves. Try it.

Hood's PILLS invigorate the liver.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

OFFICE OF NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Letters or postal cards have been received during the past week from the following persons, and their instructions complied with:

Revs. D. C. Rawls (2), J. Wilson Brown, A. P. Sage, H. M. Banks, J. W. Rowlett, J. W. Thomas, H. Armstrong, J. D. Harper, L. W. Wood (2), J. C. Camille, J. D. Pugh, J. R. Roy, A. J. Lamar, J. S. Parker, R. F. Evans, J. V. Penn, John Matthews, J. W. Honnell, B. F. Lewis (2), W. H. Hunter, W. J. O'Bryen, J. P. Drake, V. D. Skipper, J. A. Randolph, W. H. Times, E. P. Edgar, J. H. Wheat, Messrs. Alex. Smith, Jno. H. Carter, Geo. M. Brown, T. J. Webb, J. F. Cassels, J. A. Shute, L. D. Flach, H. B. Ford, G. W. Dear, James Colclough, R. H. Crawford, W. A. Hopper, E. Colclough, R. H. Crawford, W. F. Hall, F. C. Butterworth, W. Young, J. Fullard, W. F. Har- den, Jesse Byrd, T. Shingary, Jno. Trice, E. Baker, J. H. Manning, E. H. Thompson, L. D. Friday, Fred. Thos. D. Boyd.
Messrs. E. C. Hildaway, M. J. Ford, F. B. Hill, M. Richardson, T. J. Lee, H. L. Evans, A. E. Boster, Miss S. E. Hopkins.
Aug. 16.

For Over Fifty Years

Mrs. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP has been used for children teething. It soothes the inflamed gums, always all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhoea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

COMMUNION WINE!

(NON-ALCOHOLIC)

For sale by

A. W. SKARDON & SON, Grocers.

Cor. Magazine and Jackson Sts., NEW ORLEANS.

This wine is used by the Carondelet Methodist Church, Louisiana Avenue, Methodist Church, and by several other churches in New Orleans.

One of Our Elegant

For SOLID GOLD WATCHES, Stem-wind and Set.

Send for catalogue of designs.

P. M. HILL, Jeweler,
333 Dryades St., New Orleans, La.

Iuka Normal Institute,

IUKA, MISS.

Expenses for term of 10 weeks, $38.75; 40 weeks, $155.50; 48 weeks, $186. I am not trying to run the cheapest school, but I am trying to run the best one. Success. Schools supplied with teachers. Write to

H. A. DEAN, Prin.

Tuskaloosa Female College,

TUSKALOOSA, ALA.,

Offers superior advantages in every department of female education.

Session opens Oct. 5.

For catalogue, giving full information, apply to

ALONZO HILL, President.

Lauderdale Training-School,

AT LAUDERDALE SPRINGS, MISS.

(Junction of M. and O. and E. 15 miles north of Meridian.)

H. E. HALLAN, A. B. (N. Y.),
G. W. HURTON, A. M. (S. N.).

We furnish thorough training, and prepare students for College and University work. Total cost per session of nine months, $120. For prospectus, address

G. W. BURTON, Sec.,
Lauderdale, Miss.

SOUTHERN ACADEMIC INSTITUTE.

Mrs. J. E. SEAMAN, Principal.

French and English School for Young Ladies. Graded and Chartered. Boarding Department a specialty. New Buildings, Large Grounds. Kindergarten with Normal Training.

Send for Circular, 216 Coliseum, New Orleans.

Southern University,

GREENSBORO, ALA.

The next session will open Sept. 21. Course of study: Classical, Scientific and Practical. Its graduates are in demand. Expense very moderate. For catalogue address

Rev. F. M. PETERSON, Sec.

STANTON Military Academy,

—STANTON, VA.

A Military School for Young Men and Boys. Handsome Illustrated Catalogue mailed on application.

L. GRUNEWALD CO., Ltd.,

LOW PRICES! TIME PAYMENTS!

STEINWAY, KNABE, CHICKERING, BEHR, MEHLIN,

OLD PIANOS TAKEN IN EXCHANGE.

PIANOS AND ORGANS!

127 Canal St., 14 to 20 Baronne St., NEW ORLEANS.

Write for terms and further particulars.

For a Good Reliable Watch,

Tasty Solid Gold Jewelry—none other kept in stock—Beautiful Diamonds and other Precious Stones, Handsomely Designed Solid Silver and Silver-Plated Ware, and all other Articles pertaining to a First-Class Jewelry Store, call at

FRANTZ & OPITZ.

Practical Watchmakers and Jewelers,

No. 63 ROYAL ST., CORNER BIENVILLE, NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Designs and estimates of Medals, Badges and Emblems in Silver and Gold for schools, academies, seminaries, universities, societies, etc., will be furnished and executed in all desired styles and at most reasonable prices. Clocks, Watches and Jewelry repaired. All articles of Jewelry made to order. Diamonds reset in every style.

The Great Church LIGHT.

FRANKLIN Patent, Makers of the "Great Church Light," the most powerful, the most reliable, the most economical, and the most beautiful of all lamps. It is the only lamp that will burn for 100 hours without relighting. It is the only lamp that will burn for 100 hours without relighting. It is the only lamp that will burn for 100 hours without relighting.

Christian Advocate.

VOL. 39.—NO. 84.

NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, AUGUST 25, 1892.

WHOLE NO. 1879.

Rev. C. W. CARTER, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. LEWIS, Asst. Editor.

PUBLISHED FOR THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE AND NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

"Merrie Old England."

So much might be written of London if it were difficult to make selection. And the places most visited have been so often described that they have become quite familiar. But it would be a duty to my Methodism, and certainly to the expectation of your readers, for me not to make further reference to City Road Chapel and Wesley's house. I have visited that sacred shrine several times, and from the platform by Wesley's pulpit made a short address to the Annual Assembly of the Methodist Free Churches. The pulpit remains the same as when used by Mr. Wesley, except it has been lowered two or three inches. And even yet it is so high that the minister standing therein is about on a level with the galleries. And so are nearly all the pulpits of all the churches. In the Wesley Memorial Chapel, at Oxford, there are even steps by which you ascend. Most of them are old style—circular, small and tall. I wonder that Methodism has ever prospered to such "pent-up Ullens." But the preaching here is not so fervid as in America, and hence less need for room to roam. The style is expository and conversational, without vehemence of manner or much elevation of tone—the furthest remove from the hortatory, hearty methods of America. A fair exchange might be profitable to both. We need a little toning down, and they need firing up. Their didactic style would not suit our longitude—nor is it best for any.

Immediately in rear of the pulpit are marble tablets, with suitable inscriptions, to John Wesley, Charles Wesley, Thomas Coke, Adam Clarke, Fletcher and Berson—an honored company, fellow-laborers in life, and not separated in death. And around the walls are busts and memorials of the mighty men of Methodism from Wesley to Dr. Punshon. The marble pillars that support the galleries are the gifts of the several members of the great Methodist family. On the floor, at the base of each, is a brass plate with the name of the church presenting it. With very great pleasure I looked upon the one given by the Methodist Episcopal Church, South—thanks to the thoughtfulness of Bishop Keener and the good friends he induced to furnish the funds. I thought it a delightful coincidence, that the grandson of Charles Wesley is the accomplished organist in City Road—the Westminster of Methodism. In the rear of the church may be found the graves of John Wesley, Adam Clarke, Richard Watson, Thomas Olivers, Theophyllus Wesley, Jabez Bunting, and many others. To the left, and in front, is "Wesley's house"—where the great evangelist lived when in London, and where he triumphantly died. It is occupied by one of the circuit ministers, and kept with reverent care. I had the privilege of seeing the room from which the old saint descended, shouting, "The best of all is, God is with us;" the desk where his busy pen tolled for the millions, the chair he occupied, and other things connected with his apostolic and laborious life. Last year, on the occasion of the centenary of his death, a magnificent statue of him was unveiled in front of the chapel, when Archbishop Farrar and others delivered eloquent addresses. One thing I was about to forget. Inside the chancel is the baptismal font which John Fletcher used in his church at Madely, and placed in City Road by Mr. John Fletcher Moulton in 1891.

Just across the street is Bunhill Fields, the sacred ground where sleep some of England's noblest dead. I went first, of course, to the grave of Mrs. Susannah Wesley—the matriarch of Methodism—marked by a very modest monument, with beautiful inscription. From the tree which grows out of the grave and gives it shelter I gathered a few leaves, and thought of the tree of life on whose fruit she fed, and whose leaves are for the healing of the nations. The fact of that saintly life I tried to recall, and then think of the generations that will rise up in the great day to call her blessed. Near is the grave of John Bunyan, on whose tomb is a recumbent figure of the "immortal dreamer." And just across the way is the quiet resting-place of Daniel DeFoe, the simple, appropriate monument to whom was erected by the children. What child would not like to aid in honoring the memory of the author of Robinson Crusoe? And a few paces further is the tomb of Dr.

Isaac Watts, only second to Charles Wesley as an inspired hymnist, and whose fame will extend as the music of his measures wake the echoes of the ages.

I walked down Paternoster Row—a very narrow street—and was somewhat surprised to find that the great publishers, whose books are read throughout the world, are in strangely small quarters. They are not printers, and have neither type nor presses. At the Wesleyan Book Room in City Road there is not a press. All their printing is done by contract—much of it in Edinburgh. And another fact I learned—that American books have no sale on this side the Atlantic. It is practically fatal to any book to have American authorship. That accounts for the very innocent question by a distinguished Methodist scholar to me at a large dinner party a few days ago: "Why was it, that while Methodism in America had increased with such marvelous rapidity, it did not reach the higher thought of the country?" I replied that, in the first place, we had been too busy in evangelistic work, saving the millions, to write many books; and in the second place, the books that were written had no readers in England. They are, therefore, largely innocent as to the kind of thinking we are doing.

I went out one evening through the famous White Chapel district—that section where "Jack the Ripper" committed his horrid crimes, and where all manner of vice abounds. Saloons, called "public houses," are numerous, and behind the counters young women mix the drinks for rough and beastly looking customers. The parliamentary election was being held in that division, and there was intense excitement. I ventured into one polling-place, and there saw a clergyman—an elderly, white-haired man—electioneering for one of the candidates, a rich brewer who owned a number of these "public houses." I felt ashamed of a gospel minister who would thus degrade his high calling. But England is far behind the United States on the temperance question. Their saloons are open at certain hours even on the Sabbath day.

Hyde Park is a wonderful place. The ends of earth meet there every afternoon. Such a magnificent display of vehicles of every wheel, drawn by splendid horses, with uniformed drivers and liveried outriders, is never seen in democratic America. And there every man is preached, and every theory and every dogma under heaven advocated. In five different groups one afternoon I heard an atheist sneering at Christianity, a socialist inveighing against the classes and taxes, a juggler lecturing on some hobby, a preacher expounding the Bible, and an old negro exhorting in the traditional way—warm and strong. How strangely those seedy talkers and their hearers contrasted with the dazzling equipages of every name and style that swept around the spacious drive!

The denominational tie among Dissenters is not as strong as in America. Changes from church to church are easy. The Sabbath I spent in London early. Rev. Newman Hall presided his valedictory sermon. He retires from the pulpit where Rowland Hill once spoke to multitudes, and is to be succeeded by Rev. B. F. Meyer, a Baptist. Once that church was connected with the Countess of Huntingdon movement; but now a Baptist becomes pastor. But the old order of service is to be continued, and to save principles, a baptistery is to be provided, and with the understanding that those who wish to have their children baptized can secure the services of another minister. Isn't that anomalous? Such compromises may build a religious hotel, but will not establish a permanent church, or accomplish an abiding work.

On Saturday morning I went to Oxford as the delighted guest of Rev. James Chapman, who will be remembered in America as the author of the admirable Pastoral Address adopted by the Ecumenical Conference at Washington. Under his guidance I had the best opportunity to intelligently see the ancient and world-renowned university town. What history has been made and written in that center of high thought and highest scholarship! And what tragedies have there been enacted in the name of liberty and religion! I saw the very spot—marked by a stone cross—where Crammer, Latimer and Ridley were burned at the stake. To them a monument has been reared in another part of the city. Several of the twenty-two colleges I visited, and admired their venerable buildings and beautiful quadrangles and lovely grounds and classic shades and walks. Nothing could be more exquisitely beautiful than "Addison's Walk." In Christ Church College, where John Wesley was a student, I longest lingered. The portraits of distinguished men in that college, from Cardinal Wolsey to Mr. Gladstone, adorn the walls of one large room. The next afternoon, returning from a service in Christ Church Cathedral, accompanied by Mrs. Chapman, I went into Lincoln College, where John Wesley was "sometime fellow," and saw the room he occupied and the pulpit from which he preached. That was the room in which the young Oxford Methodists met for the study of the Bible, and out from there went to talk to the prisoners in jail of Christ and salvation. The pulpit is no longer used, but is religiously kept in a vestry as a memorial of the once decided, but now universally honored, Methodist. There are twenty-two colleges located at Oxford, all correlated with the university, which alone has power to confer degrees. The university itself is an immaterial something, composed of representatives of the several colleges, and has no existence without them. This Board of Examiners passes upon the case of each student who has completed the course in either of the colleges, and confers upon him the university degree. There is a curious custom on such occasions, which has obtained from time immemorial. When a young candidate's name is announced for a degree, an officer of the university walks up and down the aisle for a given length of time, and any citizen of Oxford has a right to speak and show cause why the honor should not be conferred; if not, he must hold his peace thereafter. There are from 2,500 to 3,000 young men in Oxford during term time. Each is required to wear a gown and the "mortar-board" cap during the collegiate day, and not to appear out after eight o'clock at night without the same uniform. I made inquiry as to the average expenses for a year, and learned that the minimum was about seven hundred dollars for the term of six months. Were it not for endowed scholarships, only the sons of the rich could enjoy the university advantages there afforded. Of course, the titled and wealthy spend much more—in some cases amounting to $2,500.

I had the pleasure of preaching in the Wesley Memorial Chapel on the Sabbath, but Mr. Chapman had to read the Church of England service, which is required by some provision in the deed to the property. The congregation do not like it, however, as is evidenced by their coming in about the hour for preaching. It is a beautiful service, but is wearisome to the flesh, and not nourishing to the spirit, if used every Sabbath. In Westminster Abbey, and other churches, it is intoned, and without being improved or made more impressive.

On Monday morning Mr. Chapman and I started to Conference at Bradford, via Birmingham, stopping at Warwick Castle en route. That is probably the most beautiful estate I have seen in the Old World. It is an ancient castle located on a hill overlooking the Avon, and is intimately connected with the history of England from before the days of the Crusaders. Indeed, there are two magnificent cedars just outside the castle that were brought from Lebanon by the Crusaders, and planted there on the banks of the Avon. That was the home of the famous Earl of Warwick, the "king-maker," and was an impregnable fortress for the Parliamentarians during the civil war. I was shown the mace of the "king-maker," the helmet often worn by Oliver Cromwell, and some of the finest original paintings, by the masters, to be found in Europe.

After delaying an hour or so in the manufacturing city of Birmingham, we journeyed northward for Bradford. I am the guest of Mr. Isaac Holden, a member of Parliament, at his palatial home, Oakworth House, near Keighley—a few miles out from Bradford. Mr. Holden is eighty-five years of age, and has just been re-elected to Parliament without opposition. He has the quick step of a man of forty-five, walks frequently from eight to twelve miles during the day, keeps thoroughly abreast with the literature and politics of the age, and has more or less oversight of his immense manufacturing interests here and in France. He is said to be the wealthiest man in the House of Commons, and his fortune has been made by his own energy and genius. His home is a palace, and the gardens adjoining are said to be unequalled in the United Kingdom. Grapes and other fruits on his table during the entire year are raised in his greenhouses. And withal he is a modest, agreeable, hospitable Methodist gentleman.

The Conference opened on Tuesday morning with Dr. Stephenson in the chair. After filling a few vacancies in the Legal Hundred, Dr. J. H. Riggs was elected president. The ballot is first taken in the full Conference, all who have traveled ten years and over having a right to vote, and that selection is confirmed by the Legal Hundred. This is a great honor to Dr. Riggs, he having been president once before. You may not know that he was the first English correspondent of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE—back in the days of young Dr. McTear's editorship. Dr. Waller was re-elected secretary by a practically unanimous vote. Of the Conference and its proceedings I will write in my next. Your Bro. Trippett, a resident of Doncaster, but a superannuated member of the Louisiana Conference, is here, looking well, and longing to see his brethren in Louisiana again. He will accompany me to Epworth one day next week, and I am to pay him a short visit at Doncaster. My reception has been most cordial and brotherly. On Monday evening next I am to speak.

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY.
Bradford, July 29, 1892.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. G. W. Gordon, Coffeeville, Miss., Aug. 19: "The local option election, held in Yalobusha county yesterday (eighteenth), resulted in a majority of 134 'against the sale.' 'Praise God, from whom all blessings flow!'"

Rev. R. D. Noraworthy, Crystal Springs, Miss., Aug. 15: "Recent improvements in the parsonage, in the way of paint and paper, has added much to the neatness, comfort and convenience of the pastor's home. And this through the energy and skill of Slater C. A. Redding, helped by others. To one and all we say, 'Thanks.'"

Rev. J. W. Ellison, Sattaria, Miss., Aug. 9: "We have just closed two meetings, viz: at Mt. Olivet and Sattaria. Our meeting at Mt. Olivet was a good meeting. It lasted eight days. Fifteen received into the church. Bros. Alexander and Scarborough assisted. One received at Sattaria. Closed on Monday. Bro. Scarborough assisted. We trust that the Christian people are firmly fixed in their faith, and are enjoying the comfort of religion. Our church at Anding will soon be finished."

Rev. W. L. Graves, P. C., Athens circuit, Aberdeen district, North Mississippi Conference, Aug. 11: "During the last two weeks we have held two protracted revivals. These revivals were at Pleasant Grove and New Hope. The churches were greatly blessed. Backsliders and cold members were raised to life and duty. Harmony and Christian unity abound throughout these communities. Sinners were converted; sixteen joined our church, giving us twenty-seven accessions since our last writing. The good work is going on. Pray for us."

Rev. Heslep R. Tucker, Houston and Wesley, North Mississippi Conference, Aug. 9: "We have just closed a meeting of eight days at Wesley. The church at this place for several years has not been in harmony, but we can say the little church of Wesley is redeemed. The tendency has been upward for some time, and the blessing prayed for came upon the people during the meeting, and such a revival we have not seen in a long time. Bro. J. D. Newsum is able to walk about his room, and we now hope that he will rapidly improve. His daughter, Miss Kate, is very sick, but better."

Rev. W. T. Currie, Live Oak, La., Aug. 12: "On last night I closed my protracted meetings. I began at Bethel, July 2. The work has been greatly blessed. The members have been revived; many converted to God, renewing their vows, promising to live nearer to God in the future. Sinners have joined the church and been converted. Seventy-three joined during the meetings. I have received eighty-three into the church this year. I am praying that the Lord will give me over a hundred. I thank the brethren that helped me in the meeting. They all preached with power. May God continue to bless me! I give all the praise to God. Pray for us."

Rev. J. C. Long, Philadelphia, Miss., Aug. 5: "The good work is still going on. I have held three of my protracted meetings up to date; had great revivals throughout all my meetings. Eighteen accessions to the church; baptized eighteen infants and eight adults. I was assisted by the following: Bros. W. W. Cammack, J. A. Burton, an exhorter on my work, and J. R. Hays, pastor of the Carthage circuit. Our third Quarterly Conference embraced July 30 and 31. Our most able and beloved presiding elder was on hand, and preached to the edification of all who were present. The committee appointed has purchased the parsonage, and it will be ready for the next pastor to occupy. Pray for us."

Rev. J. C. Ellis, P. C., Hillsboro, Miss., Aug. 8: "Thank God we have been in four glorious meetings, and two of them on our work, viz: at New Providence and Mount Zion; there being eleven accessions and a goodly number of conversions, and reclamations as well as many acclamations. We are now in the beginning of another meeting at Oak Grove, and indications are good. Our special ministerial help were our local brethren, except Rev. J. C. Long, at New Providence; and Bro. Tadlock, of the M. P. Church, also gave us good service at Mount Zion. Besides, Rev. Mr. Burkes, a Missionary Baptist minister of Yazoo county, preached us one excellent sermon. We will write you more as time permits. Pray for us."

Rev. J. C. Mimms, P. C., Blue Springs, Miss., Aug. 8: "Our third Quarterly Conference has just closed. It was a season of great joy. Our presiding elder does his work well. The officials were nearly all present, with very good reports. We licensed a young man to preach, who premises much to the church. Sunday was, indeed, a high day. The love-feast, at nine o'clock, was rich and inspiring. Just before preaching we baptized twenty-three children, and immediately after received three persons into the church. We held a meeting week before last in the woods under an arbor, which resulted in about fifty conversions. We organized in a school-house near by with a membership of nine; twelve more will join soon. The Lord be praised!"

Rev. N. B. Young, P. C., Aug. 8: "Vanceleave charge is moving smoothly on. Our second and third quarterly meetings were held by the pastor in charge. Our dear presiding elder, Bro. J. A. Ellis, has been greatly ill; but our people have not ceased to pray for his restoration to health. He writes me he is improving, and hopes to be able to make his fourth round. I ask the church to pray for Bro. Ellis. All who knew him when on the district before are desirous to see him at their churches and their homes. We are in the midst of the fourth meeting. Had five conversions last night at Shiloh; twenty-one accessions to date. We have fifteen Sunday-schools in operation. We have many good workers on the charge, but many that need conversion, and we are laboring and praying for that to be accomplished. Pray for us."

Rev. A. D. Miller, Bowerton circuit, Aug. 13: "We have just closed a good meeting at Rehoboth Church. We began the fifth Sunday in July and closed on Tuesday after the first Sunday in August—ten days. The meeting began well and grew in interest all the time to the close. We had very fine congregations; good order, and the church was much revived and lifted to a higher plane. Old difficulties were settled and peace and harmony restored with very few exceptions. The church is now in better condition, spiritually, than it has been for several years, and we hope to continue to grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. We are under many obligations to Revs. I. L. Peebles, of Edwards, Miss., and M. J.

Miller, of China Grove, Miss., who did all the preaching, and did it to the entire satisfaction of all concerned. M. J. Miller remained until Thursday—five days—and Bro. Peebles remained till the close, preaching twice a day after my brother left. There was not a sorry sermon preached during the meeting. We received seventeen members into the church. May God bless the church, that they may do their whole duty toward the young members!"

Rev. E. F. Edgar, Camden, Miss.: "We have just closed an interesting meeting at this place. It began with the dedication of our new church on Sunday, July 24. The dedicatory service was conducted by Dr. W. C. Black, of Jackson, Miss. His sermon fully measured up to the highest standard of exegesis, power and eloquence, and to his well-deserved reputation as a pulpit orator. By request, Sunday night, he preached his famous sermon on 'The Immortality of the Soul' to an immense congregation. Comment is useless. In his sermon, Monday night, he displayed great earnestness and power while discoursing upon 'Eternal Punishment,' producing widespread conviction. Tuesday morning the Doctor and his excellent wife, who had accompanied him here, left for their home. The presence of Bro. and Sister Black among us was as 'ointment poured forth.' To the pastor and family and to the entire community it was a delightful event. Both are universally loved, he having been their pastor four years, about fourteen years ago. Some of the Doctor's best friends scarcely recognized him on account of his growth. He used to be a small preacher, they say. We had long desired to know and hear Bro. 'Gilderry,' Rev. R. G. Porter, of the North Mississippi Conference. Tuesday he came to our assistance, remaining with us till Friday afternoon, preaching day and night in his own inimitable and impressive style. Bro. Porter is truly a preacher of the Word. His presence and ministry among us was a great blessing. This writer had preached twice, when the meeting closed abruptly on account of continued rain. One addition to the church, many promises of a better life, and more thorough consecration were the visible results of the meeting."

Rev. J. E. Riddle, Plaquemine, La., Aug. 18: "Since your visit to us, some ten days since, we have been handsomely treated to a hearty pounding; and I am glad to add we did not get a lick—a pound—a mile. Everything was nice, and such as we needed. Coffee and tea, sugar and flour and soap were the principal articles. This is the second time this year we have been remembered by our good friends here. I am sure such deeds of kindness are helpful to us and are most sincerely appreciated. And may the blessings of the God of love rest abundantly upon all who participated in the unique and pleasant surprise! My visit to Donaldsonville, last Saturday and Sunday, was pleasant indeed. The congregations, morning and evening, were a great deal larger than at some of our recent visits. Our finances are looking up at that place just a little. This gratifies us a great deal. Although yet far in arrears, we entertain high hopes of getting in a full report by the time the end cometh. As we entered the coach, Monday evening, at the depot to come home, we were pleased to see that thorough-going, successful business man and devoted Methodist, Mr. Jas. Tucker, who has just returned from a short visit to relatives in Texas. He cordially invites us to resume our work in St. James in September, as all the flock will then have returned from summer vacations and visits to different and distant parts of the country. Of course, we promised to do so. This brother has three large plantations of the very finest cane I have ever seen. How he and his crowd fought to hold the levee during that long and mighty flood! And how they succeeded, although they had three miles of the very poorest levee along this part of the coast. I was there when he and all his army of workers were laboring night and day, and spending thousands of dollars, and I said to him, 'How would you like a lift from Jno. A. M. & Co. just at this pinch of time?' He said, 'I do not want it at all.' He voted for Foster at the election. The Lord is with us, and is very good to us."

(Continued on Fifth Page.)

HOPE.

BY NESTOR A. YOUNG.

Ab! Hope divine, sweet pilot of our destiny—
Thou art the inspiration that doth lead
Marking the path to the heights of time,
Or standing on the heights of time,
Above all storms, beyond all doubts and fears,
Thy face aglow with heavenly fire,
Thy feet aglow with radiant harmonies,
Attuned to the angelic symphony,
Soul-stirring themes—seraphic dreams—
Leading where heaven's eternal splendors glow.
—Chilsonian Magazine.

The Dance and the Cards.

I have frequently thought, of recent years, that in the discussion of the greatest evil of the age and of the present day—namely the infamous whisky traffic—with its long concomitant train of equalities, wretchedness and want, the church is afflicted with an evil as deadly to spiritual life and usefulness as the fatal opium to animal and vegetable life. And I wish to emphasize here that the dance and social card-playing are more baneful to the church of God in many localities than whisky. The church, in its attitude toward these two evils, is widely different. We have about six to one who indulge in the so-called innocent amusement of dancing, while about one per cent. of that number indulge in alcoholic drink. I say this because a majority of the dancers are females, who never parley with the whisky devil.

If you take all the churches, the per cent. is larger, and the estimate will hold good. To the church of God this is a source of spiritual death, whose pernicious influence and example is marred and corrupting church life and character all over the borders of our beloved Zion. But I am told that dancing is an innocent amusement, and is fraught with no detrimental results to Christian experience and usefulness in the church. Let us look at this attitude. With an experience of twenty-nine years in the ministry, and with careful observation, I have not found in all these years a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, who was an habitual dancer, that would come forward when the opportunity was offered and participate in the sacrament of the Lord's Supper.

Now, Mr. Editor, if dancing does not produce consciousness of guilt, why the eregion of such unnecessary barrier in the way of the most important duties, as well as one of the most delightful privileges, within the range of Christian experience? The fact is obvious. A guilty conscience is the barrier. I have in my mind at this writing a young man who was a model in the church and community where he lived—who always occupied a seat in the amen corner of his church and prayed in public. In an unfortunate hour he was tempted to enter this whirlpool of fashionable folly. And, as a consequence, from that day he deserted his former place in the church, ceased to commemorate the Lord's death in the communion service, and is now occupying one of the back seats in that sanctuary where the services of God's house had been a delight and a feast to his soul. Why this tendency to repudiate the holy communion and the spiritual exercises of God's house, if dancing is innocent and harmless? Why this estrangement and alienation from spiritual exercises and the communion service of the church of Christ? Let the solons who advocate dancing as an innocent amusement answer this question in the fear of God and the injured interests of that church whose solemn vows and obligations have been ignored, and whose progress and prosperity have been throttled through a perverse want of loyalty and submission to moral obligations. Mr. Editor, have you ever known a dancing member of the church a useful one?

In the Christian household where social card-playing is tolerated there is either a want of moral muscle, or a want of those higher elements of Christian character which dominates moral manhood and quickens spiritual perception to discern the poison concealed in the fangs of this slimy, venomous reptile. Social card-playing in parlors for amusement is not only a waste of the golden moments which God has given for nobler and higher ends in life, but is stimulating young men to pursue that course in life which will be to them the inlet to a thousand other crimes. Gamblers are reckless men, and gambling and whisky are twin brothers. There are gamblers all over this broad land whose first game at cards is associated with young ladies of the fashionable type, elegantly decorated parlors and the sparkling wine-cup. From these higher circles of social folly the retrograde movement is a rapid one. Dances are fostered and stimulated for something that is more exciting and hazardous in its nature. The climax is soon reached. The social card-player becomes a blackleg and a bankrupt in character. The final destiny: a drunkard's grave and a gambler's bell! God pity the fathers and mothers of this country whose toleration and example are making gamblers of their sons.

W. W. HURST.

Percy's Creek.

The Wesleyan Conference.

The pastoral session of the Conference began on Tuesday morning, July 19, at Eastbrook Chapel, Bradford. The ministers filled the body of the chapel and a part of the gallery. The Conference sits with closed doors; hence all are admitted by ticket. The Rev. Dr. T. B. Stephenson, the retiring president, opened the services with singing that good old Methodist hymn, "And are we yet alive," and the Scriptures were read by the secretary, Dr. Waller. Prayer was offered by Dr. F. Greaves and Rev. Joseph Postnett. The roll of the Legal Hundred was called. Some were absent; two vacancies had been caused by death, and five by superannuation. The first vacancy was filled up by the vote of all ministers of ten years' standing after nomination, and the second on the ground of seniority by the members of the Legal Hundred. The election by nomination is considered an honor, and is always a matter of interest. In making nomination opportunity is given to mention any special qualification which the nominee possesses, and the distinguished services he has rendered to Methodism. The Legal Hundred being now formally constituted, the Conference proceeded to the election of president. Rev. Dr. J. H. Riggs secured the largest number of votes, and was called to the chair amid general acclamation. Dr. Riggs is the son of a Methodist preacher. This is the second time he has been elected to preside over the Wesleyan Conference, and years ago was the English correspondent of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. Rev. Dr. Waller received almost a unanimous vote for the secretariat. Rev. W. J. Dawson tendered his resignation as a Wesleyan minister, which was accepted, in silence, and Conference demurred to the publication of his letter. Rev. W. L. Watkinson was elected successor to Rev. Dr. Gregory as connectional editor.

The representative session of the Conference assembled on Monday, the twenty-fifth. This is composed of ministers and laymen. The Conference in the afternoon held an open session, and also in the evening for the reception of representatives of other Wesleyan and Methodist Conferences. The large chapel in the evening was crowded to listen to the proceedings. After devotional exercises the ex-president introduced the Rev. Dr. Johnson, of Canada; then Rev. Dr. Moulton was called upon to address the gathering. Dr. Moulton is one of the best known men in the connection, and he was appointed at the last Conference to represent it at the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Omaha. He gave a very interesting address of his visit, and the cordial welcome which was accorded him on every hand, and expressed his delight at finding in America that, excepting the tie of human brotherhood, there was no stronger tie than that which the name of the Methodist, and especially the name of Methodist preacher, brought with it. Rev. Dr. Stephenson, the ex-president, here introduced a document from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, with respect to the visit of the Rev. Dr. Waller, who represented the Conference at the gathering of that body, two years ago, in St. Louis, Mo. The ex-president said they had with them a representative of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, who would speak to them about the work of that body. The president said they received Bishop Galloway with full honor, and as representing a church which had been peculiarly faithful to Methodist doctrine and discipline in respect particularly of Christian fellowship. Bishop Galloway was warmly and very heartily greeted as being the first representative from the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to the English Wesleyan Conference. The Bishop held the Conference, as with the spell of a magician, for over an hour, as he illustrated the growth of Methodism in the Southern States. He fairly got hold of the vast audience from the word "go," and held it by his eloquence to the last, with cries of "Go on, go on." I heard one gentleman say, "I have come over two hundred and fifty miles to Conference, and that speech of Bishop Galloway has amply repaid me for my coming." Others declared that they had not heard anything like it since the days of Dr. Robert Newton and W. Morley Punshon. In fact, he became the town talk for days, and has left such an impression on the Conference and people that time can not efface.

Mr. Editor, this is what the English say of our beloved Bishop Galloway, and I want every reader of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE to know how well he acquitted himself as the representative of our beloved Southern Methodism.

Fraternally yours,

R. S. TRIPPETT.

Bradford, England.

Sloth makes all things difficult, but industry all easy; he that riseth late must trot all day, and shall scarcely overtake his business at night; while laziness travels so slowly that poverty soon overtakes him.—Franklin.

The Missionary Debt.

To the Ministers and Members of the Church of the Southern District, Mississippi Conference.
Dear Brethren: Dr. Walter R. Lambuth has appointed me to solicit contributions in the bounds of the Seashore district for the purpose of paying off the missionary debt. The plan for raising this money is by private solicitations and voluntary contributions, so as not in any way to interfere with the regular collections.

It is my purpose, as far as practicable, to visit different places in the district, and personally solicit contributions for this purpose. It will be impossible for me, however, to visit even all the pastoral charges, much less to see anything like all the members of the church in the district. Hence I earnestly ask the assistance of the brethren in this important work. Bro. Mellen, solicitor for the Conference at large, writes me that $500 or $800 will be expected from this district. This is a mere pittance, when we consider the resources we have with which to pay it. There are six thousand Methodists on the Seashore district. These Methodists are handling millions of the Lord's money. The heathens are dying by the thousands, without the gospel. The Lord and the church, through our Mission Board, are calling for this money. The Board is, and has been, for two years handicapped with this debt, which could be paid in thirty days without any great inconvenience to a single member of the church. Will we not rise up as one man and cheerfully, speedily pay this just debt of the church? There are Methodists in this district that could, without the least inconvenience, give $100, or more, each for this purpose. Will they do it? We believe they will. There are others that could, and should, give $50, $25, and smaller sums. Let no one who should give $100, or more, ease his conscience by giving a smaller sum.

There are in the district, local and itinerant, forty-three preachers. We can easily give $100 for this purpose. Who will give $50, or more, toward this $100? Are there not ten Sunday-schools that will give $10.

Brethren, I ask your hearty co-operation in this good work. It is a just debt. Let us feel that it is our debt; that it ought to be paid and must be paid. Let us hesitate no longer about this matter. It is time for earnest, united action. Let the contributions come up speedily from all parts of the district. Let everyone give as the Lord has prospered him, and we feel confident that every dollar required of the Seashore district will be forthcoming at an early date. All moneys for this purpose may be sent to me at Columbia, Miss. I will receipt for the same.

Hoping to receive your sympathy, co-operation and the money, so that Seashore district may present a full report, I am,

Yours fraternally,

M. H. MOORE.

Letter from a Young Lady to a Young Gentleman.

Mr. L—:

Your beautiful card of invitation to the "ball" to be given by the young men of the city "in honor" of Miss J— has been received. Had nothing else come to me respecting that event, I should give the "card" no further thought than to suppose it was intended as a "society" compliment merely; but as there came with it a polite note from your hand inviting me in a more personal way to attend the ball, I have decided to address you these lines.

You will allow me, first of all, to give expression to my surprise that you should seek in this way to draw me away from the path which you know so well I think to be right. You, and all who are intimately acquainted with me, are fully aware that I never attend such places. I must, therefore, be permitted to attribute your course in the matter to a want of thoughtfulness on your part. You know full well that more than ten years ago I joined the church, and although I was then in my young girlhood I fully appreciated the gravity of the step I was taking. I gave my heart and life to my Savior in that hour, and assumed the vows of church membership for all they meant. And, by the grace of God, I have ever since remained steadfast in my purpose to be a consistent Christian. What grieves me most of all now is that one whose friendship I feel so sure of should seek to draw me into an "amusement" that is admitted by all sober, thoughtful people to be so damaging to religious influence and enjoyment.

The dance, as you well know, is condemned by all Christian denominations. Roman Catholic and Protestant Christianity alike condemn it as improper and hurtful to young Christians.

And do you fully realize what you have asked me to do? You request me to "lay aside" my "little scruples" and "attend with you a place where I could not take the Savior with me, and where, if I participated in the dance, I must allow liberties (pardon my plainness) of speech with my person, as I have been informed, that ought to bring, and would bring, the blush of shame to the cheek of any pure-hearted young woman—liberties that would not be tolerated anywhere else. I am perfectly willing to believe that this did not occur to you when you sent me that card.

I have said that the dance is hurtful to Christian influence and enjoyment. Are you not perfectly cognizant of the fact that the young church members who take least interest in the work of the church are the very ones who attend balls and engage in the follies of the dance? Are not you yourself an example of this? I am told by members of the church in which you hold membership that you are never at the Wednesday night prayer meeting, that you do not go to Sunday-school, that you take a seat far back at the preaching hour, and it is said by those who know that you probably spend ten dollars on "society" where you give one to the cause of that Christ whom you profess to love. And yours is but a single case of the many.

And pray tell me, can the dance afford any rational enjoyment to an intelligent man or woman? Is there, can there be, anything about it that is refining or exalting? It seems to me it is more befitting the age of very young childhood than any other period of human life.

Is it complimentary, think you, to a young lady to ask her to dance? It requires no intellect to dance. Monkeys and dogs and elephants can learn it.

In view of all I have written, would I not lower myself, as a Christian, in your estimation were I to accept your invitation and engage with you in the follies of the ball-room?

And now I ask you to consider what is suggested by the following incident: A pastor of my acquaintance was expostulating with an irreligious young man for using his influence to get young lady church members to dance. The young man's final remark was this: "Well, I love to dance with them; but when I go to hunt me a wife I will not go to those with whom I have danced."

It seems to me, in view of this, that any young lady who engages in the dance does, to say the very least of it, leave herself open to unfavorable criticism.

Now, in closing, allow me to say that the young men of the land are almost wholly responsible for all the hurtful customs of social life. If they did not lead, I am sure the young ladies would not. In view of the foregoing objections to the dance, as well as others that I cannot with propriety put before you, I beg to decline your invitation to the ball. Your friend,

ANNA BELL.

K—, Aug.—, 1892.

Jackson, Miss., Sold to the Saloons.

As well as I remember dates, five years ago Hinds county voted "no license." The county saw the good effects of prohibition upon the moral, social and financial interests of the laboring classes, and desired to continue dry; but Jackson, the leading town in the county, and the capital of Mississippi, desired the open saloon, and by her vote fastened the saloon on the county again. Out of the six or seven hundred voters in Jackson at that time (I mean at the second election) there were only about eighty votes polled for prohibition. So you see there were only eighty men in Jackson that were opposed to the open saloon. Let me remark just here, in behalf of the county, that the anti-saloon spirit is so strong and persistent in the county outside of Jackson that a saloon can't exist in the county save in Jackson. For the last three years Jackson has enjoyed the blessings (?) of from three to nine saloons. Jackson, and not the county, is responsible for all the whisky sold in Hinds county during the past three years. If Jackson had not been a whisky town three years ago, we would not have had a saloon in the county during the last three years.

And if Jackson were not still a whisky town, sold under the saloon, there would not be a saloon in the county to-day. Jackson now has nine licensed saloons. And she wants nine, under the new law. Any person desiring to sell liquors must secure a petition to the City Council containing the names of a majority of the registered voters. Under this new law Jackson has nine saloons. A majority of the registered voters in Jackson have it in their power to close every saloon in the place. Why don't they do it? Just because they are in favor of the saloon.

Words fail to describe the inertness of this place on the question of prohibition and the unreserved surrender of her people to the liquor traffic. So I am forced, that you may see our deplorable state, to mention some things that have recently transpired. About two months ago a whisky petition was being circulated. The pastors of the various churches met to see what could be done to circumvent the whisky movement. After talking much and doing but little we decided to have another meeting, and that we would endeavor to get the leading men of the different congregations to meet with me. Several meetings were had; but the presence of these leading members was not secured. Failing to secure co-operation of the "leaders" in a local movement, we decided to call a prohibition mass meeting. To give emphasis to the call we asked the leading citizens of the county to sign the call, which call was to be published in some leading county paper. We received the following reply: "If the Christian people of Jackson will bring on the fight, we will come to your support." We circulated a call in Jackson for a prohibition mass meeting, and, to our grief, not over thirty men, and most of them in West Jackson, signed the call. So the mass meeting failed. And Jackson has entered her protest through her officials and political organs against any and all efforts to abolish the open saloon. There is but one paper in the place opposed to the open saloon. On the other hand, except that one, the press of Jackson is on the side of the saloon. They are ready to make war on prohibition. The city officials are leagued with the saloon, and are openly opposed to prohibition. They say to business men, who are the friends of temperance: "If you oppose the saloon, you will do it at the peril of your business." The druggists and physicians, with two or three exceptions, are on the side of the open saloon; and opposed to closing this prolific source of disease.

Time would fail me to speak of others that are in favor of saloons; but we will speak of the churches. How do they stand? At present on the side of the open saloon. God sends every man on the other side. Our Savior said, "He that is not for me is against me." So every man that is not against the open saloon is for it. If the members of our various churches were against the saloon, we could abolish it, and not have the blind tiger either. Who is responsible for the bondage of Jackson to the saloon? I answer: The Protestant church members of Jackson. Will God hold them guiltless in that great day? Will he require of them the blood of those who are destroyed by the saloon? May the Lord raise him up a people that will "come up to the help of the Lord against the mighty."

REV. L. S. JONES.

Notice.

To the Officers and Members of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Woodville District, Mississippi Conference:

It was with some feeling of regret that I received intelligence of my election to the responsible office of district secretary of Woodville district. I feel the trust to be a sacred one, and my heart would fail me were it not for the assurance of your earnest co-operation, and the confidence we all have in One that is mighty.

Dear sisters, let us join hearts, bands and souls, and move forward to victory. Let us be no more timid. Let us rather plan large things, take a wide outlook, dare, do, and suffer all things. Let me not only bring into our Lord's storehouse gifts of money, our labor and our prayers, but also ourselves, our sons and our daughters; and let our district have a representative in our mission field. Let us have a district meeting at some appointed time and place most convenient for all who can possibly attend. Let each individual feel his duty and privilege to work. In looking over the work laid out for us another year, there is, to my mind, one thing of especial importance: That auxiliary corresponding secretaries be punctual in sending in quarterly reports to Conference secretary (or district secretary) before the first of June, September, December and March, that he may be able to make his report quarterly to the Woman's Board of Missions.

MRS. P. A. JOHNSTON,
Woodville District.

The Saloon Keeper's Rights.

It is well known that liquor licensees are granted on illegal petitions, Town Councils and Boards of Supervisors not being careful to investigate before granting them. To prevent this the W. C. T. U. has frequently employed counsel to examine petitions and contest such as were not in legal form. It seems now that we may no longer do this, or, at least, that we must fight for the right to do so, as the following will show:

Last Spring the W. C. T. U. of Flora, Miss., employed a lawyer to contest the petitions of three men of their town and succeeded in defeating them. One of the men has brought suit for $10,000 against six of the leading members of the W. C. T. U. and three gentlemen on the ground of trespass and conspiracy, urging that their business was interfered with. It is understood that the man who is bringing this suit is supported by the Mississippi Liquor Dealers' Association. The case will come up at the November term of the circuit court. The question involved is important, not only to the ladies of Flora, but to all temperance people, and it is to be hoped that the defendants will have the moral and, if necessary, the financial, support of all good people.

E. S.

Crutley and religion don't fit together. How can a man love God who mistreats a helpless dumb brute?—Selected.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON.—Aug. 28, 1892.

By Rev. W. H. LAPELLE, D. D.

The First Christian Martyr.

Acts vii, 54-60; viii, 1-4.

TIME.—A. D. 37.
GOLDEN TEXT.—"He kneeled down and cried with a loud voice, Lord, lay not this sin to their charge." (Verse 60.)

Among the converts on the day of Pentecost, and since that time to the date of our lesson, were many Grecian Jews, called simply "Grecians" in the New Testament. By reference to chapter vi, 1, it will be seen that these Grecian Jews complained that in the ministrations of food discrimination was made against the widows among them. The apostles, finding that they could not attend to such details without neglecting more important matters, proposed that seven suitable men be chosen to attend to this business. This action was taken at once, and among the seven chosen was Stephen, described by St. Luke as "a man full of faith and of the Holy Ghost."

Stephen, we are told (chap. vi, 8), "did great wonders and miracles among the people," and, when opposed in argument by unbelievers, they were "not able to withstand the wisdom and the spirit by which he spoke." If his opponents could not answer his arguments, they could "strut up the people against him." This they did, and finally had him arrested and carried for trial before the Sanhedrim on a charge of blasphemy.

Stephen, in his defense before the Sanhedrim, recited portions of the history of the Jews, beginning with the call of Abraham and continuing to the building of the temple by Solomon. The purpose of this recital was twofold: to declare his patriotism as a Jew, and to show that, all along their history, they had resisted the purpose of God in the call of Abraham and of Moses. Finally Stephen accused the Sanhedrim of resisting the Holy Ghost, as their fathers had done before them. At this point our lesson opens.

Ver. 54. They were angry to the point of madness, and expressed their rage. Their action indicated that they were conscience-stricken, but not penitent.

Ver. 55, 56. An actual revelation was granted to Stephen, not for his sake simply, but for the encouragement of all who might be called upon to suffer martyrdom. He saw Jesus; he saw him at the place of power and authority, the "right hand of God." After that Christians should endure, "as seeing him who is invisible."

Ver. 57. They chose to regard this as blasphemy, and forthwith proceeded to execute the law against such. To stop the ears was to declare that the language was too blasphemous to be listened to by holy men, which they pretended to be.

Ver. 58. Stoning was the penalty for blasphemy. (See Lev. xxiv, 14-16.) The witnesses were required by the law. (See Deut. xiv, 7.) This is the first mention of Saul, who afterward became Paul the Apostle.

Ver. 59, 60. After the witnesses had thrown each a stone, the multitude joined in the execution. Stephen died, as all Christians should die, committing his spirit to Jesus, his enemies to the mercy of God. "Fell on sleep." The man does not die; only his body can do that.

Ver. 1, Chap. viii. Saul probably came to the front at this time as a vigorous enemy of heretics, as the Christians were then regarded. The Revised Version reads, "And there arose on that day a great persecution."

Ver. 2. Not buried, as Ananias was as a simple duty, but with affection and genuine sorrow.

Ver. 3. Saul was earnest, energetic, unrelenting. He was conscientious; but his conscience had been trained to a bad school. We are not to understand that he entered every house, but simply those used as places of worship by the Christians.

Ver. 4. God makes "the wrath of man to praise him." There was no surer way of spreading the gospel than by scattering its adherents. At once they began to "witness" for Christ. We shall hear of them in Samaria and at Antioch. But for this persecution they might have "tarried at Jerusalem" too long, forgetting the regions beyond. Some one has well said, "The blood of the martyrs is the seed of the church."

"Tom Stirling" Answers.

You question, "Did you ever preach from this text, 'Lie not one to another'?" That was my text about three months ago. And the last time I addressed my people I took much the same sort of a text, and the subject was much the same. I intimated that, perhaps, all of us needed to be kept up a little on this subject; that we must ever be watchful here, as a man could lie with a look, with the slightest movement of the hand, a shrug of the shoulders. And I believe I preach to as truthful people as I ever did.

Yours, etc., TOM STIRLING.

In Memoriam.

CARRIE WHITTAKER WALL.

From the home of her parents, Dr. and Mrs. W. D. Wall, in Jackson, La., on Monday, July 25, 1892, at one o'clock, the gentle spirit of Miss Carrie Whittaker Wall left the "encumbering clay" to enter into the rest of God.

"This star by star declines,
Till all are passed away,
As morning light and higher shines,
To pure and perfect day.
Nor sink these stars in empty night,
But hide themselves in heaven's own light."

Seldom has a bright, young life left such a deep impress upon a whole community. A pang touched every heart and a pall of sadness hung over each face as the sad news passed from one to another—"Miss Carrie is dead." Bright, beautiful, dutiful, it was not strange that she dwelt a queen in the parental home. Kindly, social, sympathetic, it was not strange, the spell she wove around friends and acquaintances, and so it was pre-eminently true, "None knew her but to love her." The large concourse assembled to witness the last sad rites and the garlands of sweet flowers that covered the new-made mound beneath which her mortal remains were laid to rest were but faint attestations of the grief filling all hearts.

Miss Carrie Whittaker was the daughter of Dr. Williams D. Wall and Annie Whittaker. She was born in Wilkinson county, Miss., on Jan. 3, 1873. At her death she was, therefore, entering her twentieth year.

From her infancy her gentle nature drew forth all the loving affection of her devoted parents and kindred. Early dedicated to God in baptism, she grew up in "the garden of the Lord," "a child of the covenant." In her ninth year, by a public profession of faith, she set her own seal to the covenant engagement made by her pious parents. Her early years were spent in Wilkinson county, Miss.; but in 1886, with her parents, she removed to Clinton, La., and entered (as a pupil) the Silliman Institute. Subsequently removing to Jackson, La., her literary studies were completed in Peliciana Institute, dividing the "first honor" with one of her class-mates in 1891.

Her religious training was received in the family circle and in the M. E. Church, South, of which her parents have long been earnest and faithful members, and of which she was a communicant. In devoted and constant attendance upon the ordinances of God's house and in Sabbath-school work she showed "her faith by her works."

Our acquaintance with her dates many years back, when, as a child, she began her residence in Clinton, La. That joyous, fresh, loving young life was only enlarged and intensified in her blooming womanhood. To say that she was a favorite with all would but faintly express the hold she had upon all who knew her. Cheerful and bright as were her girlish and youthful days, they were but earnest of the brightness and beauty that cast a halo around her dying hours. It was our precious privilege, with other friends, to stand around her dying couch and witness the triumphing of her faith. Oft have we witnessed the setting sun calling its halo of glory and beauty over the western skies, irradiating the whole heavens, and we wondered and adored the hand that so glorified the heavens; but what was that beauty to the glory casting its halo around the setting sun of this "child of grace"!

Perfectly conscious of the approaching end, she made her preparations with the calmness that only comes from a true faith in God. On Sunday morning she said: "Mother, God has been so good to me. He hears our prayers. He sends sufferings for some good. I leave it all with him." Again, she said, "Throw open the windows wide," and, gazing out, she exclaimed, "Beautiful world!" Asked by her loving father, "Do you see anything?" she said: "How beautiful I've passed only half-way. Yonder is the city." Asked again, "Is all bright before you, daughter?" she said: "Nothing in the way. I have been raised to be a Christian." In low tones she was heard to say, "I will fear no evil, for thou art with me." To each of her family, with gentle, tender words, she bade farewell, imprinting a kiss of affection upon their lips. Summoning her friends and class-mates, tender farewells were spoken to each. To her kind physician and other friends, who had ministered to her sickness, she spoke precious words of appreciation of all their kindnesses, and loving messages were left for those who were absent of her kindred and loved ones. Asked by a minister present if she was trusting Jesus, she said, "All to him." Just before the end came, and but a few moments before the spirit departed, she lifted her hand and pointed heavenward. Thus beautifully she left the earthly home "to enter the heavenly."

"Beautiful life! Beautiful death!" "Absent from the body, present in the Lord!" One desire of her heart God did not answer. "Oh! that I might live long enough to see Baby!" (Her little sister who was hastening home and arrived a few moments too late.)

But he will; and in his own good time they will see each other.

How mysterious are God's providences! That one so young, so capable of work for the Master, so potent for good, so beloved by all, should be taken away upon the very threshold of life, who can explain? "God's ways are not as our ways." As her good pastor said, "here was a completed life." She fulfilled the purpose and plan of God, and we shall see hereafter that "her work was done." Samson's last day's work was his best for God and Israel, and so it shall appear in the great day. We shall see that, what to our eyes and our hopes was the end, was in God's purpose but the beginning of her work for Jesus, and she, being dead, may yet continue to speak.

"How blest the righteous when he dies:
When sinks the weary soul to rest,
How mildly beam the closing eyes:
How gently heaves the expiring breast!"

"Life's duty done, as sinks the clay,
Light from its load the spirit flies:
While heaven and earth combine to say,
"How blest the righteous when he dies!"

For
"It is not death to die—
To leave this weary road,
And, 'mid the brotherhood on high,
To be at home with God."
"It is not death to close
The eye long dimmed with tears,
And wake, in glorious repose
To spend eternal years."
"It is not death to linger
A while this sinful dust,
And rise, on strong exulting wing,
To live among the just."
"Jesus, thou Prince of life,
Thy chosen can and die!
Like thee, they conquer in the strife,
To reign with thee on high."

To the Auxiliaries of the Mississippi Conference Woman's Missionary Society.

Dear Sisters: Another year's work in the missionary cause now lies before us. Let us join hand and heart in the determination that this year's work shall, by the grace of God, be the most glorious in the history of our Conference society, as each year should indeed be an advance upon the preceding in every good cause. God has blessed and will continue to bless our efforts, and however small and unimportant our work may seem in our own eyes, nothing is lost sight of by his all-seeing eye, and not even the least effort on our part will go without reward, both in this life and that which is to come.

Rally to your district secretary. It is upon her devolves the responsibility of the work of the district, and without your co-operation her hands will be tied. Encourage her by responding hopefully to her communications of inquiry in regard to the work in your church, whether you have much to report or not. Let her feel that there is a spark of missionary life in your community, and this may inspire her to fan the dying embers, and she may be able to bring forth more life. See to it that she hears from some member of the society once a quarter—the corresponding secretary. If possible, if not, some member will surely feel enough interested in the cause to write about it once in every three months. Secure a visitation from her, if possible, sometime during the year; and if she calls a district meeting, respond by having some member of the society or of the church attend, and encourage her by your presence, even if you can do no more.

Read the Minutes of the last annual meeting of the Conference society. If you fail to receive them, do not waste time in blaming the corresponding secretary for not sending you any, but sit down and write to her to send them, and I feel sure she will not fail to do so. She has her hands full with the duties of her responsible office, and it is possible for her to overlook some in sending out the Minutes; but that should not deter you from letting her know you want them. It is important that every auxiliary keep posted as to proceedings and doings of the Conference society. Without this knowledge the auxiliary is but poorly armed for its local work.

Send the Conference corresponding secretary, as well as your district secretary, your quarterly reports regularly. It is impossible for her to fulfill the duties of her office unless you keep her posted as to what you are doing, or as to whether you are doing anything at all, or not. If it be possible, have your auxiliary represented at the annual meetings, both district and Conference. These meetings are helpful, both to the representative and to the auxiliary represented, on account of the exchange of views and experiences in the work.

As your newly-elected president, I appeal to you, each and all, for your sympathy, your co-operation, and your prayers. To the district secretaries I make an especial appeal for a forward movement in the work for the coming year. Let each one resolve not simply that your district shall excel all others in work represented at the annual meeting, but that your report on that occasion shall represent your very best efforts. Let the work accomplished by yourself and others in the past be an inspiration to renewed effort for the future. The district secretary's office is the most important in the work, since upon her devolves the responsibility of holding up the corners. If her work lags, there is sure to be a leakage.

To the pastors we all turn for sympathy and co-operation. Brethren, lend us all the aid in your power. Counsel us, pray for us. Let us feel that our work has your interest and your approbation. Unless such is the case, our efforts will be almost in vain.

May the Lord continue his blessings on our efforts, and cause the seed we may sow during this year to produce abundant fruit! Yours faithfully, ADDIE V. MARSHALL.
Brookhaven, Miss.

BOOKS AND PERIODICALS

All books received will be acknowledged in this column. A fuller notice will depend upon the interests of our readers.

BOOKS.

PLAIN PEOPLE. By Edward P. Branch. Publishers: Printing Company, New York. This is a very pleasant story of the Western Reserve, and told in a very pleasant style. Our boys and girls will find it particularly interesting and teaching some valuable lessons.

A CLUSTER OF PEARLS for Christian Endeavor Workers. Compiled and arranged by W. A. Newman Dorland, M. D. 12 mo. cloth, 75 cents. Boston: D. Lothrop Company.

As the noble army of Christian Endeavorers constantly increases at a tremendous rate, there is an increasing demand for a literature which shall be applicable and useful.

It is to meet the needs of many busy members who have not always time to look up beautiful and appropriate selections, that this little volume has been compiled. It contains Pearls of Prayer, Humility, Love, Faith, Thanksgiving, etc., and consists of choice extracts from the works of many authors, chiefly in prose.

PERIODICALS.

The following August periodicals have been received:

—THE PREACHER'S MAGAZINE. W. B. Ketcham, New York. Price, $1.60.
—AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST. Orange Judd Company, New York. Price, $1.50.

—THE CALIFORNIA ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE. Californian Publishing Company, San Francisco. Price, $3.

—WIDE AWAKE. D. Lothrop Company, Boston. Price, $2.40.

—HERALD OF HEALTH. Dr. M. L. Holbrook, New York. Price, $1.

—OUR LITTLE ONES. Russell Publishing Company, Boston. Price, $1.50.

—THE FORUM. Forum Publishing Company, New York. Price, $5.

—THE TREASURY. E. B. Treat, New York. Price, $2.50; clergymen, $3.

—THE REVIEW OF REVIEWS, New York. Price, $2.50.

—THE QUIVER. Cassell Publishing Company, New York. Price, $1.50.

—CASSELL'S FAMILY MAGAZINE. Cassell Publishing Company, New York. Price, $1.50.

—MAGAZINE OF ART. Cassell Publishing Company, New York. Price, $3.50.

—MISSIONARY REVIEW. Funk & Wagnalls, New York. Price, $2.

—THE CHAUTAUQUAN. T. L. Flood, Meadville, Pa. Price, $2.

—THE GOSPEL IN ALL LANDS. Hunt & Eaton, New York. Price, $1.

—CENTURY MAGAZINE. Century Company, New York. Price, $4.

—MISSIONARY REPORTER. Barbee & Smith, Nashville, Tenn. Price, 60 cents.

—POPULAR SCIENCE. D. Appleton & Co., New York. Price, $5.

—ST. NICHOLAS. Century Company, New York. Price, $3.

Hall's Hair Renewer is pronounced the best preparation made for thickening the growth of the hair, and restoring that which is gray to its original color.

If the arrow of prayer is to enter heaven, we must draw it from a soul full before. Prayer is nothing without earnestness and resolution.—Neveus.

For Malaria, Liver Trouble, or Indigestion, use BROWN'S IRON BITTERS

Never quit your hopes. Hope is often better than enjoyment. It is certainly a very pleasant and healthy passion. A hopeless person is deserted by himself, and he who forsakes himself is soon forsaken by his friends and fortune.—Berkeley.

I Had Colic

Or swellings in the neck since I was 10 years old; and now 52. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and the swelling has entirely disappeared. It has been very troublesome. When I began I was feeling so discouraged with the colic and rheumatism, I would as soon be dead as alive. Whenever I caught cold I could not walk two blocks without falling. Now I am free from it all and I received a letter from Mrs. Jennie Ilgelew, now of Fremont, Mich., asking if my testimonial in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla was true. I replied it was, and sent particulars. I have a letter thanking me for recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla.

and stating that she also has been cured.—Mrs. ANN SUTHERLAND, Kalamazoo, Mich.

HOOD'S PILLS act easily, yet promptly and efficiently on the liver and bowels. 25c.

PATENTS THOMAS P. SIMPSON, Washington, D. C. No. 417
For Inventor's Guide. Write for Inventor's Guide.

LONG LIFE

Is possible only when the blood is pure and vigorous. To expel Scrofula and other poisons from the circulation, the superior medicine is AYER'S Sarsaparilla. It imparts permanent strength and efficiency to every organ of the body. Restoration to perfect health and strength.

Results from Using

AYER'S Sarsaparilla. Mary Schubert, Kansas City, Mo., writes:

"I am convinced that after having been sick a whole year from liver complaint, Ayer's Sarsaparilla saved my life. The best physicians being unable to help me, and having tried three other proprietary medicines without benefit, I at last took Ayer's Sarsaparilla. The result was a complete cure. Since then I have recommended this medicine to others, and always with success."

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Cures others, will cure you

Dr. Wm. H. Holcombe

AND

Dr. Gayle Aiken,

HOMEOPATHISTS,

No. 286 St. Charles Ave., NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Cases treated by correspondence.

One of Our Elegant

For SOLID GOLD WATCHES.

Stem-wind and Set.

Send for catalogue of designs.

P. M. HILL, Jeweler,

434 Dryades St., New Orleans, La.

As We Expect

to move the immense and handsome stock of

PICTURES.

Wall Paper, Matting, Rugs,

ETC.,

Purchased from W. E. FERRELL, and now occupying 29 Camp and 116 Common Sts., into our present quarters, 116 Camp St., by the first of September, it will be necessary for us between now and then to run it down to the lowest possible limit; and those wishing to get bargains will do well to profit by the hint we are giving them.

Heath, Schwartz & Co., Lim.,

29 Camp, 16 Common and 116 Camp.

Williams' Hall—Millsaps College.

Mrs. Emma Mayes Cook has leased the

WILLIAMS' HALL,

located on Millsaps College campus. The Hall can accommodate about 25 boarders. Every effort will be made to furnish a Christian home to the students. Several have already engaged board. Mrs. Cook would be glad to correspond at once with parents who desire to send their sons to a first-class college. At present address Mrs. Cook at Hazlehurst, Miss., and after July 15, 1892, Jackson, Miss., care of Millsaps College.

—OUR LITTLE ONES. Russell Publishing Company, Boston. Price, $1.50.

—THE FORUM. Forum Publishing Company, New York. Price, $5.

—THE TREASURY. E. B. Treat, New York. Price, $2.50; clergymen, $3.

—THE REVIEW OF REVIEWS, New York. Price, $2.50.

—THE QUIVER. Cassell Publishing Company, New York. Price, $1.50.

—CASSELL'S FAMILY MAGAZINE. Cassell Publishing Company, New York. Price, $1.50.

—MAGAZINE OF ART. Cassell Publishing Company, New York. Price, $3.50.

—MISSIONARY REVIEW. Funk & Wagnalls, New York. Price, $2.

—THE CHAUTAUQUAN. T. L. Flood, Meadville, Pa. Price, $2.

—THE GOSPEL IN ALL LANDS. Hunt & Eaton, New York. Price, $1.

—CENTURY MAGAZINE. Century Company, New York. Price, $4.

—MISSIONARY REPORTER. Barbee & Smith, Nashville, Tenn. Price, 60 cents.

—POPULAR SCIENCE. D. Appleton & Co., New York. Price, $5.

—ST. NICHOLAS. Century Company, New York. Price, $3.

Hall's Hair Renewer is pronounced the best preparation made for thickening the growth of the hair, and restoring that which is gray to its original color.

If the arrow of prayer is to enter heaven, we must draw it from a soul full before. Prayer is nothing without earnestness and resolution.—Neveus.

For Malaria, Liver Trouble, or Indigestion, use BROWN'S IRON BITTERS

Never quit your hopes. Hope is often better than enjoyment. It is certainly a very pleasant and healthy passion. A hopeless person is deserted by himself, and he who forsakes himself is soon forsaken by his friends and fortune.—Berkeley.

I Had Colic

Or swellings in the neck since I was 10 years old; and now 52. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and the swelling has entirely disappeared. It has been very troublesome. When I began I was feeling so discouraged with the colic and rheumatism, I would as soon be dead as alive. Whenever I caught cold I could not walk two blocks without falling. Now I am free from it all and I received a letter from Mrs. Jennie Ilgelew, now of Fremont, Mich., asking if my testimonial in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla was true. I replied it was, and sent particulars. I have a letter thanking me for recommending Hood's Sarsaparilla.

and stating that she also has been cured.—Mrs. ANN SUTHERLAND, Kalamazoo, Mich.

HOOD'S PILLS act easily, yet promptly and efficiently on the liver and bowels. 25c.

PATENTS THOMAS P. SIMPSON, Washington, D. C. No. 417
For Inventor's Guide. Write for Inventor's Guide.

Queen and Crescent Route.

94 MILES the SHORTEST.

New Orleans to Cincinnati

NEW VESTIBULED TRAIN.

The Queen and Crescent Special leaves New Orleans every afternoon at 3:40 P. M. via Birmingham and Chattanooga, for Cincinnati, Vestibuled and Gas Lighted. Through to New York and Washington without change. No extra charge for this superior train service.

TIME TO CINCINNATI, 26 HOURS.
TIME TO NEW YORK, 47 HOURS.

The Queen and Crescent, and East Tennessee Virginia and Georgia are now running through Pullman Vestibuled Buffet Sleeping-Cars from New Orleans to New York without change. Time to New York via Washington only 48 hours.

Ticket Office: 34 St. Charles street.

Depot: Corner Press street and Levee.

R. H. GARRETT, Div. Pass. Agent, New Orleans, La.

D. MILLER, Traffic Manager.

D. G. EDWARDS, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent, Cincinnati.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL R. R.

GREAT FAST MAIL ROUTE.

Six-Daily Trains between NEW ORLEANS and CHICAGO.

The Only Line running Pullman Buffet Sleepers and Through Cars for All Classes to

CHICAGO,

Connecting with all Buffet and Dining Car Lines East, and the ONLY LINE Running Through Cars for All Classes

To St. Louis Without Change.

The Only Line running a Double Daily Train Service to St. Louis, with Through Sleepers to Memphis, without change.

The shortest and Best Line from NEW ORLEANS to Vicksburg.

The Shortest and Most Direct Route to MEMPHIS.

The Only Line Running Pullman Sleeping Cars Through Without Change

to SPRINGFIELD, MO., PORT SCOTT and KANSAS CITY.

ONLY ONE CHANGE OF CARS FROM NEW ORLEANS TO

Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York

The Great Steel Bridge, spanning the Ohio River at Cairo, completed, and all trains (freight and passenger) now running regularly over it, thus avoiding the delays and annoyances incident to transfer by ferry boat.

Ticket Office: Corner St. Charles and Common Streets.

J. W. COLEMAN, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agt., N. O.

A. H. HANSON, G. P. A., Chicago.

Mississippi Valley Route.

L. N. O. and T. R'y.

Kansas City and Memphis

Leaves Arrives

Fast Train..... 8:30 p.m. 8:10 a.m.

Vicksburg & Natchez Ex..... 8:10 a.m. 8:35 p.m.

Bat. Rouge "Coast Train"..... 8:45 p.m. 10:00 a.m.

The Only Line running Solid Trains between New Orleans, Memphis and Vicksburg, with Modern Pullman Buffet Sleeping Cars.

The direct and favorite route to Kansas City, Omaha, Denver, St. Louis, Chicago, Louisville and Cincinnati.

The shortest time to Hot Springs and points in Arkansas and North Louisiana.

Commutation Tickets, Mileage Books, Party Rates and Week End Excursions.

Summer Excursion Tickets on Sale in season.

Ticket Office, 61 St. Charles Street.

L. F. DAY, Traffic Manager.

R. F. REYNOLDS, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agt.

The Texas and Pacific R'y.

EL PASO ROUTE.

The direct line to Shreveport and New Orleans, to Texas, Kansas, Memphis, St. Louis, the North and East and to all points in Texas, Old and New Mexico, Arizona, Colorado and California.

The Favorite Line via Sacramento to Oregon and Washington.

Only line offering Choice of Routes to points in the Southeast via Texas, Kansas, Shreveport and New Orleans.

Take "THE ST. LOUIS LIMITED"

Between Fort Worth and St. Louis

The fastest Train between Texas and the North and East.

DOUBLE DAILY line of Pullman Palace Sleeping Cars through to St. Louis via the

IRON MOUNTAIN ROUTE.

Through Sleeping Cars between New Orleans and Denver and St. Louis and San Francisco.

For rates, tickets and all information apply to or address any of the ticket agents or

GASTON MESLER, Gen'l Pass. & Tkt. Agt.

C. P. FEGAN, Trav. Pass. Agt.

JNO. A. GRANT, 3d Vice-Pres., Dallas, Texas.

Watches, Diamonds,

FINE JEWELRY

Silver and Silver-Plated Ware,

SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES

Send for Catalogue.

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO.

(Established 1817)

119 CANAL ST., New Orleans, La.

W. W. CARRE,

LUMBER MERCHANT

Christian Advocate.

Rev. D. L. MITCHELL, Publisher.
Office: 112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
Subscription: $1 PER ANNUM.
Ministers and others, 50 Cents.

All Preachers of the M. E. Church, South, are authorized Agents, to whom payments may be made.

Rev. C. W. Carter, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. Lewis, Asst. Editor.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

REV. J. M. BEARD, D. D.

REV. S. A. KERNER.

REV. J. A. AUBREY, D. D.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

REV. W. C. BLACK, D. D.

REV. W. R. LEWIS.

REV. R. J. JONES.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

REV. W. T. J. SULLIVAN, D. D.

REV. J. D. CAMERON, D. D.

REV. T. C. WIER, M. D.

Thursday, August 25, 1892.

A Revival to Follow a Revival.

The revival season, so called, is rapidly drawing to a close. From all over the field gratifying reports come of souls converted, backsliders reclaimed and members added unto the church. These reports fill us with joy. They bring with them, also, a feeling of anxiety, because of increased responsibility. A few things are worthy of consideration; and what better time than now? We need a revival to follow up these revivals. It is not sufficient that a babe be born into the world; it must be nursed, nurtured, and aided in countless ways. So with the spiritual babe in Christ. If mothers paid no more attention to their new-born babes than many of our churches, unintentionally, do to theirs, the human race would soon become extinct.

We need, first of all, a revival of some of the means of grace. Every member of the church should be made to feel his and her individual obligation to attend upon every church service when possible, not when convenient. We need a revival of the universal custom of monthly sacramental service in all stations, and an, at least, quarterly administration on circuits. Some churches go twelve months without the sacrament. We need a revival of the class meeting. Here is where Christian meets Christian, and builds each other up in the Lord; strengthens and encourages. Then of the quarterly fasts. Ah! relegated to the shades. Yet our Lord, speaking to his disciples on one occasion, said, "This kind goeth not forth but by fasting and prayer."

Coming to the home circle, we need, most of all, a revival of the family altar. A census of the church would reveal an alarming state of affairs here. We heard more than one preacher state in District Conference, this year, that he did not know how many family altars were in his charge.

Last, but by no means least, we need a revival of doctrinal preaching. A presentation of the great cardinal doctrines of the Bible and the peculiar tenets of Methodism. Why are we Methodists? Many a church member does not know. We do not mean presenting these doctrines controversially, for catholicity is perfectly consistent with strong denominationalism. We are sadly lacking here; and this lack is not indicative of broad-mindedness and liberality, but of almost criminal negligence. It is not so meant; but a thoughtful consideration of the subject will convince anyone. Last year there were between five and ten thousand additions to the Methodist Church in Mississippi and Louisiana. We have no reason to expect a decrease this year. If we begin with the new converts, the reformation will be easy, and it would rejoice us to learn that every pastor has thought on these things, and tried the experiment.

It might be well for the pews to pray: "Lord, set fire to the preacher." It might also be well for the pulpits to pray: "Lord, shake the people over the mouth of the pit."

The Baptist Convention.

The forty-fifth Convention of the Baptists of our State was held in the Valence Street Church of this city, last week. There were present about one hundred and twenty-five delegates from the various churches of the denomination throughout the State, together with several visiting delegates from neighboring Conventions. There were also in attendance several connectional officers, among whom were Dr. Sampey, of the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary at Louisville, Ky.; Dr. Bell, of Atlanta, Ga., assistant-secretary of the Foreign Mission Board, and Dr. Tichenor, of Texas, the secretary of the Board of Home Missions.

The report of the Executive Board, submitted by Dr. Barrett, the secretary of the State Board of Missions, gave a very comprehensive view of the work performed by the denomination during the past year. The report also called attention to the great need for advancement on all lines of Christian work for the ensuing twelve months. An address was delivered by the representative of the seminary at Louisville, Dr. Sampey, tracing the history of the institution from its inauguration, and showing the character of the work that was being done there for the training of the future ministry of the church. In response to an appeal for money to aid poor students in securing the advantages of the seminary, a good sum was quickly subscribed. This collection seemed, to the scribe, to give quite a Methodist ring to the meeting. The idea of careful ministerial training is more and more taking hold upon the minds of all the churches.

A marked feature of the Convention was the Centennial Celebration, to which the Saturday afternoon and evening sessions were devoted. Several excellent addresses were made, showing the relation of Baptists to the modern mission movement, and the contributions they had made during the past hundred years to the evangelization of the world. The temper of the addresses showed no desire, however, to rest content with past achievements, but to press onward to new and more glorious conquests.

The majority of our city pulpits of all evangelical denominations were filled with satisfaction and edification by Baptist brethren last Sunday.

Bro. Merrill, of Valence Street, is to be congratulated on the admirable way in which he has entertained the Convention, the first that has ever been held in this city. This gathering will, no doubt, mark an epoch in the church-life and activity of our Baptist friends. X.

Millaps College.

Our main building is completed, and is a thing of beauty. Occupying a commanding position, it is a conspicuous object to those entering or leaving Jackson on the different railroad lines. The favorable opinion caused by the exterior view is sustained by an examination of the interior. The structure is commodious and finely adapted to its purposes; from the chemical laboratory room in the basement to the Y. M. C. A. room and society halls in the fourth story, one is impressed with the thorough utilization of space and the convenient arrangement of the rooms.

The "Students' Homes" are ready for the reception of boarders, and Major Norman and his pleasant family, in "Asbury Hall," and Mrs. Cook, in "Williams Hall," are "at home," and busily preparing for the opening session. Young men contemplating entering the college should correspond with them about board.

President Murrah's new residence is being erected, and will be an ornament to the campus, while several cottages are going up, intended for students who may wish to occupy them. Near the campus are several residences completed, and others under contract, in which our boys will be boarded, while the whole of North Jackson is in easy access to the college, and will be open to the reception of the boys. Thus our students will find accommodation to suit the taste and financial ability of all.

If Millaps College does not prove a blessing to Mississippi boys, whether rich or poor, it will disappoint the expectations of those who have labored and prayed for its establishment.

Dr. Murrah and his co-laborers in the faculty are making preparation for the beginning of their work of instruction. The faculty has been carefully selected, and it is confidently believed that the effort of the Board of Trustees to secure men who will give standing to the institution has been successful. The professors are all young men, teachers by profession, thoroughly equipped by post-graduate study, and, without exception, men of experience in teaching. The moral qualifications of our professors are not less excellent than their intellectual attainments, and we intend to surround the student-body of Millaps College with the best moral and literary influences.

The best college is the one that, with excellence of scholastic training, will perpetuate the influences of a religious home, and just in proportion as Millaps College does this will it meet the earnest wishes and realize the confident expectations of its friends.

Indications point to a gratifying opening on September 29, at which time the formal opening will be celebrated by an inaugural address from Dr. Murrah and speeches from prominent men of Jackson or other parts of the State, and later in the Fall a marble slab commemorative of the founding of the college will be placed in position with appropriate ceremonies.

Millaps College, as the recipient of the benefactions of our people, has proved a blessing to the church in inspiring new zeal and quickening every impulse to good work; but the real life of the institution will begin, and its noblest returns be made, when its halls and lecture-rooms are thronged with the youth of our State. A. F. WATKINS.

Ministerial Education.

In response to a call from the president, the Ministerial Educational Association of the Mississippi Conference held its semi-annual session in Jackson, Miss., Aug. 9. A careful examination into the workings of the association developed to those present a very satisfactory condition of affairs.

After aiding three young ministers during the past year at Centenary College, we found a balance of eighty-three dollars to our credit in the treasury. In addition to this, we find, by an examination of our roll of subscribers, that there are due on notes which we count upon with all certainty three hundred and sixty-eight dollars. This much, and only one payment calculated for even where several payments are past due. Now, brethren, don't disappoint us. Let every man who has given a note respond with one payment, at least, and not disappoint our hopes or shake our faith in your promises. Remember that while this work is committed to a few, that we must have the help of the many. While we cheerfully give our time and thought to this most important work, we must rely upon others for help, else all our work will end in simply planning. None of us can carry a very large share of the burden, yet all may make it light and still accomplish the end for which we strive.

We had before us the applications of six young men—three of whom were received and will enter college this fall. There being a clause in our constitution requiring the applicant to be a "local preacher, and be recommended by his Quarterly Conference," we were compelled to defer the cases of those who did not meet these requirements until our regular meeting in December.

Some rather noticeable developments came out as we examined the letters of recommendation as they were forwarded to us. One brother wrote, giving the names of several brethren who had advised him to apply for aid. Remarkable to say, none of those who advised have ever given a note or contribution to this cause, and yet some are receiving salaries above that of many who count it a privilege to help in the work. Brethren, we appreciate your confidence and the honor conferred, but would like a more practical demonstration. Come now and help us to prepare these young men to take up your work, and in after years fill these good places which now are yours.

Another fact developed was that three young men applied from one district, and there is not a single note held by us from a layman in the same district. Yet it is one of the strongest in our Conference, and its city appointments demand our best talent. Think of this, my brethren, and give us your aid in educating your future pastors. We need the aid; you demand the men; your children will reap the benefits. A motion unanimously passed the association that all applicants shall take the regular A. B. course of the institution which they attend.

By order of the association.
Most truly,

T. B. HOLLOMAN,
President of Association.

Canton, Miss.

The Sabbath.—No. 6.

The various violations of the Fourth Commandment are telling seriously and sadly on the church-going habits of the people. This is becoming conspicuously obvious in various parts of our widespread country.

Some statistics recently gathered in New England show that only sixteen per cent. of the people attend divine service, and eighty-four per cent. do not. Their ministers are, for the most part, educated men. But people do not care to hear them. Then to "draw" they have resorted to many sensational devices, but in vain. The "world" has resorted to more and more intense sensations. Pic-nics, regattas, ball-plays, rifle-teams, rowing-matches and horse-races, all these we have in New Orleans on the Sabbath days; and on Sabbath nights operas, theatres, shows, billiards, ten-pins, and various gambling hells. These attractions are spiced and heightened by brilliant lights, gay and picturesque costumes and bands of music. Eastern cities, perhaps, have not just such attractions; but they have their attractions, and draw away people from the house of God.

President Washington, in his farewell address, says no people can long preserve their laws and liberties without morality, and morality can not continue without the observance of the forms of religion, and these can not long be maintained without the Sabbath and the public recognition of the being and authority of God.

A Christian is appalled at the godlessness of men, and trembles in view of their impending doom. The patriot is alarmed for the preservation and perpetuity of our institutions. All history proclaims with one voice that private and public virtue are essential to the existence and maintenance of civil and social order. Our town and city population is increasing at a tremendous and alarming ratio. "Why alarming?" Because in towns and cities are the places of sensational amusements, the multitudes of saloons, the gambling-houses and brothels. Now, if for any cause people are kept away from God's house, if they lose the instructions of God's Word, the restraining and elevating influence of divine worship, how soon they will lapse into practical atheism and immoralities dangerous to individual, domestic, social and national well-being!

I suppose women are, in the main, better than men; but we don't think this admission will account for the wide difference in morals which statistics reveal. There are twenty men who commit murder to one woman, and there are seventeen felonies committed by men to one that is committed by women. But two-thirds of the church communicants, more than two-thirds of congregations, are women, and more than one-half the Sunday-school teachers are females. Now, I must think that the superior morality of the woman must be, in a large degree, accounted for by the fact that they are so much more under the influence of Christian teaching and truth. But I am grieved to hear that it is coming to be the fashion for young ladies in "society" to remain at home on Sabbath evenings to receive and entertain their young male friends, whom, it is alleged, have no other evening when they can come. Women owe almost everything desirable in their lot to the gospel. In all unchristianized lands they are little better than slaves—at best, toys. Gratitude to God, and the unmarred preservation of their present honorable and enviable status, should make them "content earnestly" for all the cardinal elements of the religion that has lifted them up and made them but a little lower than the angels.

But why is it that young men have no leisure for social visits but the Sabbath evening? "They are too busy; the imperative demands of business consume all the secular days and much of the nights." Is this exhausting rush and increasing hurry wise, or really necessary? We think not. From the Bible standpoint, it is not true that the chief end of man is to make money and enjoy it as long as he can. Earth was not created just for a place to accumulate, nor life only an opportunity to gather gold. Life was given for nobler uses. Franklin, the New-England philosopher, says, "Time is money." God says, "Now (or time) is salvation." From this divinely illuminated standpoint, how invaluable and precious the Sabbath rest, with its blessed opportunities to make our peace, calling and election sure! Let us cling to it, and let no changing times take it from us and our children. J. B. WALKER.

This note from the Mid-Continent may be a help to some puzzled preacher:

A certain Portland, Maine, pastor, so the Congregationalist reports, places more reliance for effective and permanent instruction and impression upon a meeting for household religious conversation which has been held in the parlors of one of his parishioners for twenty-five years than on any and all other means of grace. The method pursued by this Portland pastor could, doubtless, be worked successfully in every community.

A writer in the Southern Churchman has this to say of the "higher critics": "For my part, I think if these 'higher critics'—save the mark!—were made first to pass a searching examination in experimental religion, it would be found that there would be a greater disposition to let them severely alone."

Oliver Wendell Holmes says: "The human race is divided into two classes—those who go ahead and do something and those who sit still and inquire, 'Why wasn't it done the other way?'" Which class do you belong to, reader?

Notice.

The time of holding the Whittington Camp Meeting has been postponed to Sept. 30. All ministers invited, and will be cared for free of charge.
T. D. LINSOMB.

PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE.

Brother, are you on the road to Nineveh or Tarshish?

Rev. Richard Djerling, the oldest Methodist minister in Kentucky, died recently.

A man came into our office the other day just to tell a bad thing that had been said against a minister!

Dr. E. E. Hale says: "All of education that can be taught or need be taught for" is, "don't be afraid of your audience."

The St. Louis Christian Advocate states that Rev. Dr. Carradine has so far recovered that he expects to occupy his pulpit, Aug. 28.

President Fitzhugh, of Whitworth College, gave us an appreciated visit last week. His school will open under favorable auspices, Sept. 14.

Rev. John A. Ellis, P. E., of Seashore district, passed through New Orleans this week, much improved in health. He was accompanied by his wife.

We regret that we failed to give due credit to the Methodist Recorder for Bishop Galloway's address, republished from that paper in our issue of last week.

"Circular letters" seem to be quite "the go" with some of our papers nowadays. They are not, however, like those Paul wrote about in Second Corinthians.

We have received an interesting document in the "Proceedings of the Twelfth Annual Convention of the Louisiana Press Association," held at Alexandria, Aug. 1-3.

We have received an interesting little document, "The First Annual Report of the North Mississippi Conference Parsonage and Home Mission Society." It shows that substantial work was done last year.

We hear it whispered that our Bro. Sawyer, of Louisiana Avenue, will soon have a book issued from our House in Nashville. It is entitled "The World in the Church." We are warranted in expecting some vigorous pages.

"It is better to preach a good sermon of somebody else than a poor one of your own!" Brother, don't believe a word of it. It is false. Crucify yourself before your audience, if necessary, but for the sake of your soul, don't steal.

It would be a good idea for some of our college graduates to go back this Fall and take a post-graduate course and learn how to spell and read and write the English language. It would save them bushels of mortification in the future.

We thought it a curious question when we went to hold a brother's prayer meeting, he asked us, "what hymn book we would use?" You may rely upon this preacher always using the Methodist hymn book and always pronouncing the apostolic benediction.

Bro. Kirkland, of the Southern, has been quaffing the limpid water and feasting his eyes upon the grand scenery of the mountains; but he has been living so high at District Conferences that he did not relish "the ordinary fare of the mountain boarding-house."

The brother who sends us a request to publish a notice of the time of his protracted meeting expects too much. That would open a flood-gate for notices which would overwhelm us. We publish short accounts of meetings held; but we can not afford space to advertise all over the connection meetings which is, and can only be local.

A brother writes of his work, and says: "You will correct all mistakes as I write hurriedly." Now, there is! What right has anybody to impose additional burdens upon us because he fancies he is in a hurry? No, brother, we are too hurried to stop to correct your mistakes. We suppose the proper way would be to send his communication back for the brother to correct when his hurry is over. Our advice to all is: Don't write what you are in a hurry.

The Northwestern Christian Advocate avows that Bishop Foster's book on "Organic Union" "does not represent public opinion in his church." It says further: "His book is dangerous in that it would seem to teach that the church is preparing to desert the colored man. It is not true. We need the colored man as much as he needs us." Bishop Foster's craft seemed to have fallen into a place where two seas meet, and is being churned at quite a lively rate.

If every young man would learn some trade, it may come in handy some day. The Northwestern Advocate has this:

The dispatches report that among the new men at the Homestead Steel Works are four men who were once wealthy brokers on the Pittsburgh exchange. Their operations had been disastrous through bank failures, and, loaded with indolently waiting for assistance from playing relatives or friends, they go to work and substantially begin life again. The world, we suppose, owes every man a living; but she is not always prompt, and preferably gives it to the man who collects it rather than to the man who lazily presumes upon her largess.

FROM THE WORK.

(Continued from First Page.)

Rev. J. W. Treadwell, Sturges circuit, Aug. 11: "We closed a meeting at Mt. Airy on July 22, which resulted in much good. There were about 20 conversions and 2 accessions to our church. The church was greatly blessed. Bro. J. H. Smith, of Weir, was with us and did excellent gospel preaching, to the satisfaction and edification of the entire church. Bro. R. M. Evans, of Sallis, Miss., aided us in our meeting at Sturges, which closed, Aug. 1, with 21 accessions to our church and several to other churches. His preaching was clear and pointed, and while he attacked sin in all its forms, yet he showed the sinner he loved him and wished him saved. Our church in Sturges, as at Mt. Airy, has been blessed, and we are encouraged on every line of church work. Quite a number of our Sunday-school children have been brought to Christ. We are very thankful to Bros. Smith and Evans for their excellent work in our midst. Our third Quarterly Conference was held July 30. Dr. T. C. Wier, our presiding elder, was with us, and speaks encouragingly of his work. Our work was well represented in the Quarterly Conference, and the official members seemed much interested in their work. We are going forward. 'Pray for us.'"

Rev. W. J. Dawson, Oktibbeha, Miss., Aug. 6: "I closed my meeting at Bethel, Linwood circuit, yesterday. There were fourteen sermons preached—eight by myself and six by Bro. Wilt, he coming in on Wednesday and staying until the close of the meeting. The Lord was with us and graciously blessed his people. I think the church is on a much higher plane than it has been for years. Some were heard to pray publicly who were never heard to do so before. In an experience on Thursday evening many spoke of God's love in their soul who never did so before. Some holiness brethren worked faithfully with us, and testified that they had never enjoyed a better meeting. There were some conversions; I do not know how many. Some new family altars; no accessions. This, I think, was owing to that inestimable doctrine that is and has been taught all over this country, that it is sin to belong to an organized church. There were three of the holiness people (or so called) who did their best to injure the meeting by arguing their miserable stuff, 'Come out of Babylon,' as they call all churches. Never in my life have I held a meeting under such peculiar circumstances. How far these deluded people stood in the way of sinners God only knows. I hope that I shall never have to deal with such again, notwithstanding the opposition of Satan. Many say that it was the best meeting of their lives. God speed the day when all such errors will be banished!"

HOW TO KEEP COOL.

If you are looking for pleasant locations to spend the hot days at moderate cost, write to D. G. Edwards, G. P. A., Queen and Crescent Route, Cincinnati, O., for copy of Queen and Crescent Book entitled, "Summer Days," which will be mailed promptly free of charge.

It is not strange that Beecham's pills are so universally and favorably known when one considers that the medicine makes use of over 14,000 advertising mediums, and spend about $50,000 through them every year. Such liberal use of the press is bound to have results, and proof is seen in the exceptional facilities found necessary to employ in the manufacture of the pills, in order to meet the enormous and increasing demand; among them, the pill machine which shapes 15,000 pills per minute. And, furthermore, in the fact that the average quantity kept in stock is 84 tons, which means about 77,000,000 pills always ready for shipment. These figures are almost lofty enough to make one feel dizzy, but then, he has only to swell the ranks and become a user of these famous pills, when all dizziness, biliousness, indigestion, sick headache, or liver and stomach troubles will disappear.

LADIES
Needing a tonic, or children who want building up, should take BROWNE'S PILLS. It is pleasant; cures Malaria, Indigestion, Biliousness, Liver Complaints and Neuralgia.

Do You Know?

That when your bowels are disordered, and irregularities caused by change of diet or location exist,

Brodie's Astringent Cordial

Will correct all the troubles, and never fails, but

CURES

DIARRHOEA, DYSENTERY, COLIC, CRAMPS, BLOODY FLUX, and Such Symptoms.

TESTIMONIAL.

July 28, 1892.
Dear Sirs:—I have used Brodie's Astringent Cordial in my family, and am using the third bottle. It always acts like a charm upon my children, correcting ailments of the bowels better than any medicine I ever tried.
Yours, most respectfully,
MRS. A. W. MOORE.

Price: 50 cts. and $1 a Bottle.

L. L. LYONS & CO., New Orleans, La.

Sold by All Druggists.

Beware

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as" Pearlina. IT'S FALSE—Pearlina is never peddled, if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back. 276 JAMES PYLE, N. Y.

Whitworth Female College

Conservatory of Music and Art.
BROOKHAVEN, MISS.

The 32nd Annual Session will begin September 14, 1892.

This is one of the oldest, most prosperous and best Female Colleges in the South.

ADVANTAGES:

LITERARY DEPARTMENT.—Every Chair in this department is filled by the very best teaching talent money will command. The work done, therefore, is thorough. A diploma from this College means scholarship.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT.—Our Conservatory, established five years ago, has been a great success. Employing only graduates of the best Conservatories in Europe and America as teachers, we offer the very finest advantages to those who wish to prepare themselves as teachers of music. The President is constantly receiving applications for teachers who have taken our course.

ART DEPARTMENT.—This Department is presided over by a graduate of one of the best Schools of Design in this country. Our studio is a large, well-lighted and well-ventilated room. It is supplied with the latest and best models.

DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION AND PHYSICAL CULTURE.—This is in charge of a graduate of the Boston School of Oratory.

BOARDING DEPARTMENT.—Is under the immediate control of the President's wife, assisted by an expert housekeeper. The table is supplied with the best of the market. We have also a most refined, cultivated Christian lady as laundress. Her only duty is to look after the physical comfort and well-being of the girls. The College, thus equipped, offers to the young ladies of this and contiguous States the very best advantages that can be had. For further information and catalogues address:

L. T. FITZHUGH, A. M., President.

Huntsville Female College,

HUNTSVILLE, ALABAMA.

Forty-third Session begins Wednesday, September 7, 1892. Healthy, well furnished. Twenty Officers and Teachers. All departments of Female Education thoroughly taught: Music, Art, Languages, Sciences, Literature and Commercial Course. A Christian home for pupils. Charges reasonable. For Catalogues, etc., apply to

REV. A. B. JONES, D. D., LL. D., President.

Iuka Normal Institute

IUKA, MISS.

Eleventh year begins Sept. 6. Means, lights, fuel, lodging, laundry, books and tuition for 40 weeks cost $15.50. 48 weeks, $18. Music and extra. Schools supplied with teachers. Write to

H. A. DEAN, Prin.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY

Professors and Lecturers, 180. Students from nearly every Southern State. Literature, philosophy, science, law, medicine, theology. Circulars of departments free. Address the Registrar, 18 Somerset St., Boston, Mass.

Staunton Military Academy,

—STAUNTON, VA.

A Military School for Young Men and Boys. Handsome Illustrated Catalogue mailed on application.

Painful Spectacles

the women who try to wash without Pearlina. It's hard to look at, but it's harder yet to do it. Washing with Pearlina is easy—easy for weak backs, easy on delicate fabrics. It does away with the Rub, Rub, Rub. There is nothing as convenient—nothing so effective. Washing with Pearlina is safe; millions know it, and can tell the millions who want to know.

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as" Pearlina. IT'S FALSE—Pearlina is never peddled, if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back. 276 JAMES PYLE, N. Y.

Hiwassee College,

Tennessee.

Founded 1819. Fall Term Begins Sept. 1, 1892. Christiana environment and influences. Free from evil influences of town or city. Competent Faculty. Five full and thorough courses. Preparatory Department. Expenses the very lowest. Active and efficient discipline. Healthy Location. Altitude 1,300. No malaria. Facilities best. Instruction thorough. Send for Catalogue.

J. T. and J. J. PRITCHETT, Pres'ts.

Hiwassee College,

Monroe County, Tenn.

WAYNESBORO COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

WAYNESBORO, MISS.

W. W. MOORE, A. M., President.

(Southern University.)

MISS CLARA BLOCK, A. M., Primary.

(E. M. F. C. and Peabody Normal.)

J. C. AUST, Telegraphy, etc.

ALEX. POWE, Vice-President.

(Southern University.)

MISS LUCY ANDREWS, Music.

(New England Conservatory.)

Our course of study embraces the Classics and English, also Telegraphy, Music, Shorthand, Bookkeeping and Printing. An unlimited number of boys and girls may secure board on the cheapest plan ever known to any Southern school. Board and tuition need not exceed ten dollars per month.

Write for catalogue. Next session opens Sept. 12, 1892. Write to

REV. W. W. MOORE, A. M., President.

MARTIN COLLEGE FOR YOUNG LADIES,

PULASKI, TENN.

UNDER the patronage of the Tennessee Annual Conference. Permanent endowment fund, $30,000. The only school for girls in the South with an endowment and absolutely out of debt. Eight acres of grounds beautifully ornamented with shade trees, vines, evergreens, shrubbery, and flowers. Commodious brick buildings supplied with elegant new furniture—all the rooms carpeted, and have the latest electric light.

The Most Beautiful and Comfortable Home for Girls in the South.

A full faculty of accomplished teachers. Health record remarkable—no death in ten States represented by the pupils last session. Health record maintained by wise and thoroughly qualified teachers can safely entrust them to Mr. and Mrs. Sanders, of Martin College. I knew them intimately in Virginia, and therefore cheerfully commend them.

"It gives me pleasure to recommend a school where such good work is done as at Martin College. I have tested the work in English and found it the best in any school of like grade within my knowledge."

Professor of English in Vanderbilt University.

"Martin College more nearly approximates my ideal of a girl's school than any I have seen. I would advise parents and guardians who want to put their daughters in a safe, Christian and Methodist school to send them to Martin College."

"I have never seen any where, in any school, the highest culture so well coupled with the highest idea of experimental godliness as in this school."

Send for Catalogue which gives full information.

Address: R. M. SANDERS, Prin.

Wall & Mooney's School,

Franklin, Tenn.

S. V. WALL, W. D. MOONEY, A. M.

The Next Term Will Begin August 30, 1892.

Under date of May 17, 1892, W. M. Baskerville, Ph. D., Professor of English in Vanderbilt University, says: "I can unhesitatingly endorse in every particular, Manliness is the watchword, and the young fellows who come to this University from Wall & Mooney's School are manly as play, manly as work, manly as Christians. It gives me genuine pleasure to endorse such a school."

On May 21, 1892, Chas. F. Smith, Professor of Greek in Vanderbilt, says: "It is one of the greatest and best academies in the South-west. It sent twelve boys to the present Freshman class of Vanderbilt, and a finer, better trained group of men I have not seen in my privilege to teach. I can heartily and unreservedly commend the instruction and discipline of the school."

Rev. E. E. Hoss, D. D., Editor of Christian Advocate, says: "I regard Wall & Mooney's School as one of the very best training schools for boys in the Southern States."

Our boys enter Vanderbilt on our certificate. Address: W. D. MOONEY, Secretary.

BELMONT COLLEGE,

Nashville, Tenn.

Regent, Rev. R. A. YOUNG, D. D.

Principals: Miss Hood, Miss Heron.

Object, to train girls by strengthening and developing the threefold nature. Exceptional advantages, influences, and environments. Situated on a beautiful height overlooking the city. Health record unsurpassed. Steam heat, gas, hot and cold water. Handsome recreation hall, large verandas, almost every room opening on a balcony. Magnificent park with conservatories, pavilions, statuary, walks and drives, bowling alley, gymnasium and laboratory. Handsome new building on the north front, giving increased facilities and ample and elegant accommodations.

English Education Thorough, Solid, and Practical.

Teachers from Wesley College, Vanderbilt University, and Harvard Annex; also teachers of long and successful experience in the South. French and German in charge of native teachers. Music according to principles of French European conservatories; teachers educated abroad. Art on plan of best Schools of Design. Strictly non-sectarian. Students at teaching church of parents' choice. See Belmont, or send to Miss Heron for illustrated blue and bronze catalogue.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

COOPER NORMAL COLLEGE,

(A School for Both Sexes)

DALEVILLE, Lauderdale County, MISS.

Established in 1865, it has the prestige of twenty-seven years' uninterrupted success. Located in a country village famed for its moral and Christian influences. Church and Sabbath-school advantages. New buildings, healthy location, pure free-stone water, easy of access. Four departments sustained: Literary, Musical, Commercial and Teachers' Training. Special inducements to those preparing for high-grade College or University Course. Tuition in Literary Department free to young men preparing for the ministry, or to the sons and daughters of ministers in the regular pastoralate. Next session begins Sept. 7th, 1892. For catalogue or other information, address one of the officers named above.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

Ben M. Drake, Thos. F. Winfield, W. L. Ellis, Secretaries.

The smallest Pill in the World!
Tutt's Tiny Pills
 To purge the bowels does not make them regular; it leaves them in worse condition than before. The liver is the seat of trouble and the remedy must act on it. Tutt's Tiny Liver Pills act directly on that organ, causing a free flow of bile, without which the bowels are always constipated. Price, 25c. Office, 19 & 41 Park Place, New York.

USE TUTT'S HAIR DYE;
 a perfect imitation of nature's coloring, to be used by men and women. Office, 19 & 41 Park Place, New York.

COMMUNION WINE!
 For sale by
A. W. SKARDON & SON, Grocers,
 Cor. Magazine and Jackson Sts., NEW ORLEANS.

Ready July 1st.
Gospel Hymns
Nos. 5 and 6
Combined.
 488 Hymns, many of which can be found in no other book.
 Music, $50 per hundred; 70c. ea. by Mail.
 Words, $20 per hundred; 25c. ea. by Mail.

The John Church Co.,
 74 West 4th Street,
 Cincinnati.

The Biglow & Main Co.,
 76 East 9th Street,
 New York.

SPEND THE SUMMER
 IN THE Mountains of Southwest Virginia.

A quiet Summer home can be found at Martha Washington College.
 The rooms are elegantly furnished; table, fruit-dishes. The buildings are large and comfortable. Eight acres of paradise comprise the college campus. Two acres of the best market garden in the country.

Rates: One Dollar per Day, and upwards.
Address: Rev. S. N. HARKER,
 Abingdon, Va.

Do You Know
 That there is but one paper, perhaps, in the South, and but two in the United States, that make a specialty of defending the Christian Sabbath? But little attention is given to this great question even by the religious press. And

Do You Know
 That there are more than a million laboring men in this land of Bibles who have no Sabbath?

Have You Ever Seen
 THE SOLDIER? It is a monthly paper devoted to the revival of an interest in the Lord's day, and to the fight against the liquor traffic.

Let every friend of God and His Holy Day, and every foe to the Whiskey Devil subscribe for THE SOLDIER. You can get it a whole year for only 35c. Subscribe at once. Address
REV. L. L. PICKETT, Columbia, S. C.

NATURE'S OWN REMEDY!
Bear Lithia Water
 Cures Kidney and Bladder Troubles, Gravel, Gout and Rheumatism, Phosphoric Deposits, Inflammation of the Bladder, Dropsical Affections, Brick Dust Deposits, and Dyspepsia.

FOR SALE BY
CLARK & MEADER,
 16 and 18 CARROLL ST.

THE BOOK AND ITS THEME;
 OR, THE BIBLE AND ITS MISSION.

By Rev. L. L. PICKETT.
 220 Pages, Cloth. Price, $1.00.

A Few Good Words.
 Rev. S. A. Keen. This is a clear, suggestive, refreshing volume, ably demonstrating that God has given to the world a Book, and that this Book is a treasure on holiness. One rises from the reading of Bro. Pickett's book feeling that the Bible is indeed with the Divine presence, and that, from the first words, "In the beginning," to the last, "Amen," it is so pregnant with the idea, and so radiant with the beauty of holiness, that to call it the "Holy Bible" is not a misnomer.

SAM JONES!
 If you will send me a postal note for 50 cents, I will mail you at once (postage prepaid) 1 copy of Sam Jones' Sermons, 346 pp. (regular price, 50 cents); 1 copy of Sam Jones' Anecdotes, as related by himself in revival meetings (regular price, 50 cents); 1 copy of a new Gospel Song—"Will You Meet Me at the Fountain?"—by Nelson Gilreath.

All the Above for Fifty Cents.
 Send at once. Address
NELSON GILREATH MUSIC CO.,
 Cartersville, Georgia.

For Only a 2c. Stamp!
 To introduce The Way of Faith, a weekly, beautifully printed, vigorous holiness paper, we will send it one month for only two cents, provided you will then subscribe or notify us to discontinue. Address
GOSPEL MISSION, Columbia, S. C.

AGENTS WANTED ON SALARY
 or commission, to handle the new Patent Chemical Ink Erasing Pencil. The quickest and greatest selling novelty ever produced. Erases ink thoroughly in two seconds. No abrasion of paper. Works like magic. 200 to 500 per cent. profit. One Agent's sales amounted to $675 in six days. Another $25 in two hours. Previous experience not necessary. For terms and full particulars, address, The Monroe Eraser Mfg. Co., La Crosse, Wis., X 218.

HOME LIFE.

LITTLE THINGS.

BY EMMA F. SEABURY.

A good-by kiss is a little thing,
 With your hand on the door to go;
 But it takes the venom out of the sting
 Of a thoughtless word or a cruel frown
 That you made an hour ago.

A kiss of greeting is sweet and rare,
 After the toll of the day;
 But it smooths the furrows out of the care
 And laces on the forehead you once called fair,
 In the years that have flown away.

"Is a little thing to say: 'You are kind,'
 'I love you, my dear,' each night;
 But it sends a thrill through the heart, I find,
 For love is tender, as love is blind;
 As we climb life's rugged height.

We starve each other for love's caress,
 We take, but we do not give;
 It seems so easy some soul to bless,
 But we dole love grudgingly, less and less,
 Till 'tis bitter and hard to live.

Sweetness of Spirit.

There are some persons who somehow bear the charm of an attractive atmosphere about them. Their whole life seems to be like a warm spring day which gives one life and inspiration. It is really a pleasure merely to look upon such people. Though we may differ in our judgment of things, nevertheless we are drawn toward them and fascinated by their sunny spirit. There is so much sweetness in their manner, such kind extensibility, such menly frankness, such noble self-respect, and such perfect regard for the judgment and feelings of others that one can not help but love them. These persons are far too few in the world. We need more of them. They are the sunshine. They help to make dark things light. They help troubled and discouraged souls to go to the fountain from whence they derive their sweetness, and obtain that which will put sunshine into their own lives.

We must not forget that these persons of whom we write are not weak persons. They are men who have convictions and are not afraid to express them. They take a stand for the truth, and yet the very opposition they present to us draws us to them, because they are so true and just. They can get into an argument without getting angry. They can oppose and yet at the same time disarm one of evil feelings toward them. This spirit may be cultivated, and yet natural temper has much to do with it. The kind Father certainly gives a great and precious gift to a man when he gives him a sunny disposition, a candid spirit, a spirit that impresses itself upon others because of its fairness and mellowness. It is very hard for some men to be just. They are envious, suspicious and gloomy in their natural bent. It is exceedingly difficult for them to think or believe good of others. They are everlastingly putting the worst construction upon matters. They see evil where there is none, and surely none but a higher power can transform their tempers so that they can be just towards their fellow-men. Let us pray for sweet spirits. A Christianity that smiles is of more value than one that is morose. We must have men of bright spirit to go about our fallen humanity that they may draw them from the selfishness that moves them into the brightness of a better life. The joy of our life should be to make others happier and brighter and better. We can do this more effectively if we go to them with a sweet spirit.—Rev. E. Hurbuck, in the Christian World.

A Plea for Your Wife.

Do you know the secret anxieties and sufferings of your wife? If you do not, you should. For years she has labored under. She has cooked, washed, and sewed, and dusted, and swept, and waited and watched for the small pittance you have doled out to her. That pittance has not been simply a contemptible trifle in money, but a more contemptible trifle in genuine outspoken sympathy and tenderness. You are buffeted and crowded in business places of life. You have learned, amid hard usage, to grow sturdy and muscular. You are accustomed every day to dealing with things which require from you the voice of authority and decision. In all this there is nothing to cultivate tenderness of feeling, of tone, or of manner. When you come into your house you meet a timid, retiring woman, who has been shut in all the long hours, struggling against dependency. She has waited for you. The tears are already in her eyes. If the husband can not sympathize, who will? Now, can you not drop your gruff manner and voice for the few moments you must spend at home, and be tender, gentle and confiding? Why do you not sit down and draw your wife to you, as you did when you sought her in that home which you robbed her of, but never repented? It is not enough that you mean all this. She sees your look and manner, and hears your voice. If these are gentle, and tender, and wooing, she will open her heart to you; but if otherwise, she will repress the tear for the moment, but it will flow when you are gone.

The world is full of unspoken bitterness—all because men take things for granted. Of course, the wife can have money if she will ask for it. Of course, she will find sympathy if she will bring her burdens and unravel them. Of course, she is loved, and thought of and planned for. All this is not enough; but thousands never find it out until the black horse and the hearse convey the tired and worn-out body of the long waiting one to the only rest she ever knew.—Central Christian Advocate.

THE BIBLE "NOT MADE WITH HANDS."—This book told me all that ever I did, then it must be inspired. Other books have talked about me, this book has talked to me; other books have gratified me and delighted me, this has cut me in pieces, pierced me to the dividing of the joints and marrow, haunted me in the night-time and troubled me all the day long, yet none of all the songs of earth ever charmed me like its music. It is not made with hands. If you want to know what a wonderful book the Bible is in this respect write another. Now I will give you a task, if you please—write an additional chapter to one of the books in the Bible. Some time, I believe when very young, I did try to add a chapter to one of the books of the Bible. It was the first offense and God was kind to me. I have never repeated the trespass. You do not know what this book is until you try to enlarge it, amend it, or even speak in its own tone. And this is not to be accounted for by Hebrew influence and redundancy, and Greek precision and accuracy and largeness of thought. No, no. Other books have been written in ancient tongues, but this book was not made with hands. How it was made the makers themselves in their limited degree did not know. They were stopped, not by poverty, but by excess of riches.—Dr. Joseph Parker.

Are We too Clean?

In a paragraph under the above heading the British Medical Journal says that not many years ago European civilization was in an optimistic phase, and people went about saying that, what with railways, steamers, and telegraphs, we might thank heaven that we were born in the nineteenth century. Satisfy, disillusion, and the increase of the population have thrown a gloom over these old and happy notions. Thoughtful people wish to know if we are really better than our ancestors. One positive fact is ascertained; we are certainly cleaner. It is difficult to say that anybody can be too clean; but it is easy to understand that a man can clean himself in the wrong way. Dr. M. Ricketts has discovered a skin affection almost peculiar to women who wash and powder too frequently. There is redness, with scalliness and considerable burning. Exposure to draughts increases the symptoms. At times there is pain, causing loss of sleep. The seal of some American ladies in the practice of the virtue which is next to godliness is marvelous. One who said to have confessed to having applied a well-known cosmetic powder thirteen times in twelve hours, each time after the face had been thoroughly washed with a yet more famous soap. Dr. Ricketts prefers good pure olive oil from the south of France, applied two or three times a day with some soft silk or linen fabric, to the blandest soap. We feel no surprise at the above information as to the evil effects of too much soap. There is such a thing as using too much water, especially if cold or very hot. The roughening of the hand by frequent ablutions is a grave matter, as it diminishes tactile sensibility, and is very disagreeable to patients. Thorough drying of the hands after the use of tepid water and a bland soap is the surest way to keep them clean without including conditions which cause them to become dirty again with rapidity. As for the cold bath, its dangers are well known. The middle-aged man must beware of it; nor feel ashamed to mingle with its food half or more of the contents of his shaving-water jug. Otherwise he runs as much risk as he entails on his constitution by violent athletic contests with men twenty years younger than himself. If not more risk, as he always has to find time for his toilet, though his pursuits may keep him from frequent indulgence in sports.

Prying Pertinent Queries.

While the method of answering one question by asking another is perhaps not one to be commended, there are certainly some circumstances under which it is allowable.

There are some people who delight in asking personal questions, no matter how embarrassing and unnecessary they may be, and who insist upon some sort of an answer.

A young author, whose opinion about people and things in general is considered worth finding out, says he has adopted a method of prying the disconcerting questions so often put to him by almost total strangers, which proves successful in nearly every instance.

"When a woman to whom I have just been introduced at a literary evening asks me 'If I really like this sort of entertainment' in a confidential tone," remarks this much-questioned man, "I always ask her, just as confidentially, 'Do you?' and she seldom makes any further inquiries."

"And when a man buttonholes me in a secluded corner, and says: 'Come now, as a matter of fact, do you like young Dabster? Do you think he will ever amount to anything?' I look him right in the eye, and say, 'Do you?' and he generally understands what I mean."

There are some questions which can be better answered in this way than in any other, for every person has a right to withhold his own opinion from prying interrogators, who usually have nimble tongues and do not scruple to use them.—Youth's Companion.

The True Home.

Almost every family looks back to a homestead—some country place where you grew up. You sat on the door-sill. You heard the looting of the rain on the garret roof. You swung on the gate. You ransacked the barn. You waded into the brook. You threshed the orchard for apples, and the neighboring woods for nuts; and everything around the old homestead is of interest to you. Heaven is an old homestead. In my Father's house are many mansions. When we talk of mansions we think of Chateaux, and its park, nine miles in circumference, and its conservatory, that astonishes the world; its galleries of art, that contain the triumphs of Chantrey, Canova, and Thorwaldsen; of the kings and queens who have walked its stately halls, or, flying over the heather, have hunted the grouse. But all the dwelling-places of dukes, and princes, and queens are as nothing to that family mansion that is already awaiting our arrival. The hand of our Lord Jesus lifted the pillars and swung the doors and planted the perches. Angels walk there, and the good of all ages. The poorest man in that house is a millionaire, and the lowliest is an anthem, and the shortest life an eternity.—Talmage.

THE BEST WORDS.—A loving word is always a safe word. It may, or it may not, be a helpful word to the one who hears it, but it is sure to be a pleasant memory to the one who speaks it. Many a word spoken by us is afterwards regretted; but no word of affectionate appreciation to which we have given utterance finds a place among our sadly remembered expressions. Looking back over our intercourse with a dear friend or fellow-worker, we may, indeed, regret that we were ever betrayed into a harsh, or hasty, or unloving word of censure or criticism in that intercourse; and we may wish vainly that we had not the privilege of saying all the loving words that we might honestly have spoken while he was yet with us. But there will never come into our hearts at such a time a single pang of regret over any word of impulsive or deliberate affection which passed our lips at any time. We have reason to be on our guard in our speech in most directions; but we can be fearlessly free in our loving utterances. Apart from any question of the good we do to others by our words of love, we are personally the gainers, for now and for hereafter, by every such word which we speak not explicitly; and we are sure to be the losers, now and by and by, from every such word which we ought to have spoken and failed to speak.—Sunday-School Times.

The Empress of China is said to take great interest in the working-girls of the Flowery Kingdom. A few months ago, according to foreign papers, she established a cloth and silk factory on the grounds of the Imperial Palace in Peking, for the express purpose of giving employment to women and girls who had no work. The Empress is not allowed, by court regulations, to leave the palace grounds, and she, therefore, decided to have the factory where she could watch its progress.

To seek to be good for self's sake is no better than burglary in its spiritual results.—Herron.

OUR YOUNG PEOPLE.

THAT BROTHER OF MINE.

Who is it comes in like a whirlwind,
 And closes the door with a slam,
 And before he has taken his hat off,
 Calls out for "some bread and some jam?"
 Who is it that whistles so loudly,
 As he works at some tangle of twine
 That will send his kite up into cloudland?
 Why, of course, it's that brother of mine.

Who is it that, when I am weary,
 Has always a hole in his coat,
 A button to sew on in a hurry,
 A seal to be made for a boat?
 Who is it that keeps in my basket
 His marbles and long fishing line,
 And expects, undisturbed, there to find them?
 No one else but that brother of mine.

Who is it that utters about softly,
 Whenever I'm sick or in pain—
 And is every minute forgetting
 And whistling some head-splitting strain?
 Who is it that when he is trying
 To be just as still as he can,
 Is always most terribly noisy?
 My brother, of course—he's the men.

Who is it I'd rather have by me,
 When in need of a true, honest friend:
 Who is it that I shall miss sadly
 When his boyhood has come to an end?
 And when he is far from the old home,
 And I long for a glimpse of sunshine,
 Whom, then, do you think I shall send for?
 Why, of course, for that brother of mine.

—Good Housekeeping.

MR. EDITOR: As I have never seen a letter published from one of the little girls in this section of the country, I thought I would address a few lines to you. You were very kind in publishing my brother's letter; so I feel encouraged to think you may show the same kindness to a little nine-year-old girl. We have been going to school regularly this year, but school will soon close. I will be very glad when it opens, as I love to go to school, and am trying to learn. All the family like very much to read the Advocate. Preparations are being made to have a camp meeting at Bethel, Wilkenson county, Miss. As I have never attended a camp meeting, and as it is not far from us, I would be very much pleased to attend. I will reply to Uncle Sam's question: "Where is the word 'medicinal' found in the Bible?" It is found in Proverbs xvii, 22. Also, "Which is the shortest verse in the Bible?" It is found in St. John xiii, 85. I will ask some of the little cousins a question: Where is the word "small" found in the Bible? With kindest love to you, dear editor, and all the cousins, and wishing the dear old Advocate much success, I remain,
 Your little unknown friend,
 Jackson, La.
 C. GRACE THOMAS.

MR. EDITOR: My mother takes the dear old Advocate, and I enjoy reading the little talks letters, and the grand sermon that was preached at the Seashore Camp Meeting. One of our ministers, Bro. Keen, has been very ill; but God blessed him, and restored him to his wonted health again, so he can preach the Word of God again. I will answer Mary Gerald's question: "Where is the word 'girl' found in the Bible?" It is found in Joel iii, 3. I will close by asking the little cousins a question: Where is the word "washtub" found in the Bible, and where is the word "brick-kiln" found in the Bible? I remain,
 Your unknown friend,
 Cary, Miss.
 PEACEL GAREN.

MR. EDITOR: As I have not written to your good paper for some time, I will write to you, if you will be kind enough to publish my letter. I am a little girl eleven years old, and have been going to school at the Mansfield College for four years. I study geography, grammar, arithmetic and history. I have been taking music only four months, and can play several pieces. I am at home now for a short vacation, which I enjoy. I am a member of the M. E. Church, and a regular attendant at Sunday-school. Bro. Williams is our pastor at this place, and we love him very much.
 Loyline.
 LESLIE MOORE.

MR. EDITOR: I thought I would write a few lines to the dear old Advocate today, as I have never written a letter to the cousins before. I loved to read the dear old Advocate all the time, as it is always full of good reading. Bro. Cammick is our pastor this year. We are having a great deal of rain here of late. There was a large crowd of people went from town to Adams Camp Ground, last Sunday, to attend the big meeting out there. Bro. Lewis went out to help them on the twenty-eighth. Wish you could have been there. I know you would have had a nice time.
 Summit, Miss.
 B. J. HAYES.

An Undervalued Sister.

A boy of five or six years, according to a story in the Chicago Herald, was much happy by the arrival of a baby sister. He had been the only child in the family, and, being a good and obedient boy, had been humored till he was, perhaps, in some danger of being spoiled. Before the little new sister was many weeks old, however, Master Fred began to feel that his own position was badly altered. The stranger had supplanted him. Father, mother and servants were all the time talking about the baby. There was no mistake; Fred was no longer king. The boy began to be unhappy, and just then he remembered a placard which his father had put up in a conspicuous point on the premises some months before: "Ashe to give away. Inquire within." Fred had taken great interest in this notice and had inquired minutely into its meaning. He remembered now that very soon afterward a man called and carried away the ashes. He had been to the kindergarten, and could spell and print after a fashion. So, with such helps and hints as he was able to get slyly from the servants, he managed to concoct the following sign, which his astonished father one day found posted in a slightly position as he came home to dinner:
 "A Baby To Give away.
 Inquire of Fred."

A BOY'S VIEW OF FORGIVENESS.—We heard, from a Sunday-school teacher, the other day, an illustration of one kind of forgiveness. Improving upon the day's lesson, the teacher asked the boy whether, in view of what he had been studying and repeating, he could forgive those who had wronged him.
 "Could you," said the teacher, "forgive a boy, for example, who had insulted or struck you?"
 "Y-e-s, sir," replied the lad, very slowly, "I guess I could," but he added, in a much more rapid manner: "I could—if he was bigger than I am."

People who want to do good never have to stand around corners waiting for an opportunity.

SCIENTIFIC.

How Large is the Universe?

To form some idea of the largeness of this earth, one may look upon the landscape from the top of an ordinary church-steeple, and then bear in mind that one must view 900,000 similar landscapes to get an approximately correct idea of the size of the earth. Place 500 earths, like ours, side by side, yet Saturn's outermost ring could easily enclose them. Three hundred thousand earth-globes could be stored inside of the sun, if hollow. If a human eye every hour were capable of looking upon a fresh measure of world-material 14,000 kilometers large, that eye would need 65,000 years to overlook the surface of the sun. To reach the nearest fixed star one must travel 33,000,000,000 of kilometers, and if the velocity were equal to that of a cannon-ball, it would require 5,000,000 of years to travel the distance.

On a clear night an ordinary human eye can discover about 1,000 stars in the northern hemisphere, most of which send their light from distances we can not measure. How large they must be! Round these 1,000 stars circle 50,000 other stars of various sizes. Beside single stars, we know of systems of stars moving round one another. Still, we are but a short way into space as yet! Outside our limits of vision and imagination there are, no doubt, still larger spaces.

The Milky Way holds probably at least 20,000,000 stars, and as each is a sun, we presume it is encircled by at least fifty planets. Counting up these figures, we arrive at the magnitude of 1,000,000,000,000 stars. A thousand millions of stars! Who can comprehend it! Still this is only a part of the universe. The modern telescopes have discovered more and more similar milky ways still further away. We know of some 3,000 nebulae which represent milky ways like ours. Let us count 2,000 of them as being of the size of our Milky Way, then 2,000 multiplied by 20,000,000 equals 40,000,000,000 suns, or 2,000,000,000,000,000,000 heavenly bodies. Suppose these bodies perishing before our mental eye, one per minute, it would require 3,840,000 years to finish the march. In all of which time we would have to look upon them unceasingly. Suppose a human being migrating from globe to globe, and spending fifty years on each, he would require 100,000,000,000 years for the round. If he stayed only one hour, he would have much time, but these nebulae are only a part of the universe! Outside the nebulae, we know of other nebulae not resolvable into stars. They appear to be primitive nebulae, pure, unused world-stuff—matter for new creations. Some of them occupy a space as large as the orbit of Uranus. Some are still larger. The one in "Orion" is estimated to be 2,000,000,000,000,000 times larger than our sun. Are we come to the outermost limits? Who dares say yes? We are probably come to our limits. But the future, with new instruments and scientific devices, may push those limits so much further into space.—Nordstjernen, Copenhagen.

FEELING AN OCEAN GREYHOUND.—On the City of Paris there are sixty firemen, who feed the fiery maws of the forty-five furnaces which create steam in nine boilers. Fifty coal passers shovel fuel from the bunkers to the furnace door, and the firemen stoke it in. There is something more than mere shoveling in firing. The stoker must know how to put the coals on so that they will not burn too quickly nor deaden the fire. He must know how to stir or poke the fire so as to get all or nearly all the heat out of the coal.

Service in the fire-room is divided into six watches of four hours each. The fireman works and sleeps every alternate four hours. After the first day from port, two out of every six furnaces are raked out to the bare bars during the first hour of each watch. Thus in a voyage all the furnaces are cleaned once in twenty-four hours. The steam goes down a blith in the hour while the cleaning is going on. The stokers shovel into the furnaces fifteen tons of coal every hour, or three hundred and sixty tons a day. The ship usually takes in 3,000 tons at Liverpool or New York, and has between five hundred and eight hundred tons left when she arrives at the other side.

The engineers' department is entirely distinct and separate from the firemen's. On the City of Paris there are twenty-five engineers, hydraulic and electrician. They are educated in single shops on shore, and a certain number go on ship every year. They are all machinists; so when the machinery breaks down, they know how to repair the damage. In case the chief engineer should be disabled, any assistant could take his place.—Scotch Paper.

MEDICINAL PLANTS.—The pamphlet of Mr. Charles Mohr, on The Medicinal Plants of Alabama, embodies the list of the plants, with notes on their distribution and the proper time of collecting the parts used, contains some facts of interest respecting the flora of the State and the home of its medicinal plants. The flora of Alabama includes a majority noted for their remedial value which are found in North America east of the Rocky Mountains. The plants furnishing drugs of the greatest importance have their homes principally in the woodlands of deciduous-leaved trees in the northern section of the State. With the enormous decrease of the forest area north of the Ohio river that has taken place during the last thirty-five years, the supply of crude drugs furnished by that territory has been correspondingly reduced. The resources existing in the more elevated regions of the South have consequently been resorted to. Within the past ten or fifteen years North Carolina has become the centre of the most active trade in this line, which is gradually extending farther South, and operations have been successfully begun in the northern section of Alabama. This region offers a promising field for the enterprise, with the prospect of supplies to last for a long time to come. Particularly in the mountainous and hilly districts, extensive tracts, until for the cultivation of the soil, will probably remain, it not violently interfered with, in the condition of woodlands. Thus we find the interest of the healing art closely connected with the question of the preservation of the forests of our country, and the pharmacist should feel in duty bound to unite his efforts with those who are already striving to secure this important object.—Popular Science Monthly.

Chemists, by means of certain experiments, have converted diamonds into coke and graphite. These experiments are certainly expensive ones, for by reversal of the methods have they been able to change coke into diamonds. This is a mile that does not work both ways, end, judging by the price of diamonds, a poor one. Coke can be had in plenty, and some of it has been found hard enough to cut glass, proving that it possesses in its crude state some of the properties of the valued diamond.—Exchange.

Waterproof sheets of paper, stuck together by a special process, and compressed by hydraulic power, have been found in Germany to make a material sufficiently hard, not only for the soles of boots, but for horse shoes.—Exchange.

"Continual dropping wears away the stone."
 The continual breaking of lamp-chimneys costs a good deal in the course of a year.
 You can stop it. Get Macbeth's "pearl top" or "pearl glass." You will have no more trouble with breaking from heat. You will have clear glass instead of misty; fine instead of rough; right shape instead of wrong; and uniform, one the same as another.
 You will pay a nickel a chimney more; and your dealer will gain in good-will what he loses in trade; he will widen his trade by better service.

Pittsburg. GEO. A. MACBETH & CO.

ARE YOU BILIOUS?
 THEN USE
PARSONS' PILLS.
 "Best Liver Pill Made"

Positively Cures BILIOUSNESS and SICK HEADACHE, all Liver and Bowel Complaints. Put up in Glass Bottles, Thirty in a Bottle, one a dose. They expel all impurities from the blood. Delicate women find growth-aiding in using them. Sold every where, or sent by mail on stamps; 25 cents five bottles $1.00. Full particulars on L. S. JOHNSON & CO., 24 Custom House St., Boston, Mass.

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT FOR INTERNAL AS MUCH AS EXTERNAL USE.
 ORIGINATED
 By an Old Family Physician.

Cures Croup, Colds, Sore Throat, Croup, Pains, Stomach Inflammation in body or limb, like malarial, Coughs, Asthma, Catarrh, Colic, Cholera, Morbidity, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Lame Back, Stiff Joints, Strains, Illustrations of the use of the Liniment, 25 cents a bottle, 50 cents a dozen. L. S. JOHNSON & CO., 24 Custom House St., Boston, Mass.

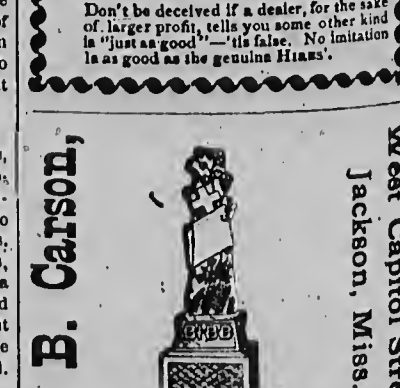

"It is Truly a Great Remedy," is what Rev. Sam Jones says of Germetuer.

"I returned from Tyler, Texas, on March 12th. I find my wife has been taking Royal Germetuer two weeks, to the GREAT UPBUILDING OF HER PHYSICAL SYSTEM. She is now almost free from the distressing headaches with which she has suffered for twenty years. Surely it has done wonders for her. I WISH EVERY POOR SUFFERING WIFE HAD ACCESS TO THAT MEDICINE."
 Later he writes: "My wife, who was an invalid from nervous sick headache, has been entirely cured by six weeks' use of Dr. King's Royal Germetuer. Her health is perfect. In three weeks two of my children were cured completely of nasal catarrh. IT IS TRULY A GREAT REMEDY."

M. B. AVARY & CO., Atlanta, Ga., say: "We are selling five times as much of your Royal Germetuer as of any other patent medicine on the market, and it gives universal satisfaction. The demand is constantly increasing."

Morning Noon Night
 Good all the time. It removes the languor of morning, sustains the energies of noon, lulls the weariness of night.

Hires' Root Beer
 delicious, sparkling, appetizing.
 Don't be deceived if a dealer, for the sake of larger profit, tells you some other kind is "just as good" as this. No imitation is as good as the genuine Hires'.

Dealer in all kinds of Marble and Stone monuments and buildings. Prompt attention given to orders.

West Capitol Street, Jackson, Miss.

MARRIAGES.

ARISTON-RYAN.—In Lake Charles, La., Aug. 11, 1892, by Rev. Thos. J. Upton, Mr. Nick-ariston to Mrs. Christina Ryan, all of Lake Charles, La.

HOLSON-CUNNINGHAM.—At the residence of the bride's father, Rev. J. T. Cunningham, of the North Mississippi Conference, Aug. 11, 1892, by Rev. Wesley R. Tucker, Rev. John E.
Hobson, of the Presbyterian Church, and Miss Clara Cunningham.

OBITUARIES.

We publish obituaries of 200 words free of charge; for all over this, one cent per word must be sent. If you want the notice to appear in its order, comply with this rule. Count the words, and send one cent for each word over 200.

BROWN.—Died in Delhi, La., July 22, 1892.
Mrs. JENNIE BROWN, wife of Rev. J. M. Brown, of the Louisiana Conference.

Sister Brown's maiden name was Wren. She was born March 2, 1833. For 10 years she was married to a Mr. Conner, after whose death she lived a widow until Aug. 29, 1882, when she was married to Rev. J. M. Brown. For nearly ten years she experienced all the vicissitudes of the marital life. Never complaining, but always with cheerful and meek spirit. She, like Aaron and Hur, tried to hold up the heads of her husband in his battles for the Lord.

Sister Brown loved God and his cause. It was her joy and delight to labor in the Sabbath-school, teaching her class the wonderful love of Jesus, whom she loved and knew from experience. Like her divine Master, she went about doing good, visiting the sick, comforting those who were cast down, and consoling the broken-hearted, shedding rays of light and consolation to those unto whom she ministered acts of mercy. She was a dutiful daughter, an affectionate mother, a loving wife and a true friend.

For nearly ten years she fought the battles of the tithe and the commands of the Capital of our salvation.

At Delhi, La., on July 22, surrounded by kind friends who loved her, and weeping, heartbroken husband and children, she fought the last battle of life; she met the angel of death.
Though the message was sudden, it found her ready; though the enemy conquered, she felt in the line of battle and in Jesus. "Oh her it can be said, 'O death, where is thy sting?'" O grave, where is thy victory? Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. To a sorrowing and crushed husband and weeping children, dry your tears. Your loss is her eternal gain. She is not dead, but lives for evermore.

While our dear brother has lost a loving wife, the children a devoted mother, and the writer a true friend, dry your tears. Sister Brown is not dead; she lives for evermore. She waits for you on the other shore, in the New Jerusalem, the city of God. Then look up; we will meet her there.
C. T. MUNNOLLAN.

LILLY.—Mrs. M. PALM LILLY, wife of Albert A. Lilly, was born near Georgetown, Miss., Aug. 25, 1867, and died at her home in Mc-Comb City, Miss., July 12, 1892.

Sister Lilly was born of Christian parents, and in early life consecrated her life to God,
joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and lived a faithful member till her death.
She was educated at Whitworth Female College, graduating with honors in the class of 1884. While at school she won the love and admiration of teachers and classmates by her upright, Christian deportment. Oct. 3, 1888, she was happily married to Albert A. Lilly.
They were both blessed with those moral principles and virtues which combine to make the marriage union one of supreme happiness.
They lived for each other. God gave them three bright children, the youngest an infant only a few days old at the departure of the mother. To the visitor their home, in many respects, was a model home. God's blessings seemed to rest on them in almost every respect; but, alas! the cold hand of death came as a thief in the night and blighted the fond hopes of earth, and left a sad and lonely companion and three motherless children. We praise God that our brother sorrowed not as one who has no hope, but that beyond the Jordan of death stands one whose companionship blessed his life here, and is now watching and waiting for her loved ones as they cross over the valley, "one by one."

May God's richest blessings rest on the beloved husband, the dear children and loved ones of our departed sister, giving each grace to so live that when life is over they may rest on the shores of eternal glory!
M. L. BURTON.

SMYTH.—Sister HARRIET SMYTH was born in South Carolina, Jan. 2, 1818, and died at the residence of her son-in-law, Dr. G. Y. Woodward, in Louisville, Miss., June 14, 1892.

She was reared by Old Side Presbyterian parents, but while quite young she attended a Methodist camp meeting, where she was invited to an altar, where she was prayed with and for, and where she was happily converted to God, and from which time she felt fully in sympathy and faith with Methodism.

At the age of seventeen she was happily married to Mr. E. W. Smyth, who was afterwards for many years probate judge of Winston county, Miss. This union was blessed with seven children, six of which she lived to see grown and united with the people of God. She was a wife and mother indeed; given to hospitality;
gentle, modest, intelligent, loving, thoughtful, but, withal, a woman of deep conviction and true courage. None knew her but to love and admire her. Her life was spotless, and she died as she had lived—at peace with God and man. We have often thanked God for her consistent Christian life, and now we thank him for her triumphant death, and feel sure she is waiting for us under the tree of life in the city of God. By divine grace we will meet her.

She leaves one son and three daughters, with many relatives and friends, to mourn their loss.
May they all meet her in the better land!
HER PASTOR.

OBITUARY.—In the death of Mrs. MARY SPENCER
OBER, which occurred on June 16, 1892, the Woman's Missionary Society of Jefferson Street Church, Natchez, has been deprived of one of its most consecrated members. Her strong belief in the cause of missions and her ready willingness to aid, whenever opportunity offered, was an assistance, and encouragement to our organization which we could not fully measure. The memory of her sweet influence will cheer us on in our work. Desiring to give expression to the deep sadness now in our hearts, therefore, be it

Resolved, That we realize with sorrow that our society has lost one of its most useful members and we, from our earthly lives, a dear friend and fellow worker, and we do hereby extend our sincere sympathy to her husband and all those especially bereaved.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to her husband and members of the family, and a copy be sent to the NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Mrs. C. M. DORRATT,
Mrs. DRAKE GUICE,
Mrs. S. H. JOHNSON,
Committee.

NEILL-RUBY HALL. the baby daughter of William and Mrs. Eva O. Neill, was born April 3, 1890, and died of membranous croup, Jan.
14, 1892.

She was one of the first to welcome me to my present work, and we became fast friends.
Little we thought then that she, so healthy, fair and gay, would in less than three short weeks be one of God's angels. In her sickness, young as she was, she was conscious of approaching death, for, when asked if she did not want to get well, she answered: "I can't get well; I'm too sick." On the night before she died she whispered a prayer for each of the family, and, biding her mother's tear-stained face between her little hands, concluded, "God take care of my poor mama." Her suffering was intense, but the loving hearts would not have yielded her so submissively to God had she suffered less. Patiently she endured till Jesus whispered, "Come," and took the angel-spirit where sickness and sorrow flee away from the glad presence of God.

May the stricken hearts look up through their tears to the day of glad reunion at home, and lives accordant with the will of God be their sure prophecy of heaven!

M. M. ELLIS.

MAGEE-ADALINE R. MAORR was born Oct.
27, 1823, and departed this life, July 29, 1892.
Her maiden name was Webb. She was twice married: first to W. J. Scott, Oct. 12, 1842. He died Oct. 12, 1845, and in August, 1848, she was married to N. W. Magee. At what time he died
I am not informed; but she was left a widow
the second time.

Sister Magee joined the Baptist Church at eighteen years of age, and lived a consistent member until death. Hers was a triumphant death. A short while before she died her son asked about her future prospects, and she said that all was bright, that there was nothing in her way, and that death had no sting to her.
May the Lord comfort the loved ones, and may they so live that they may all meet in heaven,
where parting is no more!
B. A. B.

YARBROUGH-ROBERT SAMUEL YARBROUGH was born Dec. 18, 1851, and died at 3 o'clock P. M., Aug. 5, 1892.

The deceased was a member of our Sunday-school at Girard, and manifested unusual interest in his studies. On the Sabbath next preceding his death he won a prize card by repeating the "Apostles' Creed." In token of their affection for him the Sunday-school children put on suitable badges, and, following the pastor and superintendent, marched to the residence, where the funeral services were conducted, in which they took part by singing the beautiful hymn, "Gathering Home." The mother informs me that Bobbie knew he was dying, but was not afraid. May the grief-stricken parents find comfort in Christ!
I. T. REAMES.

KING.—At the residence of Brother and Sister King, near Santee Church, little Ethel
King departed this life, July 18, 1892.

Dear little Ethel has gone to Jesus, who said,
"Suffer little children to come unto me, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Weep not, dear parents, for they loved one, and is extending a cord from heaven back to earth to draw us and patrons to that bright world above, where all the angels and the babies are singing around the throne of God, with their little harps of gold, giving praise to the Lamb of God that redeemed them and saved them from the wrath to come.
J. H. EVANS.

MCARTHUR.—The infant son of Duncan and Jennie McArthur was born Dec. 9, 1891, and died at their home, near Ingleside, Claiborne county, Miss., May 15, 1892.

Farewell, little DUNCAN. Although his stay on earth was so brief, yet it was long enough to cuddle him to all that ever beheld him.
Beautiful, loving little cherub, too pure to remain in this sin-polluted world; end, although it rent his parents' hearts sorely to give up their only son, God gives the grace to say, "Thy will be done."
G. A. GUICE.

IRBY-OLIVIA IRBY was born May 7, 1886, and died May 28, 1892, at her home in Claiborne county, Miss.

Cheer up, loved ones! Little Olivia has preceded you to the blissful home of the soul, and there she is waiting and watching for and beckoning to you to come to that blissful where parting is no more. May the good Lord bless this sore affliction to the good of your souls, and help you to walk in that straight and narrow path that leads to that blissful shore!
Be the prayer of your pastor,
G. A. GUICE.

Dr. Davis' Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Tar has made a name and record in the past few years that is enviable. Thousands of people having tried it for coughs, colds, catarrh, asthma, bronchitis and consumption know its value, and would not be without it. Why? Because it cures where other remedies fail. We recommend it for children subject to croup and whooping-cough. It will give relief and cause speedy cure. The medical profession recognize it, and physicians frequently prescribe it for lung troubles. These facts have pushed Davis' Wild Cherry and Tar to the front rank. It is the best remedy for coughs, colds, all throat and lung affections, and no family should be without it.
One dollar bottles hold two and a half times as much as 50c. bottle.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO THOSE SENDING MONEY.
Remittances should be made only by money orders, express company orders, registered letters, drafts or checks on New Orleans banks or merchants. Drafts on country banks occasion a loss of from 15 to 25 cents per check. Drafts on country merchants we have no facility for collecting. Checks and drafts, also money orders, should be made payable to D. L. Mitchell, Publisher.

We Can't do it but are willing to pay for learning how to make as good an article as Wolff's ACME BLACKING of cheap material so that a retailer can profitably sell it at 10c.

Our price is 20c.
The retailer says the public will not pay it. We say the public will, because they will always pay a fair price for a good article. To show both the trade and the public that we want to give them the best for the least money, we will pay

$10,000.00
Reward

For above information; this offer is open until January 1st, 1893.

WOLFF & RANDOLPH, Philadelphia.

Pik-Ron is the name of a paint which does work that no other paint can do. New wood painted with it looks like the natural wood when it is stained and varnished.
It will and it is profitable to investigate. As paint stores sell it.

Mrs. C. M. DORRATT,
Mrs. DRAKE GUICE,
Mrs. S. H. JOHNSON,
Committee.

Sold by All Grocers.

N. K. FAIRBANK & CO., Sole Manufacturers,
CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS, NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
BALTIMORE, NEW ORLEANS, SAN FRANCISCO,
PORTLAND, ME., PORTLAND, ORE., PITTSBURGH AND MILWAUKEE.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR
The Celebrated
CHOCOLAT
MENIER
Annual Sales Exceed 33 MILLION Lbs.
Write for Samples. Sent Free. Menier, Union Sq., N. Y.

HARDWOOD AND MARBLEIZED SLATE

MANTELS.

TILE HEARTHS, GRATES AND FIRE-PLACE TRIMMINGS.
GEO. M. LEAHY,
Advocate Building, - No. 112 Camp St., New Orleans.

WE THE JULY

PRONOUNCE W. C. SHEPARD & SON,
41 CAMP ST., near POYDRAS,
The Cheapest Groceries, Glass and House-Furnish-
ing House in the City.

Be sure and look them up when needing goods
in their line. 500 Dinner, Tea and Chamber Sets
at half price.

For First-Class Photographs

GO TO SIMON'S,

No. 183 Canal St., - - - New Orleans, La.

H. Dudley Coleman Machinery Co., Lim'd,
New Orleans, La.

STEAM ENGINES, BOILERS, MILLS AND MACHINERY,
Pumps, Pipe, Presses, Pulleys, Shafting,
Saw, Sugar and Corn Mills,
Cotton Gins, Feeders and Condensers.

Examine Our Stock. Our Prices Are Very Low.

FOUNDRY, FACTORY & OFFICE, SUPPLIES & SAMPLE STORE
Cor. Magnolia and Erato Sts. 9 Perdido St. New Orleans, La.

If readers of this advertisement who wish to purchase goods in our line would mention this paper when writing for information or when ordering goods from us, we could then determine whether the money we pay for advertising in this paper is well invested or not.
H. DUDLEY COLEMAN MACHINERY CO., LIMITED, New Orleans, La.

Latest Styles -- Lowest Prices!

This handsome Parlor Suit is upholstered on solid walnut frames with Imported Marbleized Silk Plush and the seats are all Spring Edge. Colors are Red, Red and Old Gold, Blue and Old Gold or each piece of a different color. For $45 I will sell seven pieces of this suit:--one Sofa, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair and three Reception Chairs. $65 buys the complete suit of ten pieces consisting of two Sofas, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair, and five Reception Chairs. Same suit covered with Hair Cloth, seven pieces $35 or ten pieces $55. Every other article in my store at proportionately low prices. Bedroom suits, twelve pieces, from $40 up to $1000 Dining room suits, eight pieces, from $17 upwards. Complete Kitchen outfits from $20 upwards. Quality at top--prices at bottom. I have an immense variety of strictly reliable goods and purchasers can depend upon getting the very latest styles. Everything guaranteed to be exactly as represented or money will be promptly refunded.

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE
in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT,

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE
in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30

Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company.

Losses Paid by Chicago Fire, 1871, $3,239,091.
Losses Paid by Boston Fire, 1872, $1,429,728.

All Losses Paid in Cash, without Discount, as Soon as Adjusted.
Losses and all matters of business settled by officers and directors in New Orleans without reference to any other office, the same as with local companies.

DIRECTORS IN NEW ORLEANS.
GUSTAF H. WESTFELDT, Chairman. L. C. FALLON, LUOAS E. MOORE, C. M. SORIA
CLARENCE F. LOW, Asst. Resident Sec'y. H. V. OGDEN, Resident Secretary.

The Southern Insurance Company

OF NEW ORLEANS.

54 - - - CAMP STREET - - - 54

Paid up Capital, $300,000. Assets, $545,096.10.

FIRE, RIVER AND MARINE INSURANCE.
This company by its conservative, yet liberal, business methods, and the immediate availability of its assets, affords complete security to its assured. Losses promptly adjusted and paid.

ERNEST MILTENBERGER, President. H. GALLY, Vice-President. SCOTT McGEHEE, Secretary.
FINANCE COMMITTEE.
Frank Roder, J. H. Meigs, Joseph Schwartz, F. G. Ernst, T. J. Woodward.

Home Insurance Co., of New Orleans.

No. 78 CAMP STREET.

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1886,	$400,479.08
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1887,	$413,860.76
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1888,	$459,869.50
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1889,	$510,584.54
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1890,	$557,897.82
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1891,	$600,414.81

Steadily Increasing in Strength and Popularity.
Sollicits Fire and River Business.

Liberal Settlements and Prompt Payments.

Thos. Sefton, Pres't. Capt. J. B. Woods, Vice-Pres't. Jno. G. Byrd, Sec'y
J. B. WOODS, JNO. J. BARR, J. E. LEVERT, W. B. BLOOMFIELD
JOS. BAYLE, ANDREW STEWART, E. BORLAND, W. T. HARDIE,
JNO. BARKLEY, CHAS. CHAFFE, P. R. RICE, THOS. SEFTON.

Crescent Insurance Com'y.

Incorporated as a Mutual Company in 1849.
Reorganized as a Stock Company in 1866.

Cash Capital, - - - - - $300,000.

Has paid over TEN AND ONE-HALF MILLIONS for losses since 1849. ANNUAL and TERM
POLICIES issued on Desirable Fire Business.

See our Agents throughout Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas.

GRATEFUL-COMFORTING.

EPPE'S COCOA.

BREAKFAST.
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Eppe has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease.
Hundreds of subtle malefices are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Made simply with boiling water or milk.
Sold only in half-pound tins, by Grocers, labelled thus:
JAMES EPPE & CO., Homoeopathic Chemists,
LONDON, ENGLAND.

"Sanctification,"

By DR. B. CARRADINE,
Is having a wonderful sale and doing a large amount of good.

Price: Paper, 40 cents; cloth, 80 cents.
For sale by F. D. VAN VALKENBURGH,
106 Camp St., New Orleans.

"SPURGEON'S LIFE."
We send a 50-cent outfit for 30 cents. We can ship you books quicker and cheaper than from anywhere else. Liberal terms.
F. D. VAN VALKENBURGH,
106 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

Base Ball Goods, Croquet, Fishing Tackle, Seines, Twines.
Refrigerators, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Baskets, Ham-
mooks, Lamps, Lanterns.
Fruit Jars, Corks, Bottles, Flasks,
Hardware, Tinware, Stationery,
Wrapping Paper and Bags.

FULL LINE OF
Wooden and Willowware, Brushes, etc.

J. C. MORRIS CO., Limited.

40, 42 and 44 Tchoupitoulas Street
E. F. DYER, Pres. E. P. MACKIE, Treas.

AGENTS WANTED!

Why you should send at once to New Orleans for your Prospectus of

"SPURGEON'S LIFE."
We send a 50-cent outfit for 30 cents. We can ship you books quicker and cheaper than from anywhere else. Liberal terms.
F. D. VAN VALKENBURGH,
106 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

The Argument Used

By the makers of the second-class baking powders to induce the dealer to push them off on Royal consumers is that they cost less than Royal and afford the dealer much more profit.

But you, madam, are charged the same price for them as for the absolutely pure Royal, which is perfectly combined from the most highly refined and expensive materials. The lower cost of the others is caused by the cheap, impure materials used in them, and the haphazard way in which they are thrown together.

Do you wish to pay the price of the Royal for an inferior baking powder, made from impure goods, of 27 per cent. less strength? If you buy the other powders, insist upon having a corresponding reduction in price.

Unparalleled Industrial Progress.

How rapid the industrial progress of the South has been for a decade and now is—rapid beyond the realization even of the men that are bringing it about—is seen in a compact article in the August number of The Forum, by Mr. Richard H. Edmonds, late editor of the Manufacturers' Record, of Baltimore, whose life's study has been given to the subject. Among the most significant facts set forth by Mr. Edmonds are these:

Since 1881 the corn crop of the South has increased 75 per cent., as against 71 per cent. in the rest of the country; the cotton crop has increased from five and a half million to nine million bales—an increase in value, even with the present low price, of two hundred millions of dollars; in 1891 there were nearly 45,000 miles of railroad in the South, against less than 24,000 in 1881—a gain of 87 per cent., as against a gain of 66 per cent. in the rest of the country. The passenger traffic of the same roads increased during the same period 360 per cent., as against an increase in the rest of the country of only 185 per cent. In pig-iron manufacture the South's output jumped from 451,000 tons in 1881 to 1,914,000 in 1891—a gain of 323 per cent., as against a gain for the rest of the country of 78 per cent.; in other words, in 1891 the North and West made more than nine times as much iron as the South, in 1891 they made less than four times as much. The increase in the number of mill operators in the South was 135 per cent., as against an increase in New England of 17 per cent. And so in every line of productive activity the marvelous rapidity of increase is explained, showing that in assessed valuations the property of the South has in this period very nearly doubled and increased from $187 per capita to $271—a record that is probably without a parallel in the whole history of substantial industrial growth. And in spite of the temporary depression caused by an over-production of cotton the increase goes on.

BRECHAM'S PILLS are faithful friends.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

NEW ORLEANS DIST.—THIRD ROUND.
Bayou, at Free Springs, Aug. 27, 28
Parker Chapel, at Free Springs, Aug. 29
Dryades, at Free Springs, Sept. 1
Craps, at Free Springs, Sept. 2
Gross Lake, at Free Springs, Sept. 3
Lower Canal, at Free Springs, Sept. 4
At these Conferences the Church Registers and records of Church Conferences will be called for.
C. W. CARTER, P. E.

ARODIA DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Easton, at Douglas, Aug. 27, 28
Vernon, at Douglas, Sept. 3, 4
Gaville, at Douglas, Sept. 5, 6
Vernon, at Douglas, Sept. 10, 11
Sparta, at Prospect, Sept. 12, 13
Kingsford, at Grand Bay, Sept. 14, 15
J. L. P. SHIFFARD, P. E.

ALEXANDRIA DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Amite, at Oak Grove, Aug. 27, 28
Centerville, at Jena, (Wed.), Sept. 7
Vidalia, at Vidalia, Sept. 10, 11
Black River, at Lake, Sept. 17, 18
Alexandria, at Lake, (Wed.), Sept. 24, 25
Montgomery, at Lake, Sept. 26, 27
J. IVY HOFFAUB, P. E.

DELHI DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Oak, at Texas Chapel, Aug. 27, 28
Waterproof, at Texas Chapel, Sept. 3, 4
Winboro, at Prairie, Sept. 10, 11
Indian Village, at Ancho, Sept. 12, 13
H. O. WHITE, P. E.

WORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

MOSCUSKO DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.
Walhall, at Free Springs, Sept. 17, 18
Maben, at Free Springs, Sept. 19, 20
Lonsville, at Free Springs, Oct. 1, 2
Ethel, at Free Springs, Oct. 3, 4
Chester, at Free Springs, Oct. 5, 6
New Port, at Free Springs, Oct. 12, 13
Kosciusko and Durant, at Free Springs, Oct. 19, 20
Bella, at Free Springs, Nov. 2, 3
Barn Hill, at Free Springs, Nov. 9, 10
Wells, at Free Springs, Nov. 16, 17
Pickett, at Free Springs, Nov. 23, 24
Ebeuter, at Free Springs, Dec. 1, 2
Lexington and Tchula, at Free Springs, Dec. 8, 9
Belona, at Free Springs, Dec. 15, 16
Poplar Creek, at Free Springs, Dec. 22, 23
H. A. BURROUGHS, P. E.

HOLLY SPRINGS DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Maple Springs, at Free Springs, Sept. 10, 11
Holly Springs station, at Free Springs, Sept. 17, 18
Myrtle, at Free Springs, Sept. 24, 25
Holly Springs circuit, at Free Springs, Oct. 1, 2
Lebanon, at Free Springs, Oct. 8, 9
Red Bank, at Free Springs, Oct. 15, 16
Ashland, at Free Springs, Oct. 22, 23
Byalla, at Free Springs, Oct. 29, 30
East Holly Springs circuit, at Free Springs, Nov. 5, 6
Early Grove, at Free Springs, Nov. 12, 13
Mount Pleasant, at Free Springs, Nov. 19, 20
Olive Branch, at Free Springs, Nov. 26, 27
J. W. BOYD, P. E.

SARDIS DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

St. Vernon, at Free Springs, Aug. 27, 28
Nashville, at Free Springs, Sept. 3, 4
Wall Hill, at Free Springs, Sept. 10, 11
Arkabula, at Free Springs, Sept. 17, 18
Also request that the Records of Church Conferences and Church Registers be presented at their respective Quarterly Conferences for examination.
H. O. MORRHEAD, P. E.

COLUMBUS DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Brookville, at Free Springs, Aug. 27, 28
Mashville, at Free Springs, Sept. 3, 4
Columbus circuit, at Free Springs, Sept. 10, 11
T. O. WIER, P. E.

CORINTH DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Ripley circuit, at Free Springs, Aug. 27, 28
Ripley and New Albany, at Free Springs, Sept. 3, 4
New Albany circuit, at Free Springs, Sept. 10, 11
W. S. LAGROSE, P. E.

ABERDEEN DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Amory and Smithville, at Free Springs, Aug. 27, 28
Houston and Wesley, at Free Springs, Sept. 3, 4
Pena Vista, at Free Springs, Sept. 10, 11
J. B. STONE, P. E.

WINONA DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Winona circuit, at Free Springs, Aug. 27, 28
Valden, at Free Springs, Sept. 3, 4
Carrollton circuit, at Free Springs, Sept. 10, 11
S. M. THAMES, P. E.

GRENADE DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Charleston circuit, at Gore's Chapel, Aug. 27, 28
Tillatoba circuit, at Ebenezer, (Tues.), Sept. 3, 4
Water Valley circuit, at Camp Ground, Sept. 10, 11
Let me urge the preachers to hold Church Conferences regularly; to be mindful of the ordinances of baptism and the Lord's Supper, and to exhort the people to fast and pray.
W. T. J. SULLIVAN, P. E.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

MERIDIAN DIST.—THIRD ROUND.
West Wayne circuit, (Thurs., Fri.), Aug. 26, 28
Shubuta circuit, at Quitman, Sept. 3, 4
Olarke circuit, at Liberty, Sept. 10, 11
Porterville circuit, at Barton, Sept. 17, 18
Marion circuit, at Barton, Sept. 24, 25
Attention of the preachers is called to Ques. 14 as well as to Ques. 15, to which the notice of Church Conference secretaries is also called. The books should be present for examination. Let the quarterly fast be observed. Let us continue to pray for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon preachers and people.
T. L. MELLER, P. E.

SEASHORE DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Ellisville, at Laurel, Aug. 27, 28
Purvis, at Poplarville, Sept. 3, 4
East Pearl, at Bay's Chapel, Sept. 10, 11
Kashubie, at Pardo, Sept. 17, 18
Hattiesburg, at Enon, Sept. 24, 25
Williamsburg, at Oklawaha, Sept. 3, 4
Mt. Carmel, at Mt. Moriah, (Tues.), Sept. 10, 11
Columbia, at Poplar Springs, (Thurs.), Sept. 17, 18
JOHN A. ELLIS, P. E.

BRANDON DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Brandon station, at Free Springs, Sept. 3, 4
Hillboro, at New Providence, Sept. 10, 11
Haisigh, at Boykin's, Sept. 17, 18
Trenton, at Trenton, Sept. 24, 25
Westville, at Pleasant Grove, Sept. 3, 4
Mt. Rose, at Holder's, Sept. 10, 11
Columbia, at Poplar Springs, (Thurs.), Sept. 17, 18
O. McDONALD, P. E.

BROOKHAVEN DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Magnolia, at Muddy Springs, Aug. 27, 28
McComb City, at Free Springs, Sept. 3, 4
Summit, at Free Springs, Sept. 10, 11
Lebanon, at Fine Hill, Sept. 17, 18
Gowerton, at Pleasant Valley, Sept. 24, 25
Gallman, at Mt. Pleasant, Sept. 3, 4
Terry, at Byrum, Sept. 10, 11
Chick Grove, at Free Springs, Sept. 17, 18
Pleasant Grove circuit, at Free Springs, Sept. 24, 25
R. S. WOODWARD, P. E.

WOODVILLE DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Amite City, at Tangipahoa, Aug. 27, 28
Amite, at Camp Ground, Sept. 3, 4
Gloster and Centerville, at Camp G., Sept. 10, 11
Franklin, at Fisher's, Sept. 17, 18
St. Helena, at Pine Grove, Sept. 24, 25
Live Oak, at Bethel, Sept. 3, 4
East Feliciana, at Oldfield, Sept. 10, 11
Springfield, at Wesley Chapel, Sept. 17, 18
Covington, at Camp Ground, Sept. 24, 25
Talisheek, at Camp Ground, Sept. 3, 4
P. A. JOHNSON, P. E.

VICKSBURG DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Port Gibson, at Free Springs, Aug. 27, 28
South Warren, at Free Springs, Sept. 3, 4
Bozoy, at Free Springs, Sept. 10, 11
Warren, at Oak Ridge, Sept. 17, 18
Anguilla and Rolling Fork, at Free Springs, Sept. 24, 25
Rocky Springs, at Free Springs, Sept. 3, 4
Ulica, at Free Springs, Sept. 10, 11
D. A. LITTLE, P. E.

JACKSON DIST.—THIRD ROUND.

Yazoo circuit, at Traquair, Aug. 27, 28
Raymond circuit, at Raymond, Sept. 3, 4
Edwards, at Free Springs, Sept. 10, 11
Lake City and Lodi circuit, at Lodi, Sept. 17, 18
Benton circuit, at Bowman's, Sept. 24, 25
Silver Creek circuit, at Silver City, Sept. 3, 4
Pocahontas circuit, at Flag's Chapel, Oct. 1, 2
Special attention is called to Ques. 15.
E. H. MOUNGER, P. E.

An Only Daughter Cured of Consumption.

When death was hourly expected from Consumption, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting, he accidentally made a preparation of Indian Hemp, which cured his only child, and now gives this recipe free on receipt of two stamps to pay expenses. Hemp also cures night sweats, nausea at the stomach, and will break a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address Craddock & Co., 129 Race street, Philadelphia, Pa., sending this paper.

Mormon missionaries are at work in London.

They have been especially active in the northern part of the city, and have gained a number of converts to their faith.

NEWS OF THE WEEK.

DOMESTIC.

There is a split in the Democratic party in Texas, and both factions have nominated tickets for State officers.

An engine exploded on the Iron Mountain road near Memphis, Tenn., on Aug. 21. The engineer and fireman were killed.

Eugene Bunch, the famous train robber, was killed near Franklinton, Washington parish, La., on Aug. 22, in an encounter with officers of the law.

Under the operation of the Saturday half-holiday law, which went into effect on Aug. 20, the local banks and the various departments of the municipal government closed at noon on that day.

The striking switchmen of the Lehigh Valley and Erie railroad, at Buffalo, are held in check by the militia, who are present in large force to preserve good order and prevent interference with moving trains.

Treasury officials state that the department has a balance of $50,000,000, and their revenues, notwithstanding the loss of $90,000,000 on sugar, are increasing at the rate of $1,000,000 a month from customs alone.

The Annual Encomiement of the Knights of Pythias was begun in Kansas City, Mo., on Aug. 21. Two hundred trains brought in 18,000 visitors on the opening day, and it is estimated that 3,800 men were in camp.

Owing to the great reduction made in the appropriation for carrying on the work of the geological survey, a great many of the officials have been compelled to resign and take places elsewhere. Some have agreed to stay and complete the work upon which they are engaged without pay.

President Harrison has issued a proclamation providing that a toll shall be exacted on all freight passing through the St. Mary's Canal in transit to any part of the Dominion of Canada, whether carried in vessels of the United States or other nations. This is a measure of retaliation against the discrimination now enforced in the Canadian canals against American cargo.

The striking miners in the Tennessee coal regions attacked the State troops near Coal Creek, on Aug. 19, and a battle ensued in which five men were killed and three wounded. Two volunteers and two militiamen were killed, while the miners sustained a loss of fifteen men killed and many wounded. The State authorities are now in possession of the disputed property.

There have been rumors current to the effect that the clerical force of the New Orleans Postoffice was going to be largely reduced on account of the alleged falling off in the business of the office, caused by the prohibition of Lottery matter in the mails. According to the statement, there is no foundation for the statement. This year the total amount allowed the postmaster for clerical expenses is the same as last year; consequently there will be no reduction in the size of the force.

FOREIGN.

Three hundred houses in Zerdovsk, Russia, were destroyed by fire last week. Over two thousand persons were rendered homeless.

The International Peace Congress was opened in Bern, Switzerland, on Aug. 22. Nearly all European nations are represented in the congress. A number of American delegates are present.

The Cologne Gazette has begun an agitation against permitting the use of the French language in the Catholic Church of Alsace-Lorraine. Complaints are made that sermons in French are delivered in the Strasbourg Cathedral.

At the session of the British House of Commons, on Aug. 18, the victorious Liberals changed their seals, going over to the ministerial side of the chamber. The Irish members, however, remained on the opposition benches, as did also the Laborites.

Orders have been issued by the German authorities, declaring that inasmuch as examination proves that many American hams and sides of bacon contain trichina, imports of such provisions must not be placed upon sale unless they have been examined by the Prussian authorities.

It is said that the managers of the Peruvian railways, after long and careful tests, have decided to use oil instead of coal as fuel for the locomotives. The oil used is not of crude petroleum, but a residuum of oil of about 300 degrees fire test. The experiments made show that the same speed and power can be obtained with the oil at a great saving of expense.

Emperor William's declaration that the government did not intend to adopt the proposal for two years' military service, instead of three years, as at present, is considered in the official circle to involve the immediate retirement of Chancellor Von Caprivi, who supports, and in fact, brought forward the proposal. The estimates prepared on the projected two years' service bill showed that it would be necessary to demand at the outset a reforming of the army expenditures, amounting to 150,000,000 marks, with an addition to the war budget of 20,000,000 marks.

Mr. Gladstone's election of some members of the radical section for minor posts in the government has not remedied the tactical mistake made in the exclusion of radical representatives from the cabinet. Mr. Gladstone's plans to meet some of the dangers threatening an early overthrow of the government are already seen in the formation of cabinet committees. One committee is charged with the labor questions, another is to draft bills for rural reform and local option, and the third is charged with a measure of the first importance: reforming electoral legislation.

Take Hood's and only Hood's, because Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures. It possesses merit peculiar to itself. Try it yourself.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, effective, but do not cause pain or gripe. Be sure to get Hood's.

Camp Meeting Calendar.

Camp Meeting	Begins
Sam Jones	Aug. 26
Lake	Aug. 26
Oxford	Aug. 26
Hennington	Sept. 1
Water Valley	Sept. 2
Whittington	Sept. 30
St. Tammany	Sept. 30
Palmer	Oct. 2
Leaf River	Oct. 7

Cheap Homes and Excursion to Beeville, Tex.

We have sub-divided 20,000 acres into small farms; easy payments; will help improve. New colony; has fifty families, store, gin, physician, post-office, school, church, telephone line. Everything desirable. See these lands by buying an excursion ticket to Beeville. One fare round trip on Aug. 30, Sept. 27, or Oct. 25, 1892. Maps and particulars free by Enterprise Land Co., Beeville, Tex.

Philip Warlein, Esq.—one of the largest dealers in choice Pianos, Organs, Music and Musical Instruments in the South—offers unusual bargains to purchasers prior to his removal to his old stand, No. 135 Canal St., New Orleans, which he will do in a few days. He is doing a large business.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION

State Normal School, NATCHITOCHES, LA.

Reopens Oct. 3, 1892. Both Sexes Admitted. Attendance Last Session, 270.

Faculty of eleven able instructors.

Unsurpassed in beauty and healthfulness of location, thoroughness of instruction, and perfection of discipline. Diploma entitles holder to First Grade teacher's certificate without examination. Tuition free. Total expense need not exceed $10 per annum.

For particulars, address

THOS. D. BOYD, President.

ACADIA

Literary and Commercial College.

CROWLEY, Acadia Parish, La.

Co-educational. Healthful location. Students board in College-building with President's family. Full Art, Music, Literary and Commercial Courses. Buildings new and well-furnished. Expenses very low. Fall term begins Sept. 20, 1892. For terms and Catalogue address C. F. EMERY, A. M., President.

Seashore : Seminary

Will begin its Second Session, Sept. 1, 1892.

Located at Long Beach.

Situation accessible, beautiful and healthful. Instruction thorough in all departments.

Rev. B. JONES, Principal.

HOLLINS INSTITUTE

HOTSPRINGS, ARK.

For Young Ladies, Opens Sept. 1, 1892. Both year, 27 Officers and Teachers. Preparatory, Collegiate, Philosophical and Literary Departments. Courses in Music, Art and Education. Beautifully situated in Valley of Virginia, on N. W. R. R., near Hot Springs. Climate unrivaled. Recruit Equipment. Write for Illustrated Catalogue to CHAS. L. COCKE, Sept., Hot Springs, Va.

Lauderdale Training-School,

AT LAUDERDALE SPRINGS, MISS.

(Junction of M. and O. and E. T. 18 miles north of Meridian.)

H. E. HARRIS, A. B. (V. U.), G. W. BURTON, A. M. (S. D.), both year, 27 Officers and Teachers. Preparatory, Collegiate, Philosophical and Literary Departments. Courses in Music, Art and Education. Beautifully situated in Valley of Virginia, on N. W. R. R., near Hot Springs. Climate unrivaled. Recruit Equipment. Write for Illustrated Catalogue to CHAS. L. COCKE, Sept., Hot Springs, Va.

SOUTHERN ACADEMIC INSTITUTE.

Mrs. J. E. SEAMAN, Principal.

French and English School for Young Ladies. Graded and Chartered. Boarding Department a specialty. New Buildings, Large Grounds. Kindergarten with Normal Training. Send for Circular, 216 Coliseum, New Orleans.

Southern University,

GREENSBORO, ALA.

The next session will open Sept. 21. Course of study: Classical, Scientific and Practical. Its graduates are in demand. Expense very moderate. For catalogue address

Rev. F. M. PETERSON, Sec.

Iuka Normal Institute,

IUKA, MISS.

Expenses for term of 10 weeks, $38.75; 40 weeks, $155.50; 48 weeks, $185. I am not trying to run the cheap school in the South. I am trying to run the best one. Success. Schools supplied with teachers. Write to

H. A. DEAN, Prin.

Tuskaloosa Female College,

TUSKALOOSA, ALA.,

Offers superior advantages in every department of female education.

Session Opens Oct. 6.

For catalogue, giving full information, apply to

ALONZO HILL, President.

KNABE PIANOS.

UNEQUALLED IN

Tone, Touch, Workmanship and Durability

Baltimore, 22 and 24 East Baltimore St.

New York, 145 Fifth Ave.

Washington, 817 Market Space.

BUSINESS NOTICES.

OFFICE OF NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Letters or postal cards have been received during the past week from the following persons, and their instructions complied with:

Rev. Wm. Rice Sims, II. F. Lewis, Jno. Matthews, J. F. Robinson, A. J. Lamar, H. Armstrong, Men Jones, J. W. Thinh, II. M. Evans, D. G. Rayle, Ben. H. Jacob, M. H. Honnoll, R. G. Porter, J. F. Wynn, J. C. Campbell, G. W. Ferrer, G. W. Bachman, II. M. Duhose, W. T. Griffin, W. H. Sanders, J. E. Buck, D. G. W. Ellis, A. Davis, W. C. Biberon, H. Richard, J. B. Casely, W. B. Lewis, J. B. Parker.

Messrs. John S. Lee (2), D. M. Foster, E. H. Randell, C. F. Emery (2), M. J. S. Calhoun, James M. Iles, S. T. Toms, Nelson (Hillhead), G. A. Bolton, Geo. J. Kelley, Wm. E. Talley, C. E. Nelson, Ben. J. Rayner, of Early Grove, Miss.; J. A. Moody, A. B. Robertson, Blackwell, Thos. P. Clinton, A. A. McKay, A. S. Hopkins, H. F. Saunders, A. M. Wansley, Messdames A. C. Gilliam, J. W. Richardson, H. M. Montgomery, H. W. Pugh, Eliza Owen, John Lawhorn, J. H. Fox, Misses Herbie Eaton, Pearl Eaton, Mary Gordon Duffee, Aug. 23.

For Over Fifty Years

Mrs. Winklow's SOOTHING SYRUP has been used for children teething. It soothes the child, softens the gums, allays all pain, cures wind colic, and is the best remedy for Diarrhea. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

All persons desiring to purchase choice Pianos, Organs, Musical Instruments or Music, should not fail to visit the large establishment of L. Grunewald Co., Limited, at Nos. 127 Canal and 14 to 20 Baronne streets, New Orleans.

MALONE COLLEGE.

(For Young Ladies.)

Under the Auspices of the M. K. Church, South. HOLLY SPRINGS, MISS.

The Second Annual Session Will Begin Monday, Sept. 5, 1892.

Location, highest point in the State. Elevation 861 feet. Health unsurpassed in the South. Holly Springs is situated on the junction of two great railway systems.

Course thorough and comprehensive. Each department under the charge of specialists. Special advantages offered in Music, Art and Education. A Home-School for pupils under Christian influences.

Terms moderate. For catalogues or further particulars address

Rev. J. W. HONNOLL, President.

Clinton Female Academy

(Chartered in 1852.)

Will Open Monday, Sept. 5, 1892.

Course thorough. Charges lower than offered by any school of its grade in the South.

CHARGES PER MONTH.

Christian Advocate.

VOL. 39.—NO. 35.

NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 1, 1892.

WHOLE NO. 1880.

Rev. C. W. CARTER, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. LEWIS, Asst. Editor.

PUBLISHED FOR THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE AND NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

The Wesleyan Conference.

My last letter was written the day after arriving at Bradford, and the rest of the Conference. Mention was made, I believe, of the election of Dr. J. H. Rigg to the presidency—the second time that high honor has been conferred upon the distinguished educator, author and ecclesiastical statesman. There is strong sentiment in the body against electing anyone a second time to the chair; but it was universally agreed that, if the distinction should ever be given, Dr. J. H. Rigg completely deserved it. He has extended marked courtesies to this American representative, and introduced me, on the evening of my formal reception, in most generous terms, paying a high tribute to our great church. Dr. Waller's splendid secretarial qualities will probably delay for while his election to the presidency. He was re-elected to the desk by a practically unanimous vote.

One thing impresses an American stranger as a peculiar variance from our confessional methods—the formal presentation of votes of thanks to retiring officers, and responses thereto. All these are written in advance, and mentioned in the "Blue Book" as a part of the proceedings. The president announces that the resolution of thanks to the ex-president will be moved by —, seconded by —, and supported by —, after which the ex-president responds. The same formality is observed in the case of the secretary.

The ex-president makes a short speech in welcoming the president-elect to the chair, and turns over to him Wesley's Bible—the one used in his evangelistic journeyings—the seal, and other insignia of office. On taking the chair the president delivers an address. Dr. Rigg was broad and statesmanlike in suggestion, careful in statement, and profoundly spiritual in tone.

On the platform, to the right of the president, sit the ex-presidents, the one just retiring from office nearest the chair, and others called upon to preside. These venerable men of the platform take an active part in the debates, and are listened to with great respect. That, however, can not be said for all who have the temerity to take the floor. If he does not make his points readily, and show that he has something to communicate, he is mercilessly cried down. And in this matter there is no respect of persons in the body of the house. But, on the other hand, good talkers gain an attentive hearing, though their measures may fail to carry. There are some very excellent debaters, among whom Rev. Hugh Price Hughes is, undoubtedly, exceptionally dexter and brilliant. The debate on the pastoral term was quite able—covering a wide field, and touching every vital question connected with the itinerant policy. Dr. Jennings, opposing any extension of the time limit, argued that the purity of Methodist doctrine had been preserved by the swift moving of the preachers, and insisted strongly that a settled pastorate would imperil their theology. The whole question was finally referred to another committee to further consider it, and present a report to the next Conference.

The two "Blue Books," or "Agenda," as now called—one for the "Pastoral Session," when only ministers are present, and one for the "Representative Session," when the laymen elected by the district meetings are in their seats—contain full, detailed reports from departmental officers, institutions of learning and Conference committees, and suggestions from the district meetings. Thus the business to be considered by the Conference is largely prepared in advance. The stationing of preachers, and questions of character, administration, etc., are considered in the Pastoral Session. All matters of legislation are passed upon in the Representative Session. This "yearly Conference," therefore, combines the functions of the General and Annual Conference, as known to our system. The most thoughtful, conservative men are patiently studying important modifications of their system. The Conference is too large, and its varied functions too incoherent for the best results.

Men like Rev. Wm. Arthur, and others, truly say that the American plan of releasing chairmen of districts (presiding elders) from pastoral service, and the appointment of preachers direct, without invitations on the one hand and acceptance on the other, would be far preferable to the one now obtaining. And more than one of the most distinguished leaders have said to me that a grave mistake was made in not adopting an episcopal form of government as in America. All of which, and more, I am prepared to endorse after the most diligent study of their system, and the conditions of life and thought in this Old World. There seems to be positive waste of men and opportunity in adhering so rigidly to the old circuit system in the cities. The energies and abilities of strong men, which ought to be delivered on one congregation, are largely dissipated by being scattered over an immense circuit with one city church and a number of village chapels. One man told me he could only preach in the principal church on his circuit once in two weeks. Then, again, this system requires a great deal of preaching to very small congregations. From inquiries made, I learn that most of the ministers preach from two to three times on the Sabbath, and, at least, twice during the week.

Under the management of Rev. Walford Green, there has been a "forward movement" in providing for the worn-out preachers. He has raised by special private effort, during the past two years, $100,000 for that fund, to be invested in interest-bearing securities. There was already quite a sum so invested. In addition, there is, as with us, an annual collection for the same sacred object. And in addition to all that, there is an "Annuity Society" in the Conference—a sort of insurance company of their own—with a capital of about $1,000,000, and to which each member pays annually $30, that largely increases the yearly income of worn-out preachers and the widows and orphans. Their whole method of administering this fund proceeds upon a different principle from ours—we give as a charity, they as a right. They distribute, therefore, according to term of service, and not solely on account of necessity, as in our system. Each minister placed on the retired list receives annually $70, and $5 in addition for every year he has traveled. Widows receive one-eighth less, on the same basis. From the Annuity Society, if he is a member, he receives $27.50, and ten shillings additional for each year traveled up to thirty years, when it is increased to five dollars a year. Thus you see an old veteran is able to retire, after forty years of service, on a moderately comfortable income. The wisdom of such a plan is commended to the thoughtful student of our ecclesiastical system.

The detailed minute reports of departmental officers impressed me. The Book Committee, for instance, reported the number and titles of books published during the year, with a careful statement of the entire business of the house. These items indicate that the house, under the management of Rev. C. H. Kelley, is prospering. He told me, however, that the hymn book was their principal and reliable source of profit.

GRANTS OUT OF PROFITS.

To Ireland	£ 300
Home Mission and Contingent Fund	500
Worn-out Ministers and Widows	500
Methodist Preachers' Annuity Society	2,000
To same, in reduction of loan	1,000

Rev. Dr. Gregory retires from the Book Editorship, a position he has adorned for many years, and is to be succeeded by Rev. W. L. Watkins—a gentleman of varied culture, with remarkable literary gifts, a brilliant writer and very attractive preacher. His speech in response to the Non-conformist deputations was one of the most original and sparkling I have ever heard in my life.

But from the columns of the Methodist Recorder you can glean items of Conference business, and also an account of the "Open Session" on Monday evening, when Dr. Moulton reported his visit to Omaha, and the fraternal messengers from Canada and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, were formally and most cordially received. An immense audience crowded to its utmost capacity Eastbrook Chapel, and gave the speakers a helpful hearing. My reception, officially and personally, has been most fraternal. Dr. Stephenson read the action of our General Conference the action of our General Conference and my credentials, and in a neat speech presented me to the president, who, the whole Conference standing and applauding, introduced me to the body, making the most generous references to our church. Socially, I have had much coveted fellowship with the noble men of the mother Conference. One evening Mr. Holden had quite a number to dinner with us at Oakworth House, including such names as Rev. Wm. Arthur, Dr. Beet, the commentator; Dr. Slater, author and professor; Rev. Thomas Allen, James Chapman, and others. Mr. Arthur and his daughter came again, and spent two or three days with us, and on yesterday I dined with him at Lily, a beautiful suburban town, where he is staying during Conference. And also with Dr. Rigg, Rev. Frederick W. McDonald and Rev. John Telford, I enjoyed the hospitality of Sir Henry Mitchell, a wealthy manufacturer and leading Methodist layman in Bradford. On Thursday evening the Mayor and Mayoress gave a reception to the Conference and visitors at the Town Hall. And so times have changed. The once despised Methodists have become a power in this Old World. Once welcomed with aloofness and glee, they are now honored and feasted.

On Sunday, last, I preached at Halloworth, where Mr. Wesley's great friend, Rev. Wm. Grimshaw, was vicar, and who built the first chapel for the Methodists there, and presented it to them. In after years the father of Charlotte Brontë was the incumbent, and from that rectory her facile pen charmed the millions. On Wednesday I visited Epworth, taking Doncaster en route, and a pleasant three hours with Dr. Trippett and family. Their love for Louisiana grows with years, and in turn they laugh and cry over incidents and friends in that goodly land. Bro. Trippett accompanied me to Epworth, and contributed much to the pleasure and profit of the day. But of this I must write at length.

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY.

Bradford, July 30, 1892.

Bethel Camp Meeting.

Nine miles east of Woodville stands an old brick church, with its quaint old pulpit and pews, named Bethel. Here, in days ante-bellum, the Methodists of Wilkinson, Amite and Adams counties, and the contiguous parishes of Louisiana, met annually for camp meeting, on which occasions Winans and Watkins and Drake and John G. Jones and Godfrey and others preached; and Edward McGehee and John S. Lewis and Tigmer and James and Stockett and Winans and Whitaker and others were the tenters. Thousands heard the gospel here, and hundreds were here "born of God," many of whom are now in heaven. Thirty-two years ago the last of that glorious series of camp meetings was held. At that meeting B. M. Drake preached a sermon which is still remembered.

Last year, at a protracted meeting at old Bethel, it was resolved that we re-instate the camp ground. Times are hard, and we started modestly, erecting a brush arbor and a preachers' tent, and turning the adjoining parsonage into a boarding-house. Seven tenters erected neat tents. On Thursday, Aug. 4, the meeting began, and it continued eleven days. The congregations were large. Presiding Elder Johnston, Rev. L. Carley, J. R. Whittington, R. W. Tucker and G. W. Huff were present part of the time. The pastor, Rev. J. W. Sandell, and this writer were there throughout. Forty persons joined the church; the conversions and reclamations approximated seventy-five. Although the weather was unfavorable, and toward the last very bad, yet the interest was unabated to the very last service.

Ample subscriptions were taken to erect a large tabernacle and beautify the grounds, and a large number signified their intention to build tents; so we have every reason to believe that Bethel Camp Meeting next year will rival Crystal Springs and Seashore.

Bethel is beautifully situated on the rolling lands overlooking a little creek. Oaks, beeches, poplars, etc., shade the grounds and the adjacent hills and plains. Numerous springs of the purest, coolest water break out at the foot of the hill, less than two hundred yards from the tabernacle. The church owns eighty acres of this magnificent land.

I never saw better order at a camp meeting than we had at Bethel. Our rules were respected, our services were uninterrupted, and our tenters were not annoyed by noise at night. Bethel will always have good order while under its present management.

Bethel is about seven miles west of Whitaker, on the L., N. O. and T. R. R., easy of access, and far enough from the railroad to be free from the troublesome classes who sometimes flock to camp meetings.

H. WALTER FEATHERSTUN.
Woodville, Miss.

Topisaw Camp Meeting.

A camp meeting comes and goes like a cyclone. While it is in progress, it seems the most natural thing in the world to see tall pines twisted in two, or being piled together in confusion, and it is only afterward that we think of its power.

Our meeting was opened with a "centre shot" from our able young brother of McComb City, and was continued for seven days, with the best of preaching and the most gracious results. There were six accessions. Two young men responded to the call to preach the gospel, and a young preacher gave himself for the mission work in foreign fields. The number of sinners converted, with those to whom the joy of salvation was restored, was but little less than a hundred.

Some of our older preachers and many of our tent holders regard the meeting just closed as one of the best ever held at Topisaw, in point of deep, religious feeling, and in widening, far-reaching results. The success of the meeting, after much prayer, was due to strong preaching and faithful altar work.

The preachers present, beside our presiding elder, were Bros. Jas. Lewis, Murray Elder, Winburn, Scarborough, Alford, King, Cammack, Burton, Howard, Hoover, and Drs. Weems, West and Murrah.

The Weason preacher was with us from first to last. His preaching was acceptable. A genial humor played like summer lightning about his sermons, as he uttered the thoughts of a sage in the language of a child. He said his congregation sent him away to rest, and he did more preaching than any man on the ground. His first sermon was on "Rest," and he told us of the rest he found during the "late unpleasantness," in sleeping on rails, in dusty marches and in the midst of battle; and if his people sent him away to seek the quiet satisfaction that is found in hard work, he certainly rested well.

Dr. Murrah's sermon on Sunday, at eleven o'clock, was on "The Choice of Moses." It was a masterly analysis of the duplex nature of man, revealing a beautiful ideal of Christian manhood—even an image like unto the Son of God. Such preaching, like the Christian culture for which the preacher stands, must surely result in the spiritual uplifting of our people.

Dr. Weems, at Topisaw, is on his native heath, and he preached with power. On the last night of the meeting, his sermon on the relation of the man Jesus to God was impressive, and the hearts of the people were held in a solemn stillness. The spirit of consecration that we received at the altar will be manifested in our future lives.

J. HERBERT WOODWARD, P. C.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. W. F. Sanders, Gansville, La., Aug. 18: "Just closed a fine revival at Antioch, Winn parish. No accessions, from the fact that almost everybody is a member of some branch of the Christian Church. God was present in great power. Many shouted the praises of God. The meeting was short—only five days, with two sermons a day."

Rev. G. E. Greene, P. C., Lind Grove circuit: "Our meeting at Bartholomew lasted nearly two weeks. Nine accessions, and one yet to be received. Bros. H. W. and H. D. Knickerbocker and I. T. Reames helped us. The meeting at Mt. Carmel resulted in five accessions—all to be received. One little girl, Zilphy Seary, has raised $1 with selling muscadines and water-melons, to pay the missionary debt. I had given her a 'Shine for Jesus' card."

Rev. W. J. Dawson, Oktibbeha, Miss., Aug. 19: "I closed my meeting at Linwood yesterday. Visible results are 18 accessions—17 whites, 1 Indian. Many pray in public who never did so before. I can not tell how many were converted. The work done among the members of the church was very deep.

Our class meeting on Monday morning was the best I ever saw; none excepted. We hope to soon have a new church at Linwood. This is my second year on this work, and I think it will be the best."

Rev. J. P. Drake, Shubuta, Miss., Aug. 15: "Beginning July 31, we held a meeting at this place twice or thrice daily till Aug. 8. Bro. J. W. Chambers did most of the preaching and much of the singing. His word came warm from the heart to the heart. More practical, pointed and direct preaching we have seldom heard. The church was much stirred, and many were deeply moved. We had four accessions to our church. Our Baptist brethren share some of the blessing. Bro. Chambers' work was truly catholic. Prayer meeting and Sunday-school Bible study improved."

Rev. Geo. W. Huff, North Wilkenson circuit, Mississippi Conference, Aug. 21: "Just closed a good meeting at Hopewell Church. Four new members added to our ranks. We have two other denominations within the bounds of this circuit, and their preachers are sowing the seeds of discord in every place they go. They are simply lighting the Methodist Church. I find their literature in a few Methodist homes, and in their literature I find that we are ridiculed and slandered. May the Lord have mercy on a poor little preacher and denomination that can't live friendly with their neighbors! Praise the Lord! our church is looking this country for God. We have received nearly 100 members in a year and a half on this work."

Rev. M. L. White, Mt. Carmel, Miss., Aug. 19: "I have just closed a meeting at Sautee Church. Bro. Howell was with us; preached seven times, to the delight of all who heard. Every sermon was attended by the Holy Spirit. Meeting resulted in 8 accessions to the church; about 15 conversions. Young men prayed in public who had not done so before. In this church we have an organ and a splendid organist. The singing was equal to any that I have heard. This is said by members to be the best meeting here for years. On the last day of meeting, after the people had given Bro. Howell a token of their appreciation of him, they presented their pastor with a buggy. Mt. Carmel circuit is considerably on the up-grade; 33 accessions to date."

Rev. G. H. Jacobs, Olive Branch, Miss., Aug. 17: "I send report of three meetings, in which God manifested himself in power, and sinners were convicted and converted after the old-time method. Twenty-nine in all were converted, and 24 joined the church, and others will join. The church was wonderfully revived and brought to a fuller sense of Christian obligation, and quite a number who had backslidden were reclaimed and brought back to the fold. We were ably assisted by Bros. Koon, Young and McKeown, all of whom did faithful preaching, and won the hearts of my people, and to whom we return hearty thanks for their faithful work. We hold another meeting next week, of which we will give a report later. May the good Lord continue the good work! The Lord bless you!"

Rev. W. T. Woodward, Ponchatoula, La., Aug. 24: "We have held two protracted meetings on the work, the first being at Killian Chapel. Rev. John Boyce and P. M. Brown conducted this one for me, as I was denied the pleasure of attending at all on account of sickness. These brethren did faithful, earnest work. To them many thanks. Our second was held at Wesley Chapel, four and a half miles east of Ponchatoula. I commenced the services Wednesday night, Aug. 17. Dr. T. S. West, of Weason, Miss., being off on a rest, stopped over with us on Saturday, preached for us Saturday night, and dedicated our church Sunday, at eleven o'clock. He preached six sermons, to the delight and to the edification of my people. Our church is nearing completion in Ponchatoula. When finished, it will be the prettiest building in town. Our work is gradually improving. Pray for us."

Rev. E. S. Lewis, Dublin, Miss., Aug. 15: "Our meeting at this place closed last night after having continued for nine days. My brother, T. W. Lewis, of Holly Springs, did all the preaching after he came, and it was the kind of preaching that stirred men's hearts and consciences. God gave us a great and glorious victory over the evil one, and our hearts are glad. Twenty joined the church, and the community was powerfully stirred. Sometimes there were twenty-five penitents at the altar together, and they were in earnest. They were not dry-eyed penitents, either, like some we have seen. Young ladies of refinement and young men of sense and men with brawny muscles thought it not beneath their dignity to acknowledge Jesus. They were gathered from the Sunday-school very largely. They range in age from twelve to sixty-five. We have not had such a meeting here for years. To God be all the praise."

Rev. H. P. Crow, Shaw, Miss., Aug. 8: "We wish to say that we have closed our protracted meetings for Shaw and New Salem charge with fine results. The Divine Spirit was in our midst doing his work. Held our meeting at New Salem Church last week; assisted the better part by Rev. J. W. Honnoll, who did grand service for the Master, which resulted in 9 additions to the church. We have received this quarter 21 members, baptized 14 adults and 12 infants. Have raised $110 for the parsonage, and 2 cows donated to the parsonage. Preacher's salary very well up. Raised on collections by subscription $70, and the good work still goes on. Prospect bright for the future. We believe this is God's country. The devil has had the proceeds of this country long enough, and we are expecting the tide to turn. For such we are praying and laboring. God be praised for what he has done for us this year. All glory and honor to his name forever and ever! Amen!"

Rev. J. E. Riddle, Plaquemine, La., Aug. 22: "Yesterday was a delightful time with us. A large and attentive congregation heard the good old story of Jesus, the great Physician of a sin-sick world." The collection was $1.15. I announced that at night we would take a collection to aid in paying the hundred-thousand dollar debt, missionary. Of course, "missions" was my theme for the hour (half-hour). There were 17 hearers present—5 children, 6 men and 6 ladies. Methodist, three—one a Northern; the rest Presbyterian, or non-members of the church. The offering amounted to $3.60. We purpose repeating this program next Sabbath, at 7:30 p. m., at Donaldsonville; and when we again visit our little flock in St. James, we shall there also repeat it. So, dear Dr. Lambuth and all other noble leaders in this great enterprise of the church, we desire to have some part in the work, if it is no more than to give the fragments that are left, or the crumbs that fall from the tables of this prosperous, if not opulent, people. And we know that in proportion as we give, and deny ourselves to give, the richness of the divine blessing shall fall upon us and upon ours. If we would grow in love for home, we should send our love abroad."

Rev. W. H. Sanders, Sison, Miss., North Mississippi Conference, Aug. 18: "My third Quarterly Conference met on the sixth and seventh of this month. Bro. Thames was with us in trim. We have the frame of a new church-building, which will be completed in about three weeks, and is worth about one thousand dollars. I commenced my meeting at this place on Sunday, Aug. 7. Dr. Murrah was with me in the beginning, and preached three strong gospel sermons. Dr. Murrah won the hearts of our young men, and we feel assured he will make Millsaps the leading college of our State. R. H. B. Gladney came to our assistance Tuesday morning, remaining till Thursday of this week. We have had the best meeting this church has ever experienced. Ten of our best men of the town have joined the church, and still others are to follow. The church has been greatly strengthened spiritually, as well as numerically. Had it not been for sickness and bad weather, we would have won the entire town for Christ. Bro. Gladney won the hearts of all our people, proving that we seldom need other evangelists beside our itinerants. We closed our meeting Thursday, at eleven A. M., with all the members begging that it be continued. We are moving on well and will be ready for Conference."

NATURE.

BY H. W. LINGFELLOW.

As a fond mother, when the day is over,
Leads by the hand her little child to bed,
Halt willing, half reluctant to be led,
And leaves his broken playthings on the floor,
Still gazing at them through the open door,
Nor wholly reassured and comforted
By promises of others in their stead,
Who chide, though more splendid, may not please him more.

So Nature dwells with us and takes away
Our playthings one by one, and by the hand
Leads us to rest so gently that we go,
Secure knowing if we wish to go or stay,
Being too full of sleep to understand How far the unknown transcends the what we know.

Georgia Leller.

I see in your last issue you demur to the course of certain editors in intimating that the church is full of sinners, and that the whole business is "drifting to the devil." I really thought you gentlemen of the tripod were a remarkably serene and optimistic lot; nor do I find any of other ilk, have now and then a warning voice from the Westman, or from the inner page of the Nashville. If you had made your caveat to the utterances of contributors, and not editors, I should have certainly thought you meant this writer, who has been making himself generally unpleasant on this line of late. There are, perhaps, no more dangers menacing us now than there have been in the past; but no man, who sees the present drift of things and feels as I do, can be silent, without making, at least, an effort to stay the tide.

Methodism, according to Mr. Tyerman, began her career in a time very much like this in which we live, and she sprang out of a church which was almost identical in feature with the Episcopal Church in America, and just such a church as many Methodists consider now to be the ideal. The shearer, the card table, the race, the wine cup were not under the ban. Religious earnestness and religious zeal were. Methodism formulated her General Rules, and began her work of reform, and has stood on this platform from then till now. It is not a secret, not even an open one, that many prominent Methodists in this time regard these rules as obsolete. They play cards, go to theater, dance and attend races without hesitation or compunction; and in some cases these parties are official members. The fact that these things are done by them is known to the pastor, and passes without rebuke; and the fact that the pastor allows these things to be done by members of his church without censure is known to the presiding elder, and he makes no complaint of failure in administration. Whether these facts are to be regretted or not, they are facts. This is not confined to one city, or one State, or one denomination. It is true of every city, of every State, and of every denomination. I do not like to prove things which all well-informed people admit. I know these things to be true; so do many others. On the other hand, I know that nearly all the pastors who allow these things to pass are brave men. They are not afraid of their position; they are simply in doubt as to what is the best thing to be done. They do not remedy the ill, because they feel that they can not. My intercourse with pastors has been large, my love for them very great, and my acquaintance with their embarrassments very full. I find at the present time several different kinds of men represented in the pastorate.

There are a few, a very few, who are pollywogs. They are not willing to oppose anything which will involve them in difficulties. They voluntarily close their eyes to a state of things which it might injure their popularity to see and condemn.

There are a few, a very few, who are really so optimistic that they can see nothing but good. They excuse all and cover all with a mantle of genuine affection. They are like a partial mother or a blind father, who can see no fault in a child. They do not believe that what their dear people do is bad, or can be bad.

Then there are those who are timid, distrustful of their own judgments, afraid of doing harm when they intend to do good; and then there are those who are diplomatic, discreet. They believe in love; get the people converted, they say; strike at the root, don't lop off the branches, don't be harsh, don't be uncharitable, but be judicious, discreet, wise. This is taken by some for time serving and cowardice, but it is not so regarded by them. All these take the same course—and all fail.

There are two courses before us now. First, to let this thing go. As we gave up class meetings, and strait-breasted coats, and separate sittings, and lining the hymns, and singing the last two lines of the last verse a second time, and our rules on dress, so let us give up these General Rules. Let us repeal them, or, if this can not be done, let us quietly ignore them. As we have brought in and now allow quartette choirs, and hired singers, and family sittings, and in the North a liturgy, so let us now go farther, and allow our people to decide for themselves about the amusements they ought to take; and if they can bet on horse races, go to see the ballet dancer, dance the gorman, with a good conscience, let them do so without rebuke. We will preach the gospel still, and pray earnestly, and visit the poor, and draw our salaries.

The other course is to call a halt, and, at least, make an honest effort to stop this thing. One thing is evident: We must have some uniformity in discipline, and we must have some respect to church obligations, in order to have it. It is simply childish to pool this thing, and to sneer at and ridicule those who call attention to it. I am old-fashioned enough to believe that integrity lies at the base of all virtues, and I can not see how it can be claimed by those who enter into the Methodist communion, knowing its demands, and willfully disregards them. I can not see how any pastor, who has been called to watch over souls, can, with a good conscience, refuse to execute the laws he has promised to regard. He may doubt their wisdom, he may wish they were not there; but they are there. Can he ignore them? I know there are persons in all of the churches who do things greatly more immoral in themselves than this disregard of the rule on amusements; but they are not any more violators of an obligation. The man who drinks a glass of wine is as much a sinner against his temperance pledge as the man who gets drunk. The grade of the immorality is to be measured by the solemnity of the vow made and the pledge broken, as well as by the character of the act itself.

I believe in my very heart that it is this apparently insignificant thing that is the cause of such widespread infidelity and immorality. It is not needful to cut all the leaves to overflow the land about. We have only to break the barrier in a few places, and the other result follows.

It may seem like pessimism to beg our preachers, and especially our lay people, to come back to the old paths, and to try and show them where these old paths are, and how they have wandered from them; but it is the truest love to do it. Nero played his lute while Rome was blazing, and many a man has comforted himself with the thought that he will, at least, save himself from a result he has reason to fear will come upon the church by a course of things, and so keeps silent; and so he may, but the day when the watchman must give account is surely coming. If the whole cause of vital Christianity is not now imperiled from rationalism on the one hand, and latitudinarianism on the other, I am a false prophet.

If this is croaking or pessimism, I can't help it. It is true, or all past history is a lie. GEO. G. SMITH.

Sabbath Desecration.

The law providing for the proper observance of the Sabbath is as clear and explicit as the law that prohibits murder. And an infraction of the Sabbath law is as much a sin as the transgression of the law that says, "Thou shalt not kill." "For the transgression of the law (of any divine law) is sin." The God who said, "Thou shalt not kill," also said, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." The infraction of the one is as displeasing to God as the violation of the other; and, furthermore, the man who fails to observe the Sabbath, not according to his own interpretation of the law, but according to God's construction of the law, is as much a sinner, in the sight of God, as he who commits murder. "For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of the whole." (James 1, 10.) "For he that said, Do not kill," said also, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." To the law and the testimony. "But the seventh day is the Sabbath of the Lord thy God; in it thou shalt not do any work; thou, nor thy son, nor thy daughter, nor thy man-servant, nor thy maid-servant, nor thy cattle, nor thy stranger that is within thy gates." Of course, works of mercy and necessity are not prohibited on the Sabbath. "For it is lawful to do well on the Sabbath day." But are not the works of mercy and necessity made to cover a multitude of sins? Those who sell milk, ice, meat, bread, and vegetables class their Sunday work under the head of "works of necessity," and those who patronize them on the Sabbath justify themselves by the "law of necessity," and thus hush the murmurings of an incensed conscience. Let me ask: Is it necessary, absolutely necessary, for a man to buy his bread, or his ice, or his meat, or his vegetables on the Sabbath? Is there no way to avoid it without injury? I undertake to say that no man is under absolute necessity to make said purchases on the Sabbath, and that no injury would be sustained by ceasing from such work on the Lord's day, and that the making of such purchases on the Sabbath is a positive transgression of the Fourth Commandment, and is, therefore, a sin. Why do these vendors of bread, meat, milk, ice, etc., ply their trade on the Sabbath days? Is it because they prefer to do it? No, sir; it is because the people demand it, and church members at that. These vendors, in one sense, are the servants of the people, and are subject to their wishes; so, by this demand, the people force a large number of men to labor on the Sabbath just as they do on other days. "In it (in the Sabbath) thou shalt not do any work; thou, nor thy man-servant." In the face of this positive prohibition, thousands of church members buy on the Sabbath, and force those who serve them to labor on the Sabbath. They not only compel these laborers to work on the Sabbath, but also deprive them of the privileges of the sanctuary. Standing in his pulpit, the city pastor can see the ice-man, the milk-man, and others hard at work serving those to whom he is dispensing the bread of life. The man who sells on the Sabbath and the man who buys on the Sabbath are both guilty of Sabbath desecration, except in cases of absolute necessity, and no amount of church-going and ritualistic observances will absolve them from their guilt of sloth. Railroads, livery stables, postoffices, and daily newspapers call no halt for Sabbath observance. Railroads and livery stables do more work on the Sabbath than on any other day. This is their best day. Surely these men can't cover their Sabbath work "under the law of necessity!" Railroads and other public carriers can cease from their work on the Sabbath without injury to the common weal. They are transgressors of the law, and those who patronize them are particeps criminis.

What shall we say of the work performed in printing offices and postoffices on the Sabbath? Are Sunday papers and Sunday mails absolutely necessary? Can not these be dispensed with? Most assuredly, yes! Then how are we to justify the work done in the mail service and by the press on the Lord's day? There is no justification for this Sabbath work done by these public servants, and they themselves, and those who patronize them, are guilty of Sabbath desecration. When will vendors of bread, meat, ice, etc., public carriers, newspapers and postoffices cease from labor on the Sabbath, and their thousands of employees tread the courts of our God on the holy Sabbath day? I answer: When church members cease to demand it by their patronage.

They that do unnecessary work on the Sabbath transgress the law. The transgression of law is sin. The soul that sinneth, it shall die. Therefore, they that do unnecessary work on the Sabbath shall die. Hear what the Lord hath promised: "If thou turn away thy foot from the Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day; and call the Sabbath a delight, the holy of the Lord, honorable; and shalt honor him, not doing thine own ways, nor finding thine own pleasure, nor speaking thine own words: then shalt thou delight thyself in the Lord; and I will cause thee to ride upon the high places of the earth, and feed thee with the heritage of Jacob thy father; for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it." L. S. JONES.

Jackson, Miss.

First Session of the Japan Conference, M. E. Church, South.

The various members and workers connected with the Japan Mission met in the church at Kobe, Wednesday morning, July 20, at 8:30, and, after appropriate and helpful religious exercises, were organized into an Annual Conference by Bishop J. S. Key. Dr. O. A. Dukes was elected secretary, and members were enrolled as follows: J. W. Lambuth, W. R. Lambuth, O. A. Dukes, C. B. Moseley, B. W. Waters, J. C. C. Newton, N. W. Utley, T. W. B. Demaree, W. E. Towson, J. M. Rollins, S. Shaw and W. A. Davis. S. H. Walwright, Misses Gaines, K. Strider and Bloch, though ineligible to membership in the Conference, being in the mission, being in the employ of the Board of Missions, and were asked to attend the sessions and be ready with their reports. Later on W. A. Wilson and Y. Yoshiko were admitted into full connection. The former came out two years ago from the Western North Carolina Conference. The latter is a native preacher, the first one licensed by our church. The occasion of their admission was made very impressive by the remarks of the Bishop.

E. Nakayama, Y. Tanaka and K. Usaki were continued on trial; H. G. Hawkins and E. Aho were admitted on trial.

The questions have been asked by the Bishop, and reports made, just as in the home Conferences. The reports themselves show that, though the heathen land modifies somewhat, the methods, in the main, are those of the mother church. Sometimes it is necessary for the missionaries to check a desire in the native helpers for something new. These helpers are true in spirit, however. Their willingness and aggressiveness are notable and praiseworthy. They are ever ready and eager.

Christian education is a necessity in Japan on account of the progressive-ness of State education. Of schools the church has two: one for girls at Hiroshima, and the Kwansei Gakuen for boys at Kobe. This latter has, besides the academic department, a regular theological department. Just before commencement there was a great revival in the school, and the students have gone during the vacation and kindled the fires at nearly all the mission points.

The passport system of the country is a hindrance to missionary work, but the greatest barrier is the difficult tongue. Much must be done by our men, all of whom begin work as soon as they arrive, through interpreters. C. B. Moseley is the only member of the mission now on the field who uses the language well enough to preach in it. This necessity for reports and talks made in English to be translated into Japanese lengthens the Conference.

Sunday was a feast day in spiritual things. In the morning were love-feast and preaching; in the afternoon native and foreigner alike knelt at the communion table; and at night all joined in paying tribute to the memory of Dr. J. W. Lambuth.

The Conference will probably close Thursday.
H. G. HAWKINS.
Kobe, Japan, July 26, 1892.

The Indian Mission.

BY REV. W. W. CAMMACK, MISSIONARY.

There are many things of interest connected with this mission about which I would like to write, but I will speak only of the most important. I have purchased and received by donation seventy-five dollars' worth of literature, consisting of Bibles, Testaments, hymn books and spellers, most all of which are in the Choctaw language. I am making a free distribution of these books to great profit. I have organized two Sunday-schools, where the Indians meet every Sunday, and are learning surprisingly fast. At Tallahatchie we have a very interesting Sunday-school. We are assisted at this place by Bros. Toles and Tinsley, white men, and members of the Methodist Church. The readers of this article would confer a lasting benefit upon the Indians of this community by sending to J. W. Toles, Oktibbeha, Miss., some of our song books, such as "New Life No. 1," "Character Notes." Could not some Sunday-school supply this demand from their old libraries? We will be glad to get the old books. I am happy to inform the readers of the Advocate that I have secured the services of a young Indian man, "Simpson Tubby," of whom I have written before. He reads, writes, sings and speaks in public, both in Choctaw and in English. I am well pleased with him; am satisfied that he feels called to the ministry. I am boarding him and teaching him with the view of his entering the ministry next winter. He has been with me in two meetings, and none but those who were present can give any idea of his influence for good over the Choctaw Indians. I am fully convinced in my own mind that the quickest and best way to reach the Choctaws is through one of their own race; and I am satisfied the church will help me educate this young man. I have kept the best for the last. It is this: We have received into the church and baptized five Indians, giving us, in all, now six members. Four of them are young men of promise; one is an old man of some influence; the other, a young girl. We are largely indebted to Simpson Tubby, and Bro. Leeb, of the North Mississippi Conference, for these accessions to the church. We have started a subscription to build an Indian church, which we hope to have finished by next Conference. Who will help in this good work? This church is to be located in the bounds of North Mississippi Conference. If anyone wishes to have an interest in this first Indian Methodist Church, send it to Rev. A. D. Miller, Barlow, Miss., or Rev. J. A. Leech, Louisville, Miss.

An Open Letter and an Appeal.

To our much-esteemed brother we suggest that the filling of a report, and putting the same in an envelope, ready-stamped and directed, is not a heavy burden; and the Executive Committee of the Joint Board thought it best for the claimant and the best for the church that these reports should be received before any claimant's case should be considered. The Executive Committee will endeavor to profit by its own failures and the failures of others. In the meantime, brethren, send on your reports; that our worthy claimants may be paid.

We need eight hundred dollars to meet the claims which we expect to be due Oct. 1. Many of the brethren have done well; none better than Bro. Powell. Of our city appointments, Yazoo takes the lead as being the only one paid up in full. Our churches in Natchez, Vicksburg, Jackson and Meridian, by following the example of Yazoo City, could not only set a good example to the town and country charges, but would give the committee four hundred dollars out of the eight hundred dollars needed. Brethren of the city churches, we appeal to you, and, in the name of our Lord and yours, ask that you help us in this providing for the "necessities of the saints." As you have seen, from the published reports, Vicksburg district has contributed the most money, being about three-eighths of its assessment. Seashore district is a close second, having paid three hundred and one dollars out of a total of five hundred and fifty dollars. Let this holy cause lie heavy upon your hearts, brethren, until you have our treasurer's receipt for the entire amount of your assessment.

Remember the amounts must be in the hands of the treasurer by Oct. 1. Can we not all pay off in full this one assessment before Oct. 1? Give us a speedy and a favorable answer.

JOHN W. CHAMBERS,
Chairman of Joint Board.

Port Gibson Female College.

The undersigned has been trustee and president of the Port Gibson Female College for nearly fifty years, and knows whereof he writes. This is nearly the oldest, if not the oldest, female college in this State, under the patronage of the M. E. Church, Mississippi Conference. The buildings are the most substantial of any in the State; the walls from three to four feet thick, all brick; the annex, being covered with slate, can comfortably accommodate seventy-five boarders. Her alumni will compare with that of any college. They have gone out to become the wives of statesmen, bishops and laymen in every walk of life, and of whom we are very proud.

The next session begins Sept. 13, with the Rev. B. F. Jones, president of the faculty, assisted by an able corps of teachers. President Jones is a graduate of Centenary College, which has educated so many distinguished men in Louisiana and Mississippi. He is in every way fully equipped for the task he has undertaken.

Miss Susie G. Kilbourne is a native of Louisiana, the daughter of Judge Kilbourne, and comes to us heartily endorsed by two governors, two United States senators, two college presidents, and any number of distinguished laymen.

Miss Flora Little is a native of Mississippi, and the daughter of the presiding elder of the Vicksburg district. She holds a five-year certificate from the State Superintendent of Public Schools, and all who know Mr. Preston will acknowledge the sufficiency of such an endorsement.

Of Mrs. M. H. Meek, teacher of vocal and instrumental music, solfège, technique, it is difficult to speak in bounds. She is entire mistress of her profession, and commands the respect and admiration of all music-loving people.

Miss Sallie D. McGill, of Louisiana, has proven her proficiency in the department of art by long study and acceptable service in the college for a number of years. Her art exhibition at the close of each year has afforded great pleasure and evoked the admiration of all visitors.

Miss M. E. Compton has charge of the boarding department; herself a first-class educator, and principal of the college for a number of years, now taking a much-needed rest. She knows all about the management of girls, and no one need be afraid to place their daughters under her care, in sickness or in health. No one of her numerous guests and pupils can but say she acts the best of tables, with all the delicacies the market can afford. She is a most excellent Christian lady, whose word is as good as her bond. Miss Compton is a native of Louisiana.

So, you see, all our teachers are native and to the manor born.

The deed of gift of the college to the Conference requires the trustees to educate all the daughters of ministers free of charge, of all denominations, which we have done for the last fifty years. A liberal discount is allowed on two or more pupils. We are not running a "cheap-John" establishment, or "outing rates" with other colleges, but we propose to give everyone the full value for his money, and the highest standard of a college education. We have engaged the ablest teachers to be had, and, as the laborer is worthy of his hire, we must see to it that our teachers are paid their hard earnings. Compare our rates with other colleges, and, all things considered, we are doing the best work as cheap as anyone ought to ask.

G. W. HUMPHREYS.

Editorial labor is the most imperious, absorbing and insidious in which a man can engage. Like a hole with no bottom, it will take all you will put into it, and yet never afford you the satisfaction of seeing it filled. Into editorial work you can put all the time at your command, and yet you see which could with profit have been put upon the work, had it been in your strength of the editor and subjected him to a peculiarly strong temptation to overwork. In this way editors are often overworked before they are aware of it. Tennessee Methodist.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON.—Sept. 4, 1892.

By REV. W. H. LA PRADÉ, D. D.

Philip Preaching at Samaria.

Acts viii, 5-25.

TIME.—A. D. 37.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"And there was great joy in that city." (Verse 8.)

The Philip of our lesson was one of the seven deacons appointed by the apostles after election by the church. He was not the Apostle Philip. Like Stephen, he was preacher as well as a steward.

Ver. 5. The persecution following the stoning of Stephen was the occasion of his going into Samaria. The fortunate city to which he went we do not know. Philip must have been a man of large mould, or he would not, at that early day, have preached the gospel to the despised Samaritans.

Ver. 6, 7. The miracles worked by Philip were not only works of mercy, but served also to catch and hold attention to the word he preached. These miracles were of use. Not so the foolish and oftentimes childish things credited to false teachers.

Ver. 8. "Great joy"—not only because of the suffering relieved, but because of the good tidings preached.

Ver. 9, 10, 11. Early writers tell us much of Simon, mixing with their statements so much of fable that we can not certainly say what is reliable. Probably he was a Samaritan, educated at Alexandria, in Egypt. Here he learned the arts of Egyptian sorcery—a mixture of skillful deception, sleight-of-hand, appeal to the spirit of superstition, and application of some natural laws not then (probably not yet) understood. Simon boasted much, misled the simple, and was greatly honored.

Ver. 12. Convinced of the truth of the word preached by Philip, they forsook Simon, professed Christ, and were baptized—not all of them, but many, "both men and women." From superstition they turned to Christianity.

Ver. 13. The number and nature of the miracles wrought by Philip convinced Simon that there was exercised a power greater than any he possessed. The teachings of Philip he accepted as accounting for that power. He submitted to baptism simply as a declaration that he had joined a new school of wonder-workers. There was no real conversion to Christ, as his conduct soon showed; no comprehension of the spiritual meanings of the new doctrine.

Ver. 14, 15, 16. The apostles, it will be remembered, did not leave Jerusalem when the persecution of Christians began. Thorough organization of the church had not yet been secured, and they remained there, no doubt, that from that point of vantage they might reach and control other communities that might become Christian. For this purpose Peter and John, chief in influence, went to Samaria to impart, as guided by the Spirit, gifts and knowledge, and to conserve and direct the energy of the converts. "Laying on of hands" was a symbol of the impartation of the extraordinary gifts of the Holy Ghost.

Ver. 18, 19. Comparing this with his old methods of incantation and trickery, and falling entirely to understand its deep spiritual meaning, Simon coveted the power, which seemed to belong to Peter and John, of communicating the Holy Ghost. His offer of money was in accord with his character and practice as a professional sorcerer.

Ver. 20, 21. Peter's language shows not only his righteous wrath that Simon sought to buy the gifts of the Spirit, but the utter failure of Simon to enter into the great gospel movement. In thought and purpose he was entirely removed from it, notwithstanding his profession and baptism; nor was he sincere in his attitude. His real object was to extend his power and increase his profits as a wonder-worker.

Ver. 22, 23. While Peter condemned, he also exhorted Simon. He did not crush him with anathemas, but pointed the way to God. Spiritual sweetness and spiritual liberty come through repentance and prayer; seeking bring bondage and bitterness always.

Ver. 24. That is, "Pray God that I perish not." Simon feared the consequences of his sin, but there is no indication that he sincerely repented.

Ver. 25. Peter and John gave all necessary counsel and instruction before they returned, preaching also in other parts of Samaria. Jesus had given special instruction that the disciples should "be witnesses" unto him "in Samaria."

"Paley and Butler were admirable in their day; but they no more meet the assaults of skepticism of to-day than the guns of years gone by could now fire defeat into the ranks of the enemy. Butler assumed the existence of God. Skepticism at present denies, or doubts, not know, which is a no, that God exists. The great battle in modern thought is the problem of God, involving his very existence."

Test's Tiny Pills

To cure constipation purging the bowels should be avoided; it weakens their power of action. A gentle aperient effect is only gained by the use of Test's Tiny Pills. They are prepared with special view to the permanent cure of

CONSTIPATION AND HEADACHE.

They are mild and remain in the system until they act on the liver, cause a natural flow of bile and their tonic properties impart power to the bowels to remove unhealthy accumulations. Good appetite and digestion result from the use of these little pills. Price, 25c. Office, 30 Park Place, N. Y.

MALONE COLLEGE.

(For Young Ladies.)
Under the Auspices of the M. E. Church, South.
HOLLY SPRINGS, MISS.
The Second Annual Session Will Begin Monday, Sept. 5, 1892.

Location, highest point to the State. Elevation, 530 feet. Health unsurpassed in the South-west. Holly Springs is situated on the junction of two great railway systems.
Course thorough and comprehensive. Each department under the charge of specialists. Special advantages offered in Music, Art and Education. A Home-School for pupils under Christian influences.
Terms moderate. For Catalogue or further particulars address
REV. J. W. HONNOLL, President.

Clinton Female Academy

(Chartered in 1832)
Will Open Monday, Sept. 5, 1892.

Course thorough. Charges lower than offered by any school of its grade in the South.

CHARGES PER MONTH.
Tuition per Month.....$2.00 to $3.00
Music.....3.00
Use of Piano per Month.....1.00
Painting in Oil.....8.00
Drawing.....1.00
Latin French and Book-keeping, each per Month.....1.00
Incidental Expenses per Session.....1.00
Board, Tuition, Washing, Fuel and Lights, $12.00 per Month. $20.00 for the Session of Ten Months. For particulars address the Principal, Mrs. S. E. MUNDAY, Clinton, La.

IUKA NORMAL INSTITUTE

IUKA, MISS.

Eleventh year begins Sept. 6. Meals, lights, fuel, lodging, laundry, books and tuition for 40 weeks cost $105.00; 48 weeks, $185.00. Music and extras extra. Schools supplied with teachers. Write to
H. A. DEAN, Pres.

Staunton Military Academy.

—STAUNTON, VA.

A Military School for Young Men and Boys. Handsome Illustrated Catalogue mailed on application.

COMMUNION WINE!

(NON-ALCOHOLIC)

For sale by

A. W. SKARDON & SON, Grocers,

Cor. Magazine and Jackson Sts., New Orleans.

This wine is used by the Carondelet Methodist Church, Louisiana Avenue Methodist Church, and by several other churches in New Orleans.

Do You Know

That there is but one paper, perhaps, in the South, and but two in the United States, that makes specialty of defending the Christian Sabbath? But little attention is given to this great question even by the religious press. And

Do You Know

That there are more than a million laboring men in this land of Bibles who have no Sabbath?

Have You Ever Seen

THE SOLDIER? It is a monthly paper devoted to the revival of an interest in the Lord's day, and to the fight against the liquor traffic.

Let every friend of God and His Holy Day, and every foe to the Whisky Devil subscribe for THE SOLDIER. You can get it a whole year for only 35c. Subscribe at once. Address
REV. L. L. PICKETT, Columbia, S. C.

NATURE'S OWN REMEDY!

Bear Lithia Water

Cures Kidney and Bladder Troubles, Uric Acid, Gout and Rheumatism, Gravel, Dropsical Affections, Eriphoid Deposits, and Dyspepsia.

FOR SALE BY

CLARK & MEADER,

16 and 18 CARONDELLE ST.

BRANCH:

Cor. ST. CHARLES and NAPOLEON AVENUE

The Book and Its Theme;

OR, THE BIBLE AND ITS MISSION.

By Rev. L. L. PICKETT.

280 Pages, Cloth. Price, $1.00.

This Book is two in one. Part I. shows why we believe the Bible. This is good to put in the hands of infidels and skeptics, and will strengthen the faith of believers. It will make you know and love the Bible better.

Part II. gives us Hobbies as the "theme" of the Bible, that is, to teach holiness is the mission of God's Word. It explains the passages that seem to contradict the doctrine; and for this reason, if no other, ought to be in the hands of every worker. But it explains what holiness is, what it is not, how to get it, and its bearing on many other questions.
REV. L. L. PICKETT, Columbia, S. C.

AGENTS WANTED ON SALARY

or commission, to handle the new Patent Chemical Ink Erasing Pencil. The quickest and greatest erasing pencil ever produced. Erases ink thoroughly in two seconds. No abrasion of paper. Works like magic. 200 to 300 per cent. profit. One Agent's salary amounted to $750 in six days. Another $22 in two hours. Previous experience not necessary. For terms and full particulars, address, The Monroe Eraser Mfg. Co., 14 Crocus St., N. Y.

CATARH

Sold by Druggists or sent by mail, 50c. E. T. Haseltine, Warren, Pa.

HOME LIFE.

TWO THAT SLEEP AND ONE THAT WATCHETH.

BY F. W. BOURGEOIS.

"Could ye not watch one hour?" The hour is late.

And the child air is drowsy, and they sleep—Two, but one sleeps not; he whose love was great.

And who was greatly loved, his watch will keep.

The stars are clear, but not to them his eyes Turn to win patience from their patient light.

Still on the earth he keeps his steadfast light.

And bid to watch, so watches for surprise.

And so to his unsleeping eyes was given To see his Master's agony that drew

That sweat of blood to hear that cry of woe!

'Tis thus with the three priceless gifts of heaven:

Hope sleeps, and faith may slumber, but the few

Who really love, nor sleep, nor slumber know.

—Selected.

A Word to the Elderly.

Among all the housekeeper women, young, bright, active, sober, middle-aged, earnest, benevolent and spiritual, there must always be some who are getting past the center of life's stream, and who are looking longingly at the quiet waters beyond the hollering, eddying, wildly hurrying tide against which they have for years bravely battled. Dear women, growing old, don't imagine that because you are fifty, sixty, or even seventy, that now your rowing days are over, and you may pleasantly rest on your oars. How many women lose what brightness there is for the evening of life—and there is a brightness peculiar to every period of one's existence—by giving up. They give up their aims after mental improvement, their pleasurable pursuits of art, fancy work, or reading poetry, fearful lest such things may not comport with their self-made standard of quiet, idle, selfish elderliness, a state into which a natural inclination invites them to drop themselves. They give up the missionary society work, the Sabbath-school and the temperance work with any good nature, hiding themselves under the cloak of age, which they believe will plausibly repel every conscience thrust, every protest.

Don't you remember, when you were much younger, how it used to provoke you to hear some plump, pleasant dame of forty-eight, or more, say at an evening party when asked to join in "trivial" or "parade," "Oh, I'm too old for such things now" or "extra, to see her sit, heavy and dull, when croquet was going on, fearful lest joining in the game would bring reproach upon her?

There are old ladies who keep up at seventy-five the pleasurable things which they loved in earlier years, dress prettily, do fancy stitches, laugh and chat with girls, attend every good philanthropic gathering, and have their hearts fresh and young after the hardening, wearing things behind them. Don't "give up" until Providence shows plainly that you must, for of all nice things here below, a young-old woman is the nicest. —Housekeeper.

Rest and Unrest.

Two mothers, each with a young baby and no nurse, were discussing how they managed it.

"I should be worn out," said one. "I'm sure, except for my rest. I make it a point as soon as my baby is sound asleep for his morning nap to drop everything and lie down myself."

"Oh," said the other, "while my baby takes his nap is the only chance I have to gather up the loose ends about the house."

In those two phases of management lies a wide and deep philosophy. Ten years from now it will be safe to predict that that second mother will have lines in her face and wrinkles on her brow that have no business to be there, and, equally, that mother No. 1 will still be fresh and blooming.

Women are beginning to understand that it is the continuous, unrelieved strain that tells; it is doubtful if many of them, particularly the busy workers, fully appreciate that it lies within their own reach to modify this condition.

"I never stand when I can sit, and I never sit when I can lie down," said a woman who has discovered the value of brief respites, and her sisters, if they try, may similarly find innumerable opportunities, now overlooked, to ease the strain of their daily occupations, if ever so briefly. Most women stand before their dressing bureau to do the hair—an unnecessary waste of strength. Even if the daily coiffure is a very simple one—taking a brief time to accomplish—those few moments will amount in the end to a goodly sum of rest. —New York Times.

SUBSTITUTIONAL POWER.—The exercise of the true power, equal to task, is always accompanied by a certain unconsciousness of the effort put forth. Successful work, as a rule, is marked by lack of friction. It is harder for the clumsy dabbler in clay to make the roughest vessel than for a skilled potter to shape the finest vase. A man who is not equal to his work, no matter how herculean the effort he puts forth, can never accomplish great things.

This principle applies to the activities of the Christian life, as well as to those of the secular life. Conscientious effort is no criterion of strength. Neither does one deserve particular credit for doing Christian duty, because he finds that duty hard. The most desirable and commendable condition is that in which the Christian does his work with a smooth, joyous ease—an ease which comes, not from the slightness of the task, but from the grand, whole-souled devotion with which it is performed. This is the condition of spiritual power—the soul being unconscious of the effort which it puts forth. —Zion's Herald.

GOD'S CRADLE SONG.—Two texts of Scripture there are, which, put together, I think are the most wonderful in the Bible. They suggest a child lying in a cradle, a loving face bent over it, and a sweet voice murmuring over its head. But I marvel with inexpressible surprise and adoration when I find who the singer is, and who is the child. The first verse is found in Isaiah lxxvi, 13: "As one whom his mother comforteth, so will I comfort you." The other verse I find in Zechariah iii, 17: "The Lord thy God in the midst of thee is mighty; he will save, he will rejoice over thee with joy; he will rest in his love; he will joy over thee with singing." Oh, I have thought again and again, in my history, of this picture; and I am not too proud to say my eyes have filled with tears of emotion as I have tried to comprehend how the eternal Jehovah seemed to sing beside one who loves him, as I remembered my mother used to sing lullaby songs of comfort beside our bed on the old Sabbath night! —Congregational Magazine.

"Too Poor to Give."

A man who attempted to raise some money on a subscription paper for a necessary church out West, relates his experience as follows:

"The first man I went to said he was very sorry, but the fact was he was so involved in his business that he couldn't give anything at the present time. Very sorry, indeed, but a man in debt, as he was, owed his first duty to his creditors. He was smoking an expensive cigar, and before I left his store he bought of a peddler who came in a pair of expensive Rocky Mountain cut-throats."

"The next man I went to was a young clerk in a banking establishment. He read the paper over, acknowledged that the church was very greatly needed, but said that he was owing for his board, was badly in debt otherwise and did not see how he could give anything. That afternoon, as I went by the base-ball grounds, I saw this young man pay fifty cents at the entrance to go in, and saw him mount the grand stand where special seats were sold for a quarter of a dollar."

"The third man to whom I presented the paper was a farmer living near the town. He also was sorry, but times were hard, his crops had been a partial failure, the mortgage on his farm was a heavy load, the interest was coming due, and he really couldn't see his way clear to give to the church, although he freely acknowledged it was just what the town needed. A week from that time I saw the same farmer drive into town with his entire family, and go to the circus, afternoon and night, at an expense of, at least, four dollars."

"The Bible says, 'Judge not that ye be not judged,' but it also says, 'By their fruits ye shall know them.' And I really could not help thinking that the devil could use that old excuse, 'In debt,' to splendid advantage, especially when he had a selfish man to help him." —Youth's Companion.

Don't Be Too Sensitive.

There are people—yes, many people—always looking for slights. They can not carry on the daily intercourse of the family without finding that some offense is designed. They are as touchy as hair-triggers. If they meet an acquaintance who happens to be preoccupied with business, they attribute his distraction to some mode personal to themselves, and take umbrage accordingly. They lay on others the fruit of their irritability. Indiscretion makes them see impertinence in everyone with whom they come in contact. Innocent persons, who never dreamed of giving offense, are astounded to find some impertinent word or momentary tactlessness mistaken for an insult. To say the least, the habit is unfortunate. It is far wiser to take the more charitable view of our fellow-beings, and not suppose that a slight is intended, unless the neglect is open and direct. After all, too, life takes its hue, in a great degree, from the color of our own mind. If we are frank and generous, the world will treat us kindly; if, on the contrary, we are suspicious, men will learn to be cold and cautious to us. Let a person get the reputation of being "touchy," and everybody is under restraint, and in this way the chances of an imaginary offense are vastly increased. —Selected.

Early Years.

"I'll had my ministry to go over again, I would give more attention to the children," —Dr. A. H. Green.

"Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old he will not depart from it." —Proverbs xxii, 6.

"We can raise more Christians by juvenile Christian culture than by adult conversion—a thousand times more." —Dr. J. G. Holland.

"The time is coming when there will be two sermons preached to children and youth where there is one to adults." —Bishop James.

"After the observations and experience of a long life, I have come decisively to the conclusion that if I had my life to live over again, I would pay ten times as much attention to the young of my charge as I ever did." —Dr. Samuel Miller.

"I am satisfied that the day is coming when, in our church and in all the churches of the world, we shall look chiefly to the conversion of the children, and, as a comparatively rare instance, to the conversion of those in mature years." —Bishop Simpson.

PILATE'S WASHBOWL.—In an editorial under the caption of "Pilate's Washbowl," the New York Examiner makes some sharp, but needed thrusts. Here is a specimen: "Ever since that time, that washbowl is abroad in the land, carried by internal hands wherever it may be needed, and men are constantly joining the invisible choir which performs its imperceptible ablutions therein. The statesman who suppresses principles because they might endanger the success of his party; the good citizen who will have nothing to do with politics; the editor who sees a righteous cause misrepresented, and says nothing because it might injure the circulation; the deacon who sees a clique undermining a pastor's position and dares not create a disturbance; the preacher who sees Divine exploiting Lazarus and dares not tell him to quit because Dives contributes toward his salary; the Sunday-school superintendent who sees a devoted teacher punctured by the pin pricks of well-bred jealousy and dares not champion her—all these are using Pilate's washbowl. Listen! Do you hear the splash of the water near to you? The devil is pouring it. Christ is going to Calvary again."

"A FATAL FLUENCY."—There are some who speak little, but their words are weighty. Everything they say counts and tells on the interests of those around them. Men watch for their words and hang upon their lips.

There are others whose words are so empty and frivolous that they produce no more effect than the rattling of peas upon a shingle. Some persons have a fatal fluency. There is no end to their talk. They condense a vast number of words into a few ideas. Their greatest gift is the gift of continuance. They are never at fault for a word, but their words mean nothing and amount to nothing.

I will let the word of Christ dwell in us richly and "speak according to the oracles of God," then our words may thrill and stir the careless, may alarm and warn the impenitent, may drop weary hearts like dew upon the thirsty soil, may cheer, bless and help the sons of men, and may live in the hearts of others long after our earthly journey is ended. —The Christian.

Had Seen Better Days.—Mr. Sellitt—"Well, Uncle Eph, how are you getting along these days?" Uncle Eph—"O, I'm getting along fine. It's a mighty poor day I don't make my two or three dollars." Mr. Sellitt—"You must be getting rich. Suppose you pay me that little bill you owe me." Uncle Eph—"Well, you'll have to excuse me to day, Mr. Sellitt. You see I've been havin' a lot of mighty poor days lately."

OUR YOUNG PEOPLE.

FEET.

A plump little foot, as white as the snow, belonging to a rolicking, frolicsome Joe, in a little red sock, with a hole in the toe, and a hole in the heel as well.

A trim little foot, in a trim little shoe, belonging to sixteen-year old Miss Sue, and looking as if it knew just what to do, and do it in a way that would tell.

A very large foot in homely array, belonging to Peter, who follows the dray, so big that it sometimes is in its own way, and moves with the speed of a snail.

Ah! a very big thing is the human foot, in its clumsy shoe, or in clumsy boot, so well there are various tastes to suit, and that fashion can't always prevail.

The plump little foot, a beautiful sight, and the trim little foot, so taper and slight, and the very large foot, though much of a sight.

Are traveling all the same road.

And it matters but little how small or how great.

So they never grow weary of paths that are straight.

And at last walk in at the golden gate Of the city whose builder is God.

—Springfield Musket.

Letter to Young Folks.

Dear Children: I wish to call your attention to the reading of the writings of Solomon, viz: Proverbs, Ecclesiastes and the Song of Solomon. These books are not likely to be studied in the Sunday school lessons, as the meaning in the first two is so plain and easy to be understood, and, besides, there is so much in a little space. These books are so hard to remember that in a casual reading we are not greatly benefited. I write to call your special attention to this part of the Bible, and ask you to read these books carefully several times—say seven times—and I am sure you will then have a taste for this that you did not have before, and which most persons do not acquire until later in life. Solomon was the wisest man that ever lived, and, of course, we expect to receive unusual benefit from his writings. His proverbs will have an important influence in the formation of the character of the young, and yet so many of our young people do not know what a blessing is in store for them here until the most dangerous part of life is passed.

If the children readers of the Advocate will read these three books carefully seven times, and will then write me, I will enroll their names and pray God especially to preserve them in the midst of the temptations of youth.

C. McDONALD.

Forest, Miss.

Mr. Euton: As our grandfather takes the dear old Advocate, we thought we would ask you for a small space in your young people's column to-day. We are two little brothers, aged seven and eight years, and reside in the beautiful little city of Jackson, La. We have two dear little sisters and one little brother in heaven, there watching and waiting for us. The youngest joined the M. E. Church last Spring. We go to Sunday- and day-school. Our teacher in both schools is our aunt. She is very kind to all of her pupils. They love her in and out of school. Our school will soon open, and we will be glad, as we love to attend school. Hoping this will not find its way to the waste-basket, we will close by saying: Where is "Italian land" found in the Bible, and who caused iron to swim? Respectfully,

Your two little friends,
JACKSON, LA. CLARENCE AND RIVERS BROWN.

Mr. Editor: I am a little girl eleven years old. We take the dear Advocate. As I have never written a letter before, I thought that I would try and write one. My father is dead. I have one brother and one sister dead. I have two sisters and four brothers living. I do not go to Sunday-school, as we live too far. I would like so much to go. I will answer Mary A. Pickett's question. "Looking glass" is found in Job xxxviii, 18. Also Emma Till's question. Ezra vii, 21, has all of the letters of the alphabet except j. I will ask a question: What two chapters in the Bible are alike? I hope this will not reach the waste-basket. Wishing the Advocate much success, I am, Your little friend, KING, MISS. GENE MILLER.

What Is My Name?

I am a very funny thing, but a very useful one. I will tell you what I am like, and you must tell me my name.

My color is brown, and I am very soft. I am full of holes, in which the thing that made me used to live. I have no mouth nor stomach, yet I can drink a great deal. I do not eat at all. When you squeeze me hard I get thirsty again, but I can not drink anything unless you put me into it. I am never at home when ever I do or ever do see me at home. You want to know why? Well, it is because my home is in the deep blue sea, many miles from here, where I cling to the rocks at the bottom, and where the winds and the waves do not disturb me.

Men think no much of me that they go out in boats and dive down to the depths of the sea to get me. I am very useful to many people, for I am fond of keeping things clean. I helped your mother to wash you when you were a baby, and I help to wash very many things besides. Doctors find me very useful, too.

I am very patient, and bear a great deal of rough usage. You may cut me to pieces and I'll not complain, for it will not hurt me, and I shall not be much the worse for it. Now, what is my name? —Magnolia.

WHAT A GIRL DID.—A bright Maine girl, who several years ago, at the age of twelve, was left to care for herself, determined that she would not only support herself, but would have as good an education as the country afforded. She went out doing housework and saved enough money to fit herself for Waterville College. Here she took a special two-years' course, was given a scholarship and swept rooms and helped clean house during vacation for spending money. Then she obtained a position as teacher in an evening school in Boston, and did microscopic and other work to defray her expenses in the medical school of Boston University. After completing her studies she borrowed money and went to study in the hospitals of Paris and Vienna. Since her return she has settled in Los Angeles, where she has a large practice in the city of invalids and has been able to pay all her debts. What girl can not succeed in making her way if she is willing to work for it as this girl has?

He that is sensible of no evil but what he feels, has a hard heart; and he that can spare no kindness from himself, has a narrow soul. —Collier.

SCIENTIFIC.

In Twenty-five Seconds.

THE BLOOD IN A MAN'S BODY MAKES THE FULL SOUND TRIP.

Medical workers have made many curious experiments, but none more wonderful than that by which they ascertained the exact time required for the blood to make one entire trip through the system, which all students of physiology know means a complete circulation through the lungs, veins, arteries and the general capillary arrangements. Prof. Dalton, Herliug, Polsenille, Matucci and Blake have been the chief investigators in this line, the first-named having become more eminent in this particular branch of research from having the experience of others to fortify himself with.

All the old school anatomists believed that a considerable time elapsed, say from three to nine minutes from the time when the blood left the right side of the heart, traversed the whole system and then again returned to the starting-point. Dalton has shown that the time is much shorter than was formerly generally supposed. The child spent used in his experiments was a salt known to chemists as ferrocyanide of potassium, which can be readily detected in the blood on account of its chemical reaction. Prof. Dalton describes the operation in the following language:

"Blood was drawn from the jugular vein on the opposite side, and the interval which elapsed before the appearance of the foreign salt in blood drawn from the second opening indicated the time required for the blood to pass from the point of injection through the veins to the heart, from the right side of the heart through the lungs to the left cavities, from the left ventricle, through the carotid arteries and the capillary vessels of the head, and thence downward to the jugular vein on the opposite side. Dozens of carefully tabulated tests of this somewhat extraordinary subject show that the blood of man makes a complete circulation once every fifteen to twenty-five seconds, according to the physical conditions of the subject experimented upon. —Medical Record.

Lake of Ink.

Nearly all of the 8,500 Coocapan volcanoes in Arizona are situated near the east end of the volcanic area which they occupy, says the Evening Wisconsin. Several large, menacing, onerous volcanoes, are now quiet. Between these hills of lava, rock and debris are a large number of living, active volcanoes. From the sides of the hills, fifty to two hundred feet above the surrounding waters, come forth some beautiful springs of clear, warm water, some so sour, others so sweet, so bitter and so strongly alkaline that no living being or animal could drink it. These waters course down the hill-sides, laying a coat of white, pink, purple, blue or green made by the mineral salt they contain upon everything with which they come in contact.

In the midst of these hills is the lake of ink. There run into it scores of streams of clear mineral hot water, others that are warm and two that are cold. The lake, one-fourth of a mile in length, and one eighth wide, lies like a gem set in these hills, or these ancient volcanoes.

The black, ink-like water which fills the lake comes up to within three or four inches of the level of its shores. The temperature near the edges is about 110 degrees, gradually growing warmer as you get down in it, and as you approach the center of the lake, on the surface it is about 155 degrees, and at the depth of 250 feet it is 215 degrees. Near the shore on the east, south and west sides the water is only four to six feet in depth for twenty feet or more into the lake, where the shelf breaks off perpendicularly, and there no bottom has ever been found. To the touch the water feels smooth and oily. The ashes and oil which cover the lake when its waters are quiet are from one-half an inch to an inch thick. The water of the lake is jet black, though it does not color the skin of those who bathe in it.

Under a glass the coloring matter seems to be a minute black substance held in suspension by the water which adheres to white cloth immersed in the lake. To the taste the water is warm, salt and bitter. To the bath the sensation on entering the water is grand, exhilarating to a wonderful degree, so much so that a bath often of fifteen minutes makes one feel as if he were under the influence of the very best brandy. —Chicago Weekly News.

Overeating vs. Overwork.

An abuse that tends to the injury of brain workers is excessive eating. A writer in the Medical Mirror recalls in mind several active brain workers who suddenly broke down, and fancied that it was due to brain fatigue, when, as a matter of fact, it was due to overeating of their stomachs. The furnace connected with mental machinery became clogged up with ashes and carbon in various shapes and forms, and as a result disease came, and before the cases were fully appreciated, a demoralized condition of the nervous system was manifested and they laid the disastrous unction to their souls that they had indulged in mental overwork. I said mental or physical, rarely ever kills. If a mild amount of physical exercise be taken, and a judicious amount of food be furnished, the bowels kept open in a proper manner, the surface protected with proper clothing, and the individual cultivates a philosophical nature and absolutely resolves to permit nothing to annoy or fret him, the chances are that he can do an almost unlimited amount of work for an indefinite length of time, bearing in mind always that when weariness comes he must rest, and not take stimulants and work upon false capital. The tired, worn-out slave should not be scourged to additional labor. Under such stimulus the slave may do the task, but he soon becomes crippled and unfit for work. The secret of successful work lies in the direction of selecting good, nutritious, digestible food, taken in proper quantities, the adopting of regular methods of work, the rule of resting when pronounced fatigue prevents itself, determining absolutely not to permit friction, worry or fretting to enter into his life, and the cultivation of the Christian graces—charity, patience and philosophy. —Athenaeum.

Some merchants get the best they can; some get the meanest they can.

Your dealer in lamp-chimneys—what does he get for you?

There are common glass and tough glass, tough against heat.

There are foggy and clear.

There are rough and fine.

There are carefully made and hap-hazard.

You can't be an expert chimney; but this you can.

Insist on Macbeth's "pearl glass" which ever shape you require. They are right in all those ways; and they do not break from heat not one in a hundred.

Be willing to pay a nickel more for them.

MARRIAGES.

CLARK-SPOLE.—At Christ Church, Houston, Texas, Aug. 5, 1892, at eight P. M., by Rev. J. A. Rogers, Mr. R. K. Clark, of Houston, to Miss Annie H. Spole, of Springfield, La.

OBITUARIES.

We publish obituaries of 200 words free of charge; for all over this, one cent per word must be sent. If you want the notice to appear in its order, comply with this rule. Count the words, and send one cent for each word over 200.

"Sweet to the memory of our loved ones," Oh, if we could all die together; if we could keep all our loved ones in the family-fold together until some bright Spring day, the birds a-chant, the waters a-glitter, and then we could all together hear the sweet voice of the Good Shepherd, and the music of the angels spreading wide the pearly gates, and, hand in hand, pass under the vale. But no, no, it is one by one. It may be in the midnight or spring; it may be alone and suddenly. We should only be ready when our work is finished. During the past few years so many of our happy family have fallen asleep in Jesus. We were a happy group of seven. Now only three. The first to go was our sweet mama. As we hear little children stand around her dying couch, I will never forget those sweet eyes, for they alone were bright, and brighter grew as nearer death approached; as I have seen the gentle little flower look latest in the silver beam which fell reflected from the thunder-cloud, that soon came down, and over the desert scattered her and wide its loveliness. She made a sign to bring her babe, but, alas! the beautiful little flower had been plucked for our mother's weal, and soon it was placed beside its mother in theasket. She then looked into our faces, and laid her hand upon our little heads and sought for us with a look that seemed to penetrate the heavens, unutterable blessings, such as God to dying parents only granted for children left behind them in the world. "God keep my children," we heard her say; then, praying God's blessing upon our father, that he might all meet her in heaven, she said no more. The angel of the covenant had come, and, faithful to his promise, stood prepared to take with her through death's dark vale. And now her eyes grew bright and brighter still, so bright for ours to look upon, suffused with many tears, and closed without a cloud. They met as the morning star, which goes not down behind the darkening west, nor hides obscured among the tempests of the sky, but sets away into the light of heaven.

The next to go was sister, Ada, just blooming into womanhood. Laid down her life for a crown of gold, leaving her young husband and infant son to drop fresh flowers on her grave. But, at the fourth sad, sad stroke came Ed. C. 1892, as we gazed around the dying bed of our only brother. Oh! it seemed more then we could bear, as we watched the last moments of his gentle breath, the last faint fluttering of his pulse. He was the delight of his friends, the pride of his kindred, the hope of his country, but he died! How beautiful was that gleam upon the altar of death! The ure of gentle kindness in his eye, the generous affection of youth, maple in his cheek; his foot was upon the threshold of life; his preparations for honored and useful life were completed; his breast was filled with a thousand glowing and noble aspirations.

Can we believe that all this should die? The godlike in youthful virtues can not die in vain. The following lines were written by the boy who died: "Dear brethren and friends, I have not been enjoying the blessing of the Lord Jesus Christ but a few days; but I can say, with all my heart, that I have seen more happiness in those few days than I have seen in the whole of my past life. I remember the words spoken by my blessed mother on her death-bed: 'Obituary thought; faith tells us that to those to whom it is Christ to live, it is gain to die. Let our thoughts then linger not about the grave, but seek the living Jesus in the sweet presence of our Father and their Father, in the home where every holy wish is met and every pure desire fulfilled, where suffering and sorrow are no more, and the life of eternal youth and unending beauty.' What would our Father give to those to whom all the avenues of divine wisdom are free, the riches of infinite love unclouded, and a boundless sphere of duty and of happiness laid open!"

Obituary thought; faith tells us that to those to whom it is Christ to live, it is gain to die. Let our thoughts then linger not about the grave, but seek the living Jesus in the sweet presence of our Father and their Father, in the home where every holy wish is met and every pure desire fulfilled, where suffering and sorrow are no more, and the life of eternal youth and unending beauty.

Obituary thought; faith tells us that to those to whom it is Christ to live, it is gain to die. Let our thoughts then linger not about the grave, but seek the living Jesus in the sweet presence of our Father and their Father, in the home where every holy wish is met and every pure desire fulfilled, where suffering and sorrow are no more, and the life of eternal youth and unending beauty.

Obituary thought; faith tells us that to those to whom it is Christ to live, it is gain to die. Let our thoughts then linger not about the grave, but seek the living Jesus in the sweet presence of our Father and their Father, in the home where every holy wish is met and every pure desire fulfilled, where suffering and sorrow are no more, and the life of eternal youth and unending beauty.

Obituary thought; faith tells us that to those to whom it is Christ to live, it is gain to die. Let our thoughts then linger not about the grave, but seek the living Jesus in the sweet presence of our Father and their Father, in the home where every holy wish is met and every pure desire fulfilled, where suffering and sorrow are no more, and the life of eternal youth and unending beauty.

Obituary thought; faith tells us that to those to whom it is Christ to live, it is gain to die. Let our thoughts then linger not about the grave, but seek the living Jesus in the sweet presence of our Father and their Father, in the home where every holy wish is met and every pure desire fulfilled, where suffering and sorrow are no more, and the life of eternal youth and unending beauty.

Obituary thought; faith tells us that to those to whom it is Christ to live, it is gain to die. Let our thoughts then linger not about the grave, but seek the living Jesus in the sweet presence of our Father and their Father, in the home where every holy wish is met and every pure desire fulfilled, where suffering and sorrow are no more, and the life of eternal youth and unending beauty.

BERRY—WILLIE J., infant daughter of Dr. J. T. B. and Sister Berry, died Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 2, 1892, aged eight months.

The pastor opens here two views: One is the record of parental pain, very deep and keen, for the baby gone, the silent cradle, the mother's empty arms. Such is the earth-side to those who are bereft this way. The other view is of the heavenly side—equally sure. "O! such is the kingdom," opens to the believer's sight "sweet fields" of light, and in these fields, rejoicing, the little ones, the joys of humanity, become the smiles of God. The parents of this baby do thank God for the little one's sweet stay with them and for the perfect stay assured to it forever in his heaven. The child was eight months here, always bright and quiet and sweet. Her memory will abide in the hearts of those who thought the stay too brief; but they know all things work together for good to such as love God. His peace is theirs. We look to him and find comfort to sorrow, while with tender fingers we lay loving tributes upon the little grave. It thens now water the flowers, it is well; they will be wiped away. "He doeth all things well."

Braudon, Miss. W. H. H.

BEAUCHAMP—Mrs. MARY ELIZABETH BEAUCHAMP (nee Lancaster) was born in Milford, La., July 25, 1816. Her father was a Methodist minister. On Dec. 22, 1868, she was married to Mr. J. A. Beauchamp, who, with four children, survives to mourn her loss.

Mrs. Beauchamp joined the Methodist Church in Vicksburg, Miss., under the ministry of Rev. H. J. Jones, nearly six years ago. She became a very devout and consistent member, and continued faithful to the end. During her last illness, which was long and painful, she was patient and resigned to the will of God. She naturally clung to life on account of her family, but was ready to go when the Master called. She fell asleep in Jesus, Aug. 20, 1892.

Vicksburg, Miss. W. B. Lewis.

HENNETT—MARIE LEE, daughter of R. L. and E. A. Bennett, was born in Winn parish, La., Jan. 1, 1890, and died July 14, 1892. This little bud from the Eden above bloomed long enough on earth to represent the purity of heaven and to permanently dwell in the hearts of her parents; then carried back to her native home for a beacon light to shed a halo of glory on the pathway of the parents to heaven. May her death quicken that life in the parents, over which death hath no power!

J. W. HEARN.

HYDE—At a meeting of the Vossburg Auxiliary Woman's Missionary Society, the following resolutions were adopted on the death of one of our members, Miss LULA HYDE:

Whereas, It has pleased Almighty God to remove from our midst one of our faithful and much-loved members, Miss LULA HYDE:

Resolved, That we, in mission meeting assembled, do hereby express our deep sense of loss occasioned by the death of this faithful and much-loved member, and bow in humble submission to his divine will, knowing that through his tender love and mercy he doeth all things well.

Resolved, That our heartfelt sympathies be extended to the sorrowing family of which she was a member, and that our united prayers be offered to our heavenly Father for the gift of his Holy Spirit to help and comfort them in this sad, sad hour of bereavement.

Resolved, That this great affliction sent by God may, through his providence, be the means of an eternal spiritual blessing to each one of our society, and especially to each member of her family, whom she so tenderly loved, blessing their hearts with the love of the blessed savior, who says, "Come unto me, all ye who are weary and heavy laden, and I will give you rest."

MRS. M. L. THOMAS, For Committee.

WALL—Whereas, It has pleased God to remove Miss CARIE WALL from our midst by the hand of death, therefore, be it

Resolved, That in her death our Sunday-school has been deprived of a loved member and faithful worker, and that while we give expression to our sorrow for her loss, we feel that there is at the same time cause of thankfulness that the "fruits of righteousness" were so early manifest in her fresh, young life, and for the gentle influence of the light and warmth which radiated from her heart full of cheer and hope, and, above all, for the comforting assurance she left to her friends, while passing from earth to her heavenly home, of her faithful in Christ, and for her triumphant testimony to the power of his saving grace.

Resolved, That we tender our heartfelt Christian sympathies to the sorrowing members of the bereaved family.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to them, and that a copy also be forwarded for publication to the Christian Southern Watchman and to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

MRS. A. G. DEANE, For Committee.

W. D. D. Delator, Secretary of O. L. A., Nov. 20, last, says: "Three years ago an agent representing Dr. Davis' Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Tar came into my store. Being busy, I was unable to give him any time."

Before leaving he gave me a sample bottle of Davis' Wild Cherry and Tar, asking me to give it to anyone suffering with a cough or cold. Several days afterward I caught a heavy cold, and, remembering the sample bottle, I would try it. His compound cured me. Ordered a supply at once, and have sold it with satisfaction to all. It suits the people on all my family, and I would not be without it. I take pleasure in recommending it at all times. One dollar bottle holds a half and a half times as much as 50c. bottles.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO THOSE SENDING MONEY. Remittances should be made only by money orders, express company orders, registered letters, drafts on banks or New Orleans banks or merchants. Drafts on country banks occasion a loss of from 10c to 25c per check. Drafts on country merchants we have no facility for collecting. Checks and drafts, and money orders, should be made payable to Dr. L. MITCHELL, Publisher.

WOLF'S

ADONE

BLACKING

USED BY MEN, WOMEN AND CHILDREN. A SHINE LASTS A WEEK. LEATHER PRESERVER. A HANDSOME POLISH. IS WATER-PROOF. 20c. A BOTTLE.

1 cent a foot

will pay for changing the appearance of old furniture so completely that it will look like new.

PIK-RON

OF THE PAINT THEY DO IT.

M. L. WHITE.

N. K. FAIRBANK & CO., Sole Manufacturers, CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS, NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON, BALTIMORE, NEW ORLEANS, SAN FRANCISCO, PORTLAND, ME., PORTLAND, ORE., PITTSBURGH AND MILWAUKEE Fairbank's Gold Dust Washing Powder.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR The Celebrated CHOCOLAT MENIER Annual Sales Exceed 33 MILLION Lbs. Write for Samples. Sent Free. Menier, Union Sq., N. Y.

HARDWOOD AND MARBLEIZED SLATE MANTELS. TILE HEARTHES. GRATES AND FIRE-PLACE TRIMMINGS.

GEO. M. LEAHY, Advocate Building, - No. 112 Camp St., New Orleans.

WE The July PRONOUNCE W. C. SHEPARD & SON, 94 CAMP ST., near POYDITAS, The Cheapest Crockery, Glass and House-furnishing House in the City. Be sure and look them up when needing goods in their line. 500 Dinner, Tea and Chamber Sets at half price.

For First-Class Photographs GO TO SIMON'S, No. 183 Canal St., - - - New Orleans, La.

H. Dudley Coleman Machinery Co., Lim'd, New Orleans, La.

STEAM ENGINES, BOILERS, MILLS AND MACHINERY, Pumps, Pipe, Presses, Pulleys, Shafting, Saw, Sugar and Corn Mills, Cotton Gins, Feeders and Condensers.

Examine Our Stock. Our Prices are Very Low. FOUNDRY, FACTORY & OFFICE, COR. MAGNOLIA AND ERATO STS. SUPPLIES & SAMPLE STORE 9 Perdido St. New Orleans, La.

If readers of this advertisement who wish to purchase goods in our line would mention this paper when writing for information or when ordering goods from us, we could then determine whether the money we pay for advertising in this paper is well invested or not.

H. DUDLEY COLEMAN MACHINERY CO., LIMITED, New Orleans, La.

Latest Styles -- Lowest Prices!

This handsome Parlor Suit is upholstered on solid walnut frames with Imported Marbleized Silk Plush and the seats are all Spring Edge. Colors are Red, Red and Old Gold, Blue and Old Gold or each piece of a different color. For $45 I will sell seven pieces of this suit:—one Sofa, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair and three Reception Chairs. $65 buys the complete suit of ten pieces consisting of two Sofas, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair, and five Reception Chairs. Same suit covered with Hair Cloth, seven pieces $35 or ten pieces $55. Every other article in my store at proportionately low prices. Bedroom suits, twelve pieces, from $40 up to $1000 Dining room suits, eight pieces, from $17 upwards. Complete Kitchen outfits from $20 upwards. Quality at top—prices at bottom. I have an immense variety of strictly reliable goods and purchasers can depend upon getting the very latest styles. Everything guaranteed to be exactly as represented or money will be promptly refunded.

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT, 28 CAMP STREET 30

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT, 28 CAMP STREET 30

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT, 28 CAMP STREET 30

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT, 28 CAMP STREET 30

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT, 28 CAMP STREET 30

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT, 28 CAMP STREET 30

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT, 28 CAMP STREET 30

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT, 28 CAMP STREET 30

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT, 28 CAMP STREET 30

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT, 28 CAMP STREET 30

Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company.

Losses Paid by Chicago Fire, 1871, $3,239,091.

Losses Paid by Boston Fire, 1872, $1,420,720.

All Losses Paid in Cash, without Discount, as Soon as Adjusted.

Losses and all matters of business settled by officers and directors in New Orleans without reference to any other office, the same as with local companies.

DIRECTORS IN NEW ORLEANS.

GUSTAF E. WESTFELDT, L. O. FALLON, LUIGAS E. MOORE, O. M. SORIA

Chairman.

CLARENCE F. LOW, Ass't Resident Sec'y.

H. V. OGDEN, Resident Secretary.

The Southern Insurance Company OF NEW ORLEANS.

54 - - - CAMP STREET - - - 54

Paid up Capital, $300,000. Assets, $545,096.10.

FIRE, RIVER AND MARINE INSURANCE.

This company by its conservative, yet liberal, business methods, and the immediate availability of its assets, affords complete security to its assured. Losses promptly adjusted and paid.

ERNEST MILTENBERGER, President. H. GALLY, Vice-President. SCOTT MCGHEE, Secretary.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Frank Boder, J. H. Menge, Joseph Schwartz, F. G. Ernst, T. J. Woodward.

Home Insurance Co., of New Orleans. No. 78 CAMP STREET.

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1886, - - - $400,479.08

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1887, - - - $413,860.76

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1888, - - - $459,369.50

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1889, - - - $510,584.54

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1890, - - - $551,897.82

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1891, - - - $600,414.81

Steadily Increasing in Strength and Popularity.

Sollicits Fire and River Business.

Liberal Settlements and Prompt Payments.

Thos. Sefton, Pres't. Capt. J. B. Woods, Vice-Pres't. Jno. G. Byrd, Sec'y

J. R. WOODS, J. B. BARR, J. R. LEVERT, W. B. BLOOMFIELD

JOS. BAYLE, ANDREW STEWART, E. BORLAND, W. T. HARDIE

JNO. BARKLEY, CHAS. CHAFFE, F. R. BICE, THOS. SEFTON.

W. E. LYMAN, President. JOSEPH BOWLING, Vice-President. CHAS. E. RICE, Secretary.

Crescent Insurance Com'y.

Incorporated as a Mutual Company in 1849.

Reorganized as a Stock Company in 1860.

Cash Capital, - - - - - $300,000.

Has paid over TEN AND ONE-HALF MILLIONS for losses since 1849. ANNUAL and TERM POLICIES issued on Desirable Fire Business.

See our Agents throughout Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas.

Watches, Diamonds, FINE JEWELRY! Silver and Silver-Plated Ware, SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES.

Send for Catalogue.

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO., (Established 1817) 119 CANAL ST., New Orleans, La.

THIRTY CENTS WILL get you TWO good papers, THE WAY OF FATHER (weekly), THE SOLIDITY (monthly), or THREE MONTHS, 3 weeks longer, and our Liberal Terms to Agents. Address: GOSPEL MISSION, Columbia, S. C. Mention this paper.

"Sanctification," By Dr. B. CARRADINE, Is having a wonderful sale and doing a large amount of good. Price: Paper, 40 cents; cloth, 80 cents. For sale by F. D. VAN VALKENBURGH, 106 Camp St., New Orleans.

J. C. MORRIS CO., Limited. 40, 42 and 44 Tchoupitoulas Street E. F. DYER, Pres. E. P. MACKIE, Treas.

AGENTS WANTED! Why should you send at once to New Orleans for your Prospectus of "SPURGEON'S LIFE." We send a 50-cent outfit for 30 cents. We can ship you books quicker and cheaper than from anywhere else. Liberal Terms.

F. D. VAN VALKENBURGH, 106 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

This handsome Parlor Suit is upholstered on solid walnut frames with Imported Marbleized Silk Plush and the seats are all Spring Edge. Colors are Red, Red and Old Gold, Blue and Old Gold or each piece of a different color. For $45 I will sell seven pieces of this suit:—one Sofa, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair and three Reception Chairs. $65 buys the complete suit of ten pieces consisting of two Sofas, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair, and five Reception Chairs. Same suit covered with Hair Cloth, seven pieces $35 or ten pieces $55. Every other article in my store at proportionately low prices. Bedroom suits, twelve pieces, from $40 up to $1000 Dining room suits, eight pieces, from $17 upwards. Complete Kitchen outfits from $20 upwards. Quality at top—prices at bottom. I have an immense variety of strictly reliable goods and purchasers can depend upon getting the very latest styles. Everything guaranteed to be exactly as represented or money will be promptly refunded.

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT, 28 CAMP STREET 30

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT, 28 CAMP STREET 30

Christian Advocate

VOL. 39.—NO. 36.

NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1892.

WHOLE NO. 1881.

Rev. C. W. CARTER, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. LEWIS, Asst. Editor.

PUBLISHED FOR THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE AND NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

For the Christian Advocate,
MY LIFE IN CHRIST.

BY MARIA TAYLOR PIPKIN.

At the dawn of the light, ere the rise of the sun,
The work of my life, for the day, is begun.
I stand, through Christ, with an earnest prayer,
That strength be given me for each trial and care.
Through his eyes in my soul, I can see the shades
That radiant power so dently prepares
For every test, as they carefully tread Aids from his way, when the nets are out-spread.
Though hidden by flowers whose radiant hues
And loveliest perfumes enchantment diffuse, None escape his hand, as the path becomes steep.
Keenly close to his breast, when griefs o'er me sweep;
Drawing light from his smile, as the daylight
grows dim,
Till I sink into slumbers watched over by him.
New Orleans.

At Epworth.

In my last letter promisee was made to give some account of a visit to Epworth, the birthplace of John Wesley, and in an important sense, the earliest home of the Methodist movement. I was fortunate in having the company of Rev. R. S. Trippett, who has frequently visited the historic ground, preached there, and is familiar with every locality and its sacred association. From Doncaster, the home of Bro. Trippett, with whose family I spent a few hours most pleasantly, I went by rail to Epworth, where we boarded an omnibus for a five miles' ride to Epworth.
Over the hills to the famous Lincolnshire "living," where Rev. Samuel Wesley ministered for forty eventful years, it seemed to me that the breath of heaven had a strange sweetness, for there God had first marshaled the forces of a mighty spiritual empire.
My own spirit contrasted strikingly with some chattering passengers in the omnibus, who evidently knew only as a faint tradition that such an one as John Wesley ever lived, and had little sympathy with the two eager travelers on a pilgrimage to England's holiest shrine.

A mile or two in the distance the square tower of old Epworth Church is clearly visible. With its first distinct outlines against the horizon, the apostolic incidents of more than an hundred years, of which I had often read, came trooping up like angels from the mighty past, and thrilled me with the reverence due to a mysterious presence. Along that very road the feet of saints and martyrs had walked, and in that quiet, secluded village, but little changed by the centuries, was born the grandest spiritual revolution of the age. And then I humbly, silently prayed that the Spirit which presided over the Epworth rectory, and thrust out those apostolic sons, might continue to bless the homes and the people of Old England and the wide world.

Driving through the narrow streets of the quaint old town, about as large now as in the days of Samuel Wesley, attention is first attracted to the "Town Cross"—a stone cross erected on a stone pedestal at the intersection of several streets, from the steps of which John Wesley occasionally preached to the eager multitudes. It was an innocent, pardonable pleasure to stand on the same steps and invoke the abiding presence of the same Spirit that made his ministry so wonderfully fruitful.
Looking over a volume entitled,
"Wesley, His Own Biographer," presented me by my special friend, Rev.
James Chapman, of Oxford, preparatory to that visit, I found entries in Mr. Wesley's journal like this, "I went immediately to the Cross, and great was our glorifying in the Lord."

Through a gate, and up a long, beautiful, densely shaded avenue—
"the church lane," as Wesley called it—
we approach the famous church.
Along that same path the diligent old rector walked for forty years, and the venerable mother led her children to the altar of prayer. The very stones were hallowed with sanctified devotion; the air seemed yet redolent with the perfume of sacrifice then humbly offered to the God and Father of us all. Around the venerable structure are the mounds and monuments of hundreds who have slept under its shadow for one or more centuries.
Before entering the sacred edifice, as you might suppose, I sought the tomb of Samuel Wesley, on which John stood to preach when not allowed inside. There are two indentations on the tomb, which some of the superstitious claimed were the footprints of John, preserved in stone as a protest against churchly bigotry, and as a memorial of apostolic courage. Of that historic event Mr. Wesley thus speaks: "After sermon, John Taylor stood in the church-yard and gave notice as the people were coming out,

"Mr. Wesley, not being permitted to preach in the church, designs to preach here at six o'clock." Accordingly at six I came and found a congregation, as I believe, Epworth never saw before. I stood near the east end of the church, upon my father's tombstone, and cried: 'The kingdom of heaven is not meat and drink; but righteousness and peace and joy in the Holy Ghost.'"

It was difficult to recall, amid the quiet solemnities of that silent city of the dead, the stirring and exciting scenes of those years of trial and persecution. I could appreciate, however, this somber entry in Mr. Wesley's journal during one of his later visits to Epworth: "Taking a solitary walk in the church-yard I felt the truth of,
'One generation goeth and another cometh.'"

In company with other visitors, we entered the old church, which remains very much as in the days of the Wes-leys. There is the same small, circular marble pulpit, and inside the chancel the same chairs used by the vénérable rector. The old communion table is not there, but may be found in the Wesley Memorial Chapel on another street, for which it was purchased by loyal Methodists, and is preserved with tenderest and most sacred care.
I sat in a pew and thought how faithfully that man of God served his parish—sometimes administering severe rebuke, but ever ready with loving consolation; how he was often discourageed and unappreciated, but wrought on under the blessing of Heaven, and the fact that the generations will never cease to honor him.

After lingering for awhile in that holy atmosphere, we descended by the long shaded avenue, feeling somewhat the reverence of a congregation walking down that same "church lane" described by Mr. Wesley. He said:
"And all the way as we walked down the church lane, after the sermon was ended, I scarce saw one person look on either side or speak one word to another."

Passing through several short streets, we visited the old rectory—the cradle of Methodism, the home of Susanna Wesley and the throne of her power—that home in which the children were "strictly educated and carefully taught." The spacious grounds are enclosed by a high brick wall, over which the luxuriant ivy has grown, making the dull masonry a thing of life and beauty. Within are well-kept gardens, with blooming flowers and green grass, and the same plain, substantial brick building, erected after the fire, when little John came so near perishing in the flames. The minister was absent, and I did not have the privilege of seeing the different rooms, everyone of which has a family and Methodist history. I wanted to see the little closet sanctuary into which the devout mother retired each day with one of the children to talk and pray. And the room where the noises were heard—where the invisible ghosts appeared—and which made so profound an impression upon the family,
I had curiosity to examine, and discover if any faint echoes would fall upon my dull, unbelieving ears. But I greatly enjoyed walking about the grounds, and recalling the interesting history of a century and a half.
Around that venerable home young feet pattered that afterward trod the path of high destiny, and young voices shouted that in after years were to sing and speak to the salvation of millions, and the rapture of the heavenly hosts.
Nursed in that secluded place, the fame of these sons have filled the world, and the glory of their achievements will be the heritage of all generations.

From there we went to the Wesley Memorial Chapel—a beautiful, tasteful, modern structure, decidedly the handsomest building in the place, and one of the neatest churches I have seen in all England. It was fitting that such a memorial should be built in the birthplace of our great founder, and I am glad to know that Methodism prospers in its earliest Lincolnshire home.

Returning to Bradford late in the afternoon, I looked to at Eastbrook Chapel for a while and heard several missionary addresses. It was the session for receiving returned missionaries, and Dr. Jenkins was appropriately in the chair. By these special meetings—made prominent and important—the church at home is kept in closer sympathy with the work and workers in the foreign fields.

At ten o'clock I was back at "Oak-worth House," somewhat to the surprise of all, having spent one of the memorable days of my life. But so much space has been occupied in describing it, I must reserve for another letter much that was intended for this.
A second visit to Haworth, the old parish of Wesley's friend, Wm. Grim-shaw, and afterwards the father of Charlotte Brontë; a picnic near Charlotte Brontë's waterfall; a day at Bolton Abbey; evening with Rev. Wm.
Arthur, and many other Yorkshire and Conference observations, demand a series of letters, but time forbids the writing. Fraternally,

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY.

"Oakworth House," near Bradford, England,
Aug. 1, 1892.

Christian Education in the Meridian District.

First, mention must be made of East Mississippi Female College, under the presidency of C. W. Anderson, assisted by his accomplished Christian wife.
The dance and the theatre find no encouragement from them, and the Bible ranks far higher than Shakespeare.
Experienced and competent teachers are employed. It is denominational, but not sectarian.

Cooper Normal College, Daleville,
under the presidency of the Rev. Ben.
M. Drake, assisted by Prof. W. L.
Ellis (son of Rev. D. G. W. Ellis),
Prof. T. E. Winecoff, Mrs. Claudia
McWilliams (music), and Miss Ada
Black (daughter of Rev. Dr. W. C.
Black), starts upon a new career, and promises to be broader and more thorough than ever before, and pronounced religious, but not sectarian in its influence. I am glad to commend this school.

Lauderdale High School, under Prof. Geo. W. Burton, A. M., of Greensboro, Ala., and Prof. H. C.
Harrison, A. M., of the University of Mississippi and of Vanderbilt, assisted by Mrs. Archibald, an accomplished musician, will do thorough work.

Enterprise High School, with Prof.
Boydston, a graduate of the A. and M.
College, Starkville, for principal, and several competent assistants, made a fine record last year, and promises better things this year. Prof. Boyd-ston is the son of a Cumberland Presbyterian minister, competent, conscientious, and a Christian.

Shubuta has a fine school, managed by Mrs. Hand and Mrs. Drake, accomplished, experienced and thorough teachers.

Waynesboro High School, with Rev.
W. W. Moore at the head, and for assistants Hon. Alex. Powe, Miss Clara Black and Miss Lucy Andrews (daughter of Dr. C. W. Andrews), will begin the second session under most favorable auspices. The moral and religious influences will be pronounced,
and yet devoid of bigotry, intolerance,
or sectarianism.

There is also a fine school under Prof. McNeil, at Escutia, Wayne county, Miss., while just without our borders, at Hickory and Rose Hill, are schools affording good educational facilities.

T. L. MELLE.

Notice.

To the Members of the M. E. Church, South, within the Bounds of the Mississippi Annual Conference—

Dear Brethren: From every mission field in which our missionaries are laboring come up cries for more laborers, teachers as well as preachers.
Other fields are white unto the harvest, and we have no laborers there.
Such opportunities for reaching perishing millions were never before presented to our church. Such tremendous responsibilities never before confronted us. And yet our church Italia in spite of the Divine command, "Go forward!" and in spite of the Divine commission, "Go ye into all the world!" The Board of Missions is perplexed, and some of the members greatly discouraged. A debt of $118,- 000 seems to be in the way of an onward movement. Some of our mission schools have been closed; some of our faithful missionaries are broken down.

No reinforcements are going forward.
We would be but holding our ground.
In the foreign fields were it not that every man and every woman is doing double duty, and wearing themselves out and hastening to untimely graves.
And their blood will cry from the ground to God for vengeance, just as the blood of deserted Gordon calls from Khartoum for vengeance on England's government.

The Mississippi Conference is assessed $9,050 for foreign missions. Our membership in December, 1891, was 38,029. The assessment is, therefore, less than twenty-five cents a member. We are asked to raise about $4,000 to pay off the debt, or about ten cents a member. But the effort to get rid of the debt is not to conflict with the regular assessment, but is to be entirely independent of that, the collection of which is left in the hands of the preachers in charge. Our appeal is to the church members and friends whom God hath blessed with great material property, and who have not been contributing to the cause of missions according as God hath prospered them. Only one man in the State has been contributing $200 a year to missions, and only one or two so much as $100. And yet there are, at least, three men in our Conference bounds who are able to contribute from $5,000 to $10,000 a year; not less than twenty-five who could contribute $1,000; at least five hundred who could contribute $100, and a thousand who could contribute from $25 to $50. But how little are we doing! Oh! for the convicting power of the Holy Ghost upon these sleeping consciences, upon these selfish hearts, until they shall

—answer to the world's appeal
By giving 'that is true!'

When the district solicitor, or his assistant, calls on you, dear brethren, do not put him off with a quarter or a half dollar; do not let selfishness magnify a silver dollar into the proportions of a timber wheel; but, "freely ye have received, freely give" (Matt. x; 8), and "not grudgingly, or of necessity; for the Lord loveth a cheerful giver" (II. Cor. ix, 7).

T. L. MELLE.

Solicitor for Miss. Conf.

RECEIPTS TO PAY MISSIONARY DEBT—
LAMBETH PLAN.

Meridian District—Linwood circuit, $10.00	Brookhaven District—Per M. L. Burton, 28.50
Savannah District—Per M. H. Moore, 27.00

These amounts are forwarded to-day to Dr. Lambeth. Let all the solicitors adopt Bro. Mark H. Moore's plan, and go to work. He is doing his work well, and succeeding admirably. All together, brethren, and the demand upon us will be fully met.

Rev. J. M. Morse is the solicitor for the Brandon district. His name was inadvertently omitted from the former announcement. T. L. MELLE.

Solicitor for Miss. Conf.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. J. F. Wynn, Pineville, La., Sept. 1: "Have held two protracted meetings since my last report. Ten accessions, 15 conversions, church gloriously revived, and twelve more children baptized. I think we have about 50 family altars on my circuit, and prayer and class meetings at nearly every appointment. We are returning to the old paths."

Rev. F. M. Williams, Tryon, Miss.,
Aug. 26: "We closed our Providence
Camp Meeting on the morning of Aug.
24, with fine results; between 20 and 25 conversions, and the church most profoundly waked up. My charge is today much improved, and the outlook very gratifying. The prospect is, we will bring up all our claims by our Annual Conference."

Rev. M. J. Miller, China Grove circuit, Mississippi Conference, Aug. 31:
"We closed a meeting at China Grove, Mississippi Conference, Aug. 25. From the very first service on Saturday the Lord was with us in great power. I never saw a church move more promptly to the call of the preachers. We had only five additions to the church; but the meeting was a great blessing to the church. The preaching was done by A. D. Miller, of Bowington circuit;
J. L. Derrick, a Lutheran preacher from Smith county, Miss., and James Lewis, local, and it was well done, as shown in the results. Pray for us, brethren."

Rev. Wm. Schuble, P. C., Shreveport, La., Aug. 20: "Had a protracted meeting last week at Pine Hill, Mooringsport circuit. Bro. Williams, of Shreveport, preached with power.
Results: Church much revived, some reclamations, several conversions, 14 accessions on profession of faith; baptized 5 adults, also 5 infants. We praise the Lord for his saving grace."

Rev. J. R. Roberson, Aug. 30: "I have just closed the fourth and last protracted meeting on Newport circuit, Kosciusko district, North Mississippi Conference. I could only find 4 family altars when I came here. Now we have about 30 heads of families who have promised to pray with their families. Church much revived; 8 accessions; some more will join soon.
Bro. Lewis, Worsham and Terry rendered valuable assistance."

Rev. T. W. Lewis, Holly Springs, Miss., Aug. 25: "Just closed a few days' meeting at Howard Schoolhouse, two miles north of Holly Springs. Had 11 conversions and 8 accessions—four heads of families and four young ladies. Bro. Gray, the local preacher about here, helped at three services. Circuit court is now in session here. That Christian gentleman, Judge Fant, is presiding. The whisky traffic is virtually dead now.
Capt. Rone, the district attorney, is also a Christian gentleman."

"Gilderoy," Kosciusko district, Pickens, Miss., Aug. 22: "Rev. R. A. Burroughs, the presiding elder, is improving rapidly. Will soon be ready for full work. Times very rigid; money scarce. Three months and eight days ill Conference. Only two preachers in the district nearly half-paid. The presiding elder has received only about four-fifths of his assessment. Collections ordered by the Conference all short. With the collections and pastoral support there is more than two-thirds of the financial work to be done
yet. Some good meetings."

Rev. Geo. W. Huff, North Wilkinson
circuit, Mississippi Conference, Aug.
25: "I have just closed a good meeting at Hopewell. Bro. J. N. Tucker did most of the preaching. His preaching was very plain and pointed. Bro.
Petty was with us in the spirit of prayer. Bro. Petty is a good worker in a meeting. Many precious souls were converted to God, and 4 persons united with our church, and Christians abouted and thanked God for heartfelt religion. I have been on this work a year and a half, and have received very nearly 100 members. Pray for us."

Rev. E. L. Rawls, P. C., Clarksville circuit, Mississippi Conference: "Our protracted meetings are over. The lu-test was generally good. We have received 11 by baptism, 7 on profession of faith; total, 18 accessions, and quite a number of conversions. We are under obligations to the following brethren for help rendered: Bro. T.
J. Miller and C. C. Griffin, L. P., and Bro. James Franklin, a blind preacher of the Methodist Protestant Church.
All gave valuable help. Crops are ruined in this country by excessive rains. The outlook is gloomy. Pray for us, brethren."

R. M. Davis, Vinton, La., Aug. 27:
"We have just closed a good meeting at this place, conducted principally by Rev. R. M. Blocker, of Rayne. Our pastor, J. F. Johnson, was doing a good work in other fields at the same time, which held a claim upon his services by a previous arrangement.
Bro. Blocker held up the cross of Christ in such a clear, practical way, as a healing balm to all of our trials, that disturbances have all disappeared and we have quiet, peace and happiness again. Result of meeting: four accessions, one, perhaps two, conversions, and Christians generally enjoying the old-time religion."

Rev. H. C. Morehead, P. E.: "In sending my fourth round for publication, I desire to send this additional note. Our imperial and conquering Lord is leading his valiant hosts to glorious victory. The ramparts of sin are being stormed, the powers of darkness vanquished and foes captured.
Yes, thank God, our prayers are being answered. The order of the day is revival. The most of the charges to the Sardis district have had, and are having, additions on profession of faith. At a quarterly meeting recently held in the Delta, where Methodism was unknown before, God's Spirit was poured out on the people, and a church was organized with fifteen members.

At another quarterly meeting, just held, the pastor reported many conversions, fifty-one additions to the church, three prayer meetings, and many family altars erected in three months. Bro. Wyatt and Brown are both feeble. We are singing the Doxology in our hearts."

Rev. J. N. Ware, Matherville, Miss., Aug. 20: "We have had a good meeting at Scott's and Andrew Chapel since I wrote you last. Bro. Price, of the Alabama Conference, did us good work at Scott's. Bro. A. C. Flowers did us good work in both of the meetings. Bro. J. N. Broadway, L. P., deserves credit for the faithful preaching he did at Andrew Chapel. We have but few people in this country who don't belong to some church. I have never served a charge that was any better in having their children baptized than this one. My people most all have this attended to all over the work. If they were as much advanced in other things—such as family and private prayer, and keeping the General Rules in all things—they would get along much better. I have preached 9 sermons this year on the General Rules. Many of our people have never heard a sermon on them before. One old brother, who has grandchildren, told me he never knew it was against the rules of our church to drink a dram as a beverage before.
Much is to be learned by our people of our rules, if we, as preachers and pastors, would preach more on them.
God has blessed me in preaching on them."

Rev. J. T. Abney, Porterville, Miss., Aug. 22: "Since the first of January, I have been able to fill every appointment except two, and that was caused by rain. Also I have been able to hold a revival meeting at each appointment except one. On the first Sunday in July, Bro. R. A. Broland, of DeKalb, came to my assistance, and we held a meeting of four days' duration. There was one accession, but the church awakened, and many expressed themselves as receiving a great blessing.
The excessive rains caused the congregations to be small. On the third Sunday in July, Bro. Rawls, of Mootrose, and Bro. Huff, of Binsville, came to my assistance, and we held a meeting of five days at Chapel Hill.
Bro. Rawls doing the preaching till Wednesday evening, except one sermon preached by Bro. Huff on Monday evening. Bro. Huff and myself continued the meeting one day. During this five days' meeting the church was greatly revived. Several conversions, and 14 attached themselves to the church. Am glad to say there are several of the young converted, together with some older ones who had never led in a public prayer, have come together, and say they will hold a young men's prayer meeting weekly at Chapel Hill. On the fourth Sunday, Bro.
Huff and myself, together with Bro.
Burton, of Sumpterville, Ala., held a meeting at Burton's Chapel. During the five-days' meeting we held there we had only one applicant for membership; but the church was greatly revived, and several expressed themselves as being greatly blessed. On the fifth Sunday, with the assistance of Bro. Pugh, of Binsville, we were to hold a meeting at Center Ridge; but there was a tent meeting being carried on by the (so-called) 'holiness' people at Cuba, Ala., and there being sickness in the neighborhood, prevented.
though we had two excellent sermons by Bro. Pugh on Sunday. The first Sunday in August, with the assistance of Bro. Burton, of Sumpterville, and Dawson, of Linwood, we held a five-days' meeting at Enterprise, resulting in the awakening of the church and the reception of seven new members.
Two second Sunday in August found Bro. Burton and myself at Mount Hebron, ready to begin a four-days' meeting, with no assurance of any further assistance. On Monday I stepped Bro. Barr, a Presbyterian minister of Newton, Miss., and Browning, of Lauderdale, Miss. This meeting resulted in the reception of ten new members, the church greatly revived, and new family altars erected."

SONG OF THE SUMMER

Would sing you a song of the summer,
Sweet summer, the bride of the sun;
Fair, sweet and warm, she is dying,
Grows weary, the bride who was young.

She cold are the kisses he gives her,
Once tender and sweet, and so warm;
What wonder she's dying, when loving
Can so scarce and so chill and so harm.

Would sing you a song of the summer,
Sweet summer, the bride of the sun;
From whose breast come the scent of the rose,
Whose life, sweet-scented, is done.

What matter that summer is going?
What matter the roses are done?
For summer will leave us the fragrance
When herself and the roses are gone.

—Christian at Work.

Dr. Grace's Plan to Prevent Overflow.

[Our readers will recollect that a short time ago Dr. F. M. Grace published an article in this paper on the subject of preventing overflows. This article was sent to Gen. Wheeler, of the House of Representatives in Washington, who forwarded it to Col. Abbot, of the Engineer's Department. Col. Abbot sends the following reply.]

My Dear Gen. Wheeler: The article upon "How to Prevent Overflows on the Mississippi," written by the Rev. F. M. Grace, and forwarded to me, with your endorsement of June 30, has come to hand this morning (July 1).

As to Mr. Grace's suggestion to introduce a set of drain pipes at the base of the levee sufficient to carry off all the discharge in excess of what the river can carry within its banks, I have only to say that the area of these pipes would have to be equal to the whole space over the natural bank, for in old times, before levees were built, the overflow in the greatest floods practically covered the country. In other words, this plan would be simply an abandonment of the system of protection by levees, and a return to the original conditions. Mr. Grace very much underestimates the volume for which channels of escape would have to be provided. He also underestimates the difficulty of disposing of the water after it reaches the swamps. The great flood years are, as a rule, years of great precipitation, and the swamps are fairly well filled with rain water before the overflow reaches them. The question of relieving the river of its surplus water in great floods by conducting it through the swamps to the gulf, was studied with a great deal of care in Gen. Humphreys' investigations of the problem of protecting the alluvial region against overflow, and the result was to show conclusively that no sufficient outlet can be provided to protect the plantations against the rise due to back water.

The reason why the overflows before the construction of levees were much less disastrous than those at present is, that the country was less settled at that time. There is no evidence to show that the early overflows were not as excessive as those of later times. The flood of 1828 particularly was disastrous in the extreme. Moreover, the same effect of the overflows was then noted as is now found to occur, viz: the distribution of sandy material, and of planting of willows over the cultivated fields. The overflows of the Mississippi were never, since the history of the country, beneficent like the overflows of the Nile, partly because deposits are different, and partly because the time of occurrence differs in respect to that of planting and harvesting. What has been beneficial on the Nile has, therefore, never been beneficial on the Mississippi from the earliest date of settlement of the country. The real trouble with the matter of protection has been that the heights to which levees have been built have been fixed by guess-work, and not by any intelligent study of the demand of the problem. The effect of lowering the whole river, and retaining all its flood waters during the great flood years, will be to increase the maximum flow above any volume which has passed down its channel. It is upon this increased volume that the heights of the levees should be based. The practice has been to raise them slightly above the previous high water. The effect has been to add a little to the discharge until the increased height breaks the levee, makes a crevasse, and thus reduces the flow in the channel of the river below. This has been repeated year after year, and the result is what is well stated by Mr. Grace.

I think he would be interested in reading the discussion of the subject contained in the report of Humphreys and Abbot, dated 1861. I suppose that there are now no copies available for distribution; but he can, doubtless, get access to one in some library near his vicinity. The matter was investigated subsequently by a Commission of Engineers, and its report was published in House Ex. Doc. 127, 43rd Congress, 1st sess. I send herewith a copy of this report, thinking that it would be of interest to Mr. Grace, and may lead him to reconsider his conclusion as to the practicability of his plan.

Very sincerely yours,

HENRY L. ABBOT,
Colonel of Engineers,
Bvt. Brig.-Gen., U. S. A.

Home Religion.

Sam Jones says: "If a man has not got enough religion to pray with his family, he hasn't enough to take him to heaven." And this is very near the truth. When a man gets the love of God shed abroad in his heart, by the Holy Ghost given unto him, he will be very apt to pray with his family, if he has one. First make the tree good, then the fruit will be good. Cornelius, the centurion (Acts x), "was a devout man, and one that feared God with all his house, which gave much alms to the people and prayed to God always." No doubt, this good man, with "all his house," gathered around the family altar to worship God day by day. And God sent an angel to tell him that his "prayers and alms had come up for a memorial before God." Here was a model household, and, no doubt, a happy family. I was impressed with what our presiding elder said not long ago. He said: "In the family is the best place to begin gospel work." Here, indeed, is an important field of labor for the husband, for the wife, until each member has been redeemed by the blood of Christ.

Spurgeon, that great and good man, said: "Our house ought to be a little church, with 'holiness to the Lord' written over the door. . . . Where home is ruled according to God's Word, angels might be asked to stay a night with us, and they would not find themselves out of their element."

A home truly dedicated to God is like a city set on a hill; it can not be hid. Its influence for good goes out among the neighbors, while they, beholding good works, are constrained to glorify God. From such homes have gone forth great and good men and women to bless the world with their labors of love. It was in such a home that John and Charles Wesley were brought up to accomplish, in the hands of God, a great and glorious work. And so with other great and good men and women who have been a blessing to humanity; they were brought up amidst the prayers and tears of consecrated parents. It is to the consecrated, godly homes we look for true men to guide, in the hands of God, both Church and State. Oh for more homes truly devoted to God, where his presence is found, like as a pillar of fire by night and a pillar of cloud by day.

E. B. PARTIN, M. D.

Hickory, Miss.

Japanese Orphan Children.

AN APPEAL.

The first session of the Japan Conference of the M. E. Church, South, which has just closed, passed a resolution authorizing a committee, of which I was appointed chairman, to seek for means and encouragement, and to begin the work of an orphan asylum, provided sufficient encouragement can be obtained.

Later in the session the Conference asked how the committee proposed to work, as there was absolutely not a cent of money to begin this work of love and mercy. To this question, the committee replied in a statement, that we propose to trust in the Lord and go ahead—always keeping ourselves in the way that he leads.

I, therefore, desire now to lay this matter before the church, that God, who directs in all things, may bring out of our effort and desire for the unfortunate, parentless children of Japan, that which he sees, in his infinite wisdom, is good.

Japan is now teeming with the homeless and parentless. The earthquake has left an awful army of this class, that will not be homes until "the King, in his beauty," shall harvest them home. Besides this, on every hand, we meet the wanderer seeking here and there a morsel to eat—of rice or soup—to save life. Of all the vast throng of these, the most pitiable of God's creation, we, as a church, have not one poor orphan that we might feed at a little over a single dollar a month.

Let me give an illustration of what we see daily, that appeals to our sympathy. As we walk upon the streets, a crowd of hungry children crowd around us and ask for a tenth of a cent, saying they are "troubled about something to eat." In this throng there are children from two years old to girls of twelve and fourteen.

A year ago there was a man always to be seen on the streets of an adjoining town, who had no feet, and had arranged a box on little wheels, to which he fastened himself, as horse, and went around the streets on his knees, pulling his infant child and begging for rice. Months passed on, and one day I saw the same man going here and there on his knees, without his treasure. The story was a plain one. The Master had taken the infant home from the dusty, dry and hot streets of suffering.

My heart has been turned to grief many a time, as I have noticed many such a sight, wandering listlessly along the streets, without anyone to notice and care for them. Sick, hungry, parentless and forgotten, thousands of orphan children are wandering around us, unloved and suffering, who have never heard of the Christ who saves the world.

I pity them; for they have no way to hear of the way of salvation, nor to lead lives of virtue. The sure end of all such is disease and shame.

"Rescue the perishing, care for the dying, snatch them in pity from sin and the grave."

O, that we may lead some of these to better things! An orphan home can be conducted with very little expense, comparatively, in this country. I think two dollars per month would pay all the necessary expenses of an orphan child and the expenses of management, and if at first we could secure pleasant and healthy quarters, it would not be difficult to carry on the work. In opening the work, it might be done in several ways. We might rent buildings, and afterwards build ourselves. In this case it would cost, say, twenty dollars per month rent. Of course, the more satisfactory way would be to build on some suitable grounds, where the children would be taught to do all kinds of work. Such buildings could be made to suit the amount of money in hand. I think two thousand dollars would buy land and put up buildings that would do for us to begin work in our own buildings.

Personally, I would be even in favor of beginning in the smallest possible way, and secure a number of persons who would agree to support one or more orphans, at an expense, say, of two dollars per month, paying, say, an extra three dollars at first to buy clothes and get an outfit for the child. Thus, if a hundred persons could be found to give five dollars down and two dollars per month, a hundred orphans could be collected and kept for as long a period as such provision would last.

As has been said before, our church has no part in this matter. Yet, every member of our mission feels the importance of doing something. But how we shall do it, is troubling us, and this committee has been formed to let the needs be known, and believing, as we do, that if the needs are known God will, through his people, provide the way. I have taken the liberty to write this letter, praying that God may bless it to the saving of some of the homeless and suffering, parentless children of this land.

I should be glad to answer any letter of inquiry about the matter, and give any further information possible. Persons desiring such, and feeling called to respond to this need, will address me at the following address:

JAS. M. ROLLINS,

Osaka, Japan.

Sunday-School Convention.

The Sunday-school Conference for the Meridian district, south of Enterprise, convened at Waynesboro, Aug. 23, with Bro. L. P. Brown, of Meridian, in the chair. Reports were heard from the various delegates present as to the condition and needs of their respective schools. The reports showed that the number of pupils in the various schools ranged from fifty to seventy-five per cent, as compared with the church membership. It is evident from this that pastors, superintendents and teachers need more of the missionary spirit.

Nearly, if not all the delegates expressed a depreciation of the prevalent custom among the teachers of allowing their pupils to recite the lesson from the books or lesson helps. It was also the opinion of all that teachers and superintendents should insist on pupils using their Bibles more in the study, and in the recitation of their lessons.

The following topics were discussed: "The Relation of the Sunday-school to the Church"—Bro. J. P. Drake; "The Management of the Sunday-school"—Prof. C. W. Anderson; "What Are Our Wants, and How to Meet Them"—Bro. Moore, of Waynesboro; "What Is the Sunday-school for, and What Has It Done?"—Prof. J. F. Boydstun; "An Open Topic on Teaching Primary, Intermediate and Bible Classes"—"What Are the Difficulties of a Country Sunday-school?"—Bro. L. P. Meador; "The Use and Abuse of Lesson Helps"—Bro. Tinnin and W. S. Davis, of Waynesboro; "The Work Before Us"—the Hon. Jesse Byrd.

Although the attendance was small, yet much interest was manifested by all present; and many new thoughts and ideas were, no doubt, gathered by those present to be carried home and applied to their respective Sunday-schools, some of which that appeared to the writers are these: That teachers should have an experimental knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ; that a praying teacher is a successful teacher; that teachers should be acquainted with the Bible; that teachers should insist on their pupils having a present and full salvation; that the lesson should be taught as a whole, and not in fragmentary parts; that teachers should be courageous; those who will "carry their teachings to their logical conclusion;" superintendents, teachers and pupils should have more of the missionary spirit; that stress should be laid on Methodist doctrines when found in the lessons; that mothers ought to be more consecrated, and should pray with and for their children; that the choir should select songs that all the children can sing or learn to sing; that the Sunday-school should be conducted in a business-like manner; that parents should attend Sunday-school with their children, and see that they are there on time; that the superintendent should know the lesson thoroughly, and give a summary of it every Sabbath; that he should be cheerful, and invite all to come again on the following Sabbath; that it is the duty of parents to provide comfortable places for worship.

In conclusion, I would say to all who are interested in elevating themselves, in elevating their children, in elevating their community and country: Let us be more diligent and more zealous in our work in this part of our Master's vineyard during the coming year "than we have ever been before."

M. L. HEIDELBERG, Sec.

A Secret.

The Great Apostle to the Gentiles tells us: "In lowliness of mind, let each esteem others better than themselves." Now, Mr. Editor, I am going to tell you something that I have hitherto kept to myself. And I am going to tell it just as it is. There is a prominent station in our Conference that is to be filled next year. And while I am satisfied where I am, I don't know any men in our Conference that would be more acceptable, or could fill said station better, than myself, and, for the good of the church, I think it would be well to send me there. At least, that is what I have thought. Now, within the last six or eight weeks, I have met and talked with four of the most prominent brethren in our district, and with three or four exceptions, the most prominent preachers in our Conference, all of them ex-presiding elders, and most of them with families after as well as before their surnames. We have talked about who would likely fill, and who probably could fill, this station. All of these brethren have expressed to me, privately, the opinion that neither of the other brethren could fill the station acceptably, and I, in the main, agreed with them. Of course, when we were talking there was no reference to either of us; it was the other three that would be under discussion. More than once I intimated to the brother I would be talking with, that, in the turn of things, he might possibly be sent to this station. In each case he showed no aversion to the appointment. And one or two of them told me that in case I was moved, that a certain station would suit me well. The station, kindly suggested, showed their appreciation of my merits, for it was every time far inferior to the one we had been considering. So this truth dawned upon me, that the opinion I had of myself and the opinion others had of me—were far apart. There further appeared to me a faint intimation that I was not alone. It was pretty plain that we all thought about the same of each other—that we had measured each other pretty accurately, and that we all held about the same opinion of ourselves, and that we had not obeyed the saying of the apostle, given to him through grace, to every man among us, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think. I confess some difficulty yet in ridding my mind of the idea that I am, in several respects, superior to these other brethren. Yet it seems that even about the only one that thinks so. I am somewhat astonished at this revelation, for I have been told so often, when I have come down out of the pulpit, "That sermon did me good;" "I thank you for that sermon;" "That is one of the best sermons I ever heard;" "You can make things so plain;" etc. I wonder if anybody ever talked to these other preachers that way? Many of these kind of compliments make it hard for us to have an humble opinion of ourselves. After this I want to try and be a little more humble. "Humble" will take his place at the feet of those "other brethren," he will be "all right" with them.—EDITOR.

The Paine Institute.

"Every tree is known by its own fruit," is the true test of worth. We have been at work since 1884. In these eight years of work sixty-three have carried off our diplomas. Of this number, thirty-eight were males and twenty-five females. Of the thirty-eight, eighteen are ministers. Of our graduates, twenty-five are teachers. Five of our graduates have married ministers of the Colored Methodist Episcopal Church. Altogether, eleven of our female graduates are married and doing well. Of our graduates that are teaching, one is principal of Mayo High School, at Darlington, S. C. He has had one of our female graduates assisting him. Another of our graduates is professor of mathematics at the State Normal and Industrial School, at Savannah, Ga.; two are teaching at the Paine Institute;

two have been teaching in Alabama; one in Columbia, S. C.; six have been teaching in Augusta, Ga. Of our ministers that have graduated, two are stationed in Atlanta, Ga.; one at Columbus, Ga.; one at Columbia, S. C.; one at Madisonville, Ky.; one in Augusta, Ga.; three others are at work in South Carolina. The others are at work in Georgia, Alabama, Kentucky and South Carolina. One of the most wealthy colored men of Georgia is a graduate of our school, and is farming near Sparta, Ga. Some of our graduates have taken after-courses of study at Atlanta University, New England Conservatory of Music, and Brown's University. One of our graduates has won the privilege of attending the American School at Athens, Greece, where he spent a year, having the distinction of being the only negro who has ever matriculated at that school. He is now teaching with us at the Paine Institute.

GEO. WMS. WALKER,

President.

The Paine Institute, Augusta, Ga.

In Memoriam.

Mrs. George T. McGhee (nee Lily McNair) was born Feb. 23, 1836; married Aug. 11, 1874; died Feb. 21, 1892.

Between these vital lines we may read a volume. Born of pious parents, reared by a pious, judicious mother, Lily McNair walked in wisdom's ways from childhood onward to the end. In her early girlhood she came to reside with her sister, Mrs. Charles McGhee. In that home Lily was the "anchor to the windward," helping her sister, teaching the children, brightening the home circle. She was the companion and friend of her young nieces and nephews, as well as being their teacher. Her friends always knew "where to find Lily McNair."

In 1874 she was married to Capt. G. T. McGhee, thenceforth to be his helpmeet, his other and better self. Their union proved to be a Christian ideal. Mrs. McGhee was a woman of good judgment, sound sense and a cheerful disposition. She possessed the gift of tact to a great degree. Well-meaning persons often lack this quality.

I never knew a woman with more earnest, quiet zeal for the cause of Christ than she had. By education and choice she was a Presbyterian; but she believed that we are "one army of the living God," and as there was no minister of her church in Woodville, she gave her help to the church to which the Presbyterian in her love. She was faithful in her attendance on the services of the church, preaching and prayer meetings, giving the pastors and their wives sympathy and material aid.

As a Sunday-school teacher, her record is on high and in the hearts and lives of those she taught. She did not hear their lessons in a perfunctory manner, and then dismiss them from her notice, but she would give them a sweet smile and a cheering word when she met them. It was her habit to invite her class out to her lovely home, and give them a pleasant treat. In short, Solomon's eulogy on the good woman would well apply to Lily McGhee.

In hope of a meeting, where tears and sorrows, pain and parting, never come, I would fain lay this tribute on the altar of Memory and Hope.

HER FRIEND.

Notice.

To the Members of the Mississippi Conference Brotherhood—

Dear Brethren: Bro. L. W. Wood is dead! Assessment No. 15 is now due, and must be paid within sixty days. Remit by postoffice money order or registered letter, to I. W. Cooper, at Hazlehurst, Miss. B. F. JONES, Sec'y Conf. Brotherhood.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON.—Sept. 12, 1892.

By REV. W. H. LAPRADE, D. D.

Philip and the Ethiopian.

Acts viii, 26-40.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life." (John iii, 36.)

All Samaria was not yet converted to Christ when the apostles returned to Jerusalem, and Philip was ordered "toward the south." The business of the disciples was to seed the world with truths; not to stand about waiting for harvest where the sowing had been done. "Go," and as ye go, "preach." This was the commission. When converts are real, sincere, thorough, having "salt in themselves," they will not require much "looking after."

Ver. 26. God does not reveal his plans in detail to Philip. Usually he does not. He gives command; in obedience is found the unfolding of his purpose. To leave Samaria, where such glorious results had followed his preaching, may not have been Philip's plan; but it was God's plan, made known by his recognized messenger, familiar to Jewish thought—an angel.

Gaza lay to the west of south from Jerusalem—the general direction of the road was southward. The particular road which led through the desert was indicated, because "there were other roads."

Ver. 27, 28. Philip did not stop to discuss "reasons why;" he simply obeyed, supposing that God knew why he should go. That he met an opportunity by so doing was no accident; it was in the plan. God knew that the eunuch was en route for Ethiopia, by way of Gaza and Alexandria; that he was hungering for instruction; that Philip, who held the truth and knew how to impart it, would meet him if he went at once, and by the desert road.

Ethiopia lay south of Egypt. Candace was the name applied to the reigning queen, whatever her other names, just as Pharaoh was used by a line of Egyptian kings, and Cæsar by the Roman emperors.

This eunuch, it is supposed, was a proselyte to Judaism, who had gone to Jerusalem to the Feast of Tabernacles. Probably the stir at Jerusalem following the stoning of Stephen, and his relation to the Christ, had recalled the events of the crucifixion, and intensified the interest of this Egyptian in the prophecies.

Ver. 29, 30, 31. Prompted by the Spirit, Philip approached the chariot sufficiently near to hear the Ethiopian reading aloud from the prophecy of Isaiah. Led by the Spirit to this man, he sought at once to be of service to him. Inquiry as to the passage being read was the natural mode of approach.

The Ethiopian, recognizing that Philip was a Jew, invited him to come to get into the chariot and join him in the investigation.

Ver. 32, 33. The passage read was Isaiah liii, 7, 8, the Septuagint version being, no doubt, the one used. This was a Greek translation of the Old Testament, made at Alexandria, Egypt, about three centuries before Christ.

Ver. 34. Because of the tradition then current, that "Manasseh had caused Isaiah to be sawn asunder," the Ethiopian, having no knowledge of the Messianic interpretation given by Jewish scholars, supposed that the prophet foretold his own tragic death.

Ver. 35. Philip, no doubt, gave the Jewish, or Messianic, interpretation of the passage, and showed that the fulfillment of the prophecy was realized in the person, and life, and death of Jesus, urging faith in him as the condition of salvation. The whole plan of salvation could thus be brought before his hearer.

Ver. 36. Sincere in his desire to know the truth, and convinced that "Jesus was the Christ," he to be baptized in his name was a natural wish. Water—always an attractive, as well as unusual, sight in a desert country—would suggest baptism, the object of which Philip had, doubtless, explained.

Ver. 37. This verse is omitted from the Revised Version, because it is not found in the best and oldest manuscripts.

Ver. 38. Philip and the Ethiopian both, no doubt, walked into the water of the pool—an act unusual with the sandal-wearing orientals. Whatever the form of baptism, it must have been such as to accord with the last part of the preceding chapter of Isaiah. The expression, "sprinkle many nations," had, of course, been under discussion, as connected with the prophecy.

Ver. 39. Philip had finished his work given him to do. God had led him elsewhere. Whether the expression, "caught away," means that he ran away, moved by the Spirit to do, or was taken away by supernatural agency, we can not certainly say. Probably the latter. It is not important that we should know. As for the eunuch—having been instructed in things of God, having accepted Christ as his personal Savior, having pledged fealty to Christ by baptism—he "went on his way," separated from his teacher, but "rejoicing" in Christ Jesus. Tradition has it that he founded in Abyssinia the Christian Church, that travelers tell us still exist in the simple faith of the people.

Ver. 40. Philip was next seen at Azotus (Ashdod), from which place he passed northward along the coast plain, preaching as he went, until he reached Cæsarea. Whether this had been his home at any time in the past we do not know; but we know that afterwards lived there, and was visited by St. Paul. (See Acts xxi, 8.)

We are to obey God, whether we understand his plans or not.

Opportunity comes in the first duty.

We must be always ready to preach Christ. Each Christian is also an evangelist.

Christian Advocate.

Rev. D. L. MITCHELL, Publisher.
OFFICE: 112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

SUBSCRIPTION. - $1 PER ANNUM.
Ministers and wives of deceased Preachers, $1

Rev. C. W. Carter, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. Lewis, Asst. Editor.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.
REV. J. M. BEARD, D. D.
REV. S. S. KEENER.
REV. J. B. A. AIRENS, D. D.
MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.
REV. W. C. BLACK, D. D.
REV. W. B. LEWIS.
REV. R. J. JONES.
NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.
REV. W. T. J. SULLIVAN, D. D.
REV. J. D. CAMERON, D. D.
REV. T. C. WIER, M. D.

Thursday, September 8, 1892.

Death Notice.

Rev. L. W. Wood, our pastor on Scranton charge, died Friday, Aug. 26, 1892, at Pascagoula, Miss., where he was holding a protracted meeting. Bro. Wood died on the field of conflict. His body rests in the Zion Cemetery, in Escatawpa, where he has been living this year. Let prayer be made by the church for the dear wife so sadly bereft.

C. A. POWELL.

More Point, Miss.

BRIEFS.

Our Wesleyan brethren are still talking of Bishop Galloway. The Methodist Recorder, of Aug. 4, has this paragraph:

On Monday afternoon, immediately after the vote of thanks to the ex-president for his admirable charge, Bishop Galloway bade the Conference farewell. When young men of this generation are grey-headed, they will tell with pride and thankfulness how, at the Bradford Conference, they heard the eloquent Southern Bishop. Many illustrious men, representing the Methodism of the United States, have visited the Conference. Bishop Galloway will rank amongst the ablest, most genial and most eloquent of them all. His address at the Open Session was a masterpiece of reasoning, of historical exposition, of descriptive power, of impassioned appeal. There was not a weak sentence in the address from beginning to end. The power of antithesis and analysis was extraordinary, and the alliterative music of diction threw a charm over the whole which it was impossible to resist. On Sunday morning, at Eastbrook Chapel, the Bishop preached a very remarkable sermon. It was preached from notes, and we were not able, without putting a tax upon our reporting staff heavier than humanity would permit, to secure a report, but we are glad to hear that in an early number of the Church Record the sermon will appear. The young ministers who were ordained on Monday morning will never forget the quiet solemnity and deep emotion with which the strong Bishop pleaded with God on their behalf. Bishop Galloway has made a host of friends in this country, and if it should please God to permit him to visit England again, he may count upon receiving a very warm welcome.

"Purify politics!" Yes; but how? Not by "preaching politics," surely. If politics are not pure, it is because the people who are politicians are not pure. All the evil in the world comes out of some human heart. You can't do anything with that evil as long as its place of origin is undisturbed. The way to cleanse a stream is to cleanse the spring whence it flows. Purify the hearts of politicians, and then politics will be pure. We may have pure politics by having pure politicians; and only the gospel of Jesus Christ can give us that sort of people. It is a mighty task the church has set before it; but we have not lost confidence in the power of the gospel. During all this strange and wonderful political campaign let our people live and act the gospel, and let our preachers preach it in its purity, and pray mightily for the power of the Spirit to force the truth upon the consciences of men. The truth of God, apprehended by the mind and appreciated by the heart and practiced in the life, is the only remedy for political and all other ills.

Church Building.

The New York Christian Advocate contains an admirable editorial on the subject, "How to Choose a Site for a New Church," which was suggested by the action of the Embury M. E. Church, New York, in choosing a location for a new church they propose building. The method is something rather out of the regular order, but the principle involved we believe to be the plane upon which all Methodism should move. Here is their action as copied from the Advocate:

The next step was taken at a meeting of the Official Board, held June 2, last, when resolutions were adopted, which we here print in full. (We copy only the first.—En.)

Resolved, That a committee of ten members of this Board, of which Charles A. Gay shall be chairman, and one member of the church he appointed by a vote of this Board to confer with a committee of two—with the exception of the Brooklyn Church Society, which shall have a representation of three—to be appointed by each of the following societies, namely: The Brooklyn Church Society, New York Avenue Church, Summer Avenue Church, James Church, Nostrand Avenue Church, and Russell Place Church Societies, for the purpose of securing a consensus of opinion as to how the best interests of Methodism can be conserved in the matter of location of a new church, as a substitute for our present edifice, which it is the purpose of our society to build when, in the judgment of its Official Board, it is deemed proper to perfect arrangements to that end.

Notice, this committee from these six churches was called together to "secure a consensus of opinion as to how the best interests of Methodism can be conserved in the matter of location of a new church. Methodism is a unit, and churches should be, and we are glad to say, are, as a rule, placed in the communities where they are most needed.

But the sentence that seems most pertinent is the opening one of the editorial: "Methodism has lost more than any other denomination by unfortunate locations for churches in growing towns and cities." This is a text upon which we can seriously think for quite a while.

In choosing a building site for a church several things must, or ought to, be considered: First, present necessity; second, future requirements; third, parsonage; fourth, and always, accessibility and commanding appearance. This must never be lost sight of.

A Questionable Policy.

We presume that everybody will agree that the churches ought to act wisely in their efforts to advance the interests of the Redeemer's kingdom. We presume that many will agree that, in a great many cases, the churches have pursued a wise policy; for the results of the work show the wisdom of the policy. But there is one thing which they all do, that, from our point of view, not only does not advance the Redeemer's kingdom, but actually hinders its progress. It is strange that all the churches should tacitly agree to this thing, when nobody can see that it advances the cause of the Lord, and nearly everybody sees that it retards progress. This strange action is not a new thing that we have discovered; but it has been going on since the Reformation, and is going on to-day all around us.

This is what we refer to: There are any number of small towns in Mississippi and Louisiana, containing from three hundred to fifteen hundred people, and they contain from three to six different churches, having from a dozen to one hundred members each. A plain man looks at this state of things, and wonders if it is an illustration of church wisdom! He sees clearly that not one of these churches can have any genuine success, nor all of them put together. He sees that with each one it is always a prodigious struggle to merely exist. The fight for mere existence effectually bars out effort in any other direction. The pastors are half-starved; the church-houses fall to decay; the various lines of church work are unoccupied; the kingdom of the Lord advances not. This plain man wonders if the Holy Spirit inspires and sanctions a mode of procedure which results in such a state of affairs!

There is another thing connected herewith. These little churches, seeing they are not making, and can not make, a successful fight against the great world of wickedness, fall to fighting one another. The church member belongs to the militant church, and is a fighter by profession, and if he is so situated that he can't fight the Lord's enemies, he will turn upon the Lord's friends. When he fights them he fights furiously. There is no religious battle-field where the clash of arms makes such hideous din as a little town where there are four or five different churches, pouncing upon each other in polemic wrath and struggling to exist by destroying each other. Such a state of things is the shame of all the churches. The plain man looks at this, and wonders if Christ "is divided against himself." The world looks at it, and sneeringly exclaims: "See how these Christians love each other!"

We believe this state of things ought to be corrected. But it will not be corrected as long as churches think more of denominationalism than they think of the salvation of souls. A place that can only support one pastor decently should not be afflicted with four or five, because of church rivalry. In many places denominational zeal has eaten up the church of Christ.

The policy of each church running a race with every other church to capture the little towns, and thus filling them with four or five different churches, when one can hardly be supported, is a questionable policy, and we are in favor of quitting it.

For the Endowment of Centenary College.

MR. EDITOR: In passing through Atlanta, I visited our aged friend, Bro. C. W. Mills, who, as you remember, gave Centenary College a thousand dollars a few years ago. The old gentleman's heart is yet full of zeal for Christian education. He believes the preached Word is, and is to be, the only salvation of man. He informed me that he intends to divide his property, valued at between five and ten thousand dollars, between Emory College, of Georgia, and Centenary College, of Louisiana. How beautifully does such a man leave a benediction to earth as he departs for heaven!

Others have thought, and are still thinking, of adding to the permanent endowment of Centenary. Her endowment grows and her prospects brighten.

W. L. C. HUNNICUTT.

P. S.—The session at Centenary opens on Sept. 7. Let students who wish to enter come promptly.

H.

Death of a Missionary's Wife.

MR. EDITOR: I have just received the sad tidings that one of our missionaries is sadly bereaved. Sister Grimes died, Aug. 23, of cerebral congestion. She was a devoted wife and mother, and five children are left in Mexico without a mother's loving care, and a missionary so sadly denied the comfort of a home and loving companion. Pray for Bro. Grimes and his motherless children. Death is always sad; but, oh! so sad in a mission field. Let all Christians remember the stricken ones.

S. G. WEEMS.

Did Moses use the "gold ore" for idolatry? See Exodus xxxii, 20.

The Schools Are Opening.

We find in the last Central Christian Advocate some judicious remarks on the subject, "Send the Boys and Girls to College," which we copy for our readers.

Perhaps the most of the young people who are intending to go "off to school" have already formed their plans, and are waiting eagerly and anxiously for the time of departure. There are, however, doubtless, within reach of the Central, a multitude of homes, where boys and girls in their teens are not yet decided as to the necessity or value of college training, and it may be taken for granted that there are many parents, even in this age of enlightenment, who hesitate, for one reason or another, to send their children to college. Possibly this article may meet the eye of a father or mother, whose children have been seeking in vain the privilege of college training; who have been cherishing the desire, and longing for the opportunity, of attending some good school. We wish that we might win the consent of the parents, and induce them to plan at once for the higher education of their anxious children.

There are farmers, with competence in possession, with money laid up in bank, with every comfort that a farmer's life commands, and with children needing thorough training, who have hitherto refused them this priceless boon. Were argument the only thing necessary in the case, it would be easy to prove that education of the right sort is worth more than houses, lands, mortgages, stocks, or all other earthly possessions; that the best capital which can be given a worthy boy or girl is a good educational equipment; that a thorough education is the best endowment that can be conferred upon a child. Money invested in acres, in stores, in banks, may be easily lost; but money that is enfolded into character, that is turned into mental discipline, that is incorporated into working power, that is transmuted into intellectual and moral and physical manhood and womanhood, becomes an investment for time and eternity.

Give your boys and girls a chance to go to school, is the message we have to-day for the parents within reach of our voice, within the range of our paper. You will always rejoice that you have put within their reach the facilities and opportunities of the school, and they will rise up to call you blessed because of the service you have thus rendered them.

A Worthy Case.

The following letter from Bro. Blocker, of the Louisiana Conference, explains itself. We will say, by way of preface, that Bro. Foust is a supernummate of the Louisiana Conference. He lost one leg during the war, and about three years ago he lost the other; so he can no longer do the work of an itinerant. He has been aided by friends, and has succeeded in saving enough from this source to almost buy him a permanent home. Surely he ought not to be frustrated in this wish to have a home by a lack of two hundred dollars! Will his friends and ours contribute something? We will gladly receive and forward it.

Here is Bro Blocker's letter:

Rayne, La., Aug. 30, 1892.

MR. EDITOR: I have secured a comfortable and a valuable home for Bro. Foust, of our Conference, in the town of Rayne. We got it at eight hundred dollars, while its real value is fifteen hundred dollars.

Bro. Foust is prepared to pay six hundred dollars; but we must raise the balance, two hundred dollars, for him. He writes me that he has some more money, but it will take something to move him and fit him up for housekeeping. I think the most of this money was raised by you through the Advocate. Now, what I want is, that you make another call. Have the money forwarded to me at Rayne, as early as convenient, as the final payment must be made by the first of November, next.

One of the English archbishops draws a fine distinction between speakers as related to the hearers. He divides speakers into three classes: "The speaker you can not listen to, the speaker you can listen to, and the speaker you can not help listening to."

A Prompt and Generous Response.

My note to the Advocate, of this week, about the library of Millsaps College has prompted a generous friend, who has made us glad on several occasions, to make another liberal and much-appreciated contribution. He sends me a draft for fifty dollars, to be used in the purchase of books of my own selection. For this valuable addition to our collection I felt most grateful. Such large-hearted appreciation of our efforts to establish a Christian college greatly encourages us to redoubled diligence.

From another good friend we are offered a gift to the library, which will add much to its comfort and attractiveness. And so the work goes on. For every offering, however small, and for every word of cheer we are thankful. We are hard at work getting ready for the opening.

And now it is for the friends of Christian education to take advantage of the facilities we expect to afford. In due time the president will announce the programme for opening day.

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY.

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 8, 1892.

Millsaps College—Opening Exercises.

The faculty of Millsaps College will meet for conference in Jackson, Miss., Sept. 14, when all necessary details incident to the various departments of instruction will be arranged.

The formal opening of the college for the reception of students will take place Sept. 29. The Board of Trustees, the faculty and friends and students of the institution will assemble in the college chapel at ten o'clock A. M. Addresses of welcome will be delivered by the governor of Mississippi, Hon. J. M. Stone, and by the mayor of the city of Jackson, Gen. Wm. Henry. Maj. R. W. Millsaps will also speak on the occasion, and an inaugural address will be delivered by the president of the college.

The programme for the dedication service will be announced later. On that occasion addresses will be delivered by Bishop Galloway and others; and a poem prepared especially to celebrate the event will be read by the author, Prof. Wm. R. Sims, of the University of Mississippi.

W. B. MURRAH,

President.

Centenary College.

I have just wound up an extensive tour of north and central Louisiana. I have attended three District Conferences and a number of camp and protracted meetings, and have preached and lectured on Christian Education to congregations ranging from one thousand people down. The people and preachers seem to realize that old Centenary has taken on a new lease of life, and the disposition of the people in all parts where I have been is to rally to her support. The extensive advertising I have done for the college must result in an increase of patronage as well as an increase in the endowment.

ROBT. HARRY, Agent.

There must be something wrong with Congress and our State Legislatures. We have not lost for some time past that when any of these bodies adjourn the country generally and the newspapers in particular draw a sigh of relief. The business world seems to hold its breath during the sessions of these bodies. It is surely a bad sign. It shows a want of confidence in our law makers, and that makes things "shaky" to such a degree as to produce uneasiness. We presume the reason for this is to be found in the peculiar political methods by which unqualified men become legislators.

According to Mr. Porter, the Superintendent of the Eleventh Census, there are one hundred and thirty-four religious associations in this country, besides the seven largest denominations. But these one hundred and thirty-four must be quite small, as altogether they represent less than fifteen per cent. of church edifice, and less than eleven per cent. of the aggregate value of church property.

NOTES FROM OUR JACKSON OFFICE.

Rev. W. H. Huntley, of Brandon, spent a Sunday in Jackson, week before last, and delighted us with a short visit.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Los Angeles Conference, California, have decided to establish a Conference organ, and an editress and assistant editress have been elected.

It is said this country annually spends for bread $5,000,000; for meat, $3,000,000; yet the direct cost to the consumers of liquor is $1,200,000,000—$300,000,000 more than the bread and meat, while the indirect cost of liquor (including loss of labor, etc.) makes a total loss of, at least, $1,800,000,000.

While in Holly Springs, a few days ago, we were being conducted through the well-constructed Methodist Church, and noticed the beautiful tablet which was ordered placed there by the North Mississippi Conference at its last session. It is a worthy tribute to a faithful preacher and pastor.

Some of our young preachers, we fear, are leading dangerously near plagiarism. Let all such be careful and steer as far clear of it as possible. It is dangerous. We know of almost nothing not grossly immoral that will sooner blast a young minister's prospects as plagiarism. And it should be so.

Bishop Galloway had presented to him while in England quite a number of steel engravings of various incidents in the life of John Wesley. Among them we noted specially, John and Charles Wesley, John Wesley officiating at His Mother's Burial, The Wesleys and Their Friends at Oxford, The Burning of the Eyeworth Rectory and the marvelous escape of little John and the Death of Wesley. These last three are, at least, 19x25 inches, and are the most magnificent collection of steel engravings we have ever seen.

Jackson and community have been saddened recently by the death of a well-known citizen. Mrs. — Shingle, youngest daughter of ex-Gov. Lowry, died at her home, Monday morning, at four o'clock. She was only nineteen years of age, and had been married just four months. Tuesday morning, Bro. Jess Barr, a prominent young man, member of the First Methodist Church, died at his home in this city. Bro. Barr has been sick for quite a while, but his death was a surprise to many in the community. Both funerals took place from the First Methodist Church, with quite large crowds of sorrowing and sympathizing friends in attendance.

Some time since while in a town in this State claiming two thousand inhabitants, we heard of a foreign family, consisting of a father, mother and five little children, one an infant not over two months old. The father had and two children were sick in bed. The family were destitute of the necessities of life, having to sleep on one or two old quilts on the bare floor with next to nothing to eat. A man, a Christian, claiming to be a spiritualist, took the case in hand and began securing money and donations to relieve the utter destitution and suffering. Approaching a certain church member for a contribution, the Christian (?) asked, "What church do you belong to?"—to which the reply was instantly made, "This is not a matter of church, but of humanity." Ah! how often our straight-laced sectarianism blinds our eyes to the true ethics of Christianity. Is this an isolated case?

"Faster! faster!" is the cry on every hand. Steam and electricity have created a desire to make everything move with greater rapidity. "Rapid transit" is the universal wish. Everybody tries. Street cars, railway trains, ships and steamers are rated according to speed. Even a pedestrian on the streets is judged by the celerity of his movements. The day laborer is judged by the quantity of work which he can perform in a given time. Everybody is on a strain to "beat all previous records." The continuous cry of Napoleon to his coachman, when on his way to Paris after the disastrous Russian campaign, was, "Faster! faster!" So it is to-day. The momentum is so strong that when the shock does come it looks for everything to be shattered fragments.

An American pastor, having heard that Mr. Gladstone was not a believer in the divinity of Christ, wrote to a great statesman about it, and received this reply:

"Dear Sir: All I write and all I think and all I hope are based upon the divinity of our Lord, the one great hope of our poor, wayward race."

W. E. GLADSTONE.

Now in regard to writing: If you write so that people can't help reading it, send it to us. We desire just that sort of matter for our paper, which our readers will read with glad avidity.

An exchange, arguing the superiority of women over men, calls attention to the fact that nobody has ever yet discovered a female tramp.

The smallest Pill in the World!
Why do you suffer
 from Dyspepsia and Sick-Headache, rendering life miserable, when the remedy is at your hand?

TUTT'S
Tiny Liver Pills

will speedily remove all this trouble, enable you to eat and digest your food, prevent headache and impart an enjoyment of life to which you have been a stranger. Dose small. Price,
 25 cents. Office, 39 Park Place, N. Y.

Clinton Female Academy

(Chartered in 1832.)
 Will Open Monday, Sept. 5, 1892.

Course thorough. Charges lower than offered by any school of its grade in the South.

CHARGES PER MONTH.

Tuition per Month	$2.00 to $3.00
Board	3.00
Use of Piano per Month	1.00
Painting in Oil	3.00
Drawing	1.00
Latin French and book-keeping, each per	1.00
Month	1.00
Incidental Expenses per Session	.50

Board, Tuition, Washing, Fuel and light, $2.00 per month. $10.00 per the session of Ten Months. For particulars address the Principal.

MRS. E. E. MUNDAY, Clinton, La.

Lauderdale Training-School,

AT LAUDERDALE SPRINGS, MISS.
 (Junction of M. and O. and E. T. 18 miles north of Meridian.)

H. E. HARRIS, A. B. (V. U.)
 G. W. BURTON, A. M. (S. K.)

We furnish thorough training, and prepare students for College and University work.
 Total cost per session of nine months, $20.
 For prospectus, address

G. W. BURTON, Sec.
 Lauderdale, Miss.

IUKA NORMAL INSTITUTE

IUKA, MISS.

Eleventh year begins Sept. 6. Meals, lights, fuel, lodging, laundry, books and tuition for all weeks cost $15.00; 48 weeks, $18.00. Music and extra. Schools supplied with teachers.
 Write to

H. A. DEAN, Prin.

Staunton Military Academy,

—STAUNTON, VA.
 A Military School for Young Men and Boys.
 Handsome Illustrated Catalogue mailed on application.

Do You Know

That there is but one paper, perhaps, in the South, and but two in the United States, that make a specialty of defending the Christian Sabbath? But little attention is given to this great question even by the religious press. And

Do You Know

That there are more than a million laboring men in this land of Bibles who have no Sabbath?

Have You Ever Seen

THE SOLDIER? It is a monthly paper devoted to the revival of an interest in the Lord's day,
 and to the fight against the liquor traffic.

Let every friend of God and His Holy Day,
 and every foe to the Whisky Devil subscribe for THE SOLDIER. You can get it a whole year for only $5.00. Subscribe at once. Address

REV. L. L. PICKETT, Columbia, S. C.

NATURE'S OWN REMEDY!

Bear Lithia Water

Cures Kidney and Bladder Troubles, Uric Acid,
 Gout and Rheumatism, Phosphoric Deposits, Inflammation of the Bladder,
 Dropsical Affections, Stricture, Urinary
 Deposits, and Dyspepsia.

FOR SALE BY
CLARK & MEADER,
 16 and 18 CARondelet ST.
 BRANCH:
 Cor. ST. CHARLES and NAPOLEON Avenues

The Book and Its Theme:

OR, THE BIBLE AND ITS MISSION.
 By Rev. L. L. PICKETT.

280 Pages, Cloth. Price, $1.00.

A Few Good Words.
 Rev. J. F. Anderson: A strong book; one of the best.
 Rev. B. F. Gassaway: I have read it with great pleasure and profit. If our young preachers would procure and read the book, it would prove of incalculable benefit to them and to the Church.
 Mrs. N. E. Kimmey: It was a feast to my soul.
 John R. Martin: It has done me much good.
 Rev. T. B. White: It is plain, well written, terse and strong; it is good and edifying reading.

REV. L. L. PICKETT, Columbia, S. C.

AGENTS WANTED ON SALARY
 or commission, to handle the new Patent Chemical Ink Erasing Pencil. The quickest and greatest novelty ever produced. Erases ink thoroughly in two seconds. No abrasion of paper.
 Works like magic. 200 to 400 per cent. profit.
 One Agent's sales amounted to $450 in six days.
 Another $35 in two hours. Previous experience not necessary. For terms and full particulars, address, The Monroe Eraser Ink Co., 14 Crook-ing, Wis.

F. B. Carson,
 Dealer in all kinds of Marble and Stone for monuments and buildings.
 Prompt attention given to orders.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURE FOR Best Cough Syrup. Cures Good. Use
 in time. Sold by druggists.

West Capitol Street,
Jackson, Miss.

HOME LIFE.

THE REFUGE.

BY REV. W. A. MCKENZIE, D. D.

"God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble."—Ps. xlvii, 1.

When the storm is round thee raging,
 And the surges o'er thee roll;
 When unhuman help is near thee,
 To support thy sinking soul;
 Then to God flee thou for refuge,
 From the tempest's angry blast:
 In his bosom he will hide thee,
 Till the dangers all are past.

When thy faith is weak and waning,
 Doubts and fears thy hope assail,
 When thy sight is dimmed by weeping,
 And thy strength begins to fail,
 Then to God flee thou for refuge:
 Then to God flee thou for refuge:
 In his bosom he will hide thee,
 He thy solace and thy stay.

When the king of terrors cometh,
 And the heart with dread shall quake,
 When death's valley thou must enter,
 And thy lonely journey take;
 Then to God flee thou for refuge,
 Trust in his unchanging grace:
 In his bosom he will hide thee,
 Hold thee in his strong embrace.

Marriage Loyalty.

BY MARY R. BALDWIN.

The interpretation of loyalty as related to marriage ranges from the thought of the woman who regards only the letter of the Seventh Commandment, to that of the wife who possesses the insight of pure love associated with the self-sacrificing spirit of the merit. The old simplicity of woman's purpose offered few temptations than the conditions of to-day, when the ideas of individual rights and advancement have been cultivated almost to the point of menia, and the standards of woman intellectually are constantly being raised. While no broad-minded person can deny to our sex the right to separate honors and successes, they can not help fearing that in some instances the very things that are rightly appreciated and used might advance the highest interests and insure the happiness of the home, may become a disturbing element when a sense of loyalty is lacking.

Let me illustrate from an example in real life.
 A woman possessed of an ambitious mind and a restless nature, at middle age found herself in that whirlpool of literary endeavor that has in the last years drawn in so many restless spirits to bury them on to the vortex through the force of popular impulse, rather than through the power of a true influence.

That she had so late met what she called the "fulfillment of her aspirations." Instead of calming and deepening, made her more feverish in her desire for "progress," and more and more insensible to the marriage duties that now began to seem like tyrannies. She gained the name in the literary circle of the superior woman, and bore herself in a manner fitting the society's idea of her. Suddenly in the midst of her ambitions she was removed by death from her field of action, and one short-shouldered literary sister mourned her departure and eulogized her in this way: "I think a beautiful Providence removed her from a trial to come, for she was developing so fast intellectually, and getting so far above her husband, children, and home surroundings, that there could be nothing but unhappiness for her in the future."

This astounding statement did not come from a young and inexperienced girl, nor from an ignorant woman, but from a middle-aged wife who had received good educational advantages, and enjoyed the benefits of travel;
 she was a woman of loyalty that was at fault, or she would have seen that a development that must separate a wife and mother from her home interests, and cause her to outgrow the purposes of self-sacrifice towards it, and the hope of raising its standards and of refining its atmosphere, and finding a certain satisfaction and joy in it, even though she were superior to its conditions, is not worth the endeavor that it requires.

There is another way in which those who are not delicate in their perceptions of the nature of true loyalty may err, and through the error bring dishonor to the sacred relation of marriage. And this is the whispering by the wife into the ear of a friend those secrets that belong to the two who have promised to cherish and honor each other so long as they live. If only the young wives throughout our land could at the very start in their married life become persuaded that through such a whisper the marriage relation begins, and if the practice is continued grows into the final loss of respect and love! The two young girls who when heart and hand were free founded in each other the ventral-faults of their young men for whom they fancied a love, and who before the dish of bou-bons, or between the tastes of an au celerated the particulars of a first quarrel, will when married perhaps be tempted to reveal to the friend of their girlhood the fact that there has been a little difference between them and their husbands; or it may be that they give hints that the husband is not exactly what the lover seemed, not quite up to their ideal. Do such young married people imagine that their own attitude towards the one in whom they have pledged their vows will after a time become to a certain extent that of the community in which they live?
 Who has not in listening to the speech of the woman who accords to her husband the highest praise and honor, and in so doing greatly overrates him, been convinced against his will in favor of the man, and left a growing admiration for the wife, who from her rare loyalty persisted in outbraving one who was really her inferior?

Many an ordinary man has succeeded, in spite of adverse circumstances, in rising to the standard that a brave, true companion has set for him, making her hope and ideal his own, and through her loyalty to him learning loyalty to the very best in himself.—Christian at Work.

When and What to Read.

If you are impatient, sit down quietly and have a talk with Job.
 If you are just a little strong-headed, go to see Moses.
 If you are getting weak-kneed, take a look at Elijah.
 If there is no song in your heart, listen to David.
 If you are a polley mau, read Daniel.
 If you are getting sordid, spend a while with Isaiah.
 If you feel chilly, get the beloved disciple to put his arms around you.
 If your faith is below par, read Paul.
 If you are getting lazy, read James.
 If you are losing sight of the future, climb up to Revelation, and get a glimpse of the promised land.—Selected.

The Meaning of Blunders.

Some people have an unfortunate propensity to brood over what they call the "mistakes" of their lives. It arises from a false estimate of human judgment and an overstrained idea of the responsibility of their actions.

A conscientious woman of middle-age wrote to a friend, "I am glad to be spared a longer life, that I may spend it in repenting my past mistakes." To spend one's time in lamenting past mistakes seems the worst mistake of all.
 Life is short at the longest. There is little time to do of doing, less to mourn over what has been done. To act, to act quickly, to act up to our best instincts and highest aspirations, is all we can do. It is all that is expected. After that our responsibility ceases, and the final result belongs only to God.

The good woman above quoted had always noted according to her best judgment. But being human judgment, it was fallible. Being human, she could not foresee the full consequences of her actions, but could only do as seemed right at the time. Now, if she was called upon to act to-day, what better could she do than that? Then why regret that she so acted before?

Examining into this matter of blunders a little further, and particularly in tracing the course of the "mistakes—well meant," in our own lives, when we look back upon them with the cooler understanding of later years, we are constrained to confess that the "mistake" must have been intended to be there, as well as the correct action, because the plan of our development has included both. Continuing to study clearly and deeply, we must acknowledge that the mistakes and errors . . . have helped the soul upward; that all have worked together to accomplish the result sought; that they must have been put there, and meant so to be; and so that our "blunders" were not blunders at all, but although we sowed and watered often embers, there were always some increase given which achieved the good we aimed at, but felt to reach.

And deepest of all we see that the divine love, which saw the end from the beginning, bore with a tender compassion to look upon our struggles, our weeping, our disheartened sighs. Ah, infinitely greater it is, but like to the love we bear our own children, which is as deep and true that we endure to treat them harshly, and with seeming cruelty behold their tears, knowing surely that one day they will comprehend all the kindness.—Harper's Bazar.

Give the Children a Chance to Be Natural.

As to keeping children too clean for any mortal use, I don't suppose anything is more disastrous. The divine right to be gloriously dirty a large portion of the time, when dirt is a necessary consequence of direct, useful, friendly contact with all sorts of interesting,
 helpful things, is too clear to be denied.

The children who have to think of their clothes before playing with the dogs, digging in the sand, helping the stableman, working in the shed, building a bridge, or wedding the garden, never get half their legitimate enjoyment out of life. And oh unhappy fate, do not many of us have to bring up children without a vestige of a dog, or a sand heap, or a stable, or a shed, or a brook, or a garden! Conceive if you can a more difficult problem than giving a child his rights in a city flat. You may say that neither do we get out; but bad as we are, we are always good enough to wish for our children the joys we miss ourselves.

Three happy is the country child, or the one who can spend a part of his young life among living things, near to nature's heart.
 How blessed is the little tottling thing, who can lie flat in the sunshine and drink in the beauty of the "green things growing" who can live among the other little animals, his brothers and sisters in feathers and fur; who can put hand in that of dear mother nature and learn his first baby lessons without any meddlesome middleman; who is cradled in sweet sounds "from early morn to dewy eve";
 lulled to his morning nap by hum of crickets and bees, and to his night's slumber by the sighing of the wind, the plash of waves, or the ripple of a river. He is a part of the "shining web of a creation," learning to spell out the universe by letter, as he grows sweetly, serenely, into a knowledge of its law.—Mrs.
 Kate Douglas Wiggin, in Scribner.

Stand Up to Your Pastor.

As you stood before the minister of your church and handed in your name, did you join the church or the pastor? Ask a correspondent in the Methodist Recorder. I have known some members to stop going to church because they couldn't have the minister they wanted. If religion is mourning for a departed pastor, and not treating the new one with kind and respect, I have no need of it.
 Some folks are like Sister B—. When her husband was living he could never do anything to please her. She was fault-finding from morning till night. But one day the poor man thought he would please her once, and quickly drew his last breath. Oh, my! what a change! What a saint the dead husband was in one short year she prevailed on a good brother to take the place of the late infamous. After that they was no imaginable virtue that number one had not possessed in the superlative degree. That is the way with half the church members. While with them, the pastor they deplore was criticized constantly; then, after canonizing him when he was dead.

Treat the minister with consideration. But do not "join" him, but "join" the Christ and the church.

THE BIBLE'S SUPREMACY.—Let me entreat you not to confuse mere questions of exegetical or scientific learning with the deep, awful, imperishable lessons which the Bible,
 and the Bible only, can bring home to your souls.

In whatever way those questions may be decided, the infinite inner sacredness of God's Word remains inviolate forever. There may be shifting clouds about it, but through them break gleams of the eternal radiance; there may be mingled voices, but clear and loud among them all are the utterances of eternal wisdom. Other books may make you learned or eloquent or subtle; this book alone can make you who unto salvation. Other books may fascinate the intellect; by this alone can you cleanse the heart. In other literatures may be found the "unquenchable fountain of wisdom"; and even these, alas! turbid too often with human passions, fretted with human obstacles, and choked at last in morass or sand—but in this book, majestic andathomless, flows the river of the water of life itself, proceeding out of the throne of God, and of the Lamb.—P. W.
 Furrar.

The mind, by a sort of natural magic, raises the ghost of a departed pleasure, and makes it appear without any dependence upon space or time. This almost omnipotence of an advance is a circumstance of value; it gives opportunity for use and repetition, and makes it so much the more one's own.

OUR YOUNG PEOPLE.

BARGAINS FOR SCHOLARS.

A queer little man kept an alphabet shop.
 And out from his counter, blipply hop,
 He danced until he was ready to drop,
 Singing and shouting with never a stop:

"Come in, little scholars,
 With bright silver dollars;
 Or if you're not rich,
 Come in with a penny.
 I have bumble Bs,
 And marrowfat Ps,
 Some Chinese Cs,
 And Japanese Ts,
 A flock of Js,
 And lots of Ks.

And perfectly beautiful dork blue Cs.
 This is the place to buy your knowledge.
 At cheaper rates than are given at college!"
 Then he'd draw a long breath and spin like a top.

This queer little man in an alphabet shop.
 —St. Nicholas.

The Boyhood of Jesus.

Let us sing out the boy, that we may try and see him as he was—a footlike his brethren, small, growing, and, therefore, slender. His attire was simple; on his head a white handkerchief, held in place by a cord, one corner turned under at the forehead, the other corners loose.

A tunic, also white, covered him from neck to knees, girt at the waist. His arms and legs were bare; on his feet were sandals of the most primitive kind, being soles of ox-hide attached to the ankles by leather straps. He carried a stick that was much taller than himself. The boy's face comes to me very clearly. I imagine him by the road-side on a rock which he had climbed, the better to see the procession winding picturesquely through the broken country.
 His head is raised in an effort at insight. The light of an intensely brilliant sun is oval and countenance which in general cast is oval and delicate. Under the folds of the handkerchief I see the forehead, covered by a mass of projection, sun-burned, blond hair, which I think has taken liberties with and tossed into tufts. The eyes are in shade, leaving a doubt whether they are brown, or violet like his mother's; yet they are large and healthily clear, and still retain the parallelism of arch between the brow and upper lid, usually the characteristic of children and beautiful women.
 The nose is of regular inward curve, joined prettily to a short upper lip by nostrils just full enough to give definition to transparent shadows in the corners. The mouth is small, and open slightly, so that through the scarlet freshness of its lips I catch a glimpse of two white teeth. The cheeks are ruddy and round, and only a certain squariness of chin tells of years this side the day the Mark told their treasures at his feet. Putting lace and figure together, and mindful of the attitude of interest in what is passing before him, the lad as I see him on the rock is handsome and attractive. When the journey shall have ended, and his mother made him ready for the court of the temple, he may justly be a more wonderful description; we may then see in him the promise of the Savior of men in the comeliness of budding youth, his sad destiny yet far in the future.—Lew Wallace, in Harper's.

Honesty vs. Sham.

Because a man's garb is not out after the prevailing fashion, is that any reason why he should be passed by as unworthy of notice, especially when his character is known to be above reproach? Clothes are said to be the index of character; the manner in which they are worn may be their texture, however, should be a matter totally dependent upon the depth and size of the pocketbook. Many a villain is clothed in the finest of broadcloth, and because of his fine exterior alone gains
 the confidence and esteem of those who admire effect, but do not trouble themselves to search deeper after cause, while an honest, worthy gentleman, in poor, may go without recognition all his days.

Well, be it so; if to gain the world's recognition he have to cheat and lie and play a false part generally. The relentless hand of Truth seldom falls in the long run to acquit the world of its deception. War hoesmen up!
 And if it be clean and wisely selected, and be ashamed to wear it? A clear conscience with an honest heart and a fair share of common sense need have no fear of ridicule.
 It is a man who is venerated with a semblance of the virtues, with manners that would outlive a Chesterfield, and yet who bears about with him the uncomfortable consciousness that a safe distance between his landlady and his tailor must be kept at all hazards. He who struggles to keep up appearances with gratifying every wish regardless of claims and necessities in the matter of paying just debts, when his turn comes how the world that distorted him once will turn the cold shoulder.
 After all, this old-world-really-honors-honesty-and hates sham, whatever may have been said to the contrary.—L. H. M. B., in Christian at Work.

Mother Gretchen's Churning Day.

They dearly loved the house-mother's churning day—these three blue-eyed little children—because that was one of the few times that the busy mother could tell them stories; sometimes about the wonders of the Black Forest; sometimes fairy tales; sometimes stories of when she was a little girl; but the stories they loved best were of the old days when Spain did not allow any people in that country to have any liberties, made them thrill all over to hear of men and women, and even little children, that would die, burning at the stake, rather than kneel to the image of saint or virgin.

"I wish I had lived then," cried Hans, clenching his small fist; "I'd show the Spaniard a thing or two; I would have died shouting rather than to give up to him."

"Ah, Hans, Hans!" said the mother, resting on her dachor, "dost thou not know that God asks of thee something harder than that?"
 "Harder than being burned, mother?" exclaimed timid Ernest; "how can that be?"
 "Ah, does he! He means thee to live for him, boys. Dying was over in a few minutes;
 one could make up one's mind to bear that;
 and so go quickly home to the Lord; but living for him means hard trying every hour of every day—oh, so many hours, so many days!"

Then the dachor began its noisy journey again, and Mother Gretchen's three little boys watched it with very sober faces.

Tommy (studying his lesson): "I say, pa,
 where does the Hudson rise, and into what sea does it empty?" Pa: "I don't know, my son."
 Tommy: "You don't know, eh? and to-morrow the teacher will lick me on account of your ignorance."

Dumpey—"Blubbom's wife is very small, isn't she?" Poppley—"Yes; you would hardly believe it, but I have heard it said that she goes through his pockets every night."

SCIENTIFIC.

Length of the Mile.

IT VARIES FROM 1,000 FEET TO 2,315 FEET AC-CORDING TO COUNTRY.

It is no wonder that there is some uncertainty about the length of the mile. English-speaking countries have four different miles—the ordinary mile of 5,280 feet and the geographical mile of 6,085, making a difference of about one-seventh between the two. Then there is the Scotch mile of 5,928 feet and the Irish mile of 6,720 feet; four various miles, every one of which is still in use. Then almost every country has its own standard mile. The Romans had their mile pascuum, 1,000 paces, which must have been about 3,000 feet in length, unless we ascribe to Caesar's legions great stretching capacity. The German mile of to-day is 2,315 feet in length, more than four and a half times as long as our mile. The Dutch, the Danes and the Prussians enjoy a mile that is 19,440 feet long, three and a half times the length of ours, and the Swiss get more exercise in walking one of their miles than we get in walking five miles, for their mile is 9,- 153 yards long, while ours is only 1,760 yards.
 The Italian mile is only a few feet longer than ours, the Roman mile is shorter, while the Tuscan and the Turkish miles are 150 yards longer. The Swedish mile is 731 yards long, and the Vienna post mile is 8,296 yards in length.

So here is a list of twelve different miles, and besides this there are other measures of distance, not counting the French kilometer, which is rather less than two-thirds of a mile.
 The Brazilians have a millia that is one and one-fourth times as long as our mile; the Neapolitan millia is about the same length; the Japanese ri or mile is two and one-half times ours; the Russian verst is five-eighths as long as our mile, while the Persian standard is a fersakh, four and one-half miles long, which is said to be equal to the pascuum, so familiar to the readers of Xenophon's Anabasis.

The league that is familiar to readers of French and Spanish books varies just as does the mile. In limit it is three and four-fifths miles long; in France it was three miles; in Spain it was two and two-thirds miles; and once on a time in England it was two and one-half miles long, according to the Publishing Dispatch. The only measure that is about the same in every country is the meter, and even that varies slightly, for in France it is 39,370-422 inches in length, while in this country it is 39,370-979 inches, a difference to be mentioned, but not to be considered in practice.—Exchange.

Mimicry in Animals.

One of the most wonderful facts in nature is the mimicry of plants and animals, or the resemblance which certain species bear to other and very different species, as an aid to their struggle for existence, either by concealing them from their enemies or from their prey, or by attracting other animals which may be useful to them. Examples of this mimicry abound everywhere. There is a very common locust, which is often found in dusty roads, and which is quite conspicuous while flying, but the moment it drops to the ground it is almost absolutely indistinguishable from the dust and dirt in which it rests.

Commenting further upon this remarkable natural fact, Popular Science News presents a few instances in illustration of the same, selected from a recently published work on the subject; among them are the following: The caterpillar of the Dickc

MARRIAGES.

NESON-CHRISTIAN.—At the residence of the bride's parents, Mansfield, Texas, Sunday, Aug. 28, by Rev. E. B. Johnson, Mr. J. J. Neson, formerly of East Feliciana, La., to Miss Maggie Christian.

ALEXANDER-CUNNINGHAM.—At the residence of the bride's mother, near Vicksburg, Miss., Sunday, Aug. 28, 1892, by Rev. W. B. Lewis, Mr. W. C. Alexander and Mrs. Carrie M. Cunningham.

SUMNER-LIN-ROOTH.—At the residence of Mr. Wiley Mangram, Aug. 27, 1892, at 9:30 o'clock A. M., by Rev. I. T. Reames, Mr. Jno. S. Sumner, clerk of the Sixth District Court, to Miss Aulo Rooth, both of Rayville, La.

OBITUARIES.

We publish obituaries of 200 words free of charge, for all over this, one cent per word must be sent. If you want the notice to appear in its order, comply with this rule. Count the words, and send one cent for each word over 200.

BLANKENSHIP.—Let the poet sing as he will of earth's sweet fountains of bliss, and of pleasure's peaceful retreats from life's dull care, and sorrow's melancholy vale; and let the artist trace in unrivaled splendor, in which our portrayed scenes of human greatness and tranquillity, yet the true history of man, and the happiness of all, bear witness that this world is a wilderness of woe, and this earth a plague-spot of sin—a place where iniquity holds its dark and unbroken reign, entailing a measure of wretchedness upon all, and alas! inevitable ruin upon many. Human language can not tell, nor human tongue utter, the immeasurable bounds and darkness of evil that is wrought under the sun.

The delectable allurement of pleasure, the enticements to sin, the faithless friendships and jarring discords, the opposition and increasing ridicule of the wicked against the righteous, the snarling delusions and artful temptations of the devil, and the false flatteries of his impious, oppressive tyranny of the rich and great, the pinching and hopeless poverty of the poor, and the scornful pride of the haughty—all combine to make this world a place of sadness, misery and peril; and I verily believe there can not be found in all the range of Omnipotence a spectacle so morally sublime as is seen in the life of one who, having birth and being here, not only preserves a character of sanctified purity for more than half a century, but who also adorns it with the sweetest graces and highest moral excellences, till that character shines like a brilliant star upon the firmament of darkness, shedding a halo of radiance that thwarts the dismal gloom of a horrid night.

Such was the character, and so we view the life of Sister HETTIE K. BLANKENSHIP (nee Martin), who was born in North Carolina on Dec. 14, 1836; united in marriage to Samuel P. Blankenship in 1859; was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1863, and died in great peace at her home near Warrenton, Ark., March 25, 1892. She had lived many years in Louisiana.

From the time of her conversion (till her death) she was a "burning and a shining light," and breathed the spirit of her divine Lord, whom she served faithfully in every station to which she was called. In all the work of the church, in the missionary movements abroad, and in the aggressive enterprises at home, in the moral and financial support of the ministry, and in all personal work for the salvation of souls, she was ever active, zealous and untiring. It was her life to be true.

Having served her "generation by the will of God," the time came for her to "fall on sleep," as the hour drew near she waited in the patience of "hope that maketh not ashamed." Her spirit was calm, her soul kept in perfect peace. While she looked upon the fearful "faces of affectionate sisters and brothers and loving children, she talked to them of the "New Jerusalem," the everlasting home of her Father, the great King. It was meet that the "daughter of the Lord Almighty," who had shared the labors, borne the burdens, carried the weight of sorrows, and roamed a pilgrim from home for more than a half-century, exposed to all the assaults of earth and hell, should be now released, and be brought home with "songs and everlasting joy" upon her head. As we stood by watching, while waiting the eternal hour, we said to each other, "Here is purity, innocence and love incarnate." The last moment here, it was like breaking an earthen vessel to take therefrom one of the rarest jewels God ever made, to transfer it to a distant and better land, where it might gleefully shine in unclouded lustre, with Abraham and Sarah, Moses and Miriam, with Paul and the patriarchs, and with all the innumerable company of the redeemed from the world.

It seemed as if we could almost hear the ethereal symphonies, like the voice of many waters, mingling with the sevenfold, muttering thunders, deep and vast, as they rolled with tumultuous harmony through the vaulted corridors of the eternal heavens, when the blessed God came to take down the old, frail and falling house of clay that it might be laid peacefully, though in mortal ruins, beneath the sod, and let the ransomed spirit soar far above all sin and sorrow here, and her lovely sweet sing, to see the glittering gates of the eternal city open wide, while the "shout that shook the throne of God—"Home at last! Home at last!"—should greet her welcome to the skies. So may it be with us all! Affectionately, HAZEL N. BURNS.

CARTER.—Little THOMAS OWENS CARTER, infant son of Thos. M. and Mattie Carter, was born April 26, 1891, and died May 15, 1892. His childish character portrayed a future of brightest promise in this life; but ere his little life could more than his "papa" and "mama," they were hushed in silence here, but to break forth on that far-off shore in symphonic strains of eternal song. "And I heard a voice from heaven saying, Write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord," for they shall abide with him forever.

The all-wise God who holds the world in the hollow of his hand, and who has fixed limits to the proud waves of the sea, shall not mark the boundaries of a human life!

May his Holy Spirit descend in great power to keep us for that reunion of friends and loved ones eternal in the skies!

CHARLES W. CRISLER.

ALFORD.—LEROY NALSON, son of W. J. and Mary E. Alford, was born June 10, 1888, and died June 3, 1892.

Little Leroy was a bright, sweet child, dearly loved by his parents, brothers and sisters. It was hard to give him up; but what a comfort to know that out of the blitzy sorrows of this sin-cursed world the Savior took him to a beautiful home in heaven, where there is no death, but joy eternal! He was not a stranger there, but was met at the "memorial gate" by two other little brothers, who had gone before. Oh, may each one of us strive that we may meet those three in the tearless world beyond! His sisters.

MORTON.—Mrs. A. MORTON, daughter of Thomas and Prudence Applewhite, was born in Houston county, Ga., on Sept. 25, 1837, and died at her residence at Cotton Valley, La., Aug. 2, 1892.

Our mother was baptized in the M. E. Church, South, in her infancy. Being raised by religious parents, she was reared with pure and noble principles, and joined the Methodist Church young. She was married to Thomas H. Morton, June 30, 1853, by the Rev. J. J. Twigg, in Stuart county, Ga., where they lived until November, 1857; then they moved to the State of Louisiana, near Minden. After two years they moved to Cotton Valley. There she was left a widow in 1863.

She was a true Christian. She early taught us to pray and reverence God by her example. We were taught to be always truthful and honorable. The love and respect in which she was held by her neighbors and all who knew her best speaks for her, for she was kind to all. In our earliest recollection she would hold family prayer, and would lead in protracted meeting. It can truthfully be said, she was clothed with the Holy Spirit. She was kind and unselfish to children and grandchildren. She bore her affliction with patience and humility. She was always ready and willing to go to the house of God, if she was able to go. Her death was sudden; sick a few days. She was playing with her grandchildren, when she was taken worse. She laid down; was asked what was troubling her. She said, "Nothing." Her lips could not speak; she turned on her back with a smile, crossed her hands, and went home to reap her reward. Good-by, sweet mama, till we meet above. HARRY M.

COWAN.—Side by side in the graveyard at Ocean Springs, Miss., sleep two lovely little—mother and child—God's chosen, beloved on earth, but brighter now in heaven than earth's most brilliant gems. LILLIAN LOUISE COWAN, daughter of T. W. and Ann Grayson, was born in Tualoing, Jasper county, Miss., March 19, 1862; joined the M. E. Church when a girl; married Aug. 31, 1879, and died July 28, 1892.

During a revival conducted here several years ago, by Bro. J. A. Bowen, she professed to her family to have found that peace which sanctifies the soul, and since her darling little Lillian's death, pride of the family, her thoughts were more and more of heaven. When about to leave her loved ones on earth she said, "I shall soon be with my loved ones in heaven." She was always happy when with her mother and sisters, and would make any sacrifice for her family. Her greatest joy on earth was to know that she was loved by those she loved. Caring little for this world's show, but wrapped up in her family, she found contentment at home.

She leaves five children and a husband to love her, to follow her example and may God, in his infinite mercy, take us at last to our loved ones! Is the prayer of her devoted husband, D. D. COWAN.

ALLEN.—EDDIE COOPER ALLEN was born Oct. 22, 1881, and died Aug. 11, 1892, aged ten years nine months and nineteen days.

Eddie had been a member of the Methodist Church about one year. He loved the church and Sunday school, and was one of the most even-tempered, self-sacrificing and industrious boys of his age I ever knew—so devoted to his father and mother and little brother and sister and grandparents; but the blessed Master said, "Suffer little children to come unto me." He has taken him to himself, where the wicked cease from troubling, and the weary are at rest. Dear parents, grieve not; if faithful, we shall all meet Eddie again soon. His grandpa.

BYRD.—SALLIE BYRD, daughter of W. V. and F. E. Byrd, of Yazoo county, Miss., was born July 18, 1883, and died July 21, 1892.

Little Sallie was a precious and just untolding in her beauties, and its sweet fragrance was sweetening the home and circle of her acquaintances. God bless and save the bereaved ones. J. W. ELLISON.

SHEPHERD.—Mrs. MARY, wife of W. R. Shepherd, one of our most faithful members of the Greenwood Church, has been called from labor to reward, Aug. 20, 1892.

"She has done what she could." She leaves husband and seven children. S. H. W.

HARRIS.—Dr. J. B. and Ida Harris, of Caddo parish, La., have been bereft of two precious jewels. Little MATCO died July 4, and CLARA CHRISTIAN, Aug. 5, 1892.

"God's children are gathering home." S. H. WHITLEY.

For over fifty years Dr. Davis' Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Tar has cured coughs, colds, asthma, bronchitis, throat and lung affections. It is the regular prescription of a physician of extensive practice, who, after prescribing it for twenty years, was induced by the gratifying results to make it a proprietary medicine. Davis' Wild Cherry and Tar soon became known as the best remedy for all throat and lung troubles. Why? Because it has merit and will cure. A. C. Harnsberger, Philadelphia, says: "I know a man suffering with his lungs who was in the hospital a year without benefit. I induced him to take Davis' Wild Cherry and Tar, and to-day he is well. I know it saved his life." Try it.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO THOSE SENDING MONEY.—Remittances should be made only by money orders, express company orders, registered letters, drafts or checks on New Orleans banks or merchants. Drafts on country banks occasion a loss of from 15 to 25 cents per check. Drafts on country merchants we have no facility for collecting. Checks and drafts, also money orders, should be made payable to D. L. Mitchell, Philadelphia.

$10,000

will be paid for a recipe enabling us to make WOLFF'S ACME BLACKING at such a price that the retailer can profitably sell it at 10c. a bottle. At present the retail price is 20c.

This offer is open until January 1st, 1893. For particulars address the undersigned.

ACME BLACKING is made of pure alcohol, other liquid dressings are made of water. Water costs nothing. Alcohol is dear. Who can show us how to make it without alcohol so that we can make ACME BLACKING as cheap as water dressing, or put it in fancy packages like many of the water dressings, and then charge for the outside appearance instead of charging for the contents of the bottle?

WOLFF & RANDOLPH, Philadelphia.

PIK-RON

is the name of a paint of which a 25c. bottle is enough to make six scratched and dulled cherry chairs look like newly finished mahoganies. It will do many other remarkable things which no other paint can do. All retailers sell it.

We Cut Down

the price of Washing Powder from 15 cts. a pound to 6 1/2 cts. a pound.

Gold Dust

Washing Powder

Has Done It. The daily cleaning and weekly washing can be BETTER done by Gold Dust Washing Powder than with ANY Soap or other Washing Powder, and at less than One Half the Cost. Your grocer will sell you a package—4 pounds—for 25 cents.

N. K. FAIRBANK & CO., Sole Manufacturers,
CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS, NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
BALTIMORE, NEW ORLEANS, SAN FRANCISCO,
PORTLAND, ME., PORTLAND, ORE., PITTSBURGH AND MILWAUKEE.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR

The Celebrated

CHOCOLAT MENIER

Annual Sales Exceed 33 MILLION Lbs.
Write for Samples. Sent Free. Menier, Union Sq., N. Y.

HARDWOOD AND MARBLEIZED SLATE

MANTELS.

TILE HEARTHES. GRATES AND FIRE-PLACE TRIMMINGS.

GEO. M. LEAHY,

Advocate Building, - No. 112 Camp St., New Orleans.

WE The July

PRONOUNCE W. C. SHEPARD & SON,
84 CAMP ST., near POYDRAS,
The Cheapest Crockery, Glass and House-furnish
ing House in the City.

Be sure and look them up when needing goods in their line. 600 Dinner, Tea and Chamber Sets at half price.

For First-Class Photographs

GO TO SIMON'S,

No. 183 Canal St., - - - New Orleans, La.

H. Dudley Coleman Machinery Co., Lim'd,
New Orleans, La.

STEAM ENGINES, BOILERS, MILLS AND MACHINERY,

Pumps, Pipe, Presses, Pulleys, Shafting,

Saw, Sugar and Corn Mills,

Cotton Gins, Feeders and Condensers.

Examine Our Stock. Our Prices Are Very Low.

FOUNDRY, FACTORY & OFFICE, SUPPLIES & SAMPLE STORE
Cor. Magnolia and Erato Sts. 9 Perdido St. New Orleans, La.

If readers of this advertisement who wish to purchase goods in our line would mention this paper when writing for information or when ordering goods from us, we could then determine whether the money we pay for advertising in this paper is well invested or not.

H. DUDLEY COLEMAN MACHINERY CO., LIMITED, New Orleans, La.

Latest Styles -- Lowest Prices!

This handsome Parlor Suit is upholstered on solid walnut frames with Imported Marbled Silk Plush and the seats are all Spring Edge. Colors are Red, Red and Old Gold, Blue and Old Gold or each piece of a different color. For $45 I will sell seven pieces of this suit:—one Sofa, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair and three Reception Chairs. $65 buys the complete suit of ten pieces consisting of two Sofas, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair, and five Reception Chairs. Same suit covered with Hair Cloth, seven pieces $35 or ten pieces $55. Every other article in my store at proportionately low prices. Bedroom suits, twelve pieces, from $40 up to $1000 Dining room suits, eight pieces, from $17 upwards. Complete Kitchen outfits from $20 upwards. Quality at top—prices at bottom. I have an immense variety of strictly reliable goods and purchasers can depend upon getting the very latest styles. Everything guaranteed to be exactly as represented or money will be promptly refunded.

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE
in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT,

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE
in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30

Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company.

Losses Paid by Chicago Fire, 1871, $3,239,091.

Losses Paid by Boston Fire, 1872, $1,429,729.

All Losses Paid in Cash, without Discount, as Soon as Adjusted:

Losses and all matters of business settled by officers and directors in New Orleans without reference to any other office, the same as with local companies.

DIRECTORS IN NEW ORLEANS.

GUSTAF E. WESTFELDT, L. C. FALLON, LUCAS E. MOORE, O. M. MORIA

Chairman.

CLARRICE F. LOW, Asst. Resident Sec'y.

H. V. OGDEN, Resident Secretary.

The Southern Insurance Company

OF NEW ORLEANS.

54 - - - CAMP STREET - - - 54

Paid up Capital, $300,000. Assets, $545,096.10.

FIRE, RIVER AND MARINE INSURANCE.

This company by its conservative, yet liberal, business methods, and the immediate availability of its assets, affords complete security to its assured. Losses promptly adjusted and paid.

ERNEST MILTENBERGER, President. H. GALLY, Vice-President. SCOTT MOGHEER, Secretary.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Frank Roder, J. H. Menze, Joseph Schwartz, F. G. Frost, T. J. Woodward.

Home Insurance Co., of New Orleans.

No. 78 CAMP STREET.

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1886,	$400,479.08
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1887,	$413,860.76
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1888,	$459,369.50
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1889,	$510,584.54
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1890,	$551,897.82
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1891,	$600,414.81

Steadily Increasing in Strength and Popularity.

Solicits Fire and River Business.

Liberal Settlements and Prompt Payments.

Thos. Setton, Pres't. Capt. J. B. Woods, Vice-Pres't. Jno. G. Byrd, Sec'y

J. E. WOODS, JNO. J. BARR, J. B. LEVERT, W. B. BLOOMFIELD
JOE. BAYLE, ANDREW STEWART, E. BOLLARD, W. T. HARDIN
JNO. BARKLEY, CHAS. CHAFFZ, P. R. RICE, THOS. SEPTON.

W. E. LYMAN, President. JOSEPH BOWLING, Vice-President. CHAS. E. RICE, Sec'y.

Crescent Insurance Com'y.

Incorporated as a Mutual Company in 1849.

Reorganized as a Stock Company in 1860.

Cash Capital, - - - - - $300,000.

Has paid over TEN AND ONE-HALF MILLIONS for losses since 1849. ANNUAL and TERM

POLICIES issued on Desirable Fire Business.

See our Agents throughout Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas.

Watches, Diamonds, FINE JEWELRY

Silver and Silver-Plated Ware, SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES

Send for Catalogue.

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO.,

(Established 1817)

119 CANAL ST., New Orleans, La.

THIRTY CENTS

WILL get you TWO good papers, THE WAY OF FAITH (weekly), THE SOLDIER (monthly), for THREE MONTHS, 8 sweet songs, and our Liberal Terms to Agents. Address GOSPEL MISSION, Columbia, S. C. Mention this paper.

"Sanctification,"

By DR. B. CARBONADE, Is having a wonderful sale and doing a large amount of good.

Price: Paper, 40 cents; cloth, 80 cents.

For sale by F. D. VAN VALKENBURGH, 106 Camp St., New Orleans.

Base Ball Goods, Croquet, Fishing Tackle, Sables, Twines.

Refrigerators, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Baskets, Hammocks, Lamps, Lanterns.

Fruit Jars, Corks, Bottles, Flasks, Hardware, Tinware, Stationery, Wrapping Paper and Bags.

FULL LINE OF

Wooden and Willowware, Brushes, etc.

J. C. MORRIS CO., Limited.

40, 42 and 44 Tchoupitoulas Street

E. F. DYER, Pres. E. P. MACKIE, Treas.

W. W. CARRE.

LUMBER MERCHANT

AND MANUFACTURER OF

PLANTATION CABINS, STORES, Etc.

No. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave.,

NEW ORLEANS.

Christian Advocate.

VOL. 39.—NO. 37.

NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 15, 1892.

WHOLE NO. 1882.

Rev. C. W. CARTER, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. LEWIS, Asst. Editor.

PUBLISHED FOR THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE AND NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND CLASS MATTER.

Will Not Let It Ole.

BY REV. J. W. HARMON.

How comes it to pass that the champagne and schools of infidelity will not let the Bible and Christianity die in peace, and silently rest in the tomb? From Lord Bollingbroke and Voltaire, down to the present day, eloquent and rhetorical funeral discourses have been delivered with worldlyunction, committing the Bible to the tomb.

But how comes it to pass that the atheist, the chronologist, the biographer, the critic and profane skeptic somehow combine in their mental incoherence to keep the eyes of the world fixed upon this marvelous volume?

With just that lack of practical sense when drunk on the wine of egotism, and which always characterizes such men in matters of religion, God makes use of them to rekindle the volume of Christian zeal.

When French infidelity threatened the destruction of all Europe, overwhelming in blood and devilish frenzy all the landmarks of virtue, just at that thrilling epoch a few men were gathered in a small back room of a mercantile establishment in the city of London, and there organized, in a small way, the British and Foreign Bible Society, launching it, as it were, upon an ocean of blood, the fruit of French infidelity. And now this institution has grown into mammoth proportions, translating the Bible into nearly three hundred and fifty of the barbaric languages of this world.

Now, in the face of the Voltaire and Bollingbroke schools of infidelity, supplemented at this late day by the creaking infidels of the United States, this wonderful Bible belongs to the nations, and has become a part and parcel of the history of the world, never to be divorced from its beautiful and happy relation to mankind. It is here, whether the messenger of joy or the herald of doom. It is in the world and out of it. It will not go until the sublime object of its mission be perfected under the ministrations of men.

Why don't these money-jobbing infidels let the Bible alone? If they will have none of it, why don't they marry themselves to their secularism, and let the believers die in their chosen ignorance? But they won't let it alone, because there is a magnet light gleaming through its pages, flashing ever and anon upon these motley conspirators, that trouble them; and they must fulminate; and placing their bombs and dynamite speeches under this wondrous volume, they wait in vain to witness the explosion.

These men forget that nations and new governments have been born and passed away since this luminous volume was given to the world of literature; that customs and manners and thought have changed with crumbling dynasties, and still this Book, unchanged and unscathed, stands peerless in its power for good.

They seem to forget that linguists have assailed it, that history and geography and geology have hammered at it, that tourists and astronomers, as well as learned fools and ignorant and hoarse fools, have all tried their hands to bring reproach upon it; and still it moves on and shines on in its own resplendent light and glory.

This Book shines with a supernatural light into the tomb, and broken-hearted motherhood dries her tears and joys in the reunion of her loved dead.

Mighty battles of intellect have been fought over The Book; but every time the pendulum of unfolding destiny vibrates, it measures the diameter of a larger circumference, and will do so until this fragment of human existence closes with the world's eventful drama. Shooting spinning arrows at thunderbolts is mere child's play in their opposition to this Book of all books.

Dangerous Reading.

A distributor of the specimen pages of a flashy paper was told that such papers had a very bad influence upon the young. His reply was: "What have you to say about the daily paper?" The question was certainly a very pertinent one. We are among the warm friends of the daily paper, but that no small portion of its contents is open to serious objection from a moral point of view. During the past week the daily papers have filled columns regarding a miserable, low-down affair, called a prize fight. The smallest details of the disgusting exhibition have been paraded. Scandals and murders are written up with copiousness and beneath such glaring headlines as to attract instant attention. The sayings and transactions of the sporting class are also duly chronicled as if they were matters of importance to the community. The inevitable effect is that familiarity with vice and crime, especially upon the part of youthful readers, is promoted. This peril is only increased by the fact that the daily paper is a welcome visitor in the household. It goes where in, perhaps, the majority of cases the flashy paper is denied entrance. It is read with interest. It is read by the parents and by the boys and girls. The sensational portions do not usually escape the attention of the more youthful readers.

If such things must be published, a simple, unostentatious mention of them should be sufficient, and, indeed, some of them—prize fights, for instance—should not even be mentioned. Let moral and religious agencies and movements have the benefit of the conspicuous headlines, and not the doings and affairs of a class of people who are generally a curse instead of a blessing to a community. "Is it too much to ask of the mighty press of the land," forcibly inquires one who is familiar with the subject, "that accounts of crimes shall not be widely sensational nor specific, and especially that those against purity shall not be set forth with prurient minuteness?" Such reading can not be indulged in without leaving an almost insurmountable stain behind it. It suggests thoughts and imaginings which are not calculated to develop moral strength and purity.

Surely the boys and girls are deserving of jealous consideration. The press, which is such a tremendous power for good or evil, ought to be mindful of their interests, and in view of the grand possibilities which are bound up in their lives, it should sedulously exclude from its columns everything of a debasing character. What our country is to be depends upon the youth of to-day. They are to guide its destiny, give tone to its public opinion, and shape the direction and character of its legislation. If they come to this great task with vitiated tastes and polluted hearts, it will not be long before another Gibbon will arise and the decline and fall of the American republic will be written.—Mid-Continent.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. H. L. Norton, Madison, Miss., Sept. 2: "During the revival season the spiritual condition of Madison charge has been revived. Eleven accessions and a goodly number of conversions to date. Sickness prevails generally."

Rev. H. W. Knickerbocker, Batrop, Aug. 29: "Have just closed an eight-days' meeting here in Batrop. Good was done. How much only God knows. Church revived and thirteen accessions, making seventeen this year. My brother was with me. To God be all the glory."

Rev. J. L. P. Sheppard: "Revival fires are burning brightly throughout the Arcadia district. Many souls have found sweet peace in believing since our District Conference. The farmers say that the cotton crop has been powerfully injured by the boll-worm; in many places half. The financial pressure here is fearful. Our trust is in the Lord, and he will bring it to pass, etc."

Rev. R. C. Morehead, Argenta, North Little Rock, Sept. 3: "This charge—Argenta station—is in good condition. Have held two protracted meetings, which resulted in 60 accessions to our church to date. We hope to double our membership (and we are in 45 of that number) by the next Annual Conference. These are a good people, and this a goodly land. I enjoy the Advocate's weekly visits."

Rev. Wilson Moore, Bayou Chicot circuit, Sept. 6: "I began a meeting at Fairview, or rather Prosser School-house, on Friday night before the fourth Sunday in August, and closed on the following Thursday night. Was assisted after Sunday by Bros. Lyons, Vinson and Evans. We had one accession, and the church was greatly revived. My heart was made to rejoice when some of the members declared their intention to live nearer the cross. We begin at this place Friday night."

Rev. M. L. White, Mt. Carmel, Miss., Sept. 2: "Have just closed meeting at Mt. Moriah, in which Dr. West, L. J. Jones and Bro. Wilburn did the preaching. Seven joined the church; several conversions; several young men prayed in public, also several women; young men's prayer meeting organized. Over one hundred dollars spent in the last two months in repairing church here. Newly celled, new benches, pulpit and altar, belfry and bell. Will paint it shortly. There is a grand move forward all over the circuit. Forty accessions to date."

Rev. I. T. Reames, Rayville circuit, Louisiana Conference: "We closed a protracted meeting at Little Creek yesterday, which, I am assured, was a success. I can not say how many were converted, but can say that the church was edited, and several members who had for years been out of the church were brought again into the fold. We received eight into full connection. The cause of our blessed Savior was greatly strengthened by the meeting. I am indebted to Bros. Bogan and Banks for my ministerial help. The latter is a minister of the Presbyterian Church. Brethren, pray for us."

Rev. A. T. Buck, Sbrualak, Miss., Sept. 6: "We have just closed our meeting at Salem with grand results. The awakening on the part of both sinners and lukewarm church members was most wonderful. Sinners prayed and cried aloud for mercy, and Christians shouted the praise of God in the old-time way. Thirty-three have joined the church, and two others to be received. Bro. J. H. Mitchell, of Macon station, was with us two days, delighting the people with four sermons of great earnestness and power, after which my brother, J. E. Buck, of Guntown, joined me, and captivated the people by his usual soul-stirring efforts. Glory to God!"

Rev. H. P. Lewis, Caseyville, Miss.: "Three of our protracted meetings have been held; two of them with good results. Some sound conversions; old members quickened into a more active Christian life. I was called to Adams Camp Ground to preach the funeral of Sister J. P. Caruth a few days since. She was buried on Aug. 31. A pure, good woman gone home, leaving a husband and nine children in deep sorrow. A large congregation at the funeral. Bro. Howard, the pastor, assisted in the funeral service. I am now at home sick. Rev. B. F. Lewis, assistant editor, has gone to Galatia to assist in one of my protracted meetings. I hope to be able to join him in a day or two."

Rev. W. A. Bowlin, P. C., Belen, Miss., Sept. 2: "Have just closed an interesting meeting at Gleason, which resulted in one accession, and the church greatly revived. Quite a number asked for prayer, and promised to live a better life. Having no church-house, we preached under the shade of a tree; but at the close of the meeting the good people subscribed enough money to build a nice house, and we hope to have it completed by Conference. We have had our meeting at this place (Belen), assisted by Rev. L. A. McKeown, who preached with great power. Our people were greatly wrought up, and quite a number testified to the power and love of God. Praise the Lord! We begin at Davis Chapel next Sunday. May the good Lord meet with us there!"

W. O. Harris, Alligator, Miss., Sept. 8: "Among the many blessings given in the Greenville district and our Delta country this year may be recorded the results of a revival held at Friendship Church, near Alligator, Miss., by our pastor, Rev. L. A. McKeown, beginning on the fourth Sunday in August and closing the following Friday, by taking into the church 14 members on profession of faith and 1 by letter; also 1 for the Baptist Church. Two children baptized. Two or three more will join our church. The ladies organized a prayer meeting the week before with a little outside help, and met every evening; so, when the preacher came, the work was well under way. All honor to our noble Christian womanhood! Our church of the Delta is getting on higher ground. All praise to our Lord!"

Rev. T. B. White, Morgan City, La., Aug. 25: "Scottsville Camp Meeting commenced Aug. 9, and continued ten days, with no abatement of interest, but a rising tide. Much spiritual power in the conversion and sanctification of many, many precious souls. Love, harmony and peace reigned. A Louisiana home, seventy-two feet long, afforded sleeping apartments for most of our people. It is to be doubled in size by next camp meeting. The doctrines of the church were faithfully preached; and searching, proselizing sermons, and burning experiences, fer-vency and importunity in prayer, and spiritual elating, were the elements of a great meeting. About sixty preachers were in attendance, and multitudes heard the Word with gladness of heart, and went on their way rejoicing. Oh, it was good to be there!"

A Local: "Bro. L. J. Jones, pastor of the Pleasant Grove circuit, commenced a meeting at Pleasant Grove Church on Saturday, Sept. 3, and continued until Thursday night following, with the following results. The presence of the Holy Spirit was manifest at the commencement, and the interest increased to the close of the meeting. The pastor was assisted by Bro. W. G. Brown, a local preacher, and this scribe, Bro. Brown doing most of the preaching, which was earnest and heart searching. There were some conversions. I don't know how many. There were sixteen accessions. The church considerably revived. There had been eleven taken in at this church before, making in all twenty-seven to date. Thanks to Bro. Brown for services rendered."

Rev. Mrs. F. Hawkins, Anguilla, Miss., Sept. 3: "A good protracted meeting is the best place on this side of heaven. Indeed, it is where heaven for many is created. I have just held a protracted meeting at Beibel. God honored us with his matchless presence, and the Holy Ghost did wonderful things. Many souls resolved to live for heaven's eternity. The backslider began to tug once more up the hill, at the top of which is Christ's prepared mansion. Bro. J. W. Crisler, of Mayersville, did the preaching. His words were as a sledge-hammer, knocking into flinders the dam that kept back the redemptive blood, and welding a chain of gold, which the sinner seized and was drawn up to heaven. God bless you, brother, and may Zion's cause prosper in your hands! Six joined the church, two of whom have been taken in. The other four are waiting for an opportunity to be baptized."

Rev. G. R. Ellis: "Just closed a profitable meeting at Hebron. Church greatly revived. Young men prayed in public who had not done so before. Many rose up in the congregation and witnessed for Jesus, and expressed their determination to lead a better life. There were no accessions, owing to the fact that nearly everyone in the community is already in some church. But, thanks be to God! there was a deep work of grace wrought in the hearts of many lukewarm members. At this place we have a high school, which is progressing finely under the professorship of Prof. Almsworth. We are making considerable preparations for our approaching camp meeting (Leaf River), which begins on Oct. 7. Owing to the stringency of money matters in this country, the finances of the church are considerably behind, but trust that I may be able to carry up a good report to Conference. My work is gradually on the up-grade. Pray for us."

Rev. D. W. Babb, Hebron circuit, North Mississippi Conference, Sept. 5: "Our protracted meeting at Hebron came off a few weeks since, which resulted in calming disturbed elements. One addition, and we trust much other good to be developed. We are all much indebted to Bro. B. F. Phillips, of Booneville and Baldwin, a former pastor on this work, for ten good sermons preached. May the good Lord reward him! Our third quarterly meeting came off later, at Memphis, which was an occasion of encouragement. Bro. Wier, our presiding elder, preached us three gospel sermons. We all felt better afterwards. Later still: Last night we closed an eight-days' meeting at Memphis, where we had the efficient help of Bro. D. L. Cogdell, who preached from Sunday night until Wednesday night. The meeting resulted in a general revival in all the denominations. Twenty-six additions to our church, two to the Baptist; two prayer meetings—one for the ladies, one for the men—and many family altars organized. To God be all the praise."

Rev. W. G. Backus, P. C., Heidelberg, Miss., Sept. 5: "We have just closed our fourth protracted meeting on this work, with good results. Nineteen accessions, and the church greatly revived and strengthened. The meeting here at Heidelberg was the best known for years. Rev. K. A. Jones, of the North Mississippi Conference, did all the preaching, which was good to the use of edifying. His many friends in this section, who he was raised, were delighted to see him again, and hear him preach. His work will abide. Bros. Rayner, Zachry and N. B. Harmon did most of the preaching at the other churches. These brethren all did good, faithful work, and some of their sermons were of real excellence. Our presiding elder, Bro. Ellis, was not able to be with us at our third quarterly meeting, but Dr. J. W. Harmon came in his stead, and gave us two very instructive sermons. His preaching and visit were enjoyed by us all. Our school opens at this place next Monday, with Prof. W. L. Murray as principal. We bespeak for him and this school a liberal patronage. We have as reduced and moral a community as can be found anywhere."

Rev. Geo. A. Mundeveille, Calhoun, La., Sept. 2: "Since my last letter, written July 23, I have been confined to the bedside of Katie, my three-year-old daughter. She has had fever since July 15; has been at death's door, and is still in a very precarious condition—weak and emaciated; but we hope for her ultimate recovery. In addition, I have had to nurse my wife and four other children, one of whom had fever fourteen days. All of them are now up, for which I thank God. I tried to carry on a meeting at Indian Village, four miles from here, and though I could not remain with my people, and ran home after every sermon to find Katie fretting for me (as I am the only person she will allow to touch her or administer medicine or food), yet the Lord wonderfully blessed our labors, and the results were: the church mightily shaken and revived, backsliders reclaimed, sinners converted, 15 received into the church, 1 to be received, and 9 baptized—all adults. Glory to God! To him be all the praise and glory! Bros. Cracker, Morris and Griggs rendered efficient service during this meeting. Pray, brethren, for me, for I have been and still am passing through deep waters. Calhoun has had a regular epidemic of fever, with three deaths. Nearly every house has been visited."

Rev. T. L. Mellen, P. E., Meridian, Miss.: "Waynesboro circuit, J. W. Tinnin, P. C.: Pleasant Grove Church—1 accession, several new family altars, and about 20 men and women led of the Spirit to pray in public.... Lauderdale circuit, W. T. Browning, P. C.: Bethel Church—30 conversions and 8 accessions.... Porterville circuit, J. T. Abney, P. C.: Longstreet Chapel—7 accessions.... Linwood circuit, W. J. Dawson, P. C.: Linwood School house—18 accessions, including an Indian; many young people led to pray in public, and some old feuds settled. Prospects good for a nice new house of worship.... Marion circuit, Geo. Baneroff, P. C.: Pleasant Hill Church—3 accessions; all young men of promise. Andrew Chapel—2 accessions.... A line meeting at Pachuta and a glorious revival at Quitman are now in progress.... Meridian, East End, N. M. Clark, P. C.: 22 accessions, many conversions, backsliders reclaimed, and spiritual strength of other members renewed.... Clarke circuit, J. N. Ware, P. C.: Andrew Chapel—1 accession, and many backsliders healed. Scott's Chapel—1 accession, and almost every member revived.... DeKalb circuit, R. A. Breland, P. C.: Spring Hill Church—12 accessions; DeKalb, 6 accessions; Pleasant Ridge Church, 9; Blair's Cross-roads, 17.... Shubuta circuit, J. P. Drake, P. C.: Quitman—6 accessions, and many received the witness of the Spirit."

Mary M. Kyes, Clin, La., Sept. 8: "On last Sunday (Sept. 4) we celebrated for the first time Children's Day at Huff's Chapel. The attendance was large for this vicinity. The number present I have heard variously estimated from 200 to 300; but I think the last number nearest right. The exercises began with prayer by our Sunday-school superintendent, followed by singing and recitations suitable for the time and place, and very creditably given, after which we had an edifying discourse from our pastor, Rev. H. W. Wallace. Then came dinner on the ground, and the croaker's oft-reiterated saying, that starvation is at our door, was refuted by the bountiful feast spread in the grove for the refreshment of all. I never saw a more orderly assembly. All seemed to feel, if they did not say, 'Blest be the tie that binds,' etc. After some time spent in greeting friends and acquaintances, and exchanging views with them, we again repaired to the church and listened to an able and earnest discourse from our pastor. Surely no right-minded person could fail to profit by his wise and loving counsel, and I have no doubt many of his hearers will 'watch and pray' more constantly for having heard him; and here let me say that we have been blessed in our present minister. He is an able and devout man, and preaches as if constrained by love. After receiving the benediction, we returned home for God's blessed boon of rest, singing, 'God be with you till we meet again.'"

Our correspondent in St. Louis writes: "It has been my pleasure, during my short stay in St. Louis, to attend divine services in the First Methodist Church, where our dear Bro. Carradine is now pastor. The church was packed at the eleven o'clock service. Bro. Carradine preached an impressive sanctification sermon, taking as his text, 'But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you' (Acts 1, 8), at the close of which an altar service was held, and there was a slight note to be forgotten. The altar was thronged, inasmuch that many knelt at the front pews, anxiously desiring the descent of the Holy Ghost. In the evening the young people's class was well attended, the Sunday-school room being nearly filled with young ladies and gentlemen, with here and there a group of young boys and girls. A young lady led, while two young ladies presided at the piano and organ respectively. After a short song service the leader read a portion of Scripture, upon which she gave a heart-felt talk. Many experiences followed, all bright, happy and hopeful, showing the sanctified lives of many of the younger members of the congregation. There was no hesitancy; they eagerly jumped to their feet to tell what Jesus had done for their souls. Upon going up stairs for evening service, we listened to the Rev. Dr. Bonds, a former pastor of the First Methodist Church. This church has been wonderfully revived during the past year. Three hundred and fifty persons have joined the church; nearly 300 have been converted in the church and 100 in the mission, and about 250 sanctified. The members are alive, and the many meetings of the Sabbath and week days are well attended. Last evening I attended the sanctification meeting. The room was crowded in overflowing, many turning back because there was no available space to place any more chairs. It was a powerful and impressive time. A grand revival is anticipated this Fall."

Rev. C. McDonald, P. E., Forest, Miss., Sept. 1: "The Lake Camp Meeting was held Aug. 26 to 30. It was a good meeting in many respects. There was quite a revival among the Christians. There were some conversions and three accessions to the church. The order was the best I ever saw at a camp meeting, which shows that the people are civilized and a cultured people. The attendance was good; nearly every tent was occupied. The meeting closed on Tuesday night, with fifty persons, I suppose, at the altar. When, to all appearance, we reached the time to reap the fruit, we closed. The tenters have resolved to stay, at least, six days next year. They also passed a resolution requesting the eastern half of the district to adopt this as its camp ground. With, say, ten circuits concentrated on Lake and ten on Shiloh, we will have two large camps. All the other camp grounds in the district have failed. At Lake we have the use of the Patrons' Union grounds and tents; rent free. A beautiful place, plenty of water, and every convenience. I suppose there are fifty tents to be occupied by families, some of which are large and two stories high—tents that would do to Summer in. The hotel is large and three stories high. There was a piano, an organ and two cornets in constant use with the singers. Our music was good. We had a good preaching force, as there were nine of the pastors in the district and two local preachers. Besides the home preacher, we had Rev. I. L. Peckles and Rev. L. S. Jones. The latter was with us from beginning to end, and did more preaching than anyone. He is peculiarly qualified to take the lead in protracted and camp meetings, and does good, solid work, such as our pastors will approve. Evidently God has a vast work for him to do."

NOT TO THE MAN OF DOLLARS.

BY CHARLES N. METTERLY.

Not to the man of dollars,
Not to the man of deeds,
Not to the man of cunning,
Not to the man of greed,
Not to the one whose passion
Is for the world's renown,
Not to the man of fashion,
Cometh a blessing down.

Not to the man of expansion,
Not to the miser's chest,
Not to the princely mansion,
Not to the blazoned crest,
Not to the sordid worldling,
Not to the knavish clown,
Not to the haughty tyrant,
Cometh a blessing down.

Not to the man of the world,
Not the steeped in shame,
Not to the carnal-minded,
Not to the unholily tame,
Not in neglect of duty,
Not in the monarch's crown,
Not at the smile of beauty,
Cometh a blessing down.

But to the one whose spirit
Yearns for the great and good;
To the one whose store-house
Yieldeth the hungry food,
To the one who labors,
Fearless of foe or town;
To the kindly-hearted,
Cometh a blessing down.

—Yankee Blade.

Rev. J. H. Gambrell Declines to Accept the Nomination of the People's Party of Mississippi for Congress.

(Editorial.)

About two months ago a People's Party Convention was called and assembled in the city of Jackson, Miss., for the purpose of nominating a State ticket. Among the nominees, we were pained to see the name of Rev. J. H. Gambrell, of Brookhaven, Miss., nominated for Congress from the Seventh Congressional District, and still more so at bearing an intimation that he would accept the nomination.

Mr. Gambrell is a Baptist minister, whose integrity and piety have gone unquestioned. During the heated prohibition campaign, a few years ago, he stepped to the front and offered his services to the best people of the State to aid them in fighting their cause and downing the liquor traffic. In this capacity, while he made, as a matter of course, many enemies among the whiskyites, yet he made many warm friends among the prohibitionists and best people of the State.

In a recent communication to the committee, which notified him of his nomination, he formally declines to enter the canvass, giving as his reason that at first he did not think his party could elect its candidate, but was willing to enter the canvass to educate the people "to vote on principle and for principle, rather than according to the dictum of bitter partisan and extreme sectional leaders." Afterwards, however, he became "thoroughly convinced that the candidate of the People's party" in his district would be elected next November; hence declines, as he does not feel he can give up the pastorate for two years to enter the halls of Congress.

We agree with Bro. Gambrell that our people need education along the line of the ballot. Any casual observer can see that. But can a minister of the Lord Jesus Christ leave his pulpit and stump his district, or even county, "for two months" in behalf of any political party? Politics is a dangerous instrument in the hands of a minister of the gospel. Mississippi soil already shows enough stranded ministerial wrecks without adding to them. Nineteenth century political stump-speaking and New Testament gospel preaching don't mix. We are glad Bro. Gambrell has declined, but would have been much better pleased had he said emphatically that God called him to the ministry of the gospel, not to the halls of Congress. We long to see the day when the pulpit will teach men, without regard to their political affiliations, that it is their duty to God and humanity to "vote as they pray;" but we will sorrow to see the day when any minister can leave his sacred desk for the political stump.

An Important Notice.

The friends and members of our church will please to take notice that the incorporators of the "Board of Trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South," have secured a charter from the State of Tennessee, and effected their organization as follows: Rev. T. M. Finney, D. D., president; Col. E. W. Cole, vice-president; and Mr. D. C. Seales, secretary and treasurer. Any information that is desired will be furnished by Mr. Seales, whose postoffice is Nashville, Tenn. This is an important matter that ought to have received earlier attention. The failure to incorporate our church has already resulted in the loss of some large bequests. The following points, in particular, should be carefully read: N. B.—Bequests, gifts, etc., should be made to "The Board of Trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South," the corporate name.

For form of will, see page 239, ¶ 404 of Discipline.

For form of deed of gift, see page 241, ¶ 405 of Discipline.

Japanese Conference.

BY BISHOP J. S. KEY.

[We are indebted to Bishop Key for the following report of the organization of the Japanese Conference, and the outlook among that remarkable people.—ED.]

We have just closed our Japanese Conference, and I catch the first outgoing mail to report.

Upon reaching the field a very slight observation made it clear that this mission should be set up into an Annual Conference; and as the last General Conference had advised it, the way was open to do it. So on July 20 the Japan Mission Conference was organized, with eight missionaries in full connection present, and two absent—Lambuth and Utley, both desiring their membership placed here. The Conference then consisted of ten members, two preachers in the second year, and three native preachers in the first year. Two were admitted on trial—one native and one foreigner. Besides this Conference force we have two consecrated laymen, and five women engaged in teaching and medical work—all under the direction of the Conference authorities.

The young Conference proceeded at once to business, with a carefulness and intelligence not excelled by any of our old, trained bodies. Standing Boards were appointed, and committees for the present session, and everything went forward with Methodist regularity. Several questions of weighty import were considered and settled with perfect harmony. The blessed Spirit was manifestly present, and several times the shout of triumph was heard. A saved heathen has a right to shout.

Our school interests demanded the wisest treatment. In this field they are of the highest importance. The institution at Kobe, called "Kwansel Gakuin," a college for boys, is very promising. It has both academic and biblical departments, with wise and efficient men in charge of each. Three of the four native preachers in the Conference were educated here, and a fine class of young preachers is now in training for the future. Our first native preacher (Bro. Yoshioka) returned with me, having spent two years in Vanderbilt University. He takes a chair in the Kobe institution, and we have great hope of him. He is intelligent, pious, practical, and has great influence with his people. We rely on this school to supply us with an educated ministry. In this rejuvenated and ambitious nation, where thought is quickened into new life, where a question is on every tongue, and every subject is being probed to the bottom, we must be careful as to our ministry. Trained men are more needed here than at home, and the church is fortunate, indeed, in having an institution here so well able to meet this want. Besides, we have several other promising young men in America, in our different colleges, getting ready for work here. If they come back wholly consecrated to God, what a power they will be!

In addition, we have a girls' school of much promise at Hiroshima. The building was burned last year, but, by a great effort, a new and better one has been erected, and will be ready for use at the opening of the next term. We thought it best also to remove the Bible Woman's Training-School from Kobe to Hiroshima, and thus concentrate all our work for women at that point.

Mrs. Lambuth, the veteran missionary, continues her school for Eurasian children in Kobe. What a work she is doing! The Conference accepted the school, which she offered to them, and she is continued in charge.

The Palmore Institute is a night-school, with a large patronage, giving us access to a large and mixed class, the fruits of which we are already gathering.

Evangelistic work in the open field is going forward as rapidly as possible. Faithful men are doing their utmost, but no one unacquainted with this language can appreciate the obstacles to be overcome in speaking it. It is said to be more difficult than Chinese. But the workers are bravely struggling to master it. A few are beginning to preach without interpreters, and I trust all will do so soon.

The results of our mission in Japan are in the highest degree encouraging, and fully vindicate the wisdom of the Board in occupying this field. Six years ago Drs. Lambuth, father and son, and Dr. Dukes, came from China and opened this mission. To-day we have a membership of 505, with 87 names on probation; a Conference of 12 missionaries and 5 native preachers; 5 church-buildings, worth $5,200; 2 fine institutions of learning owning their own property, valued at $40,000, besides numerous day-schools taught in connection with pastoral work. There are also 38 Sabbath-schools, with 1,335 scholars and 71 teachers.

I am free to say that the work here is far beyond my largest thought, both in its magnitude and promise. The investment made in Japan by the church has already paid a large return, and the future will be a hundred-fold greater.

Below I give you the appointments for the next year:

Kobe District.

W. E. Towson, P. E.
Kobe station, W. E. Towson, P. C.—K. Usaki, assistant.
Kobe circuit, J. C. Newton, P. C.
East Kobe, to be supplied (by S. H. Wainwright).
Hirogo, to be supplied.
Mikage, to be supplied.
Himaji and Kakogawa circuit, T. W. B. Demaree, P. C.

Kwansel Gakuin—Biblical Department: J. C. Newton, dean; T. W. B. Demaree, professor; S. H. Wainwright, professor; Y. Yoshioka, professor and chaplain. Academic Department: S. H. Wainwright, principal; W. P. Turner, professor; H. Nakamura, Kanji.
Dispensary and Training-school for Nurses, Miss M. Y. Kim, M. D.
Kobe School and Industrial Girls' School, Mrs. J. W. Lambuth.
Palmore Institute, W. P. Turner.

Osaka District.

O. A. Dukes, P. E.
East Osaka and Sakai circuit, O. A. Dukes, P. C.
West Osaka circuit, J. M. Rollins, P. C.
Wakayama circuit, to be supplied.
Koto circuit, to be supplied.

Hiroshima District.

B. W. Waters, P. E.
Hiroshima circuit, B. W. Waters, P. C.—Y. Tanaka, assistant.
Yamaguchi circuit, Simeon Shaw.
Hiroshima Girls' School, Miss N. B. Gaines, principal.
Bible Woman's School, Miss L. Strider, Miss M. F. Rice.

Matsuyama District.

C. B. Moseley, P. E.
Matsuyama circuit, C. B. Moseley, P. C.—E. Abou, H. G. Hawkins, assistants.
Oita circuit, W. A. Wilson, P. C.—E. Nakayama, assistant.
Uwejima circuit, W. A. Davis, P. C.

Sunday-School District Conference.

HELD AT SGOORA, MISS., AUG. 25-26, 1892.

The Conference convened at the time and place appointed, and Rev. R. A. Breland presided by the appointment of the presiding elder, Rev. T. L. Melten. E. G. Mohler was chosen secretary.

The following delegates were present: From DeKalb circuit—Rev. R. A. Breland, Rev. J. A. Moore, Mrs. Otie Clarke, Miss Hattie Smith, Miss Mattie Gully, Miss Essie Creekmore, Miss Roxy Bethany and Miss Mildred Pickett; Blinnville—Rev. J. M. Pugh and E. G. Mohler; Meridian—Rev. C. G. Andrews, Rev. N. B. Harmon and J. C. Caver; Porterville—Rev. J. T. Abney; Lauderdale—J. D. Porter.

The programme was read and complied with by those present, to whom subjects were assigned for discussion. The absence of so many may be accounted for from the fact that so short a time was allowed for the preparation of papers. Bros. James Watts and A. M. Moore were present, and took part in the discussions.

Bro. J. C. Caver presented his subject, "How to Open and Close the Sunday-school," and was followed by Bros. Pugh, Andrews, and others.

An excellent paper on "The Relation of the Sunday-school to the Church under the Discipline" was read by Bro. Pugh, and further discussed by Bros. Andrews, Watts and Moore.

Bro. J. T. Abney read a paper on "The Use of the Bible in the Sunday-school and Co-operation with the American Bible Society." The salient point was the tendency to supplant the Bible by the use of Sunday-school literature, and the necessity of placing the Bible in the hands of everyone who could read. The subject was further discussed by Bros. Watts, Breland and Pugh.

Bro. J. A. Moore read a paper on "The Standard Hymn Book in the Sunday-school." It was further discussed by Bros. Harmon, Pugh, A. M. Moore, and others.

The brethren to whom other subjects were assigned were not present, except Bro. Andrews, who preached a capital sermon on "The Duty of Parents," and Bro. Harmon, who greatly interested the audience in a sermon to the children, quite a number of whom presented themselves at the altar for prayer. Bro. Abney gave us a sermon, and Bro. Breland preached two pointed and forceful sermons during the session. Preaching was made prominent. The Conference was pleasant, and ample provision had been made for the accommodation of twice the number by the hospitable people of Soobra.

E. G. MOHLER, Sec.

Report of the Committee on Temperance.

AS ADOPTED BY THE ABERDEEN DISTRICT CONFERENCE, NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Intemperance and the liquor traffic are the most powerful enemies of God and humanity. They threaten our institutions, paralyze business, demoralize labor, ruin homes and hinder the church. This bloody foe is well organized to extend its work of destruction, and in our efforts to save souls, we meet it at every point. The issue is clearly defined. It will ruin us or we must blot it out forever. The grace of God, the constant and uncompro-missing efforts of the church create a healthy, public sentiment which will ultimately free our country from this fearful curse. The Methodist Church has always been known to be an avowed enemy of the liquor traffic and intemperance, and we rejoice to know, is now more aggressive than ever. It is understood that no man can engage in the liquor business or sign a petition for the same and be a member of the Methodist Church. It is further understood that no person can drink intoxicating liquors as a beverage and be a member of our church in good standing.

The dram-shop law enacted by our last Legislature has added much to the cause of temperance, and has already reduced the number of saloons in our district. The Grand Lodge of Free Masons of the State, at their last session in February, 1892, spoke in unmistakable terms against the liquor traffic. They say that: "The dram shop is a demon which has wrought untold misery to the human race. It has filled more graves than war and pestilence combined. It has dragged down to hell more men than any other sin. It has cursed and destroyed races and nations. It consumes more money than the combined expenses of all the governments of the earth. It converts men into brutes and demons, and destroys the likeness which their Maker impressed upon them when he created them. Its trail is one long and never-ending track of blood, crime and misery. The groans and shrieks of the widows and orphans it annually makes, if combined in one horrible diapason, would drown the thunders of heaven itself. Surely we venture nothing when we assert that an occupation which encourages drunkenness, debauchery, profanity, obscenity and gambling is not compatible with free masonry." Surely our beloved Methodism can not afford to stop its war on this evil, and thus fall behind an institution which is not equal to the church!

After careful consultation with the pastors and laymen from all parts of the district, we learn the following gratifying facts:

1. The temperance sentiment is growing rapidly throughout the Aberdeen district.
2. There is decided decrease in the number of church members who drink whisky as a beverage.
3. The cause is being agitated with great success.
4. The new dram-shop law is working well, and has already reduced the number of saloons, and others are on their death-beds.
5. Some of the women are working with us in the great cause.

We suggest the following for your adoption:

Resolved, That we do all in our power to strengthen public sentiment in favor of temperance, as our Discipline directs.

Resolved, That we will use every effort consistent with our calling, as pastors and laymen in the church, to close the remaining saloons in the bounds of the district.

J. S. JOHNSON,
Chairman of Committee.

Resting.

The Master once said to his disciples, "Come ye yourselves apart into a desert place and rest a while." Believing in the wisdom of his teachings, I am now a while away from my work, resting; not in a desert place, however, but amid the mountains, the sacred mountains. I am stopping now on Mt. Moriah, Mt. Zion, of course, is near by, and Mt. Carmel a little further off. This circuit takes its name from the last-mentioned height. Rev. M. L. White is the pastor in charge, and they say, take him all around, he is the best they ever had, and some of the best, ablest and most popular preachers in our Conference have filled this work. Weems, McLaurin, Rayner, Downer, Gulio and Simmons, for instance. Making some allowance for the clean-sweeping of the new broom, and the noted fact that the last high rain was the hardest we ever saw fall, I am inclined to think that these people never had a pastor that they loved more than they do Bro. White. The church here seats about three hundred, and the congregations are here as they do in railroad towns when there is a wedding in the church; they crowd the amen corners and front seats first, and if there is any place unoccupied it is the back seats. They have a splendid Sunday-school here, an excellent graded high school and a thriving community surrounding.

T. S. WEST.

Christian Influence.

I love the CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE because it brings good news from afar; because each week it visits my home with letters from good, Christian men and women; and as I read them I feel spiritually benefited and greatly built up in God. Therefore, I am always anxiously awaiting its arrival. May it continue to live and visit the homes of spiritually needy people as long as time shall last!

Just here I am reminded of the beautiful words of our blessed Savior, when he said to his disciples, "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." And, oh! how bright and beautiful shines the light of truth Jesus has kindled in the heart of the young lady who answered the card of invitation to the "ball" in the way she did. Praise God for the young lady who, when she joins the church, gives in that self-same hour her heart and life to the Savior, and assumes the vows of church membership for all they mean. Fether, bless and help her unto the end, and grant that in the near future there may be abundantly of such material throughout the land and country! And help us all, as members of the church and as a people, to live in the way thou hast commanded us to live, in order that we may set a good example and wield a good influence for each other as long as life endures; to whom be all honor, glory and praise forevermore!

G. W. BARR.

Prismatic, Miss.

Woman's Work.

Miss Annie Linfield reports three auxiliaries organized by Mrs. P. A. Johnston, Woodville district: Port Vincent, Wilkinson, Miss., and Percy's Creek.

Miss Sallie Smylle, who labored so successfully in Meridian district last year, has been warmly greeted by the auxiliaries, and, being appreciated, begins the new year with renewed energy and zeal.

The success of the work depends so much on the district secretaries, that it would be well if every auxiliary would write and send a loving welcome to the secretary, pledging help by prayer and work.

On page 53, Annual Report, W. M. S., the $76,859.22, "amount disbursed this fiscal year," means '91-'92. The June quarter's expenses, $11,231.50, deducted from the final $7,149.20, left a clear balance of $75,917.70. The appropriation for the new year, '92-'93, was $86,000, with $3,000 contingent. To aid in supplementing this balance, our Conference representative promised $200 for the new missionaries. One hundred and fifty dollars of this amount has been pledged.

The Board, in annual session, granted Miss A. M. Barnes, editor Little Worker and editor of Leaflets, the privilege of raising, during the coming year, five thousand dollars among the children of our societies, said funds to go into the general treasury towards the sending of new missionaries.

She has matured plans for the general observance of two nights throughout the bounds of our work—"Children's Nights," somewhat after the plans and methods pursued in the observance of Children's Day. The first of these, known as "Envelope Night," to be observed on Friday, Oct. 7; the second, called "The Reign of the Miles," will be on a more extended scale, and, she hopes, can be observed some time in the Spring.

A clear conception of the plan can be gained by reading the full programme for "Envelope Night" in the September Little Worker.

She desires that the observance of "Envelope Night" be earnestly urged upon the lady managers of our Conference.

Mrs. E. D. JONES.

Tell Your Pastor.

Tell your pastor when his services have been a blessing to you. His words may have convicted you of sin, warned you in perplexity, comforted you in sorrow, elevated your groveling desires, brought the very life of God to your soul. Whatever good his words may have conferred upon you, make it known to your pastor. The knowledge will comfort and encourage him. He has many discouragements in his work. Among these is the reticence of his people respecting their appreciation of his services, or of the blessings which, in whatever form, may have come through his words to their souls. There is no danger of pride being engendered in his heart by your cheering words, as it is imagined might be the case with superficial thinkers. Gratitude, praise, joy, are more likely to fill his heart and burst from his lips. Besides, you owe it to your pastor to tell him how you have been benefited by and through him. It is part of the work. It is only following in the footsteps of the good in all ages, and the example is given by God himself, who will say to each faithful servant, "Well done!" Do not let your pastor, then, be discouraged through your failure to inform him of his agency in your spiritual good. Tell your pastor!—Exchange.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON.—Sept. 18, 1892.

By REV. W. H. LA PRADÉ, D. D.

Review.

Acts i-viii.

ACTS I, 30-37.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"And we are his witnesses of these things: and so is also the Holy Ghost whom God hath given to them that obey him." (Acts i, 33.)

In the four Gospels we have an account of the life of Jesus, of his teachings, end of his death and resurrection. During the quarter now closing we have studied the history of the organization of the church, beginning with the ascension of Jesus and ending with the conversion of the Ethiopian. In our review we must try to fix the most important truths of each lesson.

I.—THE ASCENSION OF CHRIST.

When Christ ascended to his Father, the proof of his divinity was completed.

His ascension, freeing his disciples from the temptation to rely upon his bodily presence, made it easier for them to trust to spiritual forces and guidance.

His ascension, with his glorified body, teaches us that he is ever the God-man, the Mediator between the world and the Father.

His ascension, in bodily form, is the pledge of our ascension. It was a "faithful unto death."

II.—THE DESCENT OF THE SPIRIT.

Heart and mind must be prepared for the Spirit before he comes. Obedience and prayer are the conditions of his coming.

True Christian work is spiritual work, and spiritual work demands spiritual force. We can not properly witness for Christ unless we have the gift of the Spirit.

III.—THE FIRST CHRISTIAN CHURCH.

Repentance and faith are the conditions of church membership. Without these there can be no spiritual union with Christ.

Helpful fellowship, cordial and selfless, is characteristic of all true Christians, and always wins and holds the confidence of the world.

IV.—THE LAME MAN HEALED.

So long as this world endures, suffering and want will be found, asking help. The true worshiper will pause to give aid, even while hurrying to the temple to pray.

In the name of Jesus all good deeds should be done. Without him we are without power.

He who helps the needy gains opportunity to preach Christ. The service rendered drives the doctrine home.

V.—PETER AND JOHN BEFORE THE COUNCIL.

There is no occasion that does not furnish, to brave, true men, an opportunity to teach truth.

The truth the world needs to know is, that there is salvation through Christ, and only through him.

VI.—THE APOSTLES' CONFIDENCE IN GOD.

When the issue is between obedience to God and anything else whatsoever, we must obey him, let the consequences be what they may.

God places the seal of his approval upon right conduct, however much the world may condemn.

VII.—ANANIAS AND SAPPHIRA.

Unselfishness is a very great virtue, frequently counterfeited. It is the characteristic virtue of Christianity.

A gift to the church, properly made, is a gift to God. To lie to the church about such gift is to lie to God.

"Sentence against an evil work" is not always "executed speedily," but the execution is no less sure.

VIII.—THE APOSTLES PERSECUTED.

Persecution, in some form, will always follow the disciples of Christ. "It will come."

Persecution, even to death, is far better than sin. Better die than do wrong.

Christian courage is born of faith in Christ and allegiance to right.

In morals, and in spiritual things, the spirit of compromise is a spirit of evil.

IX.—THE FIRST CHRISTIAN MARTYR.

Those appointed to attend to the secular business of the church are none the less under obligation to witness for Christ.

Unyielding devotion to Christ brings the enmity of the world, sooner or later.

Christ is very near his people, though unseen.

A church suffering "for righteousness' sake" is a conquering church always.

X.—PHILIP PREACHING AT SAMARIA.

To witness for Christ is the one great duty and privilege of his followers, and faithful testimony of lip and of life always convinces the unbeliever.

The purchasing power of money is limited; much more so than most men think. Spiritual things lie far above the financial plane. Real piety will control money for God, but money can not purchase piety.

XI.—PHILIP AND THE ETHIOPIAN.

God's children should be ready to do his bidding without hesitation and without questioning. So Abraham did; so did Philip.

The earnest seeker after truth will find a guide. "Light is sown for the righteous."

Every Christian should know God's Word abundantly to teach others the way to Christ.

To confess Christ openly is the duty of every believer. To decline to do this, for any reason whatever, is to be untrue to him.

Christian Advocate.

Rev. D. L. MITCHEL, Publisher.
OFFICE: 112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
SUBSCRIPTION: $2 PER ANNUM.
Minimum of one year in advance.
Rev. C. W. Carter, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. Lewis, Ass't Editor.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.
REV. J. M. BEARD, D. D.
REV. S. S. KESNER
REV. J. B. A. AHEENS, D. D.
MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.
REV. W. C. BLACK, D. D.
REV. W. B. LEWIS
REV. R. J. JONES
NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.
REV. W. T. J. SULLIVAN, D. D.
REV. J. D. CAMERON, D. D.
REV. T. C. WIER, M. D.

Thursday, September 15, 1892.

BRIEFS.

We once heard an unusually competent and charitable layman say: "No one ever delighted or profited me more than my pastor does in the first third of his sermon. But from that on, when he screams, and whispers, and beats the air, and stamps, and struts, and swaggers—all evidently simply because he has reached the place where the sheet-iron thunder and the mimic lightnings are to play—why, then, the effect is so painful as to destroy the good impressions already made."—Western Christian Advocate.

Dr. Magruder, of Baton Rouge, has brought us under obligation to him for the "Report of the Officers and Trustees of the Louisiana Institution for the Education of the Blind." This report shows this excellent institution to be in a healthy condition and doing good work for that unfortunate class of people. The institution is both a school and an industrial home, where the pupils are taught various branches of education and how to do various kinds of handicraft.

According to the census, ten States and the District of Columbia have more females than males, and thirty-eight States and Territories have more males than females. When the census was taken, 1890, there were 32,067,880 males and 30,554,370 females. Of these 33,372,703 were native-born citizens and 9,249,547 were foreign-born. In Mississippi there were 1,281,648 natives and 7,952 foreign-born. In Louisiana there were 1,068,840 natives and 49,747 foreign-born. The ratio of the foreign-born to the natives is increasing all the time. In 1880 it was 15,375 foreign-born to 100,000 native-born; in 1890 it was 17,340 foreign-born to 100,000 natives!

We often hear prayers from well-to-do people for "the poor and needy," but we don't remember to have heard the real, right sort of prayer for that class yet. We have heard, "Lord, bless the poor out of the riches of thy providence;" but we have never heard, "Lord, send the poor to me, that I may help relieve their necessities." We don't remember just now that Christ instructed us to "pray for the poor," but we do remember that he said, "The poor ye have always with you, and whenever ye will ye may do them good." What is the sense of praying to the Lord to do what we can do, and what he has commanded us to do? Such praying is an insult to God, and should be avoided as a snare of the devil. Too many Christians have been caught in that snare!

Opening at Centenary.

We are glad to say that Centenary has opened well, and that her prospects are bright. All her professors and teachers are in their places and new students are coming in daily.

Rev. H. W. Wallace, of Clifton, La., has just sent me five hundred dollars of endowment notes for Centenary, gotten by him. If all our preachers would do as well, we should soon be rapidly advancing on our second hundred thousand of endowment. Lovers of Christian education will sign our endowment notes when they have a fair opportunity. W. L. C. HUNNICUTT.

Endowment for Our Superannuates.

One of the marvels of the history of this country is that Methodism has existed so long and has made such a splendid record of work, and yet has done so little to insure a competent support for those who wear themselves out in making that splendid record. No other organization that we know of has made such a signal failure at such an important point. Other societies make special provision for the support of aged and infirm members, to which those members can look forward with some satisfaction when the days of work are over. Governments, though soulless, are humane enough to provide that when their employees are worn out in the service they shall be "retired" upon a certain salary, regulated, perhaps, by the time of service. It may not be large, but it is certain. The support of our superannuates is a variable quantity, being left almost entirely to the hap-hazard of a penny collection, and that collection sometimes so small that when divided among claimants it amounts to almost nothing.

There has been so much talk in the papers about the "proceeds of our Publishing House at Nashville" being reserved for the support of our Conference claimants, that many of our people are looking forward to the day when those "proceeds" will amount to a great deal in helping in this direction. We do not share in this expectation, and have no hope that much relief will ever come from this source. The business of the Publishing House, under wise management, may largely expand, but it will be found that the overplus arising from expansion will be needed to supply the very necessities which that expansion creates. If the church grows in the future as it has grown in the past, it will take all that the House makes to supply the growing necessities of our people in the matter of good literature. So we think it unwise to wait until the "proceeds of the House" are sufficient to help us out. We have waited long enough!

We have come to the conclusion that nothing of permanent value will be done until each Conference takes hold of the matter with serious earnestness, and works out the problem for itself. And it is high time to begin. We have borne the reproach of this delinquency long enough. That the men who wrought so faithfully in our ministry and the women who bore so uncomplainingly the deprivations of our itinerancy, and by their works and deprivations brought our church up to its present high position, that the support of these veterans in their declining days should be left entirely to the hazard of a collection taken once a year, is a shame and a disgrace which ought to stir every Methodist in the land to go to work to wipe it out!

A few words, now, to the Methodists of Louisiana! You have an opportunity to do something of permanent value towards a competent support for the worn-out preachers and the widows and orphans of your Conference, and we beseech you to act at once and in concert. By the will of the late Mrs. Emmeline Bynum the Conference has come in possession of an estate worth at least fifteen thousand dollars. It was bequeathed to the Conference for the benefit of its widows, orphans and superannuates. Everybody knows that the revenue arising from the investment of fifteen thousand dollars can not amount to a great deal. At the present value of money we would not be justified in expecting a larger income than one thousand dollars, and this would not go far in the distribution among the claimants. We have asked ourselves this question:

Why may not this fifteen thousand dollars be increased, year after year, by donations or otherwise, until a sum sufficient is raised that will yield a handsome competency to our Conference claimants? It looks to us that we have now a good foundation upon which, by care and prudence and persistence, we may build up an endowment fund for our superannuates and widows that will amount to something.

Let the preachers and laymen give this matter the attention which its importance demands, and let everybody go to thinking and talking about it. Give us your views through the Advocate, ventilate the subject freely, keep it in mind continually, and let us all go to Lake Charles determined to wipe out a life-long reproach by inaugurating a plan for the relief of our worn-out preachers and widows and orphans that will be our pride and the pride of our children for generations to come.

Our Olympic School.

Last week this city was the center of thought for thousands of people throughout this broad land. The railroads brought visitors by the train-load. From the North, East and West they came by hundreds. The streets were full of eager and, in some cases, excited multitudes. Though Summer-time, our town had somewhat the appearance of Mardi Gras. The occasion for the assembling of so many people was the "glove contests" that were on exhibition at the Olympic Club. Six trained champions of the "manly art" were to try their science in determining who could stand up under the other's slugging the longest time. For three nights in succession this "manly" business was prosecuted in the presence of thousands of anxious spectators. The newspapers kept the outsiders well posted in regard to the progress and result of each contest. In fact, the presidential canvass and the slow, sure, ominous, fearful advance of the cholera were entirely forgotten in the interest awakened by these six champions exhibiting their skill in the "manly art of self-defense." It is safe to say that thousands of dollars were lost and won by the result. Some have more money in their pockets, and others less, and the six heroes were mostly battered about the heads and bodies into a disgusting mass of human jelly.

Now, what has come to our city as the result of this exhibition at the Olympic? Has there been left one single principle, which, as a seed sown, will grow to fruit in the betterment of our people in any direction? Has there been any uplift of our degraded humanity into the regions of true manliness? Has this exhibition had an educational value on the line of true manhood? Has it given anyone a single aspiration to achieve something for the common good? Has it implanted in any breast a noble ambition to develop the high virtues that make up and adorn the best character? We do not believe a single thoughtful man in the town would give an affirmative answer to either of these questions. On the contrary, every such man will say that the result of these contests has been damaging to individual character, and the damage is specially great to our young people. This exhibition has wrought a serious injury to them in the fact that it has educated them downwards. When young people are educated in the direction of barbarism, and such education fostered and abetted by the press of the country, we may look for a steady decline in the development and practice of the nobler qualities of mind and heart! And anyone who reads the accounts of these "glove contests" in the daily papers can but see that they are nothing less than scenes of hideous barbarity. The physical training of men to enable them to stand the pummeling of men similarly trained amounts to zero when compared with the effect upon the character of those who are present when the object-lesson is given in the ring. It amounts to nothing, also, when compared with the injury wrought directly in the minds of those who read the debasing recital of the horrid details.

Another thing about these contests, which lies apparent and prominent all around them, is that they are the occasion for the deepest gambling. The whole atmosphere is impregnated with the gambling spirit, and men, who in ordinary circumstances look upon gambling as dishonorable and dishonest, find themselves drawn into the terrible vortex when they approach the prize ring. The education in this direction is obvious to the most casual observer. We know of nothing so subtle, so insinuating, so debasing to morals, so corrupting to general mental and spiritual health as the mania for gambling, and an education in this direction we regard as one of the direst calamities. There can be no real true manhood, no genuine integrity of character in the person enthralled by its fascinations. The prize ring is one of the most effective gambling schools in this country; and the more it is fostered by press and people the more widespread will be the havoc among our young people, and the more disastrous the effect upon the general good of the whole people.

Therefore, we think that these "glove contests," where the "manly art of self-defense" is exhibited, should be prohibited by the State. If the State, by its strong arm of law, does not protect its citizens from the inroads made upon character by such exhibitions, her very neglect to do so undermines all the foundations of good citizenship, and sends us back to the days of barbaric Rome.

To the Young Preachers of the Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences.

Dear Brethren: Authorized by Bishop Key, I have been trying by private, personal correspondence to find a missionary for Japan, but, so far, without success, the young brethren appealed to preferring easy positions at home—in the school-room or on light circuits—although they say they are willing to go if specially called of God. They seem to forget that the command, "Go ye into all the world!" has never been recalled, and no preacher has any right to set a limit on his field of labor or put a restriction on his commission. The call to preach is a call to the foreign work as well as to the home work—for "the field is the world."

Now, here is an open door! Who is ready to enter? The Macedonian cry from Japan has been often repeated. A friend has the money ready to send out a missionary and to support him for life. Who is willing to go? A young man, unmarried, who is a college graduate, whose mind has been disciplined by the study of foreign languages, who is not afraid of work and hardships, healthy, and has a clearly defined religious experience. Some experience in teaching will be an additional qualification. Dr. Walter R. Lambuth says that the great essentials are "grace, grit and gumption."

Address, giving references, T. L. MELLE, 1319 N. 22d Avenue, Meridian, Miss.

They were talking about "allowing the preacher" one thousand dollars, but at the "official meeting" they "allowed" him six hundred. When the times began to get a little hard, one of them said: "We would have been in it sure, if we had allowed him one thousand." We are pretty certain that the preacher was "in it" heels over head and had to flounder out as best he could.

The Cholera.

It can not now be doubted that this dreaded scourge has come to our shores. It seems to have made a sort of all-around attack. New York, Vera Cruz and San Francisco all are said to be threatened. It is reported on shipboard at all these places. It seems scarcely possible for our country to escape its visitation, when its presence is so imminent.

Though this is so, there should be no occasion for fear. Getting scared is the silliest thing that can be done, and it effectually hinders in the battle of defense against the enemy. Least of all should Christian people get frightened. If it does come, there will be abundant opportunity for our religion to exhibit its credentials. Cleanliness and prudence in personal habits and an implicit trust in the over-ruling providence of a good, heavenly Father, we take to be as good a preventive as the whole medical fraternity can devise.

NOTES FROM OUR JACKSON OFFICE.

Rev. R. S. Woodward, presiding elder of the Brookhaven district, Mississippi Conference, has been quite sick, and at this writing is still unable to be out on the district.

We spent last week with Bro. H. P. Lewis at Union Church, Scotland circuit, and renewed many boyhood acquaintances. Bros. B. W. Lewis, of Lebanon, and H. B. Vandenburg, of Mendville, were in attendance on the meeting and reported fine work done in their respective charges.

Kansas, with one thousand more inhabitants than the State of Texas, has no saloons, one penitentiary, with something less than one thousand convicts. Texas, with one thousand less inhabitants than Kansas, has saloons, two penitentiaries, and something over three thousand convicts.—Union Signal.

The agreement for the opening of the World's Fair on the Sabbath seems to be somewhat as follows: Workingmen can not visit the Fair and enjoy its educational advantages at the expense either of their own or of their employer's time; they must, therefore, be permitted to do so at the expense of God's law, God's Sabbath, and the Christian character of this nation. The years to come will show what a fearful expense this involves to the citizens of this Christian country.—United Presbyterian, in Lam's Horn.

In the year 1863 a train of many cars loaded with soldiers was passing through a tunnel in the Cumberland range of Tennessee. In the center of the rather long tunnel it was the blackness of darkness. "Isn't this dark?" said a soldier. "Never mind, boys," answered another, cheerily; "there's daylight ahead." The answer went to the heart of certainly one man who was in trouble. "Never mind; there's daylight ahead."

Christian, if you are in the darkness of trial, "there's daylight ahead." Be not faithless, but believing. The dark tunnel is the way to light and safety.—Selected.

In the Foreign Missionary Journal, published by the Southern Baptist Convention, after speaking of the slight financial embarrassment under which the Board is now laboring, the following remedy is suggested, which we commend to our readers at this time:

The best way in which you, reader, can help the cause is to do your best under the circumstances; your gift may not be large, it may be small; yet it will help bring about a better state of things. A number may be moved to do their best, and all these gifts coming together would relieve the trouble and help forward the work.

The above recalls a circumstance said to have occurred some years ago in a certain town in California. It was needful for various reasons that a canal be dug. The city fathers recognized this necessity, and met to consider the subject. After mature deliberation, they sagely resolved that the digging of the canal was a necessity, and that it must be dug; after which they adjourned. At their next meeting the same necessity confronted them, and again they passed their sage resolution. Thus they met, month after month, until more than a year had passed, when, at one of their meetings, a member who had taken but little active part in previous deliberations arose and offered the following resolutions, which were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the digging of this canal is a necessity.

Resolved, That this canal must be dug.

Resolved, That we lay off our coats, take up our shovels and dig the canal.

Everyone heartily entered into the work, and the canal was dug. There isn't a Southern Methodist who has not resolved repeatedly during the past twelve months that the debt of $18,000 ought, must be paid. Suppose now we resolve to lay aside our coats and pay the debt, and EVERY MAN AND WOMAN GIVE SOMETHING.

NOTES.

"Methodists at large" is the appellation a brother applies to those members who rove from church to church.

That was a curious "reliability" applied brought to view when he said one of his members, "He can be relied on to do as little as anybody else!"

A contemporary throws out this subject for discussion: How a pastor may get forty hours of work in a day of twenty-four hours!

Mr. Gladstone must be a voluminous writer. It is said that the titles of his writings fill twenty-two pages in the printed catalogue of the British Museum.

It sounds almost like sacrilege to read: "The Jerusalem and Jaffa road will soon be ready for travel. Outside of the Damascus Gate stands electric light, a telegraph pole throws its shadow upon Jacob's Well, and a steam mill puffs near the ancient well in Nazareth!"

Silas Ganderfoot, in one of his letters about church people, hits off certain class very cleverly. Speaking of "Marthy Wurke," he says: "She has a way of enjoying religion that keeps everybody in a hot sweat, kums ny her." You have seen "Marthy," haven't you?

Our Northern brethren ask the candidate for church membership the question: "Will you contribute of your earthly substance, according to your ability, to the support of the gospel, and the various benevolent enterprises of the church?" That is a good deal more explicit than the question we used to candidates. How anyone can around the plain obligation which imposes an answer to such a question is one of the inexplicable mysteries of iniquity!

This, from the Pittsburgh Advocate suits us:

We see a great many would be prudent paragraphs in the religious press. It is always safe to pause in the consideration of a short, sharp, sweeping item of two lines before it is accepted. A man can with ease compose a well-sounding sentence which will smack sweetly on the lips and deceive thousands of people into taking it as truth. Beware of the paragraphers. Solomon was the only one of the all whose items would bear close scrutiny.

We sometimes draw striking pictures without thinking what we are doing. For instance, what a picture Dr. H. draws in the last Nashville with the few strokes of his pencil: "Southern Methodism is now in the throes of a mighty effort to pay a debt of $175,000." Just let your imagination take in the mighty struggle; each one of us doing our mightiest to raise nine and a half cents! And we intend to raise it, "must a trace." Won't we be heroes. Shades of the mighty, how ye will be eclipsed!

The Olympic Club, of this city, gaining a world-wide reputation in the object-lessons it gives to thousands of our people. Such education has nothing in its favor. The eagerness displayed to see two men batter each other to blindness shows how popular the lessons are, and how prone many people are to seek those things which are degrading and debasing. Alas! human depravity! If left to itself, it rapidly descends to the brute. But what will be the final outcome of those who send it along in this direction with accelerated velocity?

Judging from this paragraph from the Alabama Advocate, we think—we don't know what to think. Another note in that paper has this:

We need above all things, and above all, a consecrated ministry. The fact is, there is too much of the old man and not enough of the new to the pupils of to-day. Too many men are expounders of God's Word who are exemplars of its spirit or letter. Indeed, they stand in the sacred desk and preach one thing, and go out upon the street and contradict it by living the opposite. We need men in our pulpits now who have religion enough to practice what they preach.

Pretty strong statement that! Why not "arrest" the characters of such preachers? They will ruin you if you don't!

We are very prone to compare the present condition of the church with its condition in the days of our fathers, and to draw the inference that there is not only no improvement, but an actual decline. Only a wise man can make such a comparison judiciously. Solomon said something on this subject which shows that this same thing was practiced in his day, and was not wisely practiced either. While there are many things that ought to be corrected, we do not believe, with some of our contemporaries, that the devil is running away with the church. We believe the church is just as good as it ever was, and a great deal better. There have been bad men and bad women in it from the beginning, and we suspect some will be in it "when the end comes," but we don't see that this authorizes a wholesale excommunication of the whole body and a publishing abroad the absurd statement that the ministry and the laity are on the gallop to the devil's dominions. We don't believe it.

PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE.

Bishop Hurst, of the M. E. Church, was married recently to Miss Ella Root.

Dr. Henry A. Buttz has been elected editor of the Methodist Review, in place of Dr. Mondenball, deceased.

John Greenleaf Whittier, the Quaker poet, of world-wide fame, died last week in the eighty-fifth year of his age.

Dr. Murrain, president of Millsaps College, gave us a short call last week. He anticipates a fine opening of his school on the twenty-ninth.

Our young friends, Joiner and Bell, gave us a pleasant call last week, en route to Jackson, La., to resume their studies in Centenary College.

Our old friend, Dr. Magruder, of Baton Rouge, gave us the pleasure of a friendly visit not many days ago. He is one of the few men who don't seem to grow old.

We are under obligations to Mrs. J. B. Stone for a copy of the Minutes of the thirtieth Annual Meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the North Mississippi Conference.

The women of Montana contribute the nail and the women of Nebraska contribute the hammer which Mrs. Palmer is to use in building the Woman's Building of the World's Fair.

Let every Louisiana reader be sure to read the editorial, "Endowment for Our Superannuates." We must all work together to make a success of it. Think and talk together about it, will you?

A word to the young preacher! Don't be too much of a "pleaser of other folks' brains." If you give yourself too much to that sort of thing, instead of sermons, you will simply "grind out" homiletic sausage.

The Free Methodist, London, says that two Methodists have accepted offices under Gladstone: H. H. Fowler, President of the Local Government Board, and W. A. McArthur, Junior Lord of the Treasury.

"Glideroy" writes: My pen slipped, or your type tripped, for I said, or intended to say, Rev. R. A. Burroughs had received four-fifths—not four-fifths, as you have it—of his salary on the Kosciusko district, North Mississippi Conference.

Some preachers are always bound to be ahead! The Water Valley (Miss.) Progress has this personal:

Rev. J. W. Price has presented the Progress with the first open ball of cotton this season. He brought it in Monday, the twenty-ninth.

Hubert D. Kneckerbocker was, last week, recommended by the Dryades Church, in this city, for admission into the traveling connection, and left on Thursday for Ventura, Cal., the seat of the Los Angeles Conference. He will cast in his lot with our Western brethren.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Los Angeles Conference has started a paper called The Olive Branch. It is a monthly devoted to woman's work for woman, edited by Mrs. Milton Wolfkill, assisted by Mrs. W. E. Vaughan. The price is twenty-five cents a year.

Bro. E. P. Mackie, of Oronochee Church, took a prominent part in the last meeting of the International Sunday-school Committee at Chautauqua. Bro. Mackie is fully committed to every branch of church work and gives his time and money freely to help on the Lord's cause.

The Salvation Army now has 11,000 officers; 86 training garrisons; 25 homes of rest; 205 social agencies at work. It occupies 38 countries and preaches the gospel in 24 languages. The annual circulation of newspapers and magazines is 47,000,000 copies; nearly a million per week.

Rev. D. A. Little, presiding elder of the Vicksburg district, preached a splendid sermon at Providence Church last Sunday. His text was taken from St. John III, 8.—Franklin Advocate.

Rev. J. B. Williams, pastor in charge, assisted by Revs. R. S. Collier, S. H. Whitley, L. F. Jackson and Wm. Schuble, began a protracted meeting at Benton on last Sunday, which will be continued during the week.—Bossier Banner, Sept. 1.

The Quarterly Conference for this district was held at Muddy Springs, Saturday, Rev. R. S. Woodward, P. E., presiding. Since then a protracted meeting has been going on, conducted by Pastor Boone, assisted by Bro. Miller, of China Grove, and Rev. M. L. Burton, of McComb. The preaching was very acceptable, and was accompanied with the Spirit's power. Eight accessions were made to the church.—Magnolia Gazette.

"A Secret."

In the article, "A Secret," in your last issue, I notice quite a mistake. I wrote hurriedly: "Four of our most prominent brethren; most of them ex-presiding elders or D. D.'s." It should have been: "And then they were not all in this district; indeed, one of the most prominent of them not in this Conference." Yours,

Sept. 10, 1892.

HUMBLE S.

For Malaria, Liver Trouble, or Indigestion, use BROWN'S IRON BITTERS

Notice.

To the Members of the Mississippi Conference Brotherhood—

Dear Brethren: Assessment No. 15, called through the Advocate of Sept. 8, and by postal card; is hereby, under the Constitution of the Brotherhood, revoked. Information just received from the treasurer, Rev. I. W. Cooper, necessitates this revocation.

B. F. JONES,

Sec'y Conf. Brotherhood.

Port Gibson, Miss., Sept. 10, 1892.

BRODIE'S
CONSTIPATION
SICK HEADACHE INDIGESTION BILIOUSNESS
LIVER PILLS.

FOR

Biliousness, Dyspepsia,

SICK HEADACHE, WEAK STOMACH,

—AND ALL—

Disorders of The Liver.

TESTIMONY.

I have used Brodie's Pills for many years in my family and have found them invaluable in all cases, and as a Liver Pill do not think they have an equal.

Wm. H. WILEY.

Sold By All Druggists.

Price, 25c. a Box.

I. L. LYONS & CO., Prop's,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Whitworth Female College

AND

Conservatory of Music and Art,
BROOKHAVEN, MISS.

The 32nd Annual Session will begin
September 14, 1892.

This is one of the oldest, most prosperous and best Female Colleges in the South.

ADVANTAGES:

LITERARY DEPARTMENT.—Every Chair in this department is filled by the very best teaching talent money will command. The work done, therefore, is thorough. A diploma from this college means a successful start.

MUSIC DEPARTMENT.—Our Conservatory established five years ago, has been a great success. Employing only graduates of the best Conservatories in Europe and America as teachers, we offer the very finest advantages to those who wish to prepare themselves as teachers of music. The President is constantly receiving applications for teachers who have taken our course.

ART DEPARTMENT.—This Department is presided over by a graduate of one of the best schools of Design in this country. Our studio is a large, well-lighted and well-ventilated room. It is supplied with the latest and best models.

DEPARTMENT OF ELOCUTION AND PHYSICAL CULTURE.—This is in charge of a graduate of the Boston School of Oratory.

BOARDING DEPARTMENT.—Is under the immediate control of the President's wife, assisted by an excellent housekeeper. The table is supplied with the best the market affords. We have also a most refined cultivated Christian lady as matron. Her only duty is to look after the physical comfort and well-being of the girls. The College, thus equipped, offers the young ladies of this and contiguous States the very best advantages that can be had. For further information and catalogue address,

L. T. FITZHUGH, A. M., President.

BELMONT COLLEGE

Nashville, Tenn.

Regent, REV. R. A. YOUNG, D. D.
Principals: Miss Hood, Miss Hixon.

Object, to train girls by strengthening and developing the threefold nature. Exceptional advantages, influences, and environments.

Situated on a beautiful height overlooking the city. Health record unsurpassed. Steam heat, gas, hot and cold water. Handsome Recreation Hall, large verandas, almost every room opening on a balcony. Magnificent park with conservatories, pavilions, statuary, walks and drives, bowling alley, gymnasium and laboratory. Handsome new building on the north front, giving increased facilities and ample and elegant accommodations.

English Education Thorough, Solid, and Practical.

Teachers from Wesley College, Vanderbilt University, and Harvard Annex; also teachers of long and successful experience in the South. French and German in charge of native teachers. Music according to principles of famed European conservatories; teachers educated abroad. Art on plan of best schools of Design. Strictly non-sectarian. Students attending church at parents' choice.

See Belmont, or send to Miss Hixon for illustrated blue and bronze catalogue.

CENTENARY COLLEGE
JACKSON, LA.
OF LOUISIANA

CENTENARY COLLEGE, Jackson, La.

Jackson, La., is near Natchez, on the Valley R. R., 113 miles north of New Orleans. The location is beautiful and healthful, the buildings are elegant and ample, and the Faculty is complete and able. The sale of intoxicating drinks is forbidden by law within five miles of the College. Its endowment fund is being rapidly increased, and the College has entered upon a new era of prosperity.

Special attention will be given to the health, morals and biblical instruction of the students.

For terms, Catalogue, or other information apply to Prof. G. H. Wiley, Jackson, La., or to

W. L. C. HUNNICUTT, PRESIDENT.

Millsaps College,

Jackson, Miss.

Session Begins Sept. 29th, 1892.

Full Faculty, Thorough Course,
GOOD ENDOWMENT.

New and Commodious Buildings.

Beautiful, Central and Healthful Location at the Capital of the State.

Cheap Board. No Tuition. Moderate Matriculation Fee.

Liberal provision made for young preachers and sons of preachers.

For terms, catalogue or other information apply to

Rev. W. B. MURRAH, D. D., President,

or Rev. A. F. WATKINS, Agent, Jackson, Miss.

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY, Pres't of Board of Trustees.

Grenada Collegiate Institute

Is Devoted to the Education of Girls and Young Ladies.

Fall Term Opens Sept. 6th, 1892.

The Institute affords the very best advantages for culture in Music, vocal and instrumental, in Art, Drawing and Painting, and in all the branches of collegiate study, including French, German and Latin. The teachers are experienced and competent. The Boarding Department is homelike and comfortable. The health is fine. The expenses are moderate.

For Catalogue address: Rev. THOS. J. NEWELL, A. M., Pres., Grenada, Miss.

WAYNESBORO COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

WAYNESBORO, MISS.

W. W. MOORE, A. M., President.

(Southern University.)

Miss CLARA BLOCK, A. M., Primary.

(E. M. F. C. and Peabody Normal.)

LEXX POWE, Vice-President.

(Southern University.)

Miss LUCY ANDREWS, Music.

(New England Conservatory.)

J. C. AUST, Telegraphy, etc.

Our course of study embraces the Classics and English, also Telegraphy, Music, shorthand, Bookkeeping and Printing. An unlimited number of boys and girls may secure board on the cheapest plan ever known to any Southern school. Board and tuition need not exceed ten dollars per month.

Write for catalogue. Next session opens Sept. 12, 1892. Write to

Rev. W. W. MOORE, A. M., President.

Wall & Mooney's School,

Franklin, Tenn.

S. V. WALL, W. D. MOONEY, A. M.

The Next Term Will Begin August 30, 1892.

Under date of May 17, 1892, W. M. Baskerville, Ph. D., Professor of English in Vanderbilt University, says: "I can unhesitatingly endorse it in every particular. Manualness is the watchword, and the young fellows who come to this University from Wall & Mooney's School are mainly at play, mainly at work, mainly in Christian life. It gives me genuine pleasure to endorse such a school." On May 23, 1892, Chas. Foster Smith, Professor of Greek in Vanderbilt, says: "It is one of the greatest and best academies in the Southwest. It sent twelve boys to the present Freshman class of Vanderbilt, and a finer, better trained group of many fellows it has not been my privilege to teach. I can heartily and unreservedly commend the instruction and discipline of the school."

Rev. E. E. Hoss, D. D., Editor of Christian Advocate, says: "I regard Wall & Mooney's School as one of the very best training schools for boys in the Southern States."

Our boys enter Vanderbilt on our certificate. Address: W. D. MOONEY, Secretary.

EIGHTH YEAR:

—MUSICAL ART.—

(INCORPORATED.)

PILCHER'S
STUDIO OF MUSIC,
and SCHOOL OF LANGUAGES.

(Established 1855.)

169 St. Charles Street. Next to Washington Artillery Hall.

Ample accommodations for Boarding Students. The Boarding Department is under the direct supervision of Mrs. Wm. Pilcher, Sr.

Music Taught in All Its Branches. Twenty-five teachers in the various departments. Graduates and other pupils who have attended this Institution are now occupying positions of more or less prominence throughout the country. Send for Seventh Annual Catalogue.

WILLIAM H. PILCHER, President, New Orleans, La.

LOVELY WINTER FLOWERS

For only 30 cents we will send by mail, postpaid, the following elegant Bulbs which may be potted as once for winter blooming in your window or parlor, or for early Spring blooming.

- 1 Bulb Bismarck Flower Lily, the grandest winter flower, enormous white, sweet-scented blossoms.
- 1 Bulb Persian Lily, the grandest winter flower, enormous white, sweet-scented blossoms.
- 1 Bulb Persian Lily, the grandest winter flower, enormous white, sweet-scented blossoms.
- 1 Bulb Persian Lily, the grandest winter flower, enormous white, sweet-scented blossoms.
- 1 Bulb Persian Lily, the grandest winter flower, enormous white, sweet-scented blossoms.
- 1 Bulb Persian Lily, the grandest winter flower, enormous white, sweet-scented blossoms.
- 1 Bulb Persian Lily, the grandest winter flower, enormous white, sweet-scented blossoms.
- 1 Bulb Persian Lily, the grandest winter flower, enormous white, sweet-scented blossoms.
- 1 Bulb Persian Lily, the grandest winter flower, enormous white, sweet-scented blossoms.
- 1 Bulb Persian Lily, the grandest winter flower, enormous white, sweet-scented blossoms.

Also one Superb Collection of Bulbs and Plants for Fall planting and Winter blooming, and a sample copy of THE NEW FALL CATALOGUE for 1892. All the above for only 30 cents, postpaid. These 10 cents will be credited to your account for the next order. We send them for 30 cents only to introduce them. The next year's order to be sent with you and we will send of these collections for 10 cents. Directions for culture sent with each lot.

ALSO THE FOLLOWING SPECIAL OFFERS BY MAIL POSTPAID.

- | | | | |
|--------------------------------------|------|--|------|
| 12 Mixed Tulips, double and single | 50c | 6 Giant Hermodas Frezias, fitted | 150c |
| 12 Mixed Tulips, single | 50c | 6 Grand Lilies, including Anemone | 150c |
| 6 Mixed Hyacinths, double and single | 50c | 5 Fine named Croci, different sorts | 50c |
| 6 Double Hyacinths, fitted, elegant | 50c | 5 New Perpetual Blooming Plants, for winter blooming | 50c |
| 25 Fine Mixed Croci, all colors | 250c | 5 Lovely Everblooming Roses, fitted | 50c |

OUR FALL CATALOGUE for 1892. A superb work of Art, beautifully illustrated with colored plates, will be sent to any one on receipt of 5 cents. We offer the best collection of Hyacinths, Tulips, Croci, Narcissus, Lilies, Frezias, etc., and a sample copy of THE NEW FALL CATALOGUE for 1892. All the above for only 30 cents, postpaid. These 10 cents will be credited to your account for the next order. We send them for 30 cents only to introduce them. The next year's order to be sent with you and we will send of these collections for 10 cents. Directions for culture sent with each lot.

JOHN LEWIS CHILDS, Floral Park, N. Y.

SEELEY'S HARD-RUBBER TRUSSES
Beware of Imitations.
L. B. SEELEY & CO.
WARRANTED.
Hernia or Rupture a Specialty. Entire in person or by mail.
25 Years Experience.—Prof. S. D. Gross, D. D., Surgeon, Baltimore, Md., writes: "I have used Seeley's Trusses for many years, and they are the best I have ever used. They are comfortable, and they support the organs without any pressure. They are also very durable, and they are easy to wear. I can heartily recommend them to all who are afflicted with hernia or rupture."—Seeley's Trusses, 111 N. 3rd St., Philadelphia, Pa.

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE, MAcon, GA.

Annual session begins Sept. 21, 1892.
Largest patronage in State. Apply for catalogue to W. C. BASS, D. D., Pres.

SOUTHERN FEMALE COLLEGE, PETERSBURG, VA.

Literature, Language, Science. Conservatory advantages in Music and Art. All modern improvements. 8th Session. Terms low. Send for catalogue to A. K. DAVIS, A. M., President, Petersburg, Va.

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL, PETERSBURG, VA.

The 28th Annual Session of this School for boys begins 2nd of October, (1st Monday). Thorough preparation for University of Va., U. S. Military and Naval Academies, leading Engineering Schools and Colleges. For catalogue, address W. GORDON MCCABE, Head Master.

KESWICK ALBEMARLE CO. VA. SCHOOL.

Is when in the country, near City of Va., beautiful and healthy. Christian and refined social influence. Boys prepared for University, U. S. Military and Naval Academies or business. Special attention to back ward young men. Number of pupils as limited each year. Individually for the year and for the term. Address: J. M. PAGE, M. A., Ph. D., Sec. Principal, or T. W. PAGE, A. M., Jan. Principal, OCHAM.

185 Canal St. New Orleans, La.

Is Selling PIANOS and ORGANS
Great Reductions.

Write for Catalogues and get our prices and terms.

L. GRUNEWALD CO., Ltd.

LOW PRICES! TIME PAYMENTS!

STEINWAY, KNABE, SOHMER, PLEYEL,
CHICKERING, BEHR, FISCHER, MEHLIN, BEHR, SHONINGER,
OPERA.

OLD PIANOS TAKEN IN EXCHANGE.

PIANOS AND ORGANS!

127 Canal St., 14 to 20 Baronne St., NEW ORLEANS.

Write for terms and further particulars.

For a Good Reliable Watch,

Tasty Solid Gold Jewelry—none other kept in stock—Beautiful Diamonds and other Precious Stones. Handsomely designed Solid Silver and Silver-Plated Ware, and all other Articles pertaining to a First-Class Jewelry Store, call at

FRANTZ & OPITZ.

Practical Watchmakers and Jewelers,
No. 53 ROYAL ST., CORNER BENVILLE - NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Designs and estimates of Medals, Badges and Emblems in Silver and Gold for SCHOOLS, ACADEMIES, SEMINARIES, UNIVERSITIES, SOCIETIES, etc., will be furnished and executed in all desired styles and artistic workmanship at short notice, at most reasonable prices. Clocks, Watches and Jewelry repaired. All articles of Jewelry made to order. Diamonds reset in every style.

"ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE."

In order to introduce our ELEGANT and ARTISTIC CRAYON PORTRAITS to yourself and your friends, we have put out our best work for the purpose. If you will send a photograph of yourself, or any member of your family, we will make from it one of our finest three-quarter length portraits.

CRAYON PORTRAITS FREE OF CHARGE.

Our name and reputation as artists are already well known throughout the United States and we have no need to say more for ourselves. We believe that one of our elegant portraits placed in your home will be as much appreciated as any other. Send the photograph you desire to be made in under THIRTY DAYS. The portrait will be made for you by a famous artist and will be sent to you by express, free of charge. We will also send you a copy of our new and beautiful CRAYON PORTRAIT BOOK, which will be sent to you by express, free of charge. We will also send you a copy of our new and beautiful CRAYON PORTRAIT BOOK, which will be sent to you by express, free of charge. We will also send you a copy of our new and beautiful CRAYON PORTRAIT BOOK, which will be sent to you by express, free of charge.

COPIES OF 753 and 755 DeKalb Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

NOTICE.—Cut this out and return it to us with the Photograph you desire copied.

MARRIAGES.

ROBINSON-ANDRUS.-Near Mayne, Aug. 25, 1892, by Rev. R. M. Blocker, Mr. Early Robinson to Miss Jane Andrus, all of Acadia parish, La.

LENN-MINOR.-In the Episcopal Church, Bolivar, Ala., Wednesday evening, Aug. 24, 1892, by Rev. A. F. Watkins, Rev. J. V. Penn, of the Mississippi Conference, and Miss Caro. B. Minor, of Bolivar.

OBITUARIES.

We publish obituaries of 200 words free of charge for all over this, one cent per word must be sent. If you want the notice to appear in its order, comply with this rule. Count the words, and send one cent for each word over 200.

FLOWERS.-Sister ELIZABETH ANN FLOWERS, daughter of Thomas and Maria Haynam, was born in Cleveland, Ohio, May, 1855, and when four or five years of age removed with her parents to Bayou Sara, La., where in 1882 she was happily joined in marriage to Rev. R. F. Flowers, of Crystal Springs, Miss., who was then a member of the Mississippi Conference, and pastor at Bayou Sara, La. In May, 1885, her husband died. Since then she has lived and engaged in teaching in Crystal Springs till last year. Since then she has taught in Bayou Sara.

In the month of July, 1892, she made a short visit to her friends in Crystal Springs, and thence went to Monticello, where after a brief spell of sickness, she closed her eyes to the mortal world, Aug. 27, 1892.

This is a mere outline of a pure and beautiful life, beautiful in its purity and simplicity, dedicated to God in infancy, nurtured in the lap of piety, she literally grew up a Christian. She never knew when she did not love the Lord.

We have said her life was beautiful; beautiful in her quiet, modest, yet fervent devotion to her friends and to duty. She had a kind word for all, an unkind word for none. She ever sympathized with the erring, the unfortunate. She was kind to all with whom she came in contact. If she had an enemy, this writer has not so learned. She was beautiful in the home relation; devoted to father, brother, sisters. She had the painful misfortune to lose her mother by death in 1878. But, perhaps, her life shone most beautifully in the school-room and the Sunday-school, where the little ones whom she loved, and who loved her, gathered around her. She loved children, and children loved her. She has left an impress for good on the young of every community where she has lived, but especially in Crystal Springs will she be remembered and loved by all.

A large concourse of people assembled in the Methodist Church in Crystal Springs to pay the last sad tribute to her memory, whom they loved. At about five p. m., Aug. 29, 1892, in Hennington Cemetery, two and a half miles from Crystal Springs, she was laid to sleep beside her husband's dust, to await the resurrection morn.

May God comfort the sad hearts of father, brother, sisters and all who mourn for her! Dear friends, she is not lost, only gone before. Let us meet her in that better land, where no sickness, pain or death is, or ever comes.

R. D. NORSEWORTHY.

FORD.-Sister LOUISA LINDELL FORD was born in Middleton, S. C., September, 1820; was married to Mr. B. T. Ford, in Monroe county, Miss., Dec. 23, 1856, and died at the home of her son-in-law, Rev. R. A. Burroughs, in Durant, Miss., April 29, 1892.

She professed religion in early life, and remained a faithful Christian till her death. She was brought up in the Presbyterian faith and first joined that church. Not having a church of her own faith in her neighborhood, she united with the M. E. Church, South. Her life was a living example of the power and beauty of the Christian religion over human weakness and infirmities. Her home was the resting place for the weary itinerant, often keeping her pastor year after year without charge. Her home was the resort for those attending church on preaching days, and for those seeking relief. She was successful in leading her husband, as well as her children and neighbors, to Christ.

She has one daughter in the itinerancy, Mrs. R. A. Burroughs. She was emphatically a woman of prayer. She had her time and place for prayer, often praying in secret for hours at a time. Her faith, or implicit confidence, in God and his Word was very remarkable. She could tell of the wonderful dealings of God with her soul and namable answers to prayer. She appeared to live in heaven, and in almost constant communion with God. It was a benediction to anyone to associate with her, religiously. Her death was quiet and peaceful; she passed away as one going to sleep.

J. F. EVANS.

WILLIAMS.-Died in Algiers, La., Aug. 21, 1892, Mr. JAMES BRADFORD WILLIAMS. Mr. Williams was born in Plaquemine parish, Dec. 25, 1837. He was married to Miss Mary A. Allen, in New Orleans, by Rev. T. J. Henderson, July 6, 1855. Eight children were born of this marriage—five daughters and three sons—of whom four daughters and two sons remain with the wife and widow of Mr. Williams to mourn their loss.

Mr. Williams was for many years clerk of the Bar Pilots' Association, at the mouth of the Mississippi, and was, therefore, hindered from attending church; but when Rev. J. F. Scudder opened up the work on Lower Coast, Mr. Williams' home was one of his stopping-places. About this time he was afflicted with elow paralysis, which finally caused his death. He was a very patient sufferer, and the last year was spent in preparation for the change which he knew was coming. He delighted in hearing the Scriptures read and in hearing hymns sung. Shortly before his death he partook of the sacrament.

May the Holy Spirit sanctify this dispensation of God's providence to the good of the entire household!

U. S. JONES.

OBRYANT.-Mrs. M. E. O'BRYANT, daughter of A. P. and E. B. Houston, was born in North Carolina, March 4, 1840; removed with her parents at five years of age to Pinola county, Miss., where she made her home the rest of her life. In young womanhood she was married to John W. O'Bryant. Six children blessed this union, several of whom, with their father, preceded our sister to the heavenly home.

At about twelve years of age the deceased professed religion and joined the Methodist Church, and over afterwards, under the strong Methodist influence of the home, lived a consistent, faithful Christian life. This gentle, quiet, tender-hearted, unassuming Christian woman, so faithful in every relation of life, with a "good name," which is better than great riches, went quietly to sleep in Jesus, Aug. 12, 1892, while an aged father, one brother, one sister, one daughter and countless friends were left to mourn her departure.

Loving hands laid the body to rest in the Chapelton Cemetery, there to await the resurrection of the just.

THOS. CAMERON.

Arkansas Methodist please copy.

REGAN-ALICE FARAA was born near Franklin, La., Oct. 20, 1827. She was converted to God while young, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church. She was married to J. A. Regan, Jan. 5, 1843. To them were born five daughters and two sons. She died at her daughter's home in Natchez, July 22, 1892. She leaves her husband, one son, two daughters, six grandchildren and one great-grandchild to lament her absence.

In all the relationships of life she bore the fruit of the Spirit. Her husband bears witness that she was for nearly fifty years a devoted and faithful wife, and her surviving children rise up to call her blessed. There was an unselfish life. She bore toil, and even suffering, gladly, if thereby she might minister to others. The mind that was in Christ was in her also. She abounded in acts of thoughtful sympathy and genuine kindness. She was a good neighbor, a true friend. Her character needs no touting down to adapt it to the ordinary point of view. The writer esteems it a privilege to testify to her worthy life and her peaceful death.

Wm. RICE SIMS.

VAUGHN-Masculine tribute in memory of our beloved brother, H. L. VAUGHN: born March 11, 1856; died April 4, 1892.

Again Stonewall Jackson Lodge No. 332 is called upon to record the death of another worthy and much-beloved brother. While the fraternal link has been broken, our loss is Heaven's gain, and joined with other brothers who have gone before, Bro. Vaughn was one of the purest men we ever knew. He was a man of sterling worth, true in all relations of life; his piety was fervent and deep, his energy great; a man of strong convictions—a man who must be known to be appreciated. He always seemed desirous, even determined, to strive for the right, do good, and get to heaven at last.

Resolved, That, whereas it has pleased the Grand Master of the universe to remove from our midst our brother, H. L. Vaughn, we humbly bow submissively to his divine will.

Resolved, That this lodge do greatly sympathize with the grief-stricken family in the loss of their provider and protector. We pray that our heavenly Father be with them in the sad moments of their bereavement and sadness of heart, and remember them at the throne of grace.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate and the Panolan for publication, a copy sent to the family of the deceased, and a copy be filed in the lodge.

C. D. WELLS, For Committee.

WOOD-Tribute of respect, Zion Sabbath-school, Jackson county, Miss., Aug. 28, 1892:

Whereas, it has pleased God, in his wisdom, to remove our beloved pastor—one whom we regarded with highest esteem, as a man, a Christian and a pastor—who by action evinced always the Christian's love next to his heart, who by his courtesy and kindness commanded our respect and affection; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we do ever keep in affectionate remembrance the memory of our deceased pastor, treasuring his many virtues as a devoted pastor and as a sincere Christian gentleman.

Resolved, That in the death of Bro. L. W. Wood this Sabbath-school has lost a true friend, one whose life was a shining example of fidelity to principle, devoted to charity, and adherence to brotherly love.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread on the Minutes of this Sabbath-school, and a copy sent to his bereaved widow, and that they be printed in the Christian Advocate.

H. W. LESTER, for Committee.

GOZA-Resolutions on the death of Mrs. A. C. GOZA:

It has pleased our heavenly Father, in his infinite wisdom, to call from the sorrow and suffering of earth our sister and co-worker in the church and Sunday-school, Mrs. A. C. Goza. She was a faithful teacher of the infant class for many years before her death.

Resolved, By the Supt. (Miss) Sunday-school, that in the death of Sister Goza, our church, Sunday-school and community have lost one of their most faithful members.

Resolved, That we tender our sympathies to the bereaved relatives, and that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE for publication.

Mrs. D. E. McKAY, for Committee.

ZEBAL-Resolved, That as our dear friend, OSCAR A. ZEBAL, has been suddenly called from this earth, and left a void in his home and Sunday-school which can never be filled, we, the members of the Louisiana Avenue Sunday-school, do tender our heartfelt sympathy to his loved ones. During his connection with the Sunday-school he has proved himself intelligent, studious, and an earnest worker in "the vineyard of the Lord," and endeared himself to his teacher and fellow class-mates by his bright and amiable ways.

Resolved, That a copy be sent to the parents, and be recorded in the Minute book, and published in the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

Timothy Davis, postmaster at Pattersonville, La., says: "Some years ago, while living in Algiers, I contracted a cough that everyone thought would cause my death. I was unable to sleep, had night-sweats, and soon became too weak to work. I had several doctors and tried many remedies, but with no improvement. An old friend hearing of my condition recommended Dr. Davis' Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Tar. I had great confidence in Davis' Wild Cherry and Tar. Before three bottles had been taken it was up and about, a well man. It saved my life. I always recommend it for consumption, asthma, bronchitis, any lung or throat trouble." One dollar bottles hold two and a half times as much as a 50c. bottle.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO THOSE SENDING MONEY.—Remittances should be made only by money orders, express company orders, registered letters, drafts or checks on New Orleans banks or merchants. Drafts on country banks occasion a loss of from 15 to 25 cents per check. Drafts on country merchants we have no facility for collecting. Checks and drafts, also money orders, should be made payable to D. L. Mitchell, Publisher.

ACME BLACKING is cheaper at 20 cents a bottle than any other Dressing at 5 cents.

A LITTLE GOES A LONG WAY because shoes once blackened with it can be kept clean by washing them with water. People in moderate circumstances find it profitable to buy it at 20c. a bottle, because what they spend for blacking they save in shoe leather.

It is the cheapest blacking considering its quality, and yet we want to sell it cheaper if it can be done. We will pay

$10,000 Reward for a recipe that will enable us to make Wolff's ACME BLACKING at such a price that a retailer can profitably sell it at 10c. a bottle. This offer is open until Jan. 1st, 1893.

WOLFF & RANDOLPH, Philadelphia.

Old furniture painted with

PIK-RON

(this is the name of the paint), looks like stained and varnished new furniture. One coat will do it. A child can apply it. You can change a pine to a walnut, or a cherry to mahogany; there is no limit to your fancies. All retailers sell it.

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT, CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

There were three crows sat on a tree, As black as any crows could be. "Alas!" said one, "would I were white Instead of being black as night." "Such foolish wishing," said his friend, "In disappointment often ends; But now, forsooth, to make you white, Will be an easy matter, quite. We'll wash you well with some GOLD DUST, And, when you're white, we fondly trust That while you wonder at the feat, Your happiness will be complete."

Behold him now as white as snow! Wonder of wonders! with the crow, "If GOLD DUST POWDER makes black white, 'Twill surely all the world delight; And mistress, mother, nurse and maid Will find themselves hereafter well paid In using this great help for all, The household's needs—both great and small; For dishes, kettles, pots and pans, For paint, and floors, and milkmen's cans— It surely will great comfort bring, And clean each dirty place or thing; For what will make a black crow white, Will make whatever is dingy bright."

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR The Celebrated CHOCOLAT MENIER Annual Sales Exceed 33 MILLION Lbs. Write for Samples. Sent Free. Menier, Union Sq., N. Y.

HARDWOOD AND MARBLE SLATE MANTELS. TILE HEARTHES. GRATES AND FIRE-PLACE TRIMMINGS.

GEO. M. LEAHY, Advocate Building, - No. 112 Camp St., New Orleans.

WE THE JURY

PAULSON W. C. SHEPARD & SON, 84 CAMP ST., near POYDRAS. The Cheapest Crockery, Glass and House-furnish ing House in the City. Be sure and look them up when needing goods in their line. 500 Dinner, Tea and Chamber Sets at half price.

For First-Class Photographs GO TO SIMON'S, No. 183 Canal St., - - - New Orleans, La.

H. Dudley Coleman Machinery Co., Lim'd, New Orleans, La. STEAM ENGINES, BOILERS, MILLS AND MACHINERY, Pumps, Pipe, Presses, Pulleys, Shafting, Saw, Sugar and Corn Mills, Cotton Gins, Feeders and Condensers.

Examine Our Stock. Our Prices Are Very Low. FOUNDRY, FACTORY & OFFICE, SUPPLIES & SAMPLE STORE Cor. Magnolia and Erato Sts. 9 Perdido St. New Orleans, La.

If readers of this advertisement who wish to purchase goods in our line would mention this paper when writing for information or when ordering goods from us, we could then determine whether the money we pay for advertising in this paper is well invested or not.

H. DUDLEY COLEMAN MACHINERY CO., LIMITED, New Orleans, La.

Latest Styles -- Lowest Prices!

This handsome Parlor Suit is upholstered on solid walnut frames with Imported Marbleized Silk Plush and the seats are all Spring Edge. Colors are Red, Red and Old Gold, Blue and Old Gold or each piece of a different color. For $45 I will sell seven pieces of this suit—one Sofa, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair and three Reception Chairs. $65 buys the complete suit of ten pieces consisting of two Sofas, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair, and five Reception Chairs. Same suit covered with Hair Cloth, seven pieces $35 or ten pieces $55. Every other article in my store at proportionately low prices. Bedroom suits, twelve pieces, from $40 up to $1000 Dining room suits, eight pieces, from $17 upwards. Complete Kitchen outfits from $20 upwards. Quality at top—prices at bottom. I have an immense variety of strictly reliable goods and purchasers can depend upon getting the very latest styles. Everything guaranteed to be exactly as represented or money will be promptly refunded.

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT, CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

WOLFF & RANDOLPH, Philadelphia.

OLD FURNITURE PAINTED WITH PIK-RON

(this is the name of the paint), looks like stained and varnished new furniture. One coat will do it. A child can apply it. You can change a pine to a walnut, or a cherry to mahogany; there is no limit to your fancies. All retailers sell it.

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT, CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

WOLFF & RANDOLPH, Philadelphia.

OLD FURNITURE PAINTED WITH PIK-RON

(this is the name of the paint), looks like stained and varnished new furniture. One coat will do it. A child can apply it. You can change a pine to a walnut, or a cherry to mahogany; there is no limit to your fancies. All retailers sell it.

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT, CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

WOLFF & RANDOLPH, Philadelphia.

OLD FURNITURE PAINTED WITH PIK-RON

(this is the name of the paint), looks like stained and varnished new furniture. One coat will do it. A child can apply it. You can change a pine to a walnut, or a cherry to mahogany; there is no limit to your fancies. All retailers sell it.

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT, CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE in New Orleans, 28 CAMP STREET 30

WOLFF & RANDOLPH, Philadelphia.

OLD FURNITURE PAINTED WITH PIK-RON

(this is the name of the paint), looks like stained and varnished new furniture. One coat will do it. A child can apply it. You can change a pine to a walnut, or a cherry to mahogany; there is no limit to your fancies. All retailers sell it.

Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company.

Losses Paid by Chicago Fire, 1871, $3,239,091. Losses Paid by Boston Fire, 1872, $1,429,720.

All Losses Paid in Cash, without Discount, as Soon as Adjusted. Losses and all matters of business settled by officers and directors in New Orleans without reference to any other office, the same as with local companies.

DIRECTORS IN NEW ORLEANS. GUSTAF R. WESTFELDT, L. O. FALLON, LUCAS E. MOORE, O. M. SORIA, Chairman.

CLARENCE F. LOW, Asst. Resident Sec'y. H. V. OGDEN, Resident Secretary.

The Southern Insurance Company OF NEW ORLEANS.

54 - - - CAMP STREET - - - 54

Paid up Capital, $300,000. Assets, $545,096.10.

FIRE, RIVER AND MARINE INSURANCE. This company by its conservative, yet liberal, business methods, and the immediate availability of its assets, affords complete security to its assured. Losses promptly adjusted and paid.

ERNEST MILTENBERGER, President. H. GALLY, Vice-President. SCOTT McKEHEE, Secretary. FINANCE COMMITTEE: Frank Roder, J. H. Menze, Joseph Schwartz, F. G. East, T. J. Woodward.

Home Insurance Co., of New Orleans.

No. 78 CAMP STREET.

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1886, $400,479.08. CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1887, $413,860.76. CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1888, $459,369.50. CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1889, $510,584.54. CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1890, $551,897.82. CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1891, $600,414.81.

Steadily Increasing in Strength and Popularity. Sollicits Fire and River Business.

Liberal Settlements and Prompt Payments.

Thos. Sefton, Pres't. Capt. J. B. Woods, Vice-Pres't. Jno. G. Byrd, Sec'y. J. E. WOODS, JNO. J. BARR, J. B. LEVERT, W. B. BLOOMFIELD, JNO. BAYLE, ANDREW STEWART, E. BORLAND, W. T. HARDIE, JNO. BARKLEY, CHAS. CHAFFE, P. R. RICE, THOS. SEFTON.

W. E. LYMAN, President. JOSEPH BOWLING, Vice-President. CHAS. E. RICE, Secretary.

Crescent Insurance Com'y.

Incorporated as a Mutual Company in 1849. Reorganized as a Stock Company in 1866.

Cash Capital, $300,000. Has paid over TEN AND ONE-HALF MILLIONS for losses since 1849. ANNUAL and TERM POLICIES issued on Desirable Fire Business.

See our Agents throughout Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas.

Watches, Diamonds, FINE JEWELRY, Silver and Silver-Plated Ware, SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES. Send for Catalogue.

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO., (Established 1817) 119 CANAL ST., New Orleans, La.

THIRTY CENTS WILL get you TWO good papers, THE WAY OF FAITH (weekly), THE SOLOIST (monthly), for THREE MONTHS, 3 sweet songs, and our Liberal Terms to Agents. Address GUNDEL, MISSION, Columbia, S. C. Mention this paper.

"Sanctification," BY DR. B. CARADINE, Is having a wonderful sale and doing a large amount of good.

Price: Paper, 40 cents; cloth, 80 cents. For sale by F. D. VAN VALKENBURGH, 106 Camp St., New Orleans.

Base Ball Goods, Croquet, Fishing Tackle, Seines, Twines. Refrigerators, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Baskets, Hammocks, Lamps, Lanterns. Fruit Jars, Corks, Bottles, Flasks, Hardware, Tinware, Stationery, Wrapping Paper and Bags.

FULL LINE OF Wooden and Willowware, Brushes, etc.

J. C. MORRIS CO., Limited. 40, 42 and 44 Tchoupitoulas Street. E. F. DYER, Pres. E. P. MACKEY, Treas.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

W. W. CARRE, LUMBER MERCHANT AND MANUFACTURER OF PLANTATION CABINS, STOKES, Etc. Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave., NEW ORLEANS.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

Conference	Date.	Place.	Bishop.
Los Angeles	Sept. 15	Ventura, California	Haygood
Southwest	Sept. 21	Independence, Missouri	Galwey
East Louisiana	Sept. 21	Patmosic City, Washington	Witzel
Louisville	Sept. 21	Cambridge, Ohio	Plazalard
Illinois	Sept. 22	Springfield, Illinois	Keener
Chin Mission	Sept. 22	Szechow, China	Key
South Carolina	Sept. 24	Kirkwood, Missouri	Haygood
California	Oct. 5	Encene, Calif., Oregon	Haygood
Calumet	Oct. 12	Weymouth, Labrador	Haygood
Pacific	Oct. 12	Weytheite, Virginia	Granbery
Halston	Oct. 19	Tully Street, Nashville	Haygood
Tennessee	Oct. 28	Houston, Texas	Haygood
North Carolina	Nov. 2	Waco, Texas	Hargrove
West Texas	Nov. 2	Flagstaff, Arizona	Haygood
Northeast Mexico Mission	Nov. 10	Calvert, Texas	Hargrove
Texas	Nov. 16	Lafayette, Alabama	Keener
North Alabama	Nov. 16	Chattanooga, Tennessee	Haygood
Central Mexico Mission	Nov. 16	Fort Apache, Indian Territory	Granbery
Indiana Mission	Nov. 16	Norfolk, Virginia	Hemrick
Virginia	Nov. 23	Waco, Texas	Hargrove
Trinidad	Nov. 23	San Marcos, Texas	Haygood
Mexican Border Mission	Nov. 24	Mayfield, Kentucky	Keener
Memphis	Nov. 30	Daytonville, Arkansas	Wilson
Arkansas	Nov. 30	Guthrie, Mississippi	Granbery
North Mississippi	Nov. 30	Sheridan, Mississippi	Haygood
North Texas	Nov. 30	Waco, Texas	Hemrick
Western North Carolina	Nov. 30	Nagasaki, Arkansas	Wilson
Little Rock	Dec. 7	Madison, Georgia	Hemrick
North Georgia	Dec. 7	Fufuile, Alabama	Plazalard
Alabama	Dec. 11	Sanchez, Mississippi	Wilson
White River	Dec. 11	Sanchez, Mississippi	Wilson
Mississippi	Dec. 11	Nagatoches, Texas	Hargrove
East Texas	Dec. 11	Lake Charles, Louisiana	Galwey
Florida	Dec. 11	Charlesfort, Florida	Haygood
South Carolina	Dec. 11	Fort Mifflin, North Carolina	Haygood
North Carolina	Dec. 14	Columbus, Georgia	Plazalard
South Georgia	Dec. 14	Ocala, Florida	Plazalard
Florida	Jan. 23	Fort Royal, Virginia	Key
Baltimore	Jan. 23	Fort Royal, Virginia	Key

COLUMBUS DIST.—FOURTH ROUND
West Point.....	Sept. 17
Columbus.....	21
Crawford.....
Clarkville Circuit.....	Oct. 1
Clarkville.....
Tilbee.....	16
Birney.....	18
Paris.....	21
Phenix.....	24
Bhiquana.....	Nov. 5
Manassaville.....
Macon.....
Hebron.....	" 12
Brooksville.....	" 12
Columbus Circuit.....	" 28

Miller City and Strathmore	Sept. 17
Qair station	24
Abbeville circuit, at Abbeville	Oct. 1
Toocoo a circuit, at Lafayette Springs	8
Pittsboro circuit, at Chapel Hill	15
Cherry Hill circuit, at Young's Ch'l	22
Banner circuit, at Salem	29
Grenada circuit, at Spring Hill	25
Chapel Hill circuit, at Chapel Hill	25
Atlanta circuit, at Atlanta	Nov. 1
Officeville circuit, at G. Union	8
Charter on circuit, at Claremont	15
Tillatula circuit, at Pleasant Hill	22
Waco Valley circuit, at Palestine	29
Water Valley station	2

GREENVILLE DIST.—FOURTH ROUND

Bosedale.....	Sept.
Bolivar.....
Frank's Point.....
Lebanon.....	Oct.
New Salem.....
Clarksdale.....
Cleveland.....
AYOB.....
Amelia.....	Nov.
Danau.....
Jonestown.....
Belem.....

Walthall.....	Sept.
Maben.....
Louisville.....	Oct.
Ethel.....
Chester.....
Newport.....
Kosciusko and.....
Balla.....
Krur Hill.....	(Wed.) Nov.
Wells.....
Pickens.....	(Wed.)
Kenner.....
Lexington and Tchula.....
Belzona.....

HOLLY SPRINGS DISP.—FOURTH RO

Holly Springs station.....	Sept
Midway.....	Oct
Holly Springs circuit.....	Oct.
Lebanon.....	Nov
Med Banks.....	Nov
Ashland.....	Nov
Byhalia.....	Nov
East Holly Springs circuit.....	Nov
Early Grove.....	Nov
Mount Pleasant.....	Nov
Olive Branch.....	Nov

• JNO. W. BOSWELL,

Coomo.....	Oct
Benatoia.....
Pleasant Hill, at Baker's Chapel.....
Cold Water Mts., at Truslow Chapel.....
Pleasant Grove.....	(Thurs.)
Cockrum, at Independence.....
Eastville.....	(Thurs.)
Courtland, at Chapel Hill.....
Hernando.....	No
Arkabutla, at Brook's Chapel.....
Mt. VERNON.....	(Wed.)
Needle's.....
Wall Hill.....	(Wed.)
Panola, at Mt. Tishah.....

H. C. MOOREHEAD.

West circuit.....	Be
Sunny Side.....	Oc
Brooklyn and Dublin.....	Oc
Indiana.....	Oc
Winona station.....
Leherton.....
Leherton.....
Bidowood.....
Bidowood.....
Winona circuit.....
Valden.....
Black Hawk.....
Carrollton circuit.....
Carrollton station.....

S. M. TILAMER

Okolona station.....	0
Verona and Nettleton station.....	0
Tapeko station.....	0
Epitoco.....	0
Saltillo.....	0
Tremont.....	0
Shannon.....	0
Nettleton and Fulton.....	0
Smithville.....	0
Okolona circuit.....	0
A'bens.....	0
Houston and Wealey.....	0
Prairie.....	0
Baena Vista.....	0

J. E. Brown

Hood's Pills cure liver dise, biliousness, sick heada stipation.

Baltimore, 22 and 24 East Balti
New York, 148 Fifth Ave.
Washington, 617 Market Space

Stanton Military Academy,
—STANTON
A Military School for Young Men Handsome Illustrated Catalogue on application.

Asthma the Unit for Asthma, Cure Guaranteed
Pay. Export Office, 1764 Broadway
For Large Trial Case, FREE by R
KOLA IMPORTING CO., 132 Vine St., Cinc

Christian Advocate.

VOL. 39.—NO. 38.

NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1892.

WHOLE NO. 1883.

Rev. C. W. CARTER, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. LEWIS, Asst. Editor.

PUBLISHED FOR THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE AND NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH.

ENTERED AT THE POST OFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

A New Church at Hickory Flat, Miss.

I have just enjoyed the pleasure of a run to Hickory Flat, Miss., on the Memphis and Birmingham railroad, twenty miles east of Holly Springs. The occasion of my visit was to dedicate a new church in that thriving little town. Hickory Flat is a new town, of three hundred inhabitants, built in its past five years. Every house in the place seems to be new, clean and fresh. It is a lumber town. There are saw mills and planing mills in and around the place.

Here Rev. Jno. W. Boswell, D. D., formerly editor of the Arkansas Methodist, and later assistant editor of the North Mississippi Advocate, now presiding elder of the Holly Springs district—lives. He has built for himself a comfortable home, mainly with his own hands. What a delightful time I had with him and his interesting family! Dr. Boswell has just been elected editor of The Memphis Christian Advocate and Western Methodist, to be published in the city of Memphis by the Memphis Conference. He has not yet accepted the position; but, I think, will do so. A prospectus number of the new paper will appear about the first of November, and the regular issues will begin with January, 1893. Memphis is fast coming to be the commercial and social center of West Tennessee, North Mississippi and Eastern Arkansas. It is thought to be a good location for a church paper. Whether such a paper will live and prosper, or go under, time alone will tell. It is literally true, that of making many papers there is no end.

The old village of Hickory Flat, so well known in the annals of North Mississippi Methodism, two miles from the site of the present town, was the center of a large, strong church. The Methodist people in the new town were few in number, and not strong, financially.

Dr. Boswell and the pastor, Rev. O. N. Koon, began agitating the question of building a Methodist Church. At first it was thought to be an impossible task, but the faith and courage of the preachers acted like contagion among the people. Dr. Boswell invested largely in this enterprise. He was determined to have a church for the benefit of his own family. He subscribed liberally, and labored diligently until the last nail was driven and the last stroke of the painter's brush was made. A large part of the mechanical work was done with his own hands. The church is pretty, large enough for the place, comfortable, and as nearly perfect in all its arrangements as a church need be.

Sunday, Sept. 4, was set for the dedication. Before the hour for preaching came every seat was filled, and the windows were crowded with eager listeners who could not get inside the house. The sermon over, the remaining indebtedness was provided for, and then the house was solemnly set apart from all secular and unhallowed uses to the worship of God. It is a beautiful expression of the love and self-sacrifice of our people there, and of the zeal, courage and unquenchable energy of Dr. Jno. W. Boswell. It will stand as a monument to his memory long after he is under the sod. This church will soon be a strong one. The people for miles around will join here, and together they will worship and adore the name of the Lord our God.

GILDEROY.

Much Ado about Nothing.

One would suppose from the facial contortions, melodramatic sighings, and other manifestations, both of keen interest and mighty performance, as of one

"Swelling up loudly
To a climax, and then dying proudly."

which precedes and follows our annual collections for church extension, so much to be commended for her gifts and economic spirit, gave liberally and even munificently to this object; but, alas! both for appearances, which ought not to be deceitful, and the rarity of the prophetic gift in the average student of statistical tables, this is far from being true. Anyone who will take the trouble to examine the Minutes of our late session will discover directly that our more than twenty thousand Methodist in this State gave twelve hundred dollars for the cause of Southern Methodism during the past year; all of which, and something over, by the grace of the Parent Board, is to be expended upon her own needy and, in some quarters, well nigh desolate territory. This sum of money, prudently used, is equal to one-half the cost of a fourth or fifth-rate church-building, but no more than that; and in view both of their means and the great amount of good accomplished by it, is not a larger amount than some of our wealthy churches, not to say members, ought to give annually to this object. The latter half of this last observation, which does not require to be proven, will be yet more apparent if we consider that in addition to the common results of such beneficence, as of so many dollars expended in a good cause and so many gospel privileges purchased for the needy and their descendants, that the actual profits on all gifts to this object may be written in decimals. This we have demonstrated frequently, and stand ready to do it as often as the statement may be challenged. Indeed, in no other benefactions which we undertake, as a church, can we so nearly imitate the fecundity of that hand which, with morsels, feeds hungry multitudes to repletion.

It has been the pleasure of the writer during the past season to witness the opening of two beautiful church-buildings at extreme northern and southern points of our territory, as a Conference, neither of which, perhaps, would have been built without the prospect of aid from this fund, and which can not fail to exert a vast influence upon the fortunes of Methodism in those needy fields. They are both situated upon great thoroughfares, and in the midst of heavy populations inimical to our forms of belief and worship, and, indeed, to those of all Christendom, for that matter, and for this, and other reasons, would have successfully resisted all other methods of evangelization which might have been undertaken by us for many years to come. Yesterday there was none so poor as to do us honor in those localities; to-day we are as completely masters of the situation in both as Gibraltar of the petty strait upon which its gigantic shadow rests. And these two churches for the present year represent the poles, and not the great sphere of church-building enterprise as it is conducted in this State under the auspices of the Church Extension Society. With an hundred thousand dollars in possession, this latter body would cheerfully undertake a contract to duplicate the numbers and wealth of the church in the State of Louisiana within the next five years. In a building age, and in the midst of a building crisis, who will help us? Our Baptist friends are setting us a laudable example in this matter; but, for reasons far higher than those to which ecclesiastical might appeal, it is true that we should both shake off dull sloth and be truly emulous of our great opportunities as a church and Conference. Church extension, as has been abundantly shown, is the kind of evangelism that will make our "waste places break forth into singing," and our "deserts to rejoice and blossom as the rose."

J. M. BEARD.

Woman's Work.

Miss Sallie Smylie began the work of the district with renewed energy and zeal, having received loving words of encouragement from the auxiliaries, the greater number of them having been the result of her tireless, persistent efforts of the previous year. She now reports: "Miss Bettie Hughes left Friday, Sept. 9, for China. We had a most interesting farewell meeting Thursday evening. She is quite strong, and happy to go to her loved work. She will meet the seven new missionaries at St. Louis."

Miss Annie L'Infield reported last month: "Sister P. A. Johnston, of the Woodville district, has organized three adult auxiliaries: Port Vincent, Wilkinson, Miss., and Percy's Creek. One hundred and fifty dollars of the two hundred dollars promised for the new missionaries has been pledged."

The Woman's Board, at the annual session, granted Miss A. W. Barnes the privilege of raising, during the coming year, five thousand dollars among the children of our societies, said funds to go into the general treasury towards the sending of new missionaries. She has matured plans for the general observance of two nights throughout the bounds of our work—Children's Nights—somewhat after the plans and methods pursued in the observance of Children's Day. The first of these, known as "Envelope Night," is to be observed on Friday, Oct. 7. The second, called "The Reign of the Misses," will be on a more extended scale, and she hopes can be observed some time in the Spring. A clear conception of plan can be gained by reading the full program for Envelope Night in the September Little Worker. She desires the observance of Envelope Night be earnestly urged upon our Conference.

The Starritt Bible and Training-School trains for the following missionary work: (1) Foreign Missions, (2) Home Missions, (3) Sunday-school, (4) City Missions, (5) Trained Nurses, (6) Matrons of Benevolent Institutions and Industrial Schools.

Any Christian woman of any church, who may comply with the regulations for admission, may attend. An announcement, prepared for the purpose of giving items of information to those desiring to enter, and blanks for applicants, may be had on application to the principal. The school year consists of thirty-six weeks. Holidays: Christmas and Easter. Tuition is free. One hundred and fifty dollars will cover expense of board, washing, fuel and lights for the year. The cost of books will not exceed $10. Payments are made one-half in advance; the remainder Feb. 1. Miss Belle H. Bennett was re-elected treasurer and agent; Mrs. M. D. Wightman, assistant agent.

From the statement by Miss Mary Helm we obtain: The collections for the year 1891-92 were $22,388.39. Of this amount, $20,000 has been invested at 7 and 8 per cent. as the beginning of an endowment fund. The five lectureships and eight scholarships undertaken as special work by different Conferences, and in varying stages of completion, are as follows: Lectureships—The Olin, Francis Bumpass, Morgan Callaway, Kavanagh, and Stephen Noland. Scholarships—The Helen Finley, Sam Jones, Fannie Montague, Memorial, North Texas, Weyman Potter, S. Myra Smith, and Texas. Nine rooms have been furnished by individuals, churches and Conferences, and named as follows: The Sue A. Bennett, Helen Barclay, Hoagland, Mississippi, Missouri, Florence Malone, Wesson, and Winfield. Four memorial windows have been placed in the house in honor of Rev. Nathan Starritt, Dora Rankin, Clara Chrisman and Donna Hamilton. To endow a scholarship requires $2,500; a lectureship, $3,000; a chair, $25,000; to furnish a room, $100; to place a furnished cot in the hospital, $25.

The work now before the Woman's Board and the church is to raise the endowment fund to such proportions that it will bring the advantages of the institution within the reach of any Christian woman who desires systematic training for the Master's service. To this end contributions will be called for during the year, and a day be appointed (probably Easter) for a special service and collection—all money to be sent, as formerly, to Miss Belle H. Bennett, Richmond, Ky.

Send for catalogue and desired information regarding the school to the principal, Miss Maria Layne Gibson, corner of Harris street and Askew avenue, Kansas City, Mo.

Mrs. E. D. JONES,
Editor W. M. S., Miss. Conf.
Carlisle, Miss.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. H. W. Kieckerbocker, Bastrop, Sept. 12: "Wrote you an account of my meeting some weeks ago, but it seems that you did not receive it. Held an eight-days' meeting here in Bastrop, with good results. My brother assisted me. Only God knows the actual good done, and I shall not attempt to estimate it. Received 16 applications for church membership, making 21 since Conference. Am praying for and expecting greater things."

Rev. R. T. Nolen, L. P., Benton, Miss., Sept. 10: "We have just closed a glorious meeting at Lonest Grove Church, lasting six days. Bro. D. C. Langford was to have come to our assistance on Monday, the second day of the meeting, but was sick, and could not come; but the Lord was with us in great power. Fifteen accessions to the church—from fifteen to sixty-two years old—and the church graciously revived. To God be all the glory."

Rev. C. R. Godfrey, Floyd, La., Sept. 12: "I closed an eight-days' meeting, on yesterday, at Midway Church, Floyd charge, Louisiana Conference. I had no ministerial help, except one sermon from Rev. E. Thorp, Baptist minister. Results are the following: Church graciously revived; additions, twenty-eight; adults baptized, fifteen; children, eleven. Expected to hold first service in new church at Floyd next Sabbath."

Rev. H. D. Howell, Lumberton, Miss., Sept. 12: "The third quarterly meeting for Purvis charge was held at Poplarville, Sept. 3 and 4. Bro. Ellis was in place in the true spirit of the Master; in feeble health, though improving. The meeting was continued until the following Friday night, resulting in 31 professions of faith in Christ, and 10 were received into the church. Up to date 54 have been received into the church. May the good work go on!"

Rev. E. H. McNabb, Lehton circuit, North Mississippi Conference, Sept. 12: "Just closed a good meeting at Quiver. Three additions to our church and 4 to the Baptist. Many more say they will keep pressing their cases to the throne of Mercy until they find the pearl of great price. Six children baptized. Not being ordained, Bro. D. M. Miller did the baptizing for me. My faith has been made stronger. God be praised for his goodness to the children of men."

Rev. W. F. Sanders, Ganaville, La., Sept. 9: "On the seventh instant we closed at Brooklyn as fine a revival meeting as I ever had the pleasure of being in." Six conversions, and many shouted the praise of God; backsliders reclaimed and rejoiced in the love of God. I did but little of the preaching, as the quarterly meeting convened the same time at another point, and did not reach Brooklyn till Tuesday night. Bro. P. Burkett managed the meeting, and that to the satisfaction of all and to the glory of God."

Rev. W. S. Shipman, Cleveland, North Mississippi Conference, Sept. 9: "Our meeting is over, with good results. Ten joined the church, new family altars erected, churches revived, and a woman's prayer meeting set going by Sister Clifford. Bro. T. B. Clifford and his good wife did good and faithful work, which was much appreciated by myself and people. I am now at Castellan Springs for a few days, and then hope to meet Bro. and Sister George Lipscomb at Shelby the third Sunday, to assist me in a meeting."

Rev. N. B. Young, Vancleave, Miss., Sept. 1: "Our meetings at McClendon and Pine Grove resulted in great good. The churches much revived, an itinerant prayer meeting inaugurated, and 3 new family altars erected at McClendon. The church much revived; the Sunday-school strengthened. We have two here. Five or six new family altars and a weekly prayer meeting established, and 3 accessions to the church; one infant baptized. The Lord be praised for his presence in these meetings. We exhort the brethren to persevere."

Rev. Thomas B. Clifford, P. C., Arcola and Hollandale, Sept. 8: "Closed a protracted meeting at Hollandale last Thursday night. Rev. W. S. Shipman, of Cleveland, preached to the large congregation that gathered, resulting in 5 accessions to the church and the spiritual uplifting of many professing Christians. Bro. Shipman is a sweet-spirited, practical Christian and an earnest and effective preacher, and we thank God that we ever knew him. We have received this year on profession of faith, 10; by letter, 6. Have raised in cash and subscriptions $100 of annual collections, and hope to be able to report in full at Conference. We send from this charge one boy to Millsaps College. Our plans are now being formed toward the erection of a parsonage, and ere we leave for Conference we expect to have it built and paid for. God has been good to us, and we take courage and go forward, endeavoring, by his help, to do the work he has given us to do."

Rev. E. B. Lewis, Dublin, Miss., Sept. 14: "Since our last report we have held two protracted meetings. Bro. O. L. Savage assisted very satisfactorily at McNitt. The church there was very much revived, and fourteen were added to our numbers. Four of these, however, joined by letter. We are persuaded that there were some genuine conversions. A German lady in the community had four daughters who wanted to join. Their uncle objected. When we explained to them the benefits of the church, they asked, 'What do you charge for baptizing people?' and, 'How much would we have to pay to join?' We explained, and they joined. We closed a meeting at Auburn School-house, the tenth. It was a most wonderful meeting. Your scribe preached fifteen times consecutively. Eighteen professed religion, and twenty-two joined the church. Eight family altars were established, four or five subscribers to the ADVOCATE were secured, and a great deal of other good done. Since Aug. 1 fifty-six have joined the church under our ministry—forty-two of these in the Dublin vicinity."

Rev. F. B. Ormond, P. C., Why Not circuit: "This is a work that is just in a formative state. I was appointed by Rev. T. L. Mellen, P. E., to supply this work. On July 23 I took charge of the work, and since then I have been very much encouraged. I have held one meeting on the work. This meeting was held with Why Not Church, and the results that followed were gratifying to all. We closed the meeting on Friday, Aug. 26, with a special service for the children. We had a glorious revival of religion. The church was very much revived; many Christians expressed themselves as feeling that their spiritual strength had been renewed. Not only did the brethren pray in public, but some of the good women of the church would lead in prayer when called on. Taking into consideration the situation of matters in this community, I think we have great reasons to praise God for his goodness, and for the baptism of the Holy Spirit which we have received here. Nearly every one of my members at this point claim that they have been spiritually blessed, and not only so, but we have had testimonies from people of other denominations to the same effect. This circuit, for the present, is bracketed on to Marion circuit, of which Rev. Geo. Bancroft is pastor; so, in connection with the above, I will say that I have been with Bro. Bancroft in two of his meetings, both of which were splendid meetings. The first at Pleasant Hill, held the week following the second Sunday in August. I joined Bro. Bancroft on Sunday night. The meeting was carried on till Friday night. Three accessions to the church. The church was greatly revived at that place, and the community very much benefited. The next meeting was at Curtis Chapel, where we had a glorious revival of religion. The church very much revived; some shouted the praises of God. Six additions to the church at that place. I neglected to give above the results in accessions to my church at Why Not. We had three accessions—one on profession, and two by certificate. On the last day of my meeting Bro. Bancroft came in and assisted me in the closing service, and on that evening he administered the solemn ordinance of baptism. Four children were dedicated to God. For all the above we give God the praise and all the glory, and hope to continue to have not only as good reports as these, but to have much better ones to make in the future. O, that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!"

his people, and shows his interest in them by going among them and into their homes, draws them to himself and to the church. This involved labor; but the results are sure and good. In the money stringency that has marked the present year some pastoral charges have done nobly—not falling behind the contributions of previous years, but improving upon them. Others keep up their long-time method and reputation, in that they delay payment, for the most part, until near Conference. On these charges that the preachers live until the close of the year is history; but how they live is mystery. I am pleased to record that this state of affairs obtains in only a few instances. This district has an excellent proportion of active, devoted and influential laymen who love the church and labor in her behalf faithfully. Three churches have been completed the present year—one each on Camden, Sharon and Benton circuits. In the entire district I believe there are only two places where liquor is sold—Jackson and Canton—and we confidently expect that in these the sale of it will not be long tolerated. According to the admirable 'dram-shop' law of Mississippi, the opponents of the liquor traffic have now a great advantage, and any community so disposed may easily rid itself of that great curse—the saloon. The good citizens of the two communities above-mentioned are not indifferent, they are not idle, and they will not rest until they have won a complete victory. The saloon will be removed, and the places that now know it will know it no more. With the end of the year two of our preachers will complete a four years' pastorate—Dr. Black and Rev. T. B. Holloman. These brethren have, severally, strongly fixed themselves in the affections of their people, and it will be with great regret that the pleasant relations are severed. Length of time adds to ministerial influence largely.... The opening of Millsaps College, on the twenty-ninth instant, attracts much attention. It will be a notable event in the history of the church in Mississippi. The two Conferences in the State unite in this important enterprise, and it is one that ought to call forth all their zeal and effort. No proper estimate can be made of the loss sustained by the church because of the lack of such an institution in years past. None abroad can take the place of a home institution; and none in the State, however good in all appliances and influences, can do the work of a church school. Our people have long waited for such a movement as has given Millsaps College to them, and they hail with joy its inauguration. We need it for the training of our preachers that are to be, and our young laymen, too, who will thus be prepared for leadership in all places and professions—in law, medicine, commerce, agriculture, journalism, politics, and literature also, if the day of a native literature is to come. The trustees have acted wisely in the election of a most competent faculty. Dr. Murray was chosen previously by the suffrage of the people at large, and all the others were highly endorsed and recommended. The site of the college is noble. Altogether, the advantages for intellectual training are of the highest order. The men are thoroughly educated themselves, and they know the best and latest methods of teaching. There will be unsurpassed social and religious influences. No parent can afford to send a boy where these are neglected, or even made secondary; and in Millsaps College the desired conditions will be found. Our church in Jackson is large and influential. The same may be said of the other Protestant Churches; and the social surroundings are of the best type. Besides, Millsaps College will form a community almost of itself. The aim will be to impress all religiously, and to send forth Christian gentlemen from its halls. Bishop Galloway's care in this behalf will be unremitting; and, as he resides near by, students will have frequent opportunity of listening to him in the pulpit and on the platform—a privilege which our people here always prize greatly. All these advantages, with the low terms fixed, should bring many students.... Of other matters of interest, and of the faithful brethren who labor among the churches, I have not time now to write particularly. We have reason for encouragement, but, at the same time, for earnest prayer and work."

Rev. F. B. Ormond, P. C., Why Not circuit: "This is a work that is just in a formative state. I was appointed by Rev. T. L. Mellen, P. E., to supply this work. On July 23 I took charge of the work, and since then I have been very much encouraged. I have held one meeting on the work. This meeting was held with Why Not Church, and the results that followed were gratifying to all. We closed the meeting on Friday, Aug. 26, with a special service for the children. We had a glorious revival of religion. The church was very much revived; many Christians expressed themselves as feeling that their spiritual strength had been renewed. Not only did the brethren pray in public, but some of the good women of the church would lead in prayer when called on. Taking into consideration the situation of matters in this community, I think we have great reasons to praise God for his goodness, and for the baptism of the Holy Spirit which we have received here. Nearly every one of my members at this point claim that they have been spiritually blessed, and not only so, but we have had testimonies from people of other denominations to the same effect. This circuit, for the present, is bracketed on to Marion circuit, of which Rev. Geo. Bancroft is pastor; so, in connection with the above, I will say that I have been with Bro. Bancroft in two of his meetings, both of which were splendid meetings. The first at Pleasant Hill, held the week following the second Sunday in August. I joined Bro. Bancroft on Sunday night. The meeting was carried on till Friday night. Three accessions to the church. The church was greatly revived at that place, and the community very much benefited. The next meeting was at Curtis Chapel, where we had a glorious revival of religion. The church very much revived; some shouted the praises of God. Six additions to the church at that place. I neglected to give above the results in accessions to my church at Why Not. We had three accessions—one on profession, and two by certificate. On the last day of my meeting Bro. Bancroft came in and assisted me in the closing service, and on that evening he administered the solemn ordinance of baptism. Four children were dedicated to God. For all the above we give God the praise and all the glory, and hope to continue to have not only as good reports as these, but to have much better ones to make in the future. O, that men would praise the Lord for his goodness, and for his wonderful works to the children of men!"

Rev. E. H. Moulner, P. E., Jackson district: "I am able to report that all through the year the preachers in the Jackson district have been faithfully at their posts—not hindered by sickness, or any other cause—and doing the work expected of them. In some quarters of late meetings have been held with good success; but in other instances the exceeding wet weather of the last two months has operated unfavorably. There are churches in the district whose prosperity is not affected by the state of the weather; but they have a steady growth both Winter and Summer. I have noticed here, as elsewhere, that pastoral efficiency is a most potent element in ministerial success. Only the preacher who knows

THE DEAR LITTLE WIFE AT HOME.

BY MARGARET R. SANDER.

The dear little wife at home, John,
With ever so much to do,
Stitches to set, and babies to pet,
And so many thoughts of you;
The beautiful household fairy
Filling your heart with light:
Whatever you meet to-day, John,
Go cheerily home to-night.

For though you are worn and weary,
You needn't be cross or curt;
There are words like daisies to gentle hearts,
There are looks that wound and hurt.
With the key in the latch at home, John,
Drop troubles out of sight.
To the dear little wife who is waiting,
Go cheerily home to-night.

You know she will come to meet you,
A smile on her sunny face,
And your wee little girl as pure as a pearl,
Will be there in her childish grace.
And the boy, his father's pride, John,
With the eyes so brave and bright:
From the strife and the din, to the peace, John,
Go cheerily home to-night.

The Relation of the Sunday-School to the Church, under the Discipline.

[A paper read at the Sunday-school Conference, held at Scobee, Miss., Aug. 25, 1892, by Rev. J. M. Fugh.]

It was only a few days ago that I received notice that I was expected to prepare a paper for this meeting, on "The Relation of the Sunday-school to the Church, under the Discipline." The subject presupposes that the Sunday-school and the church are two distinct organizations. But I do not take this view of the question. You might as well take the position that the church meeting and the church are separate and distinct bodies. It is an obligation upon the pastor to organize the one as the other; for he is the responsible party in the premises. If the position taken at the Sunday-school Conference last year, that the superintendent of the school is the deputy of the pastor, be correct, you can not separate the Sunday-school from the church. Our General Conference, acting under the light which experience had thrown upon the subject, acted wisely when they substituted "ten persons" for "ten children" in the disciplinary directions for the organization of Sunday-schools. Under the former reading, it was expected that the Sunday-school should be composed only of young children, or catechumens. And this idea so generally prevailed that grown persons got the impression that they were excluded, or that they were too old to be considered Sunday-school scholars; and pupils growing up to be young men and young women thought that they had reached an age when they should retire from the Sunday-school. But under the provisions of our present Discipline the Sunday-school includes all persons, adults as well as children. The Sunday-school is an integral part of the church. So the proper answer to the question, "What is a Sunday-school?" is, "The church and its friends studying the Word of God." Hence, you might have a Sunday-school without a single child as a member. How much better it would be, both for the young and for the adult, could this view of the subject generally prevail among us. We would have more intelligent Christians, parents would be better qualified to instruct their children in Bible truth, and the children of the Sunday-school would no longer consider themselves separated from the grown people. There would be no "missing link" between the Sunday-school and the church; and the problem which has troubled the church: "How to secure the attendance of the children upon public service" would be solved. They would no longer be considered two distinct organizations.

And here I will consider the use of our standard hymn book in the Sunday-school, as most pertinent to the subject under consideration. By the exclusive use of our hymn book the children would become familiar with the hymns and tunes used in public services, and they would not feel to be strangers in the congregation. Being familiar with them, they would readily enter into the service and consider themselves identified with the congregational singing. But if they are accustomed to singing other songs, they will readily think, "They are not our songs," and would most naturally decline to sing, not being familiar with the hymns and the tunes. By teaching the children our standard hymns, they would feel identified with the church and recognize them as their personal property. Thus the Sunday-school and the church would be mingled into one congregation in divine service. How readily would their young hearts enter into the service, and their voices chime in with those of the older people. By using other hymns and tunes in the Sunday-school, not published by our church, there is not only a probability that false doctrines and principles will be taught, but that such may be so impressed upon the memory of the young that they would never be forgotten. But if our hymns and tunes are taught to the children, they would be remembered when the silvery threads of age would adorn their temples, and our theology would be woven into their very being. One said, "Give me the making of the songs of a nation, and I care not who may make its laws." If this principle be correct, it must be of some importance that our children learn to sing the hymns of the church, which teach the gospel as proclaimed by us, and learn those songs which shall echo and re-echo in the chambers of the heart, as they journey in the walks of life. But one will say "that many of the hymns are too profound to be comprehended by children." The same objection would apply to the teaching of passages of Scripture. If the children can not comprehend all, they can understand some of them. Then keep singing them until the gospel truths which we teach are stamped upon their very nature. The gospel can be sung as well as preached, and false ideas as well.

There are some good hymns and tunes that I can readily accept found in books published by others, and there are some that are otherwise. If we want to teach our children the gospel as taught by us, as a church, then teach them by song as well as by the preached Word. There are a few songs in our own hymn book that I want to see discarded in the next revision; such as, "Pass Me Not, O Gentle Saviour!"

Should we set upon these views, the stereotyped expression, which has almost become a maxim, that "the Sunday-school is the nursery of the church," would no longer have a place in our language, but would be considered a false assumption. It should long since have been relegated to the "moles and bats," and he thought of as a "relic of the past."

The evils resulting from considering the Sunday-school distinct from the church are many, and are destructive of the best interests of the church and the spiritual interests of the children. They would no longer consider themselves as aliens, nor be treated as being unworthy of a place in the Christian household. But, being trained in the company of older persons, they would more readily assume the position of intelligent, working Christians; and the line of demarcation which now seems to separate the Sunday-school and the church would be obliterated. Old and young would mingle together in one grand Christian household. The children, having been consecrated to God in the ordinance of baptism, would be trained up in the church, and never think that they were without its pale.

A field, too large for me to enter upon in this brief paper, opens before me. I must leave the Conference to consider the positions taken, and to endeavor to bring the church up to the proper standard in searching the Scripture and disseminating the great doctrine of Christianity, as taught by us, and urge the great end for which the church has been organized—the salvation of the soul. Those doctrines and truths upon which the character should be based, and from which it should be developed, should be impressed upon the minds of all; so that to characters of symmetry and beauty there may be imparted the perfection of a holy life.

Robert Ralke, at the suggestion of Hannah Bell, when he collected a few of the poor children of London on the Sabbath day to give them instruction in the rudiments of language, as well as to teach them the principles of Christianity, wrought much better than he imagined. Could he have had a glimpse of the noontide splendor which the Sunday-school workers of the nineteenth century have accomplished, and are now enjoying in the great Sunday-school work, he would have been amazed, and his soul would have been enraptured as those of the disciples were at the transfiguration of Christ. The greatest results are oftentimes the outcome of very small beginnings. But the grandest results are yet to be achieved and realized. When the Christian world awakes to the truth, that the church—the whole church—from the prattling infant to the octogenarian shall be gathered together on the Sabbath day to study the Word, to learn the science of salvation, and to experience the heavenly glow of consecrated souls; then the rays of the millennial dawn shall shine upon the church militant, and light up the kingdom of Christ.

Scarritt Bible and Training-School, Kansas City, Mo.

To answer the inquiries that are received daily from applicants for admissions as students, and to give wider circulation to the requirements in scholarship, as well as to give information on all points as yet not fully understood, a few statements are here furnished for the benefit of the interested:

1. The training-school, as its name implies, is not designed to give to students a literary course such as is furnished by public schools and seminaries, but to prepare students, who have had such preliminary instruction, for practical Christian service.
2. The school is for women alone.
3. Any woman over eighteen years of age, who is a member of any evangelical church, is eligible, provided she can meet the requirements.
4. All students are admitted with the understanding that they enter upon a two months' probation, at the expiration of which their sobriety and general fitness for service will be considered and decided upon by the faculty.

5. All applicants before entering are required to fill out a blank which will be furnished them by the principal, and which must be returned to be acted upon by the Executive Committee.

6. Admission to the training-school is not equivalent to acceptance as a missionary candidate.

7. Tuition is free. The advantages of the full course are offered to all students resident in Kansas City for ten dollars per year, or a contingent fee.

8. It is desirable that students preparing for special work, such as trained nurse or missionary, board in the school, that they may imbibe its spirit, have the advantage of its discipline, and also of its theoretical and practical instruction.

9. Payment is required one-half on entering, and the remainder, Feb. 1. The expenses will be one hundred and fifty dollars per year for board, fuel, lights and washing.

10. Students are requested to bring two sheets, one pair of blankets, one pair of pillow-slips (one yard long, twenty-two inches wide) and one spread; also towels and table-napkins for their personal use. They should also provide themselves with umbrellas, overcoats and gossamer. Two students will occupy one room.

Students will find that a beautiful Christian home has been provided for them during their years of training for the service of God. The thought and prayers of many Christian hearts are centering in the school. The earnest cooperation and practical sympathy of all who love the Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity are hoped for. If received, Scarritt Bible and Training-school will achieve a success commensurate with its aim. MARIA LAYNE GIBSON, Principal.

Indian Mission.

MR. EDITOR: I see in the last week's ADVOCATE an article from Bro. W. W. Cammack, our Indian missionary, which ought to greatly encourage all the friends of the mission. I am greatly encouraged, and my faith wonderfully strengthened, with regard to the ultimate success of the mission. I had not hoped that he would do very much the first year—starting out without a church, and not even a knowledge of the language of the people to whom he was to preach, and they heathens, and prejudiced against him and us. I could not hope that he would do much the first year; so, when I see from the ADVOCATE that he has already received five members, and from a card to me later that he had received four more, making, with Simpson Tubby, the one Bro. Long had received just before, ten received and baptized—good ones, too—and that he has secured a lot and is building a church-house, and that Simpson Tubby is studying for the ministry, and will probably be licensed to preach the next quarterly meeting, and that he preaches, sings and prays so well, both in the English and Choctaw languages, and that he is a good case, and has such an influence for good over the Indians, and that they have two Sunday-schools in successful operation, doing fine work, the Indians learning rapidly, I must say I am greatly rejoiced; and I want to say, here and now: Hallelujah! glory be to God! salvation is rolling on!—and let all that have helped, or would have if they had been able, say, Amen!

But, brethren and sisters, I am sorry to have to tell you that Bro. Cammack out of his small salary is having to buy books; and, after an appeal from myself some time ago for money to educate Simpson Tubby, that he is having to board and educate him at his own expense. I asked for four men, or any number, that would contribute one hundred dollars, to keep him in school one session; and—will you believe it?—I did not get the first response. Surely, brethren and sisters, you did not understand my proposition, or many would have responded readily and gladly. So I hope you will not defer the matter any longer, and that we will not stop at one hundred, but raise one thousand dollars at once, for we need it right now, to educate preachers and teachers, build churches, buy books, and last, but not least, pay Bro. Cammack's salary, a part of which is due right now, and not a dollar in the bank to pay it with. What is one thousand dollars among eighty thousand members in Mississippi, to say nothing of others that might help us, as some have? Surely, we can raise that amount in the next thirty days. Why, if I was a man of any means, I would just say to Bro. Cammack: Select a good location, and I will furnish the means to build a neat little chapel, where they may be preached to and taught; or I would say: You select and recommend, and I will pay for the education of one for the ministry.

Now, God will call and furnish the man, or men (Choctaws), if we will furnish the means to educate them; and God will, in answer to our prayers and by our faithful labor, convert and prepare them to be organized into churches, if we will only furnish the homes for them to worship in.

Now, if we expect to do anything, we ought to do it at once; and if we expect to accomplish much, we will have to build houses, and educate preachers and teachers of their own race, for if we leave it to the State, they may be idle when educated; and if we wait for other churches to educate them, they will naturally go to other churches. How soon we might have two or three circuits, and two or three circuit riders (Choctaws) in the Mississippi Conference, if we would only do our duty!

Brethren, sisters, let us rise up and take these people for Christ. They ought to be, even the whole nation, horn to God almost in a day, surrounded, as they are, by Christian influence and civilization. What would hinder if we would only get on our knees before God, with our pocketbooks in hand, and ask the good Lord, What wilt thou have me do? Surely the work would be done. Oh, my brethren, just think how many of them have already died and gone on to the judgment, and will be there to face us at that great and dreadful day! May God have mercy upon us for neglecting them in the past, and help us in the future to do our whole duty!

Now, just any amount from five hundred dollars down to twenty-five cents. We wait anxiously to see who will respond first; and be assured that every cent, after Bro. Cammack's salary is paid, will be wisely used to the glory of God and for the salvation of the poor, lost Indians. Send cash or subscription, to be paid this Winter, by time of your Annual Conference, if possible; and if any are willing, subscribe to be paid annually for a term of five years; and if any desire to do so, they may say what disposition to make of the amount given—whether to pay Bro. Cammack's salary, or build churches, or for education; and we ought to give Simpson Tubby a few dollars to encourage him in his work. I reckon you had better send amounts to me, as I am the regularly authorized agent, and will be expected to make a report to the next session of our Conference. It might get up confusion to pay to two or three different ones. However, if anyone wishes to do so, he might hand amounts to Bro. Cammack, and he can send me receipt. So send on as before to me at Barlow, Copiah county, Miss., and I will acknowledge through the ADVOCATE as before.

Brethren and sisters, when you read this, send me something at once, and greatly oblige,
Your brother in Christ,
A. D. MILLER.
Barlow, Miss.

Louisiana Institute for the Blind.

To Parents and Guardians of the Blind—
This is a school for the blind. It is neither a hospital nor an asylum. If a blind boy or girl is admitted into the institution, it must be for the express purpose of attending school.

No blind persons are allowed to remain in the institution after they have completed the prescribed course of studies. All the pupils go home during the Summer vacation, except those who are homeless.

No blind person over twenty will be admitted to attend school; but any blind man not under twenty, nor over thirty-five years of age, will be admitted to learn a trade.

A parent, parish officer or friend applying for the admission of a blind person, must write to the principal, and send a certificate of responsible persons, stating that the name of the blind person is ———; age, ———; is healthy, of sound mind and good character, and can not see well enough to attend the ordinary schools.

The session begins on the first Monday in October, with a full corps of teachers, and improved opportunities in every department. Persons are admitted at any time during the session. Everything here is free of charge—board, washing, tuition, books, instruments, medical attendance, etc. If the person is too poor to pay traveling expenses or furnish clothing, the certificate should state the fact.

In the school-room are taught, carefully and thoroughly, all the branches of a first-class high school education. In addition, the boys are taught music—vocal and instrumental—piano making; broom, mattress and pillow-making, and chair-sewing with cane or rattan. The girls learn to sew by hand or with the machine, to crocheted and do other fancy work, and are taught music and callisthenics.

Parents should not allow their blind boys to smoke or chew tobacco. They should encourage them from infancy to move about the house and grounds without a guide; should teach and require them to dress themselves, and to comb and arrange their own hair; to eat with knife and fork, and to sit and walk erect. The object of the school is to render the blind self-reliant, self-helpful and self-supporting, and parents should begin the work at home.

The Institute is pleasantly situated. The grounds are extensive and beautiful, the buildings are elegant, convenient and comfortable, and, whilst in a retired part of the city, are easily accessible by street cars running immediately by the doors. The discipline is parental, and every care is taken to secure the comfort and health and happiness of the inmates.

It is the earnest desire of the school and the State to extend its benefits to every blind person in the State, and it is earnestly requested not only of parents, but of parochial officers, physicians and ministers of the gospel, to notify us of any eligible blind persons they may know or hear of.

All communications or enquiries will receive prompt attention when addressed to

W. H. N. MAGRUDER, Prin.

A Noble Exception.

We often receive word that a claimant does not need help. It is not an unusual thing for a good sister to write: "Now that I am young and in good health I can provide for myself; give what you have to those who are more needy."

So far as known to the writer, twice have the sons of worthy claimants said, "We will provide for mother," or "We will provide for our parents," so far as known to us, never but once, and that during this Conference year, has the message ever come, "I will provide for my mother-in-law."

We rejoice in this token of a revival of pure and undefiled religion. It has both pained and grieved us to know that so many of our brethren have left to the world a heritage of children, who have said to the gray hairs of their widowed mothers, "Corhan."

The Book says (1 Tim. v. 16): "If any man or woman, that believeth, have widows, let them relieve them, and let not the church be charged; that it may relieve them that are widows in deed;" and again (1 Tim. v. 4): "But if any widow have children or nephews, let them learn first to show piety at home and to requite their parents, for that is good and acceptable before God." The General Conference has shaped its action for the relief for our superannuated, widows and orphans on these plain passages of Scripture.

We are often angrily rebuked because we make an allowance to certain claimants. Let this be an answer, full and complete. We are compelled to do for these dear souls what filial affection falls to do; and so these claimants find that when son and daughter cast us off, then the Lord will take us up. Shall not the love of Christ constrain us? Shall we withhold our hand?

Shall we not be better than seven sons to Naomi? We feel that every loyal heart answers, "We will continue to care for these."

After all, brethren beloved, the greater part of our claimants are absolutely dependent upon us. Many of them have neither meat nor drink; only as the kindly hand of charity or the Joint Board provides it.

We plead with you to help the Board now. In two weeks many eyes will begin to watch for the letter which will bring their third quarter's pay. Brethren of the ministry, our funds are exhausted. Forward us what you can at once. Let us all work together. Remember it is not the glory of the Board or your own honor which is at stake, but food for the hungry and clothes for the naked.

JOHN W. CHAMBERS,
Chairman of Joint Board.

Program.

Program for the Theological and Pastoral Society of the Sardis district, North Mississippi Conference:

The Fall meeting comes off at Nashville, Thursday and Friday, Oct. 6 and 7.

1. "The Relation of Baptized Children to the Church"—T. W. Dye and R. G. Porter.

2. "Can the Church Dispense with Revivals? If Not, What is the Best Way to Promote and Conduct Them?"—C. W. Perkins and B. P. Jacob.

3. "Would the Incorporation into Our Economy, the Office of Evangelist, Be Consistent with the Genius and History of Methodism?"—R. O. Brown and J. W. Poston.

4. "The Best Method of Studying the Bible"—J. W. Malone and A. Brassewell.

5. "The Best Method of Preparing a Sermon"—J. Rithey and R. P. Gosar.

6. "In What Sense is the Ministry Called of God to Preach, and How Should They Prepare for that Work?"—Thos. Cameron and W. H. Kokes.

7. "A Full Exposition of the Parable of the Tares (Matt. xiii, 24-30)"—Eugene Johnson and H. P. Gibbs.

8. "What Attitude Does the Church Hold to Entertainments for Raising Money for Church Purposes?"—H. C. Morehead and W. W. Williams.

9. "What Attitude Does the Church Sustain to Worldly Amusements?"—J. M. Wyatt and J. T. Howell.

Sermons on baptism, Thursday, 11 A. M.; by T. W. Dye; on dangers of apathy, Thursday, 7:30 P. M., by Thos. Cameron; and sanctification, Friday, 11 A. M., by H. C. Morehead.

Come, brethren, everyone of you well prepared! We shall be truly glad to see many visitors.

JOHN RITCHIEY, Pres.
J. M. WYATT, Sec.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON.—Sept. 25, 1892.

By Rev. W. H. LAPEERE, D. D.

The Lord's Supper Profaned.

1 Cor. xi, 20-34.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Let a man examine himself, and so let him eat of that bread." (Ver. 28.)

The great purpose of Jesus in the institution of the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was to keep alive in the mind of his disciples the fact of the incarnation of God in him, and the atonement he made for man. They were never to forget the body and the blood; nor that the body was broken, the blood shed, for them. Other, and very precious, lessons were taught in it, but these were the chief ones.

The Corinthian converts, accustomed to the revels of Grecian worship, mistook the nature and purpose of this Christian sacrament, giving it the type of a heathen festival; and, long accustomed to excesses in eating and drinking, degraded themselves and degraded the occasion. St. Paul writes to correct this, with a number of other errors of doctrine and wrong habits of life. The Corinthians had been reared in the midst of great corruption, and had very low views about many things.

Vers. 20, 21. That is: You misapprehend entirely the object of your coming together, as is evident from your preparation, and from the distinction you make between the rich and the poor. You regard it as an ordinary feast.

Ver. 22. Their conduct seemed to St. Paul to indicate that these feasting Corinthians either desired to awaken envy in the minds of the poorer members, or else that they had a feeling of contempt for the assembly—for the word, "obnoxious," refers to the membership, not to the building.

Vers. 23-26. This is St. Paul's statement of the institution and purpose of the Lord's Supper, as revealed directly to him. The leading facts and suggestions are:

1. The body of Christ was assumed and slain for man. (Ver. 24.)

2. The blood of our Lord was the seal of the Covenant of Grace as distinguished from the Covenant of Works. (Ver. 25.)

3. The service was to be in perpetual memory of Jesus. (Ver. 25.)

4. It was to be a constantly repeated proclamation to the world of the fact of the atonement, and of the faith of the obnoxious in Christ as Redeemer. (Ver. 26.)

Ver. 27. "Unworthily" has reference to the object for which the sacrament is observed, and the spirit in which it is done; not to any feeling of personal unworthiness. None of us merit God's favor—a "broken and contrite heart" be "will not deplete."

Ver. 28. The examination of self is not to ascertain whether we are perfect, or meritorious, but whether we are sincere in motive, appreciate the nature of the sacrament, and are properly reverent in spirit and manner.

Ver. 29. This verse has, through wrong interpretation, given trouble, but timid, Christians great trouble. The Revised Version, reads: "For he that eateth and drinketh, eateth and drinketh judgment unto himself, if he discern not the body." The idea, in either version, is, that he who partakes without discerning that the bread and wine represents the body and blood of Jesus, condemns himself in so doing.

Ver. 30. Probably St. Paul regarded the bodily ailments of afflicted members as judicial punishment.

Vers. 31, 32. If we made necessary preparation, we would not be condemned; but, if the Lord should punish us, it is for our good.

Vers. 33, 34. Let all preparation be made for solemn and general observance of the Lord's Supper, as a religious duty and privilege, not as a common feast. Other things connected with worship he would arrange for himself.

A spirit of deep humility, of profound gratitude to God for the gift of his Son, of tenderest and most reverent love for Christ as Savior and Friend, of sincere repentance of sin, of simple trust in Jesus, of love for the brethren and charity toward all men, if the spirit in which the Lord's Supper should be taken. It is, then, a season of great comfort and strength to the Christian, and an object-lesson of great worth to the world.

TEACH THE CHILD A SONG.—Encourage your little ones to sing. Many lessons are and bearache. Often the words of a song, the melody, linger in the heart after the voice is silent, and keep alive the courage which had almost died; and bear pain whose heart disease, and after that quickly comes death. So, after that quickly comes death, the sweetest toll, and it is imperative that parents and teachers should aim to make this means of happiness for the children, if for no other reason than the labors to be borne in mature years.—Jewish Messenger.

Foolish Customs at Weddings and Funerals.

BY SARAH K. BOLTON.

Some one has said that "society is a terrible engine of oppression." Doubtless we are too much influenced by the example of others. We build better houses than we can afford, because our neighbors build them. We wear finer clothes than need be, because our friends wear them.

"The eyes of other people,
Are the eyes that ruin us."

We do not need to point to the thousands of cases every year of forgery and dishonest dealing, to show that men and women live beyond their means. We see it early in the young man who takes a young woman to a party, hiring a carriage in which to bring her, when the street cars are good enough for both, and quite all he can furnish her, after they are married; buying a bunch of expensive roses for her because society seems to demand it, when the store or office or bank where he works, he earns very little more than enough to pay his own board.

Fortunately a young woman sometimes has the good sense to think of a man's pocketbook, and is unwilling that any person should spend a large amount for her pleasure. A selfish girl makes a selfish woman, and where love has not made eyes too blind, it can be seen by the young escort.

She dresses better than her parents can afford—the mother often making too great sacrifices for the daughter, and the father spending other people's money on her. We could learn from the English a more simple and wiser fashion of dressing young girls.

Especially are we foolish in our wedding expenditures. Wedding presents have come to be a burden, and to a considerable extent, simply a matter of pride. Said a lady to me recently: "We don't know very intimately the parties to be married, but our presents will be exhibited among the others, and we should be ashamed not to have them as elegant as those of our neighbors." And this same lady could ill afford to buy things for her own household, saying nothing of a thousand ways in which she could better have spent the money.

It is useless to reason that people need not give presents. As long as we have such a needless fashion, they will feel obliged to give, just as they do at Christmas, when half the time they have little heart or pleasure in it.

The recipients always know that, in the years to come, they also will be obliged to give presents in return; spoons, sugar-bowls, butter-dishes, that often are in duplicate, and of no use to the possessor.

This society fashion for people who are in ordinary circumstances is indeed a social oppression. It is pleasant to give and pleasant to receive; but not when you are certain that many are unable to give, and do so only because it is the custom.

If society would use the money expended for wedding presents in proper leisure-hour, or free baths for the poor, or public parks, or to send boys and girls to college, the results in happiness would be increased a thousandfold. Of course, it is argued that the making of these costly things give work to the poor. A five-thousand-dollar clock may give work to the poor, but it is scarcely an open question whether five thousand dollars used in the making of nails or plows would give much more work, and in a much more useful way.

A five-thousand-dollar dress might help somebody, but the results of the five thousand in sending two boys or girls through college, with their consequent usefulness, or the building of three houses for hard-working poor people, are above comparison with the dress.

How could the fashion of promiscuous wedding gifts be changed? Just as the fashion about flowers at funerals has been changed. Heretofore, people who cared comparatively little about a person, felt obliged at his or her death, in many instances, to send a five-dollar wreath, because they had met in "good society." A single line in the press: "Friends are requested not to send flowers," has stopped all this willing or unwilling giving.

When shall we see at the bottom of wedding invitations: "Friends are requested not to send gifts?" The outside world would breathe a sigh of relief, while the father would not be debarré from giving his child a ten or a hundred thousand-dollar check, or the groom a beautiful home to his bride.

If a wedding is an occasion of rejoicing, as it should be if the parties are well suited to each other for the life journey, surely our funerals should be occasions of quiet and respectful sorrow for our dead. The display of flowers has largely ceased, but not the idle curiosity that makes scores of persons eager to attend a funeral, and at the proper time "view the remains."

Why hundreds, who knew a person not at all intimately in life, should be welcomed at the house of death to look upon a face worn by disease and pallid in the most attractive hue of death, I can not understand, save that custom unfortunately has made it a part of the funeral ceremony to look at the body.

It seems to me that no one should see our precious dead except the half-dozen or more to whom they were especially dear; and at a funeral (usually the smaller and more quiet the better) the coffin should be closed.

"But," said a person to me, "you would have a small attendance if people could not look at the corpse." Think of this! This is the thing being welcomed in the house of death! It is better that most of us be remembered, even by those who loved us, as we were in life. The world is, or ought to be, too busy to spend much time in attending funerals. Let us be laid to rest by the few who really love us, and not by the multitude who know us little and care for us little, but come to the house of mourning because it is the custom.—Independent.

An Only Daughter Cured of Consumption

When death was hourly expected from Consumption, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting, he accidentally made a preparation of Indian Hemp, which cured his only child, and now gives this receipt free to all who send stamps to pay expenses. Hemp also cures night sweats, nausea at the stomach, and will break a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address: Craddock & Co., 1082 Race Street, Philadelphia, Pa., naming this paper.

Celebration of Columbus Day.

In obedience to an Act of Congress, the President, on July 21, issued a proclamation recommending that October 21, the 400th Anniversary of the discovery of America, be celebrated everywhere in America by suitable exercises in the schools.

A uniform programme for every school in America, to be used on Columbus Day, simultaneously with the dedicatory exercises of the World's Columbian Exposition grounds in Chicago, will give an impressive unity to the popular celebration. Accordingly, when the Superintendent of Education, last February, accepted the Commission's plan for this National Public School Celebration, they instructed their Executive Committee to prepare an Official Programme of exercises for the Day, uniform for every school.

To enable preparations for the National School Celebration in every community to begin immediately, the Executive Committee now publish through The Companion.

THE OFFICIAL PROGRAMME

FOR THE NATIONAL COLUMBIAN PUBLIC SCHOOL CELEBRATION, OF OCTOBER 21, 1892.

NOTE.—The instructions for the proper conduct of these exercises are given in small type, the successive exercises themselves in the large type.

The schools should assemble at 9 A. M. in their various rooms. At 9:30 the detail of Veterans is expected to arrive. It is to be met at the entrance of the yard by the color guard of pupils, escorted with dignity to the building, and presented to the Principal. The Principal then gives the signal, and the several teachers conduct their pupils to the yard, to meet the drum or other music, and arrange them in a hollow square about the flag, the Veterans and Color Guard taking places by the flag itself. The Master of Ceremonies then gives the command, "Attention!" and begins the exercises by reading the Proclamation.

1. READING OF THE PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION.

by the Master of Ceremonies.

At the close of the reading he announces: "In accordance with the recommendation by the President of the United States, and as a sign of our devotion to our country, let the flag of the Nation be unfurled above this school."

2. RAISING THE FLAG, by the Veterans.

As the flag reaches the top of the staff, the Veterans will lead the assembly in "Three Cheers for Old Glory."

3. SALUTE TO THE FLAG, by the Pupils.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

At a signal from the Principal, the pupils, in ordered ranks, hands to the side, face the flag. Another signal is given; every pupil gives the flag the military salute—right hand lifted, palm downward, to a line with the forehead, and close to it. Standing thus, all repeat together, slowly: "I pledge—allegiance to my Flag and the Republic for which it stands: one Nation indivisible, with Liberty and Justice for all." At the words, "to my Flag," the right hand is extended carefully, palm upward, towards the flag, and remains in this position till the end of the affirmation; whereupon all hands immediately drop to the side. Then, still standing as the instruments strike a chord, all will sing AMERICA—My Country, 'tis of Thee.

times, frequently cut short the career of eminent statesmen. A man, in fact, after all, very frequently his own best physician, although it has been said with truth that self-doctors have fools for their patients. Still no medical oar can equal the precautionary measures a man can take when his own health is concerned. All of us need every day not too much, but at the same time in good food, and an adequate time in bed and asleep, sleep being the rock on which many men go to pieces in these days of hurry and rush.

Now, to be certain of securing sleep, it is essential to take each day a sufficient quantity of outdoor exercise, so that the system may become physically tired. Hence, Mr. Gladstone's love of tree-felling has probably done more than anything else to conserve his wonderful staying power. In such matters as diet and sleep—and anyone normally sound in health who attends to them is nearly sure to be free from serious illness—each of us ought to be capable of adequately providing for himself. In the case of ordinary mortals a few simple precautions will secure, that the individual shall live, and not merely exist, seeing that life is not to live, but to be well. All this Mr. Gladstone has discovered and learned to believe, and so he has come to be today a phenomenal instance of the best physical type of our race.

The family of Mr. Gladstone have devoted themselves to their father's interests for years. Everything is so regulated as to secure to Mr. Gladstone the minimum of work, and he is saved from all avoidable fatigue. If work is wanted to be done, there are always willing hands free to undertake and complete it, without delay or remonstrance. All correspondence is carefully sorted and weighed, and none but important letters are brought to notice on busy days. Mrs. Gladstone's solicitude for and care of her husband is a notable example for all wives, and to her care Mr. Gladstone has often attributed his escapes from illness, and not a little of his continuous good health. Yet Mrs. Gladstone never neglects her other duties. We can, speaking from personal experience, declare that Mrs. Gladstone, at the very busiest time of the year, has been most cheerfully and effectually aided the hospitals by her pen, while her convalescent home at Woodford is one of the most economically conducted institutions in the world.

The premier of the British Empire has little time to think of himself, but his own health and requirements. The strain upon mind and body is truly appalling to those who have a precise knowledge of the duties and responsibilities of this high office of state. So the duty of conserving and maintaining the health of the head of her majesty's government is by no means a light one, but Mr. Gladstone's condition today proves that Sir Andrew Clark is facile princeps. The physician in charge of such a patient has to look after the regime, diet, exercise, the hours of rest, to see that there is no undue strain in any one direction, and to exercise sufficient tact to win his patient to like the ways, which in his case tend to the continuance of sound health. All this and much more Sir Andrew has successfully accomplished in Mr. Gladstone's case, and the credit of this remarkable success must be shared by Mrs. Gladstone, to whom Sir Andrew would be the first to acknowledge his indebtedness.—London Hospital.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Indigestion, and Stomach Disorders, take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. All dealers keep it, $1 per bottle. Genuine has trade-mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Indigestion, and Stomach Disorders, take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. All dealers keep it, $1 per bottle. Genuine has trade-mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Indigestion, and Stomach Disorders, take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. All dealers keep it, $1 per bottle. Genuine has trade-mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Indigestion, and Stomach Disorders, take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. All dealers keep it, $1 per bottle. Genuine has trade-mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Indigestion, and Stomach Disorders, take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. All dealers keep it, $1 per bottle. Genuine has trade-mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Indigestion, and Stomach Disorders, take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. All dealers keep it, $1 per bottle. Genuine has trade-mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Indigestion, and Stomach Disorders, take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. All dealers keep it, $1 per bottle. Genuine has trade-mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Indigestion, and Stomach Disorders, take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. All dealers keep it, $1 per bottle. Genuine has trade-mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Indigestion, and Stomach Disorders, take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. All dealers keep it, $1 per bottle. Genuine has trade-mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Indigestion, and Stomach Disorders, take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. All dealers keep it, $1 per bottle. Genuine has trade-mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Indigestion, and Stomach Disorders, take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. All dealers keep it, $1 per bottle. Genuine has trade-mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Indigestion, and Stomach Disorders, take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. All dealers keep it, $1 per bottle. Genuine has trade-mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Indigestion, and Stomach Disorders, take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. All dealers keep it, $1 per bottle. Genuine has trade-mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Indigestion, and Stomach Disorders, take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. All dealers keep it, $1 per bottle. Genuine has trade-mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Indigestion, and Stomach Disorders, take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. All dealers keep it, $1 per bottle. Genuine has trade-mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Indigestion, and Stomach Disorders, take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. All dealers keep it, $1 per bottle. Genuine has trade-mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

FOR DYSPEPSIA, Indigestion, and Stomach Disorders, take BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. All dealers keep it, $1 per bottle. Genuine has trade-mark and crossed red lines on wrapper.

Christian Advocate.

Rev. D. L. MITCHEL, Publisher.
OFFICE: 112 CANT STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

SUBSCRIPTION. - $ PER ANNUM.
Ministers and wives of deceased Preachers, 50

Rev. C. W. Carter, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. Lewis, Ass't Editor.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

REV. J. M. BEARD, D. D.
REV. S. S. KERNER.

REV. J. B. A. AHRNS, D. D.
REV. W. C. BLACK, D. D.

REV. W. B. LEWIS.
REV. R. J. JONES.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

REV. W. T. J. SULLIVAN, D. D.
REV. J. D. CAMERON, D. D.

REV. T. C. WIER, M. D.

Thursday, September 22, 1892.

Conference Claimants.

The Conferences universally raise the money to keep their claimants from starvation by an annual collection. It is said by many preachers that this is the easiest collection to take, and yet we never get enough money by this means to support those dependent upon us. That something more ought to be done for this worthy class is apparent to everyone who thinks on the subject.

Our brethren of the M. E. Church have their troubles on this line as well as we, and some of them have taken the matter in hand to devise a plan which will result in increased funds for the claimants. Dr. Jay Benson Hamilton, of that church, has formulated a plan and sent it to the Annual Conference for adoption. We give our readers this plan, that they may see what he proposes, and consider if something of the kind would suit our latitude and circumstances. The plan strikes us favorably, excepting the last resolution. We do not think it quite the right thing to require every preacher to pay the same amount. We think each one should contribute, but the amount contributed should be a rate per cent. on salary, and not a fixed amount. With this exception, we think the plan proposed will be an improvement on the present plan.

Here is the plan:

I.—COLLECTION.

Each congregation shall observe a Sunday, to be known as Veterans' Day, upon which the pastor shall present this cause to the members of the church and emphasize their obligations to the Conference claimants. A collection shall be taken in the public congregation for the support of the Conference claimants separate from any other interest.

II.—DISTRIBUTION.

All money received for annual distribution in aid of the support of Conference claimants shall be divided into two sums: The first, consisting of seventy-five per cent. of the whole, shall be called the Annuity Fund; the second, consisting of twenty-five per cent. of the whole, shall be called the Necessitous Fund. All superannuated ministers, the widows, and children under fifteen years of age, of deceased ministers, shall be Conference claimants, unless the claim be voluntarily relinquished.

The Annuity Fund shall be divided among the claimants upon the following basis: Each minister shall receive annually ten dollars for each year of his effective service; each widow shall receive one-half her husband's claim; each child shall receive one-fifth its father's claim. These claims shall be paid pro rata from the money in hand.

The Necessitous Fund shall be divided among the claimants, whether superannuated, widows or children, whose annuities are insufficient for their needs, in such proportions as the Committee on Conference Claimants may deem equitable.

The gross allowance to each claimant from the above fund shall be reported to, and approved by, the Annual Conference.

Whereas, The carrying out of this plan will require an increased income for the support of Conference claimants; therefore, be it

Resolved, That each member of the Conference, except those who are superannuated, will be expected to contribute, at least, five dollars annually to the above funds.

Pursuing Fleas.

Fleas are sometimes very troublesome things; and yet it is not always a profitable employment to hunt fleas. The little fellows have such a springy way about them that just when you think your search is about to be rewarded with success, away they hop and leave you disappointed and fretted, and you come to the conclusion that inasmuch as "you thought you had him and didn't," it has been time and patience spent for nothing. In graver matters this same process too frequently prevails. People are too often pursuing fleas when larger things should be the chief object of pursuit.

It was very fine irony that David used to Saul when he asked him if he came out to pursue a flea. A king might find, and could find, something more noble to do! Why leave important affairs of state to spend days and weeks hunting a young stripling among the mountain fastnesses? There are many people like Saul now spending their time in frivolous pursuits, when nobler aims should fill their souls and good, brave deeds mark the course of their lives. The lives of many people amount to nothing more than a pitiful frittering away of precious time and golden opportunities.

When there is so much need for men and women with lofty aspirations and burning enthusiasm to throw themselves with full weight upon the side of righteousness and aid in the great work of lifting our degraded humanity out of its woes, it is discouraging to see them act the Saul and go hunting for fleas. The need of the hour is manliness—womanliness—backed by wise courage to do the noble part in the redemption of the world. Great opportunities are opening all around, great privileges everywhere invite action and great duties press with unwonted weight upon every soul; then why be content to spend life hunting fleas?

The most serious thing in this world is living; and no one can afford to make that consist mostly in things insignificant and unworthy. No one can afford to waste power in pursuing trifles when there is occasion everywhere to use it in protecting and carrying forward plans for the betterment of men around us. The loss of manhood and womanhood in the scramble for worthless things is a serious loss to the forces at work for good and noble things. Real men and women should be about graver matters than "hunting dead dogs or pursuing fleas!"

According to the Independent, "The program for the dedicatory ceremonies of the World's Fair has been completed. They will commence on Wednesday evening, Oct. 19, with a reception by President Harrison, his Cabinet and other guests at the Auditorium. On Thursday the civic celebration will occur, beginning with a procession of tableaux representing the ages and different events in the political and economical history of the Continent. Friday will be dedication day, the services to occur in the afternoon, including the orations by Judge Breckenridge and Chauncey M. Depew, and the dedication of the building by President Harrison. Saturday there will be military maneuvers and parades, and on each evening there will be brilliant displays."

The M. E. Church has in this country 102 Annual Conferences and 9 Mission Conferences. They have 22,884 churches, with a seating capacity of 6,302,708. They have 2,873 halls, etc., with a seating capacity of 275,444. The value of this church property is $96,723,408. The number of communicants is 2,240,354. These figures we take from the Census bulletin, as published in the Independent.

The Olympic's Early Fruit.

The object-lessons in the "manly art" given a short time since at the Olympic Club, in this city, are already beginning to bring forth fruit. Just as we predicted, the effect is seen first upon the young men. The schooling of young, promising manhood toward brutishness and beastliness has begun in Mississippi. Two young men of eighteen years each, "highly respectable citizens of Scott county," had a regular prize fight the other day. The papers say "it was a regular prize fight, fought strictly by all the rules, with the exception that no stake was put up or any charges made for seats." These two "highly respectable citizens of Scott county" went into hard training for the contest. At the appointed time, in the presence of "many spectators," these "highly respectable citizens" met and beat and banged and cuffed and mashed each other for twenty-seven rounds, when one of them was "knocked senseless." And this is said, by the paper reporting it, to have been "a scene of much amusement, witnessed in the little city of Forest by many spectators." The opinion of the reporter is that the victor "will develop into a regular prize fighter." How thorough the lesson must be, and what an apt scholar he is, when the transition is made so easily and quickly from a "highly respectable citizen" to a "prize fighter!" The seeds sown by the Olympic Club are germinating and springing up.

A Card.

Grateful to God beyond all expression for restored health, I desire to express something of my grateful appreciation of marked kindness and wise treatment received from my physicians, Dr. C. W. Harris, of Hattiesburg, and Dr. J. B. Chamberlain, of Moss Point, and from the specialist, Dr. Beall.

I must mention gratefully the tender solicitude, the loving prayers and the kind and helpful bearing of the preachers of my district and many of the laymen. Also brethren and friends from other parts of the Conference have comforted me by their communications of sympathy.

And now, with renewed devotion to the Master and renewed love to my fellows, by the grace of God, I mean henceforth to be a more godly and useful man.

By correspondence and by partial visitations I have been able to keep in touch with the pastors and churches of the district, and have been extremely gratified to see that preachers and people seemed determined that no detriment to the work should ensue from any lack of service by me. High praise is due them on this ground.

Carefully and prayerfully I have been husbanding my strength for the important fourth round of quarterly meetings, and have good prospects of meeting all the appointments. I beg of the preachers and laymen of the Seashore district that they continue to pray for me, and that they rally with me on this fourth round for the best possible results. Let each Quarterly Conference have full attendance, each member bringing the best possible report. God has been good to us all. There is no reason that perfect reports at Annual Conference should not close and crown the mercies of the Conference year.

Our Bro. Wood has fallen at his post. Promptly his work is taken up by other and efficient hands. I commend his widow to the sympathy and care of our people.

JOHN A. ELLIS,
Presiding Elder of Seashore District.

Here is a question for our statute book to solve: Is it not an absurd thing to license the drink-shop, and then tax the people for means to care for the criminals which the drink-shop turns out?

Millsaps College.

The faculty of Millsaps College met in the city of Jackson, Miss., Wednesday, Sept. 14. All the members were present, and the work of arranging, in all the details, the courses of study leading to the degrees of B. A., B. S. and M. A. was satisfactorily accomplished.

The B. A. Course, as indicated in our Announcement, will be the equivalent of that prescribed in the best colleges. Our B. S. Course is a most excellent one. The amount of work required in order to compass it, and the mental training involved, will make it equal to the B. A. Course. Students who take this course will be required to study French and German each for two years, instead of Greek and Latin. If they choose to do so, they may elect Latin in the B. S. Course instead of French or German. One of the modern languages, however, will be required in addition to Latin. In the classical course the modern languages will be allowed as electives in place of Latin and Greek after the sophomore year.

It gives me pleasure to state that the prospects for the opening of the college are bright and encouraging in a high degree. The accommodations for the boarding pupils are admirable. After personal inspection, I can say that our "Students' Homes" will furnish the very best conditions for the health and comfort of the students. The rooms are large and well ventilated, and supplied with new furniture.

Students expecting to enter the college are urged to be present on the twenty-ninth, as the work of classifying will begin immediately after the opening exercises.

I take this occasion to extend to the friends of Millsaps College a most cordial invitation to be present at the opening ceremonies.

W. B. MURRAH,
President.

The Chautauqua College.

The Chautauqua College, a department of the Chautauqua educational system distinct from the reading circle, offers the regular college curriculum and special college and preparatory courses to students at home who are no longer able to attend school or college. The work is accomplished through a system of correspondence between individual students in all parts of this and other countries, and professors in leading American institutions.

From time to time the instructor sends the student instruction papers to guide him in his study of the prescribed textbooks and to indicate the questions which are to be answered in writing. The work of the student is carefully corrected, with such notes, suggestions and references as may be needed in each case, and returned to him for review. The method requires more work on the part of the student, but as he must write out on paper the whole of every lesson it must be thorough. An advantage of this system is that each student may cover the ground rapidly or slowly, as his own circumstances may determine, without being hurried or hindered by class-mates.

The annual calendar of the college, which has just been published for this year, shows courses adapted to students of all grades, from those who have only a common-school education to the most advanced. It also shows the professional record of the instructors.

Although the office of the college is located at Buffalo, N. Y., the college itself extends from the eight or ten colleges and schools, where its instructors are engaged, to all the villages, towns and cities where its individual students are working.

A Good Backing.

MR. EDITOR: Your editorial on "Endowment for Our Superannuates" is a strong and timely call for action in regard to a matter of the greatest importance. What you suggest seems to be entirely practical, and I doubt not that, with proper effort, our $15,000 start toward an endowment might be run up to $50,000, or even $100,000. The Conference Minutes show that last year our presiding elders received $6,491.42, and our preachers in charge $47,774.13, making a total of $54,265.55. Now, two per cent. on this amount would add $1,085.31 to the present $15,000. So, if every preacher in the Louisiana Conference would at Conference pay into this endowment fund only two per cent. of his receipts, there would be a yearly gain to that fund of more than one thousand dollars. Paying his two per cent., let every preacher throughout the year get from the laity all possible amounts, running from one dollar upwards, for this endowment. In all of our charges there are those who have money ability and who, after a personal and thorough presentation of the matter, might be induced to increase the fund by the gift of handsome sums.

There are various legitimate plans by which we Louisiana Methodists can raise a creditable endowment fund for the benefit of our worn-out preachers, and yet in no way lessen our regular collections for Conference claimants. It might be that the putting of a competent man in the field would quicker accomplish the desired object. However, it is well for the brethren to do as you suggest: At Lake Charles, in December, settle upon some good plan, and then faithfully work that plan to a success.

JOHN T. SAWYER.

Sept. 15, 1892.

NOTES FROM OUR JACKSON OFFICE.

"The light of nature is sufficient to tell us that the soul is immortal, so that the hell who doubts it is a worse fool than the heathen, for he, before revelation was given, had discovered it."—Spurgeon.

Miss Bettie Hughes passed through Jackson, Friday, Sept. 9, en route to St. Louis, where she was to meet the other seven missionaries who go out under the auspices of the Woman's Board of Missions. The party of eight were to have sailed from San Francisco, Cal., on the City of Peking, Saturday, the seventeenth. May the prayers of the church go up for their prosperous journey and abundant success in the far-off land to which they go.

Bro. Barnabas Pipkin, well known personally to the older men of the church in Mississippi and Louisiana, and to the rest of us in history, was asked when on his death-bed if he had any message for his brethren of the Mississippi Conference. "Tell them," said he, "to preach Christ and him crucified, and guard the door of the Conference." After a moment's thought he said: "Possibly that last remark needs explanation. The time is coming when preaching will become a profession instead of a calling, and men seeking easy places will enter the Conference to make an easy living." Have we any evidences that there is any likelihood of this prophecy becoming true?

We have heard the statement made that Bishop Galloway and Bro. Watkins entered into a compact with the citizens of Jackson that the location of Millsaps College would never interfere with the whisky traffic of this city. We have not had an opportunity of consulting either of these brethren; but, knowing them to be men of unimpeachable Christian integrity, we take the liberty of emphatically denying such a report. We think we know whereof we speak when we say no understanding of any kind was ever had between the whisky element of Jackson and the Board of Trustees. The Board of Trustees of Millsaps College is composed of Christian gentlemen and ministers of the gospel. Your own conclusions can be drawn as to whether there is foundation for such a report.

Millsaps College opens next Thursday, just one week from this date. The last report from the boarding-houses was that they were being rapidly filled with students. It is not yet too late to make arrangements, but try and have your boys here to witness the opening ceremony.

NOTES.

This is the place for the Mississippi to send his boy. Jackson, while not a paradise, is not worse than the average town of the State, and not near so bad as some we have visited this year, all reports and publications to the contrary. A boy who has been raised properly by his parents will be in no greater danger here than at Centenary, Vanderbilt, Greensboro, or any other school. Come and see for yourself. If you have any doubts, and don't let hasty and thoughtless remarks keep you from improving this golden opportunity.

It has been said of Wilbur Fisk that he "considered whatever he undertook to be the greatest thing in the world." "Ecclesiastical pugnacity" is in more favor with some Christians than the charity of which Paul disapproved in his first letter to the Corinthians.

"Christianity distinctly declines to be proved first and practiced afterwards. Its practice and its proof go hand in hand. Its real evidence is its power."

In a little sketch of Aaron Burr, which we read the other day, the writer said that Burr was the author of the phrase, "The right man in the right place."

Don't be too hard on the secular papers. We would never know half of what the devil is doing if we didn't have those papers. They are his "bulletins," so to speak.

"A little envy, a little malice and a little tale-bearing" is a first-class prescription to hinder a preacher's work and put a spot upon his reputation and destroy his usefulness.

Fix in your mind the real meaning of lying; now run over in your past the number of people who are convicted of that crime by the very meaning of the word, and you are bound to exclaim with Falstaff, "How this world is given to lying!"

We are inclined to think that there are too many "brilliant" young men coming into the ministry. We prefer to see some of the old-time "plodders" work their way in. When a man works his way in he is generally sticks. When he vaults in, he just as easily vaults out. Give us dull plodders, not jumping brilliants.

Dr. Alexander MacLaren is considered by many good judges as the foremost preacher in Great Britain. He was recently asked to give the pulpit his method of making sermons. His reply is worth pondering by every preacher: "I know no method, except to think about a text until you have something to say about it, and then to go and say it, with as little thought of self as possible." Let every maker of sermons consider carefully that big sentence.

The Alabama Advocate has this:

The character of the clergy determines the character of the church. "Like priest, like people," has been ridiculed no little, but there is more truth than poetry in the old adage for all that. Show us a godless pastor and we will show you a godless church.

We dislike to spoil so good a thing as that, but we must modestly suggest that our contemporary has "the old adage" exactly backwards. If his argument is good, if he will turn the adage around as it is given in the book, then the conclusion will be, "Show us a godless church and we will show you a godless pastor." Moral: Verify your quotations before you build on them.

The following obituary notice will be read with tearful, and at the same time, with profitable interest: "DIED.—In Laodicea, the Prayer Meeting, aged three years and one month. The health of this little Meeting was poor most of last year, during which its life was often despaired of. A few anxious friends kept it alive, and at times it would so revive as to encourage them. Disparagement at last prevailed and the Meeting died from neglect. Over forty Christians were living within a quarter of a mile, and not one was there. Had two been there its life might have been saved, for 'where two or three are gathered together in my name,' etc. Two-thirds of the forty might have been there, had they been so disposed, but they were not, and the Prayer Meeting died." Now, this is an old notice, but how many prayer meetings of the present day does it describe?—Mid-Continent.

We want our people to see how they treat a faithful servant. The political parties of our State are not doing one-tenth as much for the interests of the people as this church is doing, and yet they can have their newspaper organs, by the score, and almost hundreds, libelously patronized and supported by our church, with all its great work and reaching half of the members even, and hence not doing half the good it should. Now, what does all this mean? Plainly that the spirit of loyalty to politics is stronger than to the church. Men talk politics and talk it until they feel that they must have the thing in going. Why not talk the grander work of church, and continue to talk it until all must have the church organ that they might know the success of the kingdom of heaven? And why should we not let God and man know that we appreciate the work of Christ, and appreciate it above all other.—Waynesville Christian Advocate.

PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE.

Rev. J. W. Medlock sends us five dollars for Bro. Foust's home.

It is a rare sort of knowledge to know what you can not do!

Dr. J. D. Vinoli has been secretary of the Missouri Conference thirty years!

There were nine brides in attendance at the recent session of the Missouri Conference.

Twelve preachers were admitted into the Missouri Conference at the late session.

Dr. Beard lately closed a good meeting at his mission school on Annunciation street, which resulted in fifteen conversions to the church.

Rev. Robert Randle, our pastor at Alexandria, La., has had a serious spell of bilious fever. We are glad to report his convalescence.

It is said that the 8,400 saloons of New York City average $6,500 receipts a year. Figure that out and see what enormous amount it is.

It has been estimated by Senator Hawley that forty millions of people petitioned Congress against opening the World's Fair on Sunday.

We are glad to learn from Bro. Foust's card, in another column, that he is improved in health, and all who know him and his good wife will rejoice with us.

Rev. J. S. Parker, our pastor at Hattiesburg, Miss., spent an hour with us Thursday. He had come thus far with his son, who was on his way to Wesleyan College.

The Youth's Companion, of Sept. 8, publishes "The Official Programme for the National Columbian Public School Celebration of Oct. 21, 1892." See it clipped on third page of this paper.

While the preachers are busy gathering up their Conference collections, let them remember that some of their people are in debt to the ADVOCATE. We hope they will gather that in, too.

The missionary secretaries of the M. Church have called upon the pastors and members of that church to observe the week from Sept. 25 to Oct. 3 as self-denial week, in the interest of missions.

John Walter, Lee was licensed to preach the gospel by the Quarterly Conference of the Lower Coast Mission, at Saturday. He expects to apply for admission into the Louisiana Conference at its next session.

The great tent revival meeting by the celebrated and successful revivalist, Mr. George Inge, will begin on next Thursday, Sept. 15. The tent, it is thought, will be located south of Cemetery street, and will be amply large to accommodate the vast attendance expected—Water Valley Progress.

Rev. W. H. LaPrade, of New Orleans, gave the Wesleyan office a pleasant call last Saturday. He is looking well and gives a cheerful account of Methodism in his great city. He and his wife are spending a few weeks among friends in Georgia. They receive a cordial greeting, and old Georgia is still warm in their affections.—Wesleyan Christian Advocate.

Another Methodist preacher ahead! An American, of Lake Charles, La., is this one of our pastors in that city.

Rev. J. B. Kent returned last Monday from his regular appointment at Calcasieu and brought with him to this office two fine stalks of cane. They were grown on Capt. James Root's place, on land which had been in cultivation six years. No fertilizers were used. The longest stalk measured nearly eight feet, with fifteen joints.

The Webster Signal, Minden, La., speaks thus of the public school of that town:

Minden has one of the best public schools in the State. Free tuition for all living in the incorporation; a faculty of seven teachers and an enrollment the first week of one hundred and fifty. Can any town the size of Minden in the State do better, or show a better record in public schools?

That is a gratifying note, and the sample is commended to all our towns. Why not have such a school in every town?

Revival Notes from Meridian District.

Marion circuit, Rev. G. Bancroft, C. Lockhart Church—3 accessions. Why Not circuit, Rev. Fletcher B. Raymond, L. P.: 4 accessions and 4 baptisms.

Linwood circuit, Rev. W. J. Dawson, C. Pleasant Grove School-house—6 accessions and 7 children baptized.

Vossburg circuit, Rev. B. S. Rayner, P. C.: Pachina Church, 6 accessions; Central Church, 4 accessions.

Chunkey circuit, Rev. P. Howse, P. C.: Sagoville Church, 4 accessions; Concord Church, 1 accession.

Daleville station, Rev. R. F. Witt, C. 1 accession.

East End, Meridian, Rev. N. M. Clark, P. C.: 1 conversion and accession at prayer meeting, making four conversions this year at Bro. Clark's regular Wednesday night prayer meeting.

T. L. Mellen, P. E.

Notices.

Brethren wishing blank "applications for aid" to the Board of Church Extension of the North Mississippi Conference will please write to Rev. T. B. Hargrove, secretary, Greenwood, Miss., for them: J. D. CAMERON, Ch'n., Winona, Miss.

Recapitulation for Mississippi Conference to Pay Missionary Debt—Lambuth Plan.

MERIDIAN DISTRICT.

Vossburg circuit.....$50
Meridian, Central..... 1

Time is passing, brethren. Let presiding elders and preachers in charge cordially co-operate with the district solicitors and press the collections vigorously. Let the plea of "hard times" be overruled. Let the work of the Master go forward.

Bro. M. H. Moore, solicitor for the Seashore district, writes that his success so far has been due very largely to the co-operation of the pastors in the places visited by him. God bless every one of those dear brethren.

T. L. Mellen,
Miss. Conf. Solicitor.

Opening at Whitworth.

The friends of Whitworth College are elated this morning over the splendid opening. The number of new girls entering the college exceeds the most sanguine expectations of the president, and nearly, or quite, all those who were there last season are returning. In view of the stringency of the times, this is a remarkable showing, as well as a high compliment to the untiring efforts of President Fitzhugh to give his pupils the best advantages money and experience can secure.

J. M. WEEMS.

Brookhaven, Miss., Sept. 19, 1892.

This note explains itself:

Shreveport, La., Sept. 15, 1892.
BRO. BLOOMER: Enclosed please find money order for $5 for Bro. Foust, to be used in purchasing a home.

FROM A FEW ADVOCATE READERS.

Biliousness, Dyspepsia,
SICK HEADACHE, WEAK STOMACH,
—AND ALL—
Disorders of The Liver.

TESTIMONY.

I have used Brodie's Pills for many years in my family and have found them invaluable in all cases, and as a Liver Pill do not think they have an equal.

GEO. H. WILLY.

Sold By All Druggists.
Price, 25c. a Box.

L. L. LYONS & CO., Prop's,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

BELMONT COLLEGE.
Nashville, Tenn.

Regent, Rev. R. A. Young, D. D.
Principals: Miss Hoon, Miss Heron.

Object, to train girls by strengthening and developing the threefold nature. Exceptional advantages, influences, and environments. Situated on a beautiful height overlooking the city. Health record unsurpassed. Steam heat, gas, hot and cold water. Handsome Recreation Hall, large verandas, almost every room opening on a balcony. Magnificent park with conservatories, pavilions, statuary, walks and drives, bowling alley, gymnasium and laboratory. Handsome new building on the north front, giving increased facilities and ample and elegant accommodations.

English Education Thorough, Solid, and Practical. Teachers from Wesleyan College, Vanderbilt University, and Harvard Annex; also teachers of long and successful experience in the South. French and German in charge of native teachers. Music according to principles of famous European conservatories; teachers educated abroad. Art on plan of best Schools of Dresden. Strictly non-sectarian. Students attending church of parents' choice. See Belmont, or send to Miss Heron for illustrated line and bronze catalogue.

Revival Notes from Meridian District.
Marion circuit, Rev. G. Bancroft, C. Lockhart Church—3 accessions. Why Not circuit, Rev. Fletcher B. Raymond, L. P.: 4 accessions and 4 baptisms.
Linwood circuit, Rev. W. J. Dawson, C. Pleasant Grove School-house—6 accessions and 7 children baptized.
Vossburg circuit, Rev. B. S. Rayner, P. C.: Pachina Church, 6 accessions; Central Church, 4 accessions.
Chunkey circuit, Rev. P. Howse, P. C.: Sagoville Church, 4 accessions; Concord Church, 1 accession.
Daleville station, Rev. R. F. Witt, C. 1 accession.
East End, Meridian, Rev. N. M. Clark, P. C.: 1 conversion and accession at prayer meeting, making four conversions this year at Bro. Clark's regular Wednesday night prayer meeting.

T. L. Mellen, P. E.

Hall's Hair Renewer contains the natural food and color-matter for the hair, and medicinal herbs for the scalp, curing grayness, baldness, dandruff, and scalp sores.

It Hurts
nothing that can be washed or cleaned—Pearline. The purest soap is no safer—the poorest soap is no cheaper. It is more effective than the strongest—it is more convenient than the best. Pearl Line saves labor and wear in washing clothes or cleaning house. A few cents will let you try it; common sense will make you use it.

Beware

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearl Line." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back. 283 JAMES PYLE, N.Y.

ADVANTAGEOUS OFFER

to

OLD AND NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

SUBSCRIBERS indebted to the

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

remitting amount due and Two Dollars for a year's subscription in advance, will be credited with

Four Months' Additional Subscription.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS remitting

Two Dollars will be furnished this paper UNTIL JAN. 1, 1894.

This offer holds good until Nov. 1, next.

Millsaps College,
Jackson, Miss.

Session Begins Sept. 29th, 1892.

Full Faculty, Thorough Course,
GOOD ENDOWMENT.

New and Commodious Buildings.

Beautiful, Central and Healthful Location at the Capital of the State.

Cheap Board. No Tuition. Moderate Matriculation Fee.

Liberal provision made for young preachers and sons of preachers.

For terms, catalogue or other information apply to

REV. W. B. MURRAH, D. D., President,

or REV. A. F. WATKINS, Agent, Jackson, Miss.

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY, Pres't of Board of Trustees.

WAYNESBORO COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

WAYNESBORO, MISS.

W. W. MOORE, A. M., President.
(Southern University.)

Miss CLARA BLOCK, A. M., Primary.
(E. M. F. C. and Peabody Normal.)

J. C. AUST, Telegraphy, etc.

ALEX. POWE, Vice-President.
(Southern University.)

Miss LUCY ANDREWS, Music.
(New England Conservatory.)

Our course of study embraces the Classics and English, also Telegraphy, Music, Shorthand Bookkeeping and Printing. An unlimited number of boys and girls may secure board on the cheapest plan ever known to any Southern school. Board and tuition need not exceed ten dollars per month.

Write for catalogue. Next session opens Sept. 12, 1892. Write to

REV. W. W. MOORE, A. M., President.

CENTENARY COLLEGE, Jackson, La.

Jackson, La., is near Elbert, on the Valley R. R., 113 miles north of New Orleans. The location is beautiful and healthful, the buildings are elegant and ample, and the Faculty is complete and able. The sale of intoxicating drinks is forbidden by law within five miles of the College. Its endowment fund is being rapidly increased, and the College has entered upon a new era of prosperity.

Special attention will be given to the health, morals and biblical instruction of the students. For terms, Catalogue, or other information apply to Prof. G. H. Wiley, Jackson, La., or to W. L. O. HUNNIOTT, President.

A SPLENDID INVESTMENT

Is your money well invested? Do you want it to earn you a good round per cent. per annum? Do you want it to yield more than ever before? This stock is

The Woman's Publishing Co.

Of Minneapolis, Minn., offers this SPLENDID OPPORTUNITY to small as well as large investors. This Company owns "The Housekeeper," "The Ladies' Journal," "The Home," "The Cook," "The Practical Housekeeper," two of the most universally known household and housekeeping, of which nearly 1,000,000 copies have been sold. "Home Decorative Work" and "Ladies' Journal," "The Housekeeper," "The Ladies' Journal," "The Home," "The Cook," "The Practical Housekeeper," and "The Housekeeper," are all published by this Company. The capital stock of the Woman's Publishing Company could be sold at once, but this is not our plan. We prefer that it should be widely scattered, in small amounts, so that a large number of women will have a personal interest in the welfare of our Company and lend their influence towards still further popularizing "The Housekeeper." With this influence the subscription list of "The Housekeeper" and surely reach 250,000, and the according to the conservative estimate, of an export in such matters, our business should yield a net yearly profit of over $50,000. Our field being the whole English-speaking world, the possibilities of "The Housekeeper" are practically unlimited.

We Want the Co-operation of Women

In all parts of the country, who believe with us and of us, in sympathy, influence and effort, shall participate and share in the increasing profits earned. We have decided to offer 100 shares of

Full Paid Non-assessable Stock at $10 per Share TO BE

Sold Only to Women.

The cost of the stock is made $10 so that every lady reader of this paper can buy at least one share and as many more as desired. Terms of payment are arranged to suit the purchaser. This affords ladies an OPPORTUNITY to INVEST a small or large amount of money in something that is unquestionably reliable, and that will bring a large profit to every stockholder. The various properties of the Woman's Publishing Company already have yielded large profits and under the plans contemplated are certain to yield still greater results. Send us a deposit of $1.00 and say how many shares of stock you want and we will reserve them for you until you can arrange your money matters to make full payment. Stock sold on instalments by payment of $1.00 and upwards per month, if desired.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:

KATE RUFFINGTON DAVIS, Minneapolis, Member of the Board of the Advisory Council of the Woman's Department of the World's Columbian Exposition.
CORINTH S. BROWN, Chicago, of the World's Congress Auxiliary of the World's Columbian Exposition.
LOUISE JEWELL MANNING, President and Director of the Manning School of Oratory, Minneapolis.
MARY B. JAMES, Minneapolis, prominent and active in all philanthropic work.
MRS. ALICE HOUGHTON, Spokane, Wash., Member of the Board of Lady Managers of the World's Columbian Exposition, also Superintendent of the Woman's Department of the State of Washington.
MISS HATTIE TWITCHELL, Director of the Minneapolis Froebel Institute, for the training of teachers in Kindergarten and Schularian systems.
SARAH B. VROOMAN, Kansas City, Kansas, distinguished in Temperance and all Christian-tyric movements.

OUR PROSPECTUS, giving full information with portraits of officers, is sent FREE to any woman who will write for it. Make checks, drafts or money orders payable to

WOMAN'S PUBLISHING COMPANY,
16, 18 and 20 Fourth Street North, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

We refer to Farmers and Merchants State Bank, and Century Investment Co., of Minneapolis, also the Editor of this paper.

Office Telephone, 82.

Yard Telephone, 331.

Pennsylvania Coal Company,

Office, 87 Carondelet Street.

PITTSBURGH COAL,

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

L. S. WIDNEY, Manager.

Cotton Presses, Factories, and the Family trade supplied at Lowest Market Rates.

CITY YARDS: Foot of Robin Street, Foot of Desire Street, Corner Short and St. Charles Avenue.

EIGHTH YEAR.

—MUSICAL ART.—

(INCORPORATED.)

PILCHER'S
STUDIO: OF: MUSIC,
and SCHOOL OF LANGUAGES.
(Established 1855.)

169 St. Charles Street. Next to Washington Artillery Hall.

Ample accommodations for Boarding Students. The Boarding Department is under the direct supervision of Mrs. Wm. Pilcher, Sr.

Music Taught in All Its Branches. Twenty-five teachers in the various departments. Graduates and other pupils who have attended this institution are now occupying positions of more or less prominence throughout the country. Send for Seventh Annual Catalogue.

WILLIAM H. PILCHER, President, New Orleans, La.

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE, MAON, GA.

Annual session begins Sept. 21, 1892. Largest patronage in State. Apply for catalogue to W. C. BASS, D. D., Pres.

SOUTHERN FEMALE COLLEGE, PETERSBURG, VA.

Literature, Languages, Science. Conservatory advantages in Music and Art. All modern improvements. 8th Session. Terms low. Send for catalogue to A. M. DAVIS, A. M., President, Petersburg, Va.

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL, PETERSBURG, VA.

The 28th Annual Session of this School for Boys begins 3rd of October, (1st Monday). Thorough preparation for University of Va., U. S. Military and Naval Academies, leading Engineering Schools and Colleges. For catalogue, address W. GORDON McCABE, Head Master.

KESWICK ALBEMARLE CO., VA. SCHOOL.

Location in the country, near York, Va., beautiful and beautiful. Christian and refined social influences. Boys prepared for University, U. S. Military and Naval Academies or business. Special attention to backward young men. Number of pupils so limited that each may be individually cared for. Testimonials of good moral and social standing required for entrance. Address J. M. PAGE, M. A., Ph. D., Sen. Principal, or T. W. PAGE, A. M., Jun. Principal, COBBAM, VA.

185 Canal St.
New Orleans, La.,
Is Selling PIANOS and ORGANS at Great Reductions.

CHAFELETTE.

Write for Catalogues and get our prices and terms.

L. GRUNEWALD CO., Ltd.,

LOW PRICES! TIME PAYMENTS!

STEINWAY,
KNABE,
CHICKERING,
BEHR, MEHLIN,

SOHMER, PLEYEL,
FISCHER,
SHONINGER,
OPERA.

OLD PIANOS TAKEN IN EXCHANGE.

PIANOS AND ORGANS!

127 Canal St., 14 to 20 Baronne St., NEW ORLEANS.

Write for terms and further particulars.

VERTIGO.
Persons apparently in good health are often troubled with "swimming" in the head, "nausea" and vomiting, often followed by the digestive organs and constipation. This unpleasant and often dangerous affliction will be cured by which relieve the engorged liver and remove the cause through the bowels.

TUTT'S
Tiny Liver Pills

SOLE OFFICE, 39 Park Place, N. Y. City.

Clinton Female Academy
(Chartered in 1832.)
Will Open Monday, Sept. 5, 1892.

Course thorough. Charges lower than offered by any school of its grade in the South.

CHARLES PER MONTH.

Tuition per Month	$2.00 to $3.00
Board	1.00
Wash. and Fuel	1.00
Laundry	1.00
Incidental Expenses	1.00
Board, Tuition, Wash. and Fuel, and Laundry	$2.00 per Month
For particulars address the Principal.

MRS. S. E. MUNDAY, Clinton, La.

Lauderdale Training-School,
At LAUDERDALE, MISSISSIPPI.
(Institution of M. and O. and E. T. 13 miles north of Meridian.)

H. E. HARRIS, A. H. (V. U.)
G. W. BURTON, A. M. (S. N.)

We furnish thorough training, and prepare students for College and University work. Total cost per year in nine months, $120. For prospectus, address

G. W. BURTON, Sec.,
Lauderdale, Miss.

State Normal School,
NATCHITOCHES, LA.

Reopens Oct. 3, 1892. Both Sexes Admitted.
Attendance Last Session, 270.

Faculty of eleven able instructors. Unsurpassed in beauty and healthfulness of location, thoroughness of instruction, and perfection of discipline. Diploma entitles holder to First Grade teacher's certificate without examination. Tuition free. Total expense need not exceed $110 per annum.

For particulars, address
THOS. D. BOYD, President.

NATURE'S OWN REMEDY!

Bear Lithia Water
Cures Kidney and Bladder Troubles, Uric Acid, Gout and Rheumatism, Phosphoric Deposits, Inflammation of the Bladder, Dropsical Affections, Brick Dust Deposits, and Dyspepsia.

FOR SALE BY
CLARK & MEADER,
10 and 12 CARondelet ST.

BRANCH:
Cor. ST. CHARLES and NAPOLEON Avenues

The Book and Its Theme;
OR, THE BIBLE AND ITS MISSION.

By Rev. L. L. PICKETT.
286 Pages, Cloth, Price, $1.00.

A Few Good Words.
Rev. R. M. Thompson: I have found this book one of the most pleasant companions I ever met. I wish everybody had a copy of it and would read it.

New Orleans Christian Advocate: The author has evidently given thorough study to his subject, and presents some new views of old doctrine and makes some strenuous proofs in reply to objections to the "second blessing" theory of sanctification.

Rev. L. L. PICKETT, Columbia, S. C.

AGENTS WANTED ON SALARY
or commission, to handle the new "Patent" chemical ink Erasing Pencil. The quickest and greatest selling novelty ever produced. Erases ink thoroughly in two seconds. No abrasion of paper. Works like magic. 200 to 400 per cent. profit. One Agent's salary amounted to $670 in six days. Another $33 in two hours. Previous experience not necessary. For terms and full particulars, address, The Monroe Eraser Mfg Co., La Crosse, Wis.

A Concise Cyclopedia of Religious Knowledge.

965 Double-Column Pages. Beautifully Illustrated.

EVERY BIBLE STUDENT NEEDS ONE.

THE LATEST! THE BEST!
Agents wanted at once all over Louisiana.

Address
F. D. Van Valkenburgh,
106 CAMP ST., - NEW ORLEANS, LA.

HOPKINS' PRINTING OFFICE,
20 Commercial Place,
John P. Hopkins, New Orleans.

ALL KINDS OF PRINTING.

Do You Want Teachers?

WE DO; and we can put you in correspondence with such as you want, free of charge.

SOUTHERN TEACHERS' BUREAU,
Winchester, Tenn.

PISO'S CURE FOR CHRONIC BRONCHITIS
Cures Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Hay Fever, and all other Bronchial Affections. Sold by all druggists.

HOME LIFE.

THE POET'S PRAYER.

BY J. G. WHITTIER.

If there be some weaker one,
Oiva me strength to help him on;
If a blunderer there be,
Lend me guidance near thee;
With the work I faint would do;
Clothe with life the weak intent,
Let me be the thing I mean,
Let me find in thy employ,
Peace that dearest is than joy;
Out of love be led;
And to heaven acclimated,
Until all things sweet and good
Seem my natural habitude.

Four C's.

How shall our young people succeed in religious work? In what way can they become more effective? What mistakes can be avoided? What methods will win? Many are very anxious to know. We will write down four words that always stand for success. Each begins with C:

1. Conviction. Christian service should not be a mere whim. It should not be a matter of convenience. Its oughtness should be keenly felt. Personal responsibility should be realized. Every word spoken and every act performed must be based upon a conviction of the rightness of the thing, and our personal obligation to speak or do. Away with sentimentality! Away with impulse! Away with mere emotion! Do duty because of the conviction which burns like a hot fire in the soul.

2. Courage. Courage is imperative. It underlies every achievement. Unless we have moral nerve to live out our convictions, they are of small account. The church can spare young people of slimy verities. She needs the kind who dare to do what they believe to be right. Backbone is a Christian virtue. Christians workers never win. Perpendicular Christians count. They are not afraid to stand with the minority. They command respect, and bring things to pass.

3. Concentration. Once it was popular to speculate on the one idea. They do not do so now. The one idea man has shown himself to be a power. This is an age of specialties and specialists. The "jack of all trades" is master of none. Guns that scatter bring down no game. Focused light makes heat. Steam diffused is useless, but, confined and compressed, it can do marvels. The principle holds good in the Christian life. He who tries to do twenty things at the same time does nothing at all. But he who plans and prays and toils for one specific result generally secures it. Condense. Compact. Take aim.

4. Consistency. Is God's cause worthy of your service at all? Then it is worthy of your best. Give yourself to him utterly. Cut loose from worldliness. Cut loose from baubles and sins. Pay the price. Give body, spirit, talents, time, possessions, friends, influence—all. Have no mental reservations. Surrender unconditionally. Surrender to-day.—Lyonsworth Herald.

Authors Poorly Paid.

There is nothing more severely tested by time than literature. If a book holds its place among books through a century, we may conclude that it has something that can not be destroyed by time. There are many books that have come down to us through one, two, or three centuries, that are still as fresh as the day they were first published. Indeed, they are prized more highly to-day than when they were first sent forth.

These valuable works, which have been so severely tested, brought very little pecuniary profit to their authors. After the earnest labor of Calvin with his pen, death found him in the possession of a library and about three hundred crowns. How poorly paid were Baxter and Bunyan for the works which are still sent forth by nearly all our publishing houses. When Locke received thirty pounds for his essay on "The Human Understanding," and Milton a few pounds for "Paradise Lost," neither of them probably thought that time would reverse the judgment of the publisher; but the many editions which have been sent out in the years which have passed show that their worth can not be computed.

Homer Greeley spent twenty years in contribution to his able paper before he attempted to send forth a book. But notwithstanding all the preparation of this thoughtful, capable man, his book yielded him no return in money. His second venture was no more successful, and the third and fourth brought but little beyond their cost.

Wordsworth once told Matthew Arnold that his poetry had not brought him enough to buy shoestrings. Longfellow laughingly remarked to a literary friend: "Ah, you young fellows have had the luck to come along at a time when good prices prevail. You would think differently, if you had written as many poems for five dollars a piece as I have." Carlyle said: "My books were not, nor ever will be popular, productive of money to any but a contemptible degree." Sheridan, a man of some ability as a writer, said: "I have no time for law studies. Mrs. Sheridan and myself were often obliged to keep writing for our daily leg or shoulder of mutton, otherwise we should have had no dinner."—Christian at Work.

A Chief Cause of Crime.

Often when I have been asked what are the causes, or what is the particular cause, that sends most of our men to prison, I have of late years invariably answered, "The want of family discipline."

The indulgence of the father and mother, who allow the child to grow up without any discipline to form character, leads almost inevitably to evil ways and, consequently, to prison.

The child, even of tender years, who is indulged in its natural waywardness, and who is allowed to say to its father or its mother, "I will," or "I won't," is in a fair way to become an inmate of our penal institutions.

Parents are also responsible for the waywardness of their children which leads them to late crime, from a practice of deceiving them.

The intelligent child when deceived by its parent in small things, is likely to form evil habits, which in its future life will not be easily eradicated.

This can not be better illustrated than by the growth of fruit and other trees. If they are allowed in the first year of their growth to become crooked, distorted and out of shape, it is found nearly, or quite impossible, in later years to bring them into symmetry and to make perfect trees of them.

So with the child. Its early training lasts for a lifetime, and unless there are elements in its character, and will power, to correct its evil bringing up, it naturally grows worse and worse as it grows older.—Ed. Warden A. A. Brush, of Miss Sing.

Remarkable Memories.

There was a Corsican boy who could rehearse 40,000 words, whether sense or nonsense, as they were dictated, and then repeat them in the reversed order without making a single mistake. A physician, about sixty years ago, could repeat the whole of "Paradise Lost" without making a mistake, although he had not read it for twenty years. But, the great mathematician, when he became blind, could repeat the whole of Virgil's "Æneid," and could remember the first line and last line of every page of the particular edition which he had been accustomed to read before he became blind. One kind of retentive memory may be considered as the result of sheer work, a determination toward one particular achievement without reference either to cultivation or memory on other subjects. This is frequently shown by persons in regard to the Bible. An old beggar man at Striling, known fifty years ago as "Blind Allick," afforded an instance of this. He knew the whole of the Bible by heart, in season that if a sentence was read to him he could name the book, chapter and verse, or if the book, chapter and verse were named he could give the exact words. A gentleman to test him repeated a verse, purposely making some inaccuracy. Allick hesitated, named the place where the passage was to be found, but at the same time pointed out the verbal error. The same gentleman asked him to repeat the nineteenth verse of the seventeenth chapter of the Book of Numbers. Allick almost instantly replied: "There is no such verse. That chapter has only eighty-nine verses." Cassell had acquired by heart 6,000 Latin verses, and in order to give his memory exercise he was in the habit of daily reciting 600 verses from different languages.—Spare Moments.

Words.

In a choice article entitled "Silver Speech and Golden Silence," in the November number of The Quiver, Felix Fery says some wonderful things regarding the wonderful power of words in the common uses of every-day intercourse and tells the following interesting anecdote:

That is a beautiful anecdote of a compassionate, pardoning word which is related of the great composer, Liszt, and a young girl pianist in a foreign capital. The beginner had never met Liszt, but was tempted by the urgent need of success to describe herself on her programmes as his pupil. He was far away, and not likely to hear of the deception. But before the day of the announced concert Liszt by accident arrived in the city; and the miserable girl learned the fact from the newspaper. So dreading a deserved and fatal exposure, she remembered her last sight of Liszt. She went straight to the composer, told him of her temptation and her fall, and threw herself on his grace. Liszt questioned her, commanded her to play, corrected her execution of his music, then gently said: "Now, mademoiselle, you own truthfully say that you are a pupil of Liszt, for you have had your first lesson. You may also put on your programmes that you will be assisted by your master, who will play two pieces at your concert." With a rare magnanimity Liszt had saved the girl from disgrace and disaster. It is such treatment that often makes repentance deep and sincere. . . .

Words of encouragement to the weak, and of solace to the sad, of forbearance and large-hearted charity, heaping coals of fire on an offender's head; these belong of indelible to the province of speech that is living. So do the words of the peacemaker, of the faithful friend, and above all, of the gentle Christian teacher who would point young aspirations heavenward.—Christian Weekly.

The Sin of Fretting.

There is one sin which it seems to me is everywhere, and by everybody underestimated, and quite too much overlooked in valuations of character. It is the sin of fretting. It is as common as air, as speech—so common that unless it rises above its usual monotone we do not even observe it. Watch any ordinary coming together of people, and see how many minutes it will be before somebody frets—that is, makes a more or less complaining statement of something or other, which probably everyone in the room, or on the stage, or in the car, or street corner, as it may be, knew before, and which, most probably, nobody can help. Why say anything about it? It is cold, it is hot, it is wet, it is dry; somebody has broken an appointment, it is cooked a meal; stupidity or bad faith somewhere has resulted in discomfort. There are always plenty of things to fret about. It is simply a astonishing how much annoyance and discomfort may be found in the course of every day's living, even the simplest, if one only keeps a sharp eye out on that side of things. Even if I write away, we are born to trouble as sparks fly upward. But even to the sparks flying upward in the blackest of smoke, there is a blue sky above, and the less time they waste on the road the sooner they will reach it. Fretting all time wasted on the road.—Helen Hunt Jackson.

AMERICAN EFFICIENCY.—The mass of our population walk less than the French, German, or English. In the country, every farmer's boy who wants to go a half mile "hitches up," instead of using such terms as "hitches up," now made which he follows. In cities, people will, on the slightest pretext, jump on horse-car, or clamor up to the elevated trains. Our forefathers had good legs, but ours are not so good. A nation to be a great nation, should be well set on its pins. The English are in this respect, the best equipped of the European peoples. They love walking and pursue it.—Julian Hawthorne.

What is so beautiful as holiness? It is the heart cleansed of defiling desires; the heart filled with divine sweetness, lifted into the atmosphere of God, breathing his breath, wearing his expression, speaking his language, dwelling in his arms. Such a soul "abhors the thing unclean" with an instinctive and powerful detestation which knows no restraint, no limitation. Its whole being strikes, repelled from the very sight or thought of sin. No child fears or flows a wild hecatostilly; no woman hides from or shames a pursuer so closely. What a drop of vitriol is to the rose-unt, what a grain of prussic acid is to the sensitive tissues of the stomach, what a murderous blow is to him before whose awakening eyes the knife in the robber's hand is seen descending—this, and more, is sin to a holy soul.

Burdette concludes an article on smoking with these words: "So don't smoke, my boy, it makes you stupid, so it doesn't help you in your studies. It is bad for the heart, so it doesn't advance you in athletic sports. It makes you nervous, so it doesn't make you a better shot. It makes you smell like a tap-room, so it doesn't make you pleasant company. It doesn't do you one particle of good; it makes you appear silly and ridiculous; it is as disagreeable and offensive to yourself as it is to anybody else; you don't get a bit of comfort out of it, and you know it; so don't smoke!"

OUR YOUNG PEOPLE.

OLD RHYME ABOUT BIRTHDAYS.

Monday's child is fair of face,
Tuesday's child is full of grace,
Wednesday's child is full of woe,
And Thursday's child has far to go;
Friday's child is loving and giving,
And Saturday's child works hard for his living;
But the child that is born on the Sabbath day
Is bright and bonny, good and gay.

A Touching Incident.

There are often wells of thought and feeling in childhood of whose depths parents little dream. We are so accustomed to think of our children's tastes, desires and will as being reflections of our own that we too often forget to study their natures, recognize their individuality, and treat them as sentient beings. With such reflections I listened to the relation of the following touching incident:

A little girl of this city, about ten years of age, was visiting her aunt in the country. They were discussing a certain book, and the aunt remarked:

"Your birthday is near; perhaps your mama will buy it for you for a birthday present."

A sigh of sadness rested on the sweet young face as she quickly answered:

"She could give me something else I would rather have, something I would rather have than anything else in the world."

"Well, I'm sure," said her aunt, "your mama will get it for you if it does not cost too much."

"It will not cost money," replied the child; "it will not cost anything."

But she could not then be persuaded to tell what it was. After a long time the shrinking girl said:

"Auntie, I will tell you part; it is something she gave me before little brother came. It is just not to do something for that one day; how don't you know?"

The discerning aunt drew the little one to her, and asked:

"Is that mama should not send you on your birthday?"

A trembling "Yes," and long the dear head rested on the bosom of that loving, patient aunt.

May the reading of this little story do other mothers good as the writing of it has done me. That mother is a precious woman. I know she loves her little daughters tenderly as I do mine. She just didn't think how each impatient word was wearing a sore in that sensitive little heart. She didn't think she was robbing her child's future of the sweet memories of a beautiful childhood. She didn't think how she was cramping the powers of a lovely spirit that needed a continual sunshine for their development. Mothers, pause and reflect.—Herald and Press.

Good Words for Boys.

Be gentle, boys. It is high praise to have it said of you, "He is as gentle as a woman to his mother." It is out of fashion to think if you ignore mother and make a little sister cry whenever she comes near you, that people will think you belong to the upper stratum of society. Remember that, as a rule, gentle boys make gentle men (gentlemen).

Be manly, boys. A frank, straightforward manner always gains friends. If you have committed a fault, stop forward and confess it. Confessed faults are always found out sooner or later. Never do anything which afterward may cause a blush of shame to come to your face.

Be courteous, boys. It is just as easy to acquire a genteel, courteous manner, as an ungainly, don't care style, and it will help you materially if you have to make your own way through life. Other things being equal, the boy who knows the use of "I beg your pardon," "I thank you," will be chosen for a position, three to one, in preference to a boy to whom such sentences are strangers.

Be prompt, boys. It is far better to be ahead of than behind time. Business men do not like tardiness. They realize that time is valuable. Five minutes every morning amount to half an hour at the end of the week. Many things can be done in half an hour. Besides, disastrous results often follow lack of punctuality.

Be thorough, boys. Flack the heels as well as the toes of your shoes, and be sure that both sides. Pull out the roots of the weeds in the flower beds. Don't break their off and leave them to spring up again when the first shower comes. Understand your lesson. Don't think that all that is necessary is to get through a recitation and receive a good mark.—American Youth.

From Father to Son.

One day a young man entered a merchant's office in Boston, and with a pale and careworn face, said: "Sir, I am in need of help. I have been unable to meet certain payments, because certain parties have not done as they agreed by me, and I would like to have ten thousand dollars. I came to you because you were a friend to my father, and might be a friend to me."

"Gentle," said the old merchant, "come in, and have a glass of wine."

"No," said the young man; "I don't drink."

"Have a cigar, then?"

"No, I never smoke."

"Well," said the old gentleman, "I would like to accommodate you, but I don't think I can."

"Very well," said the young man, as he was about to leave the room, "I thought perhaps you might. Good-day, sir."

"Hold on!" said the merchant. "You don't drink?"

"No."

"Nor smoke?"

"No."

"Nor gamble, nor anything of that kind?"

"No, sir. I am superintendent of the Sunday-school."

"Well," said the merchant, "you shall have it, and three times the amount if you wish. Your father let me have five thousand dollars once, and asked me the same questions. He trusted me, and I will trust you. No thanks; I owe it to you for your father's trust."—Presbyterian.

A SECRET FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.—As soon as you see this, without waiting a moment, and without saying much about it to anyone, look about you, and see if you can find something to do for somebody else. To your surprise you will probably have a chance inside of two minutes. No matter what it is, or how trifling or unpleasant it may be, do it. Keep this up until bed time, and you will find that you have had the pleasantest day of your life.—Christian Advocate.

If ever Christianity appears in its power, it is when it erects its trophies on the tomb; when it takes up its votaries when the world leaves them, and lifts the breast with immortal hope in dying moments.—Robert Hall.

SCIENTIFIC.

The Next Great Problems of Science.

The greatest of all our problems to-day is the making of the utilization of the forces of nature more general, more efficient and more fruitful. Could the engineer find a way of producing steam power at a fraction its present cost; could he transform heat energy directly and without waste into dynamo; could he find a method of evolution of light without that enormous loss now inevitable in the form of accompanying heat; could he directly produce electricity, without other and lost energy, from the combustion of fuel—could he do these things to day, the growth of all that is desirable to mankind and the advancement of all the interests and powers of the race would be inconceivably accelerated.

Every animate creature is a machine of enormous efficiency as a dynamo engine than his most elaborate construction as illustrated in the 20,000 horse power engines of the Titanic or the City of Paris, or in the most powerful locomotive. Every symmetrical living in the mud of a tropical stream puts to shame men's best effort in the production of electricity; and the minute insect that dashes across his lawn on a summer evening, or the worm that lights his path in the garden, exhibits a system of illumination incomparably superior to his most perfect electric lights. Here is nature's challenge to man! Man wastes one-fourth of all the heat of his steam as utilized in his steam boiler, and often ninety per cent. as used in his open fireplace; nature, in the animal system, utilizes substantially all. He produces light by candle, oil lamp or electricity, but submits to a loss of from one-fifth to more than nine-tenths of all his stock of available energy as heat; also, in the glow-worm, and firefly, produces a lovely light without waste measurable by our most delicate instruments. He throws aside as loss nine-tenths of his potential energy when attempting to develop mechanical power; she is vastly more economical. But in all cases her methods are radically different from his, though they are as yet obscure. Nature converts available forms of energy into precisely those other forms which are needed for her purposes, in exactly the right quantity, and never wastes, as does invariably the engineer, a large part of the initial stock by the production of energies that she does not want and can not utilize. She goes directly to her goal. Why should not man? He has but to imitate her processes.—Prof. R. H. Thurston, in the Forum.

EXERCISE FOR A FEEBLE GIRL.—Mrs. F. writes: "My daughter Jennie was not strong, but tall and slender, and every effort seemed to exhaust her. Her father said, 'We must do something for that girl, or we shall lose her.' What could we do. We did not believe medicines of any kind were needed. We had read in the Herald of Health of the value of outdoor life for delicate children and resolved to try it. How should we begin? The gardener offered to take her with him in his daily work, and keep her busy and happy among the plants and trees. A little wheelbarrow was made in which she could wheel dirt, stones, and anything that was wanted. The gardener was kind, sympathetic and intelligent, and answered all her questions, and encouraged her in her work. When trees were to be set out she aided in various ways. When flowers were to be planted, she was with him to learn and help. If the lawn needed cutting, she helped him drive the mower. When insects were a trouble she helped apply the spray or powder to kill them. When plants required water, she learned how to do it. She even gathered up small stones and got them into piles for the cart. It was a happy time for all. She even went barefooted and did not mind the sun or wind. 'Oh, what a happy time I am having,' she said often and often. Her appetite became plentiful, her sleep good. She was as brown as a nut and grew stronger and stronger every month, and to-day she is altogether another girl, healthy, happy, joyous, even beautiful, and still from out-door life, and we learned it from the dear Herald of Health."—Herald of Health.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR GLASS.—A glass manufacturer of Vienna, Austria, claims that he has produced a new substitute for glass. In an account of his invention he says: "I dissolve from four to eight parts of collodion wool in about one hundred parts by weight of ether or alcohol or acetic ether, and with this I intimately combine from two to four per cent. of castor oil or other non-resinous oil, and four to ten per cent. of resin or Canada balsam (soft resin). The compound when poured upon a glass plate and subjected to the drying action of a current of air of about 50° Centigrade, solidifies in a comparatively short time into a transparent glass-like sheet or plate, the thickness of which may be regulated as required. The sheet or plate so obtained has substantially the same properties as glass, as it will resist the action of acids and alkalis and of dilute acids, and, like glass, is transparent and has no smell. On the other hand, it has the advantage of being pliable or flexible and inflexible to a great degree, while its inflammability is much less than that of the collodion substances. The compound, as will be readily comprehended, is of such a nature that any desired color or shade of color may be imparted to it by the admixture of the necessary pigment. The pigments should be soluble in the solvent used in the preparation of the compound, if incorporated therewith; but the color may be imparted to the substance by surface application, aniline dyes or colors being employed, so that the sheets or plates may be used in lieu of stained glass. The material may also be ornamented by printing any desired design thereon."—American Manufacturer.

A RAILROAD IN THE ARCTIC.—The Swedish and Norwegian railroad, which is now building from Lulea, on the Gulf of Bothnia, to Lulea, on the North Sea, is partly situated in the Arctic circle and 1,200 miles further north than any railroad in Canada. The winter, however, has not been found too severe by the English employees and their wives, and the snowfall is less than in some more southern latitudes, while the darkness of the long winter nights is partly compensated by the light of the aurora. The line is being built by an English company in order to tap the enormous deposits of iron ore in the Gollivera Mountains. It is feared that the ore in the Bibba district is nearly exhausted, and as this is the main source of supply for many steel works in the United States and Europe, a new field of non-phosphoric ore suitable for steel making is needed.—Exchange.

BISHOP X—had officiated in the college chapel one Sunday morning, and though his discourse was most excellent in itself, it had no obvious connection with the text with which he introduced it. At dinner, Professor Y— was asked his opinion of the bishop's sermon. "Dear old man!" he exclaimed, "it was truly apostolic. He took a text, and then he went every where preaching the gospel."

Macbeth's "pearl top" and "pearl glass" lamp-chimneys are made of tough glass that costs four times as much as common glass; and the work on them costs a good deal more than the work on common chimneys, just as the work on a dress is proportioned to cost of stuff.

The dealer is right in saying he can't afford to sell them at the prices of common glass chimneys.

And what will become of his chimney trade if his chimneys never break? He is apt to be wrong there. He can afford to charge a fair price and give new chimneys for that break in use.

Have a talk with him.

Pittsburg. GEO. A. MACBETH & CO.

ARE YOU BILIOUS?
USE PARSON'S PILLS.
"Best Liver Pill Made"

Positively cure BILIOUSNESS and SICK HEADACHE, all Liver and Bowel Complaints. Put up in Glass Bottles. Thirty in a bottle, one a dose. They cost little more from the blood. Delicate women and great relief. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail. Sample gratis. Five bottles $1.00. Full particulars, L. B. JOHNSON & CO., 23 Custom House St., Boston, Mass.

JOHNSON'S ANODYNE LINIMENT
ORIGINATED
By an Old Family Physician.

Cures Croup, Colds, Sore Throat, Croup, Whooping Cough, Asthma, Catarrh, Croup, Cholera, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Lame Back, Stiff Joints, Sprains, Burns, Scalds, Itch, Eruptions, Etc. Sold by all druggists. L. B. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

It is Truly a Great Remedy, is what Sam Jones says of Germetum.

"I returned from Tyler, Texas, on March 12th. I find my wife has been taking Royal Germetum two weeks, and the GREAT UPBUILDING OF HER PHYSICAL SYSTEM. She is now almost free from the distressing headaches with which she has suffered for twenty years. Surely it has done wonders for her. I wish every poor suffering WIFE HAD ACCESS TO THAT REMEDY."

Later he writes: "My wife, who was an invalid from nervous sick headache, has been entirely cured by six weeks use of Dr. King's Royal Germetum. Her health is perfect. In three weeks two of my children were cured completely of nasal catarrh. It is truly a GREAT REMEDY."

M. B. AVARY & CO., Atlanta, Ga., say: "We are selling five times as much of your Royal Germetum as of any other patent medicine on the market, and give universal satisfaction. The demand is constantly increasing."

The Last Drop
Is as good as the first. No drug is so pure and whole as some. The most popular drink of the day.

Hires' Root Beer
A perfect thirst quencher. Don't be deceived if a dealer, for the sake of larger profit, tells you

MARRIAGES.

WHITE-WHITE.—In the Methodist Church, Abbeville, La., Wednesday, Sept. 7, 1892, by Rev. J. F. Montross, Mr. James E. White to Miss Mary Joe White.

SMITH-GLASSCOCK.—At the residence of the bride's father, Aberdeen, Miss., Sept. 7, 1892, by Rev. J. A. Bowen, Rev. L. A. Smith (chaplain), of Thomaston, Ala., and Miss Mattie E. Glasscock.

OBITUARIES.

We publish obituaries of 200 words free of charge; for all over this, one cent per word must be sent. If you want the notice to appear in this order, comply with this rule. Count the words, and send one cent for each word over 200.

PATTON.—KRON H. PATTON was born in Jasper county, Ga., Sept. 2, 1814, and died July 1, 1892.

He was married to Alvah Patton, May 26, 1838, who is left on earth, still working for a wage with his dear companion in heaven. They moved to Lafayette county, Miss., in 1838, where she lived a useful and faithful life, and died a triumphant death.

She joined the M. E. Church, South, at the age of fourteen; was a consistent member for more than sixty-four years, and then fell asleep in the arms of Jesus, surrounded by her children and friends, who, with sad hearts and tender hands, laid her body to rest at Liberty Hill Cemetery with her brothers and sisters, to await the resurrection morn.

A more devoted, consecrated life I never knew; a more cheerful, faithful, useful Christian mother I never expect to see. She had a faith that would not doubt. She has left her loving holy touch upon all her children, and now she is gone. They have the richest heritage ever left the orphan in this world—a life sanctified by shame, or untouched by sin, all-allowed of God, and full of faith and of the Holy Ghost. Many a weary, itinerant has found her home a precious spot on earth, and many whose hearts have been cheered and whose faith strengthened dwell with her pure spirit in the sweet beyond.

The first sermon the writer ever preached as in her presence, and the power in her prayer and consolation of other words were, and have been, a brace to me all these years. Oh, bless God for such a woman of prayers! Oh, the power of her prayers and the sweetness of her voice in congregation and at the camp meetings still linger in the hearts of the hundreds who have been brought to Christ by her faithful work! Kierulff alone will reveal the good she has done.

For several years before her death she was afflicted; often unable to attend church; but always there when able. Often would she praise her Savior at her home. Thank God, as shall meet her again! C. C. GRISHAM.

Nashville Advocate please copy.

CARRUTH.—MARY ELIZABETH WELLS was born Oct. 10, 1841. She was converted under the ministry of Rev. K. A. Flowers, and joined the Adams' Church, Amite county, in 1864 or 1865. On Feb. 16, 1865, she was happily married to John P. Carruth, and passed to her reward, Aug. 30, 1892, aged forty-seven years, ten months and twenty days.

Sister Carruth was a granddaughter of the late Judge K. H. Hoover, of Pike county, a man who ranked high both as a citizen and a Christian gentleman.

Soon after uniting with the church, Sister Carruth developed into a useful member, and was never known to swerve from the highest standard of Christian rectitude. The writer visited her home for the first time during the month of January, 1878, and was her pastor for five successive years, and the ties of friendship and brotherly love have strengthened each succeeding year. Her home was ever the home of the weary itinerant, who found in her always a true friend and sister in Christ Jesus.

As a neighbor, she was surpassed by but few. In her the sick of the neighborhood always found a sympathizer, ready to minister to their comforts. To her husband and children she was all that a wife and mother could be, aiding the former in his Christian life, and bringing up the latter to the nurture and admonition of the Lord. To the church she was a burning and shining light.

She was a sufferer for five or six months before her death, but never murmured. "It was the Lord" whose hand was recognized. On Friday, a week before she died, she sang a part of the first verse of the "Home of the Soul." On the following Friday she sang the second verse of the same, which was her last song on earth. It was my privilege to be with her when she died. Her end was peace.

On Wednesday, Aug. 31, at half-past two o'clock, we laid her body to rest in the graveyard of the old Adams Church, her husband and nine sorrowing children, together with a host of friends of all denominations, assembled to pay the last sad rites.

H. P. LEWIS.

DOUGHTY.—Died, on the sixteenth day of May (at the residence of her son, Mr. K. W. Fruchese, in Terry, Miss.), Mrs. VIRGINIA ANN DOUGHTY, in the sixty-sixth year of her age.

My dear sister gave herself to her Savior in early life, joined the Methodist Church, and ever after lived a modest, consistent, faithful Christian life. Her death was sudden. Before her loved ones realized her condition, she was falling asleep in the arms of Jesus as quietly as a child in its mother's arms, for so "he giveth his beloved sleep."

Among the many traits that adorned her character was her devotion to her family, especially to her two children. For them no labor was too fatiguing, no sacrifice too great. Oh, how they loved and respected her! She was greatly beloved by her grandchildren, and "Gladness" will be sadly missed by them.

As a friend, she was true and sincere; so void of duplicity or hypocrisy. She loved her Bible; loved to go to the home of God; was attending and enjoying a protracted meeting when she was taken sick. Oh, how we shall miss her! How lonely to be the last of a once large and happy family of brothers and sisters! Farewell, loved sister, till we meet again! Blessed be God for that sweet home that whispers to the heart, "Be still; you shall again see and know your loved ones in heaven." Glorious thought! "No night there." If the spirits of the beloved departed are permitted to watch our loved ones here, then, "sister," look down and smile upon your bereaved.

HOON.—Died at the residence of his son, H. F. Hoon, Aug. 25, W. W. Hoon, aged seventy-five years.

A good man has gone to rest; a beautiful life has closed at the sunset bar; but his life, like the sun, at east its richest glow at eventide. Just before he died he told his dear wife to meet him in heaven. Oh, what a glorious meeting for her to look for!

In his death he leaves many hearts to mourn for him—a loving wife, precious children, and dear grandchildren, and a host of friends; but he has loved ones and a precious Savior who were waiting to welcome him into the city of the saved.

NORL.—Miss LAURA VICTORIA NORL was born in Scott county, Miss., Sept. 22, 1861, and died in Vicksburg, Miss., Aug. 30, 1892.

Miss Norl joined the Methodist Church in Vicksburg, in the Spring of 1878, under the ministry of Dr. (now Bishop) C. B. Galloway. She developed in Christian character in the use of the means of grace, and when the South Vicksburg Mission Sunday-school was projected she tendered her services as a teacher, and for five years did faithful service in that inviting field of Christian work.

Her health began to fail about a year ago, or more, and the last times she was able to leave home she attended church at Crawford Street, Vicksburg, where she held her membership. This was Nov. 8, 1891. For many weary months she was confined to her room and bed, and her sufferings were beyond the power of language to express; but through them all she was a marvel of Christian patience. Her faith grew stronger, her hope brighter, and her spirit more joyous as the end approached.

Besides her pastor found it a means of spiritual enjoyment to visit her and talk with her during these months of patient suffering. Her victory over the fear of death was complete, and she came to look longingly for the coming of her Lord.

The last conversation I had with her was as satisfactory as any interview I ever had with a dying saint in a ministry extending over a period of more than thirty years. Just a few hours before her departure she said to her sister and mother, "I will go home to rest tonight." She retained consciousness almost to the last, but never wavered in her confidence. Her surviving relatives and friends have much consolation in the assurance they have of her thorough preparation for heaven.

W. B. LEWIS.

DELAFIELD.—SAMMIE A. DELAFIELD, son of J. F. and Annie Delafield, was born Dec. 20, 1886; died July 8, 1892. On the eighth of July, as the sun was sinking behind the golden clouds, and the last bright rays were fading away, the spirit of Sammie Delafield took its flight from this world to the city where the sun will never cease to shine.

Little Sam was a sweet and affectionate child, and a great favorite with all who knew him. He was sick only a few days, and suffered great pain; but during the time not a murmur passed his lips. It was a sore trial for the loved ones to give up their darling. Grief, not food, made his mother and grandmother, for your little pet is now at rest. Home is desolate without him, and his sweet voice calls mama no more; but we know he is with his Savior now at rest, and with a sweeter voice, he calls you love ones to that home above, where he waits with papa and mamma, where tears are unknown and parting comes no more.

Cousin VASHTI.

SHEPHERD.—The following preamble and resolutions were adopted by the special committee of the M. E. Church at Greenwood, this, the fourth day of September, 1892:

In the death of Mrs. M. T. SHEPHERD, which sad event occurred on Aug. 13, 1892, our Greenwood Sunday-school has sustained a serious loss. She loved the Sabbath day, and, although her domestic cares were numerous and laborious, she dispatched them with Christian fortitude in time to put in a good day's work for the Lord. As a teacher of the intermediate class, she was kind, gentle, and her instructions thorough, showing a familiarity with the lesson that indicated prayerful study. The memory of her influence and Christian efforts should prompt some of us to receive her mantle.

Wishing to give expression to the sadness now in our hearts; therefore, be it

Resolved, That we realize with sorrow the loss our Sunday-school has sustained, and, in our daily walk of life, an exemplary Christian worker and friend. The bereaved husband and seven motherless children we commend to him "who tempers the wind to the shorn lamb."

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to her husband and members of the family, and a copy to the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Chairman of Committee, Wesleyan Christian Advocate (Macon) please copy.

MAGEE.—Died in Copiah county, Miss., July 12, 1892, little OLIVE, daughter of Jack W. and Lena Magee, aged seven months and nine days.

Weeping parents, mourn not for your departed child; she is gone forever from this earth, but she is at home to heaven with parent, where pain and sickness will never more be felt. Let the remembrance that our heavenly Father does all things for the best be your consolation. He that afflicts will heal the sorrow, though the loved one is sleeping to death.

H. P. LEWIS.

Many people neglect a cold, thinking it will go as it came. Frequent use of serious results; the cold of to-day may be the pneumonia of tomorrow. Nothing will cure a cough or cold so rapidly as Dr. Davis' Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Tar. Its reputation has been established for over fifty years as the best remedy for coughs, colds, bronchitis, asthma, all throat and lung troubles. For croup and whooping-cough it is invaluable. Mothers will be saved much anxiety and loss of children by having Davis' Wild Cherry and Tar always on hand. Consumption has been cured many times by its use. One dollar bottles hold two and a half times as much as a 50c. bottle.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO THOSE SENDING MONEY.—Remittances should be made only by money orders, express company orders, registered letters, drafts or checks on New Orleans banks or merchants. Drafts on country banks occasion a loss of from 15 to 25 cents per check. Drafts on country merchants we have no facility for collecting. Checks and drafts, also money orders, should be made payable to D. L. Mitchell, Publisher.

CHILDREN LEARN ECONOMY.

Those $2.00 Blacking $0.50/50c—10 bottles.

Teacher—If by the use of

WOLF'S ACME Blacking

you save one pair of shoes a year, and a bottle at 20 cents lasts three months, for how many years blacking will one year's saving in shoe leather pay!

10c Will pay for the Cost of Changing Plain White Glass vessels to Ruby, Emerald, Opal, or other Costly Glass.

PIK-RON FOR ABB WILL DO IT.

Give the Girls a Chance!

To be GOOD NATURED.

GOLD DUST Washing Powder

MEANS:
The washing all done early in the forenoon. No scrubbing; no back-aches; no tattered tempers. Monday a quiet, orderly and proper day. Instead of the horror of the whole week.

4 Pounds for 25 Cents.

Sold by ALL GROCERS.

Gold Dust is The Best.

N. K. FAIRBANK & CO., Sole Manufacturers,
CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS, NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON, BALTIMORE, NEW ORLEANS, SAN FRANCISCO, PORTLAND, ME., PORTLAND, ORE., PITTSBURGH AND MILWAUKEE.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR The Celebrated

CHOCOLAT MENIER

Annual Sales Exceed 33 MILLION Lbs.
Write for Samples. Sent Free. Menier, Union Sq., N. Y.

HARDWOOD AND MARBLEIZED SLATE MANTELS.

TILE HEARTHES. GRATES AND FIRE-PLACE TRIMMINGS

GEO. M. LEAHY,

Advocate Building, - No. 112 Camp St., New Orleans.

PRONOUNCE W. C. SHEPARD & SON,
84 CAMP ST., near POYDRAS,
The Cheapest Crockery, Glass and House-furnish-
ing House in the City.

Be sure and look them up when needing goods in their line. 500 Dinner, Tea and Chamber Sets at half price.

For First-Class Photographs

GO TO SIMON'S.

No. 183 Canal St., - - - New Orleans, La.

H. Dudley Coleman Machinery Co., Lim'd,

New Orleans, La.

STEAM ENGINES, BOILERS, MILLS AND MACHINERY,

Pumps, Pipe, Presses, Pulleys, Shafting,

Saw, Sugar and Corn Mills,

Cotton Gins, Feeders and Condensers.

Examine Our Stock. Our Prices Are Very Low.

FOUNDRY, FACTORY & OFFICE, SUPPLIES & SAMPLE STORE
Cor. Magnolia and Erato Sts. 9 Perdido St. New Orleans, La.

If readers of this advertisement who wish to purchase goods in our line would mention this paper when writing for information or when ordering goods from us, we would then determine whether the money we pay for advertising in this paper is well invested or not.

H. DUDLEY COLEMAN MACHINERY CO., LIMITED, New Orleans, La.

Latest Styles -- Lowest Prices!

This handsome Parlor Suit is upholstered on solid walnut frames with Imported Marbleized Silk Plush and the seats are all Spring Edge. Colors are Red, Red and Old Gold, Blue and Old Gold or each piece of a different color. For $45 I will sell seven pieces of this suit:—one Sofa, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair and three Reception Chairs. $65 buys the complete suit of ten pieces consisting of two Sofas, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair, and five Reception Chairs. Same suit covered with Hair Cloth, seven pieces $35 or ten pieces $55. Every other article in my store at proportionately low prices. Bedroom suits, twelve pieces, from $40 up to $1000. Dining room suits, eight pieces, from $17 upwards. Complete Kitchen outfits from $20 upwards. Quality at top—prices at bottom. I have an immense variety of strictly reliable goods and purchasers can depend upon getting the very latest styles. Everything guaranteed to be exactly as represented or money will be promptly refunded.

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE
in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT,

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE
in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30

Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company.

Losses Paid by Chicago Fire, 1871, $3,239,091.

Losses Paid by Boston Fire, 1872, $1,429,729.

All Losses Paid in Cash without Discount, as Soon as Adjusted.

Losses and all matters of business settled by officers and directors in New Orleans without reference to any other office, the same as with local companies.

DIRECTORS IN NEW ORLEANS.

GUSTAF R. WESTFELDT, L. O. FALLON, LUIGI E. MOORE, O. M. SONIA
Chairman.

CLARENCE F. LOW, Asst. Resident Sec'y. H. V. OGDEN, Resident Secretary.

The Southern Insurance Company

OF NEW ORLEANS.

54 - - CAMP STREET - - 54

Paid up Capital, $300,000. Assets, $545,096.10.

FIRE, RIVER AND MARINE INSURANCE.

This company by its conservative, yet liberal, business methods, and the immediate availability of its assets, affords complete security to its assured. Losses promptly adjusted and paid.

ERNEST MILTENBERGER, H. GALLY, SCOTT MOGHEER,
President, Vice-President, Secretary.

FINANCIAL COMMITTEE.

Frank Roder, J. H. Mingo, Joseph Schwartz, F. G. Ernst, T. J. Woodward.

Home Insurance Co., of New Orleans.

No. 18 CAMP STREET.

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1886,	$400,479.08
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1887,	$413,860.76
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1888,	$459,369.50
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1889,	$510,584.54
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1890,	$551,897.82
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1891,	$600,414.81

Steadily Increasing in Strength and Popularity.

Solicits Fire and River Business.

Liberal Settlements and Prompt Payments.

Thos. Sefton, Pres't. Capt. J. B. Woods, Vice-Pres't. Jno. G. Byrd, Sec'y

J. E. WOODS, JNO. J. BARR, J. B. LEVERT, W. B. BLOOMFIELD
JOS. BAYLE, ANDREW STEWART, E. BORLAND, W. T. HARDIE,
JNO. BARKLEY, CHAS. CHAFFE, P. R. RICE, THOS. SEFTON.

W. E. LYMAN, President. JOSEPH BOWLING, Vice-President. CHAS. E. RICE, Secretary.

Crescent Insurance Com'y.

Incorporated as a Mutual Company in 1849.

Reorganized as a Stock Company in 1866.

Cash Capital, - - - - - $300,000.

Has paid over TEN AND ONE-HALF MILLIONS for losses since 1849.

POLICIES issued on desirable Fire Business.

See our Agents throughout Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas.

Watches, Diamonds, FINE JEWELRY.

Silver and Silver-Plated Ware,

SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES

Send for Catalogue.

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO.,

(Established 1817)

119 CANAL ST., New Orleans, La.

THIRTY CENTS

WILL get you TWO good papers, THE WAY OF FAITH (weekly), THE SOLICITOR (monthly), for THREE MONTHS, a sweet song, and our Liberal Terms to Agents. Address: CHAS. E. RICE, (Columbia, Mo.).

Mention this paper.

"Sanctification,"

By DR. B. OARRADINE,

Is having a wonderful sale and doing a large amount of good.

Price: Paper, 40 cents; cloth, 80 cents.

For sale by F. D. VAN VALKENBURGH, 106 Camp St., New Orleans.

NEW BASIN. NEW ORLEANS.

Base Ball Goods, Croquet, Fishing Tackle, Seines, Twines.

Refrigerators, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Baskets, Hammocks, Lamps, Lanterns.

Fruit Jars, Corks, Bottles, Flasks, Hardware, Tinware, Stationery, Wrapping Paper and Bags.

FULL LINE OF

Wooden and Willowware, Brushes, etc.

J. C. MORRIS CO., Limited.

40, 42 and 44 Tchoupillonias Street

R. F. DYER, Pres. E. P. MACKIE, Treas.

W. W. CARRE,

LUMBER MERCHANT

AND MANUFACTURER OF

PLANTATION CABINS, STORM, Etc.

Nos. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave.

NEW BASIN. NEW ORLEANS.

Christian Advocate.

VOL. 39.—NO. 39.

NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 29, 1892.

WHOLE NO. 1884.

Rev. C. W. CARTER, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. LEWIS, Asst. Editor.

PUBLISHED FOR THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE AND NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH.

ENTERED AT THE POST-OFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

The A. and M. College of Mississippi.

This institution has been the subject of sharp animadversion in late newspaper articles by "Gilderoy," whose contention with the college seemed based, chiefly, on the action of the college management during the late commencement, in that Bro. Randolph was not invited to take part in any of the public exercises calling for the services of a minister. This action, as explained by the president, was in accordance with a custom of the college, on such occasions, to invite visiting ministers forward rather than the pastors of the town, who are, by custom also, chaplains to the college. Accepting this explanation, Bro. Randolph published a note of correction in the ADVOCATE, in a many way expressing regret that there should have been any misapprehension. "Gilderoy," however, seems disposed to maintain his contention with the college, as apparent from a later communication to the ADVOCATE. His first articles, published in several papers, and in different States, were such as to mislead the public mind—unwittingly, it may be, on his part—and to do injury to an institution which is doing much for the young men of Mississippi. Having had opportunity to become well acquainted with the college, by some years' residence in Starkville, and having been one of its chaplains for two years, I may be permitted to say something of the character and workings of the college.

The president, Gen. Stephen D. Lee, is a worthy member of the Baptist Church, of liberal spirit towards other churches, and much interested in the moral and spiritual welfare of the students, as well as in their college training. A majority of the professors are members of the different denominations. Two, or more, of the faculty are members of the Methodist Church. Prof. D. Lipscomb is the excellent superintendent, and Prof. J. H. Connell a teacher, of our Sunday-school at Starkville. Altogether, the moral and religious advantages and surroundings of the students are excellent. By the usage and courtesy of the college, the pastors of Starkville serve as chaplains, preaching in rotation every Sabbath afternoon in the spacious chapel. At the close of each service the officiating minister is presented with an envelope containing a five-dollar bill—by no means an objectionable part of the program. An efficient Young Men's Christian Association is maintained among the students, having a commodious hall for its use. Under the auspices of this association, continued services, conducted by Rev. G. H. Lipscomb, of the North Mississippi Conference, in December last, resulted in great good. Many of the students were interested, and quite a number professed conversion. When Sam Jones was holding a meeting in Columbus, several years ago, many of the students, at the suggestion of the president, attended. Returning, they began to hold prayer meetings in the college, and a great revival followed, resulting in the conversion of about one hundred of the students. Gen. Lee said to me that he regarded Sam Jones as the greatest evangelist in the world. When he held his first meeting in Aberdeen, over two years ago, the students were again permitted and encouraged to attend, the president saying to them that if they had no interest in religion, it would be "well to go and see a man who is such a master of assemblies."

As the name implies, the institution is industrial in its design, and its curriculum is arranged with reference to such design, including, however, an extensive scientific and literary course. The young man who enters upon its course, and will set himself earnestly to secure its advantages, may come out well furnished and equipped for usefulness and success in life. Many of the graduates are already filling honorable and remunerative positions. From the beginning, under its present able management, the success of the college has been almost phenomenal. It has had an average annual enrollment of about three hundred students, and has become widely and favorably known as occupying the front rank—if not, indeed, the foremost place—among the industrial schools of the land.

T. C. WIEN.
Starkville, Miss.
If the way to heaven be narrow, it is not long; and if the gate be strait, it opens into endless life.—Beveridge.

Camp Meeting Associations.

I have seen many references in our papers to these associations, and inquiries like these have arisen in my mind: What is such an association? What relation does it sustain to the church? Wherein is the necessity for such an organization? Is there not danger ahead of us in this direction? I can imagine a District Conference, a Quarterly Conference, or a Church Conference, appointing a committee to organize and run a camp meeting; and in this I can see no possible evil, for the committee would be under the supervision of the Conference by which it was appointed, and it would be amenable to said Conference for all its acts. Now, if these camp meeting associations are established in this way, the fears I have been led to entertain are without foundation.

But are they organized in this way? Are they not, rather, self-constituted bodies, without connection with the church and without responsibility to it? What is their relation to the church? Does the presiding elder have any official relation to them, or are they under the pastoral oversight of any preacher in charge? Who is responsible for supplying the pulpit? If this is wholly in the hands of the association, then if the presiding elder, or any other church authority, provides the preaching, it must be purely by sufferance. Have not some of these associations already invited preachers from abroad to hold their meetings without consulting the presiding elder or any preacher in charge, and in that way ignored them altogether?

If these associations are self-constituted bodies, what assurance have we that what is known as a Methodist camp meeting this year will be such next year? Being independent bodies, without responsibility to any church whatever, they have a right, as a matter of course, to hold a Methodist, Presbyterian, Baptist, or any other kind of meeting on their grounds. The fact that the members composing these associations are loyal Methodists today is not a sufficient safeguard against danger, for they may not be loyal to-morrow.

If there is danger ahead of us, and there seems to be some reason for fear, the sooner attention is called to this matter the better it will be for the church.

DIONYSIA.

Scarritt Bible and Training-School.

The Scarritt Bible and Training-school was dedicated in Kansas City on Wednesday, the fourteenth instant. The addresses were delivered in Moore Methodist Church, the chapel of the school not being large enough to accommodate the audience which assembled at ten o'clock. Bishop Hendrix presided, the Scripture lesson was read by Dr. Palmer, of St. Louis; Dr. Haines, of Nashville, offered prayer, and hymns were read by Dr. Vassar and Dr. Rankin, of Kansas City. After some introductory remarks by the presiding Bishop, Mrs. Maria Gibson, principal of the school, read an interesting paper setting forth the hopes and ideals for the institution. Miss Elizabeth Holding, head of the department of Bible study, followed with earnest, enthusiastic words upon the importance of the work she represented; and Dr. Geo. Halley, dean of the medical staff, spoke of the need of foreign missionaries with nurses' qualifications, and of the training that would be given in the hospital connected with the school. The main address of the day, by Bishop Charles Galloway, of Mississippi, was an amplification of the principle that the life of service is the only true Christian life.

At the close a line of march was formed, Bishops Hendrix and Galloway leading, to the handsome brick building two blocks away, and in the chapel. Mr. W. O. Scarritt, chairman of the Building Committee, formally handed the institution over to the trustees, who received it through their chairman, and in turn presented it for dedication to the Bishops, who read the service and the prayers. The benediction was pronounced, and the Scarritt School had been consecrated to "the worship of God and the service of humanity." In response to the invitation to inspect the building, the hundreds of people were soon scattered about the pleasant parlors, the dining-rooms, where tables were in readiness for the students' luncheon, the convenient kitchen, the library, with its already good collection, the prettily furnished sleeping apartments, and the sunny hospital wards, with their white beds. Work begins immediately, a number of students having entered for examinations.

Of the beauty of situation, the fitness of the structure, the plan of management, and the purpose to fit women as missionaries for home and foreign fields, as well as workers in other lines of Christian activity, account was given in the Central, of July 8. Bishop Hendrix announced that the property of the institution, including ground, building, furnishings and endowment, amounted now to $101,000. There are seven departments of instruction, as follows: Bible Study, Moral Philosophy and Christian Evidences, Church History, Nurse-Training, Industrial, City Mission Work, General Instruction. Members of any evangelical denomination are received as students, and an Advisory Board, representing different denominations, is being chosen. While the school is under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, it is an aim to make it of benefit to all. It will prove a local center of good as well as one whence will go out help to distant lands.—Central Christian Advocate.

Notice.

To the Members of the M. E. Church, South, in the Winona District, North Mississippi Conference:

On Sept. 1, I received notice from Col. E. W. Cole, president of our Board of Missions, that I had been appointed solicitor for the Winona district, to aid in securing funds with which to pay the missionary debt. I at once prepared a circular letter, which, with an explanatory statement from Dr. Lambuth, I have mailed to several members of our church in the various pastoral charges of the district. In that circular letter I ask each one for a contribution. Of course, it is impossible to make a special appeal to each of you; hence I take this method of informing you of my appointment as solicitor, and of asking your co-operation in raising the money. I deem it unnecessary to attempt any argument on this subject. It has been fully explained and laid on the consciences of the readers of the ADVOCATE—thanks to Bro. Mellen and others. Let each of you, upon reading this, send me at once a contribution to this cause. Those receiving the special appeal sent out will greatly assist me and will forward the cause by giving my letter immediate attention. Send money by bank check, or postoffice money order, to me at Carrollton, Miss. I am glad to report that I already have in hand one hundred dollars. Do not delay, but respond at once.

J. R. BINGHAM,

Solicitor for Winona Dist.

Volunteers to the Front!

Bishop Key writes from Kobe, Japan, Sept. 14: "Everything is promising, but we are not pressing the battle as we should. Time is precious in our work in this field. We must go forward. We need two men, and should have them as soon as possible." A woman is wanted who can teach instrumental and vocal music.

In China we are needing two men, one of them to be a physician. The funds are available for any or all of these. Let us have immediate responses from those who will say: "Here am I; send me." Let those who can not go find those who can, and thus do the next best thing.

JAPAN.

Three missionaries wanted—two men, one woman.

CHINA.

Two missionaries wanted—one of these a physician. Let the call go through the church.

I. G. JOHN,

Cor. Sec. Board of Missions.

A Note from Jackson.

MR. EDITOR: In order to correct a misapprehension, I desire to state through your columns that board can be had at Millsaps College for $12 per month, including lodging, fuel, lights and everything except washing.

We are to have a series of services here soon conducted by Rev. R. G. Pearson. Bro. Pearson will begin his operations on the third Sunday in October, and will remain with us for ten days at least. We hope for large results.

First Church has had this year up to date fifty-four accessions.

W. C. BLACK.

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 25, 1892.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. W. J. Burt, P. O., Marietta circuit, North Mississippi Conference, Sept. 16: "I closed a meeting last night at Palestine Church. Bro. B. R. East, of Saltillo circuit, did the preaching. The church enjoyed much of the Spirit and love of Christ. There was quite a number of conversions. Twenty-three joined the church."

Rev. J. W. Chambers, P. O., Enterprise and Stonewall circuit: "We have had a successful meeting at Stonewall station. Rev. J. P. Drake and Rev. Robert Zachary did the preaching. The Holy Ghost blessed the men and their message. Seven accessions. Nearly all the membership alive to God."

Rev. J. M. Johnston, Big Cane, Sept. 21: "The Big Cane and Melville work has not advanced much this year. The overflow has injured the crop prospect very materially. A good deal of sickness, but not much of it fatal. We have a good Sunday-school at Melville, and a children's prayer meeting. We have a Woman's Missionary Society organized here by Sister B. F. Alexander."

Rev. J. F. Wynn, Pineville, La., Sept. 24: "Have just closed a six-days' meeting at Slash Bayou, assisted by Bro. R. M. Walker. Twenty-five received into the church, about 20 conversions, 13 children baptized, some new family altars erected, and the community advanced spiritually. Eighty-two members received and 68 children baptized on my circuit this year."

Rev. H. B. Trevillon, P. C., Baker, La., Sept. 20: "On the fourth Sunday in August we dedicated a neat little chapel in Ascension parish, near Hope Villa, and named it 'Meador's Chapel,' and protracted the services some days. The church was greatly revived, and nine were added to the church. This has been one of the very hard places in the Conference, but there is now an upward tendency, spiritually and mentally. In this field, indeed, 'the harvest is white.'"

Rev. H. Armstrong, Lafayette, La., Sept. 15: "Last week the faithful R. M. Blocker was with us from Monday until Saturday, preaching day and night. Results: 5 bright professions, several accessions, with more to follow. We have but little material here that Protestants can utilize. Any amount of 'gum logs' in the town and vicinity. Our fourth quarterly meeting followed, Bro. J. A. Miller presiding. Every dollar of his salary at this place was paid. Good for him, and good for our little church."

Rev. A. D. Miller, Barlow, Miss., Sept. 19: "We have just closed a very fine meeting at Pleasant Valley Church, Bowerton circuit, Mississippi Conference. We began with our third quarterly meeting on Saturday before the second Sunday in September, and closed on the next Friday. Church wonderfully revived, and four promising young men joined the church. The preaching was done by our presiding elder, Rev. R. S. Woodward; Rev. H. P. Lewis, Dr. I. W. Cooper, B. W. Lewis and the writer, and all except the writer did good preaching; very fine. Many thanks to the brethren, and all the praise to God."

Rev. D. G. W. Ellis, Decatur circuit, Mississippi Conference, Sept. 23: "The outlook for this work is not encouraging. I have held three protracted meetings, resulting in some accessions and in some good to the membership. Besides my own meetings, I have assisted in four outside my own work. I have been almost constantly engaged since the fourth Sunday in July, and, notwithstanding incessant labor during the heated term, I have not missed a single appointment. The financial prospect is gloomy. Not quite one-sixth of my assessment has been paid. The farmers say there is not more than one-third of an average crop of cotton made, and for this they are offered only 6½ cents per pound."

Miss Sallie M. Phillips, Collegio Piracabano, Piracabana, Brazil, Aug. 13: "Our work of both Boards in this place flourishes, and the spiritual condition of each is very encouraging. Last week we buried a faithful old brother and servant. Just a few weeks before this all his children joined the church. He died firm in the faith, and beautifully. His death was a triumph for the church; and thus all our members die. This is an encouraging fact for the people at home to know, for mission work, though slow, is sure, and many are receiving the glad tidings. Ever, ever, we need more workers, both men and women. Though Brazil is a Catholic country, the people are here perishing without Christ, just as much as in China and Japan. Think of this, and pray for us."

Rev. R. A. Davis, Downsville, La., Sept. 19: "On Aug. 6 my series of protracted meetings commenced on the Downsville circuit, and closed Sunday night, Sept. 11. Held services at five regular appointments, resulting in the entire membership being revived, 58 accessions to the church, and between 60 and 100 conversions; whereof we are glad. Bro. Charles Staple was at one appointment a part of the second week. Bro. Charles Atkinson was with us a part of the first, second and fifth weeks, at three appointments. These brethren did very efficient service for the church. Our finances are far behind to date, and the fourth Quarterly Conference for this circuit is appointed for the twenty-third and twenty-fourth instant. Cry of 'no money.' Pray for us."

Rev. C. W. Perkins, Neshit, Miss., Sept. 20: "I have finished my meetings. Have had a glorious revival at each charge, except Pisgah. Our meeting there was closed by sickness. We have received 71 members up to date, and a good prospect of paying for the parsonage at this place; and as soon as the parsonage is paid for, then we will commence to build a church here. I am asking the Lord for 100 members, and to help us out on the parsonage, and to get a church commenced, and to get the Conference collections in full; and I believe we will do it. The people here are raising more hog and hominy than ever before, and I think they will be in a better condition next year. The preachers' theological institute will be held here some time in October, and we hope that every preacher in this district will come. We want to continue two days, and have preaching at eleven o'clock and night of both days, besides the discussions. We are praying for and expecting a glorious outpouring of the Holy Spirit. Brethren, be sure to pray and come."

Rev. R. B. Downer, P. C.: "Ellisville circuit protracted meetings are now ended. At Laurel, Rev. Dr. J. W. Harmon aided me in an eight-days' meeting, preaching with all the life and enthusiasm of his palmy days. The time embraced the third quarterly meeting. We were pleased to have Rev. John A. Ellis, P. E., with us, although too feeble to preach. There were 3 accessions. At Sandersville we had an eight-days' meeting. Revs. Geo. H. Thompson and B. H. Rawls did most of the preaching. Their ministry was well received, and most profitable to the people. The merchants of Sandersville, without solicitation, closed their stores during service hours. One feature about the meeting was the hearty participation of all Christian people, regardless of denominational ties. The singing was equal to any city choir. There were five additions, among them a Sunday-school scholar. Nelly Parker celebrated her twelfth birthday by uniting with the church of the Lord Jesus Christ. The first Sunday in September, at Ellisville, we were honored with two sermons from the eloquent Alex. F. Watkins, and the third Sunday Rev. J. W. McLaurin delivered one of the most impressive sermons at eleven o'clock that I have heard in many days. He also preached at night. Our brick school-house is rapidly being completed. Graded school will begin, perhaps, Nov. 1."

Rev. G. R. Ellis, Eastabuchie, Sept. 17: "Held my third Quarterly Conference at Pardue's on the tenth and eleventh instant. Had a good meeting. Nine accessions and 5 adult baptisms. On account of continued feeble health of Bro. John A. Ellis, the presiding elder, he could not be with us, but sent in his stead Bro. J. S. Parker, of Hattiesburg, who filled the chair with ease and dignity. Bro. Parker preached us three sermons full of holy fire and gospel truth, which had a telling effect on the congregations. The Conference granted Bro. H. B. Gilderoy, of Eastabuchie, license to preach. The revival spirit is beginning to move upon the hearts of the people on my work. As our camp meeting approaches, the people become more enthused. We are anticipating a glorious time, and are making considerable preparations for the meeting by building new tents, a rostrum, and putting an addition to the tabernacle. At no distant day the Leaf River will rank among the most prominent camp grounds within the bounds of the Mississippi Conference. The good people of Eastabuchie presented their pastor with enough cash, a short time since, to purchase him a nice suit of clothes; and a few days afterwards brought him under additional obligations to them by driving a two-horse wagon up to the gate of the parsonage, freighted with coffee, sugar, rice, flour, meat, and many other things that I can not mention here, and leaving them for the preacher and his family. May God bless them and help me to serve them faithfully! Come to our camp meeting."

Rev. J. R. Whittington, Bayou Sara circuit, Mississippi Conference, Sept. 20: "We have had three protracted meetings, with 27 accessions and about as many conversions. Our collections are all in hand, either in money or subscription, except a few dollars. We will carry all the collections ordered by the Conference. As to the preacher's salary, much depends upon the exertions of the Board of Stewards; and while we are considerably behind, I think this will be paid in full. We have failed to hold any revival services in Bayou Sara on account of the church being under water for three months; and later I failed to get any help. I think, as a whole, we are doing well, for we have had one of the most bitter local elections, as well as fighting the lottery, and, as a matter of fact, a great deal of hard feelings was engendered. Our Sunday-schools are good, as well as our prayer meetings; many family altars. We observed Children's Day at three churches with fine results. Our conclusion is, there is as many consecrated church members on Bayou Sara circuit, in proportion to membership, as you will find anywhere; and I think on this circuit is one of the most faithful stewards in the Mississippi Conference. For years he has been a delegate to District Conferences, and has never failed to go. As a district steward, he is always on hand, and has not failed more than once or twice in fifteen years to be at quarterly meeting; and more, he brings up the assessments. Pray for us. I am thankful to Bros. J. J. Smylie, Wm. Currie and Petty for valuable services rendered in my protracted meetings."

REVIVAL ITEMS FROM MERIDIAN DISTRICT.

Stonewall and Enterprise charge, J. W. Chambers, P. C.: Stonewall, 7 accessions.

Lauderdale circuit, Rev. W. T. Browning, L. P.: Brogan Chapel, 4 accessions; Soule Chapel, 6 accessions. Membership at both places greatly revived.

DeKalb circuit, R. A. Breland, P. C., Jno. A. Moore, junior P. C.: Fountain Branch brush arbor, 30 accessions; Stonewall School-house, 4 accessions. Plans and subscriptions on foot and in hand to build four new houses of worship before Conference.

T. L. Mellen, P. E.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE ITEMS.

West Point has had a good revival in the church.

Rev. J. C. Park goes to Millsaps College, and Rev. L. Brayle, L. P., will supply Prairie circuit until Conference.

Rev. Amos Kendall and wife are taking a much-needed rest with friends at Verona.

Malone College and Grenada College Institute have both opened encouragingly. "In spite of the hard times."

Bro. Lester reports 60 additions to the church on Chester circuit this revival season. This is a good closing of a four-years' pastorate term.

Death has recently deprived the church in these quarters of some valuable members, among whom we note with sadness: Col. R. A. Anderson, of Durant; Bros. Perry Porter and David S. Glass, of Saltillo circuit; Bro. McDaniell, of Buena Vista circuit; and Sister Mollie B. Atkins, of Koroosuko, who was the "Dorcas" of the Methodist Church and town where she had spent all of her life. "These all," we believe, "died in the faith," and have gone to the "Christian's home in glory." "The righteous shall be in everlasting remembrance."

G. W. B.

TO-DAY—TO-MORROW—YESTERDAY

BY JOHN W. MILLER.

What is to-day? or what is yesterday?
Or, in its turn, what is it that we call to-morrow?

"Time is time was," and there shall come a time
When time itself shall not be."

And here am I—between to-day, and yesterday, and to-morrow.

The bell which marks in your cathedral spire,
The little hand of time is now
Upon the stroke of midnight: 'tis to-day.
To-day, with all this world may mean
Of opportunity and action: just one little tick,
One swing of that huge pendulum—one pulse beat—
The merest disappearing bubble, bursting on time's ocean—
And that which I, whose voice has scarce ceased its vibrations, Called "now-to-day," is then—is past—"yesterday."

I say, "it is yet to-day," and the great bell in solemn tone doth answer, "Yes, it is to-day!" Only that flash of time,
That flutter of my eyelid, that shiver of an autumn leaf,
And what I called "to-day" has vanished and become
A memory—with all its doings, good or ill, Unalterably written in that book in which
The recording angel keeps the history of things terrestrial.

Against the day—the great day of the "Last Assize."

Now, I say "yesterday" and "yesterday,"
Such and such things were yesterday."
Such opportunities for service of my King,"
Such failures, such successes—all were "yesterday."

And now, that which I called "to-morrow,"
By that tick,
That imperceptible second of my clock,
Becomes "to-day," with other hopes and chances;
With other opportunities. This to-morrow,
Which some have said can never be,
Which carries all our hopes and all our tears—
For tears to-day, and hopes to-day, we have none.

The time being present, and bearing naught
But facts and stern realities, whether of joy or sorrow—
This to-morrow—next moment—that which is not yet—
That lot of time—indefinite, unknown—
In which so much may be—and so much will.

I am confused; I stand in awe—in awful awe,
Between this now and then. The then that's past;
The "now" that is, the "then" that is to come;

"To-day" is here—and I am here;
And yesterday, I was;
And, till this moment, much I might have done,
And much I should have done, for God and man.

Why not? I am ashamed to face this question.

No word have I of palliation or excuse
For my shortcomings or gross failures.
But for to-morrow, I am all at once;
I know not; and I ought not care;
My times are in His hand, and He Will see to-morrow safely to its end;
And it, in turn, shall be to-day, and yesterday.

And so I stand and look upon my clock,
And think that there is coming one to-day
When the next tick will be eternity;
For me there shall be no more time; one tick is the last.

And my friends shall say, "He's gone,"
To-day—to-morrow—yesterday!

What then remains? what may I do? "The days are evil," and but one alternative there is for me.

"Therefore I must 'redeem the time' that now is mine;
What, but on yesterday, was my to-day, has gone.

"What now is my to-day shall, in its turn,
Be my unalterable yesterday;
And my to-morrow? Well, that is not mine;
To-day—just now no more, no less, no other time.

"Is mine; and in this now, I must, or never,
Like man acquit me."

So may to-day be bright with joyous service,
And memories of yesterday recall no chances wasted;

Then for to-morrow's outlook I shall have Bright hopes that in my doings
My Lord and Savior may be honored,
As not before in all my yesterdays.

Thus honoring Him, what shall there be to me
Of fret or worry in the world
Men use to mark the lapse of time—
To-day—to-morrow—yesterday?

Brooklyn, N. Y.

A Special Missionary a Special Blessing.

How shall we turn the young people away from the ball-room and other worldly amusements? Answer: Give them something to do for Christ. Said a pastor of a prominent church: "I had a number of dancing young members in my charge. I organized an Epworth League and put them to work. To-day I haven't a dancing member in my church."

Work for Christ calls the young heart away from the world to find its pleasure in higher and better things. Get the young people converted; then give them church work to do, and you will keep them converted.

But how can I give work to all? This is the puzzle with many a pastor. Answer: First—Determine to do it. Second—Organize them into Epworth Leagues, missionary bands and other societies, from the infant class upward. Then give them work. Home mission work, foreign mission work, charity work, and other church work. Do it. Though it cost time and painstaking and care. Do it. And your church work will be done on all lines, your young people will find their pleasure in this rather than in the world's frivolities, and the very "babes in the church" will be taught and trained to work for Christ.

Two years ago the Annual Conference began to adopt "special" missonaries in the several foreign fields. The pastors were asked to raise money to support them by pledging shares of ten dollars each, to be raised in a special way. Having this extra money to collect, they had work for the young people and children. They put the matter before their Epworth Leagues and Sunday-schools and other organizations, and asked them to raise these pledges. And what has been the result?

Pledges have been secured to the amount of $87,000. Forty-five thousand dollars have been paid into the missionary treasury, while there is a constant income from the unpaid pledges. Much of this has been procured from persons who give nothing to missions in the regular way.

Secondly. Thousands of children and young persons have been blessed in doing this work. It has made them feel that they are of some value to the church, and has helped in training them to work for Christ. And in doing this work, multitudes of young people have been drawn away from the frivolities of the world and closer to Christ.

The pastor who gives his young people work to do in the church will have no trouble with them on worldly amusements. Here is the answer to the vexed question, "How shall I keep my young members from forbidden worldly amusements?" Give them work to do for Christ and humanity. This brings them to feel that their church membership is not a mere name without meaning; but that they are factors in, and necessary to, the success of the church.

Brethren of the pastorate, let me beg of you that you do not pay the "special missionary" pledges out of your own means. This is not the design. This thwarts one main object had in view. For the pastor to pay the "ten-dollar pledge" will bring no blessing to his people. For the sake of your people, take the trouble to explain to them the nature and object of these pledges, and let them have the blessing that comes from the work of raising this money. They may get it in dollars, dimes, or pennies. They will get much of it from those who have never been interested in mission work. This turns the thoughts of the collectors to the great harvest field of humanity, while those from whom they get the money will be led to think and talk of their part in saving the race.

Nothing has ever drawn the church and the several mission fields so close together in sympathy and feeling as this work of caring for a living missionary as their own, whom they know by name, of whom they think, and for whom they pray. Nothing has so reached and touched the great heart of the church. Why did our church pay $33,000 more to missions last year than the year previous? Last year the hardest of years? How is this? Answer: The heart of the church is opening and warming toward the foreign fields, just in proportion as these fields are brought closer by the living ties (special missionaries) which connect them with the several Conferences. And even individuals are now supporting "special" missionaries of their own.

Is not God in it all? The missionary debt (regarded as such a misfortune), has it not brought about this better state of things? That same debt sent out eleven missionaries into the field at first. That same debt forced the necessity out of which the "special" missionary enterprise was born. It has taken the majority of all the missionaries off of the Board and put them in "special" and closer relation to the Conferences and the church at home. It has blessed multitudes by giving them work to do in raising these pledges. And, better still, it has so opened the heart of the church, and brought it into living touch and heart-beat with the mission fields, that we realize that China, Japan, Brazil and Mexico are no longer foreign, but part and parcel of each Annual Conference at home. Has not this debt been a blessing, and has it not wrought a work that had not otherwise been done?

Out of seeming misfortune God uplifts and brings blessing and success to his servants and his church.

The debt was made by appropriating $325,000, with $225,000 in sight with which to pay it. That is now paid. We now have an appropriation of $263,000 to meet ($62,000 less), while our increase in collections last year was $53,000. Hence (as stated recently to the church by the secretary and treasurer of the Board of Missions), "We have but to raise the assessments this year, with $31,000 additional by the secretaries in the field, and the debt will be paid."

Then, brethren, the light is ahead. Hold your "special missionaries" in the field, and thus continue the work which brings blessing at each end of the line. Blessing those who raise the pledges, and blessing those to whom the money is sent, and soon the debt will be gone, and the church at home and the church abroad will be one in a sense never felt before.

H. C. MORRISON.

Atlanta, Ga.

The Sin of Silence.

BY REV. JOSEPHUS STEPHAN.

The tongue is a much-abused member, but the abuse is all on one side. It is a most common thing to condemn it as the source of multiplied forms of evil when in active use—as an instrument which separates friends, ruins reputations and blasts the hopes of men. But who ever thinks of it as an evil thing when in non-use, and the source of equally as much harm?

Silence is just as great a sin before God, under certain circumstances, as is talking under others. There are times in everyone's life when withholding our words becomes a positive sin, for which there can be no justification. Hence one of the highest accomplishments in the life of a Christian, and, at the same time, the best test of a true Christian character, is found in the way he uses his tongue. How easy to offend with the tongue—its suppressing is as well as using it, in carelessly remaining silent as well as deliberately hushing it in the face of known duty.

The forms of its guiltiness are manifold; as the tongue is represented in its positive side as "a fire," "a world of iniquity," "an unruly evil full of deadly poison," so in the negative side there is evil, and it is evil in the most unsuspected forms.

One manifestation of this guilt is in keeping back the word which might save a soul. To refuse to speak then is a sin. It is hard to estimate the power of a wisely-spoken word at certain critical and responsive periods in people's lives. Sometimes they have wrapped up in them untold comfort; the rebaptism of a whole after-lifetime and the destinies of multitudes of individuals. A student at Brown University, by the name of Maloom, was one day accosted in a kindly way by a teacher: "Make one honest effort for your soul's salvation!" The words were opportune, and they took hold. He found no rest until the rest of forgiven sin came in answer to his struggles and faith. That loving speech was greater than could be imagined. His preaching and influence in after years was wide-extending; scores were saved, among them ministers of the gospel, and good done which eternity alone will reveal. Who can tell what possibilities are hidden in the silence of a moment when some soul could be influenced? The time comes in every life when that irrepressible monitor is heard exhorting us to speak, and not to speak then is to bring our soul into condemnation. False delicacy and fear of giving offense do not mitigate or excuse our sin.

Our silence is a sin in failing to defend the truth and announce our honest convictions. "Truth may be outraged by silence," and to day it lies in the dust, trampled upon and gainsaid because its expected advocates are hushed in cowardly silence. It has always been the case that truth has suffered because it had to stand alone and without proper vindication. How true is this more especially of the claims and principles of the religion of the Lord Jesus Christ. Why has it been so slow in making progress in the world? Why do men treat its provisions so indifferently and hesitate in accepting its needed blessings? One cause undoubtedly lies in the guilty silence of its professed adherents.

It may be considered unmanly for one in the midst of life's conflicts to fail to put in definite shape his personal convictions, but for a Christian it becomes a case of real guilt. No man can sustain relations with God and receive from him any promised blessings of his Word, and at the same time be silent and secret about it. He ought to be "a city set on a hill." It matters not how much opposition he may meet and how much persecution he may suffer, it is his solemn duty to stand boldly, clearly and outspokenly for the truth. There can be no equivocation, no uncertainty here; we must assert to the world just what we are, what we believe and where we stand. Questions are arising constantly on which we must take a position, however disagreeable the task may be. We owe it to God, to ourselves and to our fellow-men.

This duty is not so much one of defending the truth by reasoning and philosophizing as by witnessing. It is an easy thing to talk and theorize about religion, and there is no persecution attending it; but it is the highest test of our allegiance to Christ to testify to the inward experience and work of the Holy Spirit. Here is where multitudes have lost their hold on God and brought themselves into condemnation.

There is, strange to say, a prevailing opposition on the part of many good people in the church to any testimony which declares the fact that God can save to the uttermost—a work which is called by various terms. But this very opposition makes it a greater sin when we withhold our testimony to a conscious and undoubted work of this kind in our own hearts. Like the apostles, immediately after Pentecost, we must say, "We can not but speak the things which we have seen and heard," and, as obedient followers of Christ, we must heed his words, "Ye are my witnesses." We have nothing to do with what men may think or speculate or say concerning our testimony; we are, however, bound to faithfully testify to "that we do know" in a modest and becoming way, as the Spirit will inevitably lead us to do.

The last form of this sin we mention is that of failing to discountenance and reprove the wrong. It is just as much the Christian's duty to use his tongue in faithfully and persistently, but discreetly, putting down the wrong as it is in upholding and defending the right. Many an otherwise successful life has been ruined forever and many an absolute wrong has been perpetuated because some one's timely words of reproof were not spoken at the critical moment. The encouragement given to wrong-doing, both in private and public life, by the silence of those who ought to speak is beyond all computation. How many children have become helpless victims to baneful habits and tendencies in life, because their superiors refrained from plainly warning them of their danger! How many evils stalk through our land with irresistible way simply because of the silence of those commissioned and obligated to speak! What a tide of worldliness sweeps the churches of the land to-day because so many voices are hushed in guilty silence!

One of the most disagreeable duties we have to perform is to reprove a fellow-man in the commission of a sin or the unwisdom of an action, and yet it is the highest expression of kindness and good-will. As a surgeon, in amputating a limb, must give pain, but he does so out of kindness and with the intention of saving a life. He who knowing a thief or an incendiary to be lurking about your house with a design to kill, or rob, or burn, and would conceal it from you by his silence, is committing the greatest sin and treachery. Can it be any more sin or treachery not to acquaint one of the destructive effects of an unwise or evil course when we may do so? Such silence, however great our reluctance to speak, is bound to be criminal. There is a way of re-proving sin which, however, accomplishes no good, but only evil, and itself is a sin. It is reproof administered out of season, in the presence of others or in the wrong spirit. There is a loveless, repelling mode of re-proving which tends to shut the heart rather than open it to a better and right course of action.

While it is the unmistakable duty of a Christian to reprove private sin privately there are a class of sins which deserve public condemnation. These are those glaring and gross and bold forms of sin common in every community, and which thrive and multiply under the very shadow of the civil law. No Christian man has a right to see the age in which he lives characterized by corruption, nor his country nor his community grow in Sodom and Gomorrah wickedness, without raising his voice to save it. Especially is this the case in a land like our own, where the people make their own laws and see to their administration by the election of officers. In a despotic government we have no voice, and hence no responsibility; but under our own we become traitors and accomplices to all the wrong perpetrated by our silence. Every citizen is thus guilty, but the Christian citizen is doubly so; for if he neglects the public welfare, what can be expected of those who are not guided by his principles? He ought to be a break-water to all kinds of evils and mischiefs.

There are also times, in our relations to the church, when we must speak or else favor what is detrimental to her interests, and be untrue to ourselves and to God. It is easy to plead to ourselves our obscurity, and that all we could say would have no weight—to fear the disfavor of others and the unpleasantness of the task; still there can be no excuse for not uttering a protest and expressing God-given conviction. How much wrong has been tolerated and how many questionable things connived at in the past, simply by keeping quiet. Prudence and policy, humility and timidity, have too often taken the place of true obedience and Christian boldness. In matters wherein principle is involved and the real interests of the cause of Christ are at stake no man has a right to be silent nor to fear anyone but his Judge.

Why is it that so many of us have been guilty of committing this sin of silence? Why are there not more who use the tongue at proper times and in proper ways for the good of our fellow-men and the glory of God? Evidently because too many fail to realize their privilege and duty to receive, as the heritage of believers, a tongue of fire. This was the conscious need of Isaiah when after he had had that vision of infinite purity, he cried, "Woe is me! for I am undone; because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips: for mine eyes have seen the King, the Lord of Hosts." And he realized what was this tongue of fire when "one of the seraphims," "having a live coal in his hand, which he had taken with the tongs from off the altar," "flow unto" him and "laid it upon his mouth, and said, 'Lo, this hath touched thy lips, and thy iniquity is taken away, and thy sin purged.'" How appropriate this symbol on the day of Pentecost—the visible tongue of fire—the sign of an inward work, which was manifest in the wonderful transformation of their speech.

This baptism of fire is absolutely necessary to extract from the tongue all acid, the glorification of self, all vacillation and deception, and every form of lip sin; it makes the tongue a faithful witness to the condition and experiences of the soul, and bold and loyal and conscientious in advocating the truth. It becomes the tongue of love, but the tongue of perfect fidelity.

Festus, Mo.

Indian Mission.

I want to report through the ADVOCATE that I have received $19 on or for building the church for Indians—$18 raised by Rev. P. A. Johnston, P. E., of Woodville district, Mississippi Conference. He is an untiring worker for the mission. Wish we had many more like him. Thank you, Bro. Johnston. And $1 from Miss Hattie Collins, Cotton Valley, La. Many thanks to Miss Hattie. I also wish to report $1 on Bro. Cammack's salary sent by Mrs. R. A. Harris, Oak Ridge, Miss. Many thanks. Brethren and sisters, we are behind with Bro. Cammack's salary. Please remit it at once.

A. D. MILLER.

Barlow, Miss.

Theism and Evolution.

"It requires," says Prof. Huxley, in a recent deliverance of his, "some depth of philosophical incapacity to suppose that there is any logical antagonism between Theism and the doctrine of Evolution." That might depend somewhat upon the manner in which "the doctrine of evolution" is expounded. If evolution mean, as certain theorists of that school certainly do make it mean, that there is "nothing else in the universe but matter and force and necessary laws," the most incapable philosopher, who still is encumbered with common sense, is quite equal to a determination of the point whether there is room there for theism, or the belief in God. Nor is it much better when the principles of scientific evolution are so interpreted as to conclude that the existence of God, if it be a reality, still can not be known. It is quite certain that materialistic science has had both these results: has made atheism almost popular, and agnosticism the welcome refuge of thousands—who do not wish to know whether there be a God or not.

It seems to be taught by Prof. Huxley and others that there may be "a Christian evolutionist" who shall hold "that the Almighty Father created just as much or so little as in his infinite wisdom he knew to be sufficient to evolve the existing universe." This position Huxley declares is "inexpugnable by science." The concession may be accepted, with thanks; but it should be recognized what a wide margin remains of conception as to how much such acts of creation may be assumed to cover. If the advocates of evolution would limit themselves to the absolutely ascertained, and not demand so much of accepted theory as to evolutionary process, the matter would be much simplified. For example, as to the origin of man. A "Christian evolutionist" will surely draw the line there, until, at least, there is something in the nature of ascertained fact, far beyond any evidence yet afforded, that man is only a higher stage of brute development.

It seems clear, at all events, that thinkers like Prof. Huxley find, after all, that they can not, even as students and teachers of science, do without God. That is something; and it may be hoped that when those extremists who carry the theories of Darwin and Huxley so much farther than they themselves would have carried them, with proofs of their own "philosophical incapacity," we shall be allowed to read our Bible as a reliable book, and as teaching what it seems to teach.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON, Oct. 2, 1892.

BY REV. W. H. LAPELLE, D. D.

Saul of Tarsus Converted.

Acts ix, 1-20.

TIME.—A. D. 37.

PLACE.—Near Damascus first; afterwards, within the city.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Except a man be born again, he can not see the Kingdom of God." (John iii, 3.)

Saul was present at the stoning of Stephen and "was consenting unto his death." He comes first into notice then, but from his own statements we learn:

1. He was born at Tarsus, a city of Cilicia. (Acts xxii, 3.)
2. His father was a Roman citizen, so that Saul was a Roman born. (Acts xxii, 28.)
3. He was of the tribe of Benjamin, and of the sect of the Pharisees. (Phil. iii, 5.)
4. That he was very strict in conformity to Jewish law, and very zealous in his defense of the Jewish Church. (Phil. iii, 6.)

Saul was the leader of the aggressive movement against the disciples of Christ. He was probably about thirty-five years of age at the death of Stephen; an earnest, enthusiastic, talented, learned man, full of Jewish prejudices. An unregenerate religiousist, intense by nature and narrowed by rabbinical teaching, he waged war against the followers of Jesus under the impulse of mistaken zeal. The word "yet," in the first verse of our lesson indicates that he had previously been leading the persecution at Jerusalem.

Vers. 1, 2. The authority of the high priest was recognized everywhere among the Jews, and, in ecclesiastical matters, his exorcise was permitted by the Romans. The high priest issued letters authorizing arrest of heretics, the Sanhedrim approving.

Damascus was at that time ruled by Aretas, an Arabian, but was tributary to Rome. The Jewish population was large, probably more than forty thousand. Numbers of Jews who were converted at Pentecost, or soon afterward, had, no doubt, gone there when the persecution began.

Vers. 3. The light was from the immediate presence of Jesus; it was the brightness of his inherent glory, like that of the Transfiguration. Saul, no doubt, saw the glorified body of Jesus in the midst of the light, as he afterwards (1 Cor. xv, 8) to have seen him after his resurrection.

Vers. 4. Persecution of the followers of Jesus is persecution of Jesus himself, and he so regards it. Saul's education, and the prejudices of his association with the Sanhedrim, made it necessary for him to have a special revelation. Our Lord's revelation is always adequate to our need.

Vers. 5. Saul's question indicates that he had not yet been convinced that Jesus was the Lord; he was not conscious that his prejudice hid that truth from him. "He was like a stubborn ox, kicking against the sharp goad which was meant for his guidance. Supposing himself to be doing God's will, he was really self-willed and obstinate.

Vers. 6. Trembled with fear; was astonished that the Jesus whom he had regarded as an impostor was really the Lord of Glory. Convinced by this revelation, he humbly sought to know what he ought to do. To wish to do God's will is to open heart and mind to all truth.

Direct revelation is made only in far as actually necessary; after that Saul must hear the truth from Christ's witnesses, like any other man.

Vers. 7. The company heard a sound, but did not hear articulate speech, nor did they see Jesus as Saul did.

Vers. 8, 9. Saul was truly convicted; he was not yet a converted man, as that word is commonly used. Faith was dawning, heart and mind were stirred. Blind, fasting, praying (see ver. 11), he was preparing for the greater work.

Vers. 10. A human messenger is sent. He is prepared and appointed to preach; just as Saul was prepared, by the same power, to hear prophetic.

Vers. 11, 12. The great light here stated is that Saul was praying. He cried for help; Jesus sent the help, making known to him, to aid his faith, the messenger who should bring relief.

Vers. 13, 14. Ananias hesitated to go to the great persecutor; he wished to be fully assured that he must go before he went. His statement was intended to call forth further instruction. Many whom we regard as beyond reach are hungering for the gospel.

Vers. 15, 16. Whatever fears Ananias may have entertained, Jesus knew that Saul was ready for instruction. Just as a man is needed for his work among the Gentiles as well as among the Jews. He had chosen Saul for this work, and appointed him to the high honor of suffering for him.

This choice has reference to Saul's life-work, not to any "unconditional election" to salvation.

Vers. 17. "Jesus hath sent me." He who goes so sent, and in such spirit, will be heard. Jesus says to all his disciples, "Go ye;" we are not to hesitate because of any opinion we may have formed of those to whom we may be sent. The words, "Jesus hath sent me," will give us entrance if we have his spirit also. Ananias lost himself in his message; he placed Jesus at the front.

Vers. 18. Saul's faith, strengthened by his three days of fasting and prayer, and by the vision concerning Ananias, responded to the message. Immediately he saw with physical and spiritual eyes—and confessed Christ in baptism. It was not the miraculous scene outside the city that wrought his salvation; it was his faith in Jesus, of whose divinity he was, in that scene, convinced. Repentance and faith with him, as with everybody else, were the conditions of salvation.

Vers. 19, 20. Exhausted by long fasting and great mental excitement, he needed food. He began at once his work, testifying that Jesus Christ is the Son of God. He came to persecute Jesus; he ended by preaching to him. All redeemed powers belong to Christ. No man has the right to simply cease to oppose; he must add. There is a sense in which each of us is a "chosen vessel." Each convert is thereby made a witness for Christ.

Christian Advocate.

Rev. D. L. MITCHELL, Publisher.
Office: 112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

Subscription: $1 PER ANNUM.
Singles and copies of deceased Preachers, 25c.

Rev. C. W. Carter, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. Lewis, Ass't Editor.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

REV. J. M. BEARD, D. D.
REV. S. S. KENNEDY
REV. J. B. A. AURENS, D. D.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

REV. W. C. BLACK, D. D.
REV. W. B. LEWIS
REV. E. J. JONES
NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.
REV. W. T. J. SULLIVAN, D. D.
REV. J. D. CAMERON, D. D.
REV. T. C. WIER, M. D.

Thursday, September 29, 1892.

BRIEFS.

One good reason for raising an endowment for our Conference claimants is the fact that the number is constantly increasing. In a few years the present plan will be as burdensome as it is inefficient. Brethren, let us do something.

Our Lord spoke in a language so elegant, and in a style so clear, that the learned people who heard him wondered how and where he acquired them. In this he is an example to all preachers. If any man will follow his Lord in this matter, why should he be made a target for little folks to shoot their pop-guns at? It is only little souls that find fault with elegant language.

Bro. Sawyer's little pamphlet, "The World in the Church," has been issued in good form from our Publishing House, and can be had for twenty-five cents a copy. Bro. Sawyer treats an old threadbare subject in a sprightly way. A good portion of the treatise is culled from various sources, but the ground is very well covered, and the whole makes quite a readable tractate.

It has been suggested that in view of the national school celebration on the following week, Oct. 16 be observed as Columbus Sunday, and that on this occasion special emphasis be given to the inestimable value of our common-school system, which is one of the crowning results of the discovery of America. The suggestion is wise, and we commend it most heartily to our Methodist ministry.—Central Christian Advocate.

Our mission work in this city, while going forward under the patience and energy and self-denial of those immediately concerned, is not progressing as rapidly as we wish to see it. We are grateful for the cheering words and the prayers of our Christian friends. They do us good in keeping up hope; but we would be delighted to receive some crisp bank-bills from our well-to-do members. They are the real life of mission work. We stand ready to announce and boldly to promulgate the awful heresy that no mission can live on prayers. Some things grow beyond the praying-point, and some start beyond it in the first instance. Help is needed and needed now. Will you give it?

Judge Ferguson, of our Criminal Court, deserves special commendation. Some time ago, he charged the grand jury in a general way on the subject of gambling-house keepers and gambling, but nothing came of it. The houses were not closed and gambling went on as usual. Last Thursday the Judge called the grand jury before him and gave them a special charge on the same line. There was nothing general about that charge. He read to the jurymen their oaths, then he read the law against gambling-houses and gambling, and then pointed out where several such houses existed, giving street and number and names of proprietors, and said any amount of proof can be had. The consequence was that within an hour after this charge by the Judge, the chief of police had issued his orders to all his subordinates to close up all such "houses." That shows what can be done by a faithful officer. Judge Ferguson deserves the thanks of the community.

Our Hymn Book.

We are sorry to know that our people are not using our own hymn book as extensively as they should. As we travel around we find other hymn books occupying the place which ours should occupy, and those others are, in our judgment, far inferior in the correct statement of doctrine, in the expression of religious experience and in poetic merit. Especially in the social meetings and in the Sunday-schools do we find strange hymn books in use. Those who are in charge of these services, besides discounting their own church hymnal, are, by the use of such books, educating their young people, and older people too, away from the use of the best hymns in the English language. The very best judges of hymns have said that our collection, if not the best, is as good as the best; and we believe in using the best of everything. We want our children to read the best books, to hear the best preaching and to learn the best songs. In regard to the young, it is a very short-sighted policy to be content with anything below the best on every line.

Everyone acquainted with the history of Methodism knows that no small part of its success is due to its glorious hymns. These hymns ought never to wear out. They ought never to grow old. There is no phase of Christian life, no degree of grace, no attainment in religious experience which they do not express in accurate terms and in the highest poetic merit. The great doctrines of the Word of God, and especially those upon which Methodism has laid the strongest emphasis, receive statement in our hymns as definite and as accurate and as scientific as they have ever received from the pen of Richard Watson or of W. B. Pope. What do our people mean, then, when they suffer our hymn book to be superseded by the namby-pamby stuff that is flooding the land? We have no patience with such a course of action. Nor do we think we are bigoted in the stand we take in regard to our book. For our people, especially for our young people, we plead for the very best of everything that can be had. Competent critics declare our hymn book to be as good as the best, and we want all our people to become familiar with it for that very reason. The developing, educating power of the best things is too little appreciated.

A glance at the arrangement of our book will show its complete adaptedness to any religious service. For use in the social meetings its sections on "Communion of Saints" and "Prayer," are unexcelled—yea, unequalled—by any hymnal. Its provisions for any kind of service on the Sabbath are so appropriate that they add mightily to the power of the pulpit in its rebukes of sin and its edification of believers. So much is this the case that the pastor who does not use our book harms his people, and the Sunday-school superintendent who uses any other in his school is switching his young people off the Methodist track.

Our Bishops are men of piety and learning; they are men of large observation and experience, and their united voices must be worth something. Their judgment must carry weight wherever and whenever it is rendered. Now, they have spoken about our hymn book, and Methodists ought to heed what they say. Hear them:

We can not urge too strongly the vital importance of diffusing in the homes of our beloved Methodism the unwavering fragrance of these hymns as a daily tribute to him, all whose "garments smell of myrrh, and aloes, and cassia, out of the ivory palaces."

Let our congregations hold the theology which has brought life to myriads, as it is embalmed in these measures. Let our children in the Sabbath-school be trained to lip in advance the melody of the skies. Let us render to our Methodism the glory of having furnished from its own resources a psalmody unequalled in its rich statement of Christian experience through all stages of nascent and perfected life, which has become the inspiration of youth and the treasure of age with God's people of our own and other churches; and let us exclude from pulpit and prayer-room every utterance in song that would displace the doctrines and hymns of our Zion.

The choice hymns of Montgomery, Newton, Cowper, and other ancient and modern poets, will be found to have contributed to the classic and spiritual value of the book; but to the gifted muse of Charles Wesley, the sweet singer of Methodism, is this volume mainly indebted for its excellence.

It has been truly said that "every phase of Christian experience—its gloom, its struggle, its victory, its peace, its joy—finds in a Wesleyan hymn some true Castalian, almost seraphic, utterance." He wrote his poems in a style so immediately available that they rose, upon the air while the ink was hardly dry; and now, after a century and a half, they are sung in every land and in most of the languages of the world. They hold the essence of sermons, and serve as the liturgy of our churches. Christian hearts can never let them die.

Now, let every one of our preachers and Sunday-school superintendents see to it that our own hymn book is used in all our services.

Bacteria.

The results of scientific research in extending the range of human knowledge are the pride and wonder of our time. In every field of investigation rich fruits have been garnered as the reward of plodding endeavor and patient toil. In no realm has such rapid advance been made and such wonderful facts discovered as in that realm which opens only to the microscope. While new methods of research and new telescopes are bringing new stars and suns and systems into view, and thus overawing the mind with the vastness of creation and the mightiness of God, the microscope, turned in the opposite direction, discloses a realm where the little and invisible things, under a law as inexorable as gravitation, sway a supreme scepter.

The microscope has opened a new world below us, and the microscopist is to-day attracting as much of public attention as any other toiler in the fields of humanity. So far has he pushed his investigations and so plain are some of the results and so obvious are the bearings of those results in certain directions, that the medical fraternity is dependent upon his researches for a correct diagnosis of certain diseases. The unexpected things which are discovered and revealed and the unexpected bearings of those discoveries and revelations upon living issues border very closely sometimes upon the marvelous. And there is nothing more so than the minute and invisible propagators of various diseases which have come to light under modern scientific research.

Science knows these little fellows as bacteria. It is evident that they have life, but whether it is a plant or a fungus or an animal is not yet determined. They assume three phases or forms: the micrococcus, the bacillus, the spirilla—the first having the form of a berry, the second that of a rod, and the last that of a spiral. Some have a flagella at one end, some at both ends. Some are curved like a comma, some like a semi-circle, and some like the letter S. Some are parasitic and some pathogenic. All of them have the thickness of a micromillimeter. These are the terms in which the bacteriologist describes these little pests, and are, doubtless, very clear to learned people; but we plain folks stand in wide-eyed and open-mouthed wonder before such an array of scientific terminology. And when we are assured that these things, which frighten us by their terrible names, are disclosed by the microscope everywhere and in everything and upon everything, we feel that the science that has extended our knowledge has at the same time limited and contracted our sphere of action. We see that we are hedged in by these little rascals on all sides, and some of us are getting afraid to eat or drink or handle anything at all. So much has been published about bacteria and their ubiquity and the deadliness that lurks in their presence that we are beginning to think that everything should be labeled with a danger signal. And when we are told that two hundred species have been identified, how is a plain, unsophisticated man to know when he is in dangerous proximity to these invisible, yet death-dealing foes? The disclosures of science are thus undermining our sense of security. How can any man feel safe when such facts—deadly facts—as these stare him in the face? If it was an open enemy, we could have some heart; but who can fight the invisible? The food we eat, the water we drink, the air we breathe, the clothes we wear, the books we read, the seats we occupy, everything is infested with them. Now, all this we could, perhaps, worry along with, but the ambitious little fellows have reached out and taken possession of another sphere. We are assured by those who know that these scamps infest even our money. It is said that one greasy bank-bill contains 10,000 bacteria. So the startling fact is announced that our money is a dangerous thing to handle; that death lurks in the creases of our bills, and our pocket-books are nothing less than death-traps. Now, what does this mean, but that these bacteria have gone into politics, for death-laden bank-bills are the strongest argument for free silver—that is, silver free from bacteria? Now, taking all these things together, we are confidently looking for another discovery in regard to these bacteria? We expect to hear it announced soon that they have entered the spiritual realm and are the destroyers of personal religion. Indeed, there are many professors who have such a peculiar religion that we are forced to think that some invisible mite is preying upon it and eating away its life and vigor. Look out for the bacteria, the all-pervading, invisible deadly enemy of life, physical and spiritual.

The Fight of the Churches against the Liquor Law.

Vicksburg, Miss., Sept. 19.—[Special] The Crawford Street Methodist Church is torn from center to circumference over a resolution which was passed by the Board of Stewards yesterday. It reads as follows:

Whereas, The Methodist Church, South, condemns the sale of spirituous and vinous liquors as a beverage; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the members of this congregation are requested and expected not to sign any petition for license to sell intoxicating liquors as a beverage.

This action outlines the policy of the church in regard to the new liquor license law, which requires a petition of a majority of the legal voters to obtain the necessary license. It seems that one of the prominent stewards of the church, who is also a prominent merchant, attached his name to a liquor petition, and he was charged with violating the tenets of the church in so doing. He declared his opposition to prohibition, but his action created a storm, and he was given to understand plainly that if he signed again he would be requested to leave the church. He then promised to withdraw from all petitions.

This is the first gun in the fight which the churches will make against the saloons here, and its effect is anxiously watched, as the rule applies to all members of the church as well as the stewards.—Picayune.

MR. EDITOR: The above slip from Picayune, Sept. 20, is from beginning to end a tissue of misstatements, if not willful perversions, of fact, and is calculated to do harm. But for this tendency to do evil, it might form companion-piece to that historic description of the crab as "a little red animal that walks backward." The facts are that at a special meeting of Board of Stewards, Crawford St. Church, held after morning service, Sept. 18, after the business for which they were called had been disposed of, the matter of signing "liquor petitions" was brought up—several members having signed what are known as "wholesale petitions"—and after a full, free and frank consideration of the question, the following was unanimously adopted:

The M. E. Church, South, condemns the sale of liquor; therefore, the members of our church are requested not to sign any petition for the sale of liquor.

During the discussion, lasting some half-hour or more, all present took part; the Discipline was consulted and action of last General Conference referred to; but no threat of charges to be preferred was made, and no word spoken which could wound or offend.

So far from the church being torn by dissensions, we are only too quiet on this, as well as other burning questions of the day. The probability is that the majority of our members do not know this question has been considered. As yet, only "wholesale petitions" are in circulation, and the writer of the special is exercising his prophetic faculties in announcing that the resolution adopted is "the first gun in the fight to be waged by the churches against the saloons." The covert attack on our brother steward bears mark of malice in intent and purpose. He signed a wholesale petition because his business requires "alcohol" as a leading element in manufactures, but announces that he would, under no circumstances, sign a retail petition. As the Picayune has a large circulation in the Valley, we ask your aid in informing the brethren of the Mississippi Conference that—the Picayune and its mendacious report to the contrary—peace, harmony and brotherly love prevail in the Crawford Street congregation.

Respectfully, W. G. PAXTON,
For Com. of Board of Stewards.

An Appeal.

To the Brotherhood of the Mississippi Conference—

Brethren: You have seen the call for Assessment No. 15 on account of the death of Rev. L. W. Wood, and the revocation of the same, Bro. Wood having failed to keep up his membership. His widow, in her sad bereavement, would be greatly benefited by a voluntary contribution from us, and we propose that each member of the Brotherhood send the amount of $5, more or less, to Rev. C. A. Powell, Moss Point, Miss., to be given by him to her. We suggest this as a free-will offering to the widow of a brother who fell at his post of duty; and it need not be confined to the members of the Brotherhood.

W. B. LEWIS, President,
I. W. COOPER, Treasurer,
B. F. JONES, Secretary.
J. A. B. JONES,
Chairman of Ex. Com.

Some interesting statements were made before the Oriental Congress at its recent meeting in London, and some remarkable discoveries were reported. The history of Canaan a century before Joshua's conquest has been read on the tablets excoavated at Tel el Amarna, Egypt. The daughter of Pharaoh who rescued Moses has been identified as Queen Wakara Hatasu, daughter of Thothmes I. The Chinese language, hitherto of an unknown origin, has been traced to its Babylonian source. Prof. Sayce feels sure that the civilization of Babylon antedates that of Egypt even, and that the Egyptians were familiar with Babylonian cuneiform writing in the days of Moses, and used it in their diplomatic correspondence with the Assyrians. A papyrus manuscript of portions of the Old Testament books of Zechariah and Malachi, discovered a few months ago in Egypt, and believed to rank with the oldest manuscripts extant of the Septuagint version, was submitted to the Congress. The "digging force" in the East was never so numerous and well equipped as now, and the coming year is expected to be one of "unrivaled discoveries."—Zion's Herald.

A BEAUTIFUL CUSTOM.—We call the Chinese heathen, and yet they have some customs that would do credit to any Christian people. New Year's morning, each man and boy, from the emperor to the lowliest peasant, pays a visit to his mother. He carries her a present, varying in value according to his station, thanks her for all she has done for him, and asks the continuance of her favor for another year. They are taught to believe that mothers have an influence for good over their sons all through life.

GOD IN ALL.

The blue skies smile, and flowers bloom on,
And rivers still keep flowing;
The dear God still his rain and sun
On good and ill bestowing.
His pine trees whisper, "Trust and wait!"
His flowers are prophesying
That all we dread of change of fate
His love is underlying.

NOTES.

The St. Louis Advocate represents Bishop Galloway as saying: "I like to feel the thrill and mighty undertone of motion." Surely the reporter must have made a mistake. We don't believe Bishop Galloway uttered any such ridiculous nonsense as that!

The latest new thing in the towns and cities in higher latitudes is "Young Ladies' Walking Clubs." If they are for the purpose of inducing young ladies to exercise in walking, they are to be commended. Street cars, etc., in our towns and cities are doing our people harm in keeping them from the healthful exercise of walking.

We might undertake to give several reasons why Christians should fast, but none are better or so good as the example and teaching of Christ. He was the Son of man and reverts to us the best humanity possible. We can never go wrong when following him. He taught how we should fast as he taught us how we should pray. He certainly did not teach us how to go through a needless performance.—Texas Advocate.

Some speakers and writers take every occasion to marshal the martyrs before their hearers and readers, and point to them as good examples of fidelity to truth. What a beautiful picture it is, to be sure! And yet these same speakers and writers are just as emphatic examples to illustrate the virtue of not tempting providence by exposing yourself to danger.

Our observation has been that, other things being equal, there is no husband big enough to hide a shining candle. The pastor who buries himself in his work is by his work lifted up to wider fields. The prime necessity is successful legitimate permanent success. The church is hunting, however, for such pastors. All the presiding elders in the cabinet, and all the Bishops on the bench, could not successfully interfere, even if disposed. Nay, nay; they too would say: "There, lay your man."—Western Christian Advocate.

The salaries given to their cooks by some of the New York clubs is simply ridiculous; as much as $10,000 to $15,000 a year, to tickle the palates of these gourmands. But Mr. Pierre Lorillard has engaged a jockey, William Simms by name, to ride for him during the season of 1893 at a salary of $12,000. Another jockey for the Onck stables gets only $8,000. Think of it, ye senators and judges and governors and professors and ministers of the word! But then would ye like to be cooks and jockies with $12,000 a year to place in your greasy pockets?—Southern Christian.

There are decidedly too many "do-lorous croaks" in the church! If these "prophets of evil" would cease their croaking and put their hands to some kind of Christian work, they would soon see that there is strong, solid foundation for a hopeful faith in regard to the future. If ever anybody had cause for "fears for the future," it was Jesus when forsaken by all his disciples. But his faith in the future never wavered. He went forward to the end of his mission and is conquering the world to-day. Drive away doubt by earnest Christian work and be a happy disciple of your Lord.

The heathen teach our people how to give for the support of the gospel. Says the Examiner:

"Not all the Chinese carry all their money to China. The 161 Chinese Christians of California raised last year for benevolent purposes $6,200, or $39 for each; for the expenses of their own association they raised another $2,020, or $12 for each member. They raised $1,913 for home missions and $1,181 for foreign missions. One Chinese Sunday-school (30 members) in Brooklyn, N. Y., has given the last year $150 for foreign missions. A Boston Chinese Sunday-school gave $114 for the same work."

Then quote from Jesus or Paul, and then continue by saying, "Ife might, with equal truth, have said so-and-so." Is a little too gratuitous. It leaves the impression that if Jesus and Paul had thought of it, they would have said it, and then comes the inference: Jesus and Paul forgot something they ought to have said, and then, "What a wise man we have; he can tell us what Jesus and Paul would have said and ought have said." His words are supplemental to the deficiencies of Jesus and Paul. Take care how you speculate upon what our Lord or his apostles might have said. Your business is with what they did say.

"The old paths." This is a favorite hobby with many, and when they mount and give the rein to their steed, everybody else must "take to the woods." Where are these "old paths?" Forty years ago we heard people talking of the "old paths." Turning back the pages of history, we find that people in the days of Adam Clarke and John Wesley were exhorting others to return to the "old paths!" Go back to the prophets, and they are full of the same exhortations to return to the "old paths!" Go back to Moses and the patriarchs before him, and there it is again! We confess to some confusion on the subject of these "old paths," and to a private opinion, now made public in this note, that those who are continually exhorting us about returning to the "old paths" have no very clear and distinct idea of what they are after.

PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE.

Notice.

We have received $2 for Bro. Foust's home from Georgia Brewer, of Liberty, Miss.

Friends in Homer, La., have contributed $21.25 for Bro. Foust's home. So says Bro. Blocker.

It is a great mistake for preachers to take the notion that the churches are built for their special accommodation. Friend Cason, editor of the Monroe (La.) Times, does us the honor to copy entire our article about the recent prize fight in this city.

Bro. LaPrade returned last week from his vacation. He and wife are much improved in health. They are warmly welcomed back.

Greenville, Miss., is worth as follows: Realty, $2,579,145; personality, $608,430; solvent credits, $419,000; banks, $300,652.02. Total, $3,907,832.62.

Dr. D. L. Pbars, who was a member of the first graduating class of the old Louisiana College (now Centenary College) in 1837, died recently in Madison, Miss.

The State Industrial Institute and College, at Columbus, Miss., opened with 200 girls in attendance, and the A. and M. College, at Starkville, opened with 173 boys.

Bishop Granbery had to undergo a surgical operation on the jaw recently, but is reported improving. We trust he will be able to meet his appointments in our territory.

Rev. J. B. Robins has brought out a fourth edition of his valuable little book, "Christ and Our Country." We spoke favorably of the first edition, and this also commands our favor.

"The two sermons he preached last Monday would have done credit to an older divine." So says a country exchange. Take care, young preacher! Don't you believe a word of that. It isn't so.

A note from Rev. T. J. Newell, president of Grenada Collegiate Institute, says his school opened well, and prospects brighten every day. President Newell had quite a spell of sickness, but is again up and at work.

Regular daily passenger trains have been put on the Kansas City, Watkins and Gulf railway between Lake Charles, La., and Alexandria, La. This is a great convenience to the people of Southwestern Louisiana.

According to Superintendent Easton, there are in our city public schools, 8,449 white boys, 9,224 white girls, 2,010 colored boys and 2,828 colored girls. The public schools are to celebrate Columbus Day, which is Oct. 21.

Our Conference are coming on soon, and we exhort every preacher to do his best to be ready, and to pray for enough grace to prevent him from "poising as a martyr" for six months after the appointments are made.

Judge James T. Fant, of Holly Springs, Miss., has been compelled by continued ill-health to resign his office as circuit judge of the Third District. Judge Fant is a prominent member of our church in Holly Springs.

If you write with a pencil on a postal card, the writing may be so marred by rubbing in the mail bags as to be illegible by the time it reaches this office. We have some experience in trying to make out what is written that way on postals. For the sake of peace, don't do it any more.

A card from Rev. W. D. Dominick informs us that Rev. J. N. Tucker has been appointed collector for the Woodville district. We trust the brethren all over the district will co-operate heartily with Bro. Tucker in the laudable effort to extend the circulation of good books and periodicals.

Rev. H. E. Partridge, from Florida, passed through our city last week, en route to Natchez, Miss., having been appointed by Bishop Hendrix to Jefferson Street Church to fill out Bro. Nicholson's unexpired term. We heartily welcome Bro. Partridge, and trust his coming may bring great good to our Zion.

The Water Valley (Miss.) Progress, Sept. 17:

The huge tent revival opened up Thursday night under favorable auspices. A much larger congregation was present than was anticipated and considerable interest was manifested from the beginning.

A dispatch in the Times-Democrat from Tallahassee, Florida, Sept. 20, says:

Rev. H. E. Partridge, for many years an able and faithful preacher of the Florida Conference, M. E. Church, South, leaves this week to accept an appointment to the Jefferson Street Church, at Natchez, Miss.

The Texas Advocate has this note from a presiding elder:

The revival in Greenville goes on with unabated interest. The greatest meeting I ever saw. There have been 338 conversions, and the end is not yet. What I said of the Farmerville meeting is true of this. No sensationalism, to cheapen John in doctrine nor method. They all go to the altar. Many epistles connected with this meeting would make two readings, but I desist.

Two cents for a dictionary with 30,000 words; five cents for an elegantly illustrated primer, and other books in proportion. F. D. Van Valkenburg, 106 Camp street.

Applicants for admission on trial into the North Mississippi Conference will please meet the Committee of Examination at the Methodist Church in Corinth, at three o'clock, Monday afternoon, Nov. 28.

The committee will expect the applicants to be well prepared on the topics prescribed in the Discipline, and will make the examination strict. "Ordinary branches of an English education" are construed to mean English grammar, composition, spelling, geography and arithmetic. Failure on one topic will be sufficient to reject the applicant. The committee will give to the class a subject on which to write a composition, and from that the merit in grammar, spelling and composition will be chiefly determined.

Let candidates for our itinerant work seek all possible scholastic training before they enter the itinerant field.

W. T. J. SULLIVAN, Chair'n.

Notice.

I have appointed the following as collectors for the raising of our portion of the missionary debt, in accordance with the instructions of the Bishop:

Aberdeen district, Jno. Trice.
Kosciusko " J. B. Streeter.
Winona " J. R. Bingham.
Grenada " T. J. Newell.
Holly Springs " T. W. Lewis.
Greenville " Thos. Mount.
Columbus " Dabney Lipscomb.
Corinth " Dr. Worham.
Sardis " J. M. Wyatt.

I trust that these brethren will govern themselves accordingly, and that all will do their share toward removing this obstacle to the progress of the church. Yours fraternally,

R. M. STANDEFER,
Conference Collector, N. Miss. Conf.
Greenville, Miss.

Receipts to Pay Missionary Debt—Dr. Lambuth's Plan.

Brookhaven district—per M. L. Burton, collector.....$38.50

Some liberal subscriptions have been taken in the Brandon and Meridian districts, but only cash is being reported.

The letters from the district collectors are generally full of faith in God and hope to bring up the full amounts expected from their districts. Dr. Lambuth writes encouraging letters to me from the other Conferences in our great church. A ministry full of holy zeal, with knowledge of the needs of our mission fields, and knowing who are able to pay, will always succeed. We have been asking men for $1 who were able to pay $100, and calling for $25 where there was ability for $1,000. We are about to quit playing at missions and are going to work.

T. L. MCKEN.

Buy your school books from Bro. Van Valkenburg, 106 Camp street.

Biliousness, Dyspepsia,
SICK HEADACHE, WEAK STOMACH,
AND ALL
Disorders of The Liver.

TESTIMONY.
I have used Brodie's Pills for many years in my family and have found them invaluable in all cases, and as a Liver Pill do not think they have an equal.
Geo. H. WILKIN.

Sold By All Druggists.
Price, 25c. a Box.

I. L. LYONS & CO., Prop's,
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

ADVANTAGEOUS OFFER

OLD AND NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

SUBSCRIBERS indebted to the
NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

remitting amount due and Two Dollars for a year's subscription in advance, will be credited with Four Months' Additional Subscription.

New SUBSCRIBERS remitting
Two Dollars will be furnished this paper UNTIL JAN. 1, 1894.
This offer holds good until Nov. 1, next.

Extraordinary Club-Rate Offer!

One Year for $3.00.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE and WIDE AWAKE.

At the head of Young People's Magazine, 100 pages every number. Perfect entertainment.

One Year for $2.00.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE and BABYLAND.

The one magazine for children one to six years old. Baby's help; mother's delight.

One Year for $2.50.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE and THE PANSY.

Edited by "Pansy." For Sunday and week-day reading. 32 to 40 sparkling pages every month.

One Year for $2.50.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE and OUR LITTLE MEN AND WOMEN.

For youngest readers at home and in school.

One Year for $2.75.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE and THE STORY-TELLER.

Each number consists of a complete serial story for young people, varying from 50 to 100 pages.

Millsaps College,
Jackson, Miss.

Session Begins Sept. 29th, 1892.

Full Faculty, Thorough Course,
GOOD ENDOWMENT.

New and Commodious Buildings.

Beautiful, Central and Healthful Location at the Capital of the State.

Cheap Board. No Tuition. Moderate Matriculation Fee.

Liberal provision made for young preachers and sons of preachers.

For terms, catalogue or other information apply to

Rev. W. B. MURRAH, D. D., President,

or Rev. A. F. WATKINS, Agent, Jackson, Miss.

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY, Pres't of Board of Trustees.

CENTENARY COLLEGE, Jackson, La.

Jackson, La., is near Ethel, on the Valley R. R., 113 miles north of New Orleans. The location is beautiful and healthful, the buildings are elegant and ample, and the Faculty is complete and able. The sale of intoxicating drinks is forbidden by law within five miles of the College. Its endowment fund is being rapidly increased, and the College has entered upon a new career of prosperity.

Special attention will be given to the health, morals and biblical instruction of the students. For terms, Catalogue, or other information apply to Prof. G. H. Wiley, Jackson, La., or to W. L. C. HUNNICUTT, President.

Episcopal Visitation for 1892 and 1893.

Conference.	Date.	Place.	Bishop.
Columbia.....	Oct. 12.....	Eugene City, Oregon.....	Duncan
Holston.....	Oct. 12.....	Wytheville, Virginia.....	Granbery
Northwest Mexico Mission.....	Oct. 12.....	Nogales, Arizona.....	Haygood
Tennessee.....	Oct. 19.....	Tullip Street, Nashville.....	Haygood
Mexican Border Mission.....	Oct. 19.....	San Marcos, Texas.....	Haygood
Central Mexico Mission.....	Oct. 27.....	City of Mexico.....	Haygood
German Mission.....	Oct. 28.....	Houston, Texas.....	Haygood
West Texas.....	Nov. 2.....	Gonzales, Texas.....	Haygood
North Alabama.....	Nov. 16.....	Albany, Texas.....	Haygood
Indian Mission.....	Nov. 16.....	Artemus, Indian Territory.....	Haygood
Virginia.....	Nov. 16.....	Norfolk, Virginia.....	Hendrix
Northwest Texas.....	Nov. 21.....	Waco, Texas.....	Hargrove
South Carolina.....	Nov. 21.....	Charleston, South Carolina.....	Hendrix
Memphis.....	Nov. 30.....	Mayfield, Kentucky.....	Keener
Arkansas.....	Nov. 30.....	Clintonville, Arkansas.....	Wilson
North Mississippi.....	Nov. 30.....	Cornish, Mississippi.....	Hargrove
North Texas.....	Nov. 30.....	Sherman, Texas.....	Hargrove
Western North Carolina.....	Nov. 30.....	Winston, North Carolina.....	Hendrix
Little Rock.....	Dec. 7.....	Minneapolis, Arkansas.....	Wilson
North Georgia.....	Dec. 7.....	Madison, Georgia.....	Hargrove
Alabama.....	Dec. 7.....	Rifolia, Alabama.....	Hargrove
White River.....	Dec. 14.....	Batesville, Arkansas.....	Wilson
Mississippi.....	Dec. 14.....	Salches, Mississippi.....	Hargrove
East Texas.....	Dec. 14.....	Nacatoches, Texas.....	Hargrove
Louisiana.....	Dec. 14.....	Lake Charles, Louisiana.....	Haygood
North Carolina.....	Dec. 14.....	Huntsboro, North Carolina.....	Haygood
South Georgia.....	Dec. 14.....	Columbus, Georgia.....	Hargrove
Florida.....	Jan. 4.....	Ocala, Florida.....	Hargrove
Baltimore.....	Mar. 21.....	Front Royal, Virginia.....	Key

WAYNESBORO COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

WAYNESBORO, MISS.

W. W. MOORE, A. M., President.
(Southern University.)

ALEX. POWE, Vice-President.
(Southern University.)

Miss CLARA BLOCK, A. M., Primary.
(M. M. F. C. and Peabody Normal.)

Miss LUCY ANDREWS, Music.
(New England Conservatory.)

J. C. AUST, Telegraphy, etc.

Our course of study embraces the Classics and English, also Telegraphy, Music, shorthand Bookkeeping and Printing. An unlimited number of boys and girls may secure board on the cheapest plan ever known to any Southern school. Board and tuition need not exceed ten dollars per month.

Write for catalogue. Next session opens Sept. 12, 1892. Write to

Rev. W. W. Moore, A. M., President.

Office Telephone, 83.

Yard Telephone, 331.

Pennsylvania Coal Company,

Office, 87 Carondelet Street.

PITTSBURGH COAL.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

L. S. WIDNEY, Manager.

Cotton Presses, Factories, and the Family trade supplied at Lowest Market Rates.
CITY YARDS: Foot of Robin Street, Foot of Desire Street, Corner Short and St. Charles Avenue.

EIGHTH YEAR.

—MUSICAL ART.—

(INCORPORATED.)

PILCHER'S
STUDIO OF MUSIC,
and SCHOOL OF LANGUAGES.
(Established 1855.)

169 St. Charles Street. Next to Washington Artillery Hall.

Ample accommodations for Boarding Students. The Boarding Department is under the direct supervision of Mrs. Wm. Pilcher, Sr.

Music Taught in All Its Branches. Twenty-five teachers in the various departments. Graduates and other pupils who have attended this institution are now occupying positions of more or less prominence throughout the country. Send for Seventh Annual Catalogue.

WILLIAM H. PILCHER, President, New Orleans, La.

L. GRUNEWALD CO., Ltd.,

LOW PRICES! TIME PAYMENTS!

STEINWAY,
KNABE,
CHICKERING, MEHLIN,

SOHMER,
FLEYEL, FISCHER,
SHONINGER,
OPERA.

OLD PIANOS TAKEN IN EXCHANGE.

PIANOS AND ORGANS!

127 Canal St., 14 to 20 Baronne St., NEW ORLEANS.

Write for terms and further particulars.

Mathushek
185 Canal St.
New Orleans, La.,

Is Offering the Following Bargains:

New Upright Pianos. - $250.

New Parlor Organs. - $30.

Second-hand Upright Pianos. - $125.

And Will Sell on

Easy Monthly Payments, if desired.

Write for Prices and Catalogues.

For a Good Reliable Watch,

Twenty Solid Gold Jewels—none other kept in stock—Beautiful Diamonds and other Precious Stones, Handmade Designed Solid Silver and Silver-Plated Ware, and all other Articles pertaining to a First-Class Jewelry Store, call at

FRANTZ & OPITZ.

Practical Watchmakers and Jewelers,

No. 51 ROYAL ST., CORNER BIENVILLE, NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Designs and estimates of Medals, Badges and Emblems in Silver and Gold for SCHOOLS, ACADEMIES, SEMINARIES, UNIVERSITIES, SOCIETIES, etc., will be furnished and executed in all latest styles and artistic workmanship on short notice, at most reasonable prices.

Clocks, Watches and Jewelry repaired. All articles of Jewelry made to order. Diamonds reset in every style.

"ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE."

In order to introduce our ELEGANT and ARTISTIC CLAYON PORTRAITS to yourself and your friends, we make you the following handsome offer, viz: If you will send us a photograph of yourself, or any member of your family, we will make from it one of our finest clayon portraits.

ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE.

Our names and reputation as Artists are already well known throughout the United States but we desire to increase our customer list and to this end we have placed one of our finest clayon portraits placed in our home with the more good than other advertising. Send the photograph you desire copied to us under of THIRTY DAYS FROM DATE. The portrait will be sent to you free of charge, and its value $25.00. It will be as fine as any you can see and will be a fine addition to your home.

As to our reputation as Artists are already well known throughout the United States but we desire to increase our customer list and to this end we have placed one of our finest clayon portraits placed in our home with the more good than other advertising. Send the photograph you desire copied to us under of THIRTY DAYS FROM DATE. The portrait will be sent to you free of charge, and its value $25.00. It will be as fine as any you can see and will be a fine addition to your home.

As to our reputation as Artists are already well known throughout the United States but we desire to increase our customer list and to this end we have placed one of our finest clayon portraits placed in our home with the more good than other advertising. Send the photograph you desire copied to us under of THIRTY DAYS FROM DATE. The portrait will be sent to you free of charge, and its value $25.00. It will be as fine as any you can see and will be a fine addition to your home.

As to our reputation as Artists are already well known throughout the United States but we desire to increase our customer list and to this end we have placed one of our finest clayon portraits placed in our home with the more good than other advertising. Send the photograph you desire copied to us under of THIRTY DAYS FROM DATE. The portrait will be sent to you free of charge, and its value $25.00. It will be as fine as any you can see and will be a fine addition to your home.

As to our reputation as Artists are already well known throughout the United States but we desire to increase our customer list and to this end we have placed one of our finest clayon portraits placed in our home with the more good than other advertising. Send the photograph you desire copied to us under of THIRTY DAYS FROM DATE. The portrait will be sent to you free of charge, and its value $25.00. It will be as fine as any you can see and will be a fine addition to your home.

As to our reputation as Artists are already well known throughout the United States but we desire to increase our customer list and to this end we have placed one of our finest clayon portraits placed in our home with the more good than other advertising. Send the photograph you desire copied to us under of THIRTY DAYS FROM DATE. The portrait will be sent to you free of charge, and its value $25.00. It will be as fine as any you can see and will be a fine addition to your home.

As to our reputation as Artists are already well known throughout the United States but we desire to increase our customer list and to this end we have placed one of our finest clayon portraits placed in our home with the more good than other advertising. Send the photograph you desire copied to us under of THIRTY DAYS FROM DATE. The portrait will be sent to you free of charge, and its value $25.00. It will be as fine as any you can see and will be a fine addition to your home.

MARRIAGES.

LISK-MILLER.—In New Orleans, La., Sept. 15, 1892, by Rev. H. S. Johns, Mr. C. J. Lisk to Miss Lena Miller, all of New York.

COLE-FILLOTT.—At the residence of Mr. R. D. Filloft, the bride's father, near Olla, La., Aug. 4, 1892, by Rev. W. G. Evans, Mr. W. H. Cole to Miss Ellen D. Filloft.

OBITUARIES.

We publish obituaries of 200 words free of charge for all over this one cent per word. If you want the notice to appear in the Advocate, comply with this rule. Obituaries must be sent one cent for each word over 200.

BORTON.—In San Antonio, Texas, on Feb. 14, 1892, after a weary and prolonged illness, EUGENE BORTON passed away, leaving to his surviving wife and the friends at his bedside the most gratifying assurances of his faith in God and his confident expectation of rest eternal.

The deceased was a son of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Borton, formerly of Panola county, Texas. His mother preceded him many years to the better land; his father still lives an honored member of our church. Eugene was born in Dallas, Texas, Feb. 16, 1857; consequently lived within two days of his thirty-fifth birthday. He joined the M. E. Church, South, during a protracted meeting at Waskim, Texas, in 1883 in the communion of which he remained to the time of his death. He was a steward in Dallas church, and treasurer of the Board at Greenwood for some years.

A question which he was accustomed to ask his pastor repeatedly is a key to his character. "Was I ever off for money?" Many a time, when there was nothing to the credit of the church, and when he had already paid his full share, he advanced the amount needed to relieve his pastor without being asked to do so. Since his death a sister, who was a leader in religious and benevolent activities, said to the writer, "I never found Bro. Borton too busy to give to the presentation of a claim of religion or benevolence." He always gave, but would frequently ask: "Now, is that enough? Is it as much as I ought to give?" and say, "If you do not get all you need, come back." What Bro. Borton did for the church and the poor was done so unostentatiously that but few persons were aware of the extent to which he practiced his grace.

The almost unrelenting ill health of our brother (as far back as our acquaintance extended) was a source of great trial, of which he never tired to his pastor. Of an active and energetic temperament, and burdened with the cares of a prosperous business, he chafed under the limitations imposed by failing strength, and bodily suffering. He realized, however, in the end that the chastening of the Lord, though for the time "grievous," nevertheless afterward yielded the peaceable fruits of righteousness. Toward the close his life melted into a beautiful sublimity, and the sun went down on a serene horizon.

A sad loss to the young wife, to the church and the community, but, as we believe, to him everlasting gain. May our heavenly Father sanctify to the everlasting gain of relatives and friends to the prayer of his former pastor.

RONN, J. HARR.

BRETT.—D. W. BRETT was born in Washington county, Ga., Dec. 10, 1819, and moved to Atlanta county, Miss., in the year 1840; from there to Amite county, Miss., in 1846, where he died May 17, 1892. Bro. Brett was first married to Mrs. Polly Adams, who died Aug. 4, 1882, by whom he was to him five children—two of whom are yet living. He was again married to Mrs. A. Kenna, May 10, 1883, who still survives him.

He was a member of the M. E. Church for some fifteen or twenty years, doing which time he was faithful to the cause of his Master. His was the home of the preacher. When there many were the kind and hearty welcome to the writer by this dear brother and his kind Christian wife, which will be held in sweet memory of them until death. Other preachers still no doubt, when they read this obituary of the happy hours they have passed in the sweet, happy home of Bro. and Sister Brett.

Bro. Brett was a great sufferer for about two months, though he bore it as only a Christian could. He said he was ready and not afraid to die. Bless God for such testimony! His death was peaceful and triumphant. By his request I conducted the funeral service. The large number of people who followed his remains to the grave showed their respect and love for one who had loved and served God in the end. "Blessed be the God who has given life to the dead." He has gone to receive that crown. To the family and loved ones he would say, "Sorrow not, but live for Christ, that you may meet him by and by in the city of our God, where the weary are at rest."

M. FERRILL.

CLARK.—The subject of this tribute, Miss OLA T. CLARK, was born in Butler county, Ala., Nov. 3, 1872; joined the M. E. Church, South, at St. Tammany Camp Meeting, September, 1890, during the pastorate of the writer; departed this life near Madisonville, La., surrounded by sorrowing friends and loved ones, July 9, 1892, aged nineteen years and eight months. She was the youngest daughter of Bro. J. I. and Sister Mary J. Clark.

When the angel of death enters the family garden and calls a flower even faded by age, our hearts are made sad indeed, and when he enters and plucks the tender bud before it has put forth its sweet fragrance and beauty, we feel sad. Oh, how sad! But when that death-angel comes and claims for his own the flower that is blooming in all its beauty and loveliness, our hearts are crushed, and we feel an aching void which nothing but the blessed Comforter can fill.

Sister Ola was not the bud, not the faded, but the blooming flower which has been removed beyond the river. Then, fond loved ones, if you would find the missing flower, you must go to the garden of God to find it, for we believe it is there blooming in beauty immortal. May God comfort the bereaved ones!

G. R. ELLIS.

STONE.—I take my pen to write of the death of little AVIS STONE, aged eight years, the daughter of M. J. and M. J. Stone, who are members of our church at Endora, Miss.

She was, indeed, a bud plucked from earth to bloom in heaven. She was a sweet, obedient, self-sufficient child—a child that loved to read and loved the preacher. She lived the Sabbath school, and won the prize twice for good lessons and punctuality. When I came on this week I found this paragon considerably ill, and I gave Avis a little box to get money. She had collected $1.31 when she got sick. She had some more her papa had given her; and when they saw she was going to die they asked her what she wanted done with the money, and she said put it in her little box, and the whole amount was $5.15. She is not dead, but gone to live with Jesus and learn upon his bosom.

Weep not, brother and sister, for your precious one; she is in safe hands, who will take care of your darling until you come.

Her pastor,
G. W. PERKINS.

CALLOWAY.—REV. M. C. CALLOWAY was born in old Pendleton district, December, 1814, of Baptist parentage; was converted in a neighborhood prayer meeting in June, 1827, and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church shortly afterward, drawing with him his mother. Before he was fourteen years of age he was made class leader and steward, and shortly afterward was licensed exhorter. He served these different positions and offices with credit to himself and profit to the church, till about the year 1851. He was ordained deacon by Bishop Andrew, and later on was ordained elder. He exercised the duties of these offices till his death, which occurred the first day of September, 1892.

He was a perfectly consecrated man of God. It was the love of human souls that caused him to forsake home, family, and all, and go far and wide to do the work of the Master. His happiest moments were those which were spent to the contemplation of death. He died in the triumph of the faith. He was experimentally acquainted with personal and perfect consecration.

He left a wife and three children, with a great number of friends, to mourn their loss. He was preceded by two wives and ten children. M. C. Calloway, who died a member of the Mississippi Conference, stationed at Jackson, La., was his son, and his true, devoted Christian character is the trait of a true Christian home. Bro. Calloway's daily walk was such as to emphasize his public ministry. What is our loss in his death was his eternal gain.

C. H. PITTMAN.

The following resolutions were adopted by the Quarterly Conference of which Bro. Calloway was a member:

Resolved, Our heavenly Father, through his kind providence, exchanged the cross valiantly borne by our Bro. M. C. Calloway for a glorious crown in heaven, on the first day of September, 1892; therefore be it

Resolved, By the third Quarterly Conference of the Nashville charge, Columbus district, North Mississippi Conference, now in session, that we bow submissively to this seeming affliction, believing that all things work together for good to those who love the Lord.

Resolved, Having full confidence in the efficient manner that our beloved brother held up the crucified Savior to so many sin-sick souls, and through the grace of God so successfully pointed them to that Redeemer who died to save them, many of whom are waiting at the beautiful gate to clasp his hand, saying that, through God's power, was instrumental to the salvation of their souls.

Resolved, The length of time (sixty-five years) that he had been in the service of our precious Savior, never faltering, but looking heavenward at all times, continues us that God leads us all the way, and will give us grace for every trial.

Resolved, This body tenders its sympathy to his desolate family, pointing them to God, who alone is able to comfort them in their sad bereavement.

Resolved, That this preamble and resolutions be forwarded to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE, requesting publication, and a copy thereof be sent to his family.

Resolved, That a page in the Journal of this Quarterly Conference be set apart in fraternal remembrance of our deceased brother.

(Signed)
T. P. WIER, P. K.

W. H. PUCKETT, Sec'y.

MCDONALD.—We regret to chronicle the death of little ALICE OLIVIA, the daughter of Mr. William and Miss McDonald. She was born May 5, 1886, and died July 22, 1892.

Little Alice's earthly pilgrimage was short. God is gathering up his jewels. He says, "For of such is the kingdom of heaven." She now breathes a pure atmosphere in climes high above. Little Alice is missed at home by father, mother and sisters, and earth is robbed, but heaven is made richer. May God bless the loved ones who remain, heal their wounded hearts and bring them to that home where all may meet to sing the praises of God in Alice has left you with sad hearts; but we do not mourn as those who have no hope. We do not see her around the home to-day; we no longer hear her childish voice in prattle around the hearthstone; no longer will mama hear her sweet voice. She used to tell her mama that she wanted to live to be God's child. Yes, she was a good girl, and you miss her so much; but she is better off. God is caring for her and she is happy. Parents, cheer up; be faithful for little Alice is the fourth child that is at the beautiful gate waiting and watching for you.

G. E. FANN.

GRICE-JESSE C. GRICE, youngest son of Dr. N. A. and Rosa T. Grice, died Aug. 3, 1892, aged one year seven months and one day.

Sweet little Jesse was a sublime ray of sunshine in that happy Christian family; but the God who gave him saw fit to take him; and blessed be his holy name!

IRA B. ROBERTSON.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO THOSE SENDING MONEY.—Remittances should be made only by money orders, express company orders, registered letters, drafts or checks on New Orleans banks or merchants. Drafts on country banks occasion a loss of from 15 to 25 cents per check. Drafts on country merchants we have no facility for collecting. Checks and drafts, also money orders, should be made payable to D. L. Mitchell, Publisher.

We use Alcohol

pure alcohol to make WOLFF'S ACME BLACKING. Alcohol is good for leather; it is good for the skin. Alcohol is the chief ingredient of Cologne, Florida Water, and Bay Rum the well known face washes. We think there is nothing too costly to use in a good leather preservative.

Acme Blacking retails at 20c.

and at that price sells readily. Many people are so accustomed to buying a dressing or blacking at 5c and 10c a bottle that they cannot understand that a blacking can be cheap at 20c. We want to meet them with cheapness if we can, and to accomplish this we offer a reward of

$10,000

for a recipe which will enable us to make WOLFF'S ACME BLACKING at such a price that a retailer can profitably sell it at 10c a bottle. We hold this offer open until Jan. 1st, 1893.

WOLFF & RANDOLPH, Philadelphia.

All Grocers sell GOLD DUST WASHING POWDER.

N. K. FAIRBANK & CO., Sole Manufacturers,
CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS, NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
BALTIMORE, NEW ORLEANS, SAN FRANCISCO,
PORTLAND, ME., PORTLAND, ORE., PITTSBURGH AND MILWAUKEE.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR
The Celebrated

CHOCOLAT
MENIER

Annual Sales Exceed 33 MILLION Lbs.
Write for Samples. Sent Free. Menier, Union Sq., N. Y.

HARDWOOD AND MARBLEIZED SLATE
MANTELS.

TILE HEARTHES. GRATES AND FIRE-PLACE TRIMMINGS.

GEO. M. LEAHY,

Advocate Building, - No. 112 Camp St., New Orleans.

WE The Jury

PRONOUNCE W. C. SHEPARD & SON,
94 CAMP ST., near POYDAS,
The Cheapest, Neatest, Glass and House-furnishing House in the City.

Be sure and look them up when needing goods in their line. 500 Dinner, Tea and Chamber Sets at half price.

For First-Class Photographs

GO TO SIMON'S,

No. 183 Canal St., - - - New Orleans, La.

H. Dudley Coleman Machinery Co., Lim'd.
New Orleans, La.

STEAM ENGINES, BOILERS, MILLS AND MACHINERY,

Pumps, Pipe, Presses, Pulleys, Shafting.

Saw, Sugar and Corn Mills,

Cotton Gins, Feeders and Condensers.

Examine Our Stock. Our Prices Are Very Low.

FOUNDRY, FACTORY & OFFICE, | SUPPLIES & SAMPLE STORE
Cor. Magnolia and Erato Sts. | 9 Perdido St. New Orleans, La.

If readers of this advertisement who wish to purchase goods in our line would mention this paper when writing for information or when ordering goods from us, we could then determine whether the money we pay for advertising in this paper is well invested or not.

H. DUDLEY COLEMAN MACHINERY CO., LIMITED, New Orleans, La.

Liverpool and London and Globe
Insurance Company.

Losses Paid by Chicago Fire, 1871, $3,239,091.

Losses Paid by Boston Fire, 1872, $1,429,726.

All Losses Paid in Cash without Discount, as Seen and Adjusted.

Losses and all matters of business settled by officers and directors in New Orleans without reference to any other office, the same as with local companies.

DIRECTORS IN NEW ORLEANS.

GUSTAF R. WESTFELDT, L. O. FALLON, LUAS E. MOORE, C. M. SORIA
Chairman. Resident Sec'y. Resident Secretary.

The Southern Insurance Company

OF NEW ORLEANS.

54 - - - CAMP STREET - - - 54

Paid up Capital, $300,000. Assets, $545,096.10.

FIRE, RIVER AND MARINE INSURANCE.

This company by its conservative, yet liberal, business methods, and the immediate availability of its assets, affords complete security to its insured. Losses promptly adjusted and paid.

ERNEST MILTENBERGER, H. GALLY, SCOTT MCGHEE,
President. Vice-President. Secretary.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Frank Roder, J. H. Menze, Joseph Schwartz, F. G. Ernst, T. J. Woodward.

Home Insurance Co., of New Orleans.

No. 78 CAMP STREET.

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1886,	$400,479.08
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1887,	$418,860.76
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1888,	$459,369.50
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1889,	$510,584.54
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1890,	$551,897.82
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1891,	$600,414.81

Steadily Increasing in Strength and Popularity.

Solicits Fire and River Business.

Liberal Settlements and Prompt Payments.

Thos. Sefton, Pres't. Capt. J. B. Woods, Vice-Pres't. Jno. G. Byrd, Sec'y

J. B. WOODS, JNO. J. BARR, J. B. LEVERT, W. B. BLOOMFIELD, JOS. BAYLE, ANDREW STEWART, E. BORLAND, W. T. HARRIS,
JNO. BARKLEY, CHAS. CHAFFE, P. R. RICE, THOS. SEFTON.

W. R. LYMAN, JOSEPH BOWLING, CHAS. E. RICH,
President. Vice-President. Secretary

Crescent Insurance Com'y.

Incorporated as a Mutual Company in 1849.

Reorganized as a Stock Company in 1860.

Cash Capital, - - - - - $300,000.

Has paid over TEN AND ONE-HALF MILLIONS for losses since 1849. ANNUAL and TERM

POLICIES issued on Desirable Fire Business.

See our Agents throughout Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas.

Watches, Diamonds,
FINE JEWELRY!
Silver and Silver-Plated Ware,
SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES.
Send for Catalogue.

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO.,
(Established 1817)
119 CANAL ST., New Orleans, La.

THIRTY CENTS

Will get you TWO good papers, THE WAY OF FAITH (weekly), THE SOLID (monthly), for THIRTY MONTHS, 8 sweet songs, and our Liberal Terms to Agents. Address: GOSPEL MISSION, Columbia, S. C. Maudition this paper.

"Sanctification,"
BY DR. B. CARRADINE,
Is having a wonderful sale and doing a large amount of good.

Price: Paper, 40 cents; cloth, 50 cents.
For sale by F. D. VAN VALKENBURGH,
106 Camp St., New Orleans.

Base Ball Goods, Croquet, Fishing Tackle, Seines, Twines, Refrigerators, Water Coolers, Ice Cream Freezers, Baskets, Hammocks, Lamps, Lanterns, Fruit Jars, Corks, Bottles, Flasks, Hardware, Tinware, Stationery, Wrapping Paper and Bags.

FULL LINE OF
Wooden and Willowware, Brushes, etc.

J. C. MORRIS CO., Limited.
40, 42 and 44 Tchoupitoulas Street
E. F. DYER, Pres. E. P. MACKIE, Treas.

W. W. CARRE,
LUMBER MERCHANT

AND MANUFACTURER OF
PLANTATION CABINS, STORES, Etc.,
Nos. 343, 344, 346 and 348 Howard Ave.,
NEW ORLEANS.

Latest Styles -- Lowest Prices!

This handsome Parlor Suit is upholstered on solid walnut frames with Imported Marbleized Silk Plush and the seats are all Spring Edge. Colors are Red, Red and Old Gold, Blue and Old Gold or each piece of a different color. For $45 I will sell seven pieces of this suit:—one Sofa, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair and three Reception Chairs. $65 buys the complete suit of ten pieces consisting of two Sofas, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair, and five Reception Chairs. Same suit covered with Hair Cloth, seven pieces $35 or ten pieces $55. Every other article in my store at proportionately low prices. Bedroom suits, twelve pieces, from $40 up to $1000 Dining room suits, eight pieces, from $17 upwards. Complete Kitchen outfits from $20 upwards. Quality at top—prices at bottom. I have an immense variety of strictly reliable goods and purchasers can depend upon getting the very latest styles. Everything guaranteed to be exactly as represented or money will be promptly refunded.

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE
in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT,

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE
in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30

Highest of all in Leavening Power.—Latest U. S. Gov't Report.

Royal Baking Powder

ABSOLUTELY PURE

The Russian government has granted $300,000 for a medical school for women to be established at St. Petersburg. The site has been given by the city.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCES.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

COLUMBUS DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Starkville circuit.....	Oct. 1, 2
Starkville.....	3, 4
Tibbee.....	5, 6
Starkville.....	7, 8
Starkville.....	9, 10
Starkville.....	11, 12
Starkville.....	13, 14
Starkville.....	15, 16
Starkville.....	17, 18
Starkville.....	19, 20
Starkville.....	21, 22
Starkville.....	23, 24
Starkville.....	25, 26
Starkville.....	27, 28
Starkville.....	29, 30
Starkville.....	31, 32

GREENVILLE DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Abbeville circuit.....	Oct. 1, 2
Abbeville.....	3, 4
Abbeville.....	5, 6
Abbeville.....	7, 8
Abbeville.....	9, 10
Abbeville.....	11, 12
Abbeville.....	13, 14
Abbeville.....	15, 16
Abbeville.....	17, 18
Abbeville.....	19, 20
Abbeville.....	21, 22
Abbeville.....	23, 24
Abbeville.....	25, 26
Abbeville.....	27, 28
Abbeville.....	29, 30
Abbeville.....	31, 32

GREENVILLE DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Lala.....	Oct. 1, 2
New Salem.....	3, 4
Clarksville.....	5, 6
Clarksville.....	7, 8
Clarksville.....	9, 10
Clarksville.....	11, 12
Clarksville.....	13, 14
Clarksville.....	15, 16
Clarksville.....	17, 18
Clarksville.....	19, 20
Clarksville.....	21, 22
Clarksville.....	23, 24
Clarksville.....	25, 26
Clarksville.....	27, 28
Clarksville.....	29, 30
Clarksville.....	31, 32

KOSCIUSKO DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Louisville.....	Oct. 1, 2
Starkville.....	3, 4
Starkville.....	5, 6
Starkville.....	7, 8
Starkville.....	9, 10
Starkville.....	11, 12
Starkville.....	13, 14
Starkville.....	15, 16
Starkville.....	17, 18
Starkville.....	19, 20
Starkville.....	21, 22
Starkville.....	23, 24
Starkville.....	25, 26
Starkville.....	27, 28
Starkville.....	29, 30
Starkville.....	31, 32

HOLLY SPRINGS DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Holly Springs circuit.....	Oct. 1, 2
Holly Springs.....	3, 4
Holly Springs.....	5, 6
Holly Springs.....	7, 8
Holly Springs.....	9, 10
Holly Springs.....	11, 12
Holly Springs.....	13, 14
Holly Springs.....	15, 16
Holly Springs.....	17, 18
Holly Springs.....	19, 20
Holly Springs.....	21, 22
Holly Springs.....	23, 24
Holly Springs.....	25, 26
Holly Springs.....	27, 28
Holly Springs.....	29, 30
Holly Springs.....	31, 32

SARDIS DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Sardis circuit.....	Oct. 1, 2
Sardis.....	3, 4
Sardis.....	5, 6
Sardis.....	7, 8
Sardis.....	9, 10
Sardis.....	11, 12
Sardis.....	13, 14
Sardis.....	15, 16
Sardis.....	17, 18
Sardis.....	19, 20
Sardis.....	21, 22
Sardis.....	23, 24
Sardis.....	25, 26
Sardis.....	27, 28
Sardis.....	29, 30
Sardis.....	31, 32

WINONA DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Winona circuit.....	Oct. 1, 2
Winona.....	3, 4
Winona.....	5, 6
Winona.....	7, 8
Winona.....	9, 10
Winona.....	11, 12
Winona.....	13, 14
Winona.....	15, 16
Winona.....	17, 18
Winona.....	19, 20
Winona.....	21, 22
Winona.....	23, 24
Winona.....	25, 26
Winona.....	27, 28
Winona.....	29, 30
Winona.....	31, 32

ABERDEEN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Verona and Nettleton station.....	Oct. 1, 2
Verona station.....	3, 4
Verona station.....	5, 6
Verona station.....	7, 8
Verona station.....	9, 10
Verona station.....	11, 12
Verona station.....	13, 14
Verona station.....	15, 16
Verona station.....	17, 18
Verona station.....	19, 20
Verona station.....	21, 22
Verona station.....	23, 24
Verona station.....	25, 26
Verona station.....	27, 28
Verona station.....	29, 30
Verona station.....	31, 32

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

MERIDIAN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Meridian circuit.....	Oct. 1, 2
Meridian.....	3, 4
Meridian.....	5, 6
Meridian.....	7, 8
Meridian.....	9, 10
Meridian.....	11, 12
Meridian.....	13, 14
Meridian.....	15, 16
Meridian.....	17, 18
Meridian.....	19, 20
Meridian.....	21, 22
Meridian.....	23, 24
Meridian.....	25, 26
Meridian.....	27, 28
Meridian.....	29, 30
Meridian.....	31, 32

LAKEVIEW DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Laurens circuit.....	Oct. 1, 2
Laurens.....	3, 4
Laurens.....	5, 6
Laurens.....	7, 8
Laurens.....	9, 10
Laurens.....	11, 12
Laurens.....	13, 14
Laurens.....	15, 16
Laurens.....	17, 18
Laurens.....	19, 20
Laurens.....	21, 22
Laurens.....	23, 24
Laurens.....	25, 26
Laurens.....	27, 28
Laurens.....	29, 30
Laurens.....	31, 32

LAKEVIEW DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Laurens circuit.....	Oct. 1, 2
Laurens.....	3, 4
Laurens.....	5, 6
Laurens.....	7, 8
Laurens.....	9, 10
Laurens.....	11, 12
Laurens.....	13, 14
Laurens.....	15, 16
Laurens.....	17, 18
Laurens.....	19, 20
Laurens.....	21, 22
Laurens.....	23, 24
Laurens.....	25, 26
Laurens.....	27, 28
Laurens.....	29, 30
Laurens.....	31, 32

LAKEVIEW DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Laurens circuit.....	Oct. 1, 2
Laurens.....	3, 4
Laurens.....	5, 6
Laurens.....	7, 8
Laurens.....	9, 10
Laurens.....	11, 12
Laurens.....	13, 14
Laurens.....	15, 16
Laurens.....	17, 18
Laurens.....	19, 20
Laurens.....	21, 22
Laurens.....	23, 24
Laurens.....	25, 26
Laurens.....	27, 28
Laurens.....	29, 30
Laurens.....	31, 32

BROOKHAVEN DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Crystal Springs.....	Oct. 1, 2
Crystal Springs.....	3, 4
Crystal Springs.....	5, 6
Crystal Springs.....	7, 8
Crystal Springs.....	9, 10
Crystal Springs.....	11, 12
Crystal Springs.....	13, 14
Crystal Springs.....	15, 16
Crystal Springs.....	17, 18
Crystal Springs.....	19, 20
Crystal Springs.....	21, 22
Crystal Springs.....	23, 24
Crystal Springs.....	25, 26
Crystal Springs.....	27, 28
Crystal Springs.....	29, 30
Crystal Springs.....	31, 32

WOODVILLE DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Wilson, at Gayden.....	Oct. 1, 2
Wilson, at Gayden.....	3, 4
Wilson, at Gayden.....	5, 6
Wilson, at Gayden.....	7, 8
Wilson, at Gayden.....	9, 10
Wilson, at Gayden.....	11, 12
Wilson, at Gayden.....	13, 14
Wilson, at Gayden.....	15, 16
Wilson, at Gayden.....	17, 18
Wilson, at Gayden.....	19, 20
Wilson, at Gayden.....	21, 22
Wilson, at Gayden.....	23, 24
Wilson, at Gayden.....	25, 26
Wilson, at Gayden.....	27, 28
Wilson, at Gayden.....	29, 30
Wilson, at Gayden.....	31, 32

VICKSBURG DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Jefferson Street.....	Oct. 1, 2
Jefferson Street.....	3, 4
Jefferson Street.....	5, 6
Jefferson Street.....	7, 8
Jefferson Street.....	9, 10
Jefferson Street.....	11, 12
Jefferson Street.....	13, 14
Jefferson Street.....	15, 16
Jefferson Street.....	17, 18
Jefferson Street.....	19, 20
Jefferson Street.....	21, 22
Jefferson Street.....	23, 24
Jefferson Street.....	25, 26
Jefferson Street.....	27, 28
Jefferson Street.....	29, 30
Jefferson Street.....	31, 32

BRANDON DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Clarksville.....	Oct. 1, 2
Clarksville.....	3, 4
Clarksville.....	5, 6
Clarksville.....	7, 8
Clarksville.....	9, 10
Clarksville.....	11, 12
Clarksville.....	13, 14
Clarksville.....	15, 16
Clarksville.....	17, 18
Clarksville.....	19, 20
Clarksville.....	21, 22
Clarksville.....	23, 24
Clarksville.....	25, 26
Clarksville.....	27, 28
Clarksville.....	29, 30
Clarksville.....	31, 32

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

ALEXANDRIA DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Sugar Town, at Spring Hill.....	Oct. 1, 2
Sugar Town, at Spring Hill.....	3, 4
Sugar Town, at Spring Hill.....	5, 6
Sugar Town, at Spring Hill.....	7, 8
Sugar Town, at Spring Hill.....	9, 10
Sugar Town, at Spring Hill.....	11, 12
Sugar Town, at Spring Hill.....	13, 14
Sugar Town, at Spring Hill.....	15, 16
Sugar Town, at Spring Hill.....	17, 18
Sugar Town, at Spring Hill.....	19, 20
Sugar Town, at Spring Hill.....	21, 22
Sugar Town, at Spring Hill.....	23, 24
Sugar Town, at Spring Hill.....	25, 26
Sugar Town, at Spring Hill.....	27, 28
Sugar Town, at Spring Hill.....	29, 30
Sugar Town, at Spring Hill.....	31, 32

ARADIA DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Farmerville, at Farmerville.....	Oct. 1, 2
Farmerville, at Farmerville.....	3, 4
Farmerville, at Farmerville.....	5, 6
Farmerville, at Farmerville.....	7, 8
Farmerville, at Farmerville.....	9, 10
Farmerville, at Farmerville.....	11, 12
Farmerville, at Farmerville.....	13, 14
Farmerville, at Farmerville.....	15, 16
Farmerville, at Farmerville.....	17, 18
Farmerville, at Farmerville.....	19, 20
Farmerville, at Farmerville.....	21, 22
Farmerville, at Farmerville.....	23, 24
Farmerville, at Farmerville.....	25, 26
Farmerville, at Farmerville.....	27, 28
Farmerville, at Farmerville.....	29, 30
Farmerville, at Farmerville.....	31, 32

SHREVEPORT DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

DeBou, at Pelican.....	Oct. 1, 2
DeBou, at Pelican.....	3, 4
DeBou, at Pelican.....	5, 6
DeBou, at Pelican.....	7, 8
DeBou, at Pelican.....	9, 10
DeBou, at Pelican.....	11, 12
DeBou, at Pelican.....	13, 14
DeBou, at Pelican.....	15, 16
DeBou, at Pelican.....	17, 18
DeBou, at Pelican.....	19, 20
DeBou, at Pelican.....	21, 22
DeBou, at Pelican.....	23, 24
DeBou, at Pelican.....	25, 26
DeBou, at Pelican.....	27, 28
DeBou, at Pelican.....	29, 30
DeBou, at Pelican.....	31, 32

DELHI DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	Oct. 1, 2
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	3, 4
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	5, 6
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	7, 8
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	9, 10
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	11, 12
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	13, 14
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	15, 16
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	17, 18
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	19, 20
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	21, 22
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	23, 24
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	25, 26
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	27, 28
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	29, 30
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	31, 32

OPLOUSAS DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	Oct. 1, 2
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	3, 4
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	5, 6
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	7, 8
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	9, 10
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	11, 12
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	13, 14
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	15, 16
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	17, 18
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	19, 20
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	21, 22
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	23, 24
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	25, 26
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	27, 28
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	29, 30
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	31, 32

DELHI DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	Oct. 1, 2
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	3, 4
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	5, 6
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	7, 8
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	9, 10
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	11, 12
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	13, 14
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	15, 16
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	17, 18
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	19, 20
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	21, 22
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	23, 24
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	25, 26
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	27, 28
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	29, 30
Lind Grove, at Bartholomew.....	31, 32

OPLOUSAS DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	Oct. 1, 2
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	3, 4
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	5, 6
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	7, 8
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	9, 10
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	11, 12
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	13, 14
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	15, 16
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	17, 18
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	19, 20
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	21, 22
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	23, 24
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	25, 26
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	27, 28
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	29, 30
Franklin and Jeanette, at.....	31, 32

DELHI DIST.—FOURTH ROUND.

N.	loney from Bro. Van Valkenhu
106 Camp street.
	— — — — —
2	All persons desiring to pur
3	choice Pianos, Organs, Musical In
16	struments or Music, should not fail to
17	the large establishment of L. Gr
20	wald Co., Limited, at Nos. 127 C
23	and 14 to 20 Baronne streets, New
26	leads.
28
30	— — — — —

Christian Advocate.

VOL. 39.—NO. 40.

NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 6, 1892.

WHOLE NO. 1885.

Rev. C. W. CARTER, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. LEWIS, Asst. Editor.

PUBLISHED FOR THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE AND NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH.

ENTERED AT THE POST-OFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

EARLY AUTUMN.

We love these sweetly passing Autumn days,
Though they do speak to us of sure decay;
We love the fragrant air, the mellow haze,
Which makes the season one delightful day.

The rhythmic music of the thrasher's flail,
In measured cadence falls upon the ear;
The wains come creeping up each hill and dale,
And fill the barn and granary with good cheer.

The golden-rod flings forth its knightly plume,
And every where we catch its flashing gleam;
The carnation sends up its brilliant bloom,
And, like a sentry, guards each winding stream.

The grapes give forth their perfume, rich and rare,
The orchards bend with fruits which feast the eye;
The wayside trees and forests everywhere
Take on the tints of glorious sunset skies.

The birds skim the air on sunning wing,
To bid farewell to each familiar place;
The katydid's their rasping challenge fling
From every bough as night comes down apace.

But soon, too soon, the frost will do its work,
And all this wealth of beauty fade away;
For even in these lovely days there lurk
The forces which insure its swift decay.

And yet we love this time which crowns the year,
And though we read its prophecy aright,
With each return it ever grows more dear,
And still reveals an ever fresh delight.

—Selected.

Rev. Levi Pearce.

Rev. Levi Pearce was born in Johnston county, N. C., Oct. 28, 1803, and died in Jackson, La., July 26, 1892, just before completing his eighty-fourth year.

He was reared in Anson county, N. C., where he professed religion and became a member of the M. E. Church in 1825. In 1832 he removed to Madison county, Miss.; was licensed to preach by Rev. Thos. Griffin, Sept. 12, 1834, and was admitted on trial in the Mississippi Conference in December, 1835. After a year's service he was discontinued at his own request, but was readmitted in 1838, and continued to be a member until his death—a period of about fifty-five years, including twenty-three of superannuation. For more than thirty years Bro. Pearce was a most zealous and devoted itinerant preacher, filling with great acceptability and usefulness all the varied appointments, from the humblest mission to the highest station, and all the offices from preacher on trial to presiding elder and president of an Annual Conference. His appointment in 1835 was Opelousas, La., and between 1838 and 1854 he filled the following appointments: Grand Gulf, Fayette, Woodville, Port Gibson, Vicksburg, Natchez, Yazoo district, Yazoo circuit, and Yazoo City. During the next eight years he was the presiding elder of the Yazoo and Vicksburg districts. He served Vernon in 1863, and, after the war, filled Madison circuit in 1866.

No man in his day wielded a greater influence than he in the Mississippi Conference. The last year, but one, that he traveled among us—1865—his brethren honored him with an almost unanimous election to the presidency of the Conference, which, in the absence of the Bishop, he conducted to the close, making the appointments to the general satisfaction.

Soon after the termination of the war, in which he felt that the Southern people had staked and lost their all, he made up his mind that he could no longer remain in the United States; hence he removed with his family, in 1867, to British Honduras. Here, while he escaped the peculiar afflictions and oppressions of the reconstruction period, he, no doubt, encountered hardships that were more endurable to those only who had determined to endure them. In Honduras he found plenty of good, cheap land, covered by unbroken forests, where tropical productions of great market value grew almost spontaneously. By hard labor he opened lands and settled homes for himself and his children.

It must not be supposed that Bro. Pearce lost interest in the work of the church by his expatriation. He was ever active in preaching the gospel to those around him, and saw in Spanish as well as in British Honduras mission fields ripe unto the harvest.

He had his own house registered as a place of public worship until his circumstances enabled him, with the aid of his children, to erect a church.

This, with several acres of land, he donated to the Wesleyan Mission, that being the only society of Methodists in the colony. Here he often preached in the absence of the pastor, even when his health was so broken that he was compelled to abandon all business.

Writing and asking the Mississippi Conference to send missionaries to that region, he says: "Central America constitutes a fine field for missionary operations; quite as good as Mexico." Again he says: "There is a plantation about seven miles from here where preaching is very much needed, with a population of 300 persons; and a village of 800 people with no Protestant worship of any kind. Twenty miles from here is Livingston, in Guatemala, with a population of 1,000, without Protestant worship. Then the whole of Spanish Honduras is open to the gospel, and in some places anxious to receive it. The church in our neighborhood will be a nucleus for missionary operations in the surrounding country." Thus we see that his heart was ever in the great work of his life—the preaching of the gospel for the salvation of men.

Bro. Pearce was a strong man in every sense of the word. Physically large, he was mentally powerful, and had a will that carried all his weight with an irresistible momentum against whatever his judgment opposed. He attacked wrong wherever found with a dauntless intrepidity. "In his warfare with sin he made no compromise with Satan." Among minds of smaller mold this, of course, made him enemies, as those who go to war with a prince ever find enemies among his subjects." He was a man of strong common sense, superior judgment and invincible courage; he was never known to back out. Few men could have ruled an empire or led an army to victory with more skill and certainty than he; yet he was a humble, teachable child of the Lord Jesus Christ, and a lover of peace.

He was several times elected to the General Conference, and once stood at the head of his delegation. He was twice married: first, in his nineteenth year, to Miss Frances Valentine. To them two children were born, one of whom still lives. His second marriage was to Miss Maria L. Henderson, in 1836, who is now living. To them were born six children, four of whom are living.

One of his reasons for leaving the United States was the hope of finding relief in a tropical climate from a serious throat trouble under which he was suffering. He informed me that the warm climate, in a measure, relieved, but did not remove this disease which impaired the power of his voice. He suffered with it to the last.

About a year before his death his health gave way, and he was confined for some time to his room; but he was induced to come to this country in the hope that a cooler climate might give him relief. During these months of confinement he read the Old Testament once, the Psalms twice, and the New Testament nine times, finding, as he said, new light and fresh comfort with each reading.

Last November he reached Jackson, La., and spent the remainder of his days with his wife and daughter, who had preceded him to this country in search of health for the mother. Bro. Lyman Carley was with him much during his final days. His loyalty to the Mississippi Conference was intense. "God bless the Mississippi Conference!" was frequently on his lips, and he expressed an earnest desire to meet with them once more, though he felt the meeting must be to him a sad one, since so many of his beloved companions had joined the church triumphant. The mere mention of his mislance, in connection with that body, or the quotation of Scripture by Bro. Carley, would quiet him when nothing else could, and often, when his mind was not clear on any other subject, "he would give a piece of church history with accuracy, or trace a doctrinal argument, to the astonishment of all who watched over him eager to catch whatever might comfort when he should be gone." Thus died this aged minister of the gospel, trusting in and comforted by the faith which it had been the business of his life to preach to others.

W. L. C. HUNNICUTT.

An Appeal.

To the Auxiliaries of the Mississippi Conference Woman's Missionary Society within the Bounds of the Seashore District.

Dear Sisters: I hope you all read carefully the soul-stirring battle-ory of our newly-elected president, Miss Addie V. Marshall, in a recent number of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE. Especially would I recommend to your prayerful attention that portion of her letter referring to the district secretary, and your duties to her. To every word of it do I say, "Amen!"

Deeply have I felt the impossibility of keeping in touch with the auxiliaries in this district, from the fact that they do not, with one or two exceptions, report to me, or keep me informed by letter of the status of their society. This is of the utmost importance, if you would have your district secretary put forth "her best efforts." Her hands are, in some measure, tied, unless you co-operate with her; and especially is this true in the Seashore district, where our auxiliaries are scattered "from the rivers to the ends of the earth," as it were.

Your secretary would need to be a woman of both ample means and leisure to visit you all once a quarter; and I assure you she has a very limited supply of both. But, in order to measure up to her own duty, she ought to know the status of every auxiliary once a quarter.

Dear Sisters, write and let me know whether you are dead or alive. It is in my heart to have a district meeting at some suitable time to be hereafter announced. Other districts are moving on gloriously. Let us not lag behind because of our peculiar difficulties.

Suffer one word more: After some study of the obstacles which seem to impede our progress in certain localities, I am satisfied that our greatest need—always excepting a deeper spirit of consecration—is a better acquaintance with our missionary literature. I am simply appalled, sometimes, at the ignorance of our work displayed by so called intelligent people and Methodists. Our Woman's Missionary Advocate is only fifty cents per annum. Its low price puts it in reach of all. Do subscribe for it, I beg. May God bless you! Yours for better work, and more of it,
Mrs. J. S. PARKER,
Seashore District.
Hattiesburg, Miss., Sept. 25, 1892.

To the Members of the Mississippi Conference.

Dear Brethren: While other interests are demanding your care, we would call attention to and urge full collections on the church extension assessments. The amount is small, and is greatly needed to meet the demands upon us. While we have done remarkably well with what has come into our hands, we have not been able to nearly meet all the applications for aid. At our last Conference we were able to pay just fifty per cent. of amounts applied for, giving to some churches a bare pittance, and refusing others altogether.

Running back over the Minutes since our organization, nine years ago, I find that there has been a gradual increase in the collections, from $400 up to more than $1,000, to our share. During this time the amount disbursed within our territory aggregates nearly $7,000, and aid has been given to 88 churches. What an impetus this movement seems to have given to the spirit of church building! Nearly ten churches per annum! We risk the statement that more churches have been built during these nine years than during double the number previous. Another fact: All of these houses are neatly built, according to plans of the Board, and belong to the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; no union houses and no combinations with sequestered fraternal societies using one part and the church the other, but absolute, bona-fide property of our church.

Brethren, we will need every dollar of the assessment made at the last Conference. Applications already are being made to the secretary for blanks for aid.

One feature is very noticeable: the fact that every district in the Conference has received quite an even share in the distributions made. If possible, let's raise the collection in full.

T. B. HOLLOMAN,
President of the Board.

Do I hourly seek to avoid all occasions of sin, and is the temper of my mind habitually like the example of my Savior?

Important Notice.

To the Members of the M. E. Church, South, Columbus District, North Mississippi Conference.

As the duly appointed solicitor for this district under the "Lambuth plan" for raising the missionary debt of our church independently of the regular collections in each charge, I take this means of calling the attention of our people to this important matter, and inviting their active and hearty co-operation in an effort which can not but meet their warm approval. From this time to March 31, 1893, by personal solicitation and by correspondence, I shall vigorously prosecute the work, and shall expect prompt and cheerful aid from every charge in the district. The pastors of the various charges would greatly assist me, as also would others who may read this, by sending me lists of those who they think would most likely contribute. I hope to have help in this way, for the work will have to be done largely by correspondence.

Brethren and sisters, we must not, and will not interfere with the regular collections; but, by this time, you have either paid or subscribed the amount you thus intend to give. What, now, out of the abundance or the little with which God still blesses you, will you offer as an additional voluntary contribution toward the liquidation of our missionary debt? For over a million Methodists the sum is insignificant, and should be fully paid before this year shall close.

Give the subject the consideration it deserves, and then out of a grateful heart send your contribution to this righteous cause. Other districts are responding nobly and liberally to this missionary call. The Columbus district, I believe, will likewise do its duty. Every member, young and old, of every charge should esteem it a privilege to have, at least, a small share in this worthy undertaking.

Correspondents will please address me at Agricultural College, Miss., but postoffice money orders enclosed should be drawn on the Starkville office. Earnestly and respectfully,
DANNEY LIPSCOMB,
Solicitor for Columbus Dist.
Oct. 1, 1892.

Missionary Debt.

"Penny Helpers" is the name of the beautiful star card adopted by Daisy Lambuth to interest the children in the effort to pay off the missionary debt. And the dear little children are so willing to use them. Two cards have been filled, and $1 has come to me from each of these little girls at Lockhart who are so brightly "shining for Jesus." Others are at work and saving their pennies and their nickels and their dimes, and doing what they can to "turn many from sin unto righteousness." God bless the children in this good work! And God bless the good woman who is leading in the work for Jesus and for souls!

T. L. MELLE.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. W. J. Porter, Farmerville, La., Sept. 30: "I returned home this evening from Freeman Chapel, where the Lord hath done great things, whereof we are glad. Three accessions to the church, 4 professions of conversion, and 5 sanctifications; and in answer to prayer and the exercise of faith, on Sunday morning I was instantaneously healed of a disease which had been in my body three months."

Rev. J. P. Drake, Shubuta, Miss.: "We had a real good meeting at Quitman, Miss., beginning Aug. 26 and closing Sept. 3, 1892. Bro. T. L. Mellen and Bro. J. V. Penn (one at a time) did most of the preaching, and it was faithfully and effectively done. Best of all, God was with us, by his Spirit's power, to demonstrate the truth of his blessed Word. Five united with our church, while several who had been members for years found God preclous to their souls for the first time. There was a general searching of hearts and reaching after higher things."

Rev. J. E. Buck, Guntown charge, Corinth district, North Mississippi Conference: "Closed my revival campaign on the night of Sept. 23, at Double Springs School-house, where we organized a church of 43 members. During the season 65 were added to the church, 31 adults baptized and 9 infants. Children's services, love feasts and sacrament of the Lord's Supper, at every place, were services attended with great revivals of 'old-time religion.' We are indebted to Revs. B. F. Phillips, J. A. Randolph, C. A. Barkley (J. P.), W. S. Lagrono and A. T. Buck, Methodists, and Reynolds, Baptist, for efficient work. God be praised!"

Rev. B. W. Lewis, Lebanon work, Brookhaven district, Mississippi Conference, Sept. 30: "We are moving on finely. I have held a meeting at all my appointments with good success. Bro. G. A. Gulce, of Rocky Springs, helped me at Lebanon. He did good preaching. The Spirit of God was with him, and he preached with power. There were 9 accessions, and the church greatly revived. My father (H. P. Lewis, of Caseyville work) helped me at Mizpah. The Lord was with us there. The preacher preached with power, and the Lord blessed his labors. There were 5 accessions, and the church revived. Rev. W. H. Lewis, of Ulica, helped me at Blue Hill. We had a fine meeting there. God was with the preacher, and blessed him in his preaching. Great and lasting good was accomplished; 7 accessions. Pray for me and my work."

Rev. E. H. McNabb, Lahrton circuit, Winona district, North Mississippi Conference, Oct. 1: "We closed a protracted meeting last Tuesday night at McLemore School-house, which had been carried on for seven days at Sandy Bayou. We moved for the convenience of some. The meeting resulted in thirty-one accessions to our church, and twenty-six of that number were by profession of faith. We had a genuine baptism of the Holy Spirit and the old-time Methodist shouting. One man, a sinner, could not stay in the house, the Spirit was so powerful. We were ably assisted by Bro. D. M. Miller, local elder. We organized a church at McLemore School-house with twenty-three members. How is that, Mr. Editor, for up in the woods, where one can hear the panther scream out at night while the minister is preaching? We give God all the praise."

Rev. G. D. Anders, P. C., East Feliciana circuit, Mississippi Conference, Sept. 26: "We have held four protracted meetings on this work, with glorious results. Quite a number of sinners converted, and as many backsliders reclaimed. I have been ably assisted in these meetings by the following-named brethren: Bros. J. A. B. Jones, W. W. Simmons, N. J. Roberts, J. J. Smylie, Jobie Roberts, and J. S. Hodge. Our beloved presiding elder has made the quarterly meeting occasions a great factor for the advancement of Methodism in this section. Eternity alone can estimate the good results of our last Quarterly Conference. Considerable time has been given to revival work, and every effort has been honored of God; but, if it could have given double the time, the work done would be more abiding. The good people of this circuit stand by their preacher, and have been very helpful in fighting the battles of the Lord."

Rev. F. N. Sweeney, L. P.: "Bro. C. F. Staples and I began a meeting at Johnson's Bayou on the Saturday before the second Sunday in September, which resulted in 8 accessions to the church, and the altar was crowded with penitents at every service. Men that were never known to be moved before came up, promising to lead better lives. Bro. Staples baptized 10 infants. This is a new field, and was considered the hardest place 'going' to establish a Methodist Church, as the people were Baptist inclined, and were very much prejudiced against Methodists. Their pastor would not have anything to do with us; but we planted Methodism there, and who is there to stay. We had to close on Thursday night, so as to reach Oak Grove Church on Saturday, at eleven o'clock, where we anticipated holding a few days' meeting. We had the largest congregations there I ever saw before, and more interest manifest. We were compelled to close this meeting on Sunday evening, on account of the illness of my mother. We believe much good has been accomplished in the name of our blessed Master, to whom be all the glory."

Rev. J. C. Ellis, P. C., Hillsboro, Miss., Sept. 30: "I will endeavor to give a short monograph of Hillsboro's protracted meetings since our last report. Since our protracted meeting at Mt. Zion three have joined our church there. At Oak Grove three joined our church and one joined the Presbyterian Church. This being a union meeting, hence assisted by Rev. Mr. Ashmore, the Presbyterian pastor, besides some of the local brethren. At Good Hope six joined our church. Rev. J. C. Long dujag all the preaching, except one little sermon. At Con-trel nine joined our church. Assisted there by Bros. Meador and Tadlock, they doing about half of the preaching. At Hillsboro two joined our church and seventeen persons agreed to erect family altars. Assisted by Revs. J. M. Morse, M. H. Luck and W. P. Meador, Bro. Morse doing all the preaching after he arrived. Twenty-three have joined our church since our last report. I am glad we have had more conversions than accessions, yet there are many in the church yet to be converted. Pray for us."

Rev. J. R. Roy, Lower Coast mission, Sept. 26: "Our third Quarterly Conference convened Sept. 17 and 18. Our much-appreciated presiding elder was with us in the power of the Spirit. Our Quarterly Conference was of great interest to us. We licensed a young brother (J. W. Lee) to preach the gospel. He will make application for admission into the Conference at its next sitting. Bro. Lee was converted to God this year; so you see God is able to raise up preachers even on missions. Praises the Lord for what he has done for us. By solicitation, Bro. J. M. Henry, of Carrollton (New Orleans), came down on Monday, Sept. 19, and continued with us until the Saturday following, preaching every night, ably handling the Word of God. His preaching was plain and practical, so that all could understand. We had no accessions to the church, but we are persuaded that great good was done. The church was strengthened spiritually. So our meeting was a success after all. In addition to this, since our second Quarterly Conference, of July 3, we have built a parsonage, or a house for the preacher. Our parsonage is not quite completed yet, but comfortable for the present season. The brethren talk of finishing it in the near future. So we are getting along pretty well. Praise the Lord for his loving kindness and tender mercies toward us. I am in very feeble health, and have been for some time; but, praises the Lord! he is my strength. In him will I put my trust."

Rev. S. S. Bogan, Oakley circuit, La., Sept. 28: "It is with joy that I pen a few lines to you through the Advocate. I know that many of the brethren are acquainted with old Oakley, and, no doubt, would love to hear of her success and exaltation at the hands of God, and will rejoice with me when they hear that 15 have accepted the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, united themselves with the church, and have taken up their cross to follow the meek and lowly Jesus; and I most heartily thank God that the old church, which could boast of but one male member for so long, has now six of the leading men of this community to support it, who have the glory of God and salvation of souls at heart, and who love and delight in the prosperity of Zion and the establishment of the kingdom of God among men. There has also been a good work done among the young. Several have taken up the cause of the Master, and I have no doubt but what they will make good and useful laborers in the Master's vineyard. I am satisfied that the work will not stop here. God alone can tell, while eternity must prove the great good that has been and will be accomplished through and by this meeting. We had fine congregations throughout the entire meeting, which continued for ten days. Bros. Reneau, Moore and Day rendered me good service, and the Lord has blessed their labors. Oakley circuit has made several advances this year. There have been added to the church up to date 24, and 10 children and 5 adults have received baptism. Thanks be unto God, who has not left himself without a witness in these parts, but has many who love and adore his great and holy name—to whom be all the glory forever and ever, and to us everlasting salvation. Brethren, pray for us."

AFTER A NIGHT OF WEeping.

When the long night of weariness and pain
Is fall of bitter thoughts and doubts that run.

Do we not long to hear some holy strain
That far off angels sing?

When every golden deed the heart hath planned
Is darkened by the fear of falling powers,
And all our life seems like a barren land,
Unhindered by sun and showers.

When every word that loving lips have said
Is darkened by the fear of falling powers,
And all our life seems like a barren land,
Unhindered by sun and showers.

When the one thing whereon our hopes are set
Is still withheld, although we pray and weep,
Until we murmur, "Can the Lord forget?
Or doth the Master sleep?"

When the old sin that we had nearly crushed
Arises in all its fearful might appears,
And yearning voices that we thought were buried
Call from departed years.

Then, like an evening wind that, unperceived,
Beareth an odor from the rose's breast, Comes the remembrance: "We which have believed
Do enter into rest."

And our eyes close, and all the phantom thrill
Of doubt and trouble vanish into air;
And the one face that we have loved so long Smiles on us calm and fair.

The face that in our darkest hour is bright,
The tranquil brow that never wears a frown,
The steadfast eyes that never lose their light
Beneath the thorny crown.

So at his word the clouds are all withdrawn,
The small, sharp pains of life are soothed away;
After the night of weeping comes the dawn,
And then life's perfect day.

—Sunday Magazine.

An International Sunday-School Building, in Connection with the World's Columbian Exposition.

At the meeting of the Executive Committee of the International Sunday-school Convention, in connection with the Conference of Sunday-school Workers, held in Chautauque, New York, Aug. 13 to 16, 1892, the plan previously proposed for the erection of a Sunday-school building, in connection with the World's Columbian Exposition, was duly reconsidered.

In answer to Circular No. 1, about $1,500 was contributed or pledged, but from all parts of the United States and Canada came earnest protests against the opening of the Exposition on the Lord's Day and against the erection of a Sunday-school building until that question was settled. These answers, without exception, gave promise of hearty co-operation in case the decision should be reached, that the Exposition would be closed on the Lord's Day. The action of Congress accepted by the directors of the fair has settled the question that the gates of the Exposition are to remain closed upon the Lord's Day. This action fairly binds the Sunday-school workers of the United States and Canada to erect this building, and the conference unanimously decided that the effort should be made.

This delay was so great that it has prevented our securing a site for the building within the grounds of the Exposition; more than all the space at the disposal of the commissioners has already been applied for. It is further believed that the closing of the Exposition on the Lord's Day will make the building more serviceable if erected without the grounds, but conveniently near to them.

In the proposition previously made it was expected that the building would be erected of wood with a fire-proof coating known as "stiff," similar to that used on the Exposition buildings; but the erection of the building without the grounds will require that it shall be built of brick, which will increase the expense, and it will also be necessary to lease the ground for this purpose.

The Conference decided that it would be desirable to enlarge the building so as to accommodate large gatherings of Christian people, and to make it the center of evangelistic efforts in connection with the Exposition. A large committee of well-known Sunday-school workers was appointed, with an auxiliary committee of ladies selected from the primary teachers, this committee to have power to add to their number.

The outline of the work proposed is
as follows:

First. To exhibit a model Sunday-school building as an illustration of our work, and as a specimen that may be copied by others.

Second. In this building by maps, charts, plate, tables, pictures, books,
papers, etc., to show the present condition of Sunday-school work in different parts of the world.

Third. To illustrate the growth and progress of the Sunday-school.

Fourth. To use the building as a "Sunday-school headquarters and reception room" during the Exposition, and, if possible, to use it as "headquarters for colporteur work," and "personal Christian work" on the ground.

To arrange for holding special Sunday-school conferences, and talks; addresses by well-known and qualified workers in various departments of Sunday-school work; for evangelistic meetings conducted by well-known evangelists and ministers, and to use

It for such other purposes as may be determined by the International Executive Committee.

It is proposed to offer premiums of $500, $250, $150 and $100, respectively, for the four best plans of a building,
the awards to be made by a committee appointed by the International Sunday-school Executive Committee; the plans chosen to be the property of the committee and to be placed on exhibition in the building.

It is proposed to raise the sum of $50,000 for the building, and an additional sum for expenses, by contributions from Sunday-schools and individuals, the collections to be made
as follows:

Each Sunday-school is requested to give an amount equal to not less than ten cents for each officer and teacher, and one cent for each scholar connected with the school (this is the smallest amount, and schools are requested to give a larger amount if able to do so).

Contributions of not less than one dollar, and for as large an amount as possible, to be solicited from individuals.

As soon as possible after the plans have been selected, engraved certificates, containing a picture of the building, will be sent to each school contributing not less than the amount named above, giving the name and location of the school, and the amount given toward the building. And similar certificates will be sent to all individuals contributing one dollar or more. All contributions will be acknowledged by mail, and a record of the names of all schools and individuals, and the amount given by each, will be kept in the building during the fair.

The Conference unanimously approved of a vigorous effort to secure the funds necessary, and recommended the raising of $50,000 for the building by contributions from the Sunday-schools, young people's societies, churches and individuals. They also recommended that the time for taking the collection be as near as possible to Oct. 21, the anniversary (corrected date) of Columbus' first landing in the New World.

As the Building Committee will need all the time they can obtain for the perfection of their plans, etc., prompt action is requested from all contributors, and friends of the cause are urged to forward individual contributions at once.

The special committee appointed at Chautauque to take charge of the matter, have selected R. W. Hare, a well known business man of Chicago
(also treasurer of the Illinois State Sunday-school Association), to act as treasurer of the building fund. Therefore all contributions for the "World's Fair Sunday-school Building" should be forwarded to R. W. Hare, treasurer, No. 240 Fifth avenue, Chicago, Ill.

In sending your contribution give the name of your Sunday-school, the place where it is located, the denomination to which you belong, the total number of officers and teachers, the total number of scholars (all ages) and the amount of your contribution.

When contributions are sent from individuals, give the name and address of each person who contributed one dollar or more, and the amount given by each.

The earnest co-operation of all the officers and members of the Executive Committee of State, provincial, territorial, county or parish, and township organizations, and all pastors, officers and teachers engaged in Sunday-school work is solicited.

In behalf of the International Sunday-school Executive Committee and Conference.

B. F. JACOBS, Chair'n.

FRANK WOODS, Sec.

The Woman's Temple.

Dear Readers: We have never made an appeal through your columns for the greatest of our enterprises, the Woman's Temperance Temple at Chicago, now about completed, and declared to be the most attractive business building in the world. Besides being the headquarters of the World's W. C. T. U., the National W. C. T. U., and the Woman's Temperance Publishing House, it is also used as a banking and office building, four of Chicago's largest banks having their quarters in it. The rent roll from the building already amounts to $140,000, although it has only been occupied since the first of May. When it is entirely filled, which we expect will be within a year, the rental will be something over $200,000 annually.

The temple is a structure on La Salle street of 195 feet, and is 13 stories high. It contains a beautiful unmar-shaled hall on the ground floor. Here every day in the year will ascend prayer and supplication for the salvation of the drunkard, and the speedy overthrow of that traffic which is the world's greatest curse. Within its sacred precincts the wanderer far from home, amid temptation, will find his doors ever open, with motherly and sisterly hearts and hands ready to help and lead the erring to Him who can save to the uttermost.

The capital stock of the Temple is $600,000. We are using every effort to gain possession of the entire stock, for,
of course, those who own the stock receive the income from the rentals, and are the true owners of the building.
We are glad to say that through gifts from our white ribboners, and the sale of Temple trust bonds, Mrs. Matilda B.
Carson and her Board of Trustees now hold for the National W. C. T. U.
$275,000 worth of stock, almost half of the entire capital.

The object of this letter is to ask your influence and help for the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, which has done so many helpful things for every temperance paper in the land, always showing a stately spirit of good-will to all ventures, journalistic and otherwise, that promised help to the temperance reform. We believe that the editor will be willing and glad to print this letter. We wish to ask if there are not scores and hundreds among the readers of this paper who will be glad to send one dollar to Miss Esther Pugh, treasurer of the National W. C. T. U., the Woman's Temple, Chicago, as a token of their interest in this great movement whereby the World's and National W. C. T. U. have a beautiful home for their work, and a prospect of such sure income from rents as shall enable them greatly to enlarge and strengthen the movement which is now extending, not only throughout our own land, but to every corner of the civilized world.

A dollar is but little for any one of us to give, while the aggregate of these small gifts, if promptly sent, would make the Temple our own before the National Convention meets in Denver,
Col., Oct. 28, 1892.

It is a moderate request that I make here and now, but it represents purpose and power for the great society which must have, not only a name, but a local habitation; not only an inward spiritual life, but outward form and substance. The world has never had an object-lesson in philanthropy that appealed so strongly to the eye as this noble pile standing on one of Chicago's most notable streets, not a stone's throw from the Chamber of Commerce, and capable of bringing in such a noble revenue. This, however, can not be done until we own all the stock. Will you not, good friend and brother, earnest-hearted white ribbon alster, whoever you may be, purchase a possible order for one dollar, and let it go in to swell the constantly deepening current of that money power which must be an element in every good cause, as well as every evil undertaking on the face of the earth?

The touch of that fabled king, Midas, turned everything to gold. Give us this little wedge of gold, and we will turn it into everything good for the great reform that means purity and patrolism, progress and prohibition, health and happiness.

Yours for God and home and every land,
FRANCES E. WILLARD.
Chicago, Sept. 12, 1892.

The "Practical Politician"—A Product.

The days now upon us are the days when the practical politician may be seen at the height of his power and glory. He is now the chief among ten thousand, though far from being "altogether lovely." Now, for a time he outranks even Presidents, ex-Presidents, and governors of States, and none is so lofty and so powerful as not to do him reverence. In his various capacities as campaign manager, chairman of executive committees, district leader, etc., even the princes and merchant princes of the land tremble at his nod. His word or touch is full of strange potency. Money obeys, "barrels" and coffers, obdurate to all other appeals, fly open at his bidding, and yield up their treasures. Men who have never been known to invest a single dollar in charity, or in any agency of Christian benevolence and good-will, cheerfully subscribe their hundreds and their thousands when he speaks the magic word. He collects more money in a single day, and that without troublesome questions being asked,
than would suffice to establish a good-sized orphanage, or a well-equipped college, or to supply all the needs of a denominational mission board for a whole year. Hundreds of thousands are given; but no one, except the practical politician, knows exactly how and where it is spent. Many who give had rather not know the particulars. It would not add to their peace of mind if they did.

The practical politician is a great man in his way. The law of the land is suspended or nullified as may suit his purposes or his practice; and as for the moral law and such old-fashioned things as the Ten Commandments, he laughs them to scorn. He will have "no Sunday-school" in this business. It is all very well to talk about honesty, truthfulness, and fair dealing in business and the ordinary affairs of life; but in the sphere of practical politics the simple mention of these things marks a man as either a "crank" or a specimen of innocent vergency. Such words are not to be found in the vocabulary of the practical politician—he has no use for them.

There are laws upon the statute books against bribery, fraud, stealing, false pretences, illegal registry, and various other crimes against the suffrage; but everybody knows that the practical politician cares nothing for such trifles as these. There are, indeed, few laws upon the statute books that he may not break with impunity, providing it helps him to votes. This is the supreme thing; this the ultimate test as to method, conduct, and success; this the aim above all aims; get votes—it is for this that the practical politician lives, moves, and has his being. For this all things in heaven and earth are subordinated—conscience, honor, truth, manliness, pride of character,

laws civil, laws moral, and laws divine.
Nothing is counted too dear as the price of votes.

Our characterization may seem harsh, but we do not think it is exaggerated. The code of conduct as practiced by the professional politician in a political campaign is a direct importation from the realm of the devil himself. There is no other phrase more applicable to it. It is a code that sanctions the invasion of the privacy of homes, the besmirching of character, the befouling of good names, the base use of lies, and the most contempible of tricks. Under this code knaves are exalted to seats of power and honest men kicked into the ditch; under it one grog-seller is counted as worthy of more consideration than a score of "parsons," or three score of common, but upright men. The "parson" and the common man are only good, as a rule, for one vote each; the grog-seller can guarantee ten or more—that makes all the difference. One is a vote getter, the others are not—that is the explanation.

We have spoken of the practical politician as a product of our political system. He is, more correctly speaking, an exorcism, the outcome of unhealthy and unnatural conditions.
He is the product of the system as it is combined with the weakness, indifference, and neglectfulness of the mass of American citizens. Given a political system like ours, where every man in the eye of the law is a sovereign, but where, as a matter of fact, great numbers of men never exercise the prerogatives of sovereignty; a system where every citizen has the right of suffrage and an equal voice in the making of laws and the regulation of public affairs, but where, as a matter of fact, great multitudes of intelligent citizens never take the trouble to vote or to exercise their influence in public life—given all this, and you have a system that generates the practical politician and his code as naturally as a swamp generates miasma and fungus.

The practical politician is an exorcism.
He exists simply by the sufferance of the mass of Christian citizens. For all the vile and shameful things that come from the workings of his infernal code of conduct they are quite as much to blame as he. They have only to exercise themselves in political affairs and bring into the arena of political action the same virtues, the same qualities of honor and manliness which they exercise in other avenues of life, and the practical politician as he is known today would forthwith cease to be—Christian at Work.

"Sanctified Common Sense."

We do not for a moment believe that the general level of goodness among our ministers is less to-day than in former ages. In many respects it is decidedly and considerably higher.
So long as our ministers imagine that they are rendering the slightest service to God and man by platonic confessions of shortcomings they will do nothing to struggle with the real problem. The reason why Methodism generally does not make more progress is not because our ministers are less Christian to-day than in former generations, but simply because too many of them obstinately persist in shutting their eyes to the signs of the times, and suicidally refuse to adapt their methods and agencies to the practical necessities of a new era. To idolize the methods of former generations, and to offer an unreasoning resistance to all reforms and innovations, is to depart absolutely from the practice of John Wesley, and to offer a formidable obstacle to the progress of the church. Of course, if we do not make progress the fault is in ourselves.

Human nature is not worse to-day than it was in former generations, and our facilities and opportunities of successful work are immeasurably greater.
But we must not shrink the real question by simply saying that what we want is "more religion." That sort of confession does no good to anybody.

The serious fact of the hour is that wherever our methods have been adapted to new circumstances we have witnessed triumphs equal to anything that our fathers ever saw. There is not a single instance of failure where we have used sanctified common sense. Anyone who ignores this profoundly significant fact assumes an awful responsibility. The question is no longer open to debate. The success of new methods conceived in the spirit of Wesley is an accomplished fact. The truth is so patent that no one has any excuse now for ignoring
it. Let our ministers everywhere study the problem of evangelism as it presents itself in the particular locality in which they live. Let them, then, proceed to use such methods as their own experience, or the experience of others, prove to be the most effective in those particular localities, and we shall speedily witness an extension of the work of God as neither we nor our fathers have ever known. Our people are simply yearning and pining for a great advance. Stimulated on one hand by the revival of the Church of England, and on the other hand by the Salvation Army, they are ready, and more than ready, to respond to any appeal that we may make to their energy and their enthusiasm. Improvement in religious service always takes a very practical form. It is not by outliving sentiment or using fine words, but by doing our "first works" and "bringing forth fruits meet for repentance" that we shall fill our sanctuaries and evangelize England.

But it is to be feared that this will be realized only by those ministers of religion who resolutely refuse to live either in the past or in small coteries, but come into actual touch with the present generation and move freely among all sorts and conditions of people. We must implore God to assist us by his Holy Spirit to escape from everything that is conventional, artificial, perfunctory, and unreal. We must come into actual contact with the real life of our own day and our own country. Then we shall find that the gospel of Jesus Christ, intelligently and discreetly taught, is still, and more than ever, the power of God unto salvation to all who hear it.—Methodist Times, London.

Religious Newspapers.

We use the plural advisedly. We are not referring to this paper. The Occident is the one religious paper which we do not read for spiritual profit. We trust the reasons for this are obvious, involving no discreditation to the paper. We refer to religious newspapers as a class, and in particular to each one of the sixty or more that reach our exchange table. Some of these are Methodist, some Baptist, some Episcopalian, some Lutheran, some independent, some even non-evangelical. It is our duty to glance over all these, week by week, and our privilege to read what catches the attention or appeals to the conscience or judgment as particularly timely and valuable. This incidental privilege brings to the writer more satisfaction and profit than he finds in any other reading, the Bible only excepted. He is sure to discover something in every issue of each of these weeklies that either nourishes his own religious nature, strengthens his convictions, stimulates him to holy purpose, or guides him in Christian conduct. The actual reading accomplished in this way every week amounts probably to little more than the average contents of two or three of the best of the number. The rest is merely glanced over. But some devotional excerpt, some bit of choice religious verse, some extended article or editorial of uncommon merit or uncommon ap-teeness to the reader's personal need, is sure to catch the eye and refresh mind and heart.

Often the best pieces reappear again and again, passing through a number of exchanges. In such cases there is frequently a reappearance with increasing profit. This suggests the proper use of a religious paper in the average home. It should be read by instalments, and with so much leisure as the reader can command. In this way the essence of Christian thought, so carefully prepared, selected and presented, will find the more secure lodging in the mind. The very poorest, thinnest of these exchanges often furnishes the present writer welcome spiritual food. Not one of the number but seems to us worth vastly more than its subscription price. The conclusion reached as the result of the personal experience herein indicated is, that no Christian family can afford to do without, at least, one carefully edited religious weekly. We are convinced that the strength of the church lies, more and more, in the households that take pains to procure, and the Christians who take pains to digest, the Christian counsel providentially supplied the church in these days by religious journalism. We are not here advertising any one newspaper. We are simply stating the conclusions forced upon us by personal experience.—Occident.

BOOKS AND PERIODICALS.

BOOKS.

THE PREACHER'S DAUGHTER. By
Amelia E. Barr. 12mo. 355 pages. $1.25.
Bradley & Woodruff, Boston.

This is, no doubt, the best, most interesting and most powerful book ever written by this popular author.

MICHAEL AND THEODORA. A Russian story. By Amelia E. Barr. 16mo. Illustrated. 190 pages. 75 cents. Bradley & Woodruff, Boston.

This is a singularly strong and impressive story of child-life among the aristocracy of Russia.

THE ORGAN SCORE ANTHEM BOOK.
By J. R. Sweney and W. K. Kirkpatrick.
J. Hood, Philadelphia. Price, 60 cents, or $5 per dozen.

We suppose this to be a good collection of anthems, as the authors are men of note in their profession. We are not competent to pass judgment on this kind of sacred music.

HEREDITY; OR, HARRY HARWOOD'S IN-HERITANCE. By Mary C. Woodbury.
McDonald & Gill Co., Boston. Price, 75 cents.

This story portrays the picture of an intemperate life, and thus points to the most gigantic evil of the day, the sale of intoxicating liquors, especially in saloons. It is hoped that it will add its weight in the great fight against the liquor power.

GULF AND GLACIER: The Perovskis
in Alaska. By Willis Boyd Allen, author of Pine Cone Series, etc. 12mo. Illustrated. St. Boston: D. Lothrop Company.

An excursion to Alaska has more the charm of novelty than the beaten tracks so often gone over, and this delightful record of an actual journey will be found exceedingly entertaining apart from the interest attached to the story. We enjoy the daily travel, the amusing incidents, the gay life inside the car, and the sight-seeing that goes on whenever opportunity offers. The author's felicitous style makes the record of every day a fresh delight.
There is plenty of graphic incident, and the boys' adventure with a "silver tip" forms a thrilling episode.

THE MAKING OF A MAN. By Rev. J. W.
Lee, D. D. Cassell Publishing Company,
New York. Price, $1.50.

This is the biggest little book we have read since Bishop Haygood's "Man of Galilee." It is stimulating, refreshing,
It is scientific, philosophical, religious.
It easily knocks some conclusions of scientific writers into flinders, and as our religion is as solid as granite,
God's greatest work is man, and Dr.
Lee shows how great that greatest work is! The second chapter is the finest argument for missions we have ever read, and yet the subject is not mentioned. We would like to give some extracts; but our space is so limited, and the difficulty of selecting from such rich material so great, that we must content ourselves by exhorting the reader to procure the book and read for himself.

OCTOBER PERIODICALS.

—THE CENTURY. Century Co., New York. Price, $1.

—ST. NICHOLAS. Century Co., New York. Price, $3.

—CASSELL'S FAMILY MAGAZINE.
New York. Price, $1.50.

—THE CHAUTAUQUEAN. T. L. Flood, Meadville, Pa. Price, $2.

—THE LUTHERAN. Edwin Rose, Buffalo, New York. Price, $2.

—HERALD OF HEALTH. M. L. Holbrook, New York. Price, $1.

—POPULAR SCIENCE. D. Appleton
& Co., New York. Price, $5.

—MISSIONARY REVIEW. Funk & Wagnall, New York. Price, $2.

—MAGAZINE OF ART. Cassell Publishing Co., New York. Price, $3.50.

—MISSIONARY REPORTER. I. O.
John, Nashville, Tenn. Price, 50 cents.

—LADIES' HOME JOURNAL. Currier Publishing Co., Philadelphia. Price, $1.

—THE CALIFORNIAN ILLUSTRATED MAGAZINE. Californian Publishing Co., San Francisco, Cal. Price, $3.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON.—Oct. 9, 1892.

By Rev. W. H. LA PRADÉ, D. D.

Dorcas Raised to Life.

Acts ix, 32-43.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"This woman was full of good works and alms-deeds which she did (Verse 36.)

The spirit of persecution lived on among the unbelieving Jews, notwithstanding the loss of their most earnest and influential leader; but, for a time,
it became largely inoperative. St.
Luke says, "The church . . . had peace and . . . was multiplied."

St. Paul had been sent to Tarsus because of the efforts of the Jews to kill him. St. Peter, whose headquarters were still at Jerusalem, and who had been preaching much in Samaria since the death of Stephen, extended his preaching tour throughout the Holy Land, wherever believers had gone during the period of persecution, confining his operations to the Jewish population.

In the great plain of Sharon, about nine miles from Joppa, and twenty-two miles northwest of Jerusalem,

Vers. 32, 33. There were believers at Lydda, but whether Eneas was one of them we can not tell. Probably not, as he had been bed-ridden for eight years, and his conversion through the preaching of the scattered saints, after Pentecost, would, no doubt, have been mentioned. His disease rendered him perfectly helpless.

Vers. 34. What preparatory conversation Peter had with Eneas, if any, is not recorded. Evidently Eneas had heard of Jesus, and that wrought in his name. The apparent abruptness of Peter's language is thus explained.
To "make his bed" would prove the fact and completeness of his cure.

Vers. 35. Saron may have been a village near by, or the term may have been applied to the plain of Sharon lying adjacent to Lydda. The people were profoundly impressed by the miracle, and acknowledged the power of Jesus. Doubtless, many of them were genuinely converted.

Vers. 36. Joppa (now Jaffa) was and still is, the port of Jerusalem.
Tabitha, or Dorcas ("a gazelle," the word means), seems to have been the leading spirit among the disciples there, and gave undoubted testimony of her love for them by her good deeds. The spirit of Christ evidently was hers.

Vers. 37, 38. The burial of Dorcas, it would seem, was delayed in order that the messengers might have time to bring Peter, from whom they expected comfort. Perhaps their faith even grasped the miracle which was wrought on her through him.

Vers. 39. W. F. Lewis says: "When a good man falls asleep, the world mourns his loss; but when a doutfuling dies, for once he does well." Dorcas touched other people in order to help them. No wonder they sent for Peter. By her good deed, Dorcas illustrated the teachings of Jesus; by "making his bed" Eneas had testified to his power.

Christian Advocate.

Rev. D. L. MITCHEL, Publisher.

OFFICE: 112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

SUBSCRIPTION: $1 PER ANNUM.
Ministers and wives of deceased Preachers, $1

All Preachers of the M. E. Church, South, are authorized Agents, to whom payments may be made.

Rev. C. W. Carter, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. Lewis, Ass't Editor.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

REV. J. M. BEARD, D. D.
REV. A. R. KENNEL
REV. J. B. A. ARRENS, D. D.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

REV. W. C. BLACK, D. D.
REV. W. B. LEWIS
REV. R. J. JONES.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

REV. W. T. J. SULLIVAN, D. D.
REV. J. D. CAMERON, D. D.
REV. T. C. WIER, M. D.

Thursday, October 6, 1892.

The Publishing Committee of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE will hold its annual meeting in the ADVOCATE building, 112 Camp street, New Orleans, on Wednesday, Oct. 26, at 11 A. M. J. M. BEARD, Chairman.

Millsaps College Formally Opened.

OVER ONE HUNDRED STUDENTS MATRICULATED.

Millsaps College was formally opened last Thursday, Sept. 29, at eleven o'clock. Quite a large crowd of visitors from home and abroad were in attendance. Nearly every section of the State was represented by visitors and students. Presiding elders, ex-presiding elders, pastors, local preachers, laymen, students, editors, statesmen, old and young, were there. (The youngest had reached the ripe age of four months.) It was a gala day for Jackson, and one ever to be remembered in the history of Mississippi Methodism. For over three years with indefatigable energy have Bishop Galloway and Bro. Watkins labored assiduously to endow and equip this institution of learning. When President Murrah stepped upon the rostrum and announced that the doors of this long-cherished college were formally thrown open for the reception of students, a feeling of pride and joy without alloy swept over the audience and rolled over the State until from center to circumference it was felt.

The audience was called to order by Dr. Murrah, and the devotional exercises were conducted by Dr. C. G. Andrews, of Meridian, vice-president of the Board of Trustees, who read the thirty-eighth chapter of Job, and offered a prayer in which he earnestly besought our heavenly Father that, as he had furthered our desires and purposes thus far, so would he bless the work of the college to the moral and spiritual, as well as intellectual, welfare of every student. President Murrah then introduced to the audience Col. C. E. Hooker, one of our Congressmen from the State, who made a few brief, but well-chosen, remarks on the general subject of education, referring to the present influence and possible beneficial effects resulting from the establishment of this college. He was followed by Mayor Wm. Henry, who, on the part of the citizens of Jackson, spoke of the pride felt by them on the opening of the college. Dr. Murrah then made the address of the occasion, delivering what has been universally pronounced one of the finest discourses ever spoken from a rostrum in the Capital City. For nearly, or quite, one hour the audience sat in rapt attention; nor did they lose one word. We would like to make some extracts; but as it would be impossible to do justice to the address in this way, and as it is the Doctor's purpose to put it in pamphlet-form, we reluctantly refrain. We may be permitted to say in advance, however, that when it does appear it will bear more than a casual perusal.

Major R. W. Millsaps, to whose beneficence and liberality the college owes its existence, feelingly referred to its past, present and future, and threw in the well-timed advice that we were not to rest on our laurels if we would become a complete success. Much, very much, was yet to be done.

Letters were read from Bishop Galloway, who was unavoidably detained in Missouri on official business, and also from Dr. Carter, editor of the ADVOCATE, who was also to have taken part in the exercises. It was an additional cause of regret that Gov. J. M. Stone, who was to have delivered the opening address, was physically unable to be present. The exercises lasted a little over two hours, but the audience did not weary. At one o'clock the benediction was pronounced by Bro. Mellén, of Meridian, and all went home feeling that they had been well paid for the time spent. Those who missed the formal opening of Millsaps College have missed an occasion to which they could ever have looked with gratification and pride.

At this writing the enrollment of students is going on. Over one hundred have matriculated, and there are more to follow. The professors are in their several rooms, surrounded by classes which they are arranging; the president is up to his ears in work, and everything betokens a successful session and propitious future. Some time later the buildings will be formally dedicated and the corner-stone will be laid. When this auspicious day shall come, let every loyal Methodist in Mississippi be present.

MR. EDITOR: Millsaps College has entered the educational arena under the most favorable auspices, and with the most flattering prospects for success and prosperity. She will have no infancy, but, like Minerva leaping full armed from the brain of Jove, she springs from nonentity to measure lances with the oldest and best-equipped colleges in the land. While we look forward with pleasure to her assured success, let us not forget the patient laborers to whom this success is due. The man who first advanced the idea of a Methodist College for Mississippi was our beloved Bro. T. A. S. Adams, who was taken from us while yet in the prime of life by that "reaper whose name is death," e'er he beheld the realization of this dream of his life. And the thanks of the church are especially due our untiring and efficient agent, Rev. A. F. Watkins. For the past three years he has given his entire time and attention to this work, faithfully performing his numerous duties with unflagging patience and conscientious exactness. He carried into the work a zeal and enthusiasm which could not have been other than infectious, and which crowned his efforts with well-deserved success. Quietly and unostentatiously he has labored, sparing not himself, but devoting time and energy to the work so dear his heart. The labors which have been so faithfully performed are at an end, and as long as Millsaps College exists the Methodists of Mississippi will owe him a debt of gratitude. LAREDO.

[This is not too much, by any means, to say of Bro. Watkins' efforts in behalf of Millsaps College.—Ass't Ed.]

It is said that Mr. Vanderbilt intends to spend $1,000,000 a year for ten years in building and beautifying and adorning his palace near A-beville, N. C. If Mr. Vanderbilt would use that money to help the struggling colleges of the country, it would be much more sensible and would be a monument to his memory long after his palace has crumbled to dust.

The Enforcement of Law.

Judge Ferguson's move against the gamblers of this city, of which we made brief mention last week, shows what can be done toward the suppression of that sort of crime when the officers of the law stand up for the Law. Gambling has been carried on openly in this city for years without molestation. As it was known by the many, the presumption is strong that it was well known by the police. The veriest ignoramus knows that it is prohibited by law. The inference can not be evaded that it was connived at and fostered by the very men whose sworn duty it was to suppress and destroy it. Many judges had brought the matter to the attention of grand juries, but nothing was done but to let the abominable practice go on ruining those entangled in its fascinations. But when Judge Ferguson called up the grand jury the other day, and read to them their oaths and the law in the matter, and then pointed out by name and number of street the places where everybody knew gambling was carried on, that body "smelt the battle," and sent an order to the Chief of Police to close up the gambling dens. The gamblers also "smelt the battle," and before the police could arrive every place indicated by the Judge had closed out, and all the paraphernalia pertaining to the business were in some mysterious way spirited away! So far, good. But is it not a strange thing that men in official position have to be threatened with prison bars before they will perform their official duties? Is it not a strange thing that officers of the law are so unmindful of their oaths that it requires a special charge to bring those oaths to memory? We can account for this only by the fact that non-enforcement of law educates people to break the law. "A stream of tendency" making for wickedness is set in motion wherever law is not enforced, and very many people are not unwilling to go with that stream. The longer this non-enforcement continues the stronger the stream and the more powerful the momentum. According to Judge Ferguson, this gambling stream has been moving with very little obstruction for a score of years, and in that time has swept many men from their moorings and destroyed the happiness of many homes. The loud and deep curses of the ruined victims as they flounder down the stream, the pitiful wail of woe from wrecked families along its banks, the young manhood that floats out on its perilous bosom to certain destruction, the outraged moral sense of the better portion of the community—all these are hooted at and execrated by those who ply this nefarious business. Of all the heartless things the devil ever invented the gambling spirit bears the palm. Childhood in its innocence, womanhood in its purity, manhood in its beauty—all go down before the devastating storm of avarice which the spirit of gambling fosters.

Judge Ferguson has begun to obstruct this dreadful stream none too soon. So far he has done a good work, for it is said that at present there is not a gambling-house running. But this class of people require very close and vigilant surveillance, and we hope the Judge will persist in the course he has adopted until our city is thoroughly purged of this vile iniquity. He will find that in his efforts to destroy this abomination the honest people of the town are at his back. They are commending in high terms what he has already done by inaugurating this war, and he has only to go ahead and finish up the business, as its demerits deserve, and he will secure a meed of praise that very few judges in New Orleans have secured.

In the meantime we commend to judicial officials all over the State his example, and trust that, "for their oath's sake," they will make a vigorous warfare upon all law breakers. It is known that the Sunday law is openly violated in almost every place in the State; and if judges of criminal courts will take the matter vigorously in hand, these violations can be stopped and the violators punished. It is all "fol-de-rol" to say that convictions can not be had, and, therefore, prosecutions had better not begin. That is, "Let the education of our people in the worst form of wickedness the devil ever concocted go on rather than fail a few times in suppressing it." Failure at one time or point does not mean failure at every time and at every point. The people have been deluded into the idea that this matter depends upon juries. Its success or failure depends upon the attitude of our criminal judges toward the matter.

Croakers.

We don't mean the croakers that you catch in the sea. They are very fine and palatable. The only objection we have to them is, we don't see them often enough. Our caption has reference to the dry-land croaker, the church croaker. He is getting too noisy and too numerous. We have been meditating an editorial on him, but we find something pertinent to the subject in an exchange, which we give our readers:

Pessimism: "I am left alone—and they seek my life."

Realism: "What saith the answer of God unto him? I have reserved to myself seven thousand men who have not bowed the knee to the image of Baal. Even so, then, at this present time also, there is a remnant according to the election of grace."

God has a few even in your ecclesiastical Sardis who have not defiled their garments, and they shall walk with him in white; for they are worthy."

So you are not the only good, but persecuted, person that is left on the face of the earth. There are thousands as good and as brave as you. God has reserved such to himself. Your fancied loneliness and unexampled goodness and courage are all an outcome of your own little self-conceit. Just as the prophet's discouraged servant, when his eyes were open, saw God's horsemen and chariots of fire all around his master and himself to defend them in their hour of peril, so you are too blind to see and know God's great reserved host who have not bowed the knee to the image of Baal, or to any other image.

Therefore, cheer up; quit your moaning and croaking, sighing and groaning; take courage; all the prophets are not even yet killed; all God's altars are not even yet digged down. You may be thinking the church is worse than ever before, and the world is "going to the bad," and everything is cheerless and hopeless, because you know no better, because you can not see what God sees, because you are destitute of faith and hope, because you do not give God's reserved and stalwart thousands the credit they ought to have. Where and what you can not see, trust—trust God and man—trust the church and your fellow-Christians—trust the ministry and the divinely powerful gospel they preach—trust the means of grace and the hope of glory—trust the atoning blood of Christ and the convicting, converting and sanctifying operations of the Holy Ghost—trust the prophecies and promises and power and providence of God—trust the divine willingness and purpose and ability to put rings in the snouts of his adversaries—trust him that saves you that he will save others to the uttermost, here and forevermore.

And remember that your little village or your little church, where you feel so lonely in "the fullness of the blessing of the gospel of Christ," is, after all, a part of God's great world of life and light and love. If few or none just around you seem to be in sympathy with you, yet you are in fellowship with the saints of all ages and places. "Ye are come unto Mount Zion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to an innumerable company of angels, to the general assembly and church of the first-born, which are written ('enrolled,' marg.) in heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect, and to Jesus the mediator of the new covenant, and to the blood of sprinkling, that speaketh better things than the blood of Abel."

Christian Standard.

Centenary College.

Centenary College has opened with bright prospects for a good, successful year. We have more new students up to date than we had last year. The faculty is strong and equal to the occasion; the president is hopeful and confident of success; the endowment has been increased since January to nearly one hundred thousand dollars. Now, with the endowment increasing at this rate, and with the extensive advertising that is being done by the agent in the field, there is nothing to prevent Centenary College from becoming one of the grandest educational institutions in the South. She is situated on one of the most beautiful spots in one of the most beautiful States in the South, with magnificent buildings, worth one hundred and fifty thousand dollars, with not one dollar of debt upon them. In regard to health and morals, she has a record that can not be surpassed, if equaled, by any other school in any other State in the Union. Now, it has been estimated that with an endowment of two hundred thousand dollars Centenary College could educate every boy who chose to go there free of charge. That would enable us to compete with State schools, and nothing short of this ought to satisfy us; and if all the Methodists in Louisiana whom God has permitted to prosper would do their duty, it could be done very easily. Ten or a dozen more men of the same calibre as John Pharr and Peter James and Philip Werlein and Andrew J. Gay would accomplish the work. May God open the hearts of the people, and may they take hold of this important part of the great work that is being done for the salvation of the world!

ROBT. HARRY, Agent.

Millsaps College.

Millsaps College opens with more than one hundred students present. A full account of the opening exercises will be furnished the ADVOCATE. I desire, however, in this note to express our deep gratitude for the gift of a handsome Bible, presented to the college by Mrs. P. T. Callicott, of Cold Water, Miss.

The church at Como, Miss., presents us with a handsome desk for the president's office. For this valuable gift we are especially indebted to Rev. J. M. Wyatt and Hon. J. L. McGehee. These remembrances from North Mississippi touch us deeply.

W. B. MURRAH.

NOTES FROM OUR JACKSON OFFICE.

"As for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."—Joshua.

The nearest approach to heaven in this life is a Christian home.—Alabama Christian Advocate.

Millsaps College opened with flying colors last Thursday. See full account in another column.

Rev. Henry Anderson Gatlin, son of Mr. Z. B. Gatlin, of Johnson station, Miss., was the first matriculate of Millsaps College.

Brandon station is soon to have a new parsonage. The property has been selected, and by this time, no doubt, the contracts have been closed.

Two thirds of our troubles are a few miles ahead of us at the bridge we never reach. All around us the birds are singing, the flowers blossoming, the sun is shining, all nature is rejoicing.

Mrs. C. A. Bonds, Bogue Chitto, Miss., has sent Bishop Galloway for the library of the college a box of books which formerly belonged to her brother-in-law, Rev. D. W. Bonds, Liberty, Miss.

Dr. Murrah's address at the opening of the college was one of the finest of its kind it has ever been our pleasure to listen to. It is his purpose to put it in pamphlet form. It should be read by all lovers of Christian education.

Quite a number of brethren from the State visited the branch office last Thursday while in the city. Wish we could have met them all. They were just as welcomed, however, as if we had not been at the college, but at the desk.

Mrs. P. T. Callicott, of Cold Water, Miss., presented Millsaps College with a handsome Bible, which was on the stand for opening day. It is engraved:

"Millsaps College, Sept. 29, 1892." "From Mrs. P. T. Callicott, Cold Water, Miss." Mrs. Reid Bingham, of Carrollton, has sent $100 to Bishop Galloway which to furnish the library of the college.

It is rumored that Bishop Grauberry has been importuned to transfer two first-class city pastors for two of our city stations. Alas! has it come to this? Is the Mississippi Conference barren of talent that it must already be imported? When Bishop Grauberry visits this Conference in December, if, in his godly judgment, two transfers or more are necessary, the Conference will cheerfully accept them; but if this is a scheme concocted by one out of the bishopric, it is a reflection on the ministry of the Conference, and should be repudiated at once.

The entire Mississippi Conference will be grieved to learn that Bro. D. A. Little, presiding elder of the Victoria district, has been called upon to give up his little son, Mac. We have as yet heard none of the particulars of his death, except that it was very sudden. Bro. Little left Port Gibson on Friday to attend a Quarterly Conference, and by Monday was summoned home to the funeral. Little Mac was only eight or nine years old, and during his four years' stay in Jackson made many warm friends among both young and old. (Since writing the above, a letter from Bro. Little brings the news that Mac died of congestion, after only an hour or two of illness.)

NOTES.

Advice to the preachers: "Take time to get ready" for your Sabbath services!

George Elliot says: "No blessing ever comes twice in the same guise and in the same voice and with the same offer." Then quickness to apprehend every blessing that comes is the highest wisdom.

Another item of advice to the preachers: Conference is coming on anon; see to it, then, that you ask the Master to order his providence that you may be sent to the place where God can use you to the best advantage!

There are wire-working preachers and wire-working laymen. The former work the wires for place, the latter for men. They both need one thing very much, and that is—the one thing needful." Both would overturn the Methodist system, and give us congregational practice on a congregational theory.—Holston Methodist.

How prone we are to exaggerate! It may be excused in some people because they don't know the real meaning of the words they use. In others, though they know the meaning of the words, they don't think of their meaning at the time they are used. We often find ourselves saying: "Does he really mean what he says?"

One of the surprises which constantly meet the student of church history is the ease with which men can accept the most unreasonable and fantastic doctrines, while rejecting the sober statements furnished by the New Testament. The man who professes himself unable to accept the miracles of Christ will not be found to champion the most absurd accounts of spirit-rapping, mind cure and theosophy. And frequently one who professes to doubt the perfection of the character of our Lord will give the most implicit admiration to a fellow-man or woman, whose personal life would not stand the scrutiny of a police court for five minutes.—Watkinsman.

The strangely interesting fact is related that a fortune of many thousands of dollars has recently been extracted from the wooden floor and rubbish of a New York business building. The New York representatives of the Watch Company for many years carried on the manufacture of watch cases on three floors of this building, melting from $1,000 to $3,000 worth of gold every day. A few months ago they moved to another place, and on their departure had the floors taken up and carried to a melting and refining works. There were 60,000 square feet of lumber that had been undisturbed for nineteen years. Special wagons to transport the timber were built so that no particle should drop to the ground. The wood was burned to ashes, which were sifted, and the gold was then extracted by a chemical process. The result realized by the watch firm was about $67,000. A fact like this is worth remembering in connection with Christian life and influence. There is no waste in God's economy. That which, as it were, may be thrown off from us as we pursue our rounds of Christian service, these little things which we may esteem of little value, God saves up and utilizes and makes them tributary to our own and others' good.—Mid-Continent.

PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE.

Missionary for Japan.

The editor's second daughter, Lizzy May, was married to Rev. Arthur D. McVoy, of the Louisiana Conference, last week, in Louisiana Avenue Church. The rite was performed by the editor, assisted by Rev. A. D. McVoy, Sr., president of Mansfield Female College. A large company of friends came together on the occasion and pronounced heartfelt benedictions upon the young couple.

Dr. Anson West expects to bring out his "History of Methodism in Alabama" early next year.

A train of thirty carloads of rosin left this city recently by the Texas and Pacific railway for Denver.

Several residences were burned in Meridian, Miss., last week. The fire is attributed to an incendiary.

Lake Charles, La., has opened a system of water works. We suppose she is getting ready for the Conference.

Rev. D. O. Shattuck, who years ago was connected with Centenary College, died recently in Sonoma, Cal., aged ninety-three.

Millsaps College was opened with appropriate ceremonies on the twentieth ultimo. See account of it in another column.

Rev. D. Atkins, formerly president of Corvallis College, Oregon, is now associate editor of the Raleigh Christian Advocate.

Dr. A. W. Jones, president of Memphis Conference Female Institute for forty-five years, died recently, aged seventy-six years.

The Methodist is a sprightly paper published monthly at Danville, Va., for 25 cents per annum, by the Methodist Laymen's Union.

There is talk of a railroad from Clinton, La., to connect with the Illinois Central at Amite City. Good project for St. Helena parish!

Dr. Longking, who has been connected with the Methodist Book Concern in New York longer than anyone else, is in his eighty-sixth year.

The women of Mississippi are preparing a novel exhibit for the World's Fair. It will be a pyramid of twenty-five bales of cotton raised by Mississippi women.

The Mississippi Delta Medical Association was organized at Greenville, last week. Dr. Lucas, of Leflore county, is president, and Dr. Schuder, of Issaquena county, is secretary.

A note from Rev. B. F. Jones brings the sad news that death has visited Rev. D. A. Little's family. His little son, McNeil, died of congestion on Sept. 26. We sympathize with our bereaved brother.

Our young friend, Hubert D. Knickerbocker, was received on trial in the Los Angeles Conference, and appointed junior preacher with R. H. Parker on the Carpenteria and Santa Barbara circuit. He is a New Orleans boy.

Are there not a few families on your charge, brother, who do not take our paper? Could you bestow a greater and more lasting blessing upon them than to induce them to subscribe? Will a lover of Christ neglect to bestow a blessing when he can?

For sale—a giraffe. How much am I offered for him? His neck is long and he can feed out of an elevated rack. He is a good-natured fellow, pulls well in harness, never kicks. We would like to have $5,000 for him, but must have three thousand or no sale. Who'll say, and how much?—Holston Methodist.

A strict examination of church records would show that the tragic death of Ananias and Sapphira was not a turbulent remedy to stop the increase of their progeny, though it shows God's hatred of their sin. The scattering of debts by the expiration of the Conference year, and the many professions to pay as much as ability will allow while still singleness and together with the undisturbed subscriptions which burden the archives, shame the ancient prevaricators. Why does not the Almighty kill them all? That question will be answered in the final day, when there will be a general tumble of all liars into the lake.—Texas Advocate.

The Winston Signal gives this: Quite an interesting service was held at the Methodist Church, on the night of Sept. 16, by Rev. W. W. Cammack, who has been sent by the Methodist Church as a missionary to the Indians in this State, assisted by Simpson Tubby, a converted Indian of the Choctaw tribe, who is assisting him and acting as his interpreter. The service consisted of a sermon by Rev. Mr. Cammack and a talk by Simpson Tubby, both in Choctaw and English, also songs, prayers and reading in the Choctaw language. A number of Indians were present, and the service was greatly enjoyed by all present. A collection was taken up to aid in building a church for the Indians near Mr. C. C. McLeod's place, in this country.

All persons desiring to purchase choice Pianos, Organs, Musical Instruments or Music, should not fail to visit the large establishment of L. Grunewald & Co., Limited, at Nos. 127 Canal and 14 to 20 Baronne streets, New Orleans.

Ten cents for a dictionary with 30,000 words; five cents for an elegantly illustrated primer, and other books in proportion. F. D. Van Valkenburgh, 106 Camp street.

At Jackson, last Thursday, a gifted young man said unto me: "Bro. Mellem, I have seen your card in the Advocate, and I am thinking very seriously about offering myself for the work in Japan." God bless him.

Another writes to me: "If my education were sufficient, I would not hesitate about accepting the call; but I have not a classical education. I feel that I could meet every requirement but that one. Besides, I have been impressed very forcibly that it is my duty to go. But I do not put this in as an application where there are so many who have the required education. Rather, I feel that I would be putting myself in the way to offer, knowing there are many who can meet every requirement mentioned, when I can not. I only mention it to let you know my feelings on the great question of missions, and my burning zeal for the spread of the gospel. I am ready to go anywhere to work for the Master." Is there not a place in Japan for him and for other workers like him? T. L. MELLE.

An Appeal.

To the Brotherhood of the Mississippi Conference—

Brethren: You have seen the call for Assessment No. 15 on account of the death of Rev. L. W. Wood, and the revocation of the same, Bro. Wood having failed to keep up his membership. His widow, in her sad bereavement, would be greatly benefited by a voluntary contribution from us, and we propose that each member of the Brotherhood send the amount of $5, more or less, to Rev. C. A. Powell, Moss Point, Miss., to be given by him to her. We suggest this as a free-will offering to the widow of a brother who fell at his post of duty; and it need not be confined to the members of the Brotherhood.

W. B. LEWIS, President,
I. W. COOPER, Treasurer,
B. F. JONES, Secretary.
J. A. B. JONES,
Chairman of Ex. Com.

Missionary Debt.

A letter from Dr. Walter R. Lambuth, Sept. 28, says:

Your letter of Sept. 22, with check for $35.50 (from Brookhaven district) inclosed, received. You are a stilling set down there!

Just back this morning from Southwest Missouri Conference. Had a roughing mission conference. Raised at eleven o'clock in Conference session $3,700, and that night at the anniversary brought it up to $4,395.49. Many gave $100; Palmer, $300. He is the collector; and says he will get $4,000 of the amount at least. It was glorious. We will make it this year.

Now, let every district solicitor in our Conference make a thorough canvass, and let everybody contribute as the Lord hath prospered him; so that our $4,000 will be in hand by Conference. T. L. MELLE, Solicitor for Miss. Conf.

Programme for the Holy Springs District Preachers' Meeting.

TO BE HELD AT HOLLY SPRINGS, MISS., OCT. 12, 1892, AT 7 P. M.

1. "What Is the Tithing System? and How Much Do We Owe the Lord?"—B. S. Rayner, W. W. Bott.
2. "Adoption"—J. J. Brooks, S. B. Myers.
3. "Consecration"—Joseph Johnson, J. W. Poston.
4. "What Are the Best Revival Methods?"—J. B. Harris, O. N. Koon.
5. "Apostasy"—J. C. Lowe, W. D. Burroughs.
6. "Preparation and Delivery of a Sermon"—J. W. Boswell, G. H. Jacobs.
7. "The Extent of the Atonement"—J. L. Bowling, H. C. Edmundson, S. A. Ellis.
8. "Sanctification"—J. W. Honnoll, B. C. Gray.
9. "The Epworth League"—T. W. Lewis.

It is hoped that all the preachers in the district will be present.

T. W. LEWIS, Sec'y.

Beware Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as" Pearlina. IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back. 285 JAMES PYLE, N. Y.

Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss.

Session Begins Sept. 29th, 1892.

Full Faculty, Thorough Course,
GOOD ENDOWMENT.

New and Commodious Buildings.

Beautiful, Central and Healthful Location at the Capital of the State.

Cheap Board. No Tuition. Moderate Matriculation Fee.

Liberal provision made for young preachers and sons of preachers.

For terms, catalogue or other information apply to

Rev. W. B. MURRAY, D. D., President,
or Rev. A. F. WATKINS, Agent, Jackson, Miss.

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY, Pres't of Board of Trustees.

WAYNESBORO COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

WAYNESBORO, MISS.

W. W. MOORE, A. M., President.
(Southern University.)

Miss CLARA BLOCK, A. M., Primary.
(E. M. F. C. and Teabody Normal.)

J. C. AUST, Telegraphy, etc.

ALEX. POWE, Vice-President.
(Southern University.)

Miss LUCY ANDREWS, Music.
(New England Conservatory.)

Our course of study embraces the Classics and English, also Telegraphy, Music, Shorthand, Bookkeeping and Printing. An unlimited number of boys and girls may secure board on the cheapest plan ever known to any Southern school. Board and tuition need not exceed ten dollars per month.

Write for catalogue. Next session opens Sept. 12, 1892. Write to

Rev. W. W. MOORE, A. M., President.

BRODIE'S
LIVER PILLS.
FOR Biliousness, Dyspepsia,
SICK HEADACHE, WEAK STOMACH,
AND ALL
Disorders of The Liver.

TESTIMONY.
I have used Brodie's Pills for many years in my family and have found them invaluable in all cases, and as a Liver Pill do not think they have an equal. Geo. H. Wiley.

Sold By All Druggists.

Price, 25c. a Box.

I. L. LYONS & CO., Prop's.

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Stanton Military Academy,

—STANTON, VA.

A Military School for Young Men and Boys.

Handsome Illustrated Catalogue mailed on application.

Tulane University OF LOUISIANA.

Tulane University embraces College, High School, St. Sophie Newcomb Memorial College for Young Women, Law and Medical Departments. The College has four parallel courses: Classical, Literary, Scientific and Engineering. Next Annual Session of the Academic Department, including the St. Sophie Newcomb College, begins October 3rd. Law Department opens November 14th. Medical Department, October 17th. For special or general catalogues, apply to the Secretary of the University, Tulane Hall, WM. PRESTON JOHNSTON, President.

MILLWOOD Female Institute.

This Institute is located near Jackson, East Feliciana Par., La., a place remarkable for beautiful surroundings and salubrity of climate; four miles from the Mississippi Valley Railroad. Thorough teachers in each Department. Terms less than any other school of like advantages.

Session opens the first Monday in September.

Send for Catalogue.

Miss M. McCALMONT, Principal.

Tuskaloosa Female College,

TUSKALOOSA, ALA.,

Offers superior advantages in every department of female education.

Session Opens Oct. 5.

For catalogue, giving full information, apply to

ALONZO HILL, President.

LOVELY WINTER FLOWERS

For only 30 cents we will send by mail, postpaid, the following 10 elegant Bulbs which may be potted as once for winter blooming in your window, or planted in the garden for early spring blooming.

- 1 Bulb Bermuda Easter Lily, the grandest winter flower, enormous white, sweet-scented blossoms.
- 1 Bulb Roman Hyacinth, bears several spikes of beautiful white blossoms, very fragrant.
- 1 Bulb Roman Hyacinth, produces spikes of the most beautiful blue flowers.
- 1 Bulb Freesia, very fragrant, large white and yellow blossoms, in wonderful profusion.
- 1 Bulb Tulip, Dus Van Thool, beautiful intense scarlet, blooms very early.
- 1 Bulb Allium Neap., large clusters of snow-white blossoms, free bloomer.
- 1 Bulb Giant Snowdrop, great, drooping, waxy-white flowers of unsurpassed beauty.
- 1 Bulb Scilla, sprays of deep sky-blue blossoms of great beauty.
- 1 Bulb Special Iris, a lovely flower of various colors and a profuse bloomer.
- 1 Bulb Glory of the Snow, long sprays of large, light-blue flowers with white center.

Also our Special Catalogue of Bulbs and Plants for Fall planting and Winter blooming, and a sample copy of THE MAYFLOWER with two elegant 14x7 colored plates. All this above for only 25 cents, postpaid. These 10 rare bulbs (worth 25 cents) are grand blossoms either for the house or garden. We send them for 25 cents only to introduce them. Get your neighbors to send with you and we will send of these collections for $1.00. Directions for culture sent with each lot.

ALSO THE FOLLOWING SPECIAL OFFERS BY MAIL POSTPAID:

- 12 Mixed Tulips, double or single..... 25c
- 12 Mixed Parrot Tulips..... 25c
- 6 Mixed Hyacinths, double or single..... 50c
- 6 Pompano Hyacinths, mixed, elegant..... 55c
- 25 Fine Mixed Crocus, all colors..... 25c
- 5 Grand Lilies, 5 sorts, including Auratum..... 50c
- 5 Fine named Camellias, different sorts..... 50c
- 4 See Perpetual Blooming Plants, fine winter blossoms..... 50c
- 5 Lovely Ever-blooming Roses, 5 sorts..... 50c

OUR FALL CATALOGUE for 1892. A superb work of Art, large and illustrated, with colored plates, will be sent to any one on receipt of 5 cents. We send it for fall planting and winter blooming. Also choice Shrubs and Fruits. It is the most beautiful and complete catalogue of the kind ever issued. We want agents in every town to take orders for our beautiful Monthly (four times a year) Paper (25 pages), THE MAYFLOWER, 50 cents per year. Liberal premiums. Sample copy free. Address: JOHN LEWIS CHILDS, Floral Park, N. Y.

FRANTZ & OPITZ, Watchmakers and Jewelers,

WILL MOVE TO

No. 17 Bourbon Street, near Canal,

(Next Door to the O. H. Holmes' Bourbon Street Entrance)

November 1st, 1892.

Office Telephone, 82.

Yard Telephone, 331.

Pennsylvania Coal Company,

Office, 67 Carondelet Street.

PITTSBURGH COAL.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

L. S. WIDNEY, Manager.

Cotton Presses, Factories, and the Family trade supplied at Lowest Market Rates.

CITY YARDS: Foot of Robin Street, Foot of Desire Street. Corner Short and St. Charles Avenue.

EIGHTH YEAR

MUSICAL ART.

(INCORPORATED.)

PILOCHER'S STUDIO OF MUSIC, and SCHOOL OF LANGUAGES.

(Established 1855.)

169 St. Charles Street. Next to Washington Artillery Hall.

Ample accommodations for Boarding Students. The Boarding Department is under the direct supervision of Mrs. Wm. Pilcher, Sr.

Music Taught in All its Branches. Twenty-five teachers in the various departments. Graduates and pupils who have attended this Institution are now occupying positions of more or less prominence throughout the country. Send for Seventh Annual Catalogue.

WILLIAM H. PILCHER, President, New Orleans, La.

L. GRUNEWALD CO., Ltd., LOW PRICES! TIME PAYMENTS!

STEINWAY, KNABE, SOHMER, PLEYEL,
CHICKERING, BEHR, FISCHER,
MEHLIN, SHONINGER.
OLD PIANOS TAKEN IN EXCHANGE.
PIANOS AND ORGANS!

127 Canal St., 14 to 20 Baronne St., NEW ORLEANS.

Write for terms and further particulars.

Mathushek

185 Canal St.,

New Orleans, La.,

Is Offering the Following Bargains:

New Upright Pianos, $250.

New Parlor Organs, $30.

Second-hand Upright Pianos, $125.

And Will Sell on

Easy Monthly Payments, if desired.

Write for Prices and Catalogues.

Will not Cut Through.

See Name "EVER READY" on Back of Each Stay.

Acknowledged the BEST DRESS STAY On the Market

Made with Elastic Perch on both sides of steel and warranted water-proof. All other stays are made differently and will rust. Beware of Imitations. Take none but the "Ever Ready."

Manufactured by the YPSILANTI DRESS STAY MFG. CO., Ypsilanti, Mich.

FOR SALE BY ALL JOBBERS AND RETAILERS.

SPECIAL MODEL DRESS STEEL CO., 74 Grand St., New York.

DEPOTS: BROWN & METZNER, 635 Market Street, San Francisco.

CENTENARY COLLEGE, Jackson, La.

Jackson, La., is near Eibell, on the Valley R. R., 113 miles north of New Orleans. The location is beautiful and healthful, the buildings are elegant and ample, and the Faculty is complete and able. The sale of intoxicating drinks is forbidden by law within five miles of the College. Its endowment fund is being rapidly increased, and the College has entered upon a new career of prosperity.

Special attention will be given to the health, morals and biblical instruction of the students.

For terms, Catalogue, or other information apply to Prof. G. H. Wiley, Jackson, La., or to

W. L. C. HUNNICUTT, President.

MARRIAGES.

HACKETT-DOLAND.—In the Methodist Church, Grand Central, La., Sept. 6, 1892, by Rev. C. F. Staples, Mr. A. L. Hackett, of Cameron, La., to Miss Amanda E. Doland, of Grand Central, La.

AYERS-CAMPBELL.—At the residence of Mr. A. H. Ayers, State Line, Miss., Sept. 15, 1892, by Rev. J. V. Penn, Mr. John P. Ayers, of State Line, to Miss Emma Campbell, of Shubuta, Miss.

WATSON-ALEXANDER.—Sept. 8, 1892, by Rev. J. A. B. Jones, Mr. C. L. Watson, of Iuka, Miss., and Miss Nettie Alexander, of Bolton, Miss.

MYERS-GRIFFING.—At the home of the bride's brother-in-law, Mr. Henry Flowers, Franklin county, Miss., Sept. 16, by Rev. E. A. Flowers, Mr. Benton V. Myers and Miss Lonia Griffin, of Franklin county, Miss.

OBITUARIES.

We publish obituaries of 200 words free of charge; for all over this, one cent per word must be sent. If you want the notice to appear in its order, comply with this rule. Count the words, and send one cent for each word over 200.

WILLIAMS-ELIZABETH. daughter of Jediah and Obadiah Barfield, was born in Robinson county, N.C., June 6, 1819. Her husband, Rev. B. H. Williams, was born in the same neighborhood a few years before, and when mere children at school they were sweethearts and plighted their faith either to other.

While but a little girl her father moved to Mississippi, and settled in Marion county, where she grew up to womanhood. In 1837 her husband, having moved to and settled in a distant part of the State, sought her home and claimed her hand, and they were happily married Dec. 26, 1837. During the next year they settled some eight miles from the present town of Winona, where they lived till their death. They raised a large family of sons and daughters, all of whom are highly respected and useful members of the church, and one, Rev. W. W. Williams, a useful member of the North Mississippi Conference.

The writer became acquainted with Sister Williams in 1846, when her husband was but a short time dead, and she was a local preacher, and for the twenty-two years of his ministry no man, whether itinerant or local, did more, if as much, for the church as he did. For that glorious work the church is deeply indebted to Sister Williams, who entered fully into her husband's work, cheering him with her smiles, and caring for their children while he labored for the good of others.

In 1869 her husband died, and the care of the family was thrown upon her, and well did she meet the obligation and discharge the duties thus imposed, leading her children in wisdom's pleasant paths. Her seat was ever filled in the house of God, and his servants found a hearty welcome in her home. Indeed, so kind was her life, that during an ultimate acquaintance of near fifty years, we never heard her speak an unkind word of any person, and in return, everybody spoke only good of her. How true it is that earth's purest ones are often found in the humble walks of life!

Early in the present year Sister Williams' health began to fail, caused by heart trouble; but her family little thought her end so nigh. On April 22 she was rather worse than usual, and the family physician was called in, and prescribed for her. Her daughter proposed sitting up to give the medicine, but she said, "Put it where I can reach it, and I will take it without your stirring up at midnight." She took the medicine soon after. Her daughter, hearing her bring a long breath, called a brother, who arose and went to her bed, but the spirit had flown to join loved ones in fair climes on high.

On April 24 the writer conducted her funeral service, after which we laid her beside loved ones, there to rest in full assurance of a glorious resurrection morn. W. H. HOLMES, Winona, Miss.

PETTUS-MRS. INA PETTUS. wife of Willie Pettus, was born Aug. 26, 1866, and died Aug. 24, 1892, in Yazoo county, Miss. In early life she joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Locust Grove Church, Yazoo county, Miss., and continued a faithful and exemplary member until death. Through months of painful affliction she suffered much, but never complained. She was resigned to God's will, and was ready to depart and be with Christ. All was done which medical science or skill could do to restore her. Loving hands and generous friends administered to her wants and necessities, but to no avail. God took her to himself where "the weary are at rest."

She was a kind and affectionate wife, a loving mother and a good neighbor. She was quiet in disposition, modest in deportment, affectionate and friendly to all; consequently won the hearts of those who knew her. She has left a devoted husband, an affectionate little son and many relatives to mourn their loss; but their loss is her gain. To the bereaved husband and son, so soon bereft of wife and mother, words from a human standpoint seem unavailable; yet there is a hand on high beckoning you over, so that if you will heed it, you will "some sweet day" grasp "her beautiful, beaming face." Oh, how sad is such a separation; but how sweet the reunion will be beyond this world of sin, suffering and death!

Her body was consigned to its last resting place in the graveyard near by Locust Grove Church, in hope of the resurrection and eternal life. Sleep on, Ida; sweetly sleep, till the trump of God shall wake you slumbering dust to life and everlasting bliss.

WILLIAM H. LYON, Holmes county, Miss.

GUSTINE.—In the annals of Jefferson parish no name is more worthy of record than that of Dr. STEPHEN DUNCAN GUSTINE, who died at his late residence, Elk Horn Place, Sept. 7, at 2:30 A. M., aged forty-nine years.

An intelligent and courteous gentleman, of aristocratic birth, none better understood the meaning of the term, "Noblesse oblige." He might have been called the physician of the poor, for he always responded to the call of those to whom others refused to minister, and his hand was ever extended in help to the needy.

Dr. Gustine held membership in the Methodist Church for thirty years, being for the last two years a member of the Carondelet Street Methodist Episcopal Church, New Orleans, there being no Protestant Church in his parish. He did not, however, realize full evidence of pardoned sin until two years ago, when his soul was filled with peace, and when alone with his wife, Mrs. Frank and Gerald Parker administered the sacrament of the Lord's Supper short time afterwards, and took him into the membership of the Carondelet Street Church. During five years of patient suffering his life has been purified and prepared for the abundant rest into which he has entered.

His last hours were full of agonizing suffering, and those who love him, though they grieve his absence from their midst, rejoice in his release from suffering, knowing that he shall arise to be with his Savior.

WYATT.—Miss ROSA MAUD WYATT was born in Oklahoma county, Miss., June 12, 1868. She was the daughter of Matthew and Mrs. Susan Wyatt; was married to Dr. R. R. Wyatt, April 18, 1892; died of typho-malarial fever, Sept. 6, 1892.

She joined the Methodist Church, South, when quite young and lived a devoted mother until death. She was ever interested in all that concerned the church. She was one that did not think it was enough to simply be a member of the church, and felt that she must be "born again," and sought until she obtained this great blessing. Being thoroughly converted, she lived religious, and walked with God. Though young and of a cheerful disposition, she never forgot her obligations to her God. We do not know now, but may know hereafter, why one so young and lovely—why the bride of a few months—why the idol of aged parents, brothers and sisters—why the joy of life of a devoted husband—should be so soon taken and transplanted in the better land. Her last hours of consciousness were spent in talking of her heavenly home and consoling loved ones on her departure, bidding them meet her where parting will be no more. Her aged father being absent, and thinking she might die before he reached her bedside, she said, "Tell pa I will be there to open the golden gate for him when he comes."

Kind, sweet, loving and much loved in life, she was peaceful, grand and happy in death. After a funeral sermon by the writer, who also baptized her in infancy, and married her, we laid her precious remains to rest in the Carr Cemetery at Crawford, Miss., and after the grave was, by loving hands, covered with flowers, we all turned away sorrowful, leaving her loved body to rest until God should bid it rise, while her sweet spirit had gone to God who gave it. Our hearts are sad. Her rest is sweet.

K. A. JONES.

YARBROUGH.—The little daughter of H. Q. and M. A. Yarbrough was born Nov. 23, 1889; died Aug. 12, 1892, aged two years eight months and nineteen days.

ANNE PEARL, one of earth's brightest jewels, has faded from our sight; but it is brighter now in heaven than earth's most brilliant gems. Little Addie was a precious bud just unfolding its beauties, and its sweet fragrance was sweetening the home and loved ones of those who cherished it so fondly. "Oh, how fondly the heart loves the little ones of earth—how sorrowfully it grieves when they are taken from our loving embrace while yet so young, so fair, so tender! But, grieve not, fond parents; though your home is made sadder, heaven is made happier.

May God comfort you in this sad affliction, and may he help us all to so live that we will meet this little angel in the sweet by-and-by.

HER AUNT.

CROSS.—The subject of this sketch, JOHN E. Cross, was born Aug. 25, 1873, and died Aug. 2, 1892.

It has been the writer's privilege to know him intimately for more than two years. I speak the truth when I say he never had an enemy. He was an obedient son, an affectionate brother, and, as a school-boy, he was popular among his companions, faithful to his studies and respectful to his teachers.

Though not a member of the church, yet he was a model of morality and uprightness. During his sickness he said he was not afraid to die. Two members of this family have passed into the great beyond this year.

May the God of our fathers guide and comfort them in all the conflicts and bereavements of life. "Blessed are they that die in the Lord." His teacher, W. N. LEWIS.

BUNCH.—MRS. MARTHA D. BUNCH was born near Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 11, 1841, and died in Van Buren, Ark., on Sept. 3, 1892, while on a visit to her daughter, Mrs. Alice Williams.

I was Sister Bunch's pastor in 1881, 1883 and 1886. I knew her to be a true disciple of our Lord. Her home was the home of preachers. It could be truly said of her that she let her light shine. A true friend, a kind neighbor, a loving wife, an affectionate mother and devoted Christian, of her it can be said, she ordered well her own house. When death's messenger came it was no surprise to her. It found her ready. She died in the triumph of the Christian faith while singing, "O blessed morn, Lord." To her bereaved children I will say: She awaits you on the other shore. Meet her there.

C. T. MUNNOLLAND.

Asthma can't be cured? Oh! yes it can. Dr. Davis' Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Tar will do it. I know it because it gave me relief. Every winter I was troubled with asthma, especially if the weather was damp, suffering severely. I took about six bottles of Davis' Wild Cherry and Tar, and am completely cured. It is the remedy for asthma. CHAS. HARRIS, 308 1/2 Chicago Street, New Orleans, La.

Dr. Davis' Compound Syrup of Wild Cherry and Tar is a sure and speedy cure for coughs, colds, catarrh, bronchitis and consumption, and gives immediate relief in cases of croup and whooping-cough. Try it. One dollar bottles hold two and a half times as much as a 50c. bottle.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO THOSE SENDING MONEY.

Remittances should be made only by money orders, express company orders, registered letters, drafts or checks on New Orleans banks or merchants. Drafts on country banks occasion a loss of from 15 to 25 cents per check. Drafts on country merchants we have no facility for collecting. Checks and drafts, also money orders, should be made payable to D. L. Mitchell, Publisher.

Our price is 20c.

The retailer says the public will not pay it. We say the public will, because they will always pay a fair price for a good article. To show both the trade and the public that we want to give them the best for the least money, we will pay

$10,000.00

Reward

For above information, this offer is open until January 1st, 1893.

WOLFF & RANDOLPH, Philadelphia.

Pik-Ron is the name of a paint which does what no other paint can do. New wood painted with it looks like the natural wood when it is stained and varnished.

PAINTERS AND BUILDERS

will find it profitable to investigate. As paints stores sell it.

OPIUM and Whiskey Habits cured at home with out pain. Book of particulars sent FREE. R. M. WOOLLEY, M.D., Atlanta, Ga. Cases etc. Whisker etc.

Milk Men and Milk Maids must have their tin cans, tin pans, and everything else faultlessly clean, and there is nothing half so good for such cleaning as

Gold Dust Washing Powder.

Housekeepers too have much to clean, and they can't afford to do without GOLD DUST WASHING POWDER, which makes things clean in half the time, and keeps them clean for half the money.

Gold Dust Washing Powder is sold by all grocers.

Less than ONE HALF the price of others

N. K. FAIRBANK & CO., Sole Manufacturers,
CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS, NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
BALTIMORE, NEW ORLEANS, SAN FRANCISCO,
PORTLAND, ME., PORTLAND, ORE., PITTSBURGH AND MILWAUKEE.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR

The Celebrated

CHOCOLAT MENIER

Annual Sales Exceed 33 MILLION Lbs.
Write for Samples. Sent Free. Menier, Union Sq., N. Y.

HARDWOOD AND MARBLEIZED SLATE MANTELS.

TILE HEARTHS, GRATES AND FIRE-PLACE TRIMMINGS.

GEO. M. LEAHY,

Advocate Building, - No. 112 Camp St., New Orleans.

WE The Jury

PROSECUTOR W. C. SHEPARD & SON,
94 CAMP ST., near POYDRAVE,
The Cheapest Crockery, Glass and House-furnish-
ing House in the City.

Be sure and look them up when needing good-
in their line. 500 Dinner, Tea and Chamber Sets
at half price.

For First-Class Photographs

GO TO SIMON'S,

No. 183 Canal St., - - - New Orleans, La.

H. Dudley Coleman Machinery Co., Lim'd,
New Orleans, La.

STEAM ENGINES, BOILERS, MILLS AND MACHINERY,
Pumps, Pipe, Presses, Pulleys, Shafting,
Saw, Sugar and Corn Mills,
Cotton Gins, Feeders and Condensers.

Examine Our Stock. Our Prices Are Very Low.

FOUNDRY, FACTORY & OFFICE, SUPPLIES & SAMPLE STORE
Cor. Magazine and Erie Sts. 9 Perdido St. New Orleans, La.

If readers of this advertisement who wish to purchase goods in our line would mention this paper when writing for information or when ordering goods from us, we could then determine whether the money we pay for advertising in this paper is well invested or not.

H. DUDLEY COLEMAN MACHINERY CO., LIMITED, New Orleans, La.

Latest Styles -- Lowest Prices!

This handsome Parlor Suit is upholstered on solid walnut frames with Imported Marbleized Silk Plush and the seats are all Spring Edge. Colors are Red, Red and Old Gold, Blue and Old Gold or each piece of a different color. For $45 I will sell seven pieces of this suit:—one Sofa, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair and three Reception Chairs. $65 buys the complete suit of ten pieces consisting of two Sofas, one Divan, one Patent Rocker, one Arm Chair, and five Reception Chairs. Same suit covered with Hair Cloth, seven pieces $35 or ten pieces $55. Every other article in my store at proportionately low prices. Bedroom suits, twelve pieces, from $40 up to $100. Dining room suits, eight pieces, from $17 upwards. Complete Kitchen outfits from $20 up. Quality at top—prices at bottom. I have an immense variety of strictly reliable goods and purchasers can depend upon getting the very latest styles. Everything guaranteed to be exactly as represented or money will be promptly refunded.

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE
in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT,

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE
in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30

Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company.

Losses Paid by Chicago Fire, 1871, $3,239,091.

Losses Paid by Boston Fire, 1872, $1,429,720.

All Losses Paid in Cash without Discount, as Soon as Adjusted.

Losses and all matters of business settled by officers and directors in New Orleans without reference to any other office, the same as with local companies.

DIRECTORS IN NEW ORLEANS.

GUSTAF E. WESTFELDT, Chairman. L. O. FALLON, LUAS E. MOORE, O. M. SORIA

CLARENCE F. LOW, Asst. Resident Sec'y. H. V. OGDEN, Resident Secretary.

The Southern Insurance Company

OF NEW ORLEANS.

54 - - - CAMP STREET - - - 54

Paid up Capital, $300,000. Assets, $545,096.10.

FIRE, RIVER AND MARINE INSURANCE.

This company by its conservative, yet liberal, business methods, and the immediate availability of its assets, affords complete security to its assured. Losses promptly adjusted and paid.

ERNEST MILTENBERGER, President. H. GALLY, Vice-President. SCOTT MOSELEY, Secretary.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Frank Roder, J. H. Menze, Joseph Schwartz, F. G. Ernst, T. J. Woodward.

Home Insurance Co., of New Orleans.

No. 78 CAMP STREET.

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1886,	$400,479.08
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1887,	$413,860.76
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1888,	$459,369.50
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1889,	$510,584.54
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1890,	$551,897.83
CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1891,	$600,414.81

Steadily Increasing in Strength and Popularity.

Sollicits Fire and River Business.

Liberal Settlements and Prompt Payments.

Thos. Sefton, Pres't. Capt. J. B. Woods, Vice-Pres't. Jno. G. Byrd, Sec'y

J. B. WOODS, JNO. J. BARR, J. B. LEVERT, W. B. BLOOMFIELD
JOS. BAYLE, ANDREW STEWART, E. BORLAND, W. T. HARRIS
JNO. BARKLEY, CHAS. CHAFFE, P. E. RICE, THOS. SEFTON.

W. B. LYMAN, President. JOSEPH BOWLING, Vice-President. CHAS. E. RICE, Secretary.

Crescent Insurance Com'y.

Incorporated as a Mutual Company in 1849.

Reorganized as a Stock Company in 1860.

Cash Capital, - - - - - $300,000.

Has paid over TEN AND ONE-HALF MILLIONS for losses since 1849. ANNUAL AND TERM POLICIES Issued on Desirable Fire Business.

See our Agents throughout Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas.

Watches, Diamonds,
FINE JEWELRY,
Silver and Silver-Plated Ware,
SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES.
Send for Catalogue.

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO.,

(Established 1817)

119 CANAL ST., New Orleans, La.

THIRTY CENTS

Will get you TWO good papers, THE WAY OF FAITH (weekly), THE SOLARIS (monthly), for THREE MONTHS, 5 sweet songs, and our Liberal Terms to Agents. Address GOSPEL MISSION, Columbia, S. C.

Meet this paper.

"Sanctification,"

By DR. B. CARPENTINE,

Is having a wonderful sale and doing a large amount of good.

Price: Paper, 40 cents; cloth, 80 cents.

For sale by F. D. VAN VALKENBURGH, 106 Camp St., New Orleans.

GRATEFUL-COMFORTING. EPPS'S COCOA.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavored beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of delicate patients are flocking around us ready to attest the value of the food. We make simply with boiling water or milk. Sold only in half-pound tins, by grocers, labeled thus: JAMES EPPS & CO., Homoeopathic Chemists, LONDON, ENGLAND."

W. W. CARRE,

LUMBER MERCHANT

AND MANUFACTURER OF

PLANTATION CABINS, STORES, Etc.,

No. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave.,

NEW BASIN. NEW ORLEANS

Christian Advocate.

VOL. 39.—NO. 41.

NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1892.

WHOLE NO. 1886.

Rev. C. W. CARTER, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. LEWIS, Asst. Editor.

PUBLISHED FOR THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE AND NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH.

ENTERED AT THE POST-OFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

Tennyson.

The death of Alfred Tennyson, on Thursday, Oct. 6, robbed the world of her greatest English poet since Milton.

Tennyson was born at Somersby, Lincolnshire, England, in the year 1809. His father and his maternal grandfather were clergymen of the English Church—men of culture and deep piety. In his mother were blended the homely virtues of the housewife with the refinement of the poetess.

About the time of Tennyson's birth Byron was writing "Childe Harold," Scott was happy in the praises lavished on "Marmion," fresh from the publisher; Shelley was beginning, at early manhood, that mad career in which coarseness of moral sentiment, enthusiasm of scientific investigation, rashness of conduct and exquisite beauty of poetic expression equally characterized him; Wordsworth was writhing under the criticisms of Jeffrey, in the Edinburgh Review; while Pope and Burns had ceased to sing and had gone to rest.

The earlier poems of Tennyson, written before manhood, did not give promise of the greatness afterwards achieved. An expectation of something worthy was stirred, however, in the English mind, and when, in 1842, he published, in two volumes, "English Idylls and Other Poems," critics and readers alike acknowledged that a great genius had arisen in the world of letters. Of the poems in these volumes "Locksley Hall" is probably the most widely popular. All of them are characterized by pure sentiment, and by a finish and completeness of form that could have been secured by only the highest art.

In 1847 appeared "The Princess; A Medley," in blank verse—a poem remarkable for the skill with which the old and the new views of woman's sphere are sifted, the best from each selected, and the true relation of woman to society suggested without dogmatism and with ample faith in the plans of God. Its tone, like that of all his poems, is high, true, and well-sustained.

From that date until the death of the great poet, his pen has been prolific, each volume adding to his already great renown. Of these the "Idylls of the King"—four stories based on the legends of King Arthur—and "In Memoriam"—a collection of elegiac poems in memory of Arthur Henry Hallam—are confessedly the finest. Upon the latter, I think, the fame of Tennyson will finally rest.

Tennyson is the poet of purity; of worth as distinguished from mere position; of the triumph of the good and the true. He deals much, as do all true poets, with the affections, but leaves no stain. Into the mysteries of love he saw farther, and deeper, than Scott, whose verse, though fresh and pure, danced about always on the surface of life; or Byron, whose vision of love was dimmed always by the fogs from the fens of lust; or Wordsworth, his immediate predecessor as laureate poet, who thought much, but saw very little. How true to the highest, best manifestations of love is this, from "Locksley Hall":

"Love took up the harp of Life, and smote on all its chords with might;
Smote the chord of Self, that trembling, passed in music out of sight."

In all literature there is no sweeter love-song than the XXII. Canto of "Maud." It is full of the freshest and strongest passion, is exquisite in finish, has all the abandon of ardent, inexperienced youth—and yet there is not a line of it that is low in sentiment or coarse in suggestion.

Tennyson is the poet for youth. He is full of high enterprise; of noble scorn for the low and false; of a wise optimism that is not blind to existing evil nor threatening danger, but trusts in God and believes in humanity. He sees the shallowness of Society, and its insincerity; but he knows there are depths farther on, and truth there, too. If, moved to passion, he cries out:

"Cursed be the social wants that slay against the strength of youth!
Cursed be the social lies that warp us from the living truth!"

He does not cry as one hopeless, but tells us also:

"This fine old world of ours is but a child
Yet in the go-cart, patience! Give it time
To learn its limbs: there is a hand that guides."

If he pictures the temporary triumph of worthless wealth, and the baseless claims of inherited titles, he hastens to add:

"How'er it be, it seems to me,
'Tis only noble to be good.
Kind words are more than coronets,
And simple faith than Norman blood."

I have spoken of the unfailing faith with which Tennyson looks into the future. This faith is not occasional; simply, like the spiritual cravings and graspings of Moore; nor superficial, like the pious sentimentality of Scott; nor a thing thrust forth in the nature of an apology to the public, like the commonplace moralizings that Byron sometimes throws over his poetic dirt—it is faith in God. It is a faith which pervades the whole man, making him to be patient amidst tumult and wrong, and is to him the pledge and the prophecy of the triumph of right. He felt that he grasped God, and God grasped all things, and so he believed that, with Him, he would, one day, be satisfied.

So he says:

"Yet I doubt not through the ages one increasing purpose runs,
And the thoughts of men are widened with the process of the suns."

Tennyson and Gladstone, so long contemporaries, are England's best gift to the world in this nineteenth century. Each in his place—the one in the field of poetry, the other in the arena of politics—has represented the highest type of manhood. Men of convictions, men of courage, men of noble worth, men of simple and yet sublime faith, they, and others, less, but of the same type, are the real jewels in England's crown. And they were such because, to quote the great poet once more, they both leaned upon

"That God, which ever lives and loves,
One God, one law, one element,
And one far-off divine event,
To which the whole creation moves."

WM. H. LA PRADÉ.

Kentucky Correspondence.

Tidings from the Conferences, as their sessions are held, are desirable, not only as the appointments of the preachers are given and the statistics are stated, but, in regard of pulpits, ministrations and anniversary addresses and discussions of prudential and educational measures, have drawn out exceptionally fine utterances from those who say something when they talk.

For years many of our church Advocates and Methodists have been furnished me in consideration of occasional contributions to their columns, and, in some cases, from special personal regard; and it has been my pleasure throughout this first day of October, 1892, to briefly recount for several of them the salient facts transpiring at the recent session of the Louisville Conference, at Campbellsburg, Ky. From the time Walter C. Harris, F. M. Grace, Mark S. Andrews and others, with myself, entered the Millan in the Fall of 1853, at Marion, Ala. (Bishop Capers presiding), the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE has come to my desk.

Forty years! McTyeire, C. C. Gillespie, J. C. Keener, Parker, Galloway—these, previously to the present editorial supervision and ministrations, were the power that made the NEW ORLEANS ADVOCATE exceptionally editing and attractive as a literary factor along the line of pastoral and evangelic progression. It has gleamed as a jewel upon the fringe of the gulf, sparkling in radiance of beams of thought and sentiment, pure and powerful; and memory of the men and of their editorial ministrations, and reflections of the light of knowledge and wisdom seems as electric touch that brings upon me a shower of stars. Men are of measureless worth! Each, that is worth at all, is not infinite, is conduit to the infinitudes; and through the varied individualities of persons we get glimpses of what is curtailed off by the firmament, lest excess of glory might smite the soul with blindness. Paul said, "And they glorified God in me!"

As the shadows of the afternoon of life creep up to the pathway along which I'm passing, in expectation, the power of the men of the past is cumulative. It is a marvel to me that McTyeire could die. I find him, full length, in my thought, as in a casket—not dead, but asleep.

However, I was to write of the Conference, and not of the years ago! In a dream, as I lay by the side of I.

W. Emerson (God bless him!), last week, at Conference, I was pleading for the readmission of Walter C. Harris into the Conference. The little fellow stood, in look of anxiety—grown old!—and was picture of dependence. As I urged my plea on his behalf, McTyeire entered, as he appeared in the days when his hair was black and his person slender; when his eyes seemed pickets on outpost of inquiry as to men and measures; and I turned to him, and asked: "Do you not remember the contributions of this man to the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE when you were its editor?—and that you told me he was the Chrysostom of the church?"

McTyeire responded affirmatively, and I felt assured. In imagination, now, the picture of little Walter, as he stood by my side, in that dream, before the Conference, as if expectation of his soul hung on my plea, is so clearly defined! The scene shifted, and in my dream I was seated in a buggy drawn by two noble steeds, by the side of McTyeire, who held the lines—of course! We were entering a stream that crossed our road, swollen, but clear—the water from the main channel coming out on either side, as if forming of the creek a liquid crucifix; and as the wheels deepened toward the middle of the stream, and apprehension arose that the current were approaching might be above our depth, McTyeire asked, "Cottrell, don't I drive well?" I awoke, and found Emerson awake. He let me do the talking—of the past! of McTyeire of Harris of Tom Ahernethy, Jr! Oh, the agony and delight of grief and love! Clouds whose shadows darken the earth most densely sheathe the show-ers that most enrich it. The shadows that fall across our pathway are of the trees of paradise! Their houghs are burdened with celestial fruit. In plain language, caskets, shrouds and cemet-eries are a necessity to us, as also are hospitals, asylums, jails and penitentiaries! The retributive law of the government of a Father is one of love—not one of vindictiveness and vengeance! Hallowed be his name!

The above item of the Louisville Conference session, though not in the line of appointed procedure, operated a qualifying influence in the experience of one soul—yes, two—for Emerson's eyes were red, as I remarked them at the breakfast table.

The salient points of Conference action were in respect of educational enterprise and progress. An hour was appointed for special consideration of the recently ordained and inaugurated Conference Training-school at Elkton. After an address from Prof. Gross Alexander, of scholarly excellence, void of any pedantry, Bishop Fitzgerald clinched the cause by a talk, and by a tilt at the pockets of the throng of preachers and people that crowded the aisles and pews and windows and doorways, and pressed up to the pulpit and into the altar, and the profusion of be-quests brought surprise up to a fringe of astonishment! (Is the rhetoric of this simile legitimate?) A scheme for a ministerial life insurance policy, well matured by some of the Louisville brethren, was offered by Dr. J. H. Young, of the Conference; but Morton brought his nose and chin into impa-ment with those lips of precise and powerful protest, utterly demoralizing the forces arrayed in support of the measure. His statement of considerations why there should be no such fetch for providing against possibilities of need was encyclopedic and overwhelming. By a vote of 60 to 57 it went under. Two of the most prominent laymen of Louisville gave their influence on behalf of the measure—Eugene Long and John A. Carter; but, in spite of so considerable a force, and notwithstanding the grace and deference with which Dr. Young presented it, it could not make headway against Morton's merciless bombardment.

There was apprehension that from fermentation of the elements—exper-imental, affectional, conceitful (if there be such a word) and zealous (not to name jealous!)—there might come an effervescence, if not an explosion; but some of us were enough backslid-den, and others sufficiently sanctified, to bring the extremes together, and harmonize through tacit agreement to behave better. The tact and cunning of the Bishop's benevolent soul, and skill of his flexible tongue, mainly wrought the harmonization, if not uni-fication; so that the Conference came in on the home-stretch gloriously. It was the pleasantest I've ever known.

I take no appointment this year. Rest and rove! I'll lecture, preach, write, eat oysters (raw!), and recuperate. Brethren must be patient if I do not come to them as speedily as they desire. JOSEPH B. COTTRELL.

Cloverport, Ky.

Rev. Walter Dunstan.

Rev. Walter Dunstan, a supernumerary of the Louisiana Conference, died in this city, Saturday night, Oct. 8. He had been in a low state of health for several years, being for two years past placed on the supernumerary list on that account. From the Picayune we gather the following information in regard to Bro. Dunstan before he connected himself with our Conference:

Walter Dunstan was born in London forty-one years ago. His father was a prominent railroad man, and it was his intention that his son should follow in his steps. As a preliminary, Walter was put in the shorthand school of the celebrated Isaac Pitman, whence he graduated at the age of fourteen. Instead of entering a rail-road office, he preferred to travel, and in 1874 he came to this country.

Engaged first in the United States navy, Dunstan afterwards became known as an expert court stenog-rapher. About eight years ago he gave up court reporting and began teaching, soon establishing himself as one of the most popular teachers in the South.

The short time Bro. Dunstan was in active service in the ministry showed him capable and industrious; but, his health failing completely, he took a supernumerary relation in hope of re-covering. But this hope was not real-ized. He, however, did not give over in despair. He went back to his former work of teaching shorthand and type-writing. As a teacher, he was eminently successful.

He was buried from Carondelet Church, Monday afternoon. The service was conducted by the brethren of our church in the city according to our ritual, and the remains were laid away in Washington Cemetery to await the resurrection of the just.

Death of the Rev. F. F. Aguilar.

El Evangelista has to-day received and news that will cause sorrow throughout all our Mexican Church. The Rev. F. F. Aguilar, presiding elder of the Puebla district, Central Mexican Conference, died on yesterday. We have not learned the nature of his disease. We only know that he was sick but a few days, and that on yesterday (Sept. 28), at 5 o'clock in the morning, he passed into his eternal rest. He was at his home and with his family in the town of Xochilaca, where he has resided for the past year. One of the first converts to our holy religion, and one of the first ministers, and a true and faithful worker in the Conference, we shall greatly miss him when we meet again.

Rest in peace, our brother, and may the rich consolations of Divine grace be with his afflicted family, and the many others who shall feel this affliction.

We hope some gifted pen will pre-pare an extended notice of the life and labors of this worthy brother for the columns of this paper.—El Evangelista, Sept. 26, 1892.

J. M. WEEMS.

Brookhaven, Miss.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. H. M. Young, P. C., Booneville, Miss., Oct. 1: "We have closed our protracted meetings on the Black-land circuit with good results. We have had 60 conversions and 67 accessions to the church."

Rev. R. M. Blocker, Rayne, La., Oct. 3: "Since writing up the Rayne meeting I held service last night, and the power of God was remarkably manifest. Two men professed conversion, and the church revived; a re-freshing from the presence of the Lord. The weather is fine, and the farmers are busy harvesting their rice. The health of the country is generally good."

Rev. R. M. Blocker, Rayne, La., Sept. 30: "We have just closed a meeting at this place of nearly two weeks. The Lord gave us glorious victories, and saved souls. Six professed conversion, and 8 joined the church. Bro. H. Armstrong assisted us the three last days, preaching to the satisfaction of all. I shall preach again in Rayne next Sunday night, and may continue the meeting. Please pray for us."

Rev. M. J. Miller, China Grove circuit, Mississippi Conference, Oct. 1: "Our third Quarterly Conference was held Sept. 23. Our efficient presiding elder was with us, and preached a very excellent sermon on the subject of a well-rounded, symmetrical Christian character. In it was much food for thought. We had a very pleasant Quarterly Conference after a nice and plentiful dinner. I have held another meeting since I reported. We had a good meeting. The church revived. There is a great cry of 'hard times' in this country. Can't see the end yet! We will do the best we can."

Rev. J. A. Leech, Louisville circuit, North Mississippi Conference, Oct. 8: "We closed our last meeting on this work last night. This is my fifth year on this work, and has been the best of the five. Have held four revival meet-ings, resulting in 66 accessions to our church. Baptized 11 children (with more to follow). We had our presid-ing elder with us at Louisville, who gave us two excellent sermons. Were not able to get any other ministerial help; but the Lord and good people stood by us, and 22 were added to our church here. The Lord he praised!"

Rev. F. P. Spencer, Shannon, Miss., Oct. 1: "We have just closed a most profitable meeting at this place. Bro. J. A. Bowen, of Aberdeen, was with us in great power. His preaching was clear, systematic, and accompanied with the power and demonstration of the Spirit. We have had 15 conver-sions, the church greatly revived, and the whole town powerfully awakened. A religious atmosphere pervades the entire community. For which, with grateful hearts, we thank God, take courage, and press onward in the great work. Bros. Tumlin, of Verona, and Blanton, of Nettleton, were also in attendance, and did us good service."

W. N. Lewis, Kilmichael, Miss., Sept. 26: "On Sunday, Sept. 11, our pastor, assisted by Bro. D. Fly, began a series of services at this place, which continued eight days. After the first day the meeting was moved to the Normal Hall. Large crowds were in attendance, and the interest increased till the very last service. The preach-ing was of the good old kind—plain, practical, pungent. There were many conversions, and 28 accessions to the various churches—25 to the Methodist Church. Of this number, 24 are pupils of our normal school. We like Bro. Jones, and Bro. Fly made many friends. It was a sight long to be re-membered—all denominations working together in perfect harmony."

Rev. R. O. Brown, Courtland circuit, Oct. 4: "This is my first report from Courtland; so will give a brief synop-sis of the work for the year. Have purchased a parsonage at a cost of $450—five good rooms, out-house for serv-ant, barn, cow-house, huggy shelter, garden, orchard, and pasture—all worth, at least, $800, situated in the town of Courtland. Have furnished the house partially at a cost of $115. Have completed one church; cost about $300; worth about $500. Have repaired old 'Shiloh,' and re-established ap-pointment there. Have had 35 addi-tions. Held six meetings, and, al-though the 'Macedonian cry' was echoed far and wide, had help only at two. We are indebted to Bro. Wool-lard for help at Pope's station, and Bro. Jones, a local preacher, for as-sistance at Chapel Hill. Long will these brethren be remembered for their efficient work. Courtland circuit is on the up-grade, spiritually. Have a good, kind people to serve, and have received nothing but kindness and thoughtful care at their hands this year. The preacher read out for Courtland at next Conference may expect a pleasant year. We have good Sunday-schools and prayer meetings at all the appointments except one. The work is large—six appointments— and, owing to continued bad health, I have not been able to do as much as should have been done, but have only missed one appointment this year. Fin-ances somewhat behind, but hope to be up by Conference. I am thankful to God for the manifestation of his presence, and for his kind providence that hath been about us. My health is improving. Will have one ap-plicant for 'admission on trial' at Con-ference."

Rev. C. McDonald, P. E., Forest, Miss., Oct. 1: "On Sept. 17 and 18 we held the third quarterly meeting for Westville circuit at Pleasant Grove, in Covington county. We had a pleasant and good meeting. Bro. Barr is doing a good work here. This is where I joined the church, and from which I was recommended to the Quarterly Conference for license to preach thirty-five years ago. Of course, I feel partial toward this church and people. A few of the old landmarks remain. Thos. Stubbs and wife, King and Ed-ward Bird, Mrs. Powell, Mrs. Lnoas, and a few others. Since my day there the Calhouns have nearly taken the country, and a blessed take it is. The spiritual condition of this church is always good, and it meets every de-mand made of them. I visited the old homestead where I was reared from two to fifteen years of age. It is about seven miles south of the church. Took a drink of water from the spring with a gourd which reminded me of my boyhood days. When I was a boy there were in this section wild deer, turkey, wolves, and a good range for the stock. Now it is becoming thickly settled, and the pine woods growing up in bushes. I went to see the big open cave and the double pine. I will describe it. It is of the long-leaf variety. Two pines, standing about four feet apart, united together in a perfect union some fifteen or twenty feet above the ground. Above the union the one body is smooth and straight. The two at the ground would measure in diam-eter, one eighteen, and the other twenty inches, and above the junction the body is, at least, twenty inches in diameter. The height of the tree is about seventy or eighty feet. About forty-five years ago my father had an Indian named Jim, who only had one eye, splitting rails, and he clipped the larger one and belted the smaller one nearly around. Since then the fire, in burning the resin, has oozed the one places, and has marred the beauty of the tree, but it still lives. It is about five and one-half miles from Williams-burg, on the south side, and in a few feet of the Jonesville road, where every passer-by can see this rare orriloity."

NOTES FROM OUR JACKSON OFFICE.

Adam forced an entrance into the grave; Jesus Christ made a passage through it.—Selected.

Bishop Galloway has returned to Jackson for a few days' rest, after his first series of Conferences.

It took two years to make the first convert to Christianity in Corea, but during the next four years more than one hundred were added to the church.

The Memphis Conference is to have an Advocate called The Memphis Christian Advocate and Western Methodist. Rev. J. W. Boswell, D. D., presiding elder of the Helly Springs district, North Mississippi Conference, has been elected editor and business manager.

News has just reached us of the death of Rev. E. Byron O'Quin, a very promising young minister from the Martin circuit. He had just graduated from Greensboro, Ala., and would have applied for admission into the Mississippi Conference in December. We have heard none of the particulars.

From a private communication we learn that Port Gibson Female College has opened well. "The college is well organized in all departments, and teachers and pupils have entered upon the session to do thorough work in all branches. . . . There is room for a few more girls." Parents in Southwest Mississippi and Eastern Louisiana will find this the very place for their girls.

We spent Sunday, Oct. 2, with Bro. D. C. Langford at New Hope, Deasonville, and Ellison's Chapel (only one church, however), and enjoyed the hospitality of those good people very much. We were much pained to learn of the death of Bro. Prentiss Swayze, one of the staunchest men on the work. He was buried on the first. Bro. Swayze was forty-two years of age, and will be greatly missed!

We understood, while passing through Meridian the other day, that Bro. Pearson was having a fine meet-ing there. The whole city had been canvassed from center to circumference by the evangelical churches, and he found everything ripe for a revival. He will be in Jackson, Oct. 16. Bro. Jones is having preparatory services in West Jackson, and the churches in East Jackson are now engaged in union prayer meetings. All are look-ing and praying for a gracious revival.

A WOMAN'S WISH.

Would I were lying in a field of clover,
Of clover cool and soft, and soft and sweet,
With daisy clouds in deep skies hanging over,
And scented silence at my head and feet.

Just for one hour to slip the leash of worry
In eager haste from thought's impatient neck,
And watch life's curtains, in its heedless hurry,
Disdaining wisdom's whistles, duty's beck.

Ah, it were sweet where clover clumps are meeting,
And daisies hiding, so to hide and rest;
No sound except my own heart's steady beating,
Rocking itself to sleep within my breast.

Just to lie there, filled with the deeper breathing
That comes of listening to a tree bird's song;
Our souls require at times this full unbreathing
—All words will rust if scabbard-kept too long.

And I am tired, so tired of life's duty,
So tired of all my tired hands and feet;
I yearn, I yearn for some of life's tree beauty,
Its loose beads with no straight string running through.

Ay, laugh, if laugh you will, at my crude speech,
But women sometimes die of such a greed,
Die for the small joys held beyond their reach;
And the assurance they have all they need.

—Selected.

Cane River Circuit.

It seems to be a general belief that this circuit is among heathens—a missionary land. Perhaps it is. It's just owing to what the term "heathen" signifies. But I would like to unveil the eyes of a few, and show them the condition of the white citizens of this river country. I would have them dismiss the idea that we were born and reared in the woods and cane brakes, with no associates save the wild animals, or nature in its crude state. We were born of civilized parents in civilized lands, and if we have not all a finished education, we have lived among educated people long enough to know and appreciate education and refinement. True—alas! too true!—we, as a people, are greatly lacking in morality; but we would like to be improving in that direction, and we want good men to help us—men in the prime of their intellect, preachers of fair education and experience, who practice their teachings in their daily walk.

Is it right for Conference to send inexperienced men to practice upon the ears and hearts of people who so greatly need the quickening power of God's grace to aid them in their struggles upward?—who are starving, as it were, for light to guide them heavenward? Wouldn't it be a better plan to send the new workmen into old fields, where the labor has been commenced, and where they will find "good old fathers and mothers of Israel" standing firmly in the faith, ready to give them help and encouragement?—and to send the well-read men of experience—those in the prime of vigorous manhood—into the new fields, where the wickedness of the young is backed by the immorality of the aged? Is it not likely that the last-named workman would best understand how to administer the words of light and life to the souls in a new field? I ask that the subject be carefully and prayerfully considered. Why are the preachers of the broadest education, the ablest preachers, sent to the best paying circuits or districts? Surely it can not be that the broader a man's education the more money it requires to support him. Is it not the duty of Conference to send preachers to where they can accomplish the best results, the most good for Christ's kingdom? And is the amount of good that can be accomplished in any one place measured by the amount of money in that place?

Perhaps it will be said: "The better the workman the more he is worth—the better price he can command; and the ablest preachers are sent to the wealthiest places in order to induce others to better prepare themselves for work."

Now, is it God's will that men be lured, bribed by the glitter of silver and gold to prepare themselves for his work? Is there no higher motive to which to appeal? Is it not enough that men be inspired by a divine love of the work, a love of the truth, a desire to do right for right's sake, a desire to save souls, and the hope of, obtaining as a reward the crown of life eternal? Has the world, indeed, reached such a "Golden Age" that men must be lured by the dink and sparkle of gold to do right, to follow Christ?

"But," you say, "preachers of the Word must live physically as well as spiritually, and they can not live without a reasonable amount of money."

Certainly, no one will deny a truth so evident. But no able preacher can live on just as little as one who is young and weak to the cause.

How is the money collected for home missions appropriated? I should think it would be a good investment for, at least, a part of it to be used in helping to pay the laborers in the newly planted vineyards, where the vines are still few in number and weak to their returns for care bestowed upon them.

This circuit on Cane river is one of the "newly planted vineyards." The members of its churches are but few, and the most of them are new-comers to this country. A few have established their homes here. Others are merely renters, contemplating a final settlement in this fair land. But they are, as a general thing, people of refined tastes. They are making efforts to build up the country; to get it settled by good, honest, refined people; to organize schools and churches, and to build houses for the use of these organizations. We want to hear good sermons, and, though we are yet scarcely able to support our preacher and ourselves, we are ready and willing to do what we can cheerfully. We are a hearty, whole souled people, and we think our country is too beautiful and too fertile for an industrious man to starve in.

Pray for us, that our moral and spiritual nature may grow broader and deeper by a divine revelation of God's goodness to us—by a new love shed abroad in our hearts.

A MEMBER.

Mississippi College Opening.

Mississippi College has opened, and its friends, devoutly thankful for this auspicious beginning of its great work, are being congratulated on all sides. The opening was more gratifying than the most enthusiastic friend of the college was justified in expecting. On the morning of the opening more than one hundred boys were on the grounds, and the work of matriculating the students will show by next Monday morning, probably, not less than one hundred and fifteen names enrolled. The attendance of visitors from the city, showed the high estimates placed by the citizens of Jackson upon the institution located in their midst; the number of preachers and prominent laymen from different parts of the State gave evidence of the interest felt by Mississippi Methodists in their school; and the throng of students, accompanied, in many cases, by parents or guardians, bore testimony to the confidence that our people have in the merit of the new college: all combined to give promise of a splendid and blessed future.

Everything was propitious—the day was fair, the building end grounds were beautiful, the members of the Board of Trustees looked proud; Dr. Murreh was complacent, Major Millsaps gracious, and the agent happy; the speeches were able, the audience appreciative, and everybody, from the "grand marshal," and other members of the faculty to Jake, the accommodating and industrious janitor, surrendered to the enjoyment of the happy day.

May God bless Millsaps College, and make it a center of loyalty to all that is good and an inspiration to grand achievement and high and holy life! How tenderly has it touched the heart of our people, and how strongly has it linked to itself the different parts of our State! The handsome Bible speaks of a consecrated woman in Coldwater, the English lecture-room tells of generous Natchez, the president's desk greets us in the name of Como, and the library will call to mind Carrollton and Vicksburg, while every chair end table and desk and bench and book will speak of the love of our people for their college.

Now for the endowment fund. This most important element of the success of the college must not be neglected. Proud as we may be of the success of the great enterprise, we must not lose sight of the fact that the one essential element of its usefulness and its very existence is this one hundred thousand dollar endowment fund. The college may be thronged with students and yet the institution languish unless this one condition of its success is supplied. We have notes enough to pay the deficit; but unless the notes are paid, the deficit can not be met.

These notes are being paid, but all too slowly. Let our people deny themselves, if necessary, rather than cripple in its very inception this important enterprise. These notes are nearly all for small amounts and could be paid without hurt, while a failure to pay them will imperil the success of the college.

I appeal to the friends of Christian education and to the Methodists of Mississippi in behalf of this sacred claim.

A. F. WATKINS.

Announcement.

MEMPHIS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE.

In accordance with the action of the Memphis Conference of the M. E. Church, South, at its last annual session, the Committee of Publication, appointed by that body, have made very satisfactory arrangements for the publication of a Conference paper in the city of Memphis, to be called the Memphis Christian Advocate and Western Methodist. In fact, the paper will be a revival of the official organ of the church so long known among us, first as the Memphis Christian Advocate, and later as the Western Methodist. As it was with the paper for many years, so it will be hereafter—all pesonary responsibility will be borne by the persons having charge of the publication, with the understanding that in return the ministry and membership of the church in our bonds will extend to the paper a liberal patronage. Surely by zealous, active and faithful effort in all our charges throughout the Memphis Conference, with its 50,000 members, we may calculate upon a subscription list quite sufficient to meet expenses. Besides, it is reasonable to expect many subscribers from other Conferences, adjacent to us—that is, to such an extent as will be consistent with their official relations to other church papers.

The Memphis Conference, by a unanimous vote, authorized and provided for the publication of the paper, and surely will stand by it, because needing it as an official local organ, true alike to all home interests and to the interests of the connection.

The Committee of Publication, being fully authorized and empowered, have, after careful inquiry and deliberation, elected Rev. J. W. Boswell, D. D., of the North Mississippi Conference, editor and business manager, and he will associate with himself in due time a worthy layman whose service will be devoted to the business management of the paper. We are assured that Dr. Boswell's special gifts and acquirements, his editorial experience and his reputation throughout the church, especially in Tennessee, Kentucky, Mississippi and Arkansas, indicate that a wise and happy choice has been made by the committee.

It is intended that the Memphis Christian Advocate shall, the subscription price considered, compare favorably with our other church papers. It will be mailed to subscribers at $1.50 a year—to preachers, $1.

A specimen number will be issued about the first of November. There will be a large edition for free distribution through pastors and others to whom packages will be sent by mail. The regular weekly issue will begin with January. Now, without delay, let pastors and others go to work for the success of the paper.

Address all letters and remittances for the editor and business manager to Rev. J. W. Boswell, D. D., Memphis, Tenn.
R. H. MAHON, Chair'n.
H. B. JOHNSTON, Sec.

To Rev. T. C. War, M. D.

I have no "contention" with the A. and M. College. My fight was made, on card-playing on the college campus and among some of the professors. That was the question. The treatment of Bro. Randolph was by way of illustration. I am glad the trustees put a stop to the card-playing, and glad, too, that the information furnished me as to the treatment of Bro. Randolph was not correct. I have never uttered a word or written a line against the college. I am animated on things that hurt the college, not on the college. The A. and M. College is doing a great work in a special field. It has no competition in this State.

My "contention" and the contention of Bro. Randolph was "chilly" against the "blind tigers" of Starkville—not against the town, but against the evils in the town. Starkville is a good town, and it would be far better if these "blind tigers" were out of it.

Bro. Randolph has shown himself to be one of the trust and best friends the college and the town has ever had. Some people, like the Gadarenes, when they suffered the loss of a few dimes on the sale of whiskey wanted Bro. Randolph to depart out of their coast. They would imperil the salvation of every young man in Mississippi for the sake of a little money.

My dear friend, your own grand jury reported that "the law was wantonly and persistently violated in the sale of whiskey, and that they were unable to reach the evil by indictment." What an appalling statement to be made in a civilized community, in a Christian town like Starkville, and right under the shadow of a State college! If the Starkville nest is fouled, it was fouled by your own grand jury, not by me, nor by Bro. Randolph. The man who stir up the people to put away this evil, to drive away from you these blind tigers, where "the law is wantonly and persistently violated," is a true friend, whatever some of your people may think of him. He is doing the town, the college, and the boys of Mississippi a service. The Christian people of Mississippi, of all denominations, are glad that Bro. Randolph has taken this matter in hand. They do not want their sons ruined by drunkenness to fill the coffers of a few "blind-tiger" men in Starkville.

My dear friend, do not try to cover up the real points at issue; do not divert attention from the "chilly" point of "contention." Join with me and with Bro. Randolph in stopping at the college and in putting out of the town things—moral evils—that ruin and damn the boys of Mississippi. In this way we will do the A. and M. College the greatest possible service.

Now, my friend, let me say again that I have never said a word or written a line against the A. and M. College, nor against the town of Starkville. Except her "blind tigers," Starkville is one of the best towns I know of in the State. They are blotches and blurs on her fair fame. Your friend, GILDEROX.

Some Solution of a Great Problem.

Not long since I had the pleasure of helping Bro. J. W. Chambers in a protracted meeting at the neat little factory town of Stonewall, on the M. and O. railway, three miles south of Enterprise. My "headquarters" during those days and nights was at the delightful home of Mr. George D. Case. Through his many courtesies and those of Bro. Wesley Zachry, I learned somewhat of the general management and workings of this wide-awake company.

The town has a beautiful site on rolling land, sloping toward the railroad. Adorned with nice shade trees and beautifully carpeted with grass, it presents a pleasing picture to the eye. The large and growing factory, which gives employment to about 300 people, is the center of business attraction. All its appointments are of new and improved style. Everything that can be done to secure the comfort, health and security of the operatives seems here the rule. Within the grounds is a well-stocked and ably-tended store. Everything is worked systematically. In "the office" Supt. Wainwright and his right-hand man, G. D. Case, have all modern appliances needful for expeditious and accurate work. Telegraph wires and type-writers at their elbows put them in easy touch with the world. The company owns all the land and houses in the town, takes pride in keeping up appearances, and provides many of the most solid conditions for the welfare of their tenants and employees. Wells of nice water abound on the streets, as well as on back galleries. The appearance and conduct of those who work in the factory was very pleasing to a stranger. Peace, quietness and general contentment seem to prevail. Of course, no intoxicating liquor is sold on the ground. But that which conduces most to the sweet orderliness of the place is the church life there throbbing. Much might be said in praise of our Baptist brethren, who, through liberal aid of "the company," have built a handsome house of worship, gathered a large membership, and maintain preaching once a month. I know more of the work our Methodists are doing. Through the abounding energy and push of Bro. Chambers, somewhat aided by the Church Extension Board, they have been able to build a beautiful and well furnished church. Here the people delight to gather and worship, listen, praise and pray. They have Sunday-school and weekly prayer meeting, also an Epworth League in regular operation, and preaching three or four times a month. Their pastor is as diligent in visiting the sick and cheering the sorrowing as if they were millionaires.

Here, then, we have some solution of the great problem of labor and capital. Common sense and justice by employers, moral character, educed by religion among the workmen, brings much of peace and prosperity. Let these things continue and increase; then shall "righteousness break forth as the light" among all our people, and "our own God shall bless us" more abundantly.

J. P. DRAKE.

Indian Mission.

BY REV. W. W. CAMMACK.

The Lord is honoring and blessing our work among the Choctaws. We have succeeded far beyond our expectations. We now have fifteen members—seven at Tubby Rock and eight at Tallahulak. The first convert at the latter place was under the ministry of Rev. W. J. Dawson, of the Linwood circuit. We are under many obligations to him and his people at Linwood for help in more than one way. We have started two Indian churches—one in Winston, the other in Kemper county. We have part of the number on the ground at each place, and about $50 in cash and subscription to build these houses. All of this (except one dollar given by a good lady living at New Prospect, North Mississippi) has been given by the people living in the communities where these churches are to be built. This shows the interest the people at home are taking in our work, and I am glad to say that these Indians are doing their part toward building these houses. I mean those who are directly interested. When they come into the church they go to work at once by praying, singing and talking to others. They also begin at once to prepare a place for worship by building bush arbors, and then they begin hewing out timbers and splitting boards with the view of building houses of worship. They will make any reasonable sacrifice to attend preaching. Last week six young Indians walked forty miles to one of my appointments. They "show their faith by their works." Joining the church and being baptized means something with them. As an example of this, last Sunday I had several applicants for baptism, and just before services began one of them, a man about forty-five or fifty years old, called me to one side, and, through an interpreter, told me that he thought he ought not to be baptized on account of financial embarrassment; said that he owed some money, and did not think he could pay it. He then asked my opinion about it. I was put to it to know just how to answer him. I asked him if he wanted to cheat the man whom he owed. He said, No. I then asked him if he wanted to pay him, and if he would do all he possibly could to pay him. He said, Yes. I then told him to come along and be baptized, and try to live right, and ask the Lord to help him pay his debts. This satisfied him, and he said nothing more about it, and was baptized.

Indian Mission.

I received a card from Bro. Cammack this evening (Sept. 30), stating that he had received four more members, making fifteen to date, and that he or they were starting another church-house; had some lumber already on the ground. Oh, how I rejoice at every indication of success! May God bless Bro. Cammack in his work, and bless and save the Indian! And as the work goes on, let brethren and sisters send on the money necessary to foot the bills.

A. D. MILLER.

Barlow, Miss.

Columbus Day.

PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOR.

Whereas, the President of the United States, by authority of a joint resolution of Congress, has appointed Friday, Oct. 21, A. D. 1892, the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus as a national holiday; and, whereas, it is meet and proper that it be celebrated with exercises expressive of honor to the bold and daring discoverer, and commemorative of the four centuries of American life and marvelous progress.

Now, therefore, I, Murphy J. Foster, Governor of the State of Louisiana, do recommend Friday, Oct. 21, A. D. 1892, as a general holiday, and suggest that appropriate historical lectures be delivered in every school-house throughout the State, that the patriotism and heroism of the fathers may be kept alive in the hearts of the children, and that services be held in the various churches in acknowledgment of the divine blessings which have been so bounteously bestowed on the New World.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the State to be affixed, at the City of Baton Rouge, on this 22nd day of September, A. D. 1892, and of independence the one hundred and seventeenth.

MURPHY J. FOSTER,

Governor of Louisiana.

By the Governor:

GEORGE SPENCER,

Assistant Secretary of State.

Proclamation by Gov. Stone.

Whereas, the Congress of the United States has designated Friday, the 21st day of October, 1892, as the four hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus, and the President having issued his proclamation declaring that day a national holiday and recommending that it be fittingly celebrated as such, now, therefore, I, J. M. Stone, Governor of the State of Mississippi, do recommend that Friday, Oct. 21, 1892, be observed as a general holiday throughout the State, and earnestly request that the people lay aside their usual avocations and unite in a patriotic celebration.

I urge especially that in all the schools of the State, both public and private, appropriate exercises be held; that the youths of the State may be impressed with the grand and beneficial results flowing from the discovery of America, and in our accustomed places of divine worship let us all with grateful hearts render praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for his manifold blessings.

In testimony whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the great seal of the State to be affixed.

Done at Jackson, this 5th day of October, A. D. 1892.

J. M. STONE.

By the Governor:

GEORGE M. GOVAN,

Secretary of State.

Archdeacon Farrar deprecates the fact that sometimes at the splendid tables of the wealthy the good old simple, beautiful English practice of saying grace before meat is falling into neglect. This good old practice and likewise the custom of having family prayers are falling into quite general neglect in this country. For years there has been complaint that the family altar no longer holds its place in Christian households. Many pastors would probably be astonished to learn how few families in their not worth while to endeavor to revive it.—Middle Continent.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON.—Oct. 16, 1892.

By REV. WM. H. LA PRAD, D.D.

Peter's Vision.

Acts x, 1-20.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons." (Acts x, 34.)

About forty miles north of Joppa, on the Mediterranean seacoast, Herod the Great built a city which, in honor of Augustus Caesar, he called Caesarea. Afterwards it became the official residence of the governor, and was garrisoned by soldiers from Italy. Cornelius was an officer commanding (as his title, "centurion," indicated) a company of one hundred men. He was, doubtless, an Italian, probably a Roman.

Vers. 1, 2. There is no evidence that Cornelius had become a proselyte to Judaism; it is certain, however, from the narrative that he had learned from the Jews, to worship Jehovah, the only one and true God, to whom only he offered prayer. The word "devout" means sincerely and deeply religious. Almsgiving was an expression both of earnest piety, so far as his knowledge of God reached, and of broad sympathy with the people unusual with a Roman officer.

Vers. 3. "Light is shown for the righteous." Cornelius was "living up to his light," and was, therefore, ready for greater revelations. God is found by the sincere seeker. From verse 30 we learn that Cornelius had been fasting, and that he was praying in his own house when the angel appeared to him.

Vers. 4. The term "Lord" here simply indicates a superior. His worship, because sincere, was accepted; his almsgiving, because the love of his heart went with his gifts, was approved and honored. These things showed that he was ready for more truth.

Vers. 5, 6. Peter lingered at Joppa after the restoration of Dorcas to life. The angel was not commissioned to preach the gospel, but simply to show where the preacher could be found. Peter did not yet comprehend the Lord's will sufficiently to go without being sent for.

Vers. 7, 8. The earnestness of Cornelius, as a true, devout man, is shown in the fact that "all his house" feared God, and that "a devout soldier" waited on him, as well as by his prayers and almsgiving. His servants were in sympathy with him also. His promptness in obedience was soldierly; it showed, also, his purpose to do right.

Vers. 9, 10. As Saul of Tarsus and Ananias were each prepared for the other by revelation from Christ, so Cornelius and Peter. As Cornelius was at prayer when the angel came to him, so Peter, after his prayer, fell into the trance. A Syrian house-top was flat, cool, retired—a good place for prayer and meditation.

Vers. 11, 12. Cornelius actually saw the angel, and conversed with him; Peter seemed to see the great sheet and its contents. Among the Jews some beasts, and birds, and insects were held to be ceremonially clean, others unclean; both kinds were seen now, mixed indiscriminately, in the great sheet.

Vers. 13. Peter, a hungry man, was invited to kill and eat, without reference to the law concerning unclean things. So he understood, as his reply shows.

Vers. 14. He had kept the Jewish law touching meats. His Jewish conscience, not yet fully delivered from bondage to the merely ceremonial law, would not permit freedom in this matter. So he replied, "Not so."

Vers. 14, 15. As God had made the law of meats, so, now that the object of Jewish separation had been accomplished in the coming of Christ, he revoked that law. National separation was the old plan and purpose; the brotherhood of man the new doctrine. In Christ Jesus, the "Son of Man," all peoples should now come together, both Jew and Gentile. Peter did not yet understand, but he saw it later on. Three times the invitation was given, that the teaching might be clear, emphatic, deeply impressed.

Vers. 17, 18. The appearance of the messengers from Cornelius just at this juncture was of God's purpose; he had prepared Peter for them, so that he would understand that between the vision and their coming there was some close relation, afterward to be disclosed.

Vers. 19, 20. Although the messengers had called for him, Peter, who was still on the house top, had not been informed of it. As the three men were Gentiles, sent by a Roman, Peter would probably have refused to go with them but for the command of the Spirit. Now he could not fail to understand that God had some great purpose in view, connected with his wonderful vision.

Our next lesson reveals that purpose to us, as the incidents of it revealed to Peter—that the Gentiles also were to find salvation in Christ Jesus.

Missionary Department.

CONDUCTED BY REV. J. P. DRAKE.

Two Thrilling Things.

First we may note, in the liberal extracts from the October issue of our Missionary Reporter, which we subjoin, that the mission work entered by our church is in healthful operation. Through other like reports, too many to print here, we gather that our faithful band of heroes on the frontier are accomplishing great and good things for the Master's cause. Doors are opening on every side, and the heathen hand is seen beckoning us over the sea and across the border. There has never been a time in our history when all things seemed so favorable—the harvest fields so ripe for the sickle of Truth. The accounts of revival fire in Japan make "our hearts burn within us," to know that we have even a small share (indirectly) in this blessed awakening. A new Conference there organized is reported to us, by the Bishop on the ground, as in a most hopeful condition. The noble spouse of our ascended Lambuth brushes away the blinding tears of bereavement to go forward in the work which was his consuming passion living and dying.

Mrs. Bettie Hughes, just recovered from serious sickness, which brought her home for a while, goes back to China, rejoicing in the privilege of telling "the story of Jesus and his love." She is joined by seven other consecrated women bent on the same blessed errand of mercy. In these heathen lands the little heaven is beginning to work. But, oh! how many souls are dying while waiting for the light of life, and how like a cruel sting it must be to those devoted men at the front to know how little we are doing to raise the means for their sustenance, or to send them the reinforcements they so sorely need!

Here comes in the second startling fact: Our missionary collections for this year are fearfully behind. Witness what Dr. John, our Secretary, says, as quoted below. Sundry the latest statement of our Treasurer at Nashville. Disbursements far in excess of receipts. Indeed, the latter hardly go beyond $5,000 for the month of August. And this from a million and a quarter of Southern Methodist Brethren, how can we either eat or sleep with such agonizing stars in the face? Let us wake to effort! Despite the cry of "hard times" our people are harnessed up the Lord's money, or turning it into a stupefying smoke, or chewing and spewing it out of their mouths (some times led on by the preacher himself), or they are consuming it on some other needless self-indulgence. What a shame! Let preachers and people awake, and no longer plead poverty to him who hath given us so freely and richly all things to enjoy. Now is the time for a mighty and persistent effort. God will give a right result.

An Appeal to Every Pastor.

The treasurer of one of our leading Annual Conferences recently announced in the Conference organ that through three quarters of the year were passed only about one-tenth of the assessment for foreign missions had been paid. Consequently, during the last quarter 90 per cent. of the assessment must be raised, or the Conference will report a heavy deficit.

This Conference is not alone. The books of the General Treasurer show that one of our strongest Conferences has reported only two per cent. of its assessment, and has now only about three months in which to bring up nearly its entire assessment. Another has reported four per cent., another seven, several less than twelve. Not one Conference in our connection, up to present date, has paid twenty-five per cent. on its assessment for foreign missions.

The books of the treasurer also show that since April 1 to the present date the collections for foreign missions are less by $9,082 than during the same months of 1891.

These facts show that the mission work of our church is imperiled. The chief-burden of raising the collections has been crowded into the last few weeks or months of the present Conference year. How many contingencies may interfere with the collections during the last quarter? The sickness of the pastor and his family, a heavy rain or snow storm, may defeat his plans, and he will report a deficit at Conference.

The Secretaries are endeavoring by special appeal to clear away the debt; but should the regular collections decline, their efforts to that extent will be defeated. May we not ask, in view of these facts, that each pastor will make a special effort to collect every dollar of his assessment? Should he report an excess, it will hasten the time when our debt shall be removed and the way opened for the re-enforcement of our mission fields. Men are waiting to "send." Let the church be ready to "send."

Dr. Pentecost in India.

Dr. Pentecost writes home almost in a strain of exaltation over the success of missions in India. "I am impatient to tell you," he writes, "of some of the direct fruits of labor which are being gathered in no small sheaves and in no small quantities from every part of the mission field. Even if there were nothing to report besides those results which can be tabulated and printed in the missionary reports, the survey would be gratifying; but these are only the smallest of the results. They bear no more relation to the real fruits of missions than do the plumed advertisements of the merchant to his wares. One has to be on the field to see the native converts and compare them with the native still in heathenism to understand what the gospel is doing. One needs to stand with the missionaries in the hazards, in the midst of their native Christian congregations on a Sunday, to visit the native Christian home, to enter into the Christian schools, to converse with the native Christians themselves, to begin to know what the gospel is doing in this land. What figures can tell or show of all this? Almost nothing. Then in surveying this living picture one must needs see it with the dark, black, background of the awful heathenism against which the living Christian picture is set, to understand yet more fully what it all means. All this I have seen, have studied, have rejoiced over, have fairly laughed and cried over for joy and gladness. It is believed confidently," he adds, "that there will have been added to the roll of converts this year in India between twenty-five and forty thousand souls. Besides, it is well known that where one heathen is being baptized there are twenty knocking at the door of the churches asking for baptism. Indeed, the number of heathen offering themselves for baptism is so great, and the number actually being baptized is so great, that missionaries themselves are becoming greatly alarmed; so that the lament over 'so few baptisms' is being changed into a warning cry of danger growing out of the fact of 'too many baptisms and too hasty baptisms.'"—Free Church Monthly.

A Syrian convert was urged by his employer to work on Sunday, but he declined. "But," said the master, "does not your Bible say that if a man has an ox or an ass that falls into a pit on the Sabbath day, he may pull him out?" "Yes," answered the convert, "but if the ass had the habit of falling into the same pit every Sabbath day, then the man should either fill up the pit or sell the ass."—Missionary Review.

Temperance Department.

CONDUCTED BY REV. JOHN T. SAWYER, D. D.

The Inter-Collegiate Prohibition Association is being organized throughout the West and East. Our college young men in the South do not seem as yet to be in the movement; but, doubtless, they will ere long catch the spirit of the age in this matter and organize for prohibition work. The educated young men of America, if once fully enlisted in the cause of prohibition, must become a mighty force, indeed, in that uncompromising war against the saloon which should be unceasingly waged and end only in a Waterloo defeat for King Alcohol.

N. O. W. C. T. U.—Attention!

Says the Issue:

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Chicago has placed a "slot drinking machine" in the postoffice building of that city. "A penny put in the slot causes it to hand out a drink of cool water."

Just One Side for the Christian.

The Tennessee Methodist says: No religious man can afford to be put down on the same side of the liquor question with the saloon keepers and their outlawed set. B. Fay Mills, the evangelist, says: "Sometimes a person will insult me by asking me which side of the temperance or prohibition question I am on. Which side am I on? Well, you go to the drunkards and thieves and burglars and gamblers and saloon keepers and makers of the accursed stuff, and find out which side they are on, and then put me down on the other side."

Liquor and Labor.

The Evangelical Messenger points out in the following that it is not capital, but liquor, that hurts labor:

If the money spent by wage earners for liquor were kept for home building, enough would be saved in a few years to put a roof over the heads of every workingman's family between Maine and California. The saloon is the cause of more strikes than are capitalists. The saloon keeper is a worse tyrant over laborers in this land than any other man can ever be. All the combines that can be formed can not rob the wage earner as heartily as the saloon-keeper, and he is the real enemy of the wage earner.

We want a strike against the great American dictator—the saloon. Such a strike would result in unparalleled prosperity to the industries and the working classes of the land—if it were widespread and continuous.

Cholera and Whisky.

The Texas Christian Advocate, writing on the above subject, concludes a thoughtful editorial with these words:

Yet we have in our midst an evil in comparison with which the destruction of human life and the production of misery the Asiatic cholera sinks into insignificance. The liquor traffic is destroying more people every year than the cholera destroys in its tour around the whole world. Not only does it strip the cholera of its ravages on human life, but it adds crime and poverty more devastating than all the terrible pestilential diseases of the whole world. And this evil beast, and crime-producing, and wealth-consuming, and misery-making, is established and supported by the government. The best citizen in the country must surrender his personal liberty and his money to "guarantee" disease, and this is right; but the personal liberty of the bar keeper, whose business brings no one any good, but contributes to crime, immorality, the destruction of life and property, can not be touched. The difference between the cholera and the liquor traffic is that the cholera has no votes and pays no license fees. If this dread disease could add to the majority of parties votes, no doubt it would have noble advocates in the first statesmen of the land, and the expense of quarantine would be regarded as an infringement on the personal liberties of the noble citizen. We wonder now how Coke, Mills, Clark and Hogg, who did more than any other four men in Texas to perpetuate the reign of the whisky devil in the State, can harmonize quarantine regulations with their doctrine of personal liberty, or rather their doctrine of public slavery mislabeled personal liberty?—Tennessee Methodist.

Rev. Dr. J. B. Gamble, of Mississippi, at a Baptist meeting in Detroit, Mich., speaking of the saloon power in the South, said:

We are very fond of talking about our great country and our freedom, yet there is not as much freedom in the South as there would seem to be because the saloons practically control the cities. Men are slaves to them and are afraid of them in business transactions. Indeed, one saloon in the South has more power in municipal government than three churches. In Jackson we have twenty churches and eleven saloons, but the latter dictate who shall be elected mayor, marshal, or to any other city office.

The editors of Southern papers are also slaves to the saloons, and seem to have gone out of the business of telling the truth and refuse to take any stock in religion.

We fight them there on the local option plan, and both sides are very easily distinguished. Right here let me say that the colored preachers and the educated colored people are always on the side of sobriety, while the great mass of uneducated people are on the opposite side. With us temperance is a question of Christianity, humanity and intelligence, and whether the money a father and husband earns is to go to his family or be spent in a saloon. We have made a good deal of progress in the line of temperance education, but we can and ought to do more. The Baptists and Methodists control 95 per cent. of the people in my State, and could, with united work, crush out the saloon. It is hard for me to say so, but these two denominations are responsible for the saloons that are running in Mississippi. Some time ago there was a constitutional convention at Jackson, and I tried to have a temperance plank introduced into the platform. There were a number of Baptists and Methodists present, but out of 130 of them only seventeen voted for my measure, and their excuses were that it was not a proper time.

The saloon exists to day because Christian people allow them to exist, and if they did not support them they would not exist.

Hon. Henry M. Grady, in his address in Atlanta, November, 1887, said:

I assume to keep no man's conscience; I assume to judge for no man; I do not assume that I am better than any man, but that I am weaker. But I say this to you: I have a boy as dear to me as the ruddy drops that gather about this heart. I find my hopes all ready centering in his little body, and I look to him to-night to take to himself the work that I have done, to sell the work that I have done, to must fall unfulfilled at last from my hands. Now, I know they say it is proper to educate a boy at home; that if he is taught right at home he will not go wrong. That is a lie to begin with, but that don't matter. I have seen sons of some good people as ever lived turn out badly. I accept my responsibility as a father. The boy may fall from the right path as things now exist. If he does, I shall hear that sorrow with such resignation as I may, but I tell you, if I were to vote to repeal bar rooms to this city, when I know that it has prospered in their absence, and that boy should fall through their agency, I tell you—and this conviction has come to me in the still watches of the night—I could not, wearing the crowning sorrow of his disgrace, and looking into the eyes of her whose heart he had broken—I could not, if I had voted to repeal these bar-rooms, find answer for my conscience or support for my remorse.

As Only Daughter Cured of Consumption. When death was hourly expected from Consumption, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting, he accidentally made a preparation of Indian Hemp, which cured his only child, and now gives this recipe free on receipt of two stamps to pay expenses. Hemp also cures night sweats, nausea at the stomach, and will break a fever cold in twenty-four hours. Address: Graddock & Co., 1032 Race Street, Philadelphia, Pa., naming this paper.

As the soil, however rich it may be, can not be productive without culture; so the mind, without cultivation, can never produce good fruit.—Seneca.

To retain an abundant head of hair of a natural color to a good old age, the hygiene of the scalp must be observed. Apply Hall's Hair Renewer.

One may gain the whole world, or all that the world covets desirable, yet if our minds are not elevated and ennobled, of what true profit shall it be?

When I was a boy I was afflicted with Eczema and Scrofula, almost covering one side of my face, nearly to the top of my head. Running sores discharged from both ears. My eyes were very bad, the eyelids were sore and it was painful opening or closing them. For nearly a year I was dead. I went to the hospital and had an operation performed for the removal of a catarrh from one eye. One day my sister brought me

"Thank You" I was badly afflicted with Eczema and Scrofula, almost covering one side of my face, nearly to the top of my head. Running sores discharged from both ears. My eyes were very bad, the eyelids were sore and it was painful opening or closing them. For nearly a year I was dead. I went to the hospital and had an operation performed for the removal of a catarrh from one eye. One day my sister brought me

Hood's Sarsaparilla which I took, and gradually began to feel better and stronger, and slowly the sores on my eyes and in my ears healed. I can now hear and see as well as ever. Mrs. A. M. PAULEY, 178 Linder St., Newburgh, N. Y.

Hood's Pills are the best after-dinner Pills, assist digestion, cure headache. Try a box.

CURED

"About seven or eight months ago I was attacked by a cough, and at once began to take a medicine much advertised as an expectorant, and continued using it until I had taken about six bottles. Instead of giving me relief, it only made me worse. I tried several other remedies, but all in vain, and I don't think I had three whole nights' rest during my illness. I began to think that had laid hold of me, and my hopes of recovery were all gone. I was a mere skeleton, but a friend of mine, who had been some time away, called to see me. He recommended me to try Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and kindly sending me a bottle, I took it, but with little hopes of recovery. I am thankful, however, to say that it cured me, and I am to-day enjoying the best of health."—J. Wilmet Payne, Monrovia, Liberia.

Consumption

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

Prepared by Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Prompt to act, sure to cure

WORTH A GUINEA A BOX.

BLIND.

They are blind who will not try a box of

BEECHAM'S PILLS

for the disorders which grow out of impure Digestion. For a Weak Stomach, Constipation, Biliousness, Liver, Stomach, Headache, or any Bilious and Nervous ailments, they take the place of an entire medicine chest.

COVERED WITH A TASTELESS AND SOLUBLE COATING.

Of all druggists. Price 25 cents a box. New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

Wall Paper.

Heath, Schwartz & Co., Lim.

116 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.

MATTING,

Lace Curtains,

Upholstering Goods,

Oil Cloths,

Screens

AND

EASELS.

LOOKING AHEAD.

A Journal devoted to the training of the young—to the development of body, mind and character; a counselor for parent and teacher. Price, $1 per annum. To all who subscribe before Jan. 1, 1893, 50 cents cash, in advance.

Address, LOOKING AHEAD, Mansfield, La.

Do You Want Teachers?

WE DO; and we can put you in correspondence with such as you want, free of charge.

SOUTHERN TEACHERS' BUREAU, Winchester, Tenn.

Dr. Wm. H. Holcombe

AND

Dr. Gayle Aiken,

HOMEOPATHISTS,

No. 286 St. Charles Ave., NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Cases treated by correspondence.

For $35

One of Our Elegant

SOLID GOLD WATCHES,

Stem-wind and Set.

Send for catalogue of designs. P. M. HILL, Jeweler, 493 Dryades St., New Orleans, La.

For $35

One of Our Elegant

SOLID GOLD WATCHES,

Stem-wind and Set.

Send for catalogue of designs. P. M. HILL, Jeweler, 493 Dryades St., New Orleans, La.

For $35

One of Our Elegant

SOLID GOLD WATCHES,

Stem-wind and Set.

Send for catalogue of designs. P. M. HILL, Jeweler, 493 Dryades St., New Orleans, La.

For $35

One of Our Elegant

SOLID GOLD WATCHES,

Stem-wind and Set.

Send for catalogue of designs. P. M. HILL, Jeweler, 493 Dryades St., New Orleans, La.

For $35

One of Our Elegant

SOLID GOLD WATCHES,

Stem-wind and Set.

Send for catalogue of designs. P. M. HILL, Jeweler, 493 Dryades St., New Orleans, La.

For $35

One of Our Elegant

SOLID GOLD WATCHES,

Stem-wind and Set.

Send for catalogue of designs. P. M. HILL, Jeweler, 493 Dryades St., New Orleans, La.

For $35

One of Our Elegant

SOLID GOLD WATCHES,

Stem-wind and Set.

Send for catalogue of designs. P. M. HILL, Jeweler, 493 Dryades St., New Orleans, La.

For $35

One of Our Elegant

SOLID GOLD WATCHES,

Stem-wind and Set.

Queen and Crescent Route.

94 MILES the SHORTEST.

New Orleans to Cincinnati.

NEW VESTIBULED TRAIN.

The Queen and Crescent Special leaves New Orleans every afternoon at 3:40 P. M., via Birmingham and Chattanooga, for Cincinnati, Vandalia and Gas Lighted. Through to New York and Washington without change. No extra charge for this superior train service.

TIME TO CINCINNATI, 26 HOURS.

TIME TO NEW YORK, 47 HOURS.

Thru Queen and Crescent, and Fast Tennessee Virginia and Georgia are now running through Pullman Vestibule Buffet Sleeping Cars from New Orleans to New York without change. Time to New York via Washington only 46 hours.

Ticket Office: 34 St. Charles Street.

Depot: Corner Press street and Levee.

R. H. GARRETT, Div. Pass. Agent, New Orleans, La.

D. MILLER, Traffic Manager.

D. G. EDWARDS, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent, Cincinnati.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL R. R.

GREAT FAST MAIL ROUTE.

Four Daily Trains between NEW ORLEANS and CHICAGO.

The Only Line running Pullman Buffet Sleeping and Through Cars for All Classes to CHICAGO.

Connecting with all Buffet and Dining Car Lines East, and the ONLY LINE Running Through Cars for All Classes.

FREE RECLINING CHAIR CARS TO CHICAGO.

St. Louis Without Change.

The Only Line running a Double Daily Train Service to ST. LOUIS.

ONLY ONE CHANGE OF CARS FROM NEW ORLEANS TO

Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York

The great Steel Bridge, spanning the Ohio River at Cairo, completed, and all trains (freight and passenger) now running regularly over it, thus avoiding the delays and annoyances incident to transfer by ferry boat.

Ticket Office: Corner St. Charles and Common Streets.

J. W. COLEMAN, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agt., N. O. A. H. HANSON, G. P. A., Chicago.

Mississippi Valley Route.

L. N. O. and T. R'y.

All trains arrive and depart from new Passenger Station, cor. Howard Ave. and Rampart St.

Kansas City and Memphis Leaves. Arrives

Fast Train..... 8:00 p.m. 8:30 a.m.

Vicksburg & Natchez Ex..... 8:20 a.m. 8:45 p.m.

St. Louis "Coast" Train..... 8:40 p.m. 10:00 a.m.

The Only Line running Solid Trains between New Orleans, Memphis and Vicksburg, with Modern Pullman Buffet Sleeping Cars through to Memphis and Kansas City.

The direct and favorite route to Kansas City, Denver, and All Points West.

The short line to Hot Springs and points in Arkansas and North Louisiana.

Communion Tickets, Mileage Books, Party Rates and Week End Excursions.

Summer Excursion Tickets on Sale in season.

Ticket Office: St. Charles St., cor. Common.

E. L. DRAKE, Div. Pass. Agent.

J. W. COLEMAN, G. P. A.

A. H. HANSON, G. P. A.

W. D. DOMINICK, 220 Capitol St., Jackson, Miss.

120 and 122 Camp St., New Orleans

Kursheed's Marble Works

THE BEST HYMN BOOK

FOR EVANGELISTIC SERVICE, SUNDAY-SCHOOLS AND PRAYER MEETING

Gospel Hymns Nos. 5 and 6

COMBINED.

400 PAGES. 438 HYMNS.

Mail, $60 per 100; 70c. ea. by Mail.

Words, $20 per 100; 25c. ea. by Mail.

The John Church Co., 74 West 4th Street, Cincinnati, Ohio.

The Biglow & Main Co., New York.

THE ORIGINAL

Patented Feb. 25, 1880.

See Patent Stamp on each Waist.

TAKE NO OTHER.

REMEMBER THE GENUINE

JACKSON

CORSET WAISTS

THE MARK ONLY BY THE

JACKSON CORSET CO., Jackson, Mich.

The manufacturer's name is printed upon the back and stamped upon inside of each waist.

BE SURE and GET the RIGHT THING

If your dealer hasn't them write to us.

CANVASSERS WANTED.

NEW FOR THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

GARNERED GEMS

By H. R. PALMER.

A superb collection of new and standard Sunday School Songs and Hymns, presenting a mass of hymn writers and the composers. Contains the celebrated sacred songs that have made Dr. Palmer's name famous wherever the English language is spoken. 192 pages of choice words and music, clearly and neatly printed, and handsomely bound in boards. Price 25 cents postpaid.

LITTLE SACRED SONGS

For LITTLE SINGERS. J. R. MURPHY.

A new and most appropriate collection of songs for the Primary Department of the Sunday school. New and standard words and music. The Editor has the happy faculty of writing songs that please the children and show to the best advantage in the little book work in that direction. 64 pp. bound in boards. Price 25 cents postpaid.

Send 10 cents for sample of Musical Visitor, containing new anthems each month.

THE JOHN CHURCH CO., Cincinnati, O.

East & Ross Music Co., 200 Walnut Ave., St. Louis, Mo.

GULLETT'S MAGNOLIA

GIN

The Foremost Standard COTTON GIN

of the World.

HIGHEST AWARD Gold Medal

at the World's Cotton Centennial Exposition, New Orleans, 1884.

Light draft, best sample and most useful, as well as the most economical. All late improvements—Double Brakes, etc.—have been added. Every gin adapted to suit with extra belt.

Address for further particulars:

GULLETT GIN CO. AMTECITY LA.

ROSE TOBACCO

CURE

A quick, cheap, pleasant and absolute cure for the TOBACCO HABIT in all its forms. For proof write BRADZELL & CO., 2105 & 2107 3d Ave., Birmingham, Ala.

THE GREAT CHURCH LIGHT REFLECTORS

FOR OIL, GAS OR ELECTRIC LIGHT

L. P. FRANK, 551 PEARL ST. N.Y.

BUCKEYE CYCLE CO

CINCINNATI, O.

want an Agent in Your Place.

We will sell you a BICYCLE at manufacturers' prices if you will try to sell our goods. Please write for Catalogue and full information.

WE EVERY WHEEL WARRANTED.

Christian Advocate.

Rev. D. L. MITCHEL, Publisher.
Office: 112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
Subscription: $1 PER ANNUM.
Ministers and wives of deceased Preachers, $1.

Rev. C. W. Carter, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. Lewis, Asst. Editor.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

REV. J. M. BEARD, D. D.
REV. S. S. KENNER.
REV. J. B. A. AHEENS, D. D.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

REV. W. C. BLACK, D. D.
REV. W. B. LEWIS.
REV. R. J. JONES.

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

REV. W. T. J. SULLIVAN, D. D.
REV. J. D. CAMERON, D. D.
REV. T. C. WIER, M. D.

Thursday, October 13, 1892.

The Publishing Committee of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE will hold its annual meeting in the ADVOCATE building, 112 Camp street, New Orleans, on Wednesday, Oct. 26, at 11 A. M. J. M. BEARD, Chairman.

BRIEFS.

The temperance lunch-house, organized some time ago by the W. C. T. U. of this city, has been a success from the beginning. Lately the matter has undergone some changes. It has become a stock company, with a Board of Directors, the shares being fixed at $25. At the meeting of the W. C. T. U. last week, the report of the Board of Directors was that the prosperity of the lunch-house was satisfactory and its finances on a sound basis. The outlook for the coming Winter season is quite auspicious. We congratulate the union on the success it has achieved in this direction, and trust that so much success shall be won as will justify the establishment of like lunch-houses in other parts of the city.

In the East, North and West preachers and church workers have an advantage in Bible study and teaching, of which we in this lower latitude are deprived. We refer to Bible Institutes, which are held during the summer months for the purpose of familiarizing church workers with the teachings of the Word of God. Many of our preachers and lay workers would be glad to receive the benefit which these Institutes confer, but they are not in reach of them. Can not something be done towards inaugurating such an Institute that will be easy of access to our people? Three weeks during the Summer, when the ordinary business of daily life is not so pressing, might be spent to great advantage. What say our brethren, preachers and laymen, to this suggestion?

We never could make it out why a member of the Methodist Church should have any doubts about our teachings on the subject of temperance. Since the days of Wesley we have stood square in all our utterances upon a total abstinence platform. Our General, Annual and District Conferences, time after time, have promulgated our total abstinence principles in clear, unmistakable language, and for a Methodist to rise up and inquire for our position on the subject shows an ignorance that is not only gross, but unpardonable. It shows that our preachers ought to preach more on temperance. Prohibition is not temperance. Many a "regular drinker" favors prohibition. We need a revival of temperance, and we can't have it without agitation. Prohibition is good, but temperance—that is, total abstinence—is better. Paul preached "of temperance." Let our preachers sound out the gospel on this point. There is more liquor consumed than ever before, notwithstanding all the prohibition campaigns that have been carried on during the last twenty years! We have neglected temperance while endeavoring to foster prohibition. We need a genuine, enthusiastic total abstinence crusade, and the preachers should be the leaders of it.

Some Reflections Suggested upon the Approach of Conference.

The Conference year is rapidly drawing to a close. Only two months now, and all will be over for the ecclesiastical year 1892. The meetings at Conference will be replete with joy and gladness. Some faces we were wont to see will be absent, it is true; and while this will cause a tinge of sadness, we know where to find them. As the year's work draws to a close some reflections crowd themselves upon us germane to the season.

Are all the collections ordered by the Conference up in full? Why not? Has each member on every charge been personally approached and asked for his or her contribution to these collections; and if hesitancy is visible, has the pastor labored to show the moral obligation of every church member to contribute? An average contribution of fifty cents each will pay all claims ordered by the Conference. Has each member been asked for his four cents per month for this cause? It is to the credit of very many pastors that they always "report in full," but it is sadly noticeable that so many members never contribute one cent to this cause. Is it altogether their fault? Has the pastor asked them personally for this money? Whose fault, then, is this neglect of duty?

But another question of equal importance confronts us. The pastor's salary. How many charges will pay in full this year? How many will fall behind? Have the stewards, who are supposed to be men of solid piety, who both love and keep the rules of the church, done their full duty in this particular? You promised your pastor last January $600 on which to live. To date only $200 has been paid. You will, in all probability, raise $200 by Conference, leaving a deficit of $200. Your pastor, depending on your word of honor as Christian gentlemen of integrity, started out to live on the $600. He now finds himself owing $300, expecting the church to be true to its promise. If the church does what the president of the Board of Stewards expects it to do (many Boards don't have presidents), it will pay the preacher $200, out of which he is to pay his grocery man, and more. He goes away owing $100, and the cry is made (and the church cries as loud or louder than the merchant), "A preacher who don't pay his debts!" Whereas, if the church had done her duty and paid her debts, the pastor could have paid all he owed and had $100 in his pocket on which to move.

Who is to blame for this? Let us ask: Has each steward seen that every member of the church has been asked personally for the one or two dollars which, contributed by each, would have overpaid the assessment? Let us ask again: Has the pastor set the example by approaching each member for a contribution for Conference collections? This is a many-sided question, and it is to be sincerely hoped that we will all "think on our ways" in order that we may do better next year.

Softness or Needless Self-Indulgence.

BY REV. J. B. WALKER, D. D.

Webster gives us a dozen definitions of softness. His fifth definition is "effeminacy; vicious delicacy." Mr. Wesley defines, as we have quoted from the General Rules, that it is "needless self-indulgence." This is one of the habits of body and mind that Methodists are expected to avoid. The increase of labor-saving machinery, of manifold comforts and luxuries, with the means to secure these so-called "improvements," greatly tends to this "vicious delicacy."

I suppose it is one of many examples of Satan's devices to so use the good so as to make it an evil. I have thought I have seen a good deal of zeal shorn of its energy and activity by this needless self-indulgence. The character has often been so enervated that most all duties that have involved activity of body or mind have "proved a task," and have been shrunk from or ignored altogether. Let us consider some practical examples. There are persons who are eminently fitted to be successful Sunday-school teachers. They have the leisure, the capacity, the culture, and the facility of easy and lucid expression, are apt to teach; but to do so would infringe upon their self-indulgent and luxurious habits. They would have to rise earlier, get ready to go out, take breakfast sooner, give some thoughtful consideration to the lesson. They would have to give up the sofa, or easy rocker and the morning paper. They would have to devote an hour to the care and instruction of children. All this would involve some mental and physical labor, and run square across the smoothly graded and coolly shaded path of self-indulgence. They never do the good Providence has put it into their power to do—needless self-indulgence is the hindrance.

I have sometimes noted in homes where the father and head of the house was a God-fearing man and daily led his household in family prayer, that the full-grown sons and daughters often did not attend, though in health and able, but were too fond of ease to use any diligence to come. Such people will never endure hardness as good soldiers, will never run the race set before them so as to win the prize.

Instances of this softness and needless self-indulgence are but too common in connection with Sabbath-school and church attendance. Children are sent to secular schools and are expected, with the exception of a short recess, to remain at their studies six hours. To say it was too much, that it was hard on the children, would not be tolerated. But these children, after having Saturday for holiday, are said on Sunday to be unable to bear an hour, or an hour and a half, in the easy and diversified exercises of Sunday-school, and then public service for an hour, or hour and a half—three hours in all—and, "poor things," they must go home or into the streets. Many under this theory are growing up without the church-going habit at all. This is a sad outcome of this softness and needless self-indulgence.

The excuses that are often made for non-attendance on the services of the church are the inspiration and the outcome of needless self-indulgence, and they are often such excuses as no sensible person would give for the neglect of the ordinary duties and social claims of life. The weather, in all the variety of its phases, is frequently made the excuse for neglecting the duties that belong to a Christian profession. Men and women all the week go out to meet the business and social claims of their station. But it's too hot to go to church; it's too dusty; it's too cold to go to church; it's too damp to go to church—but not too much in any of these regards to meet and attend to the material interest or pleasures of life. Then health, in some of its conditions, is made the excuse for neglecting the duties connected with our religious life. The headache, the indigestion, the rheumatism in their slight attacks, that would not keep us away from the pleasure of making money; the pleasure of agreeable company; or attractive places of amusement, are often given as the substantial reason for our absence from God's house. The love of ease, the shrinking from duty, because it involves some labor or some self-denial, is the real cause.

The good Book warns us not to be deceived. God is not mocked. We may succeed in deceiving ourselves, but we can never deceive God. He reads our inmost hearts and knows the real causes that have influenced us. If we want to be "at ease in Zion," if we seek self-indulgence, whatever else we may allege, God knows the real cause.

Our College—Another Word.

MR. EDITOR: I have returned from more than a month's absence in Missouri, to find that Millsaps College has opened most encouragingly. Indeed, considering the financial depression in this cotton section, the patronage is rather remarkable. I believe the number present is one hundred and sixteen, with others expected next week. We have about twenty or twenty-one candidates for the ministry, one of whom, by invitation of the student body, will preach tomorrow in the college chapel. These it shall be my privilege to give some special aid in their collegiate work.

Attending the chapel exercises this morning, I had the pleasure of being presented to each student, and of welcoming all to the halls of our institution. The work of organization and classification progresses satisfactorily, and in a few days everything will be moving on smoothly as a college with a long history and thorough equipment. Fortunately our faculty is composed of trained men, who have had thorough post-graduate and professional advantages, and valuable experience as educators. They are young, ardent, ambitious, ready for hard work, alive to the importance of making this first term a marked success, and anxious to co-operate heartily in all our plans.

The splendid opening day, with the exceptionally able inaugural address of President Murrah, is yet the talk of the city. And our people seem desirous of making the college worthy of the State and the State's capital. No violation of rigid college discipline will find condonement in the community, but rather a positive purpose to sustain the authorities in guarding the morals of the young men. All of which is most gratifying.

A Young Men's Christian Association is to be organized today, and a college prayer meeting among the students during the week. With profound gratitude for the success thus far achieved, and inspired to attempt larger things for the future, I send this word of greeting to the patrons and friends of Millsaps College.

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY.

Jackson, Miss., Oct. 9, 1892.

An Earnest Call.

Will you not help us now? We need $400 at once, in order to pay the salaries of our superannuates and widows and orphans.

Brother, read this report, and then forward your money to W. M. Thornton, Lake, Miss.

Rev. T. Y. Armstrong is fast failing in body and mind. His vision has so much failed him that he can not read and can hardly see his way. His spiritual vision is clear. He loves the brethren and loves the church, nor does he believe her brightest days are in the past. He is not the least bit sour. The quarterly payments have been sufficient to keep him and his wife very comfortably.

GEO. H. THOMPSON, P. C.

Bro. Armstrong is eighty years old. He has been faithful and earnest, yet he and many others equally worthy must go unpaid, must suffer, unless you help us now.

Brethren, let us have the $400 we need at once.

JOHN W. CHAMBERS,
Chairman Joint Board.

Some Late Editorial Utterances.

NOTES.

The Alabama Christian Advocate, in an article on "Growing Old," gives comfort to us old folks after this manner:

But because we know that at most we have not many years to live, yet this is no reason why we should fold our arms and give up in despair. The intellectual forces of some men never reach maturity before they are fifty. Such men, by the temperate exercise of their faculties, conserve their mental energies and win their splendid and brilliant achievements from fifty to eighty. Sir James Crichton-Browne, writing on this subject, says: "I point you to-day to the intellectual giants of the country—all with white locks—our poets and orators, statesmen and bishops, judges and philosophers, whose splendid minds have not been dimmed by age nor their genius waned by the roll of years."

One of the greatest preachers in the South said, not long since, in his pulpit that the love of God is very largely shown in the fact that man is created with the ability to form habits. The Nashville Christian Advocate, of last week, gives an utterance on the same line:

By all that believe in the existence of a wise and gracious God, the law of habit must be regarded as instituted for beneficent ends. If it be perverted from its original design, the fault is in those who are guilty of such folly. What is this design? Let us take a concrete instance. When a little child is first beginning to learn his letters, his whole stock of mental power is concentrated upon that one task; but incessant repetition makes him familiar with it. He learns it, as we say, by heart. Having done so, his faculties, which meantime have been sharpened by exercise, are turned loose to attempt other and more difficult undertakings. Habits, then, are simply permanent achievements or acquisitions. They ought to be achievements in virtue, but they may be acquisitions in vice. When, for example, we have succeeded by patient and persistent effort in overcoming a given temptation to do wrong, and have learned, even in the face of the most appealing solicitations, how to put it under our feet and trample upon it, we may safely set up a banner of conquest—though always with due humility—and turn our attention to something else.

On the subject, "Wilderness Education," the Wesleyan Christian Advocate has these two paragraphs, to which we call attention:

Our boys and girls need to be educated with the direct purpose of making men and women. It would seem that all education would tend to this end, that all enlarging and training of the mind would lead to developing manhood and womanhood; but such is not always the case. We have many learned men and women, occupying prominent positions, who have little of the manly and womanly elements in their character. They are brought up and educated amid the busy turmoils around them, and they become creatures of circumstances, and regulate their lives by those circumstances rather than by principles within. They are moved and controlled by the events of the day, instead of being masters and makers of events. There is nothing concrete or reliable in their lives.

The rapidly transpiring events around our young people are so conflicting and dissipating that we are forced to believe that it would be well for all of them, at some time during the formative period of their character, to have a season of instruction and education away from all turmoil. There should be a few years when they are shut off from the bewildering influence of the world, and shut in with those books, teachers and influences that would bring them in vital contact with truth and the higher life. Experience has taught us that we do but little in the way of solid education in the midst of the marts and the surging world. We need schools remote from the centers of life, with only enough contact with the world to keep the pupils in trend with important events, and then with opportunity to study the true philosophy of life as a whole. This principle is recognized by all of our schools and colleges in a measure, but not sufficiently so.

What is the meaning of the fact that such a large number of our preachers have left Missouri this Fall? Ten from Southwest and ten from St. Louis Conferences have transferred to other Conferences!

Prune thou thy words that o'er thee roll,
Nor let thy speech be long;
They will condense within thy soul
A purpose sure and strong.
But he who lets his feelings run
In soft luxurious flow,
Faints when hard service must be done,
And fears to meet the foe.
—Cardinal Newman.

Eureka! Eureka! One of the "old paths" has been discovered to us by one of our correspondents. And who would have thought it lay just in this region? We discovered it lurking in the thoughts published in another column on Cane River Circuit. That "old path" is in the fact that the educated and experienced minister in the brave old days went to the weak and unorganized circuits! We now call for volunteers to return to this "old path."

The fact becomes apparent that our pastors generally are giving but small attention to the Epworth League movement. It is a serious blunder, and if persisted in will become fatal at points. The young people of Christendom are moving. They look for leaders. If a pastor will not volunteer to lead, then they will select leaders of their own. This is disorder to begin with, and discomfiture in the end. The Epworth League is a response to the general forward movement of young Christianity. It is the pastor's grand opportunity. —Pacific Methodist Advocate.

While our enemies are crying out for "culture" as the salvation of the people, the church is ready to confess that culture may be as selfish as the lowest barbarism. A half saint in the hospital, nursing the sick, is better than a seasoned saint on the top of the pillar. We may have fewer "cathedrals" than they of the twelfth century, but we build more mission chapels. Even Bismarck can not produce a Bible comparable with Fra Angelico's missal. The church of to-day is more profoundly interested in the ministry of religion than in its mysteries. Its hero is not the "Doctor Eruditionis," but the "Missionary Indefatigabilis." —N. Y. Evangelist.

The writer has been superintendent of a Sunday-school for over a decade, which begins its session at 12:15. Sometimes the preacher preaches forty minutes; sometimes a long service reaches high noon before the audience is dismissed. On one occasion the service extended to ten minutes past twelve. But never has the slightest difficulty been encountered in holding the "school" session after the church service, nor do we believe there ever will be. If the preacher should preach as long as Paul did when Eutychus tumbled to the ground because he would persist in sitting on the window-sill, still an abridgment of a hymn or a little earlier dismissal would be all that would be required. The 12:15 service of the Sunday-school, especially in the country, is a grand success. —Christian at Work.

Mrs. S. Suydam has come to the front with another novel World's Fair scheme; one that will be of much practical use to country folks and foreigners. Mrs. Suydam is an English woman, and is now in this city. She says: "I propose to establish a guide bureau for the Fair. I will relieve the hotels of the necessity of supplying guides for their guests. In the first place, with no central head, the guide business would be unsatisfactory and men would get into it who would fleece the wayward. My staff of guides will all be young ladies. These girls, or women, will all be worthy, and will need the remuneration which such positions will give them. They will all be dressed in neat, but attractive uniforms, and will become thoroughly conversant with Chicago, the World's Fair grounds, and all the displays." —Exchange.

The appeal to experience in answer to the doubts of men on religion is a valid appeal when properly made. Religion is life, and where there is life there is experience. "But then experience is not simply an 'excellent state of feeling.' It has been definitely defined as 'a permanent transformation of the whole moral, intellectual and physical being of man.' When the appeal is made to that sort of experience, it is not only valid, but the argument is as cogent as it can be made. That sort of experience is the highest credential of the truth of religion. That was the appeal our Lord made when he sent word to John that 'the blind receive their sight, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, and the deaf hear, and the dead are raised up, and the poor have the gospel preached unto them.'

It seems that in the "Old Country" they are guilty of the same folly that we practice in America. The Rev. Newman Hall gives this of a town in Scotland:

The second Sunday has come and was greatly enjoyed, attending communion at the United Presbyterian Church and listening to two very thoughtful and impressive sermons by Mr. Young, of Glasgow. The town has about 2,000 inhabitants. There are three Presbyterian Churches—Established, the United, and a very rustic Episcopal Church attended by about a dozen people. It was assured that one of the three Presbyterian buildings would hold all three congregations. As for the waste of money, labor and influence, and the insufficient stipends of pastors, resulting throughout Great Britain from some needless multiplication of what some designate "Causes and Interests!"

PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE.

Dr. R. G. Pearson, the evangelist, is holding a two weeks' meeting in Meridian, Miss.

The cost of firing one shot from one of our largest cannons would support a missionary in Japan two years!

In those wonderful days morality seems to be a matter of latitude and longitude, with a great many people.

Bishop Galloway will hold the Indian Mission Conference, Nov. 10, Bishop Granbery not being able to hold it.

The poorest business in this world is to grieve over the good fortune of other people, and yet very many of us are engaged in it.

The papers report Bishop Granbery as improving, but it is also stated that Bishop Fitzgerald holds the Holston Conference in his stead.

Over one hundred persons joined the various churches as the result of the revival meeting held recently by Evangelist Ingo, in Water Valley, Miss.

We sympathize with our Bro. J. M. Huggin, of North Mississippi Conference, on the death of his father, C. C. Huggin. He died, Oct. 2, in Sparanburg, S. C.

Rev. R. W. Bailey has been transferred to the Mississippi Conference from the Los Angeles Conference. The Pacific Methodist Advocate speaks of him as "one of the most efficient young men in the Los Angeles Conference."

The Western Christian Advocate published recently a supplement containing a symposium of ministers and laymen on the camp-meeting questions; as to open gates on Sunday and gate fees. The opinions seem to be about equally divided on both points.

Our brethren of the M. E. Church, according to resolution of the General Conference, will on Oct. 18 take a collection in all their congregations in aid of the American University at Washington, D. C. Such a universal collection ought to yield a handsome sum.

A private note from Bishop Galloway says:

I will hold the Indian Mission Conference for Bishop Granbery, and then come by New Orleans. On my way back may take in a few appointments in Louisiana in the interest of Centenary College and its endowment per request of the Board of Trustees in June.

The staid Evangelist is guilty of this: In a recent notice of the dedication of a new church, the reporter says that the tint given the walls and ceiling is "of a character to agree with almost any complexion!" Now, if he can only guarantee that the preaching in it shall "agree with almost any conscience," there should be no trouble in filling its pews.

The latest from Bishop Granbery is this from the Episcopal Methodist, of Baltimore:

Bishop J. C. Granbery, who has been under treatment at Johns Hopkins Hospital, this city, for the past six weeks, has gone to his home at Ashland, Va. A large abscess had formed in his throat, caused by a decayed bone, which has been successfully removed. The Bishop is quite weak and will not be able to preside at the Annual Conference assigned to him for this Autumn and Winter.

To Prevent the Grip. Or any other similar epidemic, the blood and the whole system should be kept in healthy condition. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla to give strength, purify the blood and prevent disease.

Hood's Pills cure liver ills.

Whisky Petitions.

The answer of Bro. Paxton, of Vicksburg, to the Picayune's special criticisms of the Crawford Street Methodist Church, furnishes food for thought for all Christians. And just at this time when we are to operate under a new or amended statute, it should be prayerfully considered by every member of our church. It is exceedingly unfortunate when we, as Christians, have to offer apology to the world for our actions. I don't see how anyone who realizes their responsibility as a Christian could think of signing a whisky petition of any kind, and I confess I don't see why there should be a discrimination made between a wholesale and retail petition. Indeed, if there is a difference, the wholesale would be the worst because of its extended opportunities of disseminating whisky among the people.

It would also be well if we could realize that it is just as much a sin in the sight of God for a layman to do that which is wrong as it is for an official or a minister, and the harm it does the cause of Christ is only commensurate with our influence.

L. A. POWERS.

All persons desiring to purchase choice Pianos, Organs, Musical Instruments or Music, should not fail to visit the large establishment of L. Grunewald Co., Limited, at Nos. 127 Canal and 14 to 20 Baronne streets, New Orleans.

Buy slates, penolls and school stationery from Bro. Van Valkenburgh, 108 Camp street.

The Foul Home.

Mrs. C. Higginbotham.....$ 5 00
Mrs. Fannie Williams.....5 00
Mrs. S. C. Waters.....10 00
George Moore.....5 00

Help Rendered.

Mr. Editor: Please publish the following statement of amounts received for Sister L. W. Wood to date:

Rev. John A. Ellis.....$ 5 00
Rev. C. D. Orell.....5 00
Rev. J. A. B. Jones.....5 00
Rev. W. M. Sullivan.....5 00
Rev. L. Carley.....5 00
Mr. J. W. Vaught.....1 00
Mr. J. O. Stewart.....5 00
Mr. H. C. Abney.....1 00
Mr. Ellis Fairbanks.....1 00
Mrs. N. Finn.....1 00

Fraternally, C. A. POWELL.

Moss Point, Miss., Oct. 10.

The careful mother always keeps Salvation Oil handy, for cuts and bruises.

Nollos.

To the Teachers and Members of Woodville District, Mississippi Conference—

DEAR BRETHREN: The Conference year is drawing to a close. We are on the last round. God has graciously poured out his Spirit upon us, and many souls have been saved. In our poverty, let liberality abound. There is not a collection ordered by the church but ought to be paid. As far as practicable, let the pastors exchange pulpits, and preach on the subject of missions, and take a special collection to pay the missionary debt, after the regular collections have been raised.

This special collection is not to interfere with the regular collections. Ten cents per member would pay our part of the missionary debt. Let the pastors forward to W. M. Thornton, Lake, Miss., the Conference fund. Our superannuates, widows and orphans ought to be paid. Surely God has been good to his people. We have no famine in our land. The cholera has been stamped out. The land has yielded its increase. Now, let us honor God with our substance. Please suffer this word of exhortation.

Fraternally, P. A. JOHNSTON, Jackson, La.

Ten cents for a dictionary with 30,000 words; five cents for an elegantly illustrated primer, and other books in proportion. F. D. Van Valkenburgh, 108 Camp street.

Do You Know?

That when your bowels are disordered, and irregularities caused by change of diet or location exist.

Brodie's Astringent Cordial

Will correct all the troubles, and never fails, but

CURES

DIARRHŒA, DYSENTERY, COLIC, CRAMPS, BLOODY FLUX, and Such Symptoms.

TESTIMONIAL.

July 28, 1889.
Dear Sir:—I have used Brodie's Astringent Cordial in my family, and am using the third bottle. It always acts like a charm upon my children, correcting ailments of the bowels better than any medicine I ever tried.
Yours, most respectfully,
Mrs. A. W. MOORE.

Price: 50 cts. and $1 a Bottle.

L. L. LYONS & CO., New Orleans, La.

Sold by All Druggists.

Shorthand and Typewriting

TAUGHT BY

Miss P. S. MITCHEL.

302 St. Charles Ave., New Orleans.

She was a pupil of the late Rev. Walter Duntan, and has had three years of experience as a stenographer in commercial firms in this city.

FOR SALE!

Church Bell and Bells of the First Baptist Church, Jackson, Miss.

AT A BARGAIN.

Address DEUPRKE & SHARP, JACKSON, MISS.

Tuskaloosa Female College,

TUSKALOOSA, ALA.,

Offers superior advantages in every department of female education.

Session Opens Oct. 5.

For catalogue, giving full information, apply to

ALONZO HILL, President.

BOSTON UNIVERSITY

Professors and Lecturers, 120. Students from nearly every Southern State. Literature, philosophy, science, law, medicine, theology. Circulars of departments free. Address the Registrar, 12 Somerset St., Boston, Mass.

SOUTHERN ACADEMIC INSTITUTE.

Mrs. J. E. SKAMAN, Principal.

French and English School for Young Ladies. Graded and Chartered. Boarding Department. Special. New Buildings, Large Grounds. Kindergarten with Normal Training. Send for Circular, 218 Coliseum, New Orleans.

Do Not Fail to Read This Prize Offer!

The following elegant book will be mailed to anyone sending FIVE NEW SUBSCRIBERS, at $2 each, with the cash.

D. L. MITCHEL, Publisher.

Representing Views of Cities—Public Buildings—Cathedrals—Street Scenes—Mosques—Churches—Temples—Observatories—Castles—Homes of Noted People—Volcanoes—Lake and Mountain Scenery—Lochs—Falls—River Scenery—Canyons—Islands—Parks—Fountains—Towers—Memorials—Pyramids—Ruins of Temples—Tropical Scenery—Huts, and an array of instantaneous views, showing the life of the people in the various portions of the World; gathered from

North America, South America, Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia and the Pacific Islands.

ALSO COPIES OF PAINTINGS TAKEN FROM THE

GREAT GALLERIES OF THE WORLD,

Forming a beautiful collection of photographs in one volume. To the vast army of stay-at-homes the world beyond the sea, which once seemed so far away from them, has now become nearer. Events that take place in South Africa are known a few hours afterwards in America, and a feeling of familiarity with distant lands thus seems to have been created by telegraph. Besides this, we have books of travel, lectures by explorers and pictures to fall back upon, so that if "we cannot go strange countries for to see," we have them brought home to our doors.

This GREAT NEW BOOK, containing a vast collection of photographs, gathered from every corner of the globe, is printed on enameled paper, bound in the most durable manner, and sold at $4 per copy.

"The World in the Church."

A Plain Statement of Facts, AND An Appeal to Southern Methodists for a Return to the "Old Paths."

By Rev. John T. Sawyer, D. D., Of the Louisiana Conference.

Published by Barbee & Smith, Nashville, Tenn., it is for sale by them, and also by F. D. Van Valkenburgh, No. 108 Camp street.

This book for the times sells at only 25 cents per copy.

HOPKINS' PRINTING OFFICE,

20 Commercial Place, John P. Hopkins, New Orleans.

ALL KINDS OF PRINTING.

PUBLISHING HOUSE COLUMNS.

SONG BOOKS,

PUBLISHED BY THE Publishing House of the M. E. Church, South.

New Harp of Columbia, contains a variety of most excellent Psalms and Hymn-tunes, Odes and Anthems, adapted to Church Services, Singing-schools and Societies. Selected by M. L. Swan. Shaped notes only. Boards, per dozen, $7.20.

The Amaranth. By R. M. McIntosh. Round notes, 30 cents; without notes, in paper covers, 10 cents.

The Emerald. By R. M. McIntosh. Round notes, 30 cents; character notes, with rudiments of music, 30 cents; without notes, in paper, 10 cents.

The Gem. By R. M. McIntosh. In character notes only. 30 cents.

Grace and Glory. By D. F. Dortch. Round notes, 30 cents; character notes, 30 cents; without notes, in boards, 10 cents.

New Life. By R. M. McIntosh. Round notes, 30 cents; character notes, 30 cents; without notes, in paper, 10 cents; without notes, in boards, 15 cents.

New Life No. 2. By R. M. McIntosh. Round notes, 30 cents; character notes, 30 cents; without notes, in boards, 10 cents.

Lob Gottes. (German.) Edited by J. B. A. Ahrens. Round notes, 30 cents; No. 2, paper binding, 10 cents; Nos. 1 and 2, bound together, 35 cents.

LIVING SONGS. A New Sunday-school Song Book—the Best Book of the Kind We Have Ever Published. The Hymns and Songs Edited by Dr. W. G. E. Cunningham, Sunday-school Editor, Methodist Episcopal Church, South. The Music Composed, Procured and Edited by Prof. R. M. McIntosh. 8vo. 224 pages. Price, board covers, in both round and shaped notes, single copy, 35 cents, or $4 per dozen, postage prepaid; $30 per hundred, not prepaid. Same without notes, in board covers, $1.50 per dozen, postage prepaid; $10 per hundred, not prepaid. Do not fail to send for a copy of this book; you will be pleased with it.

When You Want Anything in the Singing-book Line

Address BARBEE & SMITH, Agents, NASHVILLE, TENN.

Besides these of our own publications, we keep in stock a large supply of the best of the publications of all the other leading Music Houses, which we furnish at the publishers' best rates.

Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss.

Session Begins Sept. 29th, 1892.

Full Faculty, Thorough Course, GOOD ENDOWMENT.

New and Commodious Buildings.

Beautiful, Central and Healthful Location at the Capital of the State.

Cheap Board. No Tuition. Moderate Matriculation Fee.

Liberal provision made for young preachers and sons of preachers.

For terms, catalogue or other information apply to

Rev. W. R. MURKIN, D. D., President, or Rev. A. F. WATKINS, Agent, Jackson, Miss.

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY, Pres't of Board of Trustees.

WAYNESBORO COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE

WAYNESBORO, MISS.

W. W. MOORE, A. M., President. (Southern University.)

ALEX. POWE, Vice-President. (Southern University.)

Miss CLARA HLOCK, A. M., Primary. (E. M. F. C. and Peabody Normal.)

Miss LUCY ANDREWS, Music. (New England Conservatory.)

J. C. AUST, Telegraphy, etc.

Our course of study embraces the Classical and English, also Telegraphy, Music, shorthand, Bookkeeping and Printing. An unlimited number of boys and girls may secure board on the cheapest plan ever known to any Southern school. Board and tuition need not exceed ten dollars per month.

Write for catalogue. Next session opens Sept. 12, 1892. Write to

Rev. W. W. MOORE, A. M., President.

ASK YOUR GROCER FOR The Celebrated CHOCOLAT MENIER

Annual Sales Exceed 33 MILLION Lbs. Write for Samples. Sent Free. Menier, Union Sq., N. Y.

EIGHTH YEAR. MUSICAL ART.

(INCORPORATED.) PILCHER'S STUDIO OF MUSIC, and School of Languages, (Established 1855.)

169 St. Charles Street. Next to Washington Artillery Hall.

Ample accommodations for Boarding Students. The Boarding Department is under the direct supervision of Mrs. Wm. Pilcher, Sr.

Music Taught in All its Branches. Twenty-five teachers in the various departments. Graduates and other pupils who have attended this institution are now occupying positions of more or less prominence throughout the country. Send for seventh Annual Catalogue.

WILLIAM H. PILCHER, President, New Orleans, La.

L. GRUNEWALD CO., Ltd.

LOW PRICES! TIME PAYMENTS!

STEINWAY, KNABE, CHICKERING, BEHR, MEHLIN, SOHMER, PLEYEL, FISCHER, SHONINGER, OPERA.

OLD PIANOS TAKEN IN EXCHANGE.

PIANOS AND ORGANS!

127 Canal St., 14 to 20 Baronne St., NEW ORLEANS.

Write for terms and further particulars.

MATHUSHEK

185 Canal St., New Orleans, La.,

Is Offering the Following Bargains:

New Upright Pianos, - $250.

New Parlor Organs, - $30.

Second-hand Upright Pianos, - $125.

And Will Sell on

Easy Monthly Payments, if desired.

Write for Prices and Catalogues.

HARDWOOD AND MARBLEZED SLATE MANTELS.

TILE HEARTHES. GRATES AND FIRE-PLACE TRIMMINGS.

GEO. M. LEAHY,

Advocate Building, - No. 112 Camp St., New Orleans.

"ABSOLUTELY FREE OF CHARGE."

In order to introduce our ELEGANT and ARTISTIC CRAYON PORTRAITS to yourself and your friends, we make you the following proposition, viz: If you will send a photograph of yourself, or any member of your family, we will make from it one of our finest three-quarter life size CRAYON PORTRAITS FREE OF CHARGE.

Our name and reputation as Artists are already well known throughout the United States but we desire to increase our customers; hence this special offer. We believe that one of our ELEGANT Portraits placed in your home will do more good than other better things. Send the photograph you desire copied to us inside of THIRTY DAYS FROM DATE. The portrait we will make for you will be a study in color and its value $25.00. It will be as good as a painting and will secure for you its safety. We guarantee its return, so have no fear of losing it. As to our responsibility, we can refer you to the following parties in our city: Commercial Bank, Brooklyn, Wells, Fargo & Co., American Express Co., United States Express Co., and G. J. Dunn & Co., New York and all other leading agencies. Hoping to receive your kind favors, we are, respectfully,

CODY & CO., 753 and 755 E. 10th Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

NOTE:—Cut this out and return it to us with the photograph you desire copied.

Christian Advocate.

VOL. 39.—NO. 42.

NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 20, 1892.

WHOLE NO. 1887.

Rev. C. W. CARTER, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. LEWIS, Asst. Editor.

PUBLISHED FOR THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE AND NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH.

ENTERED AT THE POST-OFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

COLUMBUS.

1492-1892.

No man that we have read of has been more honored than Columbus is being honored by the people of Europe and America to-day. The millions of our citizens are to-day recognizing his fame and honoring his name. It seems as if we had just waked up to the importance of the service which he performed for mankind. Four hundred years have passed away since the intrepid and undaunted sailor made his way across the unknown sea in search of the East Indies, and discovered a new world, and it has taken all that time to bring the world up to a fitting recognition of his mighty achievement. But its importance has at last made itself felt, and our people during last week and this week have shown some appreciation of it. During last week all our cities and larger towns celebrated with becoming and imposing ceremonies the four hundredth anniversary of the great event which opened a new world to the East. Tomorrow millions of children and grown-up people will unite to do honor to the name of Columbus. Thousands of Christians will assemble in their places of worship to thank God for bringing such a man upon the scene of human activity, and giving him the courage to persevere through all obstacles and amid almost universal lack of faith in his project, till the great aim of his life had been achieved. The obstacles in his way and the discouragement which he encountered on every hand would have killed the hope of any ordinary man; but, despite poverty and rebuffs and obstructions and discouragement, he went steadily forward until his feet pressed the soil of a new world, and thus proved the correctness of his theories. At such a distance of time we can hardly appreciate the difficulties he had to encounter and overcome. Prescott, in his History of Ferdinand and Isabella, says:

It is impossible to peruse the story of Columbus without assigning to him almost exclusively the glory of his great discovery; for, from the first moment of his conception to that of its final execution, he was encountered by every species of mortification and embarrassment, with scarcely a heart to cheer, or a hand to help him. Those more enlightened persons, whom, during his long residence in Spain, he succeeded in interesting in his expedition, looked to it probably as the means of solving a dubious problem, with the same sort of vague and skeptical curiosity as to its successful result, with which we contemplate, in our day, an attempt to arrive at the Northwest passage. The common people regarded it, not merely with apathy, but with terror, the prospect of a voyage, that was to take the mariner from the safe and pleasant seas which he was accustomed to navigate, and send him roving on the boundless wilderness of waters, which tradition and superstitious fancy had peopled with innumerable forms of horror.

Princes and kings, one after another refused him assistance, but he would not give over his project. There was in him a spirit that was simply unconquerable by adverse circumstances. When in deepest adversity, a woman came to his rescue and furnished the resources essential to the execution of his life-plan. Speaking of this, the historian above quoted says:

Isabella undertook the enterprise when it had been explicitly declined by other powers, and when probably some other of that age would have been found to countenance it; and that, after once plighting his faith to Columbus, she became his steady friend, shielding him against the calumnies of his enemies, reposing in him the most generous confidence, and serving him in the most acceptable manner, by supplying ample resources for the prosecution of his glorious discoveries.

So, after all, the world is indebted to a woman for the discovery of the Western Hemisphere! No one who reads an intelligent biography of the great navigator can fail to admire the faith and constancy and indomitable spirit which carried him triumphantly through all the difficulties of his undertaking. In spite of princes and ecclesiastics—in defiance of dangers and death—he moved forward with the steady step of one who had faith in his own convictions, and courage to work and wait for the time of victory. The result proved the greatness of the mind which conceived the project, and he saw all his difficulties behind him, and all his hopes realized, and all his enemies at his feet. On the twenty-first of October, 1492, he had achieved his great work, and the world to-day greet his achievement with the honor it deserves.

It has been so long since many of our readers read the story of Columbus, that to freshen their memories we append some biographical facts:

Christopher Columbus was born at Genoa, 1435 or 1436, the exact date being uncertain. He was sent to the University of Pavia, where he studied mathematics and the natural sciences. At fifteen he determined to become a sailor, and the first years of his life were spent upon the sea. He says: "Wherever ship has sailed, there have I journeyed." In 1470 he married a Portuguese lady, the daughter of a sea captain, and from the maps and charts and papers of his father-in-law he seems to have arrived at the conclusion that much of the world was undiscovered, and finally to have conceived the design of reaching Asia by sailing westward. His design could not be carried out by himself, as he had no means to fit out an expedition; so he applied to his native city for help. This was refused. The scheme was too chimerical for the grave senators of Genoa to give countenance to. He then applied to the King of Portugal, and was referred to the Committee of Council for Geographical Affairs, and they rendered an adverse decision. After presenting himself to various persons of authority without success, he was prevailed upon to lay his scheme before Queen Isabella of Castile, and, after many weary months of waiting and anxiety, he was furnished with three small vessels and 120 men, and on Aug. 3, 1492, he set sail upon his memorable voyage. On the twenty-first of October he landed upon the new world. The discovery added new impulse to the work of the world, and immigration began towards the Western Hemisphere which has not ceased to this day.

Columbus made four voyages to the new world he had discovered. The second voyage was begun Sept. 25, 1493, with seventeen vessels and 1,500 men, among whom were twelve missionaries of the Benedictine order. This expedition reached the Western world Nov. 3.

The third voyage began May 30, 1498, with six ships, and Aug. 1 Columbus first sighted the mainland of South America. The end of this expedition was that the great man was loaded with honors and sent back to Spain. But as soon as he could get the ear of Isabella, this was all changed, and he was loaded with honor and gifts.

His fourth and last voyage began May 9, 1502, with four ships and 150 men. During this last voyage he was absent from Spain more than two years. His hardships and mishaps we have no room to recount. His discovery changed the whole business of the world, and his results are not ended yet. Columbus died May 20, 1506, at Valladolid. He was buried there, thence his remains were removed to Seville. In 1536 his remains and that of his son were removed to San Domingo; but on the session of that island to the French, they were transferred to Havana and interred in the cathedral, where they yet remain.

In person, Columbus was tall and shapely, with auburn hair and a beautiful complexion. He became quite grey at thirty years. He was temperate in eating, drinking and dress. His piety was earnest and unwavering. He entered into and colored alike his action and his speech. He was pre-eminently fitted for the task he created for himself, and he has been more talked of in the past two weeks than any man in the world ever saw.

The Environment of Columbus.

About thirteen hundred years ago, when Attila the Hun, called "the scourge of God," was overrunning the falling empire of the Romans, some of the noblest citizens of the small cities of the Adriatic fled, with their families and effects, to the inaccessible marshes and islands at the extremity of that sea, and formed a permanent settlement. They became fishermen and small traders. In process of time they united their islands together by bridges and laid the foundation of a mercantile state. Thither resorted the merchants of Medieval Europe to make exchanges. Thus Venice became rich and powerful, and in the twelfth century was one of the prosperous states of Europe, ruled by an oligarchy of the leading merchants.

Contemporaneous with Dante, one of the most distinguished citizens of this mercantile mart, Marco Polo, impelled by the curiosity which reviving commerce excited and the restless adventure of a roving age, visited the court of the Great Khan of Tartary, whose empire was the largest in the world. After a residence of seventeen years, during which he was loaded with honors, he returned to his native country, not by the ordinary route, but by coasting the eastern shores of Asia, by crossing the Indian Ocean, up the Persian Gulf, and thence through Bagdad and Constantinople, bringing with him immense wealth in precious stones and other Eastern commodities. The report of his wonderful adventures interested all Europe, for he was supposed to have found the "Tartarish gold," that land of gold and spices which had enriched the Tyrian merchants in the time of Solomon—men supposed by some to have sailed around the Cape of Good Hope in their three years' voyages. Among the wonderful things which Polo had seen was a city on an island off the coast of China, which was represented to contain six thousand families, so rich that the palace of its nobles were covered with plates of gold, so lavishing that odiferous plants and flowers diffused the most grateful perfumes, so strong that even the Tartar conquerors could not subdue it. This island, known now as Japan, was called Cipango, and was supposed to be inexhaustible in riches, especially when the reports of Polo were confirmed by Sir John Mandeville, an English traveler in the time of Edward III.—and with even greater exaggerations, since he represented the royal palace to be more than six miles in circumference, occupied by three hundred thousand men.

In an awakening age of enterprise, when chivalry had not passed away, nor the credulity of the Middle Ages, the reports of this Cipango inflamed the imagination of Europe, and to reach it became at once the desire and the problem of adventurers and merchants. But how could this Eldorado be reached? Not by sailing around Africa; for to sail south, in popular estimation, was to encounter torrid suns with ever increasing heat, and suffocating vapors, and unknown dangers. The scientific world had lost the knowledge of what even the ancients knew. Nobody surmised that there was a Cape of Good Hope which could be doubled, and would open the way to the Indian Ocean and its islands of spices and gold. Nor could this Cipango be reached by crossing the Eastern Continent, for the journey was full of perils, dangers, and insurmountable obstacles.

Among those who meditated on this geographical mystery was a young sea captain of Genoa, who had studied in the university of Pavia, but spent his early life upon the waves—intelligent, enterprising, visionary, yet practical, with boundless ambition, not to conquer kingdoms, but to discover new realms. Born probably in 1436, in the year 1470 he married the daughter of an Italian navigator living in Lisbon; and, inheriting with her some valuable Portuguese charts and maritime journals, he settled in Lisbon and took up chart-making as a means of livelihood. Being thus trained in both the art and science of navigation, his active mind seized upon the most interesting theme of the day. His studies and experience convinced him that the Cipango of Marco Polo could be reached by sailing directly west. He knew that the earth was round, and he inferred from the plants and carved wood and even human bodies that had occasionally floated from the West, that there must be unknown islands on the western coasts of the Atlantic, and that this ocean, never yet crossed, was the common boundary of both Europe and Asia; in short, that Cipango could be reached by sailing west. And he believed the thing to be practicable, for the magnetic needle had been discovered, or brought from the East by Polo, which always pointed to the North Star, so that mariners could sail in the darkest nights; and also another instrument had been made, essentially the modern quadrant, by which latitude could be measured. He supposed that after sailing west, about eight hundred leagues, by the aid of compass and quadrant, and such charts as he had collected and collated, he should find the land of gold and spices by which he would become rich and famous.

This was not an absurd speculation to a man of the intellect and knowledge of Columbus. To his mind there were but few physical difficulties. If he had the ships and the men bold enough to embark with him, and the patronage which was necessary for so novel and daring an enterprise. The difficulties to be surmounted were not so much physical as moral. It was the surmounting of moral difficulties which gives to Columbus his true greatness as a man of genius and resources. These moral obstacles were so vast as to be all but insurmountable, since he had to contend with all the established ideas of his age—the superstitions of sailors, the prejudices of learned men, and general geographical ignorance. He himself had neither money, nor ships, nor powerful friends. Nobody believed in him; all ridiculed him; some insulted him. Who would furnish money to a man who was supposed to be half crazy—certainly visionary and wild; a rash adventurer who would not only absorb money, but imperil life? Learned men would not listen to him, and powerful people derided him, and princes were too absorbed in wars and pleasure to give him a helping hand. Aid could come only from some great state or wealthy prince; but both states and princes were deaf and dumb to him. It was a most extraordinary inspiration of genius in the fifteenth century which created, not an opinion, but a conviction that Asia could be reached by sailing west; and how were common minds to comprehend such a novel idea? If a century later, with all the blaze of reviving art and science and learning, the most learned people ridiculed the idea that the earth revolved around the sun, even when it was proved by all the certitudes of mathematical demonstration and unerring observations, how could the prejudiced and narrow-minded priests of the time of Columbus, who controlled the most important affairs of the state, be made to comprehend that an unknown ocean, full of terrors, could be crossed by frail ships, and that even a successful voyage would open marvellous riches? All was clear enough to this scientific and enterprising mariner; and the inward assurance that he was right in his calculation gave to his character a blended boldness, arrogance and dignity which were offensive to men of exalted station, and ill became a stranger and adventurer with a thread-bare coat, and everything which indicated poverty, neglect and hardship, and without any visible means of living but by the making and selling of charts.

Hence we can not wonder at the seventeen years of poverty, neglect, ridicule, disappointment and deferred hopes, such as make the heart sick, which elapsed after Columbus was persuaded of the truth of this theory, before he could find anybody enlightened enough to believe in him, or powerful enough to assist him. Wrapped up in those glorious visions which come only to a man of superlative genius, and which make him insensible to heat and cold and sooty fare, even to reproach and scorn, this intrepid soul, inspired by a great and original idea, wandered from city to city, and country to country, and court to court, to present the certain greatness and wealth of any state that would embark in his enterprise. But all were alike cynical, cold, unbelieving, and even insulting. He opposes overwhelming, universal and overpowering ideas. To have surmounted these and such protracted opposition and discouragement constitutes his greatness; and finally, to prove his position by absolute experiment and hazardous enterprise makes him one of the greatest of human benefactors, whose fame will last through all the generations of men. And as I survey that lonely, abstracted, disappointed and derided man—poor and unimportant, so harassed by debt that his creditors seized even his maps and charts, obliged to fly from one country to another to escape imprisonment, without even listeners and still less friends, and yet with ever increasing faith in his cause, utterly unconquerable, alone in opposition to all the world—I think I see the most persistent man of enterprise that I have read of in history. Critics ambitious to say something new may rake out slanders from the archives of enemies, and discover faults which derogate from the character we have been taught to admire and venerate; they may even point out spots, which we can not disprove, in that sun of glorious brightness, which shed its beneficent rays over a century of darkness; but this we know, that whatever may be the force of detraction, his fame has been steadily increasing, even on the admission of his slanders, for three centuries, and that he now shines as a fixed star in the constellation of the great lights of modern times, not alone because he succeeded in crossing the ocean, when once embarked on it, but for surmounting the moral difficulties which lay in his way before he could embark upon it, and for being finally instrumental in conferring the greatest boon that our world has received from any mortal man, since Noah entered into the ark—Dr. John Lord, in Bacon's Light of History.

Pan-Presbyterian Alliance.

Ninety-one distinct organizations were represented in the recent ten-days' meeting of the Pan-Presbyterian Alliance in Toronto, Sept. 21 to 30. These bodies include, besides the various churches of the R-formed faith in this country marching under the Presbyterian banner, similar communities all over the world—in Continental Europe, Africa, Australia, New Zealand, the West Indies, Persia, Japan, China, Ceylon, Brazil, Surinam, Tahiti. The object of these triennial (sometimes quadrennial) gatherings is to promote unity and discuss topics of common interest. Legislation, of course, has no place in the scheme. The most eminent ministers and laymen of the individual organizations are chosen as delegates to these council-meetings, and though the total number of adherents to Presbyterian Churches throughout the world was announced to be about 20,000,000 by Secretary Matthews, only about 300 persons are selected to represent this vast army at these gatherings. The first council of the Alliance was held in Edinburgh in 1877, the second in Philadelphia three years later, the third in Belfast in 1884, and the fourth in London in 1888. The attendance at this fifth council in Toronto was somewhat diminished by the cholera scare with its quarantine possibilities, but the quality was choice. The churches represented this year have no reason to be ashamed of their standard bearers. Prof. W. G. Blake, of Edinburgh, was there; and Prof. Thomas Lindsay, of the Free Church College, Glasgow; and Dr. Monro Gibson, of London; and Prof. Bayne, of Holland; and Prof. M. Leitch, of Belfast; and John G. Paton, "the apostle of the New Hebrides"; and Rev. Dr. MacDugald, of Calcutta; and Rev. Dr. MacKean, of Bombay; and Rev. Dr. Laws, of Central Africa; and Rev. Griffith Ellis, of Wales—all these, with many lesser, and some equally bright lights from abroad; while the home delegates, led by such men as Dr. Talbot Chambers, of New York City, and Prof. Henry M. Baird, helped to form a constellation of unusual brilliancy. The subjects discussed covered a broad range. The Protestant Reformation held, of course, a leading place, and its influence was traced in various lines—religious, moral, intellectual, political and individual—by some of the ablest speakers present. A whole enthusiastic day was given to missionary topics and operations. Principal William Caven, of Knox College, Toronto, preached a strong sermon on the absolute need of the Spirit in Bible study. The work of the American churches among the negroes, among the Indians, among the Asiatics, and among European emigrants, was lucidly portrayed in a series of papers. Practical economic and social questions, like those of Wages, Land, Opium, Sunday Observance, were adequately treated. The attempt to commit the council to an affirmation of the belief in the historic and supernatural character of the Old and New Testaments, on the ground that sufficient reason has not yet been adduced to deny their divine authorship, was ruled out as "unwise." The new president of the Alliance is Dr. Talbot Chambers, of New York.—Zion's Herald.

To the Preachers and Members of the Louisiana Conference.

In accordance with the plan adopted by our Board of Missions for the liquidation of our missionary debt, solicitors have been appointed in every Conference and every district to raise the requisite amount by a system of personal solicitation. The system is co-operative on the part of the Conference solicitor and the several district solicitors, and requires the hearty support of pastors and members. If all unite earnestly in this matter, the object of the Board will be easily achieved. The following have accepted appointments as solicitors in our Conference: Rev. F. N. Parker, Conference solicitor; Rev. W. H. LaPrade, New Orleans district; Rev. T. K. Faunt LeRoy, Shreveport district; Rev. R. Randle, Alexandria district; Rev. F. S. Parker, Opelousas district. Solicitors for Acadia and Delbi districts will be announced as soon as possible, two having been appointed, but were unable to accept. The method adopted for raising the money will be determined by the district solicitors in their several districts. In general, we have this to say: The amount to be raised by us is quite moderate, being about twelve and a half cents per member, the total being $2,561. If the people care to do this thing, it can be done; if they do it not, sin lies at the door. The cause of our Lord and Master, the integrity of our church, and the guarantee of the presence of the divine blessing in our future operations as a church, demands that we arise and put an end to this debt. This thing is a personal matter to you who may read these words. What about your own consciousness of loyalty and obligation to Christ?

It may, and doubtless will, require self-denial on the part of many to contribute to this cause. And this is what we must do. In a note concerning self-denial in the Salvation Army, published in the last Nashville Advocate, it is stated that the Army raised $100,000 for mission work during self-denial week. This in the light of the fact that no officer in the organization receives more, and many of them less, than $6 per week. Let us be stimulated by their example. Let our pastors and people fully and liberally co-operate, and we will more than succeed in raising our share of this debt-money before the next meeting of the Board of Missions; if not by the time of the Annual Conference session.

F. N. PARKER,
Solicitor for La. Conf.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. W. J. Burt, Marietta circuit, North Mississippi Conference, Sept. 8: "We closed a meeting yesterday at Hodge Chapel. Bro. L. A. McKeown was with us. We had a sweet revival in the church; 25 accessions. Bro. McKeown preached twice a day for five days. The people enjoyed his sermons, and fell in love with him. Praise God for every blessing!"

Rev. J. A. Poe, Belzona, Miss., Oct. 7: "We held our third Quarterly Conference, Sept. 3 and 4; but our presiding elder could not be with us, on account of sickness. We have received 18 members, and some churches considerably revived. We have one prayer meeting and four Sunday-schools in our work. Collections all behind, and money very scarce; but we hope to have a good collection by Conference, God being our helper. Pray for us. My health is not good."

Rev. Geo. H. Thompson, Rose Hill, Miss., Oct. 7: "Our protracted meetings have all been held with one exception. I think I can safely report 30 conversions and many reclamations. About one dozen new family altars have been erected, and 20 members gained. About 300 have covenanted to live better lives. A better state of affairs, I feel, has been brought about, and a more brotherly feeling pervades the community. The Lord has been very gracious to me, and the year has brought me nearer my God."

Rev. J. M. Weema, Brookhaven, Miss., Oct. 11: "We have just closed a meeting of two weeks that resulted in the spiritual upbuilding of the church, and three accessions, with others to join soon. Most of the preaching was done by Bro. M. L. Burton and our presiding elder, R. S. Woodward. All the assessments will be paid in full, and some old debts on the church liquidated. Whitworth College is doing grandly; has more boarders than at any time last year, and they are still coming in."

Rev. J. T. Howell, P. C., Pleasant Hill, Miss., Oct. 13: "Doubtless a report is in order. Have held a series of services at all of the four churches on the work. Visible results: 51 accessions to the church; many who never before were active in church work have come boldly to the front and say, 'We will try, if we fail,' which means success if persevered in. Quite a number of family altars erected. Prayer meetings hitherto dull and almost lifeless, vigorous and growing in interest. Some conversions since the meetings closed. The meetings at Baker's Chapel and Lewisburg were the more productive of good results. The majority of the conversions were at the altar on their knees, heartily repenting and turning away from their sins; the Holy Spirit testifying to the same. To God be all the praise. We were kindly assisted in these meetings by Revs. C. W. Perkins, B. P. Jacob, W. W. Williams, T. W. Dye and T. Cameron, for which we feel grateful."

Rev. R. A. Burroughs, Kosciusko district, North Mississippi Conference: "I am on my fourth round of Quarterly Conferences, and am very much encouraged with the outlook; think the district will make a good report at Conference, considering the great financial depression that is upon the people of this country. The preachers of the district have all done faithful work, and, as a result, we have had some great outpouring of the Holy Ghost; many conversions and additions to the church. If the collections are short at Conference, it will not be because they have been neglected by the presiding elder or pastors. The matter has received careful attention in the Quarterly Conferences, and the pastors have kept them before the people all the year. If the pastors are not paid in full, it will not be because the people are indifferent to that great duty, but because of the financial condition of the country. My health is very good, and I am hard at work. Have missed four Quarterly Conferences on account of ill health during the summer. The preachers and people are doing hard work getting ready for Conference. Pray for us."

REVIVAL ITEMS FROM THE MERIDIAN DISTRICT.

Why Not circuit, F. B. Ormond, L. P.: Causeville—Membership greatly revived, neighborhood troubles adjusted, new family altars erected, several persons induced to lead in prayer, and a weekly prayer meeting established.

Lauderdale circuit, W. T. Browning, L. P.: Lauderdale Church—9 accessions, more than that number of conversions, membership generally revived.

De Kalb circuit, R. A. Breland, P. C.: Pleasant Springs—25 accessions and many conversions, and people graciously revived. This makes 160 accessions on this circuit this year.

Marion circuit, Geo. Bancroft, P. C., assisted by Rev. R. F. Witt: Marion Church—28 accessions, and probably 50 conversions and reclamations.

Enterprise and Stonewall, Jno. W. Chambers, P. C., assisted by Rev. N. M. Clark: Enterprise Church—Almost the whole town brought to Christ, accessions to every church, 26 to ours, and probably 100 conversions and reclamations. Such a revival was never seen there before.

Waynesboro and State Line, J. V. Penn, P. C.: 12 accessions, and 20 conversions and reclamations; a sweeping revival; a deep, wonderful work of grace. T. L. Mellen, P. E. Oct. 14, 1892.

A SONG FROM THE HEART OF THE SEA.

BY L. A. FLETCHER.

I sing of the ocean antheims,
A song from the heart of the sea,
From over the great white billows
It was wafted, wafted to me.

It seemed like the voice of a prophet,
In tremulous tones and sweet,
Bidding me list to its message,
As it rippled and sang at my feet.

At times its voice seemed silenced,
And it sank to a whisper low,
And then like the sound of a trumpet
It pealed from its heart below.

And the rosy sun in its splendor
Flashed toward his parting light,
And then sank silently downward,
For the day had taken its flight.

And anon the stars in their glory
Crept out of the silence above,
While the great, glowing heart of the ocean
Still sang its wild song of love.

Till at last a golden bright moonbeam
Made trackless a shining way,
While ever the music seemed floating
Like the voice of an angel's lay.

And my thoughts grew strangely misty,
And my feet seemed to touch the shore
Of God's great sweet eternity,
And I heard His "Forevermore."

And the redeemed ones hallelujah,
And the great triumphant throng,
While the voice of the mighty billows
Mingled in glorious song.

Some Novelties in California.

If choice could always control, I would have remained well content among the swamps and mosses, sugar cane and genuinely warm-hearted Southern folks of Louisiana; but, since wishes don't rule, Sept. 8 found me aboard the California express "bound for the wild and woolly West." For several hundred miles we had confined on the train so much of New Orleans' atmosphere that I didn't feel at all lonesome or homesick. The principal effect of the said air, or rather manifestation of it, was the transformation of many of my fellow-passengers into illustrative pugilistic automatons and distastefully-inclined reportorial phonographs. I never heard so much prize-fighting comment and criticism in my life; but happily for the suffering air, one by one we got rid of these "pug" apores, and would look back to see them on the depot platform delighting the local and less fortunate "gentry" with graphic descriptions of "how Sully got done up."

The rolling plains of Texas met our expectations, with rich pasturage flecked with flowers for several hundred miles. Then we came to the border-land of such a drear, dry and desolate region as we have imagined the arid waste of Sahara to be. For hundreds of miles past El Paso, Texas, is a desert which, counting its barren borders, reaches clear into California—a dry, rocky, sandy, hot and hotter plain, relieved by thirsty-looking mountains and shifting sand-hills; deserted by all forms of vegetation except shrivelled patches of grass and that vegetable "salamander and air-eater," the Mexican cactus. Now and then we'd pass a "village" of furry, frisky prairie-dogs, that sat guard at the door of their warrens, and with knowing look inspected our speeding monster. These, and one or two lonely doves that seemed pitifully helpless in this kingdom of want, were about all the animal life to be seen, with two notable exceptions. The first of these was a flock of crows, which I hereby claim the honor of naming as a new variety. They are haversack crows, and I am prepared to assert on presumptive evidence, they everyone had a knapsack of "three days' provisions" strapped under their wings. This region, like the wake of Sherman's march, has developed this rara avis. The other exception was the dirty, tangled-haired, brown-skinned, sombreroed Mexican greaser. I admire the splendid business faith of a railroad company like the Southern Pacific, that had courage to project its line through a land of such co-ordinate life as this—greasers, prairie-dogs and cacti. There are no farms or ranches or houses to be seen from the railroad, except where there is a station, and even these, few and far between, are inhabited and supported by railroad men. This revelation of affairs—the railroad supporting the country instead of vice versa—reminded me very forcibly of the two Yankees, so thrifty that they got rich while in jail by swapping jack-knives. I asked a young man what they raised around El Paso; what supported the town. Said he: "Oh, the Mexicans plant melons and a few grapes, and such truck." And I, used to boxes and bales and hogheads of staples, as a town's visible support, pressed him further, and got, as my best answer, that the city was a railroad center. Maybe some one else can solve this economic problem; I can't.

Before reaching California, we passed out of the border-land we have been describing into the hot realities of the Arizona desert. Here the siroccos, blasting hot, sweep continuously across the almost seething sand; and all day shut in the sweat-box cars, we literally sweated. The only enjoyable experience we had was our view for the first time of that strange phantom sight, the mirage. The blazing white light of the fiery sun beat upon the radiating sand, and far away through the darting beams of heat could be seen a cool and placid lake, whose pellucid depths mirrored the graceful drooping of the trees along its shady border. So vivid was the illusion that this mook water presented to the eye, that when I saw real water in Salton Lake, miles away, I still thought it was a mirage. My mind involuntarily pictured the mockery to death that this desert will-o'-the-wisp has been to many a weary, thirsty pilgrim of '49, whose bones now parch in a winding sheet of sand.

After three days we arrived in California, a wonderland of wonders, into whose bourn no traveler ever enters—so says the East—and brings his veracity back with him. In the first place, the climate here is winterless, and also summerless. We have weather served in courses. First course in the morning, shivering; second course, pleasant; third course, cool and cooler, until at night we have Winter again. The best generalization I can give of the climate is to mix Summer and Winter together, and sprinkle on some Spring; then divide by two, and you have it. I don't mean to say the climate is not delightful. It is—sometimes, most always, generally—delicious. We have fruits, strawberries, etc., and vegetables the whole year round, and you can sing Mayflower songs appropriately in Winter, after the rains. And, by the way, it only rains at intervals during four months of the year. For eight months there is no rain, but along the coast heavy fogs prevail. Thus it is that rainless California is treeless, and, therefore, practically birdless. I am now speaking of Southern California, where wood is raised as a crop, and sells at prices ranging from $10 to $15 a cord. They plant the eucalyptus twigs, and sometimes in five years have a tree two feet in diameter. The eucalyptus is further peculiar in that it sheds its bark instead of its leaves, which are very much like the oleander.

The soil here is amazing. In some places, on what they call peat lands, it is about fifteen feet deep, and so rich you can use it to fertilize other land. You can plant corn on it almost as thick as you can sow it, and I'm afraid to give you the climax of how many bushels you will get to the acre. I now feel that I approach delicate ground, and, in telling you a few facts about this land's productiveness, I already feel my veracity trembling in the balances of your judgment.

When I first got here, upon my guileless ear were poured stories such as seemed to rival Baron Hyperbole's wildest fictions. I've heard of seventeen beets that weighed a ton; of one pumpkin that weighed five hundred pounds; of a ten-acre lot of growing pumpkins, over which you might walk—on the pumpkins—without setting foot on the ground; of a grape vine two feet thick, which bore in one year 4,000 pounds of grapes, etc.; and I'm prepared to believe it all, for I have seen with my own eyes plots of pumpkins that nearly tallied with the above story; and in the Chamber of Commerce, at Los Angeles, I saw a pumpkin, 3x8 feet, and weighing 200 pounds; a squash 2½ feet in diameter; beets about 2½ feet long and nearly a foot through; immense Irish potatoes, yielding 150 sacks to the acre; a watermelon weighing 121½ pounds; corn stalks 15 feet high; and I've seen giant cactuses, or cacti, about 2 feet in diameter and 30 feet high. I know this sounds like yarning, but it is true, nevertheless.

Haven't space to describe the novelties of Los Angeles and its ag- and con glomerate society. I will at a future time, if you desire it.

I am now in Santa Barbara, where I was stationed on joining the Los Angeles Conference. This is a celebrated sanitarium, and is, in many respects, a second and miniature edition of Boston, as it is the resort of New Englanders. The town has about 8,000 inhabitants, is down by the Pacific, and is supported by its yearly crop of tourists. I have a gem of a $9,000 church, with eleven memorial stained glass windows in it. I am not puffed up, however, for I won't say how many members I have. The work is disciplinary, hard, and spiritually muscular.

Now, Mr. Editor, permit me to say a private word of farewell to some of my dear Southern friends (that word Southern means more to me now than it ever did), then I am done. Written on a page in my Bible, and also on a tablet in my memory and heart, I find these names, showing where; in my short local ministry, I have preached Christ's gospel to God's loved ones, in revivals and protracted meetings: Clear Creek, Gilead, Simmesport, Homer, Mt. Zion, Greenboro, Ala.; Flat Woods, Ala.; Plantersville, Bastrop, and Baton Rouge. To you, dear brethren, of these places to whom I have preached, I say, "Good-by," which means, "God be with you." I remember you all with love and tenderness, heightened because I'm far away. Let us be true to God and "faithful unto death," and then, if we meet no more, in time will clasp hands again in the great beyond.

HUBERT D. KNICKERBOCKER.
1223 Santa Barbara St., Santa Barbara, Cal.

Letters from O. B. Diah.

ECONOMY.

My Dear Cousin Jack: I was much gratified to learn from your letter of recent date that the Conference had taken you in on trial, and that you had been sent to a circuit. Of all the things to be done in the world, I think to preach the gospel is the best. If you will now only be true and keep yourself pure, why, you can do a great deal of good in the world! I write this to you as your inexperience might mislead you. I heard of a man once who evidently wanted to make money. He set up a family grocery store. He had many customers, but when payday came they did not turn up. He was disgusted and said he would get at something else. So he studied medicine and did a large practice, but got no pay scarcely. He then went about saying that people would not pay to live either way—by way of eating or taking medicine. He has soured of life and become a hermit.

So, dear Jack, you will find that many people will not pay for the most sacred things of life; so I write to inform you and get you to begin right by practicing economy.

The first years of my ministry were only sufficient to enable me "just to come out" by the help of socks given by the good sisters and a suit of clothes given by a brother for being very attentive while his dear wife was sick and writing an obituary when she was dead, and a pair of fine shoes by a brother who was just elected as a delegate to the Annual Conference. Let me see: The first year I received $186. The next year I was on the same circuit and got $155. The third year I was on another circuit, as the Bishop saw I might have gone to the wall had I been sent back for the third time. I tell you, cousin, our itinerant system is a glorious thing! Well, to tell you, I had to pay board, horse-feed, washing, buy my books and clothes and give my tithes (do not ever fail to pay your tithes, though you are a preacher), traveling expenses to Conference, etc.

How did I do it? Well, here was my plan: My board was so much, with time only to be counted when I was there, and I made it "convenient" to respond to all the invitations extended, of course, always avoiding the limit—i. e., staying too long at a place. Fortunately, it was in the country, and the invitations were plentiful. It was a big circuit, with nine appointments, fully fifty miles long, and the widest place about twenty. It was diamond-shaped. Then I was a junior preacher and only got around every two months, so the friends I made were glad to see me. I was nearly equal to the presiding elder! He comes quarterly.

So each of those years were spent in peace and happiness, studying and preaching, visiting from house to house. And my board bill was, I think, for each year about $75, including horse-feed and washing. So I came out all right and bought a new suit of clothes for Conference and a new saddle and bridle for the faithful horse.

Of course, I am thankful for all the little presents I got while on that circuit. In my next I will tell you how I came out when I got to be a "station" preacher, married, and with rent to pay. Your cousin,

O. B. DIAH.

The Theological and Pastoral Society of the Sardis District, North Mississippi Conference.

The Fall meeting of this society has just been held, Oct. 6 and 7, at the hospitable little town of Nesbit. There were nine members present and several laymen from different churches in the district. The meeting lasted two days, with morning and afternoon sessions. Each session was largely attended by the good people of Nesbit. Papers were read on the subjects assigned the different members, and after each essayist had presented his paper, the subject was given general discussion. Some of the questions before us elicited considerable discussion. This was by far the best meeting the society has had since its organization over two years ago. The idea of such an organization was a happy thought. It did not originate with us, but ours has the honor of being the first organized in the North Mississippi Conference. And we see much good resulting from it. The meeting together of the preachers in a district twice a year—and the laymen are now beginning to attend—is of itself very profitable. But each member is expected to prepare carefully, at least, one paper for each meeting and to come prepared to enter into the discussion of every subject on the published programme. It is safe to say that we have no preacher so advanced either in years or learning that a society of this kind would not be very helpful to him. The absence of T. W. Dye and T. Cameron made a change necessary in the programme for the preaching services of the first day. Bros. Richey and Johnson preached in their stead and gave us excellent sermons. At the morning hour of the second day Rev. H. C. Morehead gave a sermon on "Sanctification," as per published programme. His discourse was clear, strong, convincing, and was accompanied with the Divine Spirit. Indeed, God's approval was manifest in all that was said and done. The old-time fire came on us when the subject of revivals was being discussed, and at the conclusion of each preaching service some one was received into the church, and nearly every Christian present was made to rejoice.

The people of Nesbit are not only kind and hospitable, but they are religious. May the debt on the parsonage soon be lifted, and their anticipated and much-needed church be erected in the near future and dedicated to the service of God!

The next meeting of the Theological and Pastoral Society of the Sardis district will be held some time next Spring at the town of Courtland.

J. W. MALONE.

The W. C. T. U.—The National Convention.

To the Editor:

The National Woman's Christian Temperance Union's nineteenth Annual Meeting will be held in the M. E. Church, Denver, Col., Oct. 28 to Nov. 2, inclusive. The national president, Miss Frances E. Willard, will preside, refreshed by her recent sojourn in England, with Lady Henry Somerset. This charming president of the British Woman's Temperance Association, who won the American heart last Winter, will accompany Miss Willard to the New World, and again be a member of our National Convention. William T. Stead and his gifted wife will also cross the waters to honor the annual gathering of the clans. Among these and other distinguished guests the W. C. T. U. would like to welcome the editor and staff of your able journal.

Believing in the educational powers of the press, and knowing that as many men read so they think, and realizing the urgent need of public education upon the temperance questions of the day; believing in your sympathy with the creation of a universal sentiment in favor of all movements which tend to ennoble men and broaden the life of women—as exponents of the greatest power that broods over the people, the American newspaper—we ask your co-operation in giving wings to the work of this National Convention, as well as to all efforts of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union for the betterment of human condition. With cordial appreciation of past courtesies, I am, with best wishes,

Very sincerely,
HARRIET B. KELLS,
Nat. Supt. Press.

A Day of Fasting and Prayer.

The Friday before Thanksgiving Day has been chosen as a day for fasting and prayer by the Parsonage and Home Mission Society, and all the members are earnestly requested to keep it in true humility before God. All who desire greater consecration and more earnest work for Christ are asked to unite with us in prayer on the day appointed.

The greater the cause for thankfulness for the material blessings bestowed upon our country, the deeper should be our penitence for failures in duty to God and our fellow-men. The subject of prayer for the day is, that Christ may reign in our land. A special prayer should be made that God will use our society as an instrument in his hands for hastening the coming of his kingdom; that we, the women of the Methodist Church, South, may be awakened by the Holy Spirit to a fuller realization of our responsibility for the spiritual poverty of a land so rich in this world's goods. Let us not, like Cain, bring as a thank-offering the first fruits of the earth while the blood of our dying brother rests upon our souls, but, trusting in the blood of the Lamb, humbly make our confessions before Almighty God, and renew our vows of consecration to his service in the salvation of souls. We most earnestly desire that all the auxiliaries shall on that day hold special meetings for prayer.

Mrs. E. E. WILKY, Pres.

LUICINDA B. HELM,
Gen. Sec. P. and H. M. Society.

A Call from Simmesport.

How I would like to possess the ready pen of "Bill Arp" to write this letter; for the extent of the impression lies more in how we say anything than in what we say. I would like for some of our good Methodist friends to visit this country and take a view of it for themselves. One is more inclined to believe what he sees than in what he hears, however little conceit there is in his nature. The engineers are dreadfully timid about approaching the banks of the Atchafalaya. They have located the lines for the new levees back of a great many residences, consequently the inmates will be thrown out to the merolous waters. Some have left; others extremely desirous of leaving;

but it requires something besides a great desire to defray expenses in moving. The water this year was slow, but sure in coming; overpasses numerous; crops destroyed.

Our especial trouble is that we, the Mite Society of the Simmesport M. E. Church, feared that the frequent overflows would undermine our church, and at the beginning of the year, when our country had bright prospects, we engaged a mechanic, purchased lumber and built a more solid foundation, etc. Since, computing all expenses, we find that we are one hundred and fifty dollars on the debit side of the account. We thought best to have no pugilistic combat or entertainment of any kind, but to inform our liberal brethren of the more prosperous lands of our condition, and ask for assistance in this, our hour of need. Give us a little aid, and when our levees are high and strong enough to bid defiance to the mad waters, we will not be slow in responding to a like appeal.

MRS. N. NORWOOD,
Secretary Simmesport Mite Society.

Letter from Texas.

MR. EDITOR: Some time in June—I think it was—I wrote you a long, glowing letter from this part of Texas, giving you my idea of the country and its many advantages. That letter was written in perfect honesty, looking at the country and its surroundings at that time of observation. I think though now that it would be unjust to my friends of the ADVOCATE—who read my first letter—to withhold a little further information on the subject that I have gathered by experience and observation since that letter was written. The Summer here has proved very trying on my family. On account of the intense glare of the sun on the prairie, we have lost about twenty per cent. of our eyesight since coming here. Another item that our people ought to be told about is, that water during the Summer is so scarce that nearly all the oldsters give out and the people are compelled to drink tank (pond) water for several weeks, sometimes months, through the Summer. Of course, you need not be told that this water is the prolific cause of a great deal of sickness. This is a very unhealthy country through the Summer, and will be until the people stop drinking tank water.

All I wrote in my first letter was true, looking at things as I saw them at that time; but I hope you will publish this as a postscript, so that any of my friends who might intend to come here on my recommendation of the country may do so with the advantages and disadvantages clearly set forth on both sides.

This is a good country; but, like every other, it has its lights and shadows. With kind regards to you and my friends of the ADVOCATE, I am,
Yours sincerely,
H. BRADFORD.

Wortham, Texas, Oct. 5.

Missionary Debt—Mississippi Conference.

It is greatly to be desired that these closing weeks of the Conference year be marked by thank-offerings to God for his goodness and the multitude of his mercies to us. Let the people be encouraged to "trust in the Lord, and do good;" to lean on his arm, confide in his word, and do their duty. "So shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed."

The district solicitors will visit various points and personally solicit contributions. Letter writing seldom pays—seldom satisfies. "According as the Lord hath prospered," so let our gifts be.

T. L. MULLEN.

Famine has killed its thousands; pestilence its tens of thousands; and war its hundreds of thousands. But intemperance, according to Mr. Gladstone, has killed more than war, pestilence and famine combined. For famine, great plagues of grain; for pestilence, rigid quarantine; for war, dreidubs and triple alliances. But for intemperance, legalized saloons on every street corner. "What fools these mortals be!"—The Voice.

SUNDAY-SCHOOL LESSON.—Oct. 23, 1892.

By Rev. WM. H. LA PRADÉ, D.D.

Peter at Cæsarea.

Acts x, 30-48.

GOLDEN TEXT.—"Through his name who ever believeth, in him shall receive remission of sins." (Verse 48.)

On the morning following the arrival of the messengers from Cornelius, Peter, accompanied by "certain brethren from Joppa"—six of them he tells us in Chap. xi, 13—went with them to Cæsarea. The day following brought them to the house of Cornelius, who met them at the door and would have worshipped Peter had the apostle not stopped him at once, assuring him that he, himself, was only a man. Entering the house, Peter found "many that were come together," called by Cornelius to meet and hear the message promised by the angel.

Without loss of time Peter at once made known how that God had taught him that he "should not call any man common or unclean," and asked the purpose of Cornelius in sending for him.

Vers. 30-33. Replying to Peter's question, Cornelius states the circumstances recorded in our last lesson, expresses his great gratification that Peter had come to him, and presents himself and all the assembled company as ready to be taught according to the purpose of God.

The prompt, open manner of Cornelius in the whole matter indicated great earnestness and sincerity.

Vers. 34, 35. This declaration does not seem startling to us now, but it was a most remarkable thing for a Jew to say in that day. In the very heart of Jewish thought was the belief, nourished and strengthened since the days of Moses, that God was a "respector of persons." Never before had Peter said such a thing; never before believed it even. To the Gentiles, represented by the company there, it was the beginning of a new era. To Jew and Gentile it meant a revelation of the moral character of God, of the great brotherhood of man, of the universal application of the principles of justice and mercy. From that time it was known that on the basis of life and character, not of race or nationality, all men should be judged.

Vers. 36, 37. Peter supposes that Cornelius and his associates could not be ignorant of the leading facts of the life of Jesus, and of his death and resurrection, and refers to these things by way of introduction.

Vers. 38. Let us note the facts Peter here mentions as characterizing Jesus:

1. He was anointed with the Holy Ghost.
2. He was anointed with power.
3. He went about doing good.
4. He healed those who were oppressed of the devil.

The source of all this power and goodness Peter states, finally—"for God was with him."

Vers. 39. Note the personal, direct testimony of Peter. He does not simply state these facts as being generally known, but assumes responsibility for the statement. "We are witnesses," he says. To be witness for Jesus is the chief duty of Christians—witness of regenerating grace, as well as earthly life. The cross is frequently spoken of as a tree, both in the Old and the New Testament.

Vers. 40, 41. The fact and the proofs of the resurrection of Jesus, Peter gives plainly and boldly. Again he claims to have witnessed these things. The claims of Jesus to divine power and nature rest finally on the fact of his resurrection; so Peter emphasizes this. He leaves no room for the theory that the disciples were deceived. They, himself included, "did eat and drink with him after he rose from the dead."

Vers. 42. Read Acts i, 7, 8, and Matthew xviii, 18-20. To declare what Jesus had said, to testify as to what he did—to do this as having heard and seen—is the sum total of witness-bearing by speech. For the rest the life must declare.

Christ is judge in a double sense. His life is the standard; his decision concerning us determines our destiny. "Quick and dead" means all.

Vers. 43. Read Jeremiah xxxi, 33, 34, and Isaiah lv, 67. As Cornelius was a worshiper of Jehovah, Peter assumed that he was acquainted with the prophets, and knew that salvation should come through the Christ. That Jesus was the Christ he had just declared. The offer, through Christ, of salvation to every man is clearly stated. Peter now understanding that the Gentiles were also men.

Vers. 44. Here was the proof that God approved Peter's interpretation and application of both the commission to preach and the vision of Joppa. "The Holy Ghost fell on them all," Gentile and Jew alike. The doctrine of exclusive privilege was gone forever; any man of faith became "of the seed of Abraham;" Jesus was the Son of man, dying for man, not the son of David dying for the Jews. Peter's hearers believed, and God honored their faith, without "respect of persons."

Vers. 45, 46. The Jews, six of them, who came with Peter from Joppa. They properly judged that this strange proceeding was introductory to the general incoming of the Gentiles, and was not to be regarded as special to Cornelius and his company. This was a revelation to them. It was counter to all their Jewish notions; no wonder they were astonished.

Vers. 47, 48. Water baptism is typical of the baptism of the Holy Ghost. If God had baptized with his Spirit, why should not Peter with water? Why should not these Gentiles be formally received into the church, if they were, as clearly they were, accepted of God? In the name of the Lord (Jesus) they had believed; in the name of the Lord he commanded that they be baptized.

From that moment a new meaning was seen in the words of the great commission, "Go ye into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." Judaism received its death-blow when the Holy Ghost fell on Cornelius.

A Wife in a Barrel.

BY MRS. L. GRAY SADLER.

Away down the ages, in an Augustinian convent at Nimpfchen, Germany, some nuns were gathered together, discussing eagerly the wonderful things that were then transpiring and agitating all Germany.

The fire that the bold Reformer kindled was lighting up some of the darkest corners in the land, and the light of divine truth shone in on some of the almost impregnable strongholds of superstition, which the Church of Rome promulgated in the name of religion, and exposed their true character. It had even then penetrated some of the cloisters and convents that were so thickly scattered wherever enough of the faithful, but deluded, men and women could be made, to believe that they could serve God only by renouncing the world and immolating themselves in a convent or cloister. Monks and nuns, awakened and emboldened by Luther's example, were reading the Bible for themselves, though many of them had to do so by stealth.

"If Luther is right and the Bible is true, then we are wrong.... Do men light a candle and put it under a bushel?" said Elizabeth von Canitz. "To-day I read in that blessed Book this passage: 'Let your light so shine before men that others, seeing your good works, may be led to glorify your Father which is in heaven.'"

"Yes, indeed," said Margareta von Staupitz; "that is the command of the good God—and how can we obey him immersed in these cloisters?"

"I wonder at you, Margareta, staying so contentedly here, and your cousin, Dr. Staupitz, so valiant a reformer and the tutor of the great Martin Luther!" said Eva von Schonfeld. "I mean to get away out of this just as soon as I can."

"It is all a mistake, a terrible mistake, shutting up ourselves here in a convent in order fully to serve God," said Catharine von Bora, excitedly. "I believe one could serve him far better by mingling with the world and doing good to his creatures. There are poor people enough around Stein Langel, my home, and in Bitterfeld to occupy all my time. I wish I was there at this very moment."

"Why do you not go then?" said Veronica von Zeschan, niece of the prior of the Augustinians in Grimsa.

"O sister," said Margareta von Zeschan, lifting up her hands in holy horror at the impetuosity of such a speech; "what will our uncle say? Only think of the solemn and sacred vows we have taken!"

"We had better break a vow or a promise that we made in our ignorance than keep it against our conscience, and I am determined to leave this place just as soon as I can get away, as Eva says she will, for I am miserable here," said Veronica.

"And I, too, sister," said Margareta von Staupitz; "and Eva Gross and Lauretta von Gohlitz say the same, and we have written to our parents that our remaining here is incompatible with the salvation of our souls."

"And did they say you could leave?" said Catharine von Bora, earnestly.

"Nay, indeed," answered Margareta von Schonfeld; "but I am not disheartened by their refusal. God has enlightened us as to our duty, and he will open a way for us to leave this place in the face of all opposition."

"Let us ask the good God to help us, for the light that is shining in on our souls and burning within our hearts must not be hidden behind a convent door," said Elizabeth von Canitz.

"That we will do, and when we meet to-morrow who knows but that the good God may speak to some of us and show us an open door whereby we may go out of this place in answer to our prayers!" said Veronica von Zeschan.

When the morrow had come, and they were assembled "with one accord" in the same place, Catharine von Bora was the first to break the silence. "Sisters," she said, "while I was wrestling with the good God in my cell, just before the morning dawned, something whispered, as it were, in my ear, and said, 'Go to your good friends, Leonard Koppe and Wolff Tomitz, and they will help you to escape from this place.'"

"That, indeed, does seem to point to a way out of our perplexity; but how will you go to them?" said Margareta von Staupitz.

"I will speak to Leonard Koppe myself," said Catharine.

"Not Leonard Koppe, the senator!" said Eva, in surprise. "Surely so wealthy a citizen would not dare to aid us!"

"The very same!" said Catharine von Bora. "Listen to me. I have a plan, and I am confident my plan is a good one. If you all really desire to escape to your friends, it will be very easy. I will ask Wolff, who is a devout Christian man, to aid us, and I will tell him how to do it; and he will surely like my plan."

"What is your plan, Catharine? We are all ready to acquiesce in it, whatever it may be," said Lauretta von Gohlitz.

"It is this," said Catharine. "I will tell Wolff to bring empty barrels to the refectory, and these shall be our chariots of state. There are just nine of us who are determined to get away from these walls at all hazards. The stout horses of Citizen Tomitz will easily convey this precious cargo to a place of safety."

The pious nuns all clasped the hands of Catharine von Bora and, with one accord, bid her God-speed, crossed themselves and scattered to their respective duties with hearts aglow with the thought of deliverance so near at hand. Catharine von Bora, while going through the daily routine of her monotonous tasks, watched her opportunity, and, under pretext of visiting a sick woman, went where she knew she would be likely to see Wolff Tomitz on the way; and sure enough she saw him coming toward her. Without much preliminary explanation, she unfolded her plan. He could hardly believe what he heard, but applauded her proposal and promised that he would surely help her carry it out to the very letter. He would go immediately to Leonard Koppe, and he knew that he would lend his aid and help him get the barrels. In two days she might be ready with her sisters to fill each one of them. As Catharine von Bora hid Wolff good-day, she said: "Remember; there are just nine of us."

As Wolff supposed, Leonard Koppe was only too glad to be of assistance to the nuns in their laudable efforts to be freed from the superstitious domination of Roman priest-craft that had so long veiled their mental vision, and so it happened that two days thereafter the country people looked up from their tasks and saw the capacious wagon of Citizen Tomitz rolling along with its heavy freight of barrels toward Torgau. Leonard Koppe sat gravely by his side, and within each barrel an escaped nun sat trembling with apprehension while she was rapidly nearing a place of freedom.

When it was told to Martin Luther, he rejoiced that so many slaves to superstition had been emancipated; but he little thought that his future wife was among that precious cargo. Like some of the other reformers, although he strongly advocated the marriage of the clergy, he was not yet ready to follow his own teachings. He met this fair bevy of girls in the role of escaped nuns and rejoiced with them over their freedom; but he said afterwards that he had not the remotest idea that either of them would ever be more than a sister in Christ to him. Years after he confessed that "if he had thought of marrying at that time, he would have chosen Eva von Schonfeld, for he had a suspicion that Catharine von Bora was very proud and haughty." It was a good thing for him that he showed a better judgment later on. Melancthon and Carlstadt were married, but Luther writes: "Our Wurtemberg people are giving wives to the monks; but they shall not force one upon me."

But Luther could not stem the tide that was setting on in this direction. His sovereign, who favored the Reformation, wished him to confirm his precepts by practice. His friends and his aged father added their entreaties. More than all, the thought came to him: "Marriage is the ordinance of God. Celibacy is ordained of Rome." His mind was made up. And then his thought immediately turned to Catharine von Bora. He had seen and heard enough of her to know that his former impression concerning her was erroneous. It was she that had planned and executed the escape from the convent. She was the leader of those nuns. She would make a good wife. But when his friends learned of his decision, then a great opposition arose. They wanted him to marry, but not a nun; for there was a popular superstition that many believed, that "anti-christ should be born of the union of a monk and a nun." But opposition only strengthened his determination. To his opposers he said: "I'll do it. I'll play this trick to the world and to the devil. I'll content my father and marry Catharine."

Not acquainting his most intimate friends, Luther took Brugenhagen, Cranaoh, and Apel, a lawyer, and repaired at once to the house of Reichenbach, the town clerk, and sued for the hand of his foster-daughter, Catharine. The fair maiden was so taken by surprise that she thought the great Doctor was only amusing himself at her expense; but, finding that he was in earnest, she consented to become his wife, and, Mrs. Cranaoh with Dr. Justus Jonas soon after appearing, the ceremony was performed by Brugenhagen. This unique courtship and marriage took place when Luther was forty-two and Catharine twenty-seven, June 13, 1525. A few friends were invited to dinner the following day, and two weeks afterward Luther publicly conducted his wife home, where he made a feast to which his parents and some distant friends were invited. Spalatin, Amsdorf, and the good Koppe, who had brought him unknowingly his future wife in a barrel, were there among the guests.

This union of hands and hearts brought about so strangely was one of the most lovely marriages known. Luther was never weary of praising his Kate, and labored often with her when she could not be with him in his study. The great Martin Luther had been her beau ideal of perfection for years, and it was a joyous surprise when he asked her to be his wife. He, writing to his friend, Stietel, of her, says: "Kate, my rich, sends you her greeting; through mercy she is well, and is complaisant, obedient and obliging in a greater degree than I could have hoped for—God be thanked!—so that I would not exchange my poverty for the wealth of Croesus." When he was writing his "Exposition of the Epistles," he says of her: "She is my epistle, to which I have betrothed myself; she is my Catharine von Bora." The beautiful, happy married life of this renowned couple was a greater argument in favor of the marriage of the clergy than all of Luther's sermons and arguments combined, and the noble character of Catharine was shown and proven to the world by Luther's continued praise of her, even on to the end of their grand and well-spent lives. In 1538 Luther writes to a friend: "If I were a young man, I would rather die than marry again, though a queen were offered me, after my Kate."

When Catharine von Bora planned the escape for herself and sisters from the convent at Nimpfchen, in the barrels, little did she think of the great honor that was in store for her; but God was leading her and showing Luther the path by which he might walk by her side. Luther found his wife in a barrel; but a barrel of gold or diamonds could not have bought her, for he said: "I value her more than the kingdom. I love my Kate; yes, more than I love myself. She is the gift of God."

Twenty-one years they lived in conjugal happiness. Though troubles assailed them, they never caused a cloud to darken the horizon of their domestic bliss. At Elisen, where Luther was born, he sleeps the blessed sleep. At Torgau, where Tomitz and Koppe delivered their precious cargo of barrels, sleeps for aye his "blessed widow," Catharine von Bora.

To make the hair grow a natural color, prevent baldness, and keep the scalp healthy, Hall's Hair Renewer was invented, and has proved itself successful.

BOOKS AND PERIODICALS.

OCTOBER PERIODICALS.

—BOOK NEWS. John Wanamaker, Philadelphia. Price, fifty cents.

—THE GOSPEL IN ALL LANDS. Hunt & Eaton, New York. Price, $1.

—GOOD HOUSEKEEPING. C. W. Bryan & Co., Springfield, Mass. Price, $2.40.

—THE AMERICAN AGRICULTURIST. Orange Judd Company, New York. Price, $1.50.

—THE REVIEW OF REVIEWS, New York. Price, $2.50. This is one of the best monthlies that comes to our table.

—OUR LITTLE ONES. Russell Publishing Company, Boston. Price, $1.50. This is the best magazine for the "wee little ones" that we know.

—THE BOOK-BUYER. Charles Scribner's Sons, New York. Price, $1. If you want to know about books, this is the monthly for you to have.

—THE FORUM. Forum Publishing Company, New York. Price, $5. We think so much of this monthly that we have had it bound from the beginning.

—THE TREASURY. E. B. Treat, New York. Price, $2.50. This is a first-rate periodical for preachers, to whom it will be sent for $2. We commend it heartily.

—CHRISTIANITY IN EARNEST. A. J. Kynett, Philadelphia, Pa. Price, fifty cents. This is a bi-monthly devoted to church extension, and the organ of the Church Extension Board of the M. E. Church.

Commercial travelers invariably provide themselves with Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

As you increase in years, it will be a joy to be conscious that you have endeavored, however feebly, to walk with God.—T. D. Woolsey.

Important. Salvation Oil, the greatest cure on earth for pain, is only 25 cents.

Believe me, the talent of success is nothing more than doing what you can do well, and doing well whatever you do.—H. W. Longfellow.

Scrofula in the Neck

The following is from Mrs. J. W. Tillbrook, wife of the Mayor of McKeesport, Penn.:

"My little boy Willie, now 6 years old, two years ago had a bump under one ear which the doctor said was Scrofula. He finally lanced it and it discharged for some time. We then began giving Willie Hood's Sarsaparilla and he improved very rapidly until the sore healed up. Last winter it broke out again, followed by Erysipelas. We again gave him Hood's Sarsaparilla with excellent results and he has had no more trouble. His cure is due to Hood's Sarsaparilla."

Hood's Sarsaparilla

It has never been very robust, but now seems healthy and daily growing stronger."

Hood's PILLS do not purge, pain or gripe, but act promptly, easily and efficiently.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

512 Dillwyn St. Phila., Pa.
I have taken a great deal of medicine in my life, but no remedy ever helped me so much as Ayer's Sarsaparilla, which I consider the best blood purifier in the world.
E. W. W.

CURES OTHERS, Will Cure You.

BEECHAM'S PILLS

(Tasteless—Effectual.)
For Sick-Headache, Impaired Digestion, Liver Disorders and Female Ailments.

Renowned all over the World. Covered with a Tasteless & Soluble Coating. Ask for Beecham's and take no others. Made at St. Helens, England. Sold by druggists and dealers. Price 25 cents a box. New York Depot, 365 Canal St.

Wall Paper.

Heath, Schwartz & Co., Lim.

116 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.

MATTING,

Lace Curtains,

Upholstering Goods,

Oil Cloths,

Screens

AND

EASELS.

LOOKING AHEAD.

A journal devoted to the training of the young—to the development of body, mind and character; a counsellor for parent and teacher. Price, $1 per annum. To all who subscribe before Jan. 1, 1893, 50 cents cash, in advance.

Address, LOOKING AHEAD, Mansfield, La.

Dr. Wm. H. Holcombe

AND

Dr. Gayle Aiken,

HOMEOPATHISTS,

No. 286 St. Charles Ave., NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Cases treated by correspondence.

For $35

One of Our Elegant

SOLID GOLD WATCHES,

Stem-wind and Set.

Send for catalogue of designs.

P. M. HILL, Jeweler,

493 Dryades St., New Orleans, La.

West Capitol Street,

Jackson, Miss.

Kursheed's Marble Works

120 and 122 Camp St., New Orleans

THE BEST HYMN BOOK

FOR EVANGELISTIC SERVICE,

SUNDAY-SCHOOLS AND PRAYER MEETING

Gospel Hymns Nos. 5 and 6

COMBINED.

400 PAGES. 438 HYMNS.

Minio, $60 per 100; 70c. ea. by Mail.

Words, $20 per 100; 22c. ea. by Mail.

The John Church Co., 74 West 4th Street, Cincinnati.

The Biglow & Main Co., 76 East 9th Street, New York.

COMMUNION WINE!

For sale by

A. W. SKARDON & SON, Grocers,

Cor. Magazine and Jackson Sts., New Orleans.

This wine is used by the Carondelet Methodist Church, Louisiana Avenue Methodist Church, and by several other churches in New Orleans.

Queen and Crescent Route.

94 MILES the SHORTEST.

New Orleans to Cincinnati.

NEW VESTIBULED TRAIN.

The Queen and Crescent Special leaves New Orleans every afternoon at 5:00 P. M. via Birmingham and Chattanooga, for Cincinnati, Vestibuled and Gas Lighted. Through to New York and Washington without change. No extra charge for this superior train service.

TIME TO CINCINNATI, 26 HOURS.

TIME TO NEW YORK, 47 HOURS.

The Queen and Crescent, and East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia are now running through Pullman Vestibuled Buffet Sleeping Cars from New Orleans to New York without change. Time to New York via Washington only 43 hours.

Ticket Office: 34 St. Charles street.

Depot: Corner Press street and Levee.

R. H. GARRETT, Div. Pass. Agent, New Orleans, La.

D. MILLER, Traffic Manager.

D. G. EDWARDS, Gen'l Pass. and Ticket Agent, Cincinnati.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL R. R.

GREAT FAST MAIL ROUTE.

Four Daily Trains between NEW ORLEANS and CHICAGO.

The Only Line running Pullman Buffet Sleepers and Through Cars for All Classes to

CHICAGO.

Connecting with all Buffet and Dining Car Lines East, and the ONLY LINE Running Through Cars for All Classes.

FREE RECLINING CHAIR CARS TO CHICAGO.

St. Louis Without Change.

The Only Line running a Double Daily Train Service to ST. LOUIS.

ONLY ONE CHANGE OF CARS FROM NEW ORLEANS TO

Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York

The Great Steel Bridge, spanning the Ohio River at Cairo, completed, and all trains (freight and passenger) now running regularly over it, thus avoiding the delays and annoyances incident to transfer by ferry boat.

TICKET OFFICE: Corner St. Charles and Common Streets.

J. W. COLEMAN, Asst. Gen. Pass. Agt., N. O.

A. H. HANSON, G. P. A., Chicago.

Mississippi Valley Route.

L., N. O. and T. R'y.

All trains arrive and depart from new Passenger Station, cor. Howard Ave. and Rampart St.

Kansas City and Memphis

Fast Train..... 5:00 p.m. 8:30 a.m.

Vicksburg & Natchez Ex..... 8:30 a.m. 8:35 p.m.

St. Louis "Coast Train"..... 8:40 a.m. 10:00 a.m.

The Only Line running Solid Trains between New Orleans, Memphis and Vicksburg, with Modern Pullman Buffet Sleeping Cars through to Memphis and Kansas City.

The direct and favorite route to Kansas City, Denver, and All Points West.

The short line to Hot Springs and points in Arkansas and North Louisiana.

Commutation Tickets, Mileage Books, Party Rates and Week End Excursions.

Summer Excursion Tickets on Sale in season.

Ticket Office: St. Charles St., cor. Common.

J. L. DRAKE, Div. Pass. Agent.

J. W. COLEMAN, A. G. P. A.

A. H. HANSON, G. P. A.

READ! READ! READ!

Here is the book that everybody has needed The latest, best and only Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge, in convenient size.

Has the highest endorsements of very best critics. In this volume you will find anything you want.

Price: $3.50, $5 and $6.

Agents wanted in every county and parish in bounds of Mississippi Conference. Liberal Commission. Send $1.00 for prospectus and begin work.

Send me your orders for Sunday-school literature and any books you may want.

W. D. DOMINICK,

220 Capitol St., Jackson, Miss.

PARKER'S HAIR BALM

It does not merely perfume the hair, but it promotes a luxuriant growth. Never Fails to Restore Gray Hair to its Youthful Color. Cures itching dandruff & itching scalp. 50c. and $1.00 at Druggists.

Before purchasing any PEWS, PULPITS or any other Furniture, write Wm. No. 8 Noel, N. O., Tenn. FOR CATALOGUE.

CHURCH SCHOOL FURNITURE

CHURCH or write Wm. No. 8 Noel, N. O., Tenn. FOR CATALOGUE.

CHURCH SCHOOL FURNITURE

CHURCH or write Wm. No. 8 Noel, N. O., Tenn. FOR CATALOGUE.

CHURCH SCHOOL FURNITURE

CHURCH or write Wm. No. 8 Noel, N. O., Tenn. FOR CATALOGUE.

CHURCH SCHOOL FURNITURE

CHURCH or write Wm. No. 8 Noel, N. O., Tenn. FOR CATALOGUE.

CHURCH SCHOOL FURNITURE

CHURCH or write Wm. No. 8 Noel, N. O., Tenn. FOR CATALOGUE.

CHURCH SCHOOL FURNITURE

CHURCH or write Wm. No. 8 Noel, N. O., Tenn. FOR CATALOGUE.

CHURCH SCHOOL FURNITURE

CHURCH or write Wm. No. 8 Noel, N. O., Tenn. FOR CATALOGUE.

CHURCH SCHOOL FURNITURE

CHURCH or write Wm. No. 8 Noel, N. O., Tenn. FOR CATALOGUE.

CHURCH SCHOOL FURNITURE

CHURCH or write Wm. No. 8 Noel, N. O., Tenn. FOR CATALOGUE.

CHURCH SCHOOL FURNITURE

CHURCH or write Wm. No. 8 Noel, N. O., Tenn. FOR CATALOGUE.

CHURCH SCHOOL FURNITURE

CHURCH or write Wm. No. 8 Noel, N. O., Tenn. FOR CATALOGUE.

CHURCH SCHOOL FURNITURE

CHURCH or write Wm. No. 8 Noel, N. O., Tenn. FOR CATALOGUE.

CHURCH SCHOOL FURNITURE

CHURCH or write Wm. No. 8 Noel, N. O., Tenn. FOR CATALOGUE.

CHURCH SCHOOL FURNITURE

CHURCH or write Wm. No. 8 Noel, N. O., Tenn. FOR CATALOGUE.

CHURCH SCHOOL FURNITURE

CHURCH or write Wm. No. 8 Noel, N. O., Tenn. FOR CATALOGUE.

CHURCH SCHOOL FURNITURE

Christian Advocate.

Rev. D. L. MITCHEL, Publisher.
Office: 112 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.
SUBSCRIPTION: $1 PER ANNUM.
Ministers and wives of deceased Preachers, $1.

Rev. C. W. Carter, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. Lewis, Asst. Editor.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

REV. J. M. BEARD, D. D.
REV. S. S. KEENER.
REV. J. E. A. AHRENS, D. D.
MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.
REV. W. C. BLACK, D. D.
REV. W. B. LEWIS.
REV. R. J. JONES.
NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.
REV. W. T. J. SULLIVAN, D. D.
REV. J. D. CAMERON, D. D.
REV. T. C. WIER, M. D.

Thursday, October 20, 1892.

The Publishing Committee of the NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE will hold its annual meeting in the ADVOCATE building, 112 Camp street, New Orleans, on Wednesday, Oct. 26, at 11 A. M. J. M. BEARD, Chairman.

BRIEFS.

"Real estate agents are swarming into Jerusalem!" Think of that, will you?

Christianity says, "We seek not yours, but you." The world says, "We seek not you, but yours."

A marvelous statement is made concerning the Boston Advertiser. It is said that it "gave nine lines to the Sullivan-Corbett fight, and three and a half columns to the poet Whittier!"

Our preachers' meeting selected Dr. Beard to preach the sermon on Columbus Day. The service will be held in Felicity Street Church. We trust our people will all attend. The service will begin at 11 A. M.

The University of Chicago is in luck. A rich man of that city, C. T. Yerks, has authorized it to purchase a telescope with an objective of 45 inches in diameter, and to cost $600,000. It will be the biggest instrument in the world, and wonderful discoveries are expected from its use.

Will Bro. Carter, of the NEW ORLEANS, please note that we are now one ahead? A Texas preacher in charge starts off in the usual rut: "Our beloved presiding elder presided with his usual dignity, and looked into the church interests"—but here he jumped the deep-cut track and made a square turn into the new—"in a heartfelt manner."—Texas Advocate.

That "heartfelt manner" is a little ahead; but as soon as our presiding elders get deep into the meshes of the "fourth round"—then listen.

The Richmond Advocate and the Nashville Advocate have both spoken favorably of our suggestion that each Annual Conference formulate a plan for the better support of our Conference claimants. The Richmond says:

We applaud Dr. Carter's suggestion. Let each Annual Conference adopt the best plan its liberal-hearted men can devise to secure a larger and more reliable fund for the support of our invalid ministers and for the families of the dead. Out of the abundance of counselors will come the safety of a thoroughly good plan which may then be adopted by the General Conference.

We hear that several of our preachers in Louisiana are contemplating a transfer to some other Conference. If we understand the obligations of a minister, these brethren are making a mistake. There is at this time more need for ministerial service in Louisiana than at any time during the past twenty years. Can a preacher pick up and leave a needy field without incurring a very serious responsibility? Is a minister of Christ to look after his own welfare before he looks after the welfare of the church of Christ? We hope our brethren will consider these points before they finally determine this matter.

Opening the Scriptures.

There is a great deal of preaching these days. The number of preachers and the number of sermons they preach every week are simply enormous. But it is a fact that a great deal of what is called preaching is so called by compliment. It does not measure up to the standard, and, therefore, we judge it is not true preaching!

But where is the standard? We are afraid that some men in the holy vocation have gone to the wrong place for a standard by which to measure their sermons. There are numbers of books by very many writers on the subject of preaching. We have seen and read more than a few. Some of these books are interesting and, in some points, valuable. According to the learning and experience and skill of their authors, they tell us how to build a sermon so that every part, from exordium to peroration, shall fit into every other part, and present at last a complete structure, strong and beautiful. These books on "the composition and delivery of a sermon" have so captivated some ministers of the gospel that they have become slavish followers of the rules laid down, and an attentive hearer can detect the same rules governing the make-up of every sermon they deliver. The art of the sermon-maker is apparent in all the work, and that fact weakens the effect of preaching upon the mind and heart of the thoughtful hearer. These preachers have gone to the wrong place for the standard of preaching. They make sermons by the rules laid down in human books and deliver them according to the formulas of human elocution, and the result does not pay for the effort put forth. For it is evident to everybody that there is a great deal of preaching that amounts to nothing at all. It is as if the preachers were "beating the air" or "speaking to the wind." This is saying a good deal; but the facts bear out the assertion, that where one sermon accomplishes the object for which preaching was instituted, ten sermons accomplish nothing towards attaining that object.

Every true thing has its counterfeit, and there is as much counterfeit preaching as there are counterfeit dollars. The only difference is, the man who makes the counterfeit dollars does it with a wicked heart, while the man who does the counterfeit preaching does it because he follows wrong models. He has allowed himself to be deceived and does not know it. We have often asked ourselves the question: "Why is not our preaching more effective?" And we have come to this conclusion: If preaching is ordained of God for the conversion of sinners and the edification of saints in holiness, and if these results do not follow our preaching, then there is something defective about our preaching. Then the plain duty is to discover and remedy the defect. At this point we need not refer to our text-books on preaching to find out what is the matter with our preaching, for that would be simply to go deeper into the error.

There is a very simple narrative in Luke's Gospel which clears away all the obscurities and pours light upon this whole subject of preaching. In that narrative the Master-preacher exhibits the true model, and the effort of every preacher should be to copy that model as nearly as his natural endowments and the equipments of grace will allow him.

Redemption was completed in the great fact of the resurrection of our Lord, and the first preaching after redemption became a fact was by our Lord himself, and is, in the nature of things, the model by which all preaching must be measured.

When the Master set the example it is folly to follow some one else. He does not give us rules by which to preach, but shows us by preaching what preaching is.

The narrative to which we allude is in the twenty-fourth chapter of Luke's Gospel, and the preaching was done to the two disciples who went from Jerusalem to Emmaus. One verse describes the preaching: "And beginning at Moses and the prophets, he expounded unto them in all the Scriptures the things concerning himself." There is more in that short verse than can be found in all the books that have been written on the subject of preaching. The Master gives here the key to all true preaching. It is simply expounding the Scriptures concerning Christ. Rightly understood, we believe this excludes from the pulpit many themes that are very popular with preachers and people. There is much preaching about the Scriptures. That should be relegated to the theological seminaries. There is much preaching of personal experience. That should be confined to the experience meetings. The one great theme for gospel preachers is, "Christ as he is presented in the Scriptures," and it is large enough for every mind. The purpose of the Scriptures is to show Christ to the world. He said of them, "They are they which testify of me," and true preaching is "expounding in all the Scriptures the things concerning him."

The results of that first gospel preaching showed it to be of the true kind. Said those hearers afterwards: "Did not our heart burn within us, while he talked to us by the way, and while he opened to us the Scriptures?" By that "expounding of the Scriptures" they got a view of the Christ which set their hearts aflame, and they recognized the fact that the power of that preaching was in the "opening of the Scriptures to them concerning Christ." The Holy Spirit is not pledged to make any preaching effective, but that which opens the Scriptures concerning Christ. He is pledged to give point and power to the preaching which presents Christ as He has presented Him in the Scriptures which He has inspired. Brethren, expound the Scriptures, open the Scriptures so that the hearts of your hearers may catch the holy flame.

Millsaps College Opening.

As previously announced, Millsaps College had its opening and began its work on Thursday, Sept. 29, 1892. The day was lovely, fair and bright. The college grounds are ample, the situation beautiful and commanding, and the buildings substantial, commodious and admirably adapted to the purposes for which they were erected. How so much was done for so little money is hard to understand. Not a single inch of space in the entire building has been wasted. Every square inch has been utilized to some useful purpose. When landscape gardening has had time to do its work, Millsaps College campus will be one of the loveliest spots on the soil of Mississippi. This it should be.

At the hour of ten A. M. the college chapel was filled with an eager and expectant multitude, some five or six hundred in number. The religious exercises were conducted by Rev. C. G. Andrews, D. D. He read the twenty-eighth chapter of the Book of Job, and led in an appropriate prayer. On the rostrum were seated the president and faculty of the college, the members of the Board of Trustees present, the orators of the day, with as many distinguished visitors as could be accommodated. Near by sat the representatives of the secular press. It was a matter of general regret that Gov. J. M. Stone was sick and could not deliver the address that was expected of him. However, Col. C. E. Hooker, "the silver-tongued orator of Mississippi," took his place, and made a short address, which, in the way of beautiful diction and felicitous expression, was a model along that line of speaking. Mayor Henry, of the city of Jackson, was then introduced, and in a few well-timed remarks expressed the gratification of the citizens of Jackson at this auspicious opening, and outlined briefly their hopes for the future of this institution.

Then came the address of the occasion—the inaugural—by the president, Rev. W. B. Murrah, D. D. This address was broad, deep, clear, comprehensive and massive. It was a full and masterful statement of the work to be done by an institution like this. It was manifest to all present that Dr. Murrah had a full and comprehensive view of the work he had undertaken, and of the purposes for which this college was erected. Like a wise general, he has a complete map of the campaign before him. The large and intelligent audience present hung with silent, yet eager, attention on every word of this inaugural. It must have made a powerful impression upon the minds of the one hundred and more students who were present. They were there to take in the measure of the man with whom they were to deal for a term of years. They felt that he was a man among men. Dr. Murrah is not less gifted than Col. Hooker in the correct use of the choicest words and in well-rounded and finished periods. This address, taken as a whole, was both a promise and prophecy of great things for Millsaps College and for the young men who attend it.

Maj. R. W. Millsaps, for whom the college was named, and whose munificent gift of fifty thousand dollars to the endowment fund has stirred the hearts of Mississippi Methodists to the building and endowment of this institution, made a telling and wise speech as to the present needs and future wants and prospects of this college. He takes a sensible and business view of the situation. As viewed by him, the work of this college is only begun—the tree has just been planted, and it will be judged by its fruits.

Letters of congratulation and encouragement from Bishop Gallop and Dr. C. W. Carter were read by the president. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. T. L. Mellen.

This correspondent caught sight of the following preachers from the Mississippi Conference: Dr. W. C. Black, L. S. Jones, W. B. Lewis, B. F. Lewis, T. L. Mellen, T. B. Holman, R. D. Norsworthy, E. H. Moninger, R. S. Woodward, A. F. Watkins, W. D. Ferguson, M. L. Burton, Dr. C. G. Andrews, Ransom Jones and J. D. Crymes. Perhaps others were present, but I did not see them or get their names. Of the North Mississippi Conference I saw the following: G. W. Bachman, J. A. Randolph, J. M. Wyatt and W. H. Sanders. Others may have been on the ground. Prominent and influential laymen were present from nearly every section of the State.

One thing I noted with great pleasure: The students present came from all parts of the State. The patronage is general, not local. This is as it should be.

I am confident the college will open with one hundred and twenty-five pupils, perhaps more.

If our people will only rally to this school, and give it the support it ought to have, the time is near at hand when its halls will be full and the college will be the pride and glory of our Methodism in this State. The outlook is full of promise and radiant with hope. There ought to be full four hundred boys and young men here every year. That is the mark—four hundred.

GILDEROY.

[If it had not been for an inexcusable oversight on the editor's part, this communication would have appeared two numbers ago. We beg the pardoning grace of "Gilderoy" and Millsaps College.—EDITOR.]

Millsaps College.

The remarkable opening of Millsaps College is not only a source of satisfaction to the Methodists of Mississippi and the people of Jackson, but it is a fact suggestive of several not unimportant thoughts. That a college in Mississippi should at this time enroll, within two weeks of the beginning of its initial term, one hundred and twenty-one boys is a significant, as well as gratifying, fact. Sixty students at the opening, seventy-five in thirty days, and one hundred by the end of the first session, might well have satisfied every expectation; but the actual enrollment goes far beyond this, and, while necessitating new calculations as to the results, provokes thought as to reasons and causes.

In the first place, Millsaps College is a conspicuous witness to the value of liberal and judicious advertising. It is, for its age, the most extensively advertised college in the South. From the inception of the enterprise, and before the college had actual existence, the pulpits and the press had been brought into requisition to bring it before the public. The secular and religious press have contributed largely to the success of this promising institution.

In the next place, the wisdom of the Board of Trustees in locating the college in Jackson has received endorsement from the people in all sections of the State. The student body is representative of every part of our commonwealth, and the desirability of the location in respect to accessibility, healthfulness, morality, and so forth, is demonstrated.

Again, the necessity for the establishment of the college is clearly shown. Other colleges in the State have opened with their usual number, and the students now receiving instruction in Millsaps College are practically a net gain to the number of Mississippi boys attending college. A glance at the matriculation roll will show that a very small proportion of the students is from other colleges. Most of the boys are registered as having attended the public schools and high schools scattered over the State. They have, with few exceptions, been to no other college, and many of them would never attend college but for the establishment and endowment of Millsaps. The institution is cultivating a new field, working a new mine, and its success ought to be hailed with joy by every citizen of our State.

Finally, it is an evidence of the growing appreciation on the part of our people of the value of education, which is prophetic of good. Never before has the demand for educated young men been so great, and never before have our young men so fully realized the importance of a college training.

The agitation of the subject of education during the canvass for the endowment of Millsaps College has been largely instrumental in bringing about this encouraging state of things, and the young men who, as graduates from the college, will in a few years become teachers of our schools or fill positions of honor and trust in professional and commercial life, will contribute largely to the improvement of our people.

W. M. C.

NOTES.

"When you are nearest God, you are nearest man."—F. B. Myer.

It requires no courage to abuse people, nor does it require any brains. Abuse is a cheap commodity, but no just man or woman ever makes use of it.—Baptist Record.

Toronto, Canada, is a city of 200,000 inhabitants, with seventy-five saloons and one hundred and fifty churches! Is there any city or town in the United States that has twice as many churches as saloons?

What a curious world this is! There are some people who act as if sinners were too good to be damned; and there are others who act as if sinners were too contemptible to be saved! May the Lord save us sinners from both these classes!

We can conceive of circumstances when a conscientious Christian can vote for a Democrat or a Republican or a Third Party man or a Prohibitionist; but it is beyond our conception that circumstances can ever justify a conscientious Christian in voting for a man who denies the Christian religion.

The question in the literary world in England is, Who will be poet laureate in place of Tennyson? Several men are mentioned as being likely to succeed to that dignity. Among them Swinburne, Roht. Buchanan, Sir Edwin Arnold, William Morris and Lewis Morris, each of these having qualifications for that post of honor.

It is said that during the past year, eight thousand five hundred churches were built in this country. That is a very curious use for our people to put their money to, when we are assured almost every day that religion is dying out here! Twenty-three churches per day looks like the facts are against the assertion that religion is dying out.

No matter how much money a man is worth, if he don't make his boys earn their own living, he may rue it in the end. Mr. Cyrus W. Field, on his dying-bed, said:

My life is a wreck; my fortune gone; my home dishonored. I was so unkind to Edward when I thought I was being kind. If I had only had firmness enough to compel my boys to learn their own living, then they would have known the meaning of money.

"The law is made for the lawless," and not for the law maker. One of our esteemed exchanges published this:

We do not want any long communications from anybody on any subject. Let our contributors consult brevity. The age is too busy to read an article of three columns that might be condensed into twenty lines.

This pungent paragraph of law was followed in the same issue by a three-column editorial!

We have seldom, if ever, known an Annual Conference to so completely take a city as the late Pacific Conference did California's beautiful capital. By the Sabbath every avenue of life in a municipality of twenty-five thousand people had become impressed with the presence of a religious assembly. The daily papers gave wide and generous publicity to its proceedings; all the evangelical churches were open to our ministers, and the preaching produced a profound effect and interest. A leading layman of one of the largest churches in the city told us that the like had hardly ever been known before. Southern Methodism and the pure gospel it preaches are commanding a more generous attention on the Pacific Coast every year. It is the beginning of what we are yet to see.—Pacific Methodist Advocate.

One of the most touching scenes of the Conference session was the calling of the roll of supernumeraries. Few of them were present; but the message which they sent were fragrant with love and faith. The honored names of Grewell, Rice and Russell stood in this relation. Bro. Russell addressed the Conference, reviewing his labors of nearly fifty years, and expressing heroic confidence for the life eternal. During his address the Holy Ghost came down in a baptism on all hearts. The Conference tendered to Bro. Russell and Rice a spontaneous offering of over two hundred dollars. We have rarely witnessed such a demonstration of mighty and brotherly feeling as followed. The men of the heroic days who remained with us in the hour of each other in memory of the past and in blessed hope of the crowning day to come.—Pacific Methodist Advocate.

The ignorance of the denominations of each other's law and usages is very marked. The following from the Mid-Continent, an able Presbyterian paper, is in proof:

In the Methodist Episcopal Church the surplus men are made supernumerary or supernuminate. In our church the names of many of these ministers are kept on the rolls, and hence we are credited with scores of unemployed ministers who are either supernumerary or supernuminate.

It would be a new thing for the Methodist Church to have a "surplus" of preachers! For the enlightenment of our esteemed contemporary we will define the terms used above. A supernumerary preacher is one who is temporarily disabled in body and can not, therefore, do full work. A supernuminate preacher is one who is worn out in the work. Our "surplus," then, consists in the disabled and the worn-out preachers, and their "names are kept on the rolls" until they die and go to heaven.

PERSONAL AND OTHERWISE.

The Methodist Church at Wilson, La., is undergoing repairs.

Bishop Keener returned home last week, having stood his three weeks of work very well.

In Homer, La., a large fire occurred recently. The new jail was burned, and several other houses.

Rev. H. R. Singleton, of the Pacific Conference, has been transferred to the Mississippi Conference.

City property in Alexandria, La., has advanced $35,000 over last year. It is now valued at $503,228.

Will those brethren who promised to send for our "special editions" please send forward the same?

Bro. N. B. Norwood has been helping Bro. Roy on the Lower Coast Mission, and reports good work done.

Rev. R. M. Blocker, Rayne, La., Oct. 13, writes: "Received on the First home from Mrs. Rouge, $5."

The People's Bank at Summit, Miss., has been organized with a capital of $25,000. It will be ready for business, Nov. 10.

West Point, Miss., had a $70,000 fire last week, in which among other buildings the Methodist Church was destroyed.

Rev. J. M. Henry, who has been assisting Rev. C. B. Carter in a meeting at Crowley, La., reports a good attendance and good results.

That was quite a contrast: Walter Scott died listening to Lockhart reading the Bible; Tennyson died with a copy of Shakespeare in his hand!

The Whole Family is the name of a new monthly published by the Russell Publishing Company, Boston. The first number is excellent and gives promise of a good magazine for the whole family. Price, 75 cents per annum.

This is what Bro. Dunose says of Bishop Haygood's Pacific Conference talks: "The Bishop's deliverances were singularly shrewd and strong. His address to the graduates was a masterpiece of logic, sound speech and good sense."

The papers had this refreshing dispatch from New Iberia, La., last week: "District Attorney Broussard is waging an unrelenting warfare against the violators of the Sunday law and the law against carrying concealed weapons." The attorney is doing his duty, that's all.

Just as soon as a little leisure is afforded, Bishop Galloway will resume his letters about British Methodism. We venture to predict that these will be most instructive and interesting letters. Get your people to subscribe right away, that they may get this great benefit.

Dr. Hunnicutt, president of Centenary College, spent several days last week in our city. He preached on Sunday in Rayne Memorial Church to the edification of the people. He represents the college as making satisfactory progress in the work of this new session.

NOTES FROM OUR JACKSON OFFICE.

The Shiloh Camp Meeting has just closed. There were about fifteen accessions and about the same number of conversions.

Three more new students at Millsaps College last week. The number now is 121, and, at least, five more expected this week.

Millsaps College Library has a complete set of the Methodist Magazines and Quarterly Reviews from 1878 to date, the gift of Rev. A. F. Watkins.

One of the first, if not the first, weekly paper published in Mississippi was published in Natchez by Col. Andrews Marshchalk, over ninety years ago.

Bros. A. D. Miller, of the Bowerton circuit, and A. B. Nicholson, from Hazlehurst, gave us a pleasant call on their way from the Shiloh Camp Meeting. They both look well, and Bro. Miller seems in good trim for Conference.

From the New York Christian Advocate we learn that two of the missionaries from the M. E. Church have recently died. Bro. James Baume, of the South Indian Conference, and Miss Mary E. V. Pardoe, of the Woman's Board, in Japan.

The public schools of Jackson have enrolled to date nine hundred and ninety scholars. Five hundred are in the school for whites and four hundred and ninety in the school for blacks. This is a fine record, and portends a future for Jackson.

The missionary work among the Choctaw Indians has been encouragingly successful. During the past year, starting with nothing, there are now fifteen members, two churches, two Sabbath-schools, and at the next Quarterly Conference a native preacher will be licensed to preach. The salary of the missionary has been paid to date except $24, and a portion of that is on hand. Now, let those who have promised to aid in this good work come forward and pay their subscription, so that the fourth quarter salary of our faithful missionary can be paid.

We notice in the proceedings of the Pacific Conference that Rev. H. R. Singleton has been transferred to the Mississippi Conference. Bro. Singleton is remembered with pleasure by his brethren east of the Mississippi, and we extend to him and his family a cordial welcome among us again.

Bro. R. P. Lake, whose official headquarters in a large insurance business has been in Jackson for over a year, will move his family from Grenada in a few days and make this his permanent home. He and his family will occupy the house of the late Chief Justice Chalmers until their own home is built.

Bishop and Mrs. Galloway entertained the faculty of Millsaps College at tea one evening last week. President Murray, Professor and Mrs. Weber, Professors Patillo, Swearingen, and Black were present on the delightful occasion. The faculty have made a fine impression as Christian gentlemen, as well as excellent educators, and are the recipients of many social courtesies.

Bishop Granbery has written Bishop Galloway that he expects to be able to hold the North Mississippi and the Mississippi Conferences. It affords us very great pleasure to make this announcement, and we know it will be a source of equal gratification and pleasure to our Mississippi brethren to learn that the Bishop has sufficiently recovered to be with us.

The Minutes of the thirteenth Annual Meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of the Mississippi Conference are out in a very neat pamphlet form, reflecting great credit both on the editors and on the society. From the Minutes we learn that there are in this society 2,427 members. Last year they raised $1,301.81, besides a vast amount of missionary information disseminated.

Death of John Shivers, M. D.

I have just finished a letter from Black Hawk, Miss., informing me of the death of one of my very best friends, Dr. John Shivers, son-in-law to Dr. B. F. Kirtrell, of Black Hawk. Bro. Shivers was sick about three months with typhoid fever, and died last Monday, Oct. 10. All that accomplished medical skill could do was done. Nothing that loving watch-care could accomplish was left undone, and yet with all this his young and polished life has gone out. This life's sun is forever set. Only in his twenty-ninth year; a first-class physician, an official member of the Methodist Church, a Christian gentleman, an affectionate father and a loving and tender husband. We might ask, Why has God allowed this? But not so. We only bow to his divine will, and promise to meet our brother in the new, bright home above. B. F. PHILLIPS.

Nashville Advocate please copy.

Do You Know?

That when your bowels are disordered, and irregularities caused by change of diet or location exist.

Brodie's
Astringent Cordial

Will correct all the troubles, and never fails, but

CURES

DIARRHŒA, DYSENTERY, COLIC, CRAMPS, BLOODY FLUX, and Such Symptoms.

TESTIMONIAL.

July 25, 1889.
Dear Sirs:—I have used Brodie's Astringent Cordial in my family, and am using the third bottle. It always acts like a charm upon my children, correcting ailments of the bowels better than any medicine I ever tried.
Yours, most respectfully,
MRS. A. W. MOORE.

Price: 50 cts. and $1 a Bottle.

I. L. LYONS & CO., New Orleans, La.

Sold by All Druggists.

CENTENARY COLLEGE, Jackson, La.

Jackson, La., is near Ethel, on the Valley R. R., 113 miles north of New Orleans. The location is beautiful and healthful, the buildings are elegant and ample, and the Faculty is complete and able. The sale of intoxicating drinks is forbidden by law within five miles of the College. Its endowment fund is being rapidly increased, and the College has entered upon a new career of prosperity.

Special attention will be given to the health, morals and biblical instruction of the students.

For terms, Catalogue, or other information apply to Prof. G. H. Wiley, Jackson, La., or to

W. L. C. HUNNICUTT, President.

Makes

work of washing and cleaning—Pearline. It makes light work of anything needn't worry over the work hard over the house well without Pearline; you can keep it clean.

Beware

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest—send it back. 288. JAMES PYLE, N. Y.

Light

cleaning—Pearline. It makes light work of anything needn't worry over the work hard over the house well without Pearline; you can keep it clean.

ADVANTAGEOUS OFFER

TO
OLD AND NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

SUBSCRIBERS indebted to the

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

remitting amount due and Two Dollars for a year's subscription in advance, will be credited with

Four Months' Additional Subscription.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS remitting Two Dollars will be furnished this paper UNTIL JAN. 1, 1894. This offer holds good until Nov. 1, next.

Extraordinary Club-Rate Offer!

One Year for $3.00.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE and WIDE AWAKE.

At the head of Young People's Magazines. 100 pages every number. Perfect entertainment.

One Year for $2.00.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE and BABYLAND.

The one magazine for children one to six years old. Baby's help; mother's delight.

One Year for $2.50.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE and THE PANSY.

Edited by "Pansy." For Sunday and week-day reading. 32 to 40 sparkling pages every month.

One Year for $2.50.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE and OUR LITTLE

MEN AND WOMEN.

For youngest readers at home and in school.

One Year for $2.75.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE and THE STORY-TELLER.

Each number consists of a complete serial story for young people, varying from 50 to 100 pages.

Do Not Fail to Read This Prize Offer!

The following elegant book will be mailed to anyone sending FIVE NEW SUBSCRIBERS, at $2 each, with the cash.

D. L. MITCHELL, Publisher.

Representing Views of Cities—Public Buildings—Cathedrals—Street Scenes—Monuments—Churches—Temples—Observatories—Castles—Homes of Nobles—Villages—Lakes and Mountains—Scenery—Lochs—Falls—River Scenery—Canyons—Geyers—Bridges—Parks—Fountains—Towers—Memorials—Pyramids—Ruins of Temples—Tropical Scenery—Hills, and an array of instantaneous views, showing the life of the people in the various portions of the World; gathered from

North America, South America, Europe, Asia, Africa, Australia and the Pacific Islands.

ALSO COPIES OF PAINTINGS TAKEN FROM THE

GREAT GALLERIES OF THE WORLD,

Forming a beautiful collection of Photographs in one volume. To the vast army of stay-at-homes the world beyond the sea, which once seemed so far away from them, has now become nearer. Events that take place in South Africa are known a few hours afterwards in America, and a feeling of familiarity with distant lands thus seems to have been created by telegraph. Besides this, we have books of travel, lectures by explorers and pictures to fall back upon, so that if "we can not go strange countries for to see," we have them brought home to our doors.

This GREAT NEW BOOK, containing a vast collection of Photographs, gathered from every corner of the globe, is printed on enamelled paper, bound in the most durable manner, and sold at $4 per copy.

Millsaps College,

Jackson, Miss.

Session Begins Sept. 29th, 1892.

Full Faculty, Thorough Course, GOOD ENDOWMENT.

New and Commodious Buildings.

Beautiful, Central and Healthful Location at the Capital of the State.

Cheap Board. No Tuition. Moderate Matriculation Fee.

Liberal provision made for young preachers and sons of preachers.

For terms, catalogue or other information apply to

Rev. W. B. MURRAY, D. D., President,

or Rev. A. F. WATKINS, Agent, Jackson, Miss.

CHAS. B. GALLOWAY, Pres't of Board of Trustees.

EIGHTH YEAR.

—MUSICAL ART—

(INCORPORATED.)

PILCHER'S
STUDIO OF MUSIC,
and School of Languages,

(Established 1855.)

169 St. Charles Street. Next to Washington Artillery Hall.

Ample accommodations for boarding students. The Boarding Department is under the direct supervision of Mrs. Wm. Pilcher, Jr. Music Taught in All its Branches. Twenty-five teachers in the various departments. Graduates and other pupils who have attended this institution are now occupying positions of more or less prominence throughout the country. Send for seventh Annual Catalogue. WILLIAM H. PILCHER, President, New Orleans, La.

L. GRUNEWALD CO., Ltd.,

LOW PRICES! TIME PAYMENTS!

STEINWAY,

KNABE,

CHICKERING,

BEHR,

MEHLIN,

SOHMER,

PLEYEL,

FISCHER,

SHONINGER.

OPERA.

OLD PIANOS TAKEN IN EXCHANGE.

PIANOS AND ORGANS!

127 Canal St., 14 to 20 Baronne St., NEW ORLEANS,

Write for terms and further particulars.

Thine Verlain

183 Canal St.,

New Orleans, La.,

Is Offering the Following Bargains:

New Upright Pianos, - - $250.

New Parlor Organs, - - $30.

Second-hand Upright Pianos, - $125.

And Will Sell on

Easy Monthly Payments, if desired.

Write for Prices and Catalogues.

The Great Church LIGHT.

PRINCE'S Patent. Reduces the cost of lighting the interior of churches, halls, schools, etc. by 50%. The light is known as the Church Light. It is made of glass and is of the most perfect design. Send size of room. Get circular and estimate. A liberal discount to churches and the trade. L. F. PHILIP, 661 Pearl Street, N. Y.

Sour Eructations,
fullness after eating, with indigestion, irritation of bowels, general weakness
and debility are speedily removed by the use of

TUTT'S
Tiny Liver Pills

and good appetite, strong digestion,
activity of body and mind, sociability,
buoyancy of spirits, and health and strength take their place. Price, 25 cents. Office, 29 & 41 Park Place, N. Y.

Prize Offer by This Paper.

For Fifty New Subscribers ($2 cash to accompany each name sent).

The following handsome work of Art will be given to the party who sends in the names by January 1, 1893.

D. L. MITCHEL,

Publisher New Orleans Christian Advocate.

THE HOLIDAY GIFT BOOK!

"The Birds of North America"

A magnificent imperial quarto volume. Contains ONE HUNDRED and NINETEEN engraved plates, representing all our birds, colored from nature, including a reliable and interesting account of their habits and characteristics.

Edition limited to 1,000. Subscribers only and secure a copy for the holidays.

The work is sold to subscribers, bound handsomer and substantially, at following net
prices: Fine Russia Seal, or Turkey Morocco, half bindings, gold gilt edges, $40; full bindings, same materials, $45.

ENCOMIUMS FROM THE PRESS.

"A superb work."—Publishers' Weekly.

"A great work."—National Teacher.

"A magnificent Ornithological Work."—Turf, Field and Farm.

"It is one of the most ambitious publications ever attempted in this country or abroad."—Cleveland Leader.

"It is a marvel of beauty and excellence."—Ohio State Journal.

"No work evincing such perfect care and skill, at such a reasonable rate, has ever been published either in this country or abroad."—Inter-Ocean, Chicago.

COMMENDED BY THE HIGHEST AUTHORITY.

From Ex-President Hayes: "It is a valuable work. I have subscribed for two copies."

Dr. Elliott Coues, author of "Birds of the Northwest," says: "It is a really notable work."

Prof. C. J. Maynard, author of the "Birds of Eastern North America," says: "Contains the best pictures of the species which I have ever seen."

Dr. J. S. Newberry, President Academy of Science, says: "The work is accurately and carefully prepared, and I take pleasure in recommending it as the most attractive popular exposition of our ornithology yet given to the public."

From Prof. Wm. D. Hornaday, Taxidermist, U. S. National Museum: "I have carefully compared the figures in 'The Birds of North America' with those in Audubon's great work, and am free to say that they are more accurate in outline as well as more faithfully colored to nature."

Samples of plates and text sent to any address on receipt of twenty-five cents in postage stamps.

Good active representatives can have steady employment and earn fair compensation by receiving orders for this work with a specimen book furnished on receipt of one dollar by the NATURAL SCIENCE ASSOCIATION, 114 FIFTH AVE., NEW YORK.

Shorthand and Typewriting

TAUGHT BY

Miss P. S. MITCHEL,

302 St. Charles Ave., New Orleans.

She was a pupil of the late Rev. Welter Dunstan, and has had three years of experience as a stenographer in commercial firms in this city.

NATURE'S OWN REMEDY!

Bear Lithia Water

Cures Kidney and Bladder Troubles, Uric Acid,
Gout and Rheumatism, Phosphoric De-
posits, Inflammation of the Bladder,
Dropsical Affections, Gravel, Dust
Deposits, and Dyspepsia.

FOR SALE BY

CLARK & MEADER,

16 and 18 CARondelet ST.

BRANCH:

Cor. ST. CHARLES and NAPOLEON Avenues

A Concise Cyclopedia of Religious Knowledge.

602 Double-Column Pages. Beautifully Illustrated.

EVERY BIBLE STUDENT NEEDS ONE.

THE LATEST! THE BEST!

Agents wanted at once all over Louisiana.

Address

F. D. Van Valkenburgh,

106 CAMP ST., - NEW ORLEANS, LA.

HOPKINS' PRINTING OFFICE.

20 Commercial Place,

John P. Hopkins, New Orleans.

ALL KINDS OF PRINTING.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup, Throat Good, Use
in time. Sold by Druggists.

HOME LIFE.

LIKE THE SEA.

BY S. M. C.

Like the sea is the human heart
When waves of passion rise,
So tempest-tossed from shore to shore
Neath angry growing skies.
Like the sunlit sea is this heart of ours
When the waves are lulled to rest,
So low it beats to the music sweet
In the peaceful, happy breast.
Like the sea—the wonderful, grand old sea
It rests in the Master's hand.
May his tender love its boundary be
Its will its waves command.

A Perfect Wife.

On the anniversary of their marriage Edmund Burke presented to his wife this pen portrait of her charms. It may serve as a mirror in which wives of the present day may view themselves:

"She is handsome, but it is a beauty not arising from features, from complexion, or from shape. She has all three in a high degree, but it is not by these she touches a heart; it is all that sweetness of temper, benevolence, innocence, and sensibility which a face can express that forms her beauty. She has a face that just raises your attention at first sight; it grows on you every moment, and you wonder it did no more than raise your attention at first."

"Her eyes have a mild light, but they awe when she pleases; they command like a good man out of office, not by authority, but by virtue. Her stature is not tall; she is not made to be the admiration of everybody, but the happiness of one. She has all the firmness that does not exclude delicacy; she has all the softness that does not imply weakness."

"Her voice is a soft, low music, not formed to rule in public assemblies, but to charm those who can distinguish a company from a crowd;
it has this advantage, you must come close to her to hear it. To describe her body describes her mind; one is the transcript of the other; her understanding is not shown in the variety of matters it exerts itself on, but in the goodness of the choice she makes. She does not display it so much in saying or doing striking things, as in avoiding such as she ought not to say and do."

"No person of so few years can know the world better; no person was ever less corrupted by the knowledge. Her politeness flows rather from a natural disposition to oblige than from any rule on the subject, and, therefore, never fails to strike those who understand good breeding and those who do not. She has a steady and firm mind, which takes no more from the solidity of the female character than the solidity of marble does from its polish and luster. She has such virtue as makes us value the truly great of our own sex. She has all the winning graces that make us love even the faults we see in the weak and beautiful in her."

With such a wife, it is surprising that Burke could ever "shelter her beneath his own roof."

Awakening to Our Possibilities.

Nine-tenths of those who fall of success in life, do so because they fail to wake, or else wake too late, to the possibilities of power which they possess. This is true in a matterial and worldly sense, and it is also true in a spiritual and religious sense. The great majority of feeble Christians are weak, ineffective and comparatively useless in the Master's service, not because they are incapable of spiritual development and usefulness, but because they lack that faith in themselves, based upon faith in God, which would enable them to become devoted and successful servants of Christ. There seems to be a certain threshold of apathy, which holds multitudes of professing Christians in its unworthy bondage, and prevents their becoming what God made them capable of becoming. The only help for such spiritual inertia is the awakening of the soul to its true possibilities. How many of these dull, sluggish servants of Christ might be active, joyful, honored ministers of his, if they would only rouse to a sense of their prerogative and power! The world is full of clear-eyed, but blindfolded saints—Christians who walk through life led by their fellow-Christians instead of themselves leading some of Christ's wandering ones. Unprofitable servants they, whose talent is buried in the earth.

When shall we learn that Christ's service is not so much a matter of equipment as it is of devotion? Every Christian's possibilities are inestimable. What is the conventional, perfunctory, unfruitful Christian, after all, but a sleeping Luther? The church's greatest reformer might have been nothing more than a conventional ecclesiast had he not awakened to the possibilities of larger truth and larger service within him. The church to-day is full of sleeping Luthers—great and serviceable, potentially; petty and unfruitful, actually.

Oh, that all of us might wake to our spiritual possibilities—we who are all sons of God and "joint-heirs with Christ of the Father's glory! What a grand day it would be for the church of Christ if every sluggish, half-hearted Christian would rise up, and say, "No more spiritual slumber, no more selfish ease, no more faithless self-distrust! I am capable of grand things in the Master's service, and, by God's grace, I will accomplish them!"—Zion's Herald.

WOMAN'S GREATEST DANGER.—The great element of danger with woman's progress before the public lies in this fact: that it takes women away from home who ought to be there, and nowhere else. The public platform is no place for a mother who has either sons or daughters to educate. If woman's progress is going to tend in that direction, then the sooner that advancement stops the better. The first thought of a wife or a mother should be her home; all things, no matter how important, are secondary to that. No matter how important may become certain public evils, let her see to it that she keeps the evils out of her home, and she performs her greatest duty to her God, her family, and mankind.—Edward W. Bok, in the Ladies' Home Journal.

Washington was an Episcopalian, Adams preferred Unitarianism, Jefferson was a skeptic, Madison's people were Presbyterians, Monroe favored the Episcopal Church, John Q. Adams was a Unitarian, Jackson a Presbyterian, Van Buren an Episcopalian, Harrison attended the Methodist Church, Tyler the Episcopalian.
Polk became a Methodist after his term expired. Taylor was an Episcopalian, Fillmore a Unitarian, Pierce a Congregationalist. Buchanan was a Presbyterian, Grant a Methodist, Garfield a Christian or Campbellite. Hayes was a Methodist, Arthur an Episcopalian.
Benjamin Harrison is a Presbyterian.

God is a great God, and therefore he will be sought; he is a good God, and therefore he will be found.

Post-Mortem Love.

I stood at his coffin, and then there were many tongues to speak his praise. There was not a breath of aspersions in the air. Men spoke of self-denials—of his work among the poor, and his good qualities, of his quietness, his modesty, his humility, his pureness of heart, his faith and power. There were many who spoke indignantly of the charges that falsehood had lodged against him in past years and the treatment he had received. There were enough kind things said during the two or three days that he lay in the coffin, and while the company stood around his grave, to have blessed him and made him happy all his fifty years, and to have thrown sweetness and joy about his soul during all his painful and weary journey. There was enough sunshine wasted about the black coffin and dark grave to have made his whole life-path bright as clearest day.
But his eyes were closed then and could not be thrilled by the grateful sounds. He cared nothing then for the sweet flowers that were piled upon his coffin. The love blossomed out too late. The kindness came when life could not receive its blessings.

But meanwhile there is a great host of weary men and women tolling through life toward the grave, who need cheering words and helpful ministries. The license is gathering to scatter about their coffins; but why should it be scattered in their path to-day? The kind words are lying in men's hearts and trembling on their tongues, which will be spoken by and by when these weary ones are sleeping, but why should they not be spoken now, when they are needed so much, and when their accents would be so pleasing and grateful.—Exchange.

The Surprises of Life.

It has pleased him who gives us life, and who takes it away, to diversify it with a series of surprises, sometimes sad, sometimes pleasant, but in either case, unexpected. Indeed, were it not for the surprises that come so frequently, were we certain that to-day will be as yesterday, and that to-morrow will be as to-day, life would be dull and dreary—indeed, a burden far too great for us to bear. It is because to-day is not altogether as yesterday that we are sure to-morrow will not be altogether as to-day.
But for this our life would be but a treadmill, or prison, with its unvarying round of enforced sameness of labor. We ought to be very thankful that our heavenly Father does thus isolate us every day and keep from us the issues of the days before us.

But we are not quite submissive to this ordering of things. We are too proud to confess that we know not what shall be the morrow.
Thenceless as to our own ignorance and dependence, is one which we have to learn by bitter experience. But after a thousand disappointments in trying to improve upon the methods of Divine Providence, we find out at last that God's way is better than our way, and come to say, not with surly acquiescence, but with perfect peace and trust, "If the Lord will, we shall live and do this or that."—Evangelist.

Heading a Thief.

"John Chinaman," who swindled some of his countrymen in San Francisco, had little knowledge of the uses of the telegraph and cable, and thought if he could reach Shanghai in safety, all would be well. But the officers of the law were in waiting for him after his long voyage. This is how it happened: His victim in San Francisco had only to write a message and in a few moments it was in New York. There it took a dive into the Atlantic Ocean, and in a jiffy bobbed up on the coast of Ireland, took a look and leaped into the water again, scooped across to France and over to the Mediterranean, where it ducked under once more, and was in Alexandria before you could say "Jack Robinson." Then, adrift as the children of Israel, it passed through the Red Sea, shot under the Arabian Sea and came to the surface at Bombay. No mahimsa ever crossed India in shorter time than it took this message to jump over to Madras and dart into the Bay of Bengal. Then it rose at Shanghai just to catch breath for its final swim to Shanghai, and the law, the lazy law, had ample time to dress itself in a long train of bedizen sentences, and primp and primp before the ship came in.—Standard.

Peace Like a River.

Is there anything that can be compared for grandeur to one of those deep, tranquil Summer days when men say, "To be in the atmosphere and gaze by day and by night into the heavens, is glorious indeed. It is lordlier in bounty than anything of which the heart can conceive!" Did anybody ever carry these fair heavens and these deep skies with him into the untorn realms, and glory that he had the power, amidst the hideous noise, the cacophonous clashing, the violent strife of this world, to open the pearly gate, and walk within and rest until the storm was over past?
Did anybody ever say to himself, "I have some learning, some genius, some capacity; but, after all, I glory in myself because I dwell in joy, in love and in peace?" Ah, there is a higher notion of manhood and honor and dignity than that which is bruited about the streets among imperfect, quarrelsome men, and if once a man has learned to glory in this higher motion, how free he is! Forbearance, courage, toughness, endurance, the ability to meet trouble and not be vanquished by it, but tranquilly rejoice in it, are elements of manhood.
—Henry Ward Beecher.

Saintliness of character or of manner is not born in a person. It is a growth, or an acquirement, or result of training. And the more markedly it stands out in the face and bearing and methods of a man in mature life, the more it must have cost him in its securing. It is very easy to see the signs of this saintliness as it finally shows itself, but it is not so easy to realize the struggles which have been made in the effort at its attaining. Hard blows on the marble in its cutting and trimming, and patient and persistent effort in its polishing, are essential in the process of transforming the rude block as it comes from the quarry into the finished statue which is a center of admiration in the gallery. Yet no statue ever formed by the hand of man cost such determined effort, and such untiring patience in its completing, as a finished human character. A saintly face is a thing of beauty, but it costs more in its securing than most of us are willing to pay for it.—Sunday-School Times.

A RECIPE WORTH TRYING.—Good husbands can not be spoiled by petting. Bad ones will not be made worse by the process; they may be made better. One and all, they like it. Not only fondling and love-words, but to have their homecomings at evening be accounted events;
they enjoy pretty surprises and favorite dishes, the flower laid by the plate, the becoming gown or ribbon put on to please their eyes.

OUR YOUNG PEOPLE.

BIRDS AND BOYS.

Down in the meadow the little brown thrushes
Build them a nest in the barberry bushes;
And when it is finished all cozy and neat,
Three speckled eggs make their pleasure complete.

"Twit—ter—ee—twitter!" they chirp to each other,

"Building a nest is no end of a bother;
But oh, when our dear little birdies we see,
How happy we'll be! How happy we'll be!"

Up at the cottage where children are growing,
The young mother patiently sits at her sewing,
It's something to work for small hobbled boys
That will tear their trousers and make such a noise;

"And one must admit," says the dear little mother,

"That bringing up boys is no end of a bother;
But oh, when they kiss me, and climb on my knee,

It's sweetness for me, it's sweetness for me!"
—St. Nicholas.

MR. EDITOR: I will write and tell you about our projected meeting. Bro. Little, the presiding elder, preached Saturday, and after services held quarterly meeting. On Sunday we had the pleasure of listening to him again.
Our meeting commenced on Sunday, and lasted until Wednesday night. Bro. Keen helped Bro. Hawkins in the meeting all that he was able. I am sorry to say he was sick with a bad cold. Everybody liked his preaching so well. I hope he will come again. We had a rejoicing time. Four joined and two renewed their membership. We also organized a Sunday-school and prayer meeting, which were very much needed. Please help us pray for success in our undertakings. How many of the converts are reading a chapter in the Bible every day? I have started to do it.
I will close by asking the cousins a question:
What was the dimension of King O's iron bedstead in feet and inches? Success to the ADVOCATE.
Campbellville, Miss.
MABEL C. SPENCER.

The Hard Problem.

I know a boy who was preparing to enter the Junior class of the New York University. He was studying trigonometry, and I gave him the examples for his next lesson. The following day he came into my room to demonstrate his problems. Two of them he understood, but the third—a very difficult one—he had not performed. I said to him: "Shall I help you?"

"No, sir. I can, and will do it, if you give me time."

I said: "I will give you all the time you wish."

The next day he came into my room to recite another lesson in the same study.

"Well, Simon, have you worked that example?"

"No, sir," he answered; "but I can, and will do it, if you give me a little more time."

"Certainly, you may have all the time you desire."

I always like those boys who are determined to do their own work, for they make our best scholars, and men, too. The third morning you should have seen Simon enter my room. I knew he had it, for his whole face told the story of his success.

Yes, he had it, notwithstanding it had cost him many hours of hard work. Not only had he solved the problem, but, what was of much greater importance to him, he had begun to develop mathematical power, which, under the inspiration of "I can and I will," he has continued to cultivate, until to-day he is professor of mathematics in one of our largest colleges, and one of the ablest mathematicians of his years in our country.—Herold and Presbyter.

Hold on, Boys.

Hold on to your virtue—it is above all price to you, in all times and places.

Hold on to your good character, for it is, and ever will be, your best wealth.

Hold on to your hand when you are about to strike, steal, or do any improper act.

Hold on to the truth, for it will serve well and do you good throughout eternity.

Hold on to your tongue when you are just ready to swear, lie, or speak harshly, or use any improper word.

Hold on to your temper when you are angry, excited or imposed upon, or others are angry about you.

Hold on to your heart when evil persons seek your company, and invite you to join their games, mirth, and revelry.

Hold on to your good name at all times, for it is much more valuable to you than gold, high places, or fashionable attire.

Hold on to your foot when you are on the point of kicking, running away from study, or pursuing the path of error, shame or crime.

Tried by the Bible.

One who really studies the Bible will find something in it for almost every case. There is a story told of William Kidmore, the Glasgow minister. When about six years old his father, who was minister of Stow, a country town south of Edinburgh, promised him "a few apples" from the garden as soon as they were ripe, on condition that the boy would let them alone when they were green. His father, when the apples were ripe, gave him the expected lot of them.
He looked very much disappointed. He replied: "You promised me a few apples." His father said: "Well, have I not given them to you?" "No," said the boy, "I give them to you to try everything by the Bible. Now the Bible tells us about Noah's ark, 'Wherein few, that is, eight souls, were saved by water.' You have given me only four apples." The father smiled and gave the boy what the Bible counted
"few," eight apples.

So Billy got four extra apples by knowing how to quote Scripture.—Selected.

ALPHABETS OF THE WORLD.—The Sandwich Islands alphabet has twelve letters; the Burmese, nineteen; Italian, twenty; Bengalese, twenty-one; Hebrew, Syrian, Chaldean, and Samaritan, twenty-two each; French, twenty-three; Greek, twenty-four; Latin, twenty-five;
German, Dutch, and English, twenty-six each;
Spanish and Slavonic, twenty-seven each;
Arabic, twenty-eight; Persian and Coptic, thirty-two; Georgian, thirty-five; Armenian,
thirty-eight; Russian, forty-one; Muscovite, thirty-three; Sanskrit and Japanese, fifty; Ethiopian and Tartarian have two hundred and two each.

It is said that in the services of the English Church, the Prince of Wales has been prepared for 800,000,000 times. The use of this special prayer suggests to the New York Observer a story about a little girl who asked why the Prince was particularly excluded in it. Her mistake was due to the clergyman's pronunciation of "Albert Edward," which she took to mean "all but Edward, Prince of Wales."

SCIENTIFIC.

Nervous Exhaustion.

Of late years we hear much about this disorder. It is more prevalent in the United States than elsewhere. Indeed, Board, about twenty-five years ago, called it the "American disease."

It is not only a product of civilization, but of civilization run mad—craved by its everlasting rush. Dr. Edward Cowles, chief of the Mc-Lean Asylum, Somerville, Mass., and Dr.
George F. Jolly, formerly of the same institution, have brought their large experience and signal ability to bear on the study of this disease.

All intelligent persons are familiar with the fact that the body is in a perpetual state of assimilation and elimination—nutrition and waste. The two processes balance each other in a healthy and normal physical condition.

Unless the waste product is regularly carried off, the system is poisoned by its accumulation.

It is this self-poisoning which brings on the fatal result in Bright's disease and diabetes.

The ultimate nutrition of the body, whether of the muscles, membranes, nerve or cerebral substance, are the cells. These cells select the appropriate nourishment from the blood, assimilate it, and throw off the debris—the poisonous waste, always fatal if unduly retained.

Now, no other organ is so constantly in action as the nervous system. It is never fully at rest, day or night. The cells of every tissue must be kept incessantly at work. Every thought, feeling, purpose, volition, every excitement of pleasure, pain or passion, all concentration of mind in study, business or care, uses up brain substance, and transforms it into waste product.

In normal mental action this waste is taken care of and duly eliminated; but in prolonged excessive mental activity the waste accumulates, and, according to Dr. Cowles, acts as a poison to the nerves themselves, interfering with their normal action.

An early result is simple fatigue of the brain,
which rest may soon relieve; at a later stage,
the over-activity being longer continued, there is excessive irritability and weakness of the nervous system. The tendency is always toward grave mental disease, often merging into insanity.

Among the physical signs are tremor of the face, tongue and hands; but the earliest and most important signs are mental symptoms—melancholy and mental depression. The disease, to be easily arrested, should be treated early.—Youth's Companion.

Mental Power of Children.

The capacity of the child, the number and nature of the studies, and especially the length of the recitations, are features which ought not to be overlooked or left to the discretion of educators. That much can be gained by experimental study of over-pressure is shown by a paper read by Dr. Burgenstein, of Vienna, before the Congress of Hygiene, in London,
upon "The Working Curve of an Hour."

The writer held for his object the study of the mental power of children, and he arranged his experiments with a view to demonstrating the fluctuations of brain power in children during one hour's occupation with a familiar subject.

Simple addition and multiplication sums were given to two classes of girls of an average age

MARRIAGES.

ROPER-CARUTHERS.—At McGehee's chapel, Sept. 27, 1892, by Rev. J. M. Wyatt, Mr. Roper to Miss Fannie Lee Caruthers.

WILMER-SINGLETON.—At the residence of Mr. W. H. Singleton, near Commo, Miss., Sept. 23, 1892, by Rev. J. M. Wyatt, Mr. J. A. Fulmer to Miss L. R. Singleton.

WARD-SHROCK.—In the Methodist Church, Shrocks, Miss., Sunday evening, Oct. 9, 1892, by Rev. E. F. Edgar, Mr. W. H. Ward to Miss Mamie L. Shrock.

WARD-SHROCK.—In the Methodist Church, Shrocks, Miss., Sunday evening, Oct. 9, 1892, by Rev. E. F. Edgar, Mr. W. H. Ward to Miss Mamie L. Shrock.

OBITUARIES.

We publish obituaries of 800 words free of charge for all over this one cent per word. If you want the notice to appear in full, send one cent for each word over 800.

FLOWERS.—WILLIAM KNOX FLOWERS, eldest son of John E. and Sallie A. K. Flowers, was born Oct. 7, 1866; professed the Christian religion and joined the M. E. Church, South, in 1882, and died Aug. 31, 1892.

He was all my circle of acquaintances I have known a young man so remarkably free from bad habits and vices to which young men are addicted. His influence over young men in forming habits of morality, temperance and piety was very great. In the social circle he was a star of the first magnitude. A fine conversationalist, gifted in conversational powers, he refused to all his tastes, his presence was welcome. Possessing an intellect of the highest order, he had carefully trained it in the schools of this country and at the State University.

We often gazed upon his form of magnificent manhood, endowed by nature far above average, we thought there was reserved for him a long and successful career. But God's ways are not our ways. First, in December, 1891, the mercantile house in which he held an interest was destroyed by fire. Now death completed the work of destruction. If we had no other look beyond the grave, this hour, indeed, would be full of despair. But thanks to Christianity that gives us assurance of a meeting beyond the confines of death!

With the grief-stricken father, who mourns his first-born, we mingle our tears. To relatives and friends, and to all whose hearts are made sad by his death, we extend sympathy and condolence of a friend and one whose heart feels this bereavement as acutely as they. His friend, W. N. LEWIS.

CHAMPENOIS.—MRS. LOUISA CHAMPENOIS (nee Chabree) was born near Decatur, Miss., July 18, 1827. On Nov. 7, 1845, she was married to Mr. Isaac Champenois, in Mobile, Ala., by Mr. Joshua Heard.

She was a faithful, loving wife till his death a few years since. She joined the Presbyterian Church early in life; but when (with her husband and family) she moved to Shreveport, Miss., in 1859, all united with the M. E. Church, South. She remained a consistent member with us for more than thirty-two years. As this town grew up from a few houses to a business place, in all of its vicissitudes of prosperity and adversity, she remained at the post of duty. She became much attached to the doctrines and polity of her church, attended its ordinances, and supported its institutions. A woman of industry, business ability and stern integrity, she was ready to do all she could for the needy and distressed. She was not demonstrative in her ways, but quiet, calm and determined.

Her last sickness was not very protracted, but long and painful enough to give ample room for the exhibition of Christian patience and fortitude. She quietly arranged her earthly affairs, reposed her cause in the hands of a faithful Creator—a loving Redeemer—and in full hope of eternal glory, she passed to our Fatherland on Aug. 16, 1892. In many ways it will miss her much, but hope to meet again. J. P. DRAKE.

ALLEY.—At Floyd, La., Sept. 21, 1892, ALONZO ALLEY departed this life after a long and painful illness. He was born in Cuthbert, Ga., in 1845. In 1860 he married Miss Salome Louisa; in 1875 he moved to this place, where he lived until called by the Master to go up higher. Many years since he joined the M. E. Church, South, and served as trustee, steward and Sabbath-school teacher. He was elected clerk of the court when Carroll parish was divided into East and West.

Having known him intimately for many years, we can truthfully say he was a man of strong character. In his friendships he was firm and steadfast, always willing to aid and assist them in every time of need. In his family relations he was kindness personified. To his aged mother, wife and children he was a loving, devoted son, husband and father.

Having been attacked with a loathsome disease that killed him, he lingered for months and years, looking the grim monster, Death, calmly in the face, like a Christian martyr, without a murmur, knowing that God loveth those whom he chastens. He passed away as peacefully as though he fell asleep.

To his bereaved ones we say, Mourn not, for he has gone to that better land, where trials and sufferings are unknown. Another link has been added to the golden chain to draw you heavenward. A FRIEND.

PAINE.—LITTLE LELLA ANNA PAINE, daughter of R. B. and Ida J. Paine, was born Sept. 27, 1888; departed this life Sept. 12, 1892, aged three years eleven months and fifteen days.

Little Lella was a bright and sweet child, dearly loved by all. She loved to sing the Sunday-school songs. She loved to go to Sunday-school and say her lesson. She has ceased to sing on earth to sing in heaven, and while her place is vacated around the family altar, she still a place in heaven.

May the Lord bless father and mother, and help them to live to meet little Lella in the sweet by-and-by! J. C. CRAWFORD.

FRANKLIN.—LITTLE JOSIE E. FRANKLIN, daughter of Willie and Sarah Franklin, was born June 18, 1889, and died Aug. 31, 1892.

Josie was a sweet, loving child. She suffered much, but without a murmur. She has gone to rest, for Christ said, "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

May God bless the father and mother to follow on and meet to part no more! In heaven alone no sin is found, and there is no parting. "There I take these little lambs," said he, "and lay them on my breast." God will take care of them. J. C. CRAWFORD.

COOK.—After three days' sickness, on Sept. 24, 1892, the only child of Dr. and Sister Cook, of this place, was taken from earth to heaven. The little prattling boy of thirteen months had won the admiration of the community by his promise and affection; but he, who took little children in his arms and blessed them, has taken THOMAS H. G. COOK to himself. D. W. HARRIS.

VOSS.—Sister EMMA VOSS (nee Herman) was born July 12, 1859; was happily married to Mr. H. C. Voss, Jan. 20, 1891, at the Presbyterian Church in Baton Rouge, Rev. J. Allison officiating.

She became a member of the Presbyterian Church in early life, and remained a consistent member of that church until a very short while before her death, which occurred at her home in Monroe, La., May 8, 1892. Her husband being an official member of the M. E. Church, South, at Monroe, La., she thought it proper to become a member of the same church with him; which she did by letter from the Presbyterian Church, in March, 1892.

It is true that man is sinful, I would have said, she knew no sin. There was a gentleness, a mildness and purity of demeanor in her life that evinced a close companionship with God.

Sister Voss leaves a husband and child and many relatives and friends to mourn her departure. Our comfort is this: that the companionship with the pure in heaven, forever free from sin, with its sorrows and sufferings. Let us, by the grace of God, meet her there. B. F. WHITE, Pastor.

RIGGS.—LULA M. RIGGS, daughter of S. and M. J. Riggs, was born near Centerville, Wilkinson county, Miss., Nov. 21, 1866, and died Aug. 17, 1892. She was married to E. E. Riggs, Oct. 23, 1883. Soon after her marriage she was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, in which she lived a happy, earnest, lovely Christian life.

Sister Riggs was an affectionate daughter, a loving and devoted wife, a kind and true neighbor; over ready and willing to help the needy and distressed. She endeavored to do unto others as she would they should do unto her, and in consequence of her sweet spirit and kind disposition, she won all hearts and was loved by all who knew her.

In 1891 she moved with her husband to Monroe, La. Six weeks before her death she returned to Centerville on a visit to her parents and friends; and thus away from her husband, but surrounded by friends and relatives, she was taken sick and died very suddenly. But she was ready. She died in the faith; her end was peace. Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord! May the Lord comfort the heart-broken husband, and show him that his loss is his eternal gain! W. W. SIMMONS.

LONGMIRE.—WILLIAM GORDON LONGMIRE was born near Gloster, Amite county, Miss., Jan. 21, 1825, and died suddenly, May 11, 1892. Bro. Longmire was twice married: first, in 1855, to Miss Caston, and after her death to Mrs. A. M. McDowell in 1864. He joined the M. E. Church soon after his second marriage, and was a faithful member and worker in the church until his death.

Bro. Longmire was a kind husband, a devoted father, a good neighbor. Long will Uncle Willie be remembered in this community. Though he had no warning of his death until it was upon him, yet we believe he was ready, for he lived right. May the Lord comfort and bless his wife and children! W. W. S.

HOSS.—LITTLE RUTHIE MAY, daughter of Jacob and Geraldine Hoss, was born Aug. 3, 1891, and died Sept. 2, 1892.

This bright and lovely bud was plucked when it began to be so interesting. Oh, how that little voice and sweet smile are missed! She stayed with us just long enough to make us love heaven more and earth less. Those lovely little arms, so often stretched to come to me! I feel she is on the other shore, saying, "Papa and mama, come to me." God help us to be faithful to the end; to be with Jesus and reunited with little Ruthie and Ruthie May. MOTHER.

Nashville Advocate please copy.

An Only Daughter Cured of Consumption.

When death was hourly expected from Consumption, all remedies having failed, and Dr. H. James was experimenting, he accidentally made a preparation of Indian Hemp, which cured his only child, and now gives this recipe free on receipt of two stamps to pay expenses. Hemp also cures night sweats, nausea at the stomach, and will break a fresh cold in twenty-four hours. Address Craddock & Co., 1033 Race street, Philadelphia, Pa., naming this paper.

IMPORTANT NOTICE TO THOSE SENDING MONEY.

Remittances should be made only by money orders, express company orders, registered letters, drafts or checks on New Orleans banks or merchants. Drafts on country banks occasion a loss of from 15 to 25 cents per check. Drafts on country merchants we have no facility for collecting. Checks and drafts, also money orders, should be made payable to D. L. Mitchell, Publisher.

We will mail free, on receipt of two cents in stamps, a sample box of Dr. Davis' Liver Pills. They will cure constiveness, biliousness, dyspepsia, indigestion, piles, and all disorders that arise from a diseased liver and impure blood. JOHN H. COLLINS & CO., 308 Market St., Phila., Pa.

For sale by all druggists at 25c. per box.

That which is good to be done can not be done too soon, and if it is neglected to be done early it will frequently happen that it will not be done at all.—Bishop Mant.

PIK-RON

is the name of a paint of which a 25c. bottle is enough to make six scratched and dulled cherry chairs look like newly finished mahoganies. It will do many other remarkable things which no other paint can do. All retailers sell it.

SOUTHERN ACADEMIC INSTITUTE.

Mrs. J. E. SEAMAN, Principal.

French and English School for Young Ladies. Graded and Chartered. Boarding Department a specialty. New Buildings, Large Grounds. Kindergarten with Normal Training.

Send for Circular, 216 Coliseum, New Orleans.

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE

in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30

J. G. GRANT,

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE
in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30

PIK-RON

is the name of a paint of which a 25c. bottle is enough to make six scratched and dulled cherry chairs look like newly finished mahoganies. It will do many other remarkable things which no other paint can do. All retailers sell it.

Jack and Jill

wouldn't have had to carry so much water if they had used

Gold Dust Washing Powder,

and their work would have been sooner done, for nothing else that

Cleans So Well,
So Quickly, or
Costs So Little
has been discovered.

N. K. FAIRBANK & CO., Sole Manufacturers,
CHICAGO, ST. LOUIS, NEW YORK, PHILADELPHIA, BOSTON,
BALTIMORE, NEW ORLEANS, SAN FRANCISCO,
PORTLAND, ME., PORTLAND, ORE., PITTSBURGH AND MILWAUKEE.

FRANTZ & OPITZ,
Watchmakers and Jewelers,

WILL MOVE TO
No. 17 Bourbon Street, near Canal,
(Next Door to the D. H. Holmes' Bourbon Street Entrance)
November 1st, 1892.

Office Telephone, 82. Yard Telephone, 331.

Pennsylvania Coal Company,
Office 67 Carondelet Street.

PITTSBURGH COAL.

WHOLESALE AND RETAIL.

L. S. WIDNEY, Manager.

Cotton Presses, Factories, and the Family trade supplied at Lowest Market Rates.

CITY YARDS: Foot of Robin Street, Foot of Desire Street, Corner Short and St. Charles Avenue.

WE The July

PRONOUNCE W. C. SHEPARD & SON,
54 CAMP ST., near POYDRAS,
The Cheapest Crockery, Glass and House-furnish-
ing House in the City.

Be sure and look them up when needing goods
in their line. 500 Dinner, Tea and Chamber Sets
at half price.

For First-Class Photographs

GO TO SIMON'S,

No. 183 Canal St., - - - New Orleans, La.

H. Dudley Coleman Machinery Co., Lim'd,

New Orleans, La.

STEAM ENGINES, BOILERS, MILLS AND MACHINERY,

Pumps, Pipe, Presses, Pulleys, Shifting,

Saw, Sugar and Corn Mills,

Cotton Gins, Feeders and Condensers.

Examine Our Stock. Our Prices Are Very Low.

FOUNDRY, FACTORY & OFFICE, SUPPLIES & SAMPLE STORE

Cor. Magnolia and Erato Sts. 9 Perdido St. New Orleans, La.

If readers of this advertisement who wish to purchase goods in our line would mention this paper when writing for information or when ordering goods from us, we would then determine whether the money we pay for advertising in this paper is well invested or not.

H. DUDLEY COLEMAN MACHINERY CO., LIMITED, New Orleans, La.

Latest Styles -- Lowest Prices!

This handsome Parlor Suit is upholstered on solid walnut frames with Imported Marbleized Silk Plush and the seats are all Spring Edge. Colors are Red, Red and Old Gold, Blue and Old Gold or each piece of a different color. For $45 I will sell seven pieces of this suit:—one Sofa, one Divan, one Patent Rooker, one Arm Chair and three Reception Chairs. $85 buys the complete suit of ten pieces consisting of two Sofas, one Divan, one Patent Rooker, one Arm Chair, and five Reception Chairs. Same suit covered with Hair Cloth, seven pieces $35 or ten pieces $55. Every other article in my store at proportionately low prices. Bedroom suits, twelve pieces, from $40 up to $1000 Dining room suits, eight pieces, from $17 upwards. Complete Kitchen outfits from $20 upwards. Quality at top—prices at bottom. I have an immense variety of strictly reliable goods and purchasers can depend upon getting the very latest styles. Everything guaranteed to be exactly as represented or money will be promptly refunded.

CHEAPEST FURNITURE HOUSE
in New Orleans,
28 CAMP STREET 30

Liverpool and London and Globe
Insurance Company.

Losses Paid by Chicago Fire, 1871, $3,239,091.

Losses Paid by Boston Fire, 1872, $1,429,726.

All Losses Paid in Cash without Discount, as Soon as Adjusted.

Losses and all matters of business settled by officers and directors in New Orleans without reference to any other office, the same as with local companies.

DIRECTORS IN NEW ORLEANS.

GUSTAF E. WESTFELDT, L. O. FALLON, LUCAS E. MOORE, O. M. SOMMA

Chairman. Secretary.

CLARENCE F. LOW, Asst. Resident Sec'y. H. V. OGDEN, Resident Secretary.

The Southern Insurance Company

OF NEW ORLEANS.

54 - - - CAMP STREET - - - 54

Paid up Capital, $300,000. Assets, $545,096.10.

FIRE, RIVER, AND MARINE INSURANCE.

This company by its conservative, yet liberal, business methods, and the immediate availability of its assets, affords complete security to its assured. Losses promptly adjusted and paid.

ERNEST MILTENBERGER, H. GALLY, SCOTT MOSELEY

President. Vice-President. Secretary.

FINANCIAL COMMITTEE.

Frank Bodar, J. H. Menke, Joseph Schwartz, F. G. Ellis, T. J. Woodward

Home Insurance Co., of New Orleans.

No. 78 CAMP STREET.

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1886, - - - $400,479.08

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1887, - - - $418,860.76

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1888, - - - $459,369.50

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1889, - - - $510,584.54

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1890, - - - $551,897.83

CASH ASSETS, December 31st, 1891, - - - $600,414.81

Steadily Increasing in Strength and Popularity.

Solvents Fire and River Business.

Liberal Settlements and Prompt Payments.

Thos. Sefton, Pres't. Capt. J. B. Woods, Vice-Pres't. Jno. G. Byrd, Sec'y

J. B. WOODS, JNO. J. BARR, J. B. LEVERT, W. B. BLOOMFIELD

JOS. BAYLE, ANDREW STEWART, E. BORLAND, W. T. HADDIE

JNO. BARKLEY, CHAS. CHAFFE, F. B. RICE, THOS. SEFTON.

W. R. LYMAN, JOSEPH BOWLING, CHAS. E. RICE,

President. Vice-President. Secretary.

Crescent Insurance Com'y.

Incorporated as a Mutual Company in 1849.

Reorganized as a Stock Company in 1860.

Cash Capital, - - - $300,000.

Has paid over TEN AND ONE-HALF MILLIONS for losses since 1849. ANNUAL and TERM

POLICIES issued on Destructible Fire Business.

See our Agents throughout Louisiana, Mississippi and Arkansas.

Watches, Diamonds, FINE JEWELRY

Silver and Silver-Plated Ware,

SPECTACLES AND EYE-GLASSES.

Send for Catalogue.

A. B. GRISWOLD & CO.,

(Established 1817)

119 CANAL ST., New Orleans, La.

THIRTY CENTS

Will get you TWO good papers, THE WAY OF FAITH (weekly), THE SOLDIER (monthly), for THREE MONTHS, 8 sweet songs, and our Liberal Terms to Agents. Address

GOSEPEL MISSION, Columbia, S. C.

Mention this paper.

"Sanctification,"

By DR. B. CARRADINE,

Is having a wonderful sale and doing a large amount of good.

Price: Paper, 40 cents; cloth, 80 cents.

For sale by F. D. VAN ALKENBURGH,

106 Camp St., New Orleans.

J. C. MORRIS CO., Limited.

40, 42 and 44 Tchoupitoulas Street.

E. F. DYER, Pres. E. P. MACKIE, Treas.

W. W. CARRE,

LUMBER MERCHANT

AND MANUFACTURER OF

PLANTATION CABINS, STORES, Etc.

No. 343, 344, 345 and 346 Howard Ave.,

NEW ORLEANS.

ALL known throughout the United States that we desire to have that one of our elegant portraits placed in our gallery. If you have a photograph you desire copied to us made of it. It will be made for you free of charge. We will send you a sample, and its value $2.00. If you desire to have an address on the back of the photograph which will insure its return, so have no fear of losing it. We have our offices in our city Commercial Bank, Brooklyn, New York, at the Express Co., and L. G. Dunn & Co., New York City. We are, yours, warily, respectfully,
J. H. DeKalt
755 DeKalt Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Christian Advocate.

VOL. 39.—NO. 43.

NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, OCTOBER 27, 1892.

WHOLE NO. 1888.

Rev. C. W. CARTER, D. D., Editor.
Rev. B. F. LEWIS, Asst. Editor.

PUBLISHED FOR THE LOUISIANA CONFERENCE, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE AND NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE, METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH, SOUTH.

ENTERED AT THE POST-OFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MATTER.

Arkansas Letter.

MR. EDITOR: The Arkansas preachers are rounding up their year's work and preparing for Conference. The first to meet is the Arkansas; then the Little Rock, and last the White River. Bishop Wilson is to preside, and a hearty welcome will be extended to him. Some of the Arkansas people have had a taste of his powerful preaching. Last June he presided at the Morrilton District Conference, of the Arkansas Conference, which met in the hospitable, enterprising town of Conway, where Hendrix College is located, and the commencement exercises of the college followed immediately upon the close of the District Conference. The Bishop presided the commencement sermon. It was stately and sublime in thought, and powerful in delivery. Such sublime thoughts can not but give the hearer an uplift toward holiness and God. The Bishop, in his forceful and eloquent statement of the great doctrine of the atonement, moved with the tread of a giant.

This year has been one of excitement in politics and shortness of crops, yet the voice of the Methodist Missionary has been heard in the land, and the shout of the happy convert has ascended the hill of the Lord. The church has made some progress in the face of many hindrances and much to discourage.

In the last few years the educational interests in Arkansas have had a real boom. Hendrix College, the male school for the Methodists of the State, located at Conway, thirty miles from Little Rock, on the L. R. and Ft. Smith railroad, is under the presidency of Rev. A. C. Millar, A. M., who is a man of gifts and graces for the responsible position he successfully and worthily holds. He has associated with him five scholarly Christian gentlemen in the collegiate department, and a fine corps of teachers in the preparatory department, headed by Prof. Copenhagen, an A. M. of Emory and Henry College. The school now has eighty-three students from a distance. The building is new, three-story brick, and well appointed. The location is beautiful.

Galloway Female College, located at Searcy, fifty-five miles northeast from Little Rock, is presided over by Rev. J. H. Dye, D. D., who gained a national reputation as a successful teacher and manager while he was superintendent of the Arkansas School for the Blind. Dr. Dye leased Galloway College for twelve years, and is to put $10,000 worth of improvements on the property. The school opened with a fine attendance. I am not advised as to the exact number, but I know that there are over 125 boarders. The faculty is full and able; the facilities for music are superior.

Speaking of Galloway, at Searcy, reminds me that Rev. Horace Jewell, the pastor there, has in press a history of Methodism in Arkansas, which will be ready for the reading public in five or six weeks. Bro. Jewell has been in the regular work in Arkansas about forty years, and he has had fine opportunities for gaining information for a history of our church in the State. I anticipate a rare treat when it reaches us.

Quitman Male and Female College is the oldest college in the State, and its students are scattered over this and other States. Quite a number of them are in the ministry. Rev. C. B. Mosely, of Japan, was a student here. The school is well managed, with Rev. O. H. Tucker as president. He is devout, painstaking and unassuming. The building is a three-story brick, just finished. I can speak knowingly of this school, having been the pastor on Quitman circuit the two years prior to this.

There is also the Arkadelphia Methodist Male and Female College, located at Arkadelphia, and presided over by Rev. C. O. Jones, an A. M. of Vanderbilt University. It is a fine school, well located.

The Little Rock Conference Training-school, located at Fordice, and presided over by Prof. Granville Goodloe, an A. M. of Vanderbilt University, is a most excellent classical academy of high grade.

I see my letter is growing too long to mention in detail other good church schools of the State.

The temperance laws are excellent. Many counties have voted out the saloon, and many neighborhoods have petitioned out the saloon under the three-mile law.

The Arkansas Methodist—Rev. Z. T. Bennett, D. D., editor—is a worthy ally of the Methodist pastor, and is very helpful in all lines of church work. It is a popular paper, and has a large circulation.

For a long time before your State election, last Spring, I watched with great anxiety the movements, pro and con, on the Louisiana Lottery question. I suppose no one outside of your State felt more joy at the success of the "Anita." I have a warm heart for Louisiana, for I lived there nine years, and my father and three sisters sleep under its sod, awaiting the resurrection of the just.

Rev. J. A. Miller, presiding elder of Opelousas district, was my pastor when I felt the call to the ministry, and he was the first preacher—I believe the first man—I ever told that I felt I ought to go to preaching. How kindly and fatherly he was to me! And there is James L. Wright—dear, good man. He was our pastor at Batrop in ante-bellum days. There is also Bro. Trippett, still lingering on this side with other old heroes. How delighted I was to see Bro. J. Pipes at the last General Conference in St. Louis! The dear old soldier, with many a battle scar, has gone up to enjoy the fruit of his labors.

But I must close. May the blessing of our God rest upon you and your co-laborers in that goodly land, and may you be able to conquer it entirely for Christ!

Austin, Ark.

FROM THE WORK.

Rev. J. W. Chambers, P. C., Enterprise and Stonevale circuit, Oct. 14: "The Lord has graciously visited us at Enterprise. Rev. N. M. Clark did most of the preaching. There were 40 additions to the different churches. There were 100 conversions and reclamations. We will receive 26 members. Rev. T. L. Mellen, P. E., preached the last five sermons. Our whole church has taken a forward step."

Rev. B. H. Sheppard, Ada circuit, Louisiana Conference, Oct. 5: "This work does not enjoy the state of perfection that we would have it enjoy, and yet we are glad it is as well with us as it is. We have a net increase over the membership of last year of 21. Have baptized 1 adult and 16 children. Finances are very low. We have a part of our Conference collections in hand. But few of our members pray in public."

Rev. W. F. Henderson, Pleasant Hill, La., Oct. 7: "Our meeting at this place continued three weeks. A glorious victory for God and salvation. Twelve accessions, 15 or 20 conversions, church revived. Result: A ladies' young men's and general prayer meeting each week. Bro. Lallance was with me through the entire meeting; did noble work for the Master. Bro. Drake also four or five days. Many thanks to the brethren. Praise the Lord for his mercies. Held two other meetings prior to this. Good results. Have added to the church this year 28. Begin at Marshallville to-night. Pray for us."

Rev. J. R. Whittington, P. C., Bayou Sara circuit, Woodville district, Oct. 15: "Our fourth quarterly meeting has been held, and our worthy presiding elder, Rev. P. A. Johnston, was on hand, and preached as a fine sermon. We had quite a profitable Quarterly Conference. Our preacher's salary about half paid, and the fourth Quarterly Conference gone. This circuit has always had the name of paying every dollar. Spiritually, we are in a good fix. Crops of all kinds never better. We hope everything will be paid in full; we need it. One church, with a new steward, paid up, and $5 over. I am afraid he will have to take the horns. Pray for us."

Rev. O. L. Savage: "We are closing out our year's labors on Minter City and Strathmore charge. We have just closed a revival at Minter City. Three accessions to our church. The church greatly revived. Rev. J. W. Price, of Water Valley, Miss., gave us efficient and satisfactory service. My people were delighted with his services. Rev. J. W. Honnell assisted me at Strathmore. The church was revived. Two accessions to the church. All the people were pleased with his preaching. This is our first year on this delightful charge. We feel assured that the charge is moving upward; that the Holy Spirit is leading us on to victory. May the blessings of Heaven rest upon these noble people!"

Rev. Ira F. Hawkins, Angulla, Miss.: "Allow me to report my last protracted meetings. Bros. Little, P. E.; Keen, and Rogers, a lay member, were my co-workers in passing through 'great tribulation' to Sharbrough's Chapel. There was held our third quarterly meeting. The services were protracted. Six joined the church, several family altars established, and a prayer meeting and Sunday-school, hitherto not even in embryo, received life. At Cary I was assisted by Bros. Keen and Orisler. Ten joined the church, and God's love was rekindled in the hearts of his children. The spiritual pulse of this magnificent Delta country is being quickened. The almighty dollar has been the central object for which immortal souls did strive. Now many are earnestly striving for God Almighty, and trusting in his guidance."

